

This picture perhaps best reflects the political careers of Thomas and Vivian Ferguson—busy. While he leans to his right to speak to someone, she leans to her left to watch the on-stage action at last summer's Republican

State Convention. Even though both recently resigned top local political positions, they expect to maintain an active role in Manchester politics.

Republican 'First Family' Plans to Keep Involved

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — They have been involved in politics for more than a quarter of a century and for the past few years have been the first family of the local Republican Party.

Now, both Thomas and Vivian Ferguson have resigned from party leadership positions, but neither expects their political activity to wane.

"The phone doesn't stop ringing," Vivian said. She resigned Dec. 31 as a member of the Town Board of Directors, a position she had held for eight years. At the same time, Thomas resigned from the post he had held for almost three years—Republican town chairman.

They resigned and announced they planned to pursue some type of business venture. They still have not announced what that will be. (See related story.)

Their involvement in the local political scene dates back to before they were married in 1951.

"I was helping Vivian do a lot of the political chores while I was courting her," he said. Both his family and hers, the Fergusons, have been involved in politics for generations.

No Definite Answer On Fergusons' Plans

MANCHESTER — It probably is one of the town's most discussed matters, but there still is no definite answer to the future plans of Thomas and Vivian Ferguson.

They resigned from their political positions Dec. 31 and announced that they will be working on a business venture together.

That plan has changed slightly. They said in a recent interview that the business will involve him, but not her, at least for now.

Aside from that, however, they would say little about what the new business venture will be.

Rumors have been swirling around town since the early December announcement that the two were stepping down from their political posts.

The rumors have varied. One said they would buy Caves' Restaurant, another said it would be Labonne Travel.

Some guessed they would open a gift shop, others thought Vivian would start a cooking school.

The Fergusons said they have heard all of the rumors, and, according to them, none are true.

He said only one person who has asked about their possible future involvement has been right.

"I've heard a million rumors. I can't imagine where they come from," she said. "We get a kick out of it," she said.

He said an announcement should be made soon, but the exact date isn't set yet.

"I'm not trying to make a big mystery out of it. But, the announcement has to be timed right," he said.

"We've considered quite a few things since I sold The Herald," he said. This time, however, the decision has been firmly made to enter a new venture.

One rumor even has been that the Fergusons had nothing planned and used the business idea as a cover to step down from their political positions.

He laughed at this idea, though. "I'm definitely going into another business," he said.

Guest Speaker Set

MANCHESTER — John Zapadka of Woodland Gardens will be guest speaker at the Women's Club of Manchester meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Community Baptist Church, 585 E. Center St.

Zapadka, who was known in the past as "Your Garden Man" on radio station WINF, will discuss "Spring Landscaping and Garden Color."

Guests are invited. Mrs. Pat Coelho is in charge of the program. Miss Faith Falow and Mrs. Howard Mason hospitality co-chairmen.

Warrants deals—Paul Arcati and Magdalena Viola Arcati, both of Clinton, Md., to Vincent L. Diana, trustee, property on Oak Street, no conveyance tax.

Vincent L. Diana to Thomas K. Corcoran and Jean L. Corcoran, property at 182 Oak St., $50,000.

Watkins Brothers Inc. To The Holmes Co., property on Spruce Street, $49.50 conveyance tax.

Quincy deal—Gary N. Moore to Grace I. Moore, property at 143-145 School St., $3.30 conveyance tax.

Russell C. Holyfield, 326 Parker St., and Roy N. Abbie, South Windsor, doing business as Hugh's Weight Room, 501 E. Middle Turnpike.

With the Marine Band playing and the honor guard at attention, she dashed out onto the tarmac and met her son as he walked toward the greeting party in Marine dress uniform.

Kraus swung her off her feet in a bear-hug. Then he kissed his fiancée, Nina Trongone of Lansdale, and his three sisters. And then, finally, he began saluting and shaking hands with Navy Secretary W. Graham

Claytor, Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Louis Wilson and other dignitaries.

They presented him a Navy Commendation Medal "for heroic achievement" and a Purple Heart for shotgun pellet wounds he suffered defending the U.S. embassy from heavily armed guerrillas who sacked it Feb. 14, then kidnapped Kraus from a hospital and threatened to have him shot for his actions at the embassy.

"I did the job I was paid to do and I was trained to do it," Kraus said at the honors ceremony. "I tried to do my best. I'm glad to be home."

He also thanked President Carter and the department for parading him in a military release after a week in captivity, and added: "Times were tight but I never gave up."

The V.I.P. treatment also included a brief physical exam at Andrews' facilities and an executive-type T-39 jet standing by to whisk the sergeant and his loved ones home.

Top Court Upholds Coventry Deed Tax

COVENTRY — The State Supreme Court has upheld municipal officials in the case of David A. McKinney et al. vs. Town of Coventry et al. Earlier, the Superior Court in Tolland had ruled that the McKinneys' 234-acre farm on Cedar Swamp Road was to be a conveyance tax of $27,450 when in 1972 they sold the property to the Loro Corporation for $500,000.

In a lengthy opinion, the Supreme Court judges concurred that state laws and legal precedent established a conveyance tax on land classified as farmland. The plaintiffs claimed the town tax assessor did not inform them of the implications of their petition for the farmland classification in order to obtain a reduced tax rate.

The judges noted that the McKinneys did not support to the Board of Tax Review and stated that the tax imposed on more than 1,000 signatures submitted to the state a few years ago, he noted.

The land is being cleared this month, he explained. It will take about two months to relocate electric and telephone poles along the roadway.

Construction work is expected to begin in April. The state has been notified by the town's concern regarding sedimentation control so as to protect the lake, the manager added.

In other business Connolly reported that state engineers had begun work on the realignment of Route 31 near Lisiecke Beach. "This is a project that has been started as a result of a petition with more than 1,000 signatures submitted to the state a few years ago," he noted.

WHAT'S NEWS

Spending Limit

HARTFORD (UPI)—Fulfilling a campaign promise, Gov. Ella Grasso Friday unveiled her long-awaited proposed constitutional ceiling on government spending—then flatly predicted it won't go anywhere this year.

The governor presented a "working draft" of the constitutional amendment at her weekly news conference at the Capitol. The plan would limit state spending to the average rise in Connecticut's personal income over three years.

