Kucinich Faces Money Hurdles

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mayor Dennis Kucinich was swept to the biggest victory of his young political career, but he still faces formidable financial hurdles in his attempt to get Cleveland out of the treadmill of deficit spending. The city's voters overwhelmingly supported the mayor Tuesday in an election that was widely expected to be a referendum on Cleveland's financial crisis. By a 2-1 margin they voted to increase the local income tax rate from 1 to 1.5 percent and to keep their troubled Municipal Light Plant.

The unofficial tally showed the income tax referendum won by a 74,286 to 34,640 vote margin. The issue calling for the sale of the city-owned light company was defeated, 28,782 to 69,849.

The issues were held on the ballot in an effort to lift Cleveland out of default on $15.5 million in short-term bank notes. But the election outcome left in doubt the question of exactly how the city will handle its fiscal problems.

A breakdown of the vote showed Kucinich's traditional supporters in the city's white, ethnic West Side voted heavily in favor of his position. The city's predominantly black East Side wards also favored saving the light system and the income tax hike, but by smaller margins.

Most observers had predicted the income tax hike would pass, but the final margin in favor of keeping the city light plant was a surprise.

Despite the importance of the issues, only about 110,000 of the 289,000 eligible voters went to the polls. Cleveland has been in default since Dec. 15, when six local banks holding the $15.5 million debt refused to refinance it. But the banks delayed demands for payment until after the election.

The tax hike will raise $38 million annually in new revenue. The light plant issue was put on the ballot by the mayor's opponents, who said the city would get from the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. for the plant would help pay the debt.

But Kucinich said the plant sale would give Cleveland Electric a monopoly in the city and he waged a strong populist campaign against the utility and the banks, arguing that if voters approved the sale they would prove they were over to corporate interests.

With the defeat of the light plant sale, it was uncertain what position the banks and the business community would take. A spokesman for the Cleveland Trust Co., holder of $5 million in defaulted notes, said the bank would not comment until later today.

Support may grow, however, for a plan offered by Gov. James Rhodes to set up a state controlling board that would oversee the financial operation of Ohio's largest utility.

Kucinich again attacked that idea Tuesday night. "Now there is no legitimate reason for a state controlling board that would nullify home rule," he said. "I want Governor Rhodes to hear this loud and clear. We will not accept the state controlling board under any circumstances. If Rhodes wants to be the mayor of Cleveland, let him come here and put his name on the ballot."

Several anti-Kucinich business leaders said Tuesday night they would support the state takeover or a similar plan for operating the city.

Coveny GOP Sets School Budget Talk

COVENTRY — The Republican Town Committee will host a public meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in the Board Room at the Town Hall on the educational budget for 1979-80 recently proposed by School Superintendent Arnold Elman.

The budget calls for $5,281,784 expenditures, representing an increase of 8.5 percent over this year's expenses. The board reviewed the proposal in special session last week but took no action on it.

Republican spokeswoman Nancy Moore said that her party's representatives on the board would be present at tonight's meeting to discuss the budget and to answer questions. The GOP has three out of seven seats on the board, held by Gary Dopplaf, Priscilla Doyle, and Richard Ashley.

Earlier this month the town committee voted in a 6-5 decision to force the annual town meeting on the budget slated for this spring to a referendum. The board had not yet received Elman's proposal, and the general government budget has not been released to date by Town Manager Frank Connolly.

Last year the referendum tactic by the Republicans resulted in the defeat of two council proposals at the polls. The council finally adopted a budget calling for a 6.5 mill rate instead of the 72 mills originally sought.

Chicago Politics Upset By Victory of Byrne

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jane Byrne, a small Irish woman who set out dreaming the impossible dream, beat Mayor Michael A. Bilandic and "the last of the big city machines" in a Democratic mayoral primary usually considered tantamount to election.

Tuesday night's stunning upset turned Chicago politics — and the organization the late Richard J. Daley built — upside down.

With 96 percent of the vote counted, Mrs. Byrne skinned through by an overwhelming 388,742 votes (50.9 percent) to Bilandic's 383,715 (49.03 percent).

Republicans indicated they now had a chance in the regular election April 3. Mrs. Byrne, 44, issued a victory statement: "I hope I will be a very good mayor."

If she makes it in April, Mrs. Byrne will be the first elected woman mayor of one of the nation's great cities. She already is a political phenomenon, largely because of two big snowstorms.

Mrs. Byrne was Daley's commissioner of consumer sales when he died Dec. 20, 1976. Bilandic became acting and then elected mayor. After that one of the first things he did was to fire Jane Byrne. The reason she was spreading stories he had "greased" a taxi-late increase.

Mrs. Byrne lamed for a while, then announced she would run for mayor herself. Few in the political know knew she had snowed in. Then, on New Year's Eve, the snow began to fall.

Ten inches fell during the holiday weekend. A numbing spell of sub-zero days followed. During the Jan. 13 weekend, winter delivered a 20.3-inch blizzard. The day after the blizzard, the temperature hit 17 below.

The frozen snow stayed on the streets, on the sidewalks and in the alleys. Old and sick Chicagoans were virtually snowbound. These harsh conditions made it outside risked heart attacks in the drifts.

Bilandic, 56, assured them all would be well. But the snow stayed there and so did the cold. Enough Chicagoans got mad enough to remember Jane Byrne and vote for her Tuesday. Both sides rated the snow as the turning point in the campaign.

Thick Smoke Problem At Camp Center Blaze

VERNON — Firefighters had more of a problem battling thick smoke than they did with the flames during a fire that destroyed a storage area Tuesday afternoon in the rear of the Blonstein Camping Center on Route 63.

All of the Vernon and Rockville departments responded to the fire about 3 p.m. and Tolland and Manchester's Eighth District were on standby at Rockville and Vernon stations.

Chief William Johnson of the Vernon Department, who is also the town's fire marshal, said he will be at the site today to try and determine the cause of the fire.

A man working nearby noticed the smoke coming out of a heater vent in the storage area. The contents of that area, mostly parts and supplies, were destroyed. Samuel Blonstein, owner of the building, has estimated the amount of damage to be about $50,000.

Revaluation in Bolton Begins on West Side

BOLTON — The inspection of all property in town for the purpose of revaluation is under way on the town's west side. The revaluation workers will be starting on the south side of town this week.

The south side includes, but is not limited to, Hebron Road, Loomis Road, School Road, Brandy Street and Bolton Center Road areas.

Robert Parsons, William Pagano and Edward Raymond, employees of United Appraisal, are conducting the on-site inspection.

The inspection of all commercial property in town is also under way. It is being done by Forrest Dyer and John Greene.

Calvin Hutchinson, assessor, said the revaluation workers will have to make many call-backs because a lot of people are not home when they call. People who are not home during the day will be contacted by the revaluators on a Saturday. Hutchinson said the revaluation workers are taking measurements and inspecting the physical features of the property at this time. He said there are no values being assigned at this time, that will be done at a later date.

Hutchinson said the inspection only involves the real estate, it does not involve personal property. That will also be done at a later date.

All revaluators have identification cards that state they are representatives of United Appraisal assigned to do the revaluation of town property. The cards bear the town seal and were signed by the first selectman.

The inspections will continue daily, as weather permits. Hutchinson said property owners will be notified of new assessments by the end of the year.

Downtown Plan Speeded But Little Coming Soon

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The state is moving as fast as it can to implement Main Street improvements, the Downtown Coordinating Committee was told Tuesday. But, that pace still will not result in much change for at least a year.

Two representatives from the state Department of Transportation — Earl Munroe and Milton Shaw — met with representatives of the committee to discuss two road improvement projects — reconstruction of Main Street from Ford to Charter

Oak streets and renovation of the Main and Center streets intersection. One part of the intersection work can be started this spring, the DOT officials said. This involves improvements to traffic signalization and some realignment.

The major part of the work, as well as the Main Street reconstruction, will not start until at least a year from now, Munroe and Shaw said.

The projects are being funded primarily with federal money, and federal requirements for such projects are sometimes time-consuming.

"It gets as frustrating to us as it does to those on the outside," Munroe, who is chief of municipal systems for DOT, said. "The federal laws are to insure things are done correctly," Munroe said.

There also are other steps that could cause delay that might happen even next spring or summer on optimistic target dates.

Property such as the Odd Fellows building and the building north of Ford Street has to be acquired. This sometimes can be a lengthy process.

Relocating the tenants in those properties can also create problems and delays.

For instance, the building north of Ford Street includes The Body Shop and the Out Book Store. It could be difficult to relocate such businesses. Shaw, who will be manager for both projects, said.

Also, the state has filed a notification to make sure there is no historical significance to the Odd Fellows building. If such a significance is found, it could cause more delay.

A public hearing on the design of the major intersection work and the Main Street reconstruction could be held by late summer, Munroe said.

The hearing would be a review of design of the projects and is a major step in the process, he said. After that, if there are no objections to proceeding, the state can begin work on property acquisition.

Agreements for engineering design work still are being completed for the projects.

Coordinator Is Named For School Volunteers

MANCHESTER — A new coordinator of volunteers for the Manchester public schools was introduced to the Boards of Education Monday night.

She is Susan Piese of Manchester who was selected from more than 40 applicants. She is a graduate of Uppsala College in New Jersey and will obtain her masters degree in June in theater management.

Her husband is Charles Piese, an associate professor of speech and drama at Manchester Community College.

Mrs. Piese told the Board of Education that she is "committed to volunteer work, especially when we see inflation eating away at tax dollars."

Mrs. Piese said her first duties, which started today, will include working with the principals to assess the needs for volunteers and strengthening the volunteer programs. She said she plans to tap community resources, also.

