Federal Grants
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has announced eight cities will receive up to $500,000 each to help solve the problem of developing industry while at the same time meeting clean air standards.

The Air Quality Technical Assistance Program will provide the eight cities — chosen from 75 applicants — with $4 million to "plan, carry out and evaluate locally developed strategies for meeting better air quality and economic development needs," the White House said in a statement.

Urban areas chosen are: Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Bridgeport-Waterbury, Conn., Buffalo-Erie County, N.Y., Portland, Ore., Elizabeth, N.J. and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

"We hope the programs implemented will make cities a more attractive place for investment as well as healthier places to live for their citizens," said Jack Watson, assistant to the president for intergovernmental affairs.

"The demonstration is expected to provide data on workable techniques that can be adopted by other cities," the statement said.

The program, part of President Carter's urban policy announced in March 1978, is sponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency and the departments of Commerce, Transportation and Housing and Urban Development.

Fuel Prices
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., has urged the U.S. Energy Department to shift some of the fuel price burden from home heating oil to gasoline to help consumers in the chilly Northeast.

Pell, in a Thursday letter, also asked Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary to hasten his agency's investigation into overall oil pricing.

"It has become apparent that the revolution in Iran may drive prices of home heating oil and gasoline even higher in Rhode Island — where we have already faced a 15 percent boost in fuel oil prices and a 7.7 percent rise in regular gasoline prices during the past 12 months," Pell said.

"Deputy Energy Secretary O'Leary agreed last September, at my urging, to tilt some of the home heating oil price increases onto the price of gasoline.

"This would spread the impact nationally instead of concentrating it in the northern regions. Today, I urged him to expedite this tilt," the four-term lawmaker said.

Pell added he also urged a "speed up" of the department's investigation into oil pricing at the refinery level and expansion of its probe into alleged price gouging.

Youths Indicted
NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Three young New Haven men have been indicted on murder charges in connection with the December shooting of high school business education teacher Anthony Annunziata.

Indicted Thursday by a Superior Court grand jury were Reginald Jones, 17, Lennie Harris, 20, and Mark Osborn, 18. The indictments were handed up after more than five hours of testimony and 40 minutes of deliberations.

Annunziata, 36, was murdered Dec. 14, 1978, while manning a concession stand at Wilbur Cross High School. Authorities said he was shot during an apparent bungled robbery attempt.

Police alleged that Harris drove the car that Jones tried to rob the stand, and that Osborn acted as a lookout. No money was taken from the concession stand.

Judge Frank Kinney Jr., at the prosecution's request, raised bond for Harris from $25,000 to $50,000 but kept Osborn's bond at $75,000. Jones is being held on $150,000 bond.

Manchester
MANCHESTER — A family of seven was left homeless Thursday as a result of a fire which extensively damaged their home at 166 Ludlow Road Thursday afternoon. The fire was apparently rekindled again this morning, causing more damage.

Three of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. James Fox were in the home at the time of the fire which was called to the Town Fire Department shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday.

David Fox, 11, was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and treated for first and second-degree burns he sustained while trying to put out the fire which started in the basement. His sister, Kathy Fox, 14, was overcome with smoke inhalation when she tried to rescue one of the two family dogs in the basement, according to police. She was also treated and released at the hospital.

James Fox, 11, who was also in the house when the fire broke out did not require medical attention. Danny Fox, 11, was outside of the house and the fourth son, Michael, 13, and the parents were not at home at the time. Michael said today that the two dogs escaped the fire, but a pet cat died in the house.

Also injured in the blaze was a town firefighter, Robert Lindsay. He was treated for a severely lacerated finger at the hospital and released.

Deputy Fire Chief Roy Stratton said the house was engulfed in heavy black smoke when firefighters from three town companies, arrived on the scene. Stratton also said there was a strong smell of gasoline emitting from the blaze. There were at least two gasoline cans, a motorcycle, two mini-bikes and a lawnmower, all filled with gasoline in the basement garage.

Stratton said that he has not determined exactly where the fire started, but it was in one of the basement rooms.

David Fox claimed to have heard a crackling or exploding sound from the laundry room and then saw flames from the room which he tried to douse with a fire extinguisher, according to the police report on the fire.

David was unable to put out the fire and his pant leg caught on fire in the process. He put out the fire on his leg, rushed upstairs, then went to the garage to let a dog out. James and Kathy also attempted to go into the basement, but were forced back by the heavy smoke and the fire, police said. They went to a neighbor home to call the Fire Department.

Stratton said today there was no evidence in the laundry room of anything exploding, as the washer and dryer were intact with clean clothes still inside. He said the fire is not of suspicious origin, but will be under investigation. He has not determined this morning the cause of the second fire which was called in at 6:05 a.m. today.

Two bedrooms immediately above the garage and laundry room were totally destroyed by the two fires. The dining room and the kitchen and bathroom on the first floor were destroyed by extreme heat and smoke. All the other rooms on both the first and second floor of the large brick home were damaged extensively from heat and smoke.

This morning's fire was discovered by a neighbor who saw the flames coming out windows of a back bedroom above the garage, Stratton said. Stratton indicated some suspicion about the second fire because a garage door which had been bolted shut by nails Thursday night was partly open when the firefighters arrived this morning. Stratton had checked the house about 10:45 Thursday night and said he saw no evidence of the fire rekindling.

Stratton also said that a Hartford Courier delivery man who dropped off newspapers for Michael, who is a newspaper carrier, did not see any sign of the fire at 3 or 4 a.m.

Firefighters were at the home Thursday night for about four hours and again this morning for five hours until the house could be secured. Responding to the first call were 10 on-duty firefighters, nine off-duty firefighters and 10 volunteers. Stratton said. In addition to the regular seven volunteers.

Vietnam Battles Rage, Chinese Troops Move

United Press International
Thousand of Chinese invaders and seasoned Vietnamese regulars clashed today in the heaviest fighting of the week-long war. Vietnam said it had blunted two Chinese attacks, killing 500 Chinese. China claimed Vietnam has refused to talk peace.

Radio Moscow, monitored in Tokyo, said today hundreds of Chinese air force planes arrived near the Sino-Vietnamese border while a brigade of Chinese reinforcements equipped with heavy firearms was built near Lao Cai over the Red River, which flows from China past Hanoi.

There were also reports that Vietnam had shelled China's Kwangsi province just northeast of Vietnam with 120mm artillery. It claimed the Chinese were organizing militia groups in Kwangsi.

In Washington, Chinese Ambassador Chi Tse-min saw Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal off on a trip to China and when asked about the war Chi told reporters: "All I know is what I read in the papers."

Vietnam's Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap said today in a radio report monitored in Bangkok, Thailand, that even if the Chinese win the war Vietnam will win and he thanked the Soviet Union for its "immense support and assistance."

Japanese Kyodo news service said the official Chinese paper, People's Daily, said Hanoi has refused to talk peace with Peking. The paper quoted the Voice of Vietnam as the source for Hanoi's refusal to negotiate.

The People's Daily also carried an official New China News Agency dispatch from inside Vietnam claiming Vietnamese residents along the Sino-Vietnamese border supported the Chinese invasion.

The dispatch was the first official Peking report admitting the Chinese invaded Vietnam. It claimed the Chinese action was supported by public opinion in Thailand and Pakistan.

Radio Moscow, monitored in Tokyo, said that according to news agency reports Chinese plan to expand the battle front and advance deeper into Vietnam. Vietnamese forces are now 12 miles into Vietnam engaged in the heaviest fighting of the war across a 96-mile belt of the 450-mile border between the two Communist nations.

Radio Moscow said Chinese forces plundered residents, destroyed economic establishments and killed civilians. It said the heaviest battles were around Lang Son, some 15 miles inside Vietnam, in what has been shaping as a major battle of the conflict.

Radio Hanoi, monitored in Bangkok, said said Vietnamese infantry and artillery wiped out more than 500 enemy soldiers at Lang Son, a vital rail junction, where regular Vietnamese troops have reportedly joined the fight.

Radio Hanoi said the Vietnamese killed or wounded more than 1,000 Chinese soldiers Thursday and destroyed four tanks, artillery pieces, two mortars and seven military vehicles in the battles.

Science Groups Prepare For Final Total Eclipse

GOLDENDALE, Wash. (UPI) — At nine minutes after sunrise Monday over Clatsop Spit, which juts into the Pacific Ocean from Astoria, Ore., the moon will begin to pass between the earth and the sun in what will be the last total eclipse of the sun visible in the continental United States this century.

With the sun barely over the horizon, skies will begin to darken and within an hour the sun will be blotted out with only its corona, or halo, showing around the edges of the moon. If skies are clear stars and some planets will be visible.

The path of total eclipse will be a band 170 to 185 miles wide stretching from the Pacific Ocean off the mouth of the Columbia River across northern Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, a corner of Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Greenland.

The eclipse will end at sunset over Greenland 50 minutes after it began. Totality will last from 44 seconds at Wallace, Idaho, to 2 minutes, 52 seconds east of Lake Winnipeg, Ontario.

The partial eclipse will be visible in most of the United States and Canada. At San Francisco the eclipse will be 66 percent, at Atlanta 57 percent, at New York 61 percent, at Denver 67 percent and at Chicago 79 percent.

