Big Blackout

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) - An electric power failure backed out all of Israel for nearly two hours today, causing an explosion in Haifa and paralyzing the country except for institutions that had emergency generators.

The cause of the massive break centered on a line problem in Hartuv, a cooperative settlement outside Jerusalem, a spokesman for the Israel Electric Co. said. The nationwide blackout lasted from 12:45 p.m. (5:45 a.m. EST) until 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EST).

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) - Five people, including four children, were killed Sunday night in a suspicious fire that raged through a condemned, city-owned tenement that authorities said had been the target of arson threats. A sixth victim was feared buried in the rubble.

The blaze brings to five the number of serious fires in the northern New Jersey area over the past month, with at least 38 fatalities.

The victims - believed to members of the same familywere not immediately identified. Newark Fire Directr John Caufield today said tenants reported seeing three young men flee from the building shortly before the blaze started 9 p.m.

Khomeini Moves For Interim Rule

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today appointed elder statesman Mehdi Bazargan as prime minister of his new provisional government charged with ultimately establishing a "pure" Islamic state

The ayatollah told a news conference the 73-year-old Bazargan, former director of the National Iranian Oil Co., will announce other members of his new provisional government shortly.

Bazargan has been the "honest broker" of Iranian politics for the past feu weeks, acting as intermediary between Khomeini and Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar and trying to arrange a compromise between the two men to head off a threatened civil war.

The former university lecturer, respected by both sides as well as ariny generals, had been widely tipped for the post for many weeks.

Bazargan was trained as a businessman and a university professor after receiving an engineering degree in Paris and early in his political life he became a member of the opposition National Front. He was also for a time director of the prestigious National Ira-

A dedicated and deeply religious man, he ran afoul of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in 1962 and was arrested for his activities against the regime.

Bazargan became deeply involved in the latest political crisis facing Iran several weeks ago when, on Khoumeini's instructions, he held talks with striking oil workers and persuaded them to restart limited production to satisfy the country's Since that time he has been in-

Bakhtiar warned that if any ayatollah appointee went beyond that role he would immediately order his arrest.

Khomeini returned to Iran from nearly 15 years in exile last week with the stated purpose of overthrowing Bakhtiar and setting up a Moslem republic. Intermediaries between the Bakhtiar and Khomeini camps met again today before the ayatollah's news conference.

Bakhtiar Sunday Hatly rejected Khomeini's announcement that the "alternate Islamic government" would soon be in power and said his regime would answer "a bullet with a bullet" if Khomeini launched his

Traffic Jammed In Farm Protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Choking city traffic and backing up frustrated commuters for 12 miles, more than 2,000 farmers from around the nation converged on Congress in tractors and pickup trucks today to demand higher crop prices.

The big diesel tractors, trucks and campers crawled into Washington on major access routes during rush hour and moved slowly up Pennsylvania and Independence Avenues to parking places set aside on Capitol

The family farmers, members of the American Agriculture Movement, joined thousands of their colleagues who came to town over the weekend to lobby Congress for higher crop price supports.

Many other farmers arrived by plane. AAM leaders estimated the numbers would be greater than the 30,000 who came last year.

But lawmakers are expected to be in a penny-pinching mood to fight inflation this year.

Police reported few incidents in the massive traffic jams caused by the flag draped, slow-moving motor-cades on Interstate Highway 95, the George Washington Parkway and other access routes. Virginia State Police said rush-hour traffic was backed up 12 miles at 7:30 a.m.

Photos Reveal Russian Base

TOKYO (UPI) - The Soviet Union has constructed a large military base on one of two norther islands claimed by Japan, aerial photographs published in a Tokyo

One of the pictures in the Sankei Shimbun clearly shows a runway on one of the Kuril islands, which the newspaper said is 2.17 miles long and has the capacity to handle landings by all types of military aircraft. The photographs appeared after an unexpected statement by the Japanese Defense Agency last month that the Soviet Union had contructed permanent military bases on two of the Kuril islands off Hokkaido, Japan's orthernmost main island. Japan has claimed sovereignty over the two islands, Kunashiri and Etorofu, as well as Habomai and Shikotan to the north since the end of World War II. The Soviet Union, which seized the islands after World War II. Aso claims the island group. Sankei said the aerial photographs of Kunashiri islandwere taken Friday from its own plane in Japanese air space. But the flight prompted at least one Russian reconaiassace aircraft to scramble, the newspaper reported. Kunashiri is 15.6 miles from the tip of Hokkaido. Defense Agency officials said the Soviet Union has deployed about 5,000 to 6,000 ground troups on the islands of Kunashiri and Etorofu. On Kunashiri, Sankei said, the Soviets have built a three-story building, a radar station and a number of barracks.

Sankei said the Soviet military base on Kunashiri is about the size of Kadena U.S. Air Force base in Okinawa. The Japanese Foreign Ministry lodged a protest last week with the Soviet embassy in Tokyo against the military buildup on the Kuril Islands.

The U.S. State Department officially expressed its support for the Japanese claim over the islands, seized by the Soviets in the closing days of World War II.

Flood May Face New Prosecution

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Justice Department officials. convinced that only a fluke prevented conviction of Rep. Daniel Flood, are seriously considering again prosecuting the 75-year-old congressman on sweeping bribery charges. "The jury convicted Dan Flood and one guy decided he shouldn't go to jail because he is old." said one official familiar with the case that ended in a mistrial Saturday. U.S. District Judget Oliver Gasch regretfully declared the mistrial after he was informed the jury was hopelessly deadlocked following three days of deliberations. Jurors later disclosed that an elderly member of the panel, William Cash, said he "knew Mr. Flood was guily of some of the charges, but would never vote to send him to jail him because of his age and frailty. Officials said privately, however, such a reason for Cash's refusal to vote guilty did not fall within the decision-making responsibility relegated to the juror and should not have been a consideration. They said a juror is charged only with deciding whether the government has proven a defendant's guilt. The decision on a retrial rests with Philip Heymann.

assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, and department officials said Sunday they expect him to decide within a "week or two." Factors to be weighed include the 11-to-1 vote of the jury on civil bribery and perjury counts, the fact Flood is sitting congressman charged with corruption, and Flood's age, officials said. But they made it clear Flood's age is no bar to new prosecution.

If the case is tried again, Gasch would still be the presiding judge unless he found a reason to excuse himself. It is commonly believed that in a retrial the defense has an advantage because it has become closely. familiar with the government's evidence.