Gerald FitzGibbon, assistant superintendent for curriculum, said he expects some concrete results from the new position, but that recruitment activities may have to wait until next September.

The Board of Education has held the new position in abeyance for a year and a half because of other budgetary constraints. The board committed itself to the position in the 1977-78 budget year, but was unable to fund it at that time.

Radiation Risks Considered Small

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A major government task force studying how low-level radiation affects humans said Tuesday that risks from exposure appear small in most cases and compensation for alleged cancer victims probably will be difficult to get.

Included in the massive draft report published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was a recommendation that federal and state governments publish clear guidelines for compensation of bonafide victims.

The task force suggested the government consider establishing a National Registry of Radiation Workers to provide work-related records.

The panel said the basic message to the public should be: "The degree of risk associated with exposure to low level ionizing radiation is very low ... but there is some controversy over the precise level of this risk." Therefore, any unnecessary radiation exposure should be avoided.

"The federal government should develop a series of comprehensive medical guidelines for determining the likelihood of a causal relationship between an individual's illness and his or her exposure to ionizing radiation," the Interagency Task Force on Ionizing Radiation reported.

The report said that while legal action against the federal government over exposure to radiation may be valid, proving that illness is linked to radiation exposure will be difficult.

"As a practical matter, it is often virtually impossible to determine whether a particular injury has been caused by exposure to radiation or by other factors," the report said.

"Each claimant may feel unjustly treated if denied benefits, yet it is statistically more probable that his or her own cancer was caused by carcinogens other than radiation."

After examining data about the victims of the atomic bomb blasts in Nagasaki and Hiroshima, Japan, uranium miners and nuclear workers, the task force suggested that data be monitored by one record-keeping registry. It would combine employment, medical, hospital and death records maintained by various government and private agencies.

Today's report was spawned by allegations from residents near the 1960s nuclear testing in Nevada and shipyard workers in Portsmouth, N.H., that their higher-than-normal rate of cancer was linked to radiation. The report was a draft of the final recommendations.

Dem Legislators Split Over Drinking Age Hike

HARTFORD (UPI) — Senate Democratic leaders have split with their House counterparts over the issue of raising Connecticut's 18-year-old drinking age, labeling it a matter of problem drinking versus teen-ager rights.

In the early afternoon Tuesday, Senate President Pro Tem Joseph Paulino, D-Hartford, and Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, held a news conference to voice their strong opposition to proposals that would raise the state's drinking age to 19, 20 or 21.

Two hours later, House Majority Leader John Groppo, D-Windham, House Deputy Majority Leader Timothy Moynihan, D-East Hartford, and Rep. Andrew Grande, D-Bristol, retaliated with a news conference of their own, lauding the proposed changes in the drinking law.

All three House Democrats said they are confident the lower chamber will pass a bill to raise the drinking age to 19.

Drinking Age Arguments Were Old But Fervor Unabated

HARTFORD (UPI) — The arguments weren't new but the fervor was unabated.

An estimated 500 persons, many of them high school and college students, attended the public hearings in the Hall of the House of Representatives on whether the state's drinking age of 18 should be raised.

The arguments Tuesday night before the Legislature's General Committee ranged from the evils of alcoholism to the constitutional rights of teenagers to drink.

The committee is considering a number of bills to raise the drinking age to 19, 20, or 21. Other bills would ban package store sales to persons 19 and 21.

Speakers both for and against the proposals generally agreed that dealing with the drinking age factor alone would not cure the alcohol problem among the state's teenagers.

"They said effective community and school education programs of alcohol and its effects were necessary."

Bar owners and package store operators argued both for and against the drinking age proposals.

But most of those in support of raising the drinking age saw it as a step in the right direction to keeping the 18-year-old high school senior from influencing his junior schoolmates to drink.

The strongest support came from school administrators.

Laurence Shapiro, president of the Connecticut Council of School Administrators' Association, said teenage drinking "has become a calamity of huge and epidemic proportions."

University of Hartford senior Marc Caplan balances on crutches as he testified, Tuesday, before the General Assembly's General Law Committee against proposed legislation that will raise the minimum legal drinking age in Connecticut from the present 18. (UPI photo)

He said "it is any easy matter for less responsible" 18-year-old seniors to get alcohol for minors. He said administrators and educators are daily witnesses "to the destructive results of drinking by teenagers" including "the students who come to school having beer for breakfast."

David Woodbury, the operator of a restaurant in Manchester opposed to raising the drinking age, told the committee members they should be concerned with strengthening and enforcing current laws.

He asked why hasn't the state come up with photo identification cards as the only proof of age that package stores can accept.

Woodbury suggested the proposals to raise the drinking age may have been politically motivated, a comment that drew exception from Rep. Andrew Grande, the General Law Committee chairman and a proponent of raising the drinking age to 19.

Cary Blanchette, the president of the student senate at Central Connecticut State College, also called for mandatory photo cards as well as penalties for those who fraudulently purchase liquor.

He said, "Minors who show a fake I.D. card merely gets his hand slapped. He walks and goes down the street until he gets it."

Mary Rubinfeld, 22, a University of Hartford English major, said lawmakers and adult society in general were more to blame for the young but "legislating morality" would not help.

He told the legislators they want to remove the right of an 18-year-old to drink because they are not mature.

"Then how can you ask me to vote for you as a responsible, mature citizen?"

School To Remain Open While Study Continues

VERNON — Sykes School will remain open, at least for the next school year, while a Citizen's Committee studies alternate uses of the building if it should cease to be used to house Grade 6 students as it does now.

The proposal to close the building was made several weeks ago by Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, due to the decline in school population and because he felt the Grade 6 students would have a better educational program at the Middle School. He said he is in favor of the school structure that would have Grades K-5 together and then Grades 6-8 in a Middle School setup with Grades 9-12 at the high school.

Grade 6 was originally housed at Sykes because the Middle School was overcrowded. After Dr. Sidman made his recommendation, saying it was feasible to move the students to the Middle School in the coming school year, many townspeople objected.

Not the least of the objections was the fact that the moving of the students would leave another vacant building in the center of Rockville white town officials are trying to revitalize that area.

Monday night Dr. Sidman told the Board of Education that his earlier assessments concerning population trends, space needs and educational goals supported his first proposal. But he did change his thinking concerning when the move should be made, noting that it shouldn't be until the start of the 1980-81 school year.

This was in answer to pleas that an alternate use for the building be firm before the move is made.

The Board of Education authorized the setting up of the citizen's committee to study alternate uses for the building. Some residents said they feel it could be used for education (maybe leave Grade 6 there) and also for

Grasso Asks Government For Viable Energy Steps

By LEE RODERICK
Herald Staff Writer
WASHINGTON — Connecticut Gov. Ella T. Grasso yesterday told his fellow governors, "I spend half my time worrying that there isn't going to be enough heavy heating oil and oil for businesses in my state, and spend the other half worrying about how to pay the bill for the oil we have."
Grasso, speaking during an afternoon session of the National Governors' Conference, said heating oil in Connecticut had risen 18 percent during the past 12 months from 51 cents a gallon to 60 cents. "By the time I get home, it will probably have gone up again."
"As it goes up," she added, "more and more families can't pay the bill. New England is especially hard hit."
Grasso said 18,000 families in Connecticut have been receiving emergency state and federal aid to help them purchase heating fuel, and the state overall has spent $500 million on oil since 1976.
Connecticut is approaching the time, said Grasso, when "the poor, the elderly, the disabled and the working poor are going to have to choose between food on their tables or heat in their homes."
The governor stressed the need for more accurate information on how much oil is available.
In a separate meeting with the other five New England governors, Grasso said, "Very close monitoring of the present world oil situation and refinery production is needed to avert a major crisis."
She charged that the government's efforts to determine how much oil is available "are no better now than when I was in Congress four years ago."
Washington's failure to come up with a comprehensive energy plan for the nation more than five years after the start of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo was a frequent theme during the conference.
As if to underscore the concern expressed by Grasso and others, President Carter sent Congressional energy committees a standby rationing plan while the governors were in town.
The standby plan could limit automobile owners to as little as two gallons of gasoline a day if supplies were in "severe shortage" — roughly defined as a 20 percent shortfall in U.S. imports as compared to the five percent now being experienced as a result of the Iranian situation.
The plan also proposes such conservation measures as banning Sunday sales.
But each approach has a trade-off, said Grasso, who noted that banning Sunday sales of gasoline would negatively affect tourism and important income-producer in New England.
The New England governors passed a resolution pledging to focus their "personal attention increasing the public's awareness of the need for voluntary conservation."
Among other things the resolution also said they will work with the Carter administration and Congress to ensure "adequate programs are developed to assist those on low and fixed incomes with their energy costs."
Grasso told the Herald's Washington Bureau, the New England governors are going to meet soon "to decide on a course of action we can take together" to promote energy conservation and plan how to respond to possible emergency energy situations.