Observers at the last eclipse seen in the Pacific Northwest — June 8, 1918 — said birds and domestic fowl returned to their roosts. That may be hard to confirm this time around because poultry farmers say most chickens now are raised indoors under artificial light and have never seen the sun.

Flowers — if any are in bloom in the chill northern path of the eclipse — will wilt until the sun returns.

Scientific groups have chartered three large jets and a U-2 "spy plane" to carry other scientific observers along the path of totality. Dozens of smaller planes also have been hired by those who want a closer look.

Scientists will gather at Goldendale Observatory just east of the Cascade Mountains, where chances

Photos Provide Preview Of Jupiter and Its Moons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Early approach pictures from Voyager 1 provide an exciting preview of what scientists can expect when the television explorer sweeps past Jupiter and five of its moons during the first week of March.

The spacecraft's color photos already show Jupiter's atmospheric features have changed considerably since the smaller Pioneer 10 and 11 took a look at the giant planet in 1973 and 1974.

And distant shots of three of Jupiter's 13 known moons suggest more surprises in store when Voyager 1 moves close enough to radio back the first closeups of the mysterious satellites.

Dr. Bradford A. Smith, head of Voyager's television studies, said at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration news conference Thursday he has worked on many picture-taking planetary missions over the years. "But to me," he said, "this is unquestionably the most exciting of all."

"The Voyager cameras are making it possible for all of us to extend our eyes into the outer solar system and into the unknown because not since Mariner 4 carried its TV camera to Mars 15 years ago have we been less prepared, less certain of what we are about to see over the next two weeks."

"Even the more widely speculative members of the imaging team, those who have been known to tread on somewhat thin ice in the past, still seem to be reluctant to come right out and say just what they expect to see on the surfaces of these outer Galilean satellites," he said.

In addition to seeing changes in the atmospheric features of Jupiter, scientists said Voyager's instruments have observed spectacular Jovian auroral displays and have heard very low frequency radio emissions from Jupiter for the first time.

Voyager 1, now 7.5 million miles from Jupiter, will pass 172,760 miles of the massive planet on March 5. It will fly within 11,800 miles of the moon Io, 69,600 miles of Ganymede, 71,000 miles of Callisto, and 655,000 miles of Europa. Voyager also will take a look at little Amalthea.

Jupiter's great gravity will hurt Voyager 1 on to the ringed planet Saturn which it will pass in November, 1980, as it cruises out of the solar system and into interstellar space.

Voyager 1 is now accelerating under the influence of Jupiter's gravity and will more than double its speed to 81,000 mph within the next 10 days. A final course change was made two days ago.

Whealon to Speak

VERNON — Archbishop John Whealon of Hartford will be the principal speaker at the Service of Brotherhood to be sponsored by the Greater Rockville Clergy Association March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Union Congregational Church, Rockville.

Clergymen from local Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant congregations will participate.

Music for the event will be coordinated by Clifford Wood, director of music at Union Church. Choirs from Union Church and Rockville Methodist will perform as will the Folk Choir of St. Luke's Church of Ellington.

Following the service a reception will be held for Archbishop Whealon. Members and friends of all area congregations are urged to attend this non-sectarian program.

At the same time, Carter served notice that in the Middle East, in Southeast Asia and elsewhere in the world, the U.S. intention to stand by its friends and honor its commitments is "unshakable."

Carter aides were reluctant to predict what role the Soviets may play in the China-Vietnam conflict. Dr. Sidman explained "why the interest is to promote peace and withdrawal of outside forces and not to become embroiled in conflict among Asian Communist nations."

The purpose of the service is to encourage understanding and respect for all people and to break down prejudice based on religion.

U. S. Ready to Defend Interests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says the United States has "forces in readiness" to defend its interests but he is proud no one has had to give his life in combat during his administration.

Stepping up a defense of his foreign policy, Carter also said Thursday he is "determined to do all in my power to keep this precious peace."

Political columnists and critics recently have accused Carter of pursuing a foreign policy which projects the United States as impotent in the twin crises of Iran and Indochina.

A Carter aide said the president's counterattack amounts to saying those "who wish to engage in bold and dramatic action are under an obligation to way what bold and dramatic action should be taken."

"The president does not intend to allow that sort of unsophisticated and superficial view of the world to pressure him into action that would be unwise," the aide added.

Carter defended his foreign policy at a conference for editors and broadcasters Thursday at the State Department.

During a question-and-answer session, he said, "The fact that we haven't had a crisis, haven't had to maintain peace, I think is an achievement."

"I hope that I will never have to demonstrate my courage by calling out the armed forces or participating in an armed attack on another country," he said.

Billy Sol Estes Charged With Business Fraud Plan

DALLAS (UPI) — Billy Sol Estes, whose name became synonymous with shady financial dealings in the 1960s, could find himself back in jail again if the government proves its latest charges against him — 32 pages of them.

A federal grand jury Thursday issued four separate indictments against Estes and some business associates for an alleged illegal business scheme operated largely in Estes' home town of Abilene, Texas. Estes masterminded the scheme and reaped the benefits, the government charged, while posing as a janitor, farm hand and truck driver and making not much more than $11,000 a year at those jobs.

Estes currently is on probation for a 1965 conviction in a multimillion-dollar fertilizer tank scheme. He became Texas' most notorious con man when the enterprise collapsed.

During the 1950s and '60s, Estes had become a financial kingpin and friend of state and national politicians, including President Lyndon B. Johnson. He secured major bank loans using as collateral fertilizer tanks he claimed he owned across West Texas terrain. But his empire collapsed when banks tried to take control of the tanks and found they did not exist. He was convicted of fraud, sentenced to 15 years in prison and served six months.

A condition of his probation was that he not engage in promotional activities. Thursday's charges endanger Estes' probation and, if proved, could put him back behind bars. President Carter last fall rejected a pardon plea from Estes.

The indictments returned Thursday charge Estes with income tax evasion, mail fraud, interstate transportation of stolen property and concealing assets. He was ordered to appear for arraignment March 1 before U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes.

Estes claimed the U.S. Justice Department was persecuting him. "The assistant U.S. attorney who obtained the indictments, Jim Rolse, denied allegations of persecution. "I think it's hogwash," he said.

Residents Urge Board To Keep School Open elementary schools are now used for mandated special education programs and there isn't room for the sixth graders.

Concern was also expressed, by several persons at the hearing as to the consultant and planning work for having another vacant building in the center of Rockville. Dr. Sidman offered several suggestions as to alternate uses such as for senior citizen programs, a day care program, fine arts programs and several others.

William Houle, a former Board of Education chairman, lauded the administration for its initiative in re-examining department needs but said he feels the idea of closing Sykes is "ill conceived and untimely."

He said he was on the board when the decision was made to move Grade 6 to Sykes and said elaborate consideration was given and it was felt this type of grouping was best for the town.

"We are well aware that the Middle School has many fundamental problems due to the age bracket of the students there. I think Sykes is a tremendous asset and that it would be a tremendous folly not continue use of it," Houle said.

"The one dissenting opinion was offered by Janet Daly, director of what is educationally sound. I hate to express an unpopular opinion but I feel the issue is clouded with emotion."

While admitting that she would hate to see the school close she told those at the hearing that she should listen to those who are more aware of what is educationally sound.

The school was left to the town through a trust fund set up in the will of George Sykes. The Sykes trustees maintain the building and the town pays for school materials and staff salaries. Sykes stipulated, in his will, that the building be used, at least in part, for "manual training" programs.

Mrs. Daly said, "We have come a long way since what George Sykes had in mind when he wrote his will. I would like the school to be used for alternate education."

She said she feels that the "one student" residence tends to foster student problems rather than leaders. She said Dr. Sidman's report should be considered on more than an emotional basis.

Robert Hurd, who is an architect and a member of the Town Council, termed the Sykes building a lot more structurally sound than many of the newer school buildings.

He also said that officials are trying to revitalize the Rockville section of town and the closing of a public building in the center could inhibit such revitalization. "I find it difficult to support the move to close Sykes," he said.

Mrs. Marie Herbst, now a council member, and a former member of the school board, agreed with Houle

Low Bidder Backs Out Of Sewer Project Work

MANCHESTER — An East Hartford contractor has decided not to do work on a Manchester sewer project, even though the firm was the low bidder for the work.

Representatives of the Frank A. White Co. of East Hartford met this week with town officials to discuss the bid matter. The firm indicated it does not plan to proceed.

Because of the problem, a member of the town attorney's office now expects the town will rebid the work. The White Co. bid $363,222.20 for the storm sewer construction project — a sewer installation from the pond at Adelaide Road to the Porter Brook.

Four other bids ranged from $486,000 to $650,000.

The firm then contacted Jay Giles, director of public works, and said it had made a $115,000 error in its price estimate because it had forgotten to include the cost of enforcing sewer trenches.

The firm since has met to discuss the issue with town representatives. Representatives of the firm this week said they do not plan to proceed with the project.

"They're not going to do it," Kevin O'Brien, an assistant town attorney, said of the firm.

The town now must decide what step it will take in the matter, O'Brien said.

The town could attempt to force the firm to live up to the bid and do the work.