Mrs. Grasso said she recently discussed her plan with key legislative leaders and "the concept was received less than enthusiastically."

Asked if this meant the proposed amendment would be defeated by this year's Legislature, Mrs. Grasso replied, "I would feel very safe making that prediction."

If the governor's proposal were enacted this year, state spending would be allowed to rise about 8 percent. The increase in this fiscal year's budget was 14.4 percent, but Mrs. Grasso has proposed only a 5.1 percent increase for the coming fiscal year.

New Execution

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's "revolutionary" tribunals executed another former shah official Friday and 150,000 leftists rallied at Tehran University to demand the dissolution of the Iranian army and the seizure of foreign investments.

Branded by Khomeini as "anti-Islamic" and warned against trying to march through the capital, the leftists staged an impressive show of strength on the university campus.

Right-wing guerrillas loyal to Khomeini made a half-hearted attempt to disrupt the rally but gave up after brief scuffles when they found themselves outmaneuvered by 150-40-1.

Huge Walkout

LONDON (UPI)—Nearly 300,000 civil servants walked off the job Friday in a 24-hour strike that hit government operations, ports and airports and canceled flights but allowed thousands of travelers to enter the country duty-free.

The walkout for more pay was the latest in a month-long epidemic of work stoppages engulfing the country in its worst industrial turmoil in years.

At London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports, nearly 200 flights were canceled and others were hours late because traffic control assistants were among the strikers.

Medics Unhappy With Fire Duties

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Veteran paramedics are unhappy over a plan to rotate the town's 12 paramedics, who perform emergency medical duties, with fire fighters to perform Fire Department duties.

And, they say Mayor Richard H. Blackstone broke a promise that he would not rotate the paramedics into fire fighting duties.

As of March 1, the medics, who work at Firehouse No. 3 on Burnside Avenue, will be rotated onto a ladder truck for monthly periods.

Four men will be rotated onto the truck each month and the department will maintain a staff of eight medics. It requires four medics to run the emergency medical services vehicle for a 24-hour period.

East Hartford was the first town in the state to start an emergency medical service. It was instituted five years ago by the Town Council, which turned the administration of the program over to the Fire Department and the town administration.

Training for paramedics consists of a three-month course at the University of Connecticut and 500 miles of on-the-job training in the emergency medical van with a veteran paramedic.

Once certified, paramedics must take periodic refresher courses for recertification.

Last year, six of the eight paramedics threatened to forego the refresher course because of the mayor's threat to rotate them into fire duties.

But the men relented because they said the mayor promised them last spring they would not be rotated.

In addition to the discontent over the rotational system, the medics are unhappy about the lack of job descriptions for their positions.

Blackstone said it was a "false statement" that he promised the medics they would not have to perform fire fighting duties.

Blackstone said the reason for the new system was to make the medics "more well-rounded" as members of the Fire Department.

Blackstone said the functions of the paramedics are clearly defined in a management letter which states, in part, that they are fire fighters and paramedics.

There is no need for job descriptions for paramedics because they must advance as fire fighters. There are no career advancements within the department for paramedics as paramedics, he said.

When asked if there is a need for job specifications for paramedics, Blackstone replied, "What are they going to advance to? Doctors?"

Veteran medics say discussions have taken place with the town administration, but the town has adamantly refused to acknowledge

Inflation Hits 11.2% Annually

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Led by rocketing food, housing and medical bills, the cost of living in America began 1979 with a whopping 11.2 percent annual rate—well over President Carter's inflation forecast—the government said Friday.

The Labor Department said the Consumer Price Index jumped 0.9 percent in January, the largest rise in four months and a big boost over the optimistic 0.6 percent hike that ended 1978.

To make matters worse, the department said blue collar workers' wages went up with a 1 percent gain in weekly wages and a 0.1 percent fall in purchasing power last month.

The Republican National Committee promptly blamed the sharp price increase on the Carter administration's "hambling," and said the day ought to be called "Black Friday" because of the grim economic news.

"Our nation, our people and our economy simply cannot stand the continuing series of righting economic news released monthly by this administration," the GOP said.

But White House press secretary Jody Powell said the rise "is not surprising" in view of "the serious problem that inflation poses to our country." He said Americans must make "some specific sacrifices" to slow down inflation.

The CPI, which measures the change in prices for basic goods and services, rose to 204.7 compared to a base of 100 in 1967. That means it would cost $204.7 today for the same things bought for $100 in 1967.

If prices keep rising for the rest of 1979 at January's pace, inflation will be compounded 11.2 percent for the year, a Labor Department spokesman said.

The increase from January 1978 to January 1979 was 9.3 percent.

The January increase, although running well over Carter's forecast last month of a 7.4 percent inflation rate in early 1979, was under the 1 percent figure predicted by some economists.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed much of the January price rise on a 1.4 percent boost in food and beverage costs, compared with a 0.9 percent hike the month before.

Embassy Guard Returns as Hero

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Kidnapped Marine Sgt. Kenneth Kraus came home from Iran a hero Friday, hugged his mother, kissed his girl, got two medals and said, "Times were tight but I never gave up."

The nation hid on a glittering pomp and ceremony welcome for the wounded, 22-year old U.S. embassy guard at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., Friday.

But his mother, Mrs. Jayne Kraus of Lansdale, Pa., put it all on a human scale while generals and Washington brass waited.

With the Marine Band playing and the honor guard at attention, she dashed out onto the tarmac and met her son as he walked toward the greeting party in Marine dress uniform.

Kraus swung her off her feet in a bear-hug. Then he kissed his fiancée, Nina Trongone of Lansdale, and his three sisters. And then, finally, he began saluting and shaking hands with Navy Secretary W. Graham

College Official Critical of Cuts

By SUSAN VAUGHN

MANCHESTER — Wary of continual cuts in the state allotments to community colleges, a Manchester Community College official is seeking support of government leaders, business, labor unions, women's organizations and the media in rejecting Gov. Ella Grasso's proposed higher education budget.

Carroll Maddox, director of college and community relations at MCC, has prepared an extensive statement and fact sheet relating to the budgets for higher education. It supports his stand that community colleges are getting a disproportionate share of the budget.

Maddox said he is seeking the support of the state's labor unions, women's organizations, business and industry associations and others, because those groups are affected by the community college system. He said labor unions should be made to see that inadequate funding for community colleges seriously affects their members.