Bridgeport Pushes For Center Funds

HARTFORD (UPI) — Bridgeport Mayor John Mandanici has given state lawmakers a clear message that it's his city's turn for financial assistance from the public trough.
The mayor bluntly told a legislative committee Tuesday the state has received substantial tax revenues from Bridgeport. In years past and it's time to distribute some of the wealth given to Hartford and New Haven.
"We're not looking for a giveaway, but why should we be treated any different than New Haven and Hartford," Mandanici told the Planning and Development Committee.
The outspoken mayor told the lawmakers Bridgeport was "fronting the state government" and if the Bridgeport area decided to hold its business and personal taxes to the state in escrow "you wouldn't be able to run the state."
Mandanici spoke in behalf of a bill that would give the city $5 million towards a proposed civic center. "We don't come here with hat in hand or on our knees. We don't have to beg for money," he said.
The legislature last year provided Hartford with a $5 million appropriation after the roof of the city coliseum collapsed.
Mandanici said Bridgeport has long been denied the state aid to other cities "far surpasses what

Water Isn't Link To Legion Death

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — No connection can be made between the 1977 deaths of 18 Vermonters and the discovery of Legionnaires' disease bacteria in cooling towers of two buildings here, says the state health department.
Epidemiologist Richard Vogt said Tuesday the bacteria have been found in water samples from the air conditioning systems at the Medical Center Hospital's DeGosierian Unit and the University of Vermont's Given Building.
The major Vermont outbreak of the disease was in the fall of 1977. The water samples were not taken until October 1978, making it impossible to link the air conditioners with the outbreak, he said.
"No relationship can be made because of the time differences," he said.
Seventeen Vermonters died of the pneumonia-like illness in 1977. Another 14 cases were reported last year, one of them fatal.
Vogt said it is impossible to gauge the significance of finding the bacteria, since it has also been found in areas where Legionnaires' disease has not occurred.
Some of the Vermonters who suffered from the disease were patients at the Medical Center, but many were from other parts of the state.
The tests for the bacteria were run by the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.
The center also tested three samples from two industrial sites in the area. No sign of Legionnaires bacteria was found, Vogt said.
Other samples from two additional locations in Chittenden County are currently being analyzed by CDC.
Vogt said neither air conditioning unit has been operating since the samples were taken in October, and steps will be taken to eliminate any potential hazard before they are used again.

Solons, Lobbyists Argue Over Nuke Plants, Waste

HARTFORD (UPI) — The annual legislative battle over the safety of nuclear energy brought out lobbyists and lawmakers who wanted to dump the waste disposal problem in the federal government's lap and protesters who want to dump nuclear power altogether.
The Legislature's Environment Committee spent much of the day Tuesday hearing testimony on a bill that would prevent construction of new nuclear plants in Connecticut until the federal government demonstrates how and where it will bury nuclear waste.
Hostility surfaced at times as proponents and opponents of nuclear power exchanged their traditional, and often emotional, charges.
"I feel no government has the right to jeopardize my health," said Karen Eberhardt of the Connecticut Clamshell Alliance. "I do not want energy at any cost. That is like making a pact with the devil."
Retired United Technologies Corp. engineer Herbert Aas countered by saying, "No Nukes" has been sniping away for years. No Nukes have attempted to terrorize the public."
House Chairman John Anderson, D-Newtown, said of the nuclear moratorium bill, "The time has come to force the federal government to deal with the atomic waste problem."
Robert Olson of the Atomic Industrial Forum said the burial of nuclear waste is a federal problem.
"I think if it was an industry problem it would have been solved a long time ago," he said.
But Olson and several other industry spokesmen and lobbyists said the federal government was working on the problem and should have a site picked for spent nuclear fuel by 1981.
"It is not helpful for this state, or any state, to try to intimidate or pressure the federal government," he said. "I don't think it helps at all to hold someone's feet to the fire."
But Environmental Protection Commissioner Stanley Pae said the bill has merit.
"It will encourage them to do what we are trying to get them to do — deal with the burial of nuclear waste," he said. "This has been going on for 30 years."
Pae was opposed, however, to another bill that would prevent the burial of nuclear waste in Connecticut. "If other states find out about our ban, they may very well invoke a reciprocal ban on our waste," Pae said.
John Cagnetta, a nuclear engineer for Northeast Utilities, said it was unfair to penalize the state's nuclear industry because the federal government has been dragging its feet.
He said Northeast plans to build a fifth nuclear power plant in the early 1980's and must begin planning now.
He said if the bill becomes law, Northeast will have to abandon its plan, a move that will eventually cost consumers.

The rebellion of sorts over the nationally-mandated 55 mph speed limit which was brewing in several western states is running out of steam.
Proponents of measures aimed at raising the speed limits especially for the vast stretches of sparsely traveled highways were encouraged by initial efforts in the Wyoming Legislature to amend the 55 limit.
Along with the clamor for a higher limit came the usual cries of states' rights and blackmail by the federal government.
But faced with the loss of millions of dollars in federal highway funds if the speed limits are raised, some of the lawmakers in many states are beginning to have second thoughts.
Even in Wyoming, further action on the Senate's vote to increase the speed limit to 65 mph has been delayed in favor of a measure reducing the penalties for drivers convicted of speeding.
Aside from the financial considerations in the present controversy is the fact that the 55 mph limit saves gas as well as human lives.
The desire to drive a bit faster on open and often lonely roads may be strong, but the benefits reaped from the 55 mph should by far outweigh the irritation of being forced to drive more slowly.

Thought

Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, a time of preparation and testing that recalls Jesus' own testing in the wilderness for forty days. New beginnings, freshness, opportunities to begin again, these are the promise of Lent. God is not bound by seasons or by calendars. He provides a new beginning day by day, moment by moment. This opportunity fascinates us, and sometimes immobilizes us. We all need new beginnings, and desire them. So let this day, this season, be the occasion for claiming them.
Almighty and forgiving God, create in me a clean heart this day. Renew my faith, and strengthen my love that my days may begin, continue and end in fellowship with you. Amen.

Greg Pearson Countdown Begins to Referendum

Preparation work now is starting for April 17, the date of the first special election in town in 25 months. Voters will go to the polls that day to decide two questions — Whether to approve a two-year ban on town participation in the Community Development program and whether to grant permission for the town to borrow money for water system improvements.
On March 15, 1977, 7,968 Manchester residents went to the polls and overwhelmingly approved a $15.4 million appropriation to pay for purchase and development of the 303-acre Buckland Industrial Park. The question was approved by a 10-to-1 margin.
As might be guessed by the size of the outcome, there was little doubt about whether that question would pass. There was strong community support for the park project, which now is the site of the construction of the J.C. Penney Co. catalog distribution center.
There are, at least right now, doubts about how both the April 17 questions will do.
The Community Development question is an emotional issue that

FBI Gripes Aired by Employees

WASHINGTON — In the not-so-good old days, when the Federal Bureau of Investigation was the personal fiefdom of the late J. Edgar Hoover, an agent could be exiled or summarily fired for not coming his own way. In the present day, however, the situation has changed dramatically. It is now a matter of spin in his grave.
It's at least safe to say the old curriculum vitae of a FBI employee are throwing off the chains of the plantation days. They are claiming rights which have long been taken for granted by other federal workers but which Hoover never would have contemplated.
The latest evidence of this changed atmosphere is a class-action lawsuit against the FBI by current and former clerical employees recruited in the early 1970s. They charge that they were led to believe they would eventually work their way up to appointments as special agents. But the agency reneged on its promise, retroactively rescinding the longstanding preference given to clerical employees for promotion to a special agents class, the lawsuit claims.
By April 1977, Ken had finally met the basic qualifications. He figured he was about 25th on the waiting list. But that month the bureau suddenly reversed its 50-50 policy and lumped the clerks in with all other applicants. Since the outsiders generally had professional experience, this put the clerks at a decided disadvantage.
In other words, Ken had spent eight years traveling a route that he had every reason to believe would lead to a professional career, only to find it was nothing but a dead end.
The bureau's defense is that no formal clerk-to-agent promotion program ever existed, though internal FBI documents show that top officials recognize it would not have been unreasonable to assume that capacity automatically qualifies them for the (special agent) position, a top-secret report of March 1977, concedes.
Instead of living up to its implied promise to Ken and an estimated 400 other clerks in his position, the FBI's solution, according to the report, is to tell future clerical applicants that "no assurance can be given that an appointment (as special agent) will be forthcoming."
VENGEFUL BUREAUCRATS:
Few cases better illustrate the unforgiving vindictiveness of the bureaucracy than that of Ernest Fitzgerald, the Air Force efficiency expert who exposed cost overruns totaling billions of dollars.
Not even President Carter, who made the Fitzgerald affair a campaign issue, has made more than a token effort to restore the whistleblower to a position worthy of his talents.
Fitzgerald was fired after he disclosed in congressional testimony that the cost of the Lockheed C-5A cargo plane had exceeded the contracted price by $2 billion. The Civil Service Commission reinstated him, but the Pentagon refused to let him return to his original position. Instead, he was given a meaningless job as a paper shuffler.
Last summer, Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked Carter to fire Fitzgerald a job in a different agency. The president promised Proxmire he would call back with a reply. It has yet to come.
The two senators and seven other colleagues finally gave up on the president and wrote to Vice President Walter Mondale last January. "We hope you will intervene to see that justice and fair play prevail," the lawmakers wrote.
To date, the vice president has not responded.
CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS:
Congressional leaders have been trying in vain to get a hint of President Carter's intentions on Mexican oil and gas. The Administration's policy has been spelled out in a memorandum by national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, but he refuses to send a copy to Capitol Hill. Excerpts have, however, appeared in Pravda, the official Soviet newspaper.

Muskie Outlines Budget Complexities

WASHINGTON — In the popular imagination, the budget resembles an hourglass, with assets and liabilities neatly slacked at opposite ends. If an imbalance develops, what could be simpler than tilting the glass until the sands even out?
"But the budget is better compared to a watch. When it runs too fast or slow, a violent jolt may relieve frustration. But it will not repair a delicate mechanism. One has to determine which moving parts to lubricate, which gears to tighten, which counterweights to adjust."
States themselves, of course, would have to make up the difference by their own taxing power — a fact not lost on political observers of Cranston's California, whose governor, Jerry Brown, is in the forefront of those urging a constitutional convention.
"The states have been piggy-backing on the federal deficit long enough," said Cranston. "The U.S. Treasury has been borrowing money and deepening the federal deficit year after year while money piles up

Library Board Adopts Budget With 6% Hike

MANCHESTER — It took two tries, but the town's Library Board Tuesday night approved a proposed budget for 1979.

