WHAT'S NEWS

Heart Disease
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Despite the fact there was a 20 percent reduction in the number of fatal heart attacks, 1 million Americans still died from heart seizures last year and American men still have one of the highest heart disease death rates in the world.

Thunderstorms
There were thunderstorms in Texas Wednesday, sweeping ahead of a fast-moving cold front and no part of the state was spared. Also numerous funnel clouds were sighted, although only one touched down. It damaged a house at Seven Wells. No one was injured. However, three persons were killed in flash flooding — two near Sweetwater and one in Houston.

Oil Dependence
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department released a year-long study Wednesday, saying U.S. dependence on foreign oil poses not only a threat to economic stability than ever before, but also is a threat to national security.

The Economy
NEW YORK — Stocks rallied to a seven-week high late Wednesday after White House officials said President Carter did not want to set "an exact proper level" on corporate profits despite his anti-inflation program. The Dow Jones average gained 7.45 points to 878.

Spring Activity
The first day of Spring Wednesday brought everyone (and everything) out of winter hibernation. At left, Lisa Hutchins walks her pet skunk, Smith, on Church Street. At right, Rete Sarels of Hilliard Street prepares cement for a foundation for a bee hive. He expects to get his bees by the end of the month. (Herald photos by Strempfer)

Manchester First In Housing Policy

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — The town's Housing Authority apparently can give preference to Manchester residents who apply for public housing for the elderly.

Preference selection would also include persons working in Manchester and living elsewhere, those without housing because of government action, and those living in substandard housing.

Lance Indictment Sure, U.S. Prosecutors Feel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Department officials feel so sure a grand jury will indict Bert Lance they have begun setting up a team to prosecute the man who served as President Carter's budget director and closest adviser, sources say.

Department sources said Wednesday prosecutors plan to ask a grand jury in Atlanta in about a month to hand up the criminal indictment, also naming other defendants involved in alleged mishandling of bank funds.

Israeli Lawmakers Approve Peace Pact

By United Press International
With a show of hands, Israel's Knesset (parliament) today overwhelmingly approved the first peace treaty between Arab and Jew in modern history and cleared the way for a historic signing ceremony in Washington Monday.

The vote of approval on the Egyptian-Israeli treaty came nearly at dawn and climaxed the longest debate in the Knesset's history — 28 hours of searching, often-heated argument among 119 legislators.

President Carter immediately hailed the Knesset vote, saying it "spoke with a voice heard around the world — the voice of peace."

Police Report

South Windsor

A South Windsor man and a West Hartford man were injured in an early-morning head-on crash on Buckland Road, today.

Police said Michael Dodd, 24, of 1715 Ellington Road, South Windsor, and Eugene Thibault Jr., 44, of West Hartford were the drivers of the cars involved.

Police said apparently the Dodd car, traveling north, for some unknown reason, crossed the center line and collided head-on with the other car.

Police said a fire broke out and Dodd had to be extricated from his car. Both men were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and then Dodd, who suffered head injuries, was transferred to Hartford Hospital and Thibault, who suffered multiple contusions, was transferred to St. Francis Hospital.

Police said the accident is still under investigation and anyone who may have witnessed it is asked to call Police Captain William Ryan with information. The police station number is 644-2551.

Andover

James M. Landry, 16, of Lake Road, Andover, Mass., charged Wednesday with first-degree reckless endangerment and criminal mischief in connection with the investigation of an incident Tuesday about 5 p.m.

Police said Landry was charged in connection with the shooting of a BB gun at a school bus window as the bus was traveling north on Lake Road. Police said there were seven passengers on the bus but no one was injured.

Landry is scheduled to appear in court in Rockville on April 3.

Vernon

James F. Cramer, 23, of no certain address but formerly of Rockville, was arrested Wednesday night on a warrant served by State Police and then turned over to Vernon Police.

He was charged by Vernon Police on four counts of burglary, and one count each of second-degree and third-degree larceny. The alleged offenses took place in Vernon between Sept. 27, 1976 and Oct. 8, 1977.

He was held at the police station in lieu of posting a $10,000 surety bond for appearance in court today. Police said Cramer had been out of the state and returned a short time ago.

Leon W. Newton, 62, of Williamatic, was charged Wednesday with fourth-degree larceny on a complaint of the K-Mart store at Vernon Circle. He was released on his promise to appear in court on March 27.