Women comprise 66 percent of the community college student population, Maddox said. He said business and industry benefit from the supply policy talks with American diplomats and are putting pressure on the Reds.

Adult School Signup Slated

HEBRON — Registrations for the Rham High School Adult Education program will be accepted Feb. 26 from 7 to 8 p.m. The classes will meet for a 10-week period starting the first week in March. They meet one night a week from 7 to 9 p.m.

The exceptions to the 10-week courses will be ballroom dancing and introduction to natural foods which will only meet for five weeks.

All courses are non-credit and are offered to residents of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough. A registration fee will be charged and students will be required to pay for their own supplies and materials to be used in classes. Each class will require a minimum enrollment of 10.

Students who withdraw after the first class session will not be able to receive a refund but all fees will be refunded if any class doesn't have a sufficient number of persons enrolled. Fees will be collected at the time of registration for mail by before Feb. 26.

The courses will be offered for Monday March 5 and each Monday through May 14 in out and piered

Rham Math Team Wins

HEBRON — The Rham High School Math Team finished ahead of seven schools in a contest conducted recently at Middletown High School.

Kevin Spaulding was high scorer for the Rham team. Some Rham officials said had a balanced performance from all five competitors. Rham will participate in the state tournament on April 7 at Danbury High School.

Scholarship: Arts Contest conducted in Hartford, this month.

BECAUSE YOU CAN'T GET HEALTH INSURANCE?

We've got something to make you feel better. The Health Reinsurance Association (Connecticut) was established by a 1975 act of the Connecticut legislature. It provides, through all health insurers in the state, a program for low-income individuals and families who do not qualify for Medicare, and who have had problems securing health insurance coverage. HRA will now provide a Comprehensive Hospital Medical Insurance program with a million dollar maximum to any Connecticut resident, regardless of the condition of his or her health.

The program covers: Hospital and Physician Charges, Drugs, Nursing Care and Home Health Agency Expenses, Emergency Ambulance, Out-Patient Charges and More.

There are, of course, limitations. For example, medical conditions existing or treated within six months of coverage will be excluded for the first 12 months of the program.

For more information about HRA, its coverages, costs, limitations and exclusions, contact your local health insurance agent. Or write HRA, P.O. Box 1438, Hartford, Connecticut 06101.

Thought

"Blessed are the peace-makers, they shall be called children of God." (Mt. 5:9) To be a peacemaker does not mean that we have to shuttle back and forth between areas of crisis in our world.

True peace is not merely the lack of open hostility or fighting. True peace is based on mutual respect and mutual forgiveness. True peace calls for reconciliation between the parties in conflict. It demands a willingness to forgive and forget.

Jesus brought peace to his followers. They were, and still are, persecuted because of their beliefs, but they are at peace. This is possible because the follower of Jesus knows he or she has been forgiven, that through Jesus God has made peace with all the world. God is not harboring any grudges. He has reconciled the world to himself.

To be a peacemaker in the image of Jesus is to offer others that same kind of forgiveness and reconciliation. Diplomats can stop wars and bring peace. But it is only a person filled with peace that can offer peace to others. Being filled with peace allows a person to share the forgiveness he or she has received with another. It allows the person to reconcile others because he or she has been reconciled first. To be a peacemaker means to be at peace, and happy in the person who is at peace and who can offer that peace to others.

Pentagon Badmouthing Its Foe

WASHINGTON — Once again we've caught the Pentagon trying to sabotage the Renegotiation Board, the watchdog agency charged with reviewing defense contracts and cracking down on profiteers.

It is largely because of the military-industrial complex's uncomplicated lobbying that the Renegotiation Board is scheduled for extinction on March 31. President Carter wants Congress to continue funding the military, which over the years has extracted millions of dollars in excess profits from greedy defense contractors.

But White House policy doesn't keep the Pentagon brass from continuing to badmouth the Renegotiation Board at every opportunity. Last month, David Koonce, chairman of the Defense Department's contract finance committee, popped off in derisive fashion at the board in a speech to the National Contract Management Association in Los Angeles.

And when the defense industry's Capitol Hill gadfly, Rep. Joseph Minih, D-N.J., learned of Koonce's remarks, he dispatched a stinging rebuke to Defense Secretary Harold Brown. "It is my understanding," Minih wrote, "that it is customary for the President to determine the policies which his administration will follow ... If Mr. Koonce wants to represent the interests of defense contractors, he should not be masquerading as an employee of the American taxpayer."

CYNICAL COPS: California probably has more than its share of extremist groups from every cove in the political zoo — nut cases like the Symbionese Liberation Army on the left to the Posse Comitatus on the right. So it's understandable that the state's law-enforcement officials have developed elaborate methods for training police and military personnel in the control of civil disorders and terrorism.

But one facility offering such education, the California Specialized Training Institute at San Luis Obispo, appears to have reacted to the state's law-enforcement officials with a vengeance. When not approving fanaticism, the manual seems to be espousing cynicism. "It is necessary," the manual states, "for the police executive to treat his occupation like any other executive. He must do it well but not so well that he puts himself out of a job. He must reduce crime but not stop it."

The institute's director, Col. Louis O. Guelfrida, approved that particular manual himself, but said he hadn't really had time to review it thoroughly. He also suggested we were lifting quotes out of context. In any case, he said, the manual had been replaced.

RABID REVOLUTIONARY: Libyan strongman Muammar Qaddafi's knee-jerk support of revolutionaries anywhere in the world has given rise to this joke among Muslim moderates: An aide told him about the mutiny on the Bounty; Qaddafi issued an order that a "cable of support" be dispatched to the mutineers at once.

By EDGAR N. JACKSON
Luke played professional football. He was big, tough, and assured.

When his doctor told him he had cancer and had only a few months to live, Luke was angry, confused, and felt cheated. "Why me?" he asked about his condition. "What life after death? Is there anything to it? What's next? Is this the end of me?"

Luke's questions are our questions. Dead and buried — the end? Doesn't some part of us survive the cessation of biological function? These are old and persistent questions to which humans for ages have sought answers.

Beliefs about some form of life after death are among our oldest known concepts. Netherland people, more than 100,000 years ago, buried their dead with ceremonies that suggested beliefs in immortality. In Persia, 60,000 years ago, grain and other provisions were placed in the grave for use in the next life.