The budget, prepared by head librarian John Jackson, asks for $479,638 for town library expenses. That figure is a 6.5 percent increase compared to the present year's library budget.

Two weeks ago, Jackson presented a $319,746 budget, which the Library Board rejected. After discussing the proposal at its Feb. 13 meeting, the board asked Jackson to resubmit his budget at a lower figure.

The Town Board of Directors has set a 6 percent limit for the total increase to be requested in Town Manager Robert Weiss' proposed budget.

Weiss, in turn, asked department heads to aim at a 6 percent increase when preparing their budgets.

Thus, Jackson Tuesday night presented his revised budget, which is near the 6 percent increase level.

He said most of the cuts from his previous request were made in the book budget and other materials and resources he had sought for town libraries.

Manchester Police Report

MANCHESTER — Four arrests were made Tuesday in connection with domestic disputes.

Frederick D. Walz, 24, of 56K Channing Drive was charged with third-degree assault on his home Tuesday morning. Police said Walz assaulted his wife by grabbing her around the neck several times and causing her to lose her breath. Court date is March 12.

Robert J. Gleason, 35, of 124H Rachel Road was charged with disorderly conduct in connection with a dispute with a woman at his home. Police said he became loud and would not calm down after police arrived. He was then arrested, processed and released on a promise to appear in court March 19.

Raymond E. Myette, 52, of 128-A-1 Park St. was charged with disorderly conduct in connection with a dispute with a woman at his residence Tuesday night. Police said he became violent and ripped the woman's dress and knocked her down. He was held in lieu of $500 bond for presentation in court today.

Health Systems Agency Probes Elderly Concerns

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Medicare, home nursing care for the elderly and the protection of the elderly from physical abuse, neglect and abandonment were discussed Tuesday night at a meeting of Subarea F of the Health Systems Agency.

The elderly have little problem with Medicare handling their hospital bills as long as they meet the criteria for the various levels of care needed. But in Connecticut the physicians have started not to accept Medicare, but bill the patients, who then have to collect from Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. the center's carrier of Medicare in the state.

That is what William Doyle of Aetna Life and Casualty, said. Aetna, Travelers and Blue Cross handle the hospital part of Medicare.

Neglect leads the way, with some of the conditions they have found "undescribable" where people have not eaten for weeks and there are not even toilet facilities. "Neglect is not limited to the poor," she said.

Her agency trains volunteer patient advocates to assist patients in convalescent homes. With rising prices, some nursing homes have been serving poor quality food and not enough of it because Medicaid funds have gone down in the past two years. The only way that the homes can manage is by keeping only a minimum staff and whatever they can save on food, she said.

"Of the more than 1,200 complaints we have had for patients in nursing homes, at least one third was for quality of care. Most have been resolved, but the very serious problems, haven't," she said.

Jim Guilo of the Community Council of the Capitol Region, also was a member of the panel who discussed "Services for 60 Plus" Tuesday night.

Subarea F of the Health Systems Agency includes East Hartford, Glastonbury, Manchester, South Windsor, Bolton, Andover, Hebron and Marlborough.

Backs Centers
NORWICH (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman has called for increased funding for the state's 14 day care centers for the elderly.

Lieberman, in Norwich Tuesday to visit the Southwestern Connecticut Geriatric Day Center, said the centers prevent senior citizens from being placed prematurely in institutions.

The Norwich facility, established in December on a $70,000 state grant, is faced with a June 30 closing if additional money isn't provided.

Lieberman has introduced a bill calling for $156,000 to continue the operation of the centers into next fall.

Crash Study Cost $250
GLASTONBURY — It has cost the town $250 for the firm of Cromwell Engineering to review the fire truck destroyed in the Feb. 1 crash which killed one man dead.

The Town Council Tuesday night introduced a resolution appropriating the money from the insurance Reserve Fund to pay for the review. The resolution goes to public hearing at the next Council meeting.

A day-long investigation by the Bloomfield mechanical of any mechanical malfunction of any major significance was responsible for the accident because a Co. 4 fire pumper and a 1972 Dodge pickup truck which resulted in the death of 23-year-old Jeffrey Larsen of Manchester.

Net Tourney Leftovers
Doubles winners in the Pro Invitational Tennis Tournament last weekend at Manchester Racquet Club, Steve Williams of Amherst and John Hughes of Springfield (Pioneer Valley) handles the Amherst Tennis Academy. The pair utilized hand signals to help win against Doug Crawford and Rich Bray in the finals.

While the team was serving, the player signaled by holding the seat of his pants... Crawford, the highest ranking player nationally in the play, is now in the post card vending business on the promotion end. Crawford had a great record in NETS (New England Tennis Stars) play this season, winning twice, losing in the final one and advancing to the semifinals in a fourth. Joe Bouquin, the retired Danbury player who topped the singles title here, also notched two wins on the NETS tour before the group dissolved due to lack of sponsors. NETS players are not ranked by New England Lawn Tennis Association as they do not take part in the NETLA Promotions but all rank in the top 10 in New England.

Top Grade Production
Jack Redmond, Racquet Club head pro, and his assistant manager, Anita Murphy, rate five stars for a top grade production. There were 101 matters to be taken care of and the three-day play went off without a hitch... each of the seven sponsors contributed $500 to help offset operating expenses. Hilary Demarest was the "designer" who laid out the attractive picture board which was displayed in the lobby... The visiting pros, to a man, said Manchester was the "best stop on the NETS tour and the attendance the best." One pro added that the crowd here was bigger than the combined four tournaments for NETS events in other New England communities... Jimmy Ratliff, who extended Jim Crawford in the finals two years ago, has been sidelined for a year from top competition. He's the current assistant tennis coach at Yale... Rich Bray on Eric Scheiding, "He has deceptive range. He's had a bad year. It was the first time I ever played against him. The fourth-seeded Bray was the first upset victim of Scheiding who made it all the way to the finals before bowing."

Lobs and Serves
Two of the most promising young players in the Racquet Club membership, Scotty Gottlieb and David Shim spent their school vacation in Largo, Fla. 1. Harry Hopman's Tennis School. Hopman is the Australian credited with the development of Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall, Roy Emerson and John Newcombe among others... Eric Scheiding will take over as manager and head teaching pro at the Saybrook Racquet Club in May 1. The former Glastonbury man and Cornell grad plans to compete on the New England tourney tour this summer.

Porter in Show For Home Fans
NEW YORK (UPI) — Kevin Porter put on a show for his hometown fans but he couldn't win.

"It feels good. Records are great, but it's better to win," Porter said Tuesday night after scoring 32 points with 22 assists, but losing with the Portland outlasted Philadelphia, 118-115.

The 32 points represented his season high and the 22 assists, though I fell short of his NBA record of 29 set last season, marked a Chicago Stadium record.

Porter said entertained those who saw him play at Chicago's Du Sable High School.

Chicago trailed, 88-86, entering the fourth quarter, but Artis Gilmore converted three three-point plays en route to a game-high 33 points. John Mengelt, who finished with 26 points, a season high in hand, added two baskets. And Tate Armstrong hit two free throws to put the Bulls ahead, 101-99, with 7:46 left to play.

Ollie Johnson's 15-footer put the Bulls in front to stay, 105-103, at 6:01. Gilmore had 12 points and Mengelt 10 in the fourth-period comeback.

"We beat them off the bench," said Chicago Coach Scotty Robertson. "John Brown and Ollie Johnson set it forward and Armstrong and Mengelt at guard during the second half were the key."

Both Armstrong and Johnson contributed eight points and Brown added 12. Detroit rookie John Long added 22 points and Ben Poquette 19.

In other games, New York topped Golden State, 101-99; San Antonio defeated Indiana, 124-107; Atlanta

Connors Has Pain But Wins Easily
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — When Jimmy Connors grabbed for his shoulder in his second-round match of the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships, he recognized a familiar pain.

"It's nothing new," the 26-year-old player said cheerfully after the match Tuesday. "It comes from growing up with an older brother."

Other players advancing to the final game of the match caused no immediate problems for Connors — who overhauled Tomaz Smid 6-4, 6-0 — it did send him to the dressing room for treatment by a doctor.

The tournament's defending champion said, however, that he "felt Jimmy's pain" and seventh-seeded Eddie Dibbs, and seventh-seeded Rod Laver, who will play for his third-round match with Stan Smith.

Tuesday's match seemed to be little more than a workout for Connors, who joked with the crowd as he kept Smid, the 22-year-old Czechoslovakian, racing about the court in an unsuccessful attempt to keep up with Connors' frantic and ever-changing pace.

Connors graciously credited Smid with a valiant try, but said his opponent might have been a bit nervous since it was the first time they had met on the court.

"I'm playing well enough to be confident against anybody," Connors said. "But confidence doesn't always mean I'm going to win."

Confidence also helped third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, who easily eliminated South African Johan Kriek 6-3, 6-2. "He didn't play as well as he could have, but I didn't let him," the 24-year-old New Yorker said.

Gerulaitis will play Bernie Mitton of the Baltimore Orioles' top farm club.

Reggie Jackson All Smiles, Big Hit at Opening Drill

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — She was a little girl and she was retarded, and as busily occupied as he was, Reggie Jackson noticed that immediately.

The little girl and her mother were among the more than 200 fans who waited patiently in the stands until Jackson finished his first workout of the spring Tuesday.

He was the last member of the Yankees to leave the field, but before he did, he walked over to the stands near the first base dugout to sign autographs.

When the mother at the little girl made the request for her, Jackson turned his full attention to the youngster.

"Who's your favorite player?" he asked her.

She seemed a bit timid and her mother repeated Jackson's question.

"Mickey Rivers," answered the little girl.