Rescinds I-291 Vote

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Council on Environmental Quality has rescinded its controversial vote in favor of Interstate 291.

The vote Wednesday was unanimous, with five of eight members present. Among those absent was Ronald F. Angelo, accused of pressing for endorsement of the highway Feb. 21.

Since the original vote, the state Department of Transportation has announced plans to build the Central Connecticut Expressway instead of Interstate 291.

Classes Filled

MANCHESTER — The pottery classes, sponsored by the Recreation Department, scheduled to start tonight, are filled. No additional registrations will be accepted.

Dolly and Porter Change Their Tune

In 1974, when singer Dolly Parton left Porter Waggoner's act to become a big star, Waggoner was the picture of the country gentleman. "I am very happy that I have helped an artist who has helped me so much to become a star," he said then.

But Wednesday in Nashville Chancery Court, he sang a different tune, filing suit against her for $3 million more. Waggoner's attorney contends a 1970 contract guaranteed Waggoner 15 percent of Miss Parton's record royalties "forever" and 15 percent of her net income for five years "for the invaluable time and expertise he spent developing her career."

There was a "no comment" from Miss Parton, who recently noted their breakup "was not an easy parting. Porter was upset at me pretty bad and from things I read it still pretty bitter at me... I don't care what he says, he knows why I left."

The National Press Club in Washington says Margaret Trudeau, estranged wife of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, should look elsewhere for an audience.

The chairman of the club's speakers committee said Mrs. Trudeau's agent contacted him about an appearance to boost her forthcoming book, "Beyond Reason."

Biebel Cites Refusal As Disagreement Cause

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Frederick Biebel told town Republicans Wednesday night that his refusal to be a "puppet" for U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker is one of the causes of the much-publicized rift between the two.

Biebel, seeking re-election as Republican state chairman, spoke to about 50 members of the Republican Town Committee Wednesday.

He said he will win re-election to the post, even though the state Republican with the highest election against him — Weicker — has spoken against him.

Biebel said Weicker opposed the GOP chairman's invitation to other Presidential candidates to come to Connecticut. Weicker recently announced his candidacy for President.

Biebel quoted Weicker as saying, "I told you I don't want these people in Connecticut. I'm fed up with your antics."

"I would rather lose the chairmanship with dignity than win it to be a puppet of one man," Biebel said. He also gave a lengthy explanation of his discussion with Henry Kissinger about running as a U.S. Senate candidate from the state.

Weicker had been angered about Biebel's talk with Kissinger, the secretary of state under the Nixon administration.

Biebel explained, though, that he only spoke to Kissinger once on the phone — "After I spelled Biebel three times to his secretary" — and that conversation was to check about a story in the New York Times that had speculated Kissinger might move to Connecticut and run for senator.

Kissinger denied it, and that was all Biebel did about the matter, he said.

"All I did was what anyone of you would have done — try to find out the facts of the situation," Biebel said.

He also said he will not take the blame for the party's deficit that developed during the 1978 election. Much of that debt was run up by Ronald Sarasin, the party's candidate for governor, when Sarasin and Lewis Rowe were battling for the GOP nomination.

Sarasin, and also Rome, had made financial commitments for their expected gubernatorial campaigns. Then, at the state convention, they both became members of the party ticket. (Rome ran for lieutenant governor.)

"Neither one of them had a dime in the bank," he said.

He will now work to pay off that debt and win elections for the party in 1979.

Biebel also listed some of the accomplishments his leadership has brought to the party. He has raised more money than any previous GOP state chairman, he said.

"I think I've spent it the best possible way," he said.

The party has provided contributions to local candidates and training seminars for party workers and amateurs.

Biebel also called the next two elections key ones for the party because redistricting of state assembly and senate districts will start in 1980.

Democratic control of the state Legislature will result in a Democratic redistricting.

"I can't see how a Republican under one-party control for another 10 years," he said.

Inspection of MHS Roof Leaves a Bleak Forecast

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — School officials strolled over a soft and soggy Manchester High School roof on a sunny first day of spring Wednesday.

Although the weather was sunny, a temporary repair measure could be to install downspouts along the edge of the roof, Dion said.

Recent patching on the roof was evident, but Dion said sealing cannot be done when the roof is saturated. He said he cannot tell by looking from the top of the roof where the real problems area. It should be tested for moisture content, he said.