O'Brien said the most likely solution, however, is that the town will rebid the project.

Cheney Historical Panel Picks Design Consultant

MANCHESTER — A Boston firm, which has planned a number of preservation projects in Massachusetts, has been selected as the consultant for the town's Cheney National Historic Landmark District.

Anderson Notter Finegold Inc. was selected by the Cheney National Historic District Commission to do the consultant and planning work for the revitalization of the historic area.

Also, the commission approved a 50-year lease with the Connecticut Firemen's Historical Society for the Pine Street firehouse.

The firehouse has not been used, other than for storage, for several years. The historical society plans to convert the building at the corner of Pine Street and Hartford Road into a museum for fire memorabilia.

The lease will be approved by the Town Board of Directors. This is on the board's March agenda.

William FitzGerald, judge of probate and commission member, said he is hopeful the museum will be open by this summer.

The commission also unanimously approved the selection of Anderson Notter Finegold Inc. and the Boston-based firm was praised for its past work.

The firm has done preservation planning studies for such projects as the Charlestown Naval Shipyard and the Prince Spaghetti Factory, both in Boston. It also has worked on renovation projects in Lowell, Mass., Newburyport, Mass., and Biddeford, Maine. It also did planning of the Union Railroad Station in New London.

FitzGerald said the plans proposed by this firm for these projects have been good.

Low Bidder Accepted For Senior Center Work

MANCHESTER — A bid price of $193,030 for the conversion of Green School into a senior citizen center was accepted by the Town Building Committee Thursday night after some reductions were made in the initial bid.

The low bid of Orlando Annuli and Sons of 147 Hale Road was reduced from $212,500 which was submitted Thursday morning.

The reductions in the bid were necessary to keep within the $200,000 federal Community Development funds allotted for the project.

The binding contract with Annuli was expected to be signed today to guarantee that the work will be done whether or not town voters decide in April whether to continue participation in the CD program. The major part of the renovations work will be completed by June 1.

Contract bid items, such as carpentry, painting and kitchen equipment were not included in the bid accepted by the committee.

Paul Phillips, town Building Committee chairman, expressed hope that some of the extra items could be funded by the town.

Added to the base bid is $23,000 for architectural fees for architect Richard Mankey plus miscellaneous expenses and contingency fund.

200 Get Vials Of Life

BOLTON — About 200 vials of life have been distributed to Bolton residents since the program got underway. In the beginning the vials were given to Bolton's elderly citizens and those known to have medical problems.

The program is sponsored by the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department. Cynthia Fagan, department member, and instrumental in bringing the program to Bolton, said the department now has about 1,000 vials to distribute to townpeople.

The vials contain personal and medical information about each person that make it easier for fire and medical personnel when responding to calls. They also make it easier for the people as they don't have to answer so many questions.

The vials can also be used by medical personnel at the hospital if and when necessary.

Vials may be obtained from any member of the fire department, at the Community Hall or at Bolton Pharmacy at the Bolton Notch Shopping Center.

Political Action Committees Claiming Greater Impact

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The business community can take credit for helping to make Congress more conservative, according to the president of the National Association of Business Political Action Committees.

Paul E. Thornburgh said corporate PACs had more influence in the 1978 election than in 1976 because the leaders did their homework and supported only those candidates whose philosophies agreed with business.

"Business in 1976 had a tendency to support incumbents and to cover all bets on both sides of the fence," Thornburgh said. "Business was at cross-purposes with itself."

"What we really found (in 1976) was that business was naive," Thornburgh said. "They did it (made political contributions) without doing their homework."

He said NABPAC served as a "clearing house" in 1978 so corporate PACs could exchange information on the records and political stands of congressional candidates.

"We showed them all of these resources and techniques, such as how to evaluate candidates and how to analyze records — all the ABCs of political action committees," he said.

Thornburgh said a survey of the 97 NABPAC showed that 74 percent of the money contributed to 1978 congressional campaigns went to Republican candidates.

The analysis also showed a total contribution of about $2.1 million, and that the average member PAC supported at least 50 federal candidates, that the average contribution was $520 and that the average PAC raised $34,000 from its employees and stockholders.

Ben Albert of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education at Washington, agreed corporate PACs had an impact on the 1978 elections.

"In some cases they played both sides of the fence," he said, (but) "from what I've seen, they certainly contributed heavily to right-wing Senate candidates who dilogged pro-labor incumbents."

He said some of the winning Senate candidates supported by corporate PACs and trade association PACs included Rudy Boschwitz and David Durenberger in Minnesota and Bill

Armstrong in Colorado and incumbents Strom Thurmond in South Carolina and Jesse Helms in North Carolina.

"It reflects that they (corporate PACs) did some homework, or that their associations did it for them," Albert said. "The Chamber (of Commerce) has an organization similar to NABPAC, called the Chamber Alliance, to encourage corporate PACs."

"They seemed to use their money, from their point of view, quite wisely," he said.

Albert said although the corporate PACs found themselves on the winning side in the 1978 Congressional campaign, the gains were not as big as they could have been.

It is illegal for corporate funds to be used for political contributions. All funds contributed to political candidates by corporate PACs must be donated from employees or stockholders.

Thornburgh said although business PACs are growing, they still don't have the money to compare with labor PACs. He said the average labor contribution was $2,500 compared to $200 by corporate PACs.

He said business PACs supported such successful Senate candidates as Thad Cochran in Mississippi, Larry Pressler in South Dakota, Bill Armstrong in Colorado, Roger Jepsen in Iowa, Nancy Kassebaum in Kansas, Rudy Boschwitz and David Durenberger in Minnesota, Jesse Helms in North Carolina.

The first part of work on improvements along Tolland Turnpike has started. The project, which will improve signalization and traffic intersection control on the street, is part of the Urban Systems program and will be funded primarily with federal monies. Other signalization and traffic intersection improvements will be done throughout town, including Middle Turnpike and Spruce Street. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Road Work Begins

Low Nicotine Cigarettes Reduce Risks of Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Smokers of low tar-nicotine cigarettes may run less risk of contracting lung cancer than smokers of high tar-nicotine cigarettes, according to conclusions in an American Cancer Society study published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

However, the study was accompanied by a warning from the head of the American Cancer Society that "there is no safe cigarette."

The new report was based on microscopic studies of bronchial tissue from 465 males who died of causes other than cancer. The researchers reported found precancerous abnormalities in the bronchial tree occur far less often in males who smoke low tar-nicotine cigarettes than in those from those who smoked high tar-nicotine cigarettes.

The findings were based on comparisons under the microscope of 24,475 tissue samples from the males who died of non-cancerous conditions during the years 1956-60 and 1970-77.

The researchers reported a decrease in occurrence of precancerous changes between the two time periods and said that should forestadow "a decline in lung cancer death rates of cigarette smokers at some future date."

The new research report focused only on pre-cancerous changes in the bronchi, and did not investigate the effects of cigarettes, whether of high or low tar-nicotine content, on other forms of cancer, heart and circulatory disease emphysema.

Dr. LaSalle D. Lefall Jr., a Washington, D.C., surgeon who is president of the American Cancer Society, said the study tends to confirm earlier conclusions that high tar-nicotine cigarettes are related to higher death rates from lung cancer.

Lefall said findings may help explain why, among younger males, there are signs the nation's lung cancer death rate already may have started to taper off — although female lung cancer death rates "remain spectacularly on the rise."

If the public hadn't accepted the conclusions of earlier studies and demanded lower tar-nicotine cigarettes, such an optimistic report wouldn't have been possible today," Lefall said.

The Cancer Society official said, however, that "the nation's guard against cigarette health hazards must not be allowed to relax, because if it does relax, the good that has been accomplished will be undone."

Lefall said while findings of the new study suggest a way for smokers to reduce their lung cancer risk by switching to low tar-nicotine cigarettes if they find it impossible to quit entirely, the best way to escape the risk of lung cancer "is still not to smoke at all."

Tissue studied under the microscope showed, moreover, no pre-cancerous changes at all in bronchial tissue from men who did not smoke at all.

The study was done by Dr. Oscar Auerbach of the U.S. Veterans Administration Hospital in East Orange, N.J., and Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond and Lawrence Garlinker of the American Cancer Society.

Handicap Group Sets Talk

VERNON — Dr. Mevin Reich, associate professor of special education at the University of Connecticut, will be the guest speaker at the March 1 meeting of the Tolland Area Association for the Retarded and Handicapped Inc. (TAAH).

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the Stop & Shop meeting room at Vernon Circle. Annette Ouellette and Jo Adams will be hostesses.

Dr. Reich has headed the special education summer program at the Vernon Elementary School for the past several years.

At the meeting he will explain about working with school systems in devising individual education programs. There will be a short presentation on the individual needs of parents and school systems in planning programs for exceptional learners and then Dr. Reich will open the program to questions from the parents.

The association meets the first Thursday of each month. All meetings are open to the public.

The Mothers Group of the association will meet March 16 at its offices on One Court Street, Rockville at 9:30 a.m. Mothers may bring their children to the meeting.

Association members, George Orway, Mary Lasky, and Jo Adams, are members of the Board of Directors for a newly formed corporation called "Hockanum Industries."