"I'll give you my hat, will I be your favorite player?" he asked, smiling from Jackson, who gave her his autograph.

"If I give you my hat, will I be your favorite player?" he asked, smiling from Jackson, who gave her his autograph.

She nodded and Jackson took his cap off his head and put it on hers.

In all the years he played for the Yankees, Babe Ruth never made a grander spring training entrance than Reggie Jackson did this time.

He began the day by easily smoothing over one potential crisis and ended it by getting through another one magnificently.

Since this was the first day of the regular players were to report, Lemon held a meeting before the workout. It was brief, only two minutes long, and unique in that the media was allowed to attend it.

Lemon told the players he had to be in Lemon's office when Jackson showed up in the clubhouse and also came into the office.

"I see you're looking at me," Jackson said to Steinbrener, laughing.

"Yeah, I'm looking at you," answered the Yankee owner, laughing also.

Jackson deposited his gear in his locker and then went into the bathroom to shave off his beard. By now, all the other Yankee players were on the field and it was 10:20 before the clean shaven hitter.

"Depends on how they approach it to me," he said. "I'm not gonna be tricked into it. I'll rebel if it's that. I don't like that."

Then suddenly, he threw in the shocker.

"I'm not gonna be the designated hitter at 33 years of age. I'll quit first," he said.

But he quickly amended that.

"Gee, that really sounds tough," he said.

"He was laughing now, seeking to soften what he had said.

"Do you understand what I'm trying to say? I'm physically not going to embarrass myself. And I don't want to be embarrassed. I've been embarrassed here... I'm not talking about, fella... please keep it in proper context when you write it. Please project the tone of what I'm trying to imply."

What Reggie Jackson was saying was that he doesn't want to make waves. He's happy with his locker and also came into the office.

Potential crisis No. 2 could have turned out more serious. He finished his workout and then sat in the dugout answering questions by newsmen for more than an hour.

What would happen, Jackson was asked, if the Yankees decided he wasn't good enough to be their regular right fielder and hold him back?

Steinbrener, who was on hand for Tuesday's workout, happened

Hobson Set to Go Following Surgery

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Butch Hobson walked into the Boston Red Sox training camp Tuesday with his right arm hanging down, straight by his side.

He couldn't do that last season.

Last year, the closest Hobson could come to straightening out his arm was a 45-degree angle. He had three sizable bone chips in his right elbow which caused him excruciating pain and helped him commit a league-leading 43 errors.

The chips were surgically removed the day after the season ended and helped him commit a league-leading 43 errors.

"I have no doubts, I'm going to be back by Opening Day (April 5). The only problem I'm going to have is learning to take my time and take it easy," Hobson said. "I've been lifting weights and I think the arm is strong as ever."

Hobson insisted on playing up to the last two weeks of the season. When he realized his errors were hurting the team, he removed himself from the lineup and became the designated hitter.

"We've got to put a rope around the neck of this guy," Hobson said. "He's like most third-basemen in that he puts all his ego into every throw. I think he'll be ready for Opening Day too."

"But we're not going to take any chances with his arm. He's got to be on his own judge on that," Zimmer added.

Hobson, who lives in Union Chapel, Ala., began exercising in the gym within weeks of the operation, chop

Goalies Feature In Whalers' Tie

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — Goalkeepers Al Smith and Dave Dryden shared the spotlight Tuesday night as the Edmonton Oilers and the New England Whalers battled to a 1-1 overtime tie in World Hockey Association action.

Jordy Douglas scored for the Whalers with Steve Carlson getting the equalizer.

Smith was brilliant in the New England net, kicking out 30 shots. With only seven seconds left in the final period, he robbed rookie Wayne Gretzky at point-blank range and performed a similar feat against Ron Chipperfield in the overtime session.

Dryden, the league's top netminder also made several outstanding saves in handling 24 shots.

After a scoreless first period, Douglas scored early in the second on a 20-foot screened shot.

Defenseman Paul Shmyr did most of the work on Carlson's marker at 7:34 of the third period. He dug out

Indiana State Learns It Has to Work Harder

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now that he's No. 1, Bill Hodges is learning a team on top must work even harder to stay there.

"When you've beaten a club by 20 points twice, it's tough to tell the guys they got to go out and play hard," Hodges said Tuesday night.

Hodges said Indiana State subdued West Texas State, 94-84, in the first round of the Missouri Valley Conference playoffs.

"This game may have helped us," added Hodges. "It should make them realize they have to keep going out and playing hard and smart."

The Sycamores may try to ignore the pressure, but it won't go away. If they lose a game this season, they will hear "I told you so" all summer.

All-America Larry Bird scored 29 points and Carl Nicks added 27 points, which stretched the record to 27-0, nevertheless trailed by seven points three times in the first half before establishing a 45-42 lead.

And they didn't shake the Buffaloes until late in the game.

In the other MVC game, Wichita State mipped Drake, 70-69, behind 20 points and 10 rebounds by Ray Shirley. Reserve guard Lawrence Howell lit on both ends of a one-and-one with eight seconds to play to send the Shockers to the next round.

In other games involving top teams, DePaul ripped Alabama-Birmingham, 88-77, and Marquette defeated South Carolina, 83-64.

DePaul forwards Curtis Watkins and Mark Aguirre combined for 58 points to prepare for Friday night's showdown with Notre Dame.

Montreal Problem Not Enough Goals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scotty Bowman has a problem.

Sure, even after last night's 7-3 shelling at the hands of the New York Islanders, the Canadiens still hold a four-point edge over New York for the overall league lead. And they've only lost 11 games. But ...

"I can never remember giving up that many goals in three games," Bowman said. "We gave up four to St. Louis, five to Washington and now seven here. I tried to move (Bob) Gainey up to the wing but we obviously can't get along without him on defense."

Bob Gainey is the outstanding defensive forward. He scored a goal on front Tuesday night but Bowman says he'll be seeing Gainey on the backline from now on.

Clark Gillies led the Islanders assault with his second career hat trick while linemates Mike Bossy and Bryan Trottier combined for seven assists.

"(Al) (Islanders Coach Arbour) blasted us pretty good before the game," said Gillies. "He told us what we had to do after Sunday night's game (a 3-2 loss to the Rangers)."

Larry Robinson, who played poorly on defense for the Canadiens, opened the scoring, taking Guy Lafleur's puck in the net during the first period, drilling a long shot past Smith. But the Islanders soon took control, with Stefan Persson tying it 1-1, after the circus and Patin making it 2-1 2:25 into the second.

Then Gillies took over, scoring once in the second period and twice in the third, the hat trick being completed at 18:41 with his 30th goal. The first goal came after Bossy, who had four assists, picked Robinson's eighth line, "hands off" to the defenseman, who had one before Birmingham Bulls — the Winnipeg Jets — the Winnipeg Jets — the Winnipeg Jets — the Winnipeg Jets.

Larry Hillman has been fired as head coach of the WHA team.

Replacing Hillman will be Tom McVie, 44, the former head coach of the Washington Capitals, who will arrive in Winnipeg Thursday to take up his new duties.

Los Angeles Dodgers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers will play their first of five scheduled intrasquad games today and eight pitchers are set to get in some work. They are Robert Castillo, Charlie Hough, Rick Stelcize, Dave Stewart, Joe Beckwith, Paul Bain, Roberto Alexander and Brian Hayes.

Stelcize signed a one-year contract Tuesday, bringing all members of the team's 1979 roster under contract.

San Francisco Giants

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — A broiling desert sun Tuesday took its toll on the San Francisco Giants, all that is except third baseman Darrell Evans and shortstop Roger Metzger. The two veteran infielders easily were the standouts in a long drill designed to test a player's endurance as well as his skill.

Second baseman Ron Anderson joined the squad in time for the workout, leaving only Jim Dwyer, Bill Madlock and Hely Cruz among the missing. They have until March 1 to report.

Cleveland Indians

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Right-handed pitcher Rick Wise signed a new one-year contract with the Cleveland Indians Tuesday.

General Manager Phil Sesti declined to say how much the Indians paid Wise, who had played out a three-year contract and could have played out his option this season. The Indians now have 10 unsigned players.

Atlanta Braves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Atlanta Braves' second baseman Glenn Hubbard, his rookie year behind him, impressed onlookers Tuesday with his line-drive hitting.

Manager Bobby Cox said he thought Hubbard would be the top defensive second baseman in the National League as he watched the Braves go through a three-hour workout. "I don't think anybody turns the double play any better now and he can hit too," said Cox. Only Preston Hanna among the pitchers was not in camp. His father is ill in Pensacola, Fla.

Chicago Cubs

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Manager Herman Franks said he was impressed Tuesday with the Chicago Cubs' training camp debuts of Derrek Belth and Henry Masera, two young pitchers acquired in last week's eighth-player trade with Philadelphia.

"Both of them showed me good live arms," said Franks.

New York Yankees

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Including players, coaches, special instructors and batting practice pitchers and catchers, there were 72 in uniform when Manager Bob Lemon greeted the New York Yankees for their first full training workout Tuesday. The only absentee was relief ace Rich Gossage, still hospitalized with an infected big right toe.

Chris Chambliss wound up in a cast with a sprained ligament in his right hand and will have the hand in a cast for a week.

Baltimore Orioles

MIAMI (UPI) — Rick Dempsey and Ken Singleton have an advantage over the rest of the Baltimore Orioles hitters. The extra edge is a batting cage complete with a pitching machine located in Dempsey's backyard.

All winter, Dempsey and Singleton met at Dempsey's home in Agoura, Calif., to work out. Singleton reported two days early to training camp as the rest of the Baltimore regulars are not due until Thursday.