The east side of the complex along Brookfield Street is "obviously saturated," Dion said. That was the area where wastebaskets and garbage pails were placed to catch the water during recent weeks.

Dion said that the east wing should be completely stripped and the roof started over. Some of the areas could be handled with other repairs, he said.

The last major work on the leaky roof was done in 1971 at a cost of $56,824. At that time the north and south wings of the school were reroofed and random patching was done on the east and west wings, according to the school board.

Other work had been done on or cracked, leaves a gaping hole where the water can enter. "When the kids and vandals break them, that adds to the problems," said Kuehl. Dion said much of the problem is that there was moisture left under the bubbles when the roof was sealed over twice before. Another problem is that the drains in the center of the roof sections are too high to let the water out, Dion said.

Irish Endorsed Quickly, Quietly

MANCHESTER — Although there had been speculation of some excitement, Wallace Irish Jr. was endorsed quickly and quietly for re-election to the Republican State Central Committee.

The Republican Town Committee met Wednesday night to select delegates to the conventions that will pick the members of the state committee.

This year, for the first time, the town committee itself endorsed candidates for the state committee. In the past, the actual selection has been done by the town's delegates to the convention.

Because of Wednesday night's votes by the town committee, the delegates will be supporting the area incumbents on the Republican State Central Committee — Wallace Irish from the Third Senatorial District and Pen-ton "Pat" Futner from South Windsor and Nancy Owen of Glastonbury from the Fourth Senatorial District.

Manchester and East Hartford each have one representative from the Third Senatorial District on the 72-member state central committee. E. Charles Stebbins is expected to be re-elected as East Hartford's representative.

Irish also will be re-elected after Wednesday night's endorsement by the Republican Town Committee. There had been speculation that there might be a challenge to Irish in his district, but no one stepped forward Wednesday night.

Irish — whose active involvement in the Eighth Utilities District has irritated some party members — was endorsed unanimously.

Manchester also had been seeking someone to run in the Fourth Senatorial District, but no one was nominated in that district and the party endorsed incumbents Futner and Mrs. Owen.

That district includes several towns. The Republican State Central Committee will vote in this year's selection of the state-party chairman.

A slate of delegates from both senatorial districts was selected for the state central committee conventions. The delegates from the Third District will be Edward Wilson, Thomas Dampson, Peter Sylvester, Ellen Bickford, Mary Fletcher, Barry Botticello and Pat Donlon.

The delegates from the Fourth District will be Hilary Gallagher, Robert Skelan, Pat Lawrence, Ted LaBonne, Scott Clendaniel, Elsie "Biz" Swenson and Harriet Hasted.

Water Bonding Said Best Way

MANCHESTER — The proposed method of funding water improvements through a bond issue is the least expensive way of paying for the work, Jay Giles, director of public works, said Wednesday night.

Giles spoke to the Republican Town Committee and also said that the April 17 proposal is defeated, the town would have to present a second reduced package of water improvements.

Giles spoke briefly to the GOP gathering and then answered several questions.

One question asked was about the cost of the package. Giles said if all proposed construction was done now, it would cost $17 million. It is impossible, however, to do that much work in one year, he said.

Thus, the cost of the bond issue — $30 million — is calculating that the work is spread over five years.

To pay for that, the town will bond, and Giles estimated the total cost, including principal and interest payments, will be $35 million over the next 20 years.

A pay-as-you-go system, where part of the improvements would be done and paid for each year, would be risky, Giles said. Inflation could continue to increase and boost the final cost. The length of time to complete the project also would be longer under this system, he said.

"From our viewpoint, it would be better to borrow money and do the work as quickly as possible," he said. The proposed water improvements include a new treatment plant that will improve filtering of water. There also are many line replacements and improvements included.

The upgrading of the system is needed to meet federal standards for drinking water.

If the voters reject the April 17 proposal, the town probably will have to come back with a second package for improvements, Giles said.

This probably would include just a filter plant in the bond issue, which would reduce the total bond issue cost, he said. But, the town still would face the problem of inadequate water flow for fighting fires and water lines that would not help water quality.

Thus, some of these lines still would have to be replaced, he said.

If the town does not make the needed improvements, it could face penalties, such as fines, he said. Also, if water quality did not meet federal standards, such items as food production that uses water might be subject to severe restrictions.