Some of the most towering monuments of history — the pyramids of Egypt, Central America, and Mexico, for example — are evidence of the persistent belief in survival after death.

Religious Traditions
Traditionally, most major religions have expressed beliefs about an afterlife for the human soul. Such conceptions of life after death have taken various forms, from the vision of a bleak underworld in the Homeric Greeks, through the prospect of judgment of the ancient Egyptians and the Jesus-Christian tradition to the Hindus' and Buddhists' belief in an almost endless series of reincarnations. Taken together, the importance of such beliefs in different religions suggests a persistent human need to believe that some form of existence continues after physical death.

Meanwhile, materialistic philosophies that seek to reduce the human to a level of a biological organism give a simple answer to the question of life after death: When the human "machine" wears out or breaks down, it is finished. To think of life after death is self-deception, we are told, and to encourage such an idea is at best religious manipulation or at worst, cruel.

However, after a steady decline in religious participation, we have recently witnessed in the United States a resurgence of religious and spiritual activity in both traditional and non-traditional forms. Evangelism, faith healing, prosperity, as well as occultism, satanism, witchcraft, spiritualism, and the ancient yearning for answers to the mysteries of death. Capping this renaissance of spiritual questing has been excitement over the prospect of providing scientific verification of survival after death.

After Death
Recently, for instance, much interest has been shown in the writing of Raymond Moody and Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, who explore the experience of surviving clinical death in which there are no apparent vital signs. Dr. Moody, a physician, in his best-selling book "Life After Life," reports numerous accounts of individuals who had apparently "died" or been very "near death" and who survived to tell of wondrous, peaceful, and glorious experiences, of light, and glowing vistas. Kubler-Ross, the well-known psychiatrist, had published her own and other out-of-body experiences as well as her conviction that the human spirit survives the death of the body.

The tremendous interest in such accounts appears to be a quest for assurance that life cannot be blotted out by a biological event called death. Traditionally, religion provided such assurance. It is significant that people now look to science for answers.

However, it would be unfortunate if the answers were misleading. As Dr. Samuel Vaisrub, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, observed, "Resuscitation is not resurrection."

Nor is resuscitation a substitute for reality. Robert Kastenbaum, superintendent of Cushing Hospital in Massachusetts, has studied responses to clinical death and finds that most people don't seem to have "life after life" experiences.

It seems more reasonable to seek answers that are less dramatic than accounts of resuscitated patients but more valid in their scientific perspective on consciousness and the mind. Here, our quest may be more rewarding and our findings more trustworthy.

Immortality and the Supernatural
New scientific attitudes have recently made all human experience, both physical and psychological, a valid field for laboratory examination. One such area of research is the supernatural and extrasensory experiences, such as mental telepathy, that cannot be readily explained in terms of our known senses.

For example, when I speak at conferences on consciousness and ask how many believe in immortality, a few raise their hands. But when I ask how many have had extrasensory experiences, the response is often nearly unanimous.

This does not, of course, prove that any aspect of the person or mind is not immortal. However, it does, in fact, survive death. Many researchers still believe the evidence is inconclusive, and to take any position is really a matter of faith.

Consciousness and Energy
Other questions still remain, however. If consciousness can be measured by participating newspapers and colleges.

Next week, Dr. Avery Weisman of the Harvard Medical School discusses the experience of dying from the viewpoint of patients, friends, and family.

If consciousness with its energy is unique, would it be the only thing in creation to be destroyed? If energy survives all forms of change, would it happen to the energy of consciousness? If traditional physics had a space-time, it is clear that beyond the space-time, but in energy physics, which permits us to go beyond the space-time concept, how is death possible? Is death or the idea of death an illusion measured by the limits of sensory perception? These are the questions that are presently being posed.

Exploration into the human mind may well be the most challenging frontier of research in our century. The light to the moon found a dead heavenly body. The journey into the death of consciousness is finding new, amazing powers in living human beings. It can be discovered how these mental capacities in and out of the space-time frame help us under the creative power of the mind, we may be on the verge of a breakthrough in self-understanding that can affect our social relationships as well as our personal health and well-being.

In medical centers around the world, neurologists are expanding our knowledge of the human mind. Indicative of the new trends in medical research on the frontiers of the mind is a 1977 article by psychiatrist Ian Stevenson in the highly respected "The Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases." Stevenson, after studying more than 1,600 cases of persons who claim to have previously occupied other physical bodies, concludes, "The evidence of the mind's survival after death is strong enough to permit a belief in survival."

Chinese Troops Overrun Two Provincial Capitals

By United Press-International
 Chinese troops have overrun two Vietnamese provincial capitals, pushing 20 miles down the Red River valley into Vietnam and are poised to capture three other capitals, intelligence sources in Thailand said Friday.
 The intelligence sources said the Chinese invasion had overrun the capital cities of Lao Cai and Cao Bang, 120 miles north of Hanoi and more than 15 miles inside the border. The capitals of Lang Son, Quang Ninh and Lai Chau are under fierce attack, the sources said.
 "It looks like the Chinese want to take the capital of every province on the border," one of the Western sources said.
 Hanoi admitted losing Lao Cai to the Chinese, but claimed that although there was heavy fighting at the other cities, the Chinese were beaten back.
 Cao Bang, in a narrow valley surrounded by rugged limestone hills, lies across Highway 4 which runs roughly parallel to the Chinese border before branching toward Hanoi.
 Lang Son, where Vietnamese Army regulars have been rushed into the defense, is the only one of the three still definitely in Vietnamese hands.