This corporation has been established by association members and members of the Talcottville Association for Exceptional Children in a joint effort to operate a sheltered workshop in the former Pulling School building in Rockville. The workshop will provide sheltered employment opportunities.

The Board of Education, more than a year ago, agreed to lease the building to the association for use as a sheltered workshop.

Baha'is Gather Saturday

MANCHESTER — Members of the Baha'i Faith from Manchester and nearby communities will meet Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Willimantic to commemorate the recent formation of the first Local Spiritual Assembly of Windham. The gathering will be in the computer lounge at Slater Hall of Eastern Connecticut State College.

As there is no clergy in the Baha'i Faith, the nine-member Local Spiritual Assembly is the basic unit of the Baha'i Administrative order.

The primary responsibilities of the Local Spiritual Assembly include the moral and spiritual education of children, youth and adults; promoting the oneness of humanity and eliminating all forms of prejudice; upholding the laws and teachings of the Baha'i Faith; counseling those who have problems; and informing the public of the aims and tenets of the Faith.

Local Spiritual Assemblies also perform marriages, oversee burials, administer local fiscal affairs, arrange devotional meetings, and plan observances of Baha'i Holy Days.

The election of the Local Spiritual Assembly takes place each April in communities in which nine or more adult Baha'is reside. The Baha'i electoral process is unique in that no nominations, electioneering and discussion of names are forbidden. In a quiet atmosphere of prayers, each voter casts a ballot for the nine persons he or she feels are best qualified. The nine with the most votes are elected.

Consumer Group Sees No Threat Of New Lawsuits

HARTFORD (UPI) - A consumer group has told lawmakers business would not be overrun by lawsuits under proposals to require the use of plain language in consumer contracts.

A spokeswoman for the Connecticut Citizen Action Group said Thursday legislation to require plain language in all consumer contracts was the most important piece of protection for the purchasing consumer in recent years.

Members of the Judiciary and General Law committees held a public hearing on 12 bills aimed at giving consumers a plain and easy to read legal contract. Another bill would require the Legislature to clean up its own act and write laws in common everyday language.

The proposals apply only to consumer contracts and not insurance policies and mortgage deeds.

Jane Nadel, representing the CACG, said the plain language bill passed by New York three years ago is working well "despite a flood of propaganda" by business groups against the plan.

"Their dire predictions about its impact have proved groundless and many now support the measure," said Ms. Nadel.

However, The Connecticut Bar Association told the lawmakers the New York plan was too broad and vague and "a decidedly unacceptable approach to the problem."

John Shields of Norwich, president of the CBA, said the New York law "can only benefit lawyers and not the consumers" because it will pit "consumers and creditors as adversaries in the courtroom for years to come."

Attorney C. Rudy Engholm, a member of the CBA's task force on plain language, said much work has been done by the group to define plain language guidelines and "dispell some myths."

He said long sentences are not necessarily bad if they are written and plain language should not be looked on as trivial.

Engholm said the task force recommended mild penalties for members of the bar who do not use plain language, said much work has been done by the group to define plain language guidelines and "dispell some myths."

"We believe the larger credit institutions will much prefer to comply than face the nuisance and poor public relations resulting from litigation."

He said the aim of the proposals was to make it easy for the consumer to bring prompt action in small claims court but to discourage other litigation.

Dependence on Defense Public School Teachers

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut's economic dependence on lucrative defense contracts has inspired a world history lecture by Hartford's mayor and scripture quotations from a Catholic bishop.

At a public hearing Thursday before the Planning and Development Committee, Rep. Peter Rosazza, auxiliary bishop of Hartford, voiced his support for a measure requiring the state's Department of Economic Development to prepare a defense conversion plan for Connecticut industries.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Irving Stolberg, D-New Haven, advocates tax credits for firms planning to move away from defense production and other economic incentives for the actual conversion.

Stolberg added one out of every five Connecticut residents works for some defense contractor in one capacity or another.

Rosazza told the Planning and Development Committee the state should change its economic base from making weapons to producing other products for both "moral and very practical reasons."

He said the defense conversion plan would be the first step in realizing the prophet Isaiah's prophecy that "swords may finally be smashed into plowshares."

In a following voice, Hartford Mayor George Athanson, a former history professor, called the bill a step to light inflation.

"We have to pay the price for the stupidities and blunders perpetrated by the White House since the second world war," Athanson said. "If Connecticut can lead the way on defense conversion, we can make our society more viable."

Athanson said the defense industry does not push new technology useful to other industries, requires tremendous capital investments and thus, "the Pentagon is the worst inflation machine."

"That's why Japan and West Germany are way ahead of us," the mayor said. "We can't sell tanks as consumer items."

The bill also was supported by U.S. Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn. An aide to McKinney told the committee the congressional plan to introduce similar federal legislation in March.

TV Gaming Ads Disputed

HARTFORD (UPI) - Two lawmakers are convinced Connecticut is leading an unassuming public down an immoral lottery path when it advertises its lottery games on radio and television.

But two other lawmakers, a couple of radio station executives and a lawyer representing the Plainfield dog track say banning commercial spots would be discriminatory and costly to a state that relies heavily on gambling revenue.

The Legislature's Public Safety Committee Thursday held a public hearing on several bills designed to either reduce or eliminate state-financed lottery and off-track-betting advertisements. Other proposals that were considered would ban advertising by Connecticut's three jail ad agencies.

Rep. David Lavine, D-Durham, told the panel the state runs about 14,000 daily, weekly and instant lottery advertisements on the radio annually, urging Connecticut residents to gamble.

John Winchester, the gaming commission's lottery director, said Connecticut has steadily been reducing its gaming advertising.

"We induced them to vote for us," Lavine said. "Maybe we should stop advertising by politicians."

Albert Pellegrino, general manager of radio station WFOP in Hartford, said the committee banning gaming spots on radio and television would be unfair because the prohibition would not also apply to newspapers.

"You don't keep something in that is wrong for the state of Connecticut doing," he said. "You don't pick the pockets of the people."

Rep. John Mannix, R-Wilton, backed Lavine, calling state lottery advertisements "very clever and insidious."

"The state of Connecticut is permitting the sale of gambling," Mannix said. "They keep bringing people out to gamble."

Rep. Eugene Migliaro, R-Wolcott, reminded Mannix last fall most politicians were using the airwaves to get their messages across.

"In 1975, the gaming commission spent 3 percent of its budget on advertising. This year, the panel will spend an estimated 12 percent," he said.

Gaming commission executive director James Fitzgerald said he objected to allegations the gaming commission was doing something wrong.

"I believe in your advertising we are not using a club fist and inciting people to come in," he said.

The gaming commission's chairman Bartelme Kovalski said he would do whatever the Legislature wishes.

"If the Legislature wants to ban the advertising or cut down on the advertising, it's up to them," she said. "But they should know, they're going to lose a lot of money."

Legislature to Consider Bill of Rights for Police

HARTFORD (UPI) - The Legislature's Public Safety Committee has been asked to write a "bill of rights" assuring police officers constitutional protection which the head of a civil liberties group says often is ignored.

"I think it would make it clear to municipal officials that police officers are entitled to rights when they face charges," said William Olds, executive director of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union.

"The protection is established under the state and federal constitutions, but they're not always implemented," he told the committee Thursday.

But, several police chiefs argued the state shouldn't interfere with existing grievance and appeal procedures governing the rights of police officers.

The proposed "bill of rights" would make appeal and grievance procedures part of state law and would establish specific rights for police officers.

One chief warned the proposal would cause problems between police departments and unions, which already have spelled out how charges against police officers should be resolved.

Committee members questioned whether such a bill was necessary. They asked why existing police commissions and internal affairs divisions could not handle complaints better.

Olds also supported a bill requiring all new police officers be trained at the Municipal Police Training Academy in Meriden or another academy before going on active duty.

Police chiefs also differed on the need for that bill, stating training is already required and new patrolmen who have yet to attend an academy are strictly supervised.

Olds maintained a police officer can be hired and begin patrol work without training, while state law requires barbers and hairdressers to be trained before they cut hair.

"The fundamental protection of the public safety requires proper training for law enforcement officers," he said, adding State Police are trained before beginning duty.

The panel also heard a request from Rep. Aloysius Ahern, D-Bolton, who asked that up to $500,000 be allocated to help small towns begin police forces.

Ahern, whose district includes five towns with populations of less than 5,000, said existing resident troopers and part-time constables can't handle the job.

The funds would be used for training and equipping police officers, Ahern said, adding many part-time police officers weren't right for the job.

"We have had people who like cowboys would whip out a gun at the slightest provocation," he said.

He said an influx of new residents to suburban towns has brought with it increased crime, "even murder. We have major crimes in the suburbs, too."

Public School Teachers To Attend Art Workshop

VERNON - Thirty-five teachers from the public school system will attend an art workshop Feb. 27, 28 and March 1 at the Center Road School.

Mrs. Alice Welti, art director said the workshop is a free educational service provided by Binney & Smith Inc., makers of Crayola crayons and other school art supplies.

It will be conducted by Miss Annamaria Barron who has taught extensively and holds a Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Wisconsin.

The teachers will spend 15 hours of their own time learning about modern creative art education and some of its materials and tools.

These techniques will include some of the uses of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks, and modeling clay.