Council Rejects Town Aid Probe

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town Council this week rejected a proposal which called an investigation of town aid given to a local family left homeless following a fire Christmas Eve.

The 5-3 vote ended the matter which led to much controversy following Deputy Mayor Robert Myette's investigation into the action.

Myette had proceeded to read a lengthy copy of findings in spite of efforts by Mayor Nancy Caylyn and other council members to halt what they termed "personal information about the family."

Myette abstained from voting on the investigation proposal.

Mayor Nancy Caylyn had called for the investigation of methods used in aiding the family, following accusations that officials had acted improperly in issuing the check.

Mayor Caylyn, and Republican members Joan Cushman and Robert Ryan voted in favor of the proposal. Democrats Edward Havens, Jacqueline J. Smith and Arthur Champagne were joined by Republicans Robert Sills and Lincoln Streeter in voting against the creation of a subcommittee to head the investigation.

Housing Standards High, So Sweeney Opposes CD

MANCHESTER — "The present quality of housing standards in this area," he said, "No other Hartford suburb has done as much as Manchester."

"My concern as a director is to handle the situation so as not to impair the long-range quality of life," Sweeney said.

Sweeney made the statement in explaining his stand on the current controversy surrounding the town's continued participation in the Community Block Grant program at a meeting of the Manchester Rotary Club Tuesday night.

Sweeney detailed some of the HUD regulations concerning the Community Block Grants and explained one of the major reasons he has spoken in favor of a suggested moratorium is the housing goals commitment required by the program.

Sweeney said the regulations require the town, in its application, to detail goals for creating new housing goals. He said the three categories of housing include elderly and handicapped, families with four or less persons and families with five or more persons.

He also said the HUD regulations require the town, in its application, to detail goals for creating new housing goals. He said the three categories of housing include elderly and handicapped, families with four or less persons and families with five or more persons.

He also the application requires other information including whether any new housing will be built.

"One of the reasons for my view is the high quality of life in the town of Manchester," he said. "The bulk of the homes are owner-occupied."

He said he did not believe absentee landlords would be as likely to maintain property as well as owner-occupants.

"I have nothing against the three-family home where one of the occupants is the owner," he said. "But HUD is requiring a site for 70 units of housing which were committed in the previous grants.

He said the site is not found, the town will be required to repay $100,000 of federal money.

"They are doing it to Glastonbury and I hate to think it will happen in Manchester," he said.

He also said some of the proponents of the program do not take the required regulations seriously.

Sweeney said the regulations are strong and there is no reason to think they would not be enforced.

Commenting on the two advisory questions on the referendum, Sweeney said the administrative costs could be about $80,000 for a year and the cost of completing unfinished projects would be a "few hundred thousand dollars."

He urged approval for both of the advisory questions and said, "I like to think the board will use the authority in the best interest of the town."

Sweeney said voters must be urged to consider the cost of additional services which will be required by projects funded through the CD block grants.

He said the economic gains diminish when you weigh the amount of grants against the cost of additional services such as schools, police and fire.

Sweeney also warned against continuing the program and then backing out if and when the HUD demands become too great.

"Glastonbury is not looking for a new grant," he said. "But HUD is requiring a site for 70 units of housing which were committed in the

Road Planning Rejected

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town Council defeated a resolution which would have allowed the town manager to enter into an agreement with the state for preliminary engineering for the reconstruction of Pleasant Valley and Chapel roads.

The resolution, defeated by a tie 4-4 vote, was favored by the four Republicans present at the meeting. Republican Councilman Richard Ryan was not present at the beginning of the session when the vote was taken.

GOP council member, Robert Silts, who had voted with the Democrats two weeks ago authorizing the possible transfer of funds for the reconstruction of an industrial bypass road, said that he felt that Governor Ella Grasso was "receptive to the bypass road without taking money from the Pleasant Valley project."

A group of town officials met with Gov. Grasso to discuss the possibility of constructing an industrial bypass road, linking the J.C. Penney Warehouse and industrial park with the Bissell Bridge.

Town Manager Allan Young told the council that funding for such a bypass, which would be a scaled down version of the proposed Interstate 291, was already appropriated in excess of $40 million.

The Republican members of the Town Council contend that to hamper preliminary engineering of the Pleasant Valley project, and to ultimately reject the $3.5 million for the project, would be "ridiculous" in light of Governor Grasso's favorable acceptance of the bypass road concept.