Gas Stations Fined For Wrong Nozzles
 By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER - The federal Environmental Protection Agency has fined four gasoline stations in town because they reportedly used the wrong-size nozzles on gasoline pumps.
 The improper nozzles would permit leaded gasoline to be pumped into a vehicle requiring unleaded fuel, the federal agency says.
 The owners of the local stations are not pleased with the fines, and at least two say they plan not to pay them.
 The fines are the result of inspections done last October, said Elizabeth Struck, assistant director of public awareness for the Boston EPA office. Notifications of the fines were mailed to the stations Feb. 7, and the stations have 20 days to respond after receiving the letters, she said.
 The four stations cited are P & P Auto Repair Service, 706 Main St.; Roy Hagedorn's Service Station, 220 W. Middle Turnpike; Gerich's Service Station, 1082 Tolland Turnpike, and Jim's Auto Service, 204 Hartford Road.
 "The way the guy explained it, it was no big deal," he said. "He was here at 11 a.m., and I had the right nozzle on by 2 p.m."
 Jim Thibodeau, owner of Jim's, made a similar complaint.
 He had the proper nozzle installed the same afternoon the EPA found the violation.
 "I don't think I'm going to pay the fine," Thibodeau said. He said he has sent a letter of protest to the Boston office.
 The problem is if he decides to fight the matter, it may cost him more than the $500 fine would, he said.
 No one from Hagedorn's could be contacted Friday evening.
 Attorney George Clampa of EPA said the gas nozzle violations are not uncommon. The problem is there is no way of telling whether the station owner had the improper nozzle intentionally to pump leaded fuel into vehicles requiring unleaded fuel. The leaded fuel is cheaper, but it damages pollution controls on newer vehicles.

Home Tour Scheduled
EAST HARTFORD - Because of the popularity of the home tour sponsored by the Historical Society last year, the organization is making plans for another presentation Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Preliminary plans range from a 250-year-old Colonial to an ultra-modern contemporary with lots of glass.
 Jim Flynn and Judy Williams are co-chairing the event with Raymond Johnson and Marlene Gallo in charge of the program and Maxine Duggan providing the hostesses. Further details will be released later.

Mardi Gras Set Monday
EAST HARTFORD - St. Isaac Jogues Parish, East Hartford will celebrate Mardi Gras on Monday at 7 p.m. at Mount Carmel Hall, 30 Roberts St.
 Mardi Gras, according to the French tradition designates the last of the carnival season before Lent. It is a time of joyful celebration, festivity, foolishness and fun before the Lenten season of the church.
 The evening will begin with a mini-silide meditation followed by a gong show, sing-along, costume judging and refreshments.
 Proceeds will benefit the parish food bank and tickets will be available at the door.

College Official Critical of Cuts

 of employable, promotable workers who are trained and educated at community colleges.
 Maddox also is seeking support from minority groups, which comprise 15 percent of the community college student population, civil rights and human rights organizations.
 The figures supplied by Maddox show that the community college budget has been reduced in the governor's proposal from the $30.12 million requested by the Board of Higher Education to $26.43 million, or 12.2 percent reduction.
 In comparison the state college reduction was 5.8 percent at the University of Connecticut and 7.1 percent. The only other group with a higher reduction was the technical colleges at 15 percent.
 Maddox said the community college request represents only 19 percent of the total Board of Higher Education request, but the governor's proposed cuts are 28 percent of that total request.
 Maddox said the reduction in real purchasing power is 9.7 percent from last year's combining the governor's proposed cut of 2.67 percent in General Fund expenditures added to a national inflation factor of 7 percent for higher education.
 Maddox said the budget reductions for the community colleges could mean a possible loss of 50 to 80 staff positions.
 Inadequate facilities were also noted in Maddox's statements. He said the educational space allotment per student for community college was 37.4 square feet compared to 18.9 square feet at the University of Connecticut. He said the high proportion of occupational courses and programs, such as data processing, at the community and technical colleges should require more space than traditional classroom instruction.

Glaucoma Testing Slated Thursday
EAST HARTFORD - The Connecticut Society to Prevent Blindness will offer a free glaucoma screening for adults over the age of 35 Thursday, March 1, at the Moose Hall, 404 Prospect St.
 Appointments may be made between the hours of 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. by calling 524-5700 or 1-800-942-0692.
 Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness. According to the Society to Prevent Blindness, if detected early and treated by a physician, glaucoma can be halted, but sight destroyed cannot be restored. Those with a family history of glaucoma are especially vulnerable.
 The best defense against this disease is an eye examination every two years after age 35.

The Only Safe Way
 The National Society to prevent blindness warns that the only safe way to view Monday's solar eclipse is indirectly. A simple way is to take two pieces of white cardboard, make a pinhole in one, and with the sun at your back place the eclipse through the pinhole onto the second board. The size of the image can be changed by altering the distance between the cardboards. Never look directly at the sun through the pinhole. (UPI photo)

St. Patrick's Day Event Planned by Democrats
EAST HARTFORD - The First District Democratic Committee will sponsor a St. Patrick's Day celebration on Sunday, March 11, at the Italian American Hall on Tolland Street.
 The affair will be held between the hours of 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. and will feature the Morgans with their traditional Irish music.
 A corned beef and cabbage dinner will be served at 6 p.m.
 Guests at the head table will include Secretary of State Barbara B. Kennedy, Lt. Gov. William O'Neill, High Sheriff Patrick J. Hogan, former Lt. Gov. Robert Killian, who is also an honorary member of the first district and Hartford city treasurer Bud Mahon.
 Also planning to be seated at the head table are U.S. Reps. William Collier (D-1st) and Christopher Dodd (D-2nd); Town Chairmen James M. Fitzgerald, Mayor Richard H. Blackstone, State Sen. Marcella C. Fahy (D-3rd) and State Reps. Richard Willard (D-10), Timothy Moynihan (D-11), and Muriel Yacovone (D-9).
 Guests at the head table will also include Eugene Paganetti and Mary LeDoux from the third senatorial district. Both are members of the state central committee.
 The affair has been completely sold out and no tickets will be available at the door.

Hearing Due Friday
EAST HARTFORD - Public hearings for the bills which have been submitted to mandate special programs for gifted and talented children in the state will be held on Friday, March 2, at 10 a.m. in the Senate Chambers of the Capitol. The proposed bills include Bill No. 1, submitted by Senate Marcella C. Fahy (D3rd) and Bill No. 415 submitted by four state representatives.