Simple craft techniques will also be shown, giving teachers an opportunity to work with paper, paste and other materials to gain three-dimensional effects.

Hockanum Valley Group To Nominate Officers

VERNON - The Nominating Committee of the Hockanum Valley Community Council Inc. has started its selection process for nominees for election of officers and directors of the board.

Those on the Nominating Committee are Mrs. Adam (Carmen) Burrows who lives in Manchester and works in Rockville, Theodore Buckman, Andrew Tricario and Mrs. Alexander Wind of Vernon and the Rev. Francis O'Keefe and David Marter of Tolland.

Although the committee has received the names of potential nominees already it is still accepting other recommendations. Suggestions will be accepted from anyone who lives or works in either Vernon, Tolland or Ellington. Nominees must live or work in the tri-town area.

Those having names to suggest should contact any member of the committee or call the executive director at 872-8318.

Rham Talk Set on Personnel

HEBRON - The Regional District 8 Board of Education will meet Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the library of Rham High School.

The board will discuss personnel during an executive session; will continue reviewing the proposed 1979-80 budget; act on policies concerning student records; and discuss health records concerning the administration of medicines by school personnel.

The information portion of the agenda will include committee reports, a financial summary and other reports on school files, on-site testing for driver licenses, and adult education offerings.

The executive session will be held after the regular meeting.

Poetry by the Pope
NEW YORK (UPI) - "Easter Vigil and Other Poems," a collection of 42 poems by Karol Wojtyla (Pope John Paul II), will be published by Random House in March ($5.00, $10.00 deluxe boxed edition).
Translated from the Polish by Jerzy Peterkiewicz, this is the only English translation authorized by the Pope himself and the only collection of his poems in one volume.

Grant Backed For Town Post

HARTFORD (UPI) - Members of the Democratic Town Committee have voted unanimously to recommend that Richard M. Grant be appointed to fill a recently created vacancy on the Board of Finance caused by the resignation of Jack Baker, chairman.

Grant, who was defeated in his bid for re-election during the previous municipal elections, had logged a total of 13 years or more on the board.

He was appointed to a seat on the town's first Board of Finance in Feb. 1952 and was elected to serve a six-year term in 1953, serving until 1959. In 1971 he was elected to a six-year term, which he completed. During his years of service he served as clerk of the board for three years and chairman for nine years.

Grant has also served as Hebron's state representative in the 1951, 1953, and 1955 sessions of the General Assembly and was first selectman of Hebron from 1953 through 1955.

In other business the committee voted to appoint Marge Graham to fill a vacancy on the Town Committee.

Carter Prepares To Run Again

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter's closest emissaries - his family and White House aides - are fanning out to test the waters for his re-election plans.

He says he is not going to run. But he is acting like a candidate, vocally and visibly, mostly on the attack against White House positions. He is enjoying the game, appearing to believe that he can have the nomination if he wants it.

Kennedy supporters believe that the Chappaquiddick chapter in his life is over and that it is no longer a factor - as it was in 1973 - in his political future. Others observers are not so sure.

Gov. Edmund Brown of California is acting like a candidate and his supporters strongly indicate that he is in the race. He has a strong following in his state, but not so loyal a constituency among the old line Democratic politicians. White House aides seem to take it for granted that he will challenge Carter.

A new face on the horizon - Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill. - in recent self searching interviews, expressed his disenchantment with Carter's presidency and with his own political career. Now it appears that he is not turned off about politics, but is making the familiar sounds of a presidential candidate, and may try to succeed where his father, Adlai Stevenson, failed.

How strong a bid Stevenson can mount remains to be seen. But he is a late starter and does not have the national following that gave his father the Democratic presidential nomination twice in the 1950s.

With only two years in the presidency, Carter is finding that the honeymoon is over. As with all presidents, yesterday's achievements are deared by the problems of the day.

But for all that, Carter has a major political plus - his incumbency. Challengers could be viewed as spoilers. At the same time, he has ultimate faith in himself, as a peanut farmer who overcame the "Jimmy, who?" label.

Letters to the Editor Youth Commission Supported

To the editor:
This letter is in response to the letter of Feb. 16, in which Mr. E.J. Tighe explained his feelings regarding the appointment of Police Officer Alan Anderson to the Manchester Commission on Children and Youth.

Let me say first that I agree completely with Mrs. Freese, and support her stand opposing Officer Anderson's appointment.

When it was first made known to me that a police officer would be among the new appointments to the commission, we hesitated, knowing a majority of the members would be turned off at the choice of a policeman.

Furthermore, because a policeman is a policeman, 24 hours a day, we felt there would be situations that could not be handled completely objectively, and therefore not in the best interests of youth.

Mr. Tighe feels, "It is this (negative) attitude (toward police) that fosters the resentment and distrust in our impressionable young people," but I feel he is being unrealistic to expect attitudes that are so deeply ingrained to change overnight.

Because of this existing attitude, I felt we had to take the stand we did for the youth commission has to deal with the present in order to be effective. Also, from my personal experience it is obvious Mr. Tighe hasn't spent much time at McDonalds on Friday or Saturday nights, for I have yet to see any real conversations between youths and the police officer present.

Let me say too that some individuals involved took our objection in an improper respect, turning it into a political battle.

The youth commission, which was supposed to act in an advisory capacity to the Board of Directors, did not have its advice taken this time. At the board meeting some questioned our right to question.

If I sound bitter, it is because I had many hopes for the commission.

Should the present one be dissolved though, I am sure once again campaign time will bring about the creation of a new youth commission.

Angle & Walters No Sign of Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Logic would suggest that the great tax revolt which began with California's Proposition 13 might eventually provide impetus for genuine reform of state and local tax systems. But it hasn't happened yet.

Pressure for tax and spending reductions remains strong this year, with limitation proposals due for consideration in at least 37 states. But tax reform as proposed to reduction - seems to be going nowhere.

A year-long study of state and local taxes by the Coalition of Public Employees shows tremendous disparities in the relative fairness of the tax systems in the 50 states and the District of Columbia, Idaho, Hawaii, Colorado, Maine and Alaska. The 10 worst, starting at the bottom and working upward, are: Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois.

Inexplicable initiative response

In a related development, the National Governors Association has just concluded its own study of the various tax and spending limitation proposals that appeared on the ballot last November in 18 states.

According to Michigan Gov. William Milliken, the analysis found no discernible relationship between the relative tax burden in a state and the voters' decision to impose or reject fiscal controls.

"Voters in some states with relatively high tax and spending levels rejected fiscal controls, while voters in other states with relatively low levels imposed them," Milliken said.

For instance, voters approved local property tax initiatives in seven of the 10 states where such proposals appeared on the ballot. But in five of the seven states where initiatives were approved, the local property tax burden was either at or below the median for the country as a whole.

"Obviously, the level of taxation alone does not explain the tax revolt," Milliken observed, although the NEA study offered no guesses as to why voters acted as they did last fall.

ERA A dead issue

We may not have heard the last of the arguments over extending the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

While women's groups concentrate on seeking support for the ERA from three more states by the new deadline of June 30, 1982, foes of the amendment are preparing to challenge the constitutionality of the extension voted by Congress last year.

Lawsuits are being prepared by the Mountain States Legal Foundation, a conservative-oriented non-profit group headquartered in Denver. They will be filed before the original deadline, March 22, arrives.

Thought

Blessed are the singlehearted for they shall see God. (Matthew 5:8)

Being single-hearted sounds kind of easy to do. But it is a very difficult accomplishment. It means focusing our lives on one reality and following that with our total being. It means making sacrifices, giving up some of the pleasures of life in order to secure that one goal. It means ignoring all the other possibilities in the pursuit of the will of God, and so God rewarded him. That reward is offered to us. It does not consist of fame and fortune in this life. Rather, the singlehearted find their reward in the next life - with the God they have served with all their minds, all their hearts, and all their strength.

State Backs Action Closing Pig Farm

MANCHESTER — The State Department of Health has ordered the abatement of operations of the Botticello pig farm on Hillstown Road, this affording an order issued Aug. 8 by the Town of Manchester's Health Department.

In a two-page decision filed Thursday, and signed by Douglas Lloyd, state health commissioner, Anthony Botticello was ordered to move or cease operating the pig farm because of its closeness to several homes in the area.

The state decision says that the pig farm is within 300 feet of homes on Debbie Drive and "is in violation of the provisions of the public health code of the state and the violation is injurious to public health and welfare."

Residents of the nearby subdivision complained to town health officials last summer about the flies the farm attracted and the odors emanating from the area.

The order, filed by the town in August, was appeal by Botticello who is also president of the Sanitary Refuse Company of Manchester.

Botticello contends that the 25-acre farm where some 125 pigs are kept has been in operation since 1953 which is 23 years before the subdivision was built.

State officials claim that the code "in and of itself does not preclude such homes from being built and inhabited" near a farm.

Officials say that the state health code as it is written allows homes to be constructed but doesn't allow pig farms to be built or maintained within 300 feet of those homes.

Atty. John LaBelle Jr., who represents Botticello, claimed at the hearing that the state code is arbitrary, capricious and unfair noting that the distance requirement of 300 feet doesn't apply to Botticello's home at 595 Hills town Road, also near the farm.