Democrats, however, appear to feel that approval of engineering of the Pleasant Valley project is a rejection of the wishes of the residents of that area that no reconstruction of their streets take place before construction of the industrial bypass road.

Residents of the Pleasant Valley and Chapel Road area presented the

Residents Fight Rezoning

COVENTRY — Residents of the Broad and Milk Street area appeared at a public hearing Tuesday to oppose a zone change that would allow light industry in their neighborhood.

The consensus of the some 20 residents attending the hearing was that they are dead set against the proposed change and they questioned why it is necessary.

Residents contend there is no documented need for it because the industrial park on Main Street only has two tenants at this time.

Some of those in attendance called for a complete environmental impact study before any action is taken on the proposed change.

The area of the proposed change consists of about 210 acres stretching on both sides of Broad and Milk Street, between North School Road and Dunn Road.

Members of the Planning and Zoning Commission said that site was picked because it isn't in a densely populated residential area, it's on a state road near the highway, and that there is enough land there to take care of possible future needs of the town.

The town planner feels making the change now would be better because it wouldn't inconvenience as many

Panel Caught in Middle Over Funding Demands

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — As it has happened so many times in the past, the Town Council finds itself between a rock and a hard place on matters of town financing.

On the one hand, it has been told to prioritize a list of items which one group or another has asked to be funded through either the Reserve Fund or some other contingency measure.

On the other, it has the town taxpayers, led by the local Concerned Citizens on Taxation, who have demanded no increase in the mill rate.

The result could mean some choices between the Grange pool renovation and the new fire truck, both of which have been lobbied for by the Recreation Department and the Fire Commission.

Asked if a decision must be made between the two, Council Chairman Henry Kinne replied, "Absolutely."

Kinne said the fire truck funding would fit his description of the Reserve Fund's use, but he had reservations about financing the Grange pool out of it.

The Reserve Fund is for emergency and unforeseen expenditures which cannot go to referendum because of time factors.

The pool renovation has an estimated price tag of $80,000 while the new fire truck, which is being considered to replace the one destroyed in the Hebron Avenue crash, would cost around $95,000 fully equipped.

If the Grange pool renovation is not approved, he said, "we still have the high school pool and Eastbury pool."

Kinne was informed that such a move would antagonize people, no matter which decision was made.

"You do the best you can and don't let it get to you," he replied philosophically.

As a possible remedy, he suggested a referendum could take place to let the taxpayers decide which capital expenditure should be approved.

"More politicians today are aware," he said, "that voters are willing to vote on major expenditures. That's what Proposition 13 says. We (the council) do the essentials and they approve the major items in the budget."

The Grange pool plan, originally set for a March 27 public hearing, is in limbo because the Board of Finance did not appropriate the funds.

Richter said the priority listing would be made first and the week's delay would not harm its approval.

"They have a budget workshop on March 29th," he said. "It's non-generating undertaking and should receive serious consideration."

One firm has indicated a desire to locate there if a road is built, according to Town Manager Donald Peach, and it's possible another may join it.

The advantage for the Town is that it would receive more taxes than it would pay in services.

"It's pretty hard to turn down that," Kinne said. "These industries are ready to move and that means tax dollars."

If the Grange pool renovation is not approved, he said, "we still have the high school pool and Eastbury pool."

Kinne was informed that such a

Betty Wagner, founding mother, will be the keynote speaker. Registration forms may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped legal envelope to Karen Berg, 252 Peter Green Road, Tolland, 06084.

The conference is open to parents, parents-to-be, childbirth educators, nursing and medical students, and health professionals. Babies are welcome.

Students Elected To Posts

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—Three area residents have been elected to leadership posts and will serve on the Student Congress of Providence College. They are: Kathleen M. Crowley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Crowley of 14 Crest Drive in Vernon; Kevin P. Golden, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Golden of 588 Foster Street in South Windsor; and Mark Vogel, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vogel of 41 Hayes Road in South Windsor.

Miss Crowley has been elected a representative of her class of 1980. A graduate of Rockville High School, she is majoring in business accounting at Providence College. Miss Vogel is also an executive officer of the Resident Board and a Dean's List student.