Manchester High Basketball Coach Biggest Battle of All Won

By LEN AUSTER
 Herald Sports-writer

MANCHESTER - Here are those who take life for granted and don't realize what they have until it's too late.
 And then there are those who have full realization because of circumstances which have affected their lives.
 Doug Pearson falls in the latter category.
 The Manchester High School head basketball coach is a battler - just ask some of the officials who've incurred his wrath in the past. And he, like many others who've successfully done so, had to battle for the biggest thing - life.
 You see he had Hodgkin's Disease. It was first discovered in 1970. Pearson explains, "I was in the Army at the time. When they first discovered the lump I went on sick call and they sent me to a surgeon. He decided to do a biopsy."
 "He did the biopsy on the lump and then sent me home for a while because he had to wait for the results from Washington."
 Pearson returned home to Manchester from Fort Meade and after about two weeks asked Dr. Harvey Pastel, for whom his mother worked, to call about the results. "He called for me, and called me in. I was fortunate in a lot of ways."
 "I knew what the possibilities were. I knew it could be a lot of things including Hodgkin's. I had time to prepare myself for the worst. Fortunately, Dr. Pastel told me exactly what the situation was. Really I was very fortunate."
 "It wasn't a serious form of the disease. It was asymptomatic. It can be either symptomatic or asymptomatic. Symptomatic means it could affect your blood, liver or other organs in the body. With me it was a good type, a very slowly progressive type and it was asymptomatic. So Dr. Pastel told me right off 'I have good news and bad news. The bad news is you have Hodgkin's Disease but the good news is that it doesn't appear to be the worst form and definitely can be arrested.' So, I was never that pessimistic. At that point when I found out about it I was realistic."
 The fear of the unknown is the biggest concern for many people, Pearson states. "The problem with a disease is the unknown factors," he states, "I think people around you have a tendency to be much more concerned than you do." Pearson's wife, Pam interjected, "People who don't know when they hear the word 'cancer' - it scares them."

received aid from many, many corners, help which he'll never forget.
 "There were times during that period when, if it wasn't for these people, I could not have continued teaching... I can't begin to tell you how much people like Jim Brezinski, Dick Lindgren, George Emmerling, Larry Leonard, Wilson Deakin, Dick Danielson, Phil Hyde and Jim Moriarty helped."
 "People like this, how much they did for me I could never repay. It's impossible. But they don't want to be repaid. They're friends and I thank God for them every day."
 After the radiation treatment, he underwent another period of chemotherapy with all the treatments ending about November of 1974.
 Pearson started off with weekly check-ups, then monthly and now once every six months. He sees Dr. Papoc still, and received a clean bill of health on his 34th birthday, Jan. 3, marked by his quintets 75-41 basketball win over Ferris High in Eastfield.
 Why is his story being told now?
 "Because I've seen so many people react negatively to this disease; react too negatively in these kinds of situations," he replied. "I feel if I can help anyone to have a better attitude, to be more optimistic about their chances of being cured or having everything taken care of by showing them first of all that my life didn't change and it hasn't kept me from doing anything I have wanted to do in life."

 "... My doctors say if you go five years without a recurrence that you're cured. And now it's over four years, actually closer to five years since I've shown any signs of the disease. No new disease has cropped up so I consider myself cured."
 "Hey, tomorrow I could get hit by a car, lightning could strike. Anything could happen," Pearson continued. "The biggest thing you have to do and the thing I realized was that you have to go out and live your life and you can't be afraid to live it the way you want to live it. You can't worry about all kinds of things over which you have no control."
 Pearson does have some advice worth noting. "Patients can't be afraid to ask questions, they can't be afraid of the truth. I went at it and said 'tell me what the story is, don't just try to make me feel better, lay it right out.' The only time I ever got worried was when I didn't know something."

 "I've had to go through some illness, some pain. There were times when I might have thought 'God, I don't know if I can take this. Is it worth it?' Well, I never had any real doubts. I wanted to get better and I didn't care what I had to go through to reach that goal."
 "I figured I had to take anything. Another fellow who was being treated when I was, walked out of the hospital (back in the Army) and refused treatment. It's a good possibility that if he didn't seek help later, that he is not with us today. "I put myself in the doctor's hands and anything they did was fine with me as long as they kept me informed. You have to know the signs and symptoms of potential problems. Know when something in your body isn't right and not be so afraid of what it may be that you won't go to a doctor. That's the first reaction of every single person."

 "If I hadn't gone to the doctor and hadn't allowed them to do what they had to do, I probably wouldn't be here today."
 Hodgkin's Disease sounds frightening. But if you fight back, do what must be done, it isn't the killer it once was. Pearson knows that, and so do the many people like him."

Almanacs Have Come A Long Way

By RUSS MacKENDRICK
This year's "World Almanac and Book of Facts" has 36 pages of "almanac" and 940 of "facts." Perhaps many buyers of the volume are not even aware that it gives such information as the time of rising and setting of the sun and planets and the phases of the moon.

Major Net Event

Biggest tennis event this side of the Connecticut River in Connecticut, and second only to the Aetna World Cup in prestige in the state, the International Professional Tournament in Manchester got under way yesterday afternoon at the Manchester Racquet Club.

Great Record

Assumption Junior High, under Coach Don Fay, has compiled a great record in winning the Manchester Deaneville basketball title the last two years with 23 consecutive victories. The young cagers, 173 overall this season, will get their first State Deaneville title Sunday at South Catholic High.

Plans New Field

Jimmy Horvath Jr., former local resident and current Cape Cod amateur golf champion, will leave the radio field at the end of February to assume a career in golf tournament management and television production. Horvath was a sportscaster and radio personality on the Cape for several years. He also produced and directed a series of golf shows for Cape Cod television. Walt Snow, former Manchester resident and now living in Waquoit on the Cape, forwarded the information of Horvath's plans to the Manchester Country Club. Horvath, the latter's brother, Len, is a former Manchester Country Club champion. Third man in the New York Mets March 8 at the New Haven Coliseum. Kip Blake of the Manchester Ski Club garnered third place in the weekly Connecticut Ski Council competition at Mt. Southington this week.

Winners in Singles

Winners in singles during the NETS stops were Doug Crawford and Bill Drake, both of whom have impressive credentials.

Holmes Unworried About Losing Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — The total confusion in boxing's heavyweight division is a mere trifle to Larry Holmes. In Holmes' view, the heavyweight picture couldn't be clearer. Holmes, of course, dominates the foreground.

Holmes is the World Boxing Council's heavyweight champ. He doesn't take too seriously the plans of promoter Bob Arum to hold an elimination tournament to choose a successor to Muhammad Ali, who holds the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title. The plans do not include Holmes.

All is expected to retire soon without making another defense. Arum's proposed elimination tournament includes former heavyweight champ Leon Spinks, South African Kalle Knouthe and Gerrie Coetzee and John Tate, a one-round knockout winner over Duane Bobick last Saturday.