No decision has been made as yet as to whether Botticello and his attorney will appeal the state's decision but state officials said if an appeal is filed it would go to the Superior Court level.

While an appeal process is proceeding it is likely that the order to close the farm couldn't be enforced unless there were overwhelming health problems caused by keeping it in operation.

Driver Goes To Police To Accept Crash Charges

MANCHESTER — Scott T. Aitken, 17, of 115 Hemlock St. turned himself in Thursday on a charge of negligent homicide in connection with a fatal accident last July.

Killed in the accident at the intersection of Oak and Spruce streets was Robert E. Robinson III, 26, late of 20 Knox St. Investigation revealed that the vehicles driven by Robinson and Aitken collided at the intersection. Robinson's van ended up on the lawn of an Oak Street property and Robinson was thrown out of the van and was dead on arrival at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The Hartford County Coroner Henry Ramonda released a ruling last week that Aitken was negligent in the accident because his driving ability was impaired by alcohol.

Aitken was released Thursday on a non-surety bond for appearance in court March 12.

Peter M. Weiss, 23, of 71 N. Lakewood Circle also turned himself in Thursday in connection with an accident on North Lakewood Circle last Dec. 10. He was charged with evading responsibility. Weiss told police he was the driver of the car owned by Stoner Smith, 25, of 97 Great Hill Road, which skidded off the road, knocked over a stop sign and hit a street sign and telephone pole. Weiss was originally charged with evading responsibility in connection with the time.

accident Weiss was released on a promise to appear in court Feb. 27.

Christopher M. Page, 21, of 8 Ralph Road, East Hartford and Mary Ellen Swanson, 20, of Willington were held overnight in lieu of $500 bonds in connection with the theft of a van from Hartford Thursday afternoon. Both were charged with second-degree larceny and Page was additionally charged with operating under the influence of liquor and operating under suspension of license. Police said an East Middle Turnpike resident reported that a van had driven across her lawn and that the van was parked at the Shady Glen where they were arrested. The two were to be presented in court today.

Two elderly women were struck by a car while crossing Center Street, east of Adams Street at 8:17 p.m. Thursday. One of the women, Dorothy M. Murphy, 70, of 69 Edmond St. was treated for a back injury at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released. Her companion, Sister Rose, 72, of 291 Steeple Road, West Hartford, did not require medical treatment, police said.

The women were struck by a car driven by Arthur Baroux, 32, of 55 McKee St. He was issued a written warning for unreasonable speed. Police said the women were not using the crosswalk on the street at the time.

Budget Demanding

ASHFORD (UPI) — A Hartford Superior Court judge has given the Ashford finance board until March 2 to come up with a town budget, but the board has presented a week early.

The panel voted Thursday night to present a $1.94 million budget to residents for their approval.

The $840,000 proposed education budget is $9,000 higher than one rejected at a November town meeting, and $1,707 more than one voted down at a Feb. 6 referendum.

The Board of Education had voted to shut down the town's only public school after selecting ordered it to keep expenditures at last year's level until the budget issue was resolved.

Judge Norris O'Neill Tuesday granted a state school board demand that the school remain open.

O'Neill also recommended temporary expenditures to keep the school open until the town approved its budget and set the March 2 deadline for the board.

First Selectman Thomas Supins said March 7 is the earliest a town meeting can be held.

Eaglettes Notch Win, Second in Tournament

By LEN AUSTER

It wasn't until Tuesday night that the East Catholic girls' basketball team had won its first State Tournament clash ever.

And now the Eaglettes find themselves in the Class I, Division quarterfinals after last night's 68-62 upset decision over fifth-ranked Platt.

High of Meriden at Cromwell High. East, 12th seed and 16-5 for the season, will face an old nemesis, fourth-ranked South Windsor High in the quarterfinal on a date, time and site to be announced. The Bobcats, runners-up in Class I the past two years, advanced with an easy 66-56 date over Wetherfield.

The Bobcats whipped the Eaglettes last year, 52-22, and twice in 1976-77 by 51-40 and 64-34 count. "We've been looking forward to facing them

Tale of Two Coaches

For Donna Ridel and Doug Pearson, it was not a very happy weekend.

Ridel's club lost the HCC Girls' title last Saturday. According to the East Catholic coach it was her strategic blunder which caused the difference.

Pearson's Manchester High quintet lost its bid for the fourth and final CCLL playoff spot—and it was a controversial technical foul on the fifth-year Tribe coach which was an issue.

Ridel's consternation pales when compared to what transgressed with Pearson. It was, especially at the time, tant to her—especially at the time.

She substituted for 5-foot-11 Sue Dailey, who was doing a fine job rebounding, believing her center had just picked up her third foul. It was, however, only Dailey's second foul. Thus the frustration and feeling of guilt.

At the time, though, the strategy was questioned. It appeared Ridel was protesting Dailey from getting her third foul before the foul, as she accumulated in the semifinal victory over Northwest Catholic. Even now the move can be justified.

Therefore Ridel has no reason for remorse, although she had and probably will.

Pearson's saga deserves to belong in "The Twilight Zone." Last Friday night the Indians were playing in a Willimantic against Windham High.

Almost simultaneously an offensive foul was being whistled on at Manchester player, a bank of lights went out. According to Pearson, he arose and pointed to the ceiling to alert the officials—and got slapped with the technical.

"I still can't believe it," Pearson stated three days after the incident. "I knew there was a foul but I didn't see the play. I wasn't complaining about that; I didn't complain about anything. I was pointing out with the technical."

"That was the quickest technical I've ever seen."

As someone mentioned, it would be interesting to find out what the other official, Bill Fortin, was doing all the while.

Couldn't he have straggled everything out, as suggested.

What further infuriated the Tribe coach was a later episode. With about 45 seconds remaining, with the Indians down by 3 points (they were ahead when the technical was assessed Pearson), they committed a foul. According to Pearson's narration, Windham Coach John Switcenko, who has been known for

Jacobsen's Resignation Not Over Appointment

MANCHESTER — Ingrid Jacobsen, one of two members who resigned Thursday from the town commission, said she made it clear in her letter that she didn't resign specifically because a police officer had been appointed to the commission.

Miss Jacobsen and Kevin Moriarty, the other member who resigned, brings the number on the commission down to nine from 13. Other members resigned within the past few weeks.

Miss Jacobsen feels the guidelines as to the purpose of the commission have never been made clear and neither has the method of appointments to the commission, she said.

She said, and Moriarty agreed, that commission members feel as though they have been cast adrift by the Board of Directors.

Miss Jacobsen said she was among some members of the commission appearing before the board last week and she said she felt the board, especially the Republican members, "treated us very rudely putting us on the defensive. It was clear to us that they weren't ready to listen and that the Youth Commission wasn't effective to them," she said.

Moriarty said this morning that he felt it did defeat the purpose of the commission for a better dialogue between the youth of the town and the government officials. Members who resigned felt Anderson's views would represent those of the police rather than those of the youth.

Commission members, at last week's meeting, questioned the appointment of Anderson and the office of the town attorney issued an opinion stating that Anderson couldn't be removed until his membership expires.

The commission was supposed to elect new officers Wednesday night but couldn't because of the lack of a quorum.

Miss Jacobsen said she feels the whole commission will fold and she said Manchester residents don't know the issue is all about.

STOP's counsel said that he has attorneys working on the legality of the proposed ordinance in Philadelphia and New York City as well as in Connecticut. He said that he was also working with the federal Department of Justice unit that monitors Affirmative Action's section that handles sex if fraud and deception might exist if a town with an Affirmative Action Plan, like Manchester, does little or nothing about fair housing.

He is still looking into the legality of the proposed ordinance, he said.

JOIN Will Not Boycott Area Anti-HUD Merchants

MANCHESTER — JOIN, dedicated to support the town's involvement in the Community Development (CD) program, will not be a group that positions itself as a boycott of merchants who favor a two-year ban on town participation in the program.

The group also decided Thursday night that the boycott was a moral issue people will have to decide for themselves.

The boycott was suggested by STOP (Society to Oust the Pettified) which is also in support of continued justice in the CD program and is planning a legal challenge to a proposed ordinance that would put a two-year ban on town participation.

Raymond Norko, executive director of the Hartford County Legal Aid Society and counsel for STOP, said that the effect of the boycott would be quite small and "not a matter of blackmail, but rather a moral position."

JOIN member Archibald Stuart had a different opinion. He thought the boycott would hurt and not help and that JOIN would come out looking revengeful if it went along with the boycott.

A brochure telling how CD funds will continue to improve the quality of life in Manchester for everyone, will be hand delivered to 10,000 Manchester families in March.

JOIN is also planning a telephone survey to find out the feelings of the community on the issue. A recent

License Granted

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — After two years of investigation and four years of production, Nevada Gaming Commission has granted a license to Atlantic City-based Bally Manufacturing a permanent gaming license.

Attorney Don Carano said Bally had come a long way in meeting "the spirit of what this commission intended in 1975 when it granted the probationary license."

"The problems facing Bally today are not of the same magnitude or character we were facing in 1975," he said.