Philadelphia Phillies

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Forty players were in uniform Tuesday for the first official spring training workout by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Manager Danny Ozark put his veteran squad through a 2½-hour workout and said he was pleased with the condition in which most of his players reported to camp. Absent with permission was Pete Rose, who is expected to don a Philadelphia uniform for the first time Wednesday.

California Angels

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The California Angels opened their spring training workouts Tuesday with all but five players on hand.

Recently acquired first baseman Rod Carew was among the 32 roster players and 11 non-roster players who turned out. The squad was split in half because of inadequate facilities at the Palm Springs complex, with one group working out in the morning and the other during the afternoon.

Oakland A's

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Even though he had only 22 men in camp, manager Jim Marshall decided to run his Oakland A's through an intra-squad game Tuesday, and it turned out better than he expected as a team led by coach Jim Saults beat one led by coach Lee Walls, 7-4.

All but five of the 22 players were pitchers, so a lot of men were in strange positions. Nine infielders and 10 outfielders are scheduled to report on Wednesday, with the first full squad workout coming the following day.

New York Mets

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — New York Mets' pitcher Pat Zachry, unsigned for the coming season, had a second meeting with General Manager Joe McDonald Tuesday and said they were "getting closer."

McDonald has attempted to sign Zachry to a three-year pact, but the tall right-hander from Waco, Tex., is insisting on a one-year deal. "If I have the kind of year I'm capable of having," the pitcher explains, "the second year of that contract wouldn't be fair to me."

San Diego Padres

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — Veterans catcher Gene Tenace and utility man Kurt Bevacqua arrived at the San Diego Padres' spring training camp Tuesday, bringing the number of players on hand to 48.

Outfielders Dave Winfield and Jerry Turner are the only Padres still missing, and they are scheduled to arrive Thursday. The Padres also announced the signing of pitchers Dennis Kinney and Dave Wehrmeister and outfielder Jim Wilhelm, leaving only seven unsigned players.

Jordy Douglas scored for the Whalers with Steve Carlson getting the equalizer.

Smith was brilliant in the New England net, kicking out 30 shots. With only seven seconds left in the final period, he robbed rookie Wayne Gretzky at point-blank range and performed a similar feat against Ron Chipperfield in the overtime session.

Dryden, the league's top netminder also made several outstanding saves in handling 24 shots.

After a scoreless first period, Douglas scored early in the second on a 20-foot screened shot.

Defenseman Paul Shmyr did most of the work on Carlson's marker at 7:34 of the third period. He dug out the puck behind the New England net and fed a perfect pass to Carlson in front of the cage.

'Hands Off' Warning

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach has issued an emphatic "hands off" warning to NBA teams he says have been "communicating" with Indiana State senior Larry Bird, one of their top drafts of last year.

Auerbach Tuesday instructed Celtics lawyer Jan Volk to telegram NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien stating Bird is the Celtics exclusive property.

It ordered NBA teams "cease and desist from communicating with Larry Bird," or face tampering charges that could lead to punitive action by O'Brien.

Two teams in particular, Chicago and Los Angeles, have been scouting Bird who the Celtics drafted last year and retain rights to until this year's NBA draft in late June.

'Gus' Shining Light With Cheney Five

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

It was not a very good year for Cheney Tech basketball. The Beavers, who came within an eyelash of besting eventual 1977-78 Class C champ Canton High, were forced to go with a young lineup.

The inexperienced took its toll. The Techs committed critical mistakes at most inopportune moments, and managed to rack up only three victories in 20 outings.

For Dave Gustamachio, however, it has been a very good year. The 6-foot-2 senior captain, the lone returning starter from the club which almost knocked off Canton, became the school's all-time leading career scorer in the next to the last game against Rocky Hill. His career mark now stands at 888 points, and it should stand for some time unless a new "Gus" emerges.

He also established a single-season scoring mark with 430 points, averaging 21.5 markers per game.

"He's had a very consistent season. Personally, it has been a good year for him," acknowledged Cheney first-year Coach Phil Crockett.

Crockett, formerly at Berlin High, took over the reins from Gerry Blanchard and instilled his own system. For the younger players the adjustment wasn't too trying. For Gustamachio, it was a different story.

"It has been a tough adjustment for him," Crockett admits. "He has a 25-foot jump shot which he likes to take but I had to get him not to take it. It's been tough on him to change from what he had been doing in one year. It's been a transition. He could Gustamachio was needed under the boards, Crockett felt, and he wanted him inside more. "He's the most aggressive rebounder on the team," the Tech leader explained.

His prowess on the offensive board: "I've never seen a player work it like he did." Crockett marveled. He tapped it whenever he could without bringing it down. He got a lot of his points on the offensive board. "The future is uncertain for Gustamachio. He, according to his coach, has looked into the Army, attending the University of Hartford or Central Connecticut State College or going to prep school with hopes of continuing his basketball career. He will have to work on his game, for there are weaknesses, Crockett points out.

"No matter," "Gus" left his mark at Cheney. "He was a scorer. Older teams knew where he was on the floor but couldn't keep him from scoring because of his work on the offensive boards."

His 888 points is his proof.

Tomlinson Tops Pinners, Nassiff Cameras Triumph

Following completion of round two in the Knights of Columbus 10-Pin Bowling League, Ken Tomlinson Jr., of Aulet Brothers, boasts the best individual average, 181.

League statistician Hank Wittke points out four other bowlers are still in the thick of the fight for the No. 1 average with only four points (pins) separating the first and fifth place rollers.

Following Tomlinson in the Big Five are John Ragna 179, Rudi Wittke 178, Mike Hodge, 178 and Fred Nassiff 177.

Other leaders in the A Division are: High single — Rudi Wittke 278, John Ragna 267, High triple — Bill Tomlinson 678, Bob Capps 674.

Class B Division pace-setters are: Average Dennis Guay 163, Jim Cannon 162, Bill Harper 160, Bob Redman 159, Ray Schmidt 158. High single — Guay 234, Stan Zatkowski 227, High triple — Redman 602, Zatkowski 593.

Wittke points out there have been more 600 triples than at any time with the new finish on the lines one of the reasons. Of the 22 600 and better series, Rudi Wittke has collected four.

On 20 occasions 240 or better singles were bowled.

Second round team honors went to Sam Nassiff's Camera Shoppe with the following personnel, Wendell Poucher, Milt Kershaw, Randy Izkovic, Bob Oliver, Ray Cole and Morgan Flaherty.

Krause Florist compiled both the best team single, 1,010, and team triple, 2,954.

Sparky Lyle Elated In Texas Uniform

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Sparky Lyle was talking one day about all the screeching, scrapping and backbiting that went on in the New York Yankees' clubhouse and suddenly the phrase came out naturally, almost automatically.

It was just like "the Bronx Zoo," he said.

That was long before the second half of last season, when he pitched so little he nearly died of neglect and couldn't wait to get out of the Bronx Zoo.

Now that the has, would you believe this — he misses it.

"I'm happy here," he says, meeting with the Texas Rangers, who dealt for him last November. "But I had a good rapport with all the guys over there. That's what you miss most, the guys you spend so much time with. There's a bunch of guys here, too. I've got a lotta memories from my time over there. Good and bad. But you know how that is. You forgive and forget."

Among the better memories is how Lyle led the American League twice in saves while he was with the Yankees and how he won the Cy Young Award as the No. 1 pitcher in 1977.

Among the bad ones is how he hardly ever was called upon to pitch after last year's All-Star break. A year before, whenever the game was on the line, the call would go out to the bullpen for him. Last year, Goose Gosage was the one who always got the call.

Lyle never complained once. He caught up on a lot of sleep in the bullpen because he knew he wouldn't be called upon.

"People wondered why I wasn't bitching" he said, toeling his chest after showering in the Rangers' clubhouse. "It's so simple. Who are you gonna pitch if one guy is making four-fifty and the other guy is making one-fifty? You pitch the guy making four-fifty. I'd have done the same thing. George (Steinbrenner) didn't have any choice. They would've criticized him if I had pitched and one well."

The "four-fifty" Lyle was talking about was the $50,000 a year being paid to Gosage, and the "one-fifty" was the $10,000 being paid him. Lyle's salary always was a source of unhappiness with him, particularly in the clubhouse. He was the first reliever pitcher ever to win the Cy Young Award in 1977.

If you ask the 34-year-old left-hander the last time he pitched last year, other than his one brief appearance in the playoff with Kansas City, he says he doesn't remember. Press him on it, and he tries to think and then says he still doesn't remember.

It bothered me at first but after awhile, it didn't anymore," he explains regarding his inactivity. "I knew I was gonna be traded at the end of the season. I knew it almost from the beginning. When the deal finally was made, I was happy. It was something I wanted. I don't want to waste what years I do have left just sitting around and not doing anything."

Lyle, who still has one of the best hard sliders in the business, put his spare time to some use last year by collaborating on a book about his experiences with the Yankees.

"It's not gonna be a 'Ball Four' or anything like that," he says. "They're calling it 'The Bronx Zoo.' The publishers picked the name out. It's kind of catchy. I guess."

For the most part, Lyle claims, the problems that arose in the Yankees' quarters were not that much different than those in any other clubhouse.

"The same two guys who'd fight each other in the clubhouse would be fighting side by side on the field," he says. "The important thing is what goes on between the white lines, and that regard, those guys (the Yankees) were completely united. Whatever differences they had in the clubhouse were the same ones you'd find in every clubhouse. They'd just come right out and say it straight to your face, and I think that makes for a better club."

Sparky Lyle can't see anyone beating the Yankees in the Eastern Division this year.

"I think they'll win again," he says. "Who's gonna stop 'em?'"