"If that's his tournament then it's got to be number two," Holmes said Friday. "Because I'm the number one man, I'm better than anybody out there, including Ali. I know I can beat any of their guys. But that's all right. The people know what's going on. The people know who the best fighters is."

Holmes was in town to promote his March 23 defense in Las Vegas against Ossie "Jaws" Ocasio, the unbeaten 21-year-old Puerto Rican who earned a title shot by outpointing Jimmy Young in January for the second straight time.

Also fighting on the Holmes-Ocasio card will be No. 1 contender Ken Norton against Earnie Shavers in what promoter Don King is billing as a 12-round "heavyweight elimination battle."

The winners will meet either in June or September. King is hoping for victories by Holmes and Norton to set up a rematch of their exciting WBC title fight won by Holmes last June in Las Vegas.

King questioned Arum's planned tournament in May since the WBA said this week it would not strip Ali's title until Sept. 15, a year after he won back the title from Spinks.

"Everything he says is lies," King said of his rival promoter.

Ocasio, who has 21 brothers and sisters, also has nine knockouts in 13 bouts, all victories. But Holmes, eight years older and unbeaten himself in 29 fights (20 knockouts) is hardly concerned.

"I could fight the guy next week, that's how ready I am," Holmes said. "I'm not worried about Ocasio beating me. I'm not Jimmy Young. I'm Holmes. I'll be making his second title defense. He knocked out European champ Alfredo Evangelista in Las Vegas Nov. 10. Even though he hopes to reunite the championship under his domain 'My goal is to be heavyweight

Free Speech in Sports

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — This is a free country, far less restrictive than it ever has been in all its 203 years, and the easiest way you can prove that is by listening to the colossal liberties some people take with the statements they make.

Nowhere is there any better example of free speech than in sports. Even when it wasn't considered as fashionable as it is today, athletes generally said whatever they felt like. They just weren't quoted as much.

Individuals like Muhammad Ali, Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson and Dick Ellis, to name only a few, love to talk and tell everyone what they think. One of the best ways they have of doing that is by talking to reporters.

Then you have those at the other extreme. Follows Larry Bird, Indiana State's spectacular All-American, Thurman Munson of the Yankees and George Hendrick of the Cardinals. They are the ones who do not wish to talk to reporters. Why?

"I don't want to spend the time and energy to distinguish between the two. Why, I can't help wondering, doesn't George Hendrick simply try to trust everyone? That's part of the Golden Rule. Burned once by some writer it seems, Hendrick now says the way he does them. I wonder if it is the first to point out the injustice of it all if reporters employed the same reasoning he does to treat him the way he does them. I wonder if it has ever given any thought to the fact that writers are directly responsible for what have to be the most satisfying experiences in any player's life. That generally comes when a player is voted MVP and into the Hall of Fame. And who are the ones who do the voting? George Hendrick should think about that some time.

John Claiborne, the Cardinals' new general manager, disappointed me, when he said "I'm not going to tell a player to talk to the press or not to talk to the press. His relationship with the press is his business."

His job is to sell the Cardinals to the community as well as baseball in general to the fans. One of the ways he's obliged to do that is by selling George Hendrick the idea publicly generates interest in the team. Interest in turn generates attendance and attendance is what helps pay Hendrick's and Claiborne's salaries.

Several things come to my mind anytime I see athletes refusing to talk to the media. I can't help but think how vital they're always saying it is to communicate and here they are doing exactly the opposite of what they say. I also think about how some of these strong silent types go off by themselves in a corner, then return years later, maybe for some Old Timers' function, and look around longingly for someone to talk to. Lefty Grove was only one of many I saw do that.

Most of all, I remember the late Frank Graham's classic line in connection with Bob Meusel, who seldom ever gave newspapermen the time of day during most of his career with the Yankees. Now the end, he mellowed somewhat, and Graham, noticing the change in him, wrote: "Now that it's nearly time to say goodbye, Bob Meusel finally is learning how to sell."

to speak to reporters at all. If people like Bird, Munson or Hendrick do not wish to talk to reporters, that's certainly their prerogative. I've spoken with Munson and Hendrick and found them communicative when they wish to be. On other occasions, they made it plain they had no intention of speaking with anyone.

That's their privilege, their right, but I can assure them they are wrong in their basic attitude. They're certainly not helping themselves. They're really not helping anyone. George Hendrick, the Cardinals' outfielder, is perceptive enough to realize what he's doing isn't right and to his credit, at least he admits it.

The other day in St. Louis, Hendrick was asked whether he had been any influence on Garry Templeton, the Cardinals' 22-year-old shortstop who decided that he, too, didn't care to talk to reporters last year. Hendrick said he hadn't influenced Templeton at all.

"I told him he had everything to lose and nothing to gain," said the Cardinals' outfielder, explaining why he chose not to talk to writers. Hendrick added: "I don't know who I can trust and center stake, or where the birds will pass each other in doubles.

Then bend your left knee slightly, putting most of your weight on your left leg. You'll find that you can swing your body easily from left to right, and right to left, on any station on the field. There's no cramp up, no feeling of not following through with your body.

Practice swinging through like this (with an empty gun) in your cellar or out in the yard and your scores will improve.

The most common cause for all of us to drop birds, is failure to keep swinging, or following through after pulling the trigger. I've heard more shooters say, "Gee, I was right on when I pulled the trigger," or "My lead was perfect. Everything looked right when I fired. I don't understand it."

As a bystander, I could see the wad and charge falling behind the target. But even more, I could see the shooter pull the trigger and stop his swing. Thus, the miss.

From research, I have learned that it takes 65/100th of a second for a shooter to think, pull, and have the gun discharge. That time the target is traveling four feet. If you stop your swing, that's how far your charge will fall behind — four feet!

Keep this simple program in mind. 1. Pick up the target with your eyes, and start gun and body moving with it. 2. Get the correct lead. 3. Pull the trigger when you have the correct lead or sight picture. 4. Keep the gun and body moving along the flight path until you see the target break. No. 4 takes only a fraction of a second, but it's the most important part of the whole procedure.

Keep your gun moving after you pull the trigger! I hope these tips will be of some help! More another time.

This is the best way I've found to correct this. Stop on the station; place both feet weight to ten inches apart, pointed — this is the most important part of this tip — toward the to code. I will say that an inquiry will be made." Neinas told the Boston Globe.