The company, world's largest manufacturer of slot machines, was granted a probationary license in March, 1975, after investigators complained that Bally's internal controls were not sufficient to keep organized crime influence out of the Nevada gaming industry. The license has been renewed each year since, each time resulting in a Gaming Control Board recommendation that the company continue on probation.

Last week, after extensive testimony by both Bally President William D. Bonnell and vice president for corporate security James R. Hochford, the control board finally agreed the internal controls were strong enough.

Commissioner Clair Haycock today commended Hochford for the job he has done in setting up the internal security system.

Malone Key Man In Houston Surge

NEW YORK (UPI) — What's that about the value of a college education?

Houston's Moses Malone, who skipped college and opted for the pro game five years ago, scored 35 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and keyed a fourth-quarter surge that led the Rockets to a 120-110 victory over the Washington Bullets Thursday night.

Malone, who will lead the league in offensive rebounds for the third straight year, preferred instead to talk about his varied offensive skills.

"I have a turnaround jump shot, a jumping hook and an outside shot, all it depends on how the other team is playing me," said the 23-year-old All-Star center, who is leading the league in rebounds by a wide margin.

Malone scored Houston's first seven points of the final period and 10

In a two-minute span, Houston outscored the Bullets, 17-2, to take a 110-92 lead with 6:20 to play.

Hokies Ken Higgs, Butch Lee and Mike Mitchell combined for 59 points to propel Cleveland past Kansas City.

Lee's six straight points to put the Cavaliers up, 87-85, with 4:57 left, and Campy Russell hit a short shot to seal it with 23 seconds remaining.

Malone scored 23 points, Higgs added a career-high 21 and Lee chipped in 15. Otis Birdsong had 24 points and rookie Phil Ford 22 for Kansas City.

Head Coaching Job Long Perkins Goal

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Ever since his high school days, Percy Perkins envisioned himself someday drawing up game plans, supervising practices and standing on the sidelines of a football field anxiously directing his team to victory.

He has wanted to be a head football coach for a long time. Now, at 27, he has his chance.

Perkins, the San Diego Chargers' offensive coordinator last season, was named head coach of the New York Giants Thursday, ending a frustrating search for a successor to John McVay.

The Giants' owners, Wellington Mara and nephew Tim Mara, had openly feuded over who should be put in charge of their team. The choice of Perkins by George Young, whom the Mara brothers agreed on as their general manager just last week, finally restored order to a team thrashing aimlessly amidst its own turmoil.

"I'm glad we can start to work now," Wellington Mara said. "I feel we're on the right road," Tim Mara echoed.

Although they are hoping for things like a new stadium, playoffs, even Super Bowls, the Mara and Young can count on Perkins to deliver at least one thing — plenty of hard work.

"I'm a guy who lives to work," said Perkins, a soft-spoken, bespectacled former wide receiver with the University of Alabama and Baltimore Colts. "I don't work to live. I enjoy what I do."

After being introduced at a Thursday morning news conference at Giants Stadium, Perkins immediately began the task of turning the Giants into winners. He planned to watch films of last year's Giants Thursday and also to start assembling a staff of assistants.

Under league rules, Perkins has until March 1 to sign assistant coaches currently employed by NFL teams.

"It's a great honor, needless to say, to be chosen head coach of the Giants," Perkins said.

Four Trackmen State Qualifiers

HARTFORD (UPI) — Completion date for a new roof over the civic center coliseum is in doubt again, because capital city officials have ordered three major contracts redesigned.

Officials at a progress meeting Thursday said the new contracts would be awarded in May, thereby pushing the bids back four months.

City Councilman William DiBella said he has asked project construction manager Albert Dailey of the George Fuller Co. and city administrators to prepare new contracts which they expect the new faculty to open.

DiBella has said he is concerned the Jan. 1, 1980 target date will not be met and worries about the impact any delays may have on the coliseum's prime tenant, the New England Whalers' hockey team.

Whalers' General Manager Howard Baldwin Thursday said he still had "great faith" the team, which is now playing in Springfield, Mass., will be back in Hartford on schedule.

(Officials close to the $27.5 million project have been suggesting since December they might not meet the projected opening date.)

But city administrators decided to redesign contracts for electrical work, general interior work and mechanical systems when bids earlier this month came in $5 million over budget.

The original coliseum roof collapsed Jan. 18, 1978, under tons of ice and snow just hours after a crowd of basketball fans had departed. There were no injuries.

Hockey Test

Second-ranked East Catholic will entertain 10th-ranked Newkirk Saturday night at the Bolton Ice Palace at 8:30 in a CIAC State Boys' Hockey Tournament Division II game.

Norwalk advanced to the round of eight with a 7-5 win over North Haven. East Catholic drew a bye into the quarterfinals.

East is 8-3, Norwalk 12-1 in CIAC play.

Assumption Junior High Deaneery Champs

Assumption Junior High of Manchester annexed the 1978-79 Manchester Deaneery basketball title with a perfect 12-0 record. The Warriors have now won 23 straight league games over two years. Squad members, top row (l. to r.) Coach Don Fay, Chris Bowman, Larry Boniville, Colin Doy, and Pinto.

Names in the News

Lanny Wadkins - Los Angeles (UPI) - Lanny Wadkins has had an up-and-down career in pro golf but Thursday the 29-year-old shot a 5-under-par 66 to take the first-round lead in the $50,000 Los Angeles Open. Wadkins had a one-stroke advantage over Lon Hinkle when the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur three weeks ago. Hinkle came in with a 67, despite a double bogey on the third hole. Larry Csonka - Miami (UPI) - Larry Csonka, who led the Miami Dolphins during their Super Bowl years in the early 1970s but struggled for the New York Giants the last three seasons, signed a one-year contract with the Dolphins Thursday. Csonka, who was released by the Giants earlier this month, said he had considered retirement but decided he wanted to end his career on a positive note. There hasn't been a lot used up in the last four years. Pete Broberg - Los Angeles (UPI) - The Los Angeles Dodgers announced the signing Thursday of free agent Pete Broberg, a pitcher who has played for half a dozen major league clubs since he got out of Dartmouth College in 1971. Broberg played out his option with Oakland last year and was selected by four clubs in the re-entry draft - Oakland, Montreal, Cleveland and Minnesota, but did not come to terms with any of them. He was placed in a second re-entry draft on Feb. 15 and was selected by one club, Cleveland, thus becoming a free agent available to any club. Chuck Fairbanks - Denver (UPI) - Commissioner Chuck Neinas of the Big Eight Conference has promised an inquiry into a possible recruiting violation by New England Patriots' Coach Chuck Fairbanks. The Boston Globe said the possible violation stems from a recruiting meeting Fairbanks held at his home in Foxboro, Mass., on the evening of Jan. 10, 1979. Willie Randolph - New York (UPI) - New York Yankees' second baseman Willie Randolph has been sued for more than $117,000 in federal court by a talent agency that claims he "unilaterally" broke off a contract with the firm. Court papers filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan by International Artists and Athletes Management Ltd. charged Randolph, of Park Ridge, N.J., failed to pay a bill of $12,375, based on a 7 1/2 percent commission from his 1978 and 1979 base salaries. Pete Elliot - Canton, Ohio (UPI) - The Pro Football Hall of Fame announced Thursday the appointment of St. Louis Cardinals' backfield coach Pete Elliot as executive director of the hall. The appointment of the 52-year-old Elliott is effective March 15, said Earl Schreiber, board chairman of the hall. He will be the third director in the history of the Pro Football Hall. The last executive director was Dick Gallagher, who held the post from 1968 until his retirement in 1975. The position has been vacant since then. Neil Bonnett - Birmingham, Ala. (UPI) - Stock car driver Neil Bonnett, whose sponsor is embroiled in legal battles with his former crew chief, said Thursday he had quit the Jim Stacy team. "We're just too tied up in court with our race team that we can't function as a race team," said Bonnett. He said Stacy, who lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., had a race team based near Charlotte, N.C., would drop out of Grand National competition indefinitely. George Brett - Fort Myers, Fla. (UPI) - Third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals will leave the club's spring training base for Kansas City Sunday for a precautionary examination of his injured right thumb. Brett first injured the thumb last season and re-injured it earlier this month playing in a charity basketball game. He has been working out in Florida with a cast on his hand but General Manager Joe Burke has decided to send him back to Kansas City for an examination by Dr. William Benson. Jane Blalock - St. Petersburg, Fla. (UPI) - Defending champion Jane Blalock sets out today in her bid to become the first Orange Blossom Classic champion to successfully defend her title since Kathy Whitworth did nine years ago. A field of 104 golfers will be out to block that bid, including five other former champions and Amy Alcott, winner of last week's opening event in Miami. Dave Roberts - Casa Grande, Ariz. (UPI) - The San Francisco Giants have signed 41-year-old Dave Roberts, a veteran moundman who was 6-8 in 25 games for Chicago last season. They also invited to camp another veteran hurler, Tom Griffin, who was 3-4 in 24 games with the California Angels last season. Joe Torre - St. Petersburg, Fla. (UPI) - The New York Mets will jump the gun on spring training by holding a workout Friday morning, one day before the official reporting date for pitchers and catchers. "We've got to like the enthusiasm of these guys," Manager Joe Torre said in explaining the decision. "Some of them have been here for several weeks and are anxious to get started." Steve Durhano - New York (UPI) - Steve Durhano of the St. Louis Blues has been suspended for Thursday night's game with the New York Islanders, pending a hearing Friday in Montreal with Brian O'Neill, executive director of the National Hockey League.