The tipoff:

Lots of unhappiness generated among the top stars of pro football after they tied up with their baseball brethren at the American Airlines Golf Classic in Ft. Lauderdale and found out the relative difference they were making. For instance, when John Fitzgerald was the veteran center for the Super Bowl, Dallas Cowboys, learned that Pittsburgh's Dave Parker will be hauling in nine big ones ($900,000) annually under his new contract with the Pirates. "Why, that's more than I'll make in my whole career," he said.

Q. How many times did Mickey Mantle strike out in his career, and what pitcher struck him out the most? — Robert Novacek, Ft. Lauderdale.

Mantle's total whiffs during his career were 1,710, which constitute the existing American League record. The Pirates' Willie Stargell, still active, surpassed that last season. I can't give you the answer to the second part of your question because the major league statisticians don't break strikeouts down to that degree. Public relations officer Mickey Morabito of the Yankees, however, is researching the record and might come up with the right pitcher.

Q. I recently saw Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles playing tennis for recreation during the off-season, and he was hitting the ball left-handed. Was he a switch-hitter? Under the impression he was right-handed all the way — T.V., Tucson, Ariz.

He is right-handed. He was a fine batter from the right side, too, before the American League introduced the designated hitter. However, the Orioles pitching coach plays tennis as a southpaw because he doesn't want to take any chances as a hustling pitcher. He's such a terrific athlete that the transition was no problem. He has to serve right-handed, however.

The Singing Nun Changes Her Tune

By MARGARET GORDY

WAVRE, Belgium (UPI) — The woman once known to millions as "The Singing Nun" is attempting a quiet comeback.

Twelve years ago she abandoned her sheltered convent life, became plain Jeanine Deckers—and plunged into a decade of darkness.

Her troubles included a nervous breakdown, a continuing battle with tax authorities and the collapse of her recording career.

Miss Deckers has recorded a new album that is a far cry from the sunny tunes that led to appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show in the United States and a movie entitled "The Singing Nun" in which Debbie Reynolds played the role of Miss Deckers.

The new album is full of softer melodies, and serious lyrics. One example: "The Lord is my friend. For Him I will make myself beautiful."

This may not be the stuff that bestsellers are made of. But Miss Deckers says she "couldn't care less."

"These are honest, religious songs," she said in an interview. "People may not listen to them for another 10 years, but when they do, they will know who I really am."

Miss Deckers spoke of her struggle to establish a new identity after leaving the convent as the result of what she described as a personality clash with her superiors.

"When I left the convent in 1967, I suffered from what I call the sister syndrome," she said. "People would no longer talk to me because they didn't know how to react when I wasn't wearing a habit. And, of course, no one wanted to hear a singing nun who was no longer a nun."

Least of all the international recording company that in 1960 discovered the "Singing Nun"—a name she says she hates because it gives the impression she is a trained animal. The trick name and Miss Deckers' voice immediately won success. In 1961, her original composition "Dominique" sold almost 1 million copies in the United States in the first month it was released.

In Europe, where she recorded under the name "Sister Smile," the art Association has chosen its three pictures of the month. First place went to Kit Starr for an oil titled "Dune Walk." It will be on display at the Mary Cheney Library.

Second place award went to Bridgie Luby for a charcoal titled "Reconstruction." It will be on display at the First Federal Savings, W. Middle Turnpike. And third place went to Cecellie Elie for her oil titled, "Golden Idol." It will be on display at the Main Street branch of the Savings Bank of Manchester. Grace Tedor was awarded the door prize.

Board Seeks Approval of Intact Budget

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The Board of Education asked the town Board of Directors Tuesday night to appropriate its $16.3 million school budget request intact.

In presenting the budget to the directors, School Board Chairman John Yavis said, "We have already included a savings 'by the elimination of 10 teaching positions. He said, 'The budget easily could have been one to two percent higher, but we chose to keep within the guidelines.'"

The directors had recommended a six percent limit on budget increases for all town departments for next year. The school board's recommended budget increases was exactly at six percent.

Yavis said that it "will not be easy to live within the six percent." He noted the inflation rate of 10.8 percent for January, increasing oil prices, the poor condition of some school buildings, and unfunded contingencies for possible court cases.

There are limited areas where we can achieve dramatic savings this year," Yavis said, noting the savings included a savings "by the premature closing of Green School," and other closings are planned this year," he said.

In his presentation of the budget, School Superintendent James P. Kennedy also listed areas which were not funded in the school budget, but which are all potential needs or problems. Those included extra funding for fuel oil, gasoline and electricity, pending special education court cases, an increase in special teachers for the elementary schools, preventative maintenance for school buildings, roof repairs beyond immediate needs, and a minimum equipment replacement program.

Kennedy also noted that the school budget does not meet the predicted or present inflation rate.

Kennedy said that the Board of Education was able to meet its lower budget during current school year with the closing of Green School, and use of CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) funds for staff, the use of the retirement incentive program, conservation and "good luck" with utilities and deferring building maintenance and good "experience" in the health insurance, which resulted in lower rates.

Last year the Board of Directors cut $75,000 from the board's $15,957,756 budget request.

Thomas Connors, town director, asked several questions about the budget, including an explanation of the capital improvement request for an all-weather running track at Manchester High School.

Kennedy said the request was based on community interest in running, needs expressed by the high school athletic staff, and deficiencies in the present track pointed out during the Manchester Community College relay. He also said it is the only area of the athletic fields, outside of practice areas, which has not been improved. The estimated cost of the track would be $50,000.

Connors also asked about the alternative education program which is a $17,500 items included in the school board's improvements. Kennedy said the program was aimed at potential dropouts and could probably be doubled or tripled if the schools had the facilities.

Connors also asked for school board figures on the number of children who get reduced rates on school lunches based on income levels.

Connors concerns were in conjunction with the discrepancies between proposed income cutoffs proposed by the Dental Association and the town in providing dental care for lower income families.

The figure provided by the board was 290 to 300 students who are in the reduced lunch category.

Connors also indicated he favored the inclusion of director tie-in fire alarm boxes for Bowers and Waddell schools. The schools would be tied in to the Eighth District Fire Department.

Director Stephen Cassano and Town Board Chairman Stephen Penny asked Assistant School Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin for an elaboration of the benefits of the CETA program to the Board of Education.

The two boards agreed to meet again later during the directors' budget review.

Soviets Say War Can Spread

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said in a sober but bitter news commentary today China has spurred the "voice of reason" and embarked on a bloodletting campaign in Vietnam that the Soviet Union will spread unless it stopped immediately.

The 2,000-word commentary carried by the Tass news agency was written for the Communist Party newspaper Pravda by Igor Alexandrov — a name viewed as a pseudonym for top party leaders that reflects the thinking at the highest levels of the Soviet Union.

The commentary repeatedly blamed the West for encouraging China and warned the war between China and Vietnam may spread. "Those who today hope to warm themselves by its flames rashly risk being the next victims of the aggressor and his adventurist policy," it said.

It also singled out the United States, saying, "The unilateral stand taken by the U.S. ruling circles in the face of the Chinese leadership's open threats against Vietnam has, as a matter of fact, contributed to Peking's openly taking the warpath."

The article appeared to be a definitive statement on the Soviet attitude toward the Chinese invasion and seemed to lay the groundwork for whatever steps the Kremlin might take against Peking. The Soviet Union already has officially warned China to get out of Vietnam "before it's too late."

Moscow has confined itself to the original warning, although there has been a gradual strengthening of Soviet naval forces in the South China Sea and an increase in air transport cargo deliveries to Hanoi, according to Western intelligence services.

A public announcement of any change in Soviet policy is likely to come Friday when President Leonid Brezhnev is scheduled to make a nationally televised address on the eve of elections to the Soviet parliament.

The Pravda commentary reiterated the government's initial Sunday warning and stressed that Moscow intends upholding its commitments to Vietnam under the new 25-year friendship and cooperation treaty.

That agreement, signed in November, calls for "mutual consultation" should either party be attacked, but leaves unclear what military steps, if any, might be taken.

The statement, while free of some of the wider rhetoric common in Soviet commentaries, said Peking was "going over to the bloodletting stage of its expansionist policy" and has begun transferring fresh troops into the fighting.

"It should be equally clear that the war configuration may spread out if Peking's aggression against Vietnam is not stopped, if the aggressor is not made to get out immediately."

Ayatollah Seeking To Restore Order

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today called for restoration of law and order in Iran, free water and electricity for the poor and no victimization of opponents of his Islamic republic.

Khomeini issued the call in a message published and broadcast to the nation a day before he withdraws from Tehran to the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of the capital, to resume teaching at the Fatimah Kuranic school from which the ousted shah exiled him 15 years ago.

A ministry of interior spokesman announced a nationwide referendum on whether the people want an Islamic republic will be held between March 21 and 24.

Khomeini, in his 14-point message, said: "I expect the people will vote in favor of an Islamic republic because this was the sole cause of the revolution."

He added: "Those who are against it are free to say so and I order the mullahs to see to it that nobody is ostracized for doing so."

In other points Khomeini said he has recommended the government supply free electricity and water to the poor, urged the rooting out of all American, Soviet and British influence in the country and ordered leftist and pro-shah meetings to be boycotted.

Khomeini also told the people to stop attacking army and police posts or entering private homes and ordered prisoners of the revolutionary regime to be treated humanely.

In Qom itself, 30,000 Islamic revolutionary militia braced for the arrival of Khomeini and the huge crowds expected to greet him.

Khomeini's message came as Iranian oil chief Hassan Nazih said the nation will have no further dealings with the 13-company consortium of American, British, French and Dutch oil companies that has handled the bulk of Iranian oil for the past 25 years.

Nazih accused the consortium of "wheeling and dealing" and making "secret deals." He did not elaborate.