Fairbanks told Neinas of the meeting, during which he served refreshments to four local coaches and seven college prospects. One of the seven, Norwood High School quarterback Steve Salvadoro, signed a letter of intent with Colorado.

The NCAA said athletes who are involved in recruiting illegalities might be barred from competing in championship events. Beyond that, the conference rules would apply.

In addition, the NCAA is interested in Colorado's efforts to fire Fairbanks, particularly the financial inducements. Dave Berst, director of the NCAA's Enforcement Division, said rules were explicit on a coach's outside income.

Fairbanks has testified he was offered a $45,000 salary by CU booster and millionaire oilman Jack Vickers.

Neinas said he would look into allegations that Fairbanks entertained prospective CU recruits at his Foboro, Mass., home Jan. 10. The NCAA prohibits the entertaining of recruits off-campus.

"He (Fairbanks) called me and gave me his version of what happened. I can't say much beyond that because we have confidential

TV Spotlight

Evening Herald
Feb. 24, 1979

Michael Nouri plays Count Dracula, a vampire posing as a San Francisco college professor in "The Curse of Dracula," one of the three serialized elements on NBC's new action-adventure series, "Cliffhangers," Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Golf's wonder woman, Nancy Lopez, tees off with Bill Rogers in CBS's "Challenge of the Sexes," Sunday, Feb. 25.

Sex Challenges

This Sunday, Feb. 25, sports lovers will be treated to a double dose of male-female competition. CBS Sports will broadcast "Challenge of the Sexes" in its afternoon spot and "Celebrity Challenge of the Sexes" during prime-time.

Two of professional golf's top competitors, Nancy Lopez, winner of nine LPGA 1978 tournaments, and Bill Rogers, who won the Bob Hope Desert Classic last year, head the list of male vs. female competitors.

In this competition, there is no handicap for Lopez, other than that she will hit from the shorter women's tees, as usual, and Rogers will hit from the championship tees. The two play three holes, with the winner being determined by the best overall score.

In case of a tie, a hole is replayed until a winner is determined. Patty Costello vs. Carmen Salvino in a bowling roll-down. Costello is the all-time leading money winner on the Women's Professional Bowlers Association tour. Patty Costello will have the option of bowling first or second.

Canadian Sylvia Burke, 24, who won the world sprint speed skating championship in 1977, is pitted against 20-year-old Gaetan Boucher, also from Canada. The two will skate the best two out of three on a 500-meter course, with Sylvia racing only 475 meters on the inside track, while Gaetan gets a distance of 520 meters on the outside course.

Once the professional athletes clear the track, an onslaught of 26 television and movie stars will move in for two hours of high-spirited, head-to-head sports competition.

Can Suzanne Somers take Sammy Davis Jr. in a game of 8-ball? Can Valerie Bertinelli cut corners in a dune buggy race against "The Incredible Hulk," Lou Ferrigno?

These will be two of the frolicking matchups when stars of the entertainment world headline "Celebrity Challenge of the Sexes." Comedian Buddy Hackett, joined by Tom Brookshier, covers the variety package of competitive events, along with celebrity coaches Carol Wayne and Ted Knight.

Susan Richardson ("Eight Is Enough") and Erik Estrada ("Chips") will vie for the roller skating prize. Joyce DeWitt ("Three's Company") and Dirk Benedict ("Battlestar Galactica") compete in a cross-country race.

Quinn Cummings ("Family") and Gary Coleman ("Diff'rent Strokes") bicycle for a prize. CBS Sports' Jayne Kennedy dribbles against Scott Baio ("Happy Days") for the basketball championship.

A swimming relay pits the Boone Sisters (Debbie, Lauri, Lindy) against the Hudson Brothers (Bill, Mark and Brett).

In some events, a handicap was assigned to help the women competitors.

For instance, in 8-ball, Ms. Somers had the option of "breaking" first, and in the dune buggy race, Ms. Bertinelli, in the best of two-out-of-three races, started the first heat on the inside of the course.

and movie stars will move in for two hours of high-spirited, head-to-head sports competition.

Short but Super

Public television viewers are treated to some of the most acclaimed short films ever produced on Monday nights in the new PBS series "Academy Leaders." The 10-part series will present 34 short subjects, which have been nominated or won in the Oscar competition.

Norman Corwin introduces and comments on each work.

The collection presented in the hour-long programs required eight years of research to assemble. The result is an imaginative tour de force of contrasting filmmaking themes and styles around the world.

On Monday, Feb. 26, "Academy Leaders" will feature "First Edition," (1977) a remarkable documentary on a day in the life of a Baltimore newspaper, Oscar-winning "The Sand Castle" (1977) an aniated piece depicting changing sand sculptures, follows. The hour ends with Robert Youngson's black and white film, "This Mechanical Age," (1954) about man's early, often hilarious, attempts to fly.

According to series Producer Mark Waxman, the eight-year research effort, which resulted in "Academy Leaders," "uncovered an abundant supply of superb short-subject films.

TV Dial-ogue

STILL LOOSE — What has Adam Arkin been doing since his series, "Busting Loose," was canceled? Will we be seeing him in anything else soon? Where may I write to him? — Mary B. Johnson, Bloomington, Ind.

Arkin hasn't busted too free from TV. He's done several guest shots this fall ("Sweepstakes" the latest), and you can expect to see a lot more of the very talented younger Arkin. Arkin isn't contracted with any one studio so you're best bet is to write to him in care of the Screen Actor's Guild, 7750 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90046. If you haven't already noticed, another "Busting Loose" alumnus, Greg Antonacci, is a regular on ABC's "Makin' It." MISSING CELLIST — What happened to Charlotte, the lovely cellist on "The Lawrence Welk Show"? Also, is it true that Cissy King left the show because she and Bobby were feuding? — Mrs. D. Hotchiss, Bakersfield, Calif.

Both performers left after some difficulties with the Welk organization. Charlotte Calloway refused to tour with the Welk show after last year's taping, preferring to stay home since she had just been married. Welk said tour or leave the show. Obviously, she didn't tour. As for Cissy King, the official word is she left to make a go of it on her own. But actually, she and Bobby were bickering over their choreography. Welk backed Bobby, who's been with the show longer, so Cissy left.