Top-Rated UCLA Upset

NEW YORK (UPI) - Instead of a cherry tree on Washington's Birthday the University of Washington chopped down the nation's No. 1 team. "We have kicked a game or two away but tonight we did it. We didn't give it away," said Washington Coach Marv Harshman Thursday night, after his unranked Huskies defeated top-ranked UCLA, 69-68, on Stan Walker's 17-foot jumper with three seconds remaining. Harshman said, "People will be poetic justice if we won on Washington's birthday." It'll be a day we'll celebrate for weeks to come." The Huskies almost began celebrating too early, before the Bruins staged one of the typical last-minute rallies that has availed

Canadiens Rebound from Loss

NEW YORK (UPI) - Every NHL team knows what awful things can happen on a trip to the Montreal Forum, but this was ridiculous. "It's just downright embarrassing," Penguins Coach Larry Wilson said Thursday night after the Canadiens, along the night before in a 3-2 loss in Pittsburgh, avenged themselves with a 12-0 victory. Doug Risebrough, Yvon Lambert and Mario Tremblay scored two goals apiece and Guy Lafleur scored his 43rd goal of the season as the Canadiens routed both Denis Herron and Greg Millien in goal. "I have no comment to make on this game," said Wilson. "We've been having trouble winning on the road this season and I guess we left our game at home." "We were disappointed we lost on Wednesday night," said Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman. "Tonight was probably our best skating and passing game we've had all season and don't forget we have all our regulars back in the lineup." Each member of the Canadiens scored at least one point with the exception of goaltender Bunny Larocque, who made 25 saves. In other games, the New York Islanders topped St. Louis, 6-1, added an assist Thursday night and Mike Bossy tallied in his ninth consecutive contest. Chicago trimmed Buffalo, 4-2, and Vancouver defeated Colorado, 3-0. There were no games in the World Hockey Association. A power-play goal by Ron Sedhauer in the first period provided all the offense Vancouver needed and Stan Smyl and Lars Lindgren added goals to pace the Canucks. extended its unbeaten streak to five games in handing Buffalo its fourth straight loss. Rham Wins

Taking an overtime decision last night was Rham High over home-standing Avon High, 66-63, in non-conference basketball action. Doug Moore had 22 points to top the Schemens, 10-9, including four in the extra session. Rob Roche chipped in a dozen markers for Rham. Don Friedberg had a game-high 26 points to lead 137-109. Rham had a 38-29 halftime lead with the clubs deadlocked 57-57 after regulation.

Cougars in Tournament Test Tonight

Fourth place finisher in the Connecticut Collegiate Conference Athletic Association regular season standings, Manchester Community College's basketball squad will step out tonight against Tunxis in the playoffs at 8:30 at Plainville High. Squad members, top row (l. to r.): D.J. Frederick, Frank Beaupre, Dave Litke, Carlton Butler, Peter Murphy, Don Neely, Coach Frank Kinel, Front row, Dave Wyman, Joe Bazzano, Paul Litke, Sean Thompson, John Zito and Bernardo Colgate. The Cougars sport a 18-9 won-lost record and will enter play with a seven-game winning streak.

History on NHL's Side To Gain Back Prestige

TORONTO (UPI) - History says the NHL can regain its former prestige if the lessons of the three-game Challenge Cup series loss to the Soviet national team are digested. English League, which they still firmly believed was the best domestic competition in the world. Six months after the Wembley debacle, England left for Budapest to exact revenge in the rematch. The result: Hungary 7, England 0. Now the English media spoke of the "Magical Magyars," and demanded the head of the coach and players. The rest of the world quickly implemented some of the Hungarian tactical patterns and training systems, but the English continued to go their own way. League coaches insisted English fans would not watch the "pretty Hungarian style" on a weekly basis. Others offered any excuse that came to mind rather than a loss of necessary changes. As a result, England's fortunes hit rock bottom at national and club level. When Alf Ramsey was appointed manager of the English national team in 1963, he accepted the job despite their guaranteed that he would have sole charge of team selection, and would be given more time with the players instead of trying to work out tactical patterns just three days before a game. Ramsey's team won the World Cup in 1966 when England hosted the competition and English clubs like Manchester United, Tottenham Hotspur, West Ham United, Arsenal and Liverpool went on to success at club level in Europe. The NHL has suffered a loss in prestige, and now its players and coaches must go back to school to work on the fundamentals of the game and some of the lessons the Soviets taught them. At junior level, coaches must forget about "Canadian hockey" and think in terms of "global hockey" as played by the Czechs, Soviets and Swedes. They must be prepared to take what is best in other systems and adapt it to their needs. When that happens, Canada's national game will be on the road to recovery and the national team will be a step closer to regaining its position as the world's No. 1.

Staub and Detroit at Odds

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) - Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell, embroiled in a contract dispute with slugger Steve Staub, says it's about time a major league club took a stand against the escalating salaries of batters. "This business has become ungodly," Campbell said, referring to the "astronomical" salaries top players have been receiving and the fact that Staub, who knocked in 121 runs as the Tigers' designated hitter last year, has threatened to quit unless he is given a contract extension. "In my estimation, it's gotten completely out of hand," Campbell said. "Somebody has got to take a stand and make up his mind what's good for the game. I guess that's going to be us. I don't mean for the whole industry. Not necessarily. But as far as we're concerned, we're taking a stand on the renegotiation of contracts." Staub asked the Tigers to extend his current $200,000-a-year contract, which has two years to run, an additional three years, or until 1983. Campbell said he "intends to honor" the current agreement with Staub and will not renegotiate with Staub or any other Tiger. Staub, who owns a restaurant in New York, said he will quit baseball if he's not given the contract extension. "I'm not going to back down," said Campbell. "If the (Staub) may decide to hang them up. If he does, that's his decision. If he does, we'll have to make somebody else the DH." Campbell said he has not talked to any other team about a possible trade for a replacement in the event Staub quits. "I honestly haven't given it any thought," he said.

Honor Leahy For the third consecutive year, University of Connecticut football center Bill Leahy of Glastonbury has been named to the Academic All-American second team. A three-year starter at center, Leahy is an accounting major with a 3.7 scholastic average. The 6-2 238-pound senior started 33 games in a row for the Huskies during his varsity career. At East Catholic High he captained the football team and participated in the Nutmeg Bowl. He was also a member of the National Honor Society.

Catholic Gets Third Shot At Aquinas in Playoff Test

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Writer Everything to gain and nothing to lose, that's the way East Catholic Basketball Coach Jim Penders sees his quintet's involvement in the fifth annual HCC Playoff tonight at the University of Hartford. The Eagles, 13-7, face St. Thomas Aquinas, 18-2, in the 8:30 nightcap following a clash between 14-1 Northwest Catholic and 15-5 South Catholic at 6:30. Aquinas and South each finished 8-2 in conference play but Aquinas was awarded the top seed on a coin flip. Northwest was 7-3 in HCC outings, East 5-5. Championship game is Monday night at 8:30 at the Uoffl with the consolation III at 6:30. "We know we're the underdogs," Penders stated, "but I like the position we're in. We have to be relaxed. The pressure is on Aquinas. It has to prove it can beat us a third time." The Saints took the two regular season meetings, 60-58 and 60-48. East might not be in the best physical health, Penders advises. Starting guard Mark Pagani, who has missed 100 percent of the second meeting, has a bad back as a result of a collision with Manchester's Ed Kennison. "He's a key factor defensively. We're thinking of changing defenses, and Mark is a key factor in the planning," Penders announced. Russ Radant, 6-foot-6 1/2 sophomore who played an important role in the first clash, missed Wednesday's practice and his absence would be severely felt. The second-year Eagle coach hopes to get some more inside buckets than the last engagement to help to pressure on Mark Murphy. The latter was held to a season-low 6 points by Aquinas' Johnny Jones in the last battle. "We've got a lot of inside shots the last time," Penders noted, "I hope (Peter) Kiro, (Bob) Venora and (Joe) King can get some stuff inside. That'll be the pressure of Mark and open things up." "Win, lose or draw, we'll get something out of this going into the playoffs," Penders continued, "and I feel this will be the fourth place team was out of it but

Rose Anxious to Play

NEW YORK (UPI) - You can't get just by looking at him, Pete Rose can't wait to put on those new peppermint pin-stripes. He's so anxious, in fact, he had the Philadelphia Phillies send him one of their uniforms, then went to a photographer's studio in Cincinnati where he had a picture of himself taken in it. Anyone asking for his autograph now gets that signed scale-down photo of him in his new Phillies' flannels. "I'm not going to play any different than I've played in the last 16 years," says Rose, who signed for $3.3 million with the Phillies two months ago after becoming a free agent with the Reds. "I'm not gonna try to prove Cincinnati made a mistake by letting me go. All I'm gonna try to do is pay people who work for me. I'm Phil Carpenter for the confidence he had in me." Rose shows some impatience with people who ask him what he plans to do for the Phillies. Since he made his reputation out-busting everyone else and has always given maximum effort,