Cooking For Two

"Dinner for two" usually conjures up images of candlelight and romance. But dinner for two is an everyday occurrence for about 44 million people in the United States. In the past, recipes were specifically designed with four to six people in mind. And it isn't always easy to cut recipes in half or even harder, in thirds. But with the modern family size shrinking, the need to develop food ideas especially suited for smaller households is being recognized.

- Rotisserie Duckling
1 (4.5 pound) frozen duckling, thawed
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons coarse salt
Cumberland Glaze (recipe follows)
- Squeeze lemon juice over duckling. Sprinkle with coarse salt, inside and out. Place in refrigerator at least 4 hours or overnight. With paper towels rub off salt; do not rinse. Preheat oven hearth broiler/rotisserie. Insert spit through duckling so that both pronged forks are tightly inserted; tighten screws. Balance duckling on spit. Place spit on spit supports. Adjust supports so duckling is as close as possible to heating element without touching it. Attach motor and turn on. Cook 2 hours. Brush duckling with Cumberland Glaze and continue cooking for 15 minutes, brushing frequently with glaze.
- Note: If glaze is not desired, cook duckling 2 hours and 15 minutes and serve with Fruited Gravy.
- Cumberland Glaze
3/4 cup red currant jelly
3/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
Dash cayenne
2 tablespoons corn starch
2 tablespoons water
- In small saucepan heat jelly over medium heat until melted. Gradually stir in orange and lemon juices. Add ginger and cayenne. Mix corn starch and water. Gradually stir into jelly mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Brush on duckling during last 15 minutes of cooking time. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

- Spring Vegetable Medley
1 package (10 oz) frozen peas
1 can (8 oz) water chestnuts, sliced
2 tablespoons powdered chicken bouillon
1 tablespoon corn starch
1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
- In 1 1/2-quart casserole dish place peas and water chestnuts. In small bowl stir together bouillon, corn starch, seasoned salt and garlic powder. Sprinkle over vegetables; toss to coat. Pour water over. Dot with margarine. Cover and bake in 400°F oven 20 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, cover and continue cooking an additional 5 minutes. Serve 2.
- Note: If fresh peas are used, cook in boiling water 5 minutes.

- Cream of Asparagus Soup
2 cups coarsely chopped asparagus (about 10 bunches)
1/2 cup coarsely chopped onion
1 cup water
1 chicken bouillon cube
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon lemon pepper
2 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons corn starch
- In 2-quart saucepan place asparagus, onion, water, bouillon, salt and lemon pepper. Cover and simmer 25 minutes, or until vegetables are very tender. Gradually stir milk into corn starch until smooth. Add to saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Makes 4 servings.
- Note: To serve chilled, place cold soup in blender container. Cover and blend 15 seconds or until smooth.

- Raspberry Glazed Strawberries
1 package (10 oz) frozen raspberries in syrup, thawed
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 tablespoon apricot preserves
1 pint strawberries, hulled
- Drain liquid from berries. Stir liquid into corn starch until smooth. In small saucepan stir together berries, apricot preserves and corn starch mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Press through fine sieve to remove seeds. Cover and chill. Toss with strawberries to coat. Serves 2.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By Betty Ryder

Monsieur Bernard Marchais, executive chef at the Elbow Beach Hotel in Paget, Bermuda, is from Touraine, France.

He supervises the preparation of all meals from breakfast over lunch to dinner, with a few special banquets and gala dinners thrown in.

About 1,500 meals leave the kitchens daily and during one year some 400,000 cups of coffee, 500,000 eggs, 50,000 steaks, 100,000 pounds of potatoes, 50,000 pounds of prime ribs of beef, to name a few items, are used.

Monsieur Marchais and his chefs have parried with some of their recipes which appear in the hotel's own cookbook.

The following are some of Marchais' creations:

Potage Germine (Sorril Soup)
1/2 cup fresh sorrel
2 tablespoons butter
5 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
5 cups beef consommé
Wash sorrel, remove hard stalks and cut leaves in shreds. Melt butter in a saucepan, add the sorrel and cook until wilted and dry. Heat the consomme and pour over the sorrel. Mix the egg yolks with the cream. Pour the consomme and sorrel slowly over the cream mixture, stirring constantly. Return to stove and cook slowly, stirring with a wooden spoon, until the soup starts to thicken. (Do not let it come to a boil). Remove from heat, check seasoning. Pour into serving bowls. Recipe serves six.

(Sorrel is a green, leafy vegetable, similar to spinach, but more acid. It grows well in Bermuda.)

Poulet au vinaigre
(Chicken with Vinegar Sauce)
2 broiling chickens (2 pounds each)
6 ounces (12 tablespoons) butter

16 ounces (2 cups) good wine vinegar
8 ounces chopped shallots
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
Cut the broilers into fourths removing back bones and wing tips. Put the chicken pieces into a shallow pan with 4 tablespoons butter, season, cover and start cooking slowly on top of stove. Finish the cooking in a slow oven, 300 degrees. When chicken is tender and golden brown, remove from pan. Place on a serving platter and keep warm. Add the shallots to the pan juices and brown. Add vinegar and reduce it by two-thirds. Lower heat and swirl in remaining softened butter, a little at a time, to thicken sauce. Check seasoning. Add chopped parsley. Pour the sauce over the chicken and serve. Rice pilaff, noodles or boiled potatoes go well with this dish. Serves 4.

Croustade de Crabe d'Alaska a la Chef Marchais
(Chef Marchais' Crabmeat Tartlets)
Chop 1/2 pound Alaska crabmeat not too fine, add a teaspoon of paprika and put into saucepan. Cook with 1 ounce of butter for a few minutes,

A view of the beautiful Elbow Beach Hotel in Paget, Bermuda. Inset is Monsieur Bernard Marchais, its executive chef.

Pinch of salt
Make dough with these ingredients, roll out thinly and line 6 tartlet molds with dough. Bake until golden brown. Remove from oven and fill with hot crabmeat and take out of molds. Serve hot. Fresh chopped parsley may be sprinkled on top as garnish.

The Elbow Beach cookbook is readily obtainable. I wish space permitted me to share a few more of the outstanding recipes. For example, Hubert, from Nurnberg, Germany, presents some recipes from his native country, as does Bolivar from Ambato, Ecuador; Jacques from Orbe, in the French part of Switzerland; Martin from Manchester, England; Raymond, the chief baker from Liverpool, England; Andre from Burgundy; Jose from St. Miguel, Azores, and many more. I'm not sure if this cookbook is available by mail, but if anyone is interested, give me a call and I will inquire.

I'll pop in additional recipes from it from time to time so you'll get the international flavor of the gourmet cuisine served at the Elbow Beach.

Buyer's Billboard

Guard Against Being Cheated - Check Trademark

By MICHAEL J. CONLON WASHINGTON (UPI) - The people who make gold and silver jewelry believe some consumers are being cheated. That assessment comes from the Manufacturing Jewelers and Silversmiths of America Inc., a Providence, R.I. based trade association. It says it has uncovered several cases recently in which products - particularly gold chains and ring - were not of the quality marked, and in some cases not even gold. The way to guard against being cheated, the group is to look for a trademark to appear on the piece of jewelry. The Commerce Department's trademark offive says federal law - 15 U.S. Code, 297 - requires both the karat quality and a trademark to appear on the piece of jewelry. The Commerce Department's trademark gold content of a product, the person responsible for the trademark must put his federally registered trademark as adjacent as possible to the karat gold mark. "The trade association says. A consumer buying a piece of gold jewelry from a retail store should ask to see the registered trademark of the company that guarantees its gold content, says George Frankovich, the association's executive director. "The same trademarking requirements also apply to sterling silver products," Frankovich said. In addition the Federal Trade Commission has guidelines for the jewelry industry essentially providing that jewelry must be what it claims to be. The Food and Drug Administration was asked recently to ban the candy on the grounds that it could pop into a child's eye, raising injury. General Foods, the manufacturer, is so concerned about the situation it has run newspaper advertisement to try to dispel the rumors. For the record, here is the FDA's official position on both Pop Rock and Space Dust, another confection. "Both products are made of sugar, lactose, and artificial color and flavorings. They are processed with carbon dioxide to provide a crumbly sensation in the mouth. Space Dust is a powdered form, Pop Rock is the granular form. "FDA has received 10 complaints of illness or injury associated with Pop Rock and Space Dust. FDA has investigated these cases but has not been able to confirm that the candy causes illness or injury. "FDA's Bureau of Food has tested the candies to determine whether there is any danger to the stomach from eating them. The products were found safe and acceptable. FDA also found the amount of carbon dioxide used in a package of the candy is about one-tenth the amount in a 22-ounce can of carbonated soda."

10th Graders Express Views on Nutrition

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's national advisory council on child nutrition...

"I just got real tired of them," she said, "so I haven't been back for a long time."

From junk food snacks in between meals. "I do eat chocolate," he said.

Eating Habits Start Young

By JEANNE LESEM UPI Family Editor

Dieta Louise W. Hamilton believes good eating habits should start when children are still in diapers.

When you start adding solids to a baby's diet, she says, they should be dark green and dark yellow vegetables.

For people who don't know where to turn for reliable information on nutrition, she suggests the 50 state dietetic associations.

Encourage use of a wide variety of foods and moderate eating habits.

Call for simple food preparation instead of frying and heavy sauces.

Use whole grain. Have recipes that are not unusually high in sugar, fat and salt content.

And use the four food group - meat, milk, vegetables-fruits and breads-cereals as a rule of thumb.

She said a tangerine might be a better choice than an apple, for example, unless you've met your vitamin C needs for the day.

Chef's Garden Supplies Hotel

An indoor hydroponic herb garden is thriving these days just off the second floor kitchen of a famous Park Avenue hotel in New York City.