Golden, a psychology major, has been elected representative of his class of 1980. An East Catholic High School graduate, Golden is also a member of the Psychology Club at Providence College and serves on the Resident Life Committee and is active in intramural sports.

Elected a representative of his class of 1980, Vogel is a mathematics major. A graduate of East Catholic High School, Vogel is the anchorman for a Student Board of Governors at Providence College and is also a member of the Judo Club, the Pastoral Council, the Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Rhode Island, and Veritas, the college yearbook.

The Student Congress is the only organization at the Dominican college that represents the entire student body, which numbers approximately 3,400. The sole purpose of the Congress is to represent the interests of undergraduates in all facets of campus life, ranging from student rights to academic matters.

$1-a-Gallon Is Carter's Gift

WASHINGTON - For months, President Carter and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger have been talking about $1-a-gallon gasoline. This enticed, the oil men are rushing to make the prediction come true. They have seized upon the Iranian oil cutoff as an excuse for withholding supplies from their customers. Obviously, the oil profiteers would rather sell gas for $1 a gallon than for the 75-to-90 cents it now costs at the pump.

The Iranian shutdown reduced oil deliveries to the United States by no more than 3 percent, according to the General Accounting Office. Yet some of the major oil companies have cut back their deliveries by as much as 30 percent.

Suspicious officials expect the companies to resume deliveries as the price rises. In other words, the gas shortage will end as if by magic as soon as the price is right.

The love affair between the Carter administration and the oil crowd, meanwhile, has become an open secret. They began to eye one another during the closing months of the 1976 presidential campaign. Jimmy Carter desperately needed to win the oil states of Oklahoma and Texas.

So he began to carry on a flirtation with the oil tycoons who control the country, according to New Jersey prison officials, is quite different. "It's clearly just a start," said a spokesman for the state's Corrections Department. "Juvenile counselors say the program makes the kids more accessible to counseling. Most of them need a hell of a lot more help."

Other Editors Say

There is no denying the shock value of "Scared Straight," the New Jersey program which locks a group of youthful offenders in a prison cellblock and bombards them with the harsh, cruel reality of prison life. As detailed on local television it was an emotionally charged experience.

Before our eyes, the cocksure group of teenagers was confronted by a battery of convicts who snarled taunts at their faces, threatened their bodies with physical and sexual assault and sneered at their street-tough images. By hour's end, and there was testimony that year after their visit to Rahway State Prison, they were still "straight."

It is tempting to see the New Jersey program as low-budget, quick cure for juvenile delinquency. Load the punk kids on a bus, run them through the cellblock, and out they come, ready to go straight for life.

The National Academy of Sciences' report on saccharin suggests a sensible resolution to the dilemma posed by discovery of the artificial sweeteners' cancer-causing properties.

The outright ban on saccharin advocated by the Food and Drug Administration in 1977 would adversely affect the nation's diabetics as well as those millions afflicted with obesity. But, by law, the FDA is prohibited from considering these effects once the link between cancer and saccharin is established.

The report recommends a balancing of saccharin's cancer-causing potential against its acknowledged health benefits. Saccharin use might be restricted in ways that would preserve its usefulness to those who need it while curtailing consumption by the general public.

To implement such a solution, Congress must amend the FDA law. This would permit a reasonable resolution of the controversy.

Equally important, the FDA would gain the flexibility to make rational decisions about other substances whose usefulness may outweigh the danger inherent in a marginal link to cancer.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.

American actor Karl Malden (Malden Sekulovich) was born March 22, 1914.

On this day in history: In 1791, Congress enacted legislation forbidding slave trading with foreign nations.

In 1820, Commodore Stephen Decatur, American naval hero, was mortally wounded in a duel with Commodore James Barron outside Washington, D.C., over Barron's removal from active duty.

The Columbia River began producing electric power for the Pacific Northwest.

In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson recalled Gen. William Westmoreland as commander of U.S. troops in Vietnam and made him Army Chief of Staff. Gen. Creighton Abrams took over in Saigon.

Even before Carter was sworn in as president, he was confronted with an urgent warning from government energy experts: "U.S. dependence on oil imports," he was told, was becoming "untenable." Of all forms of energy available within our boundaries, the United States was "dependent on the least abundant."

Oil not only was becoming increasingly scarce, they informed the president-elect, but it was concentrated in nations that had demonstrated their willingness to use oil as a "tool of their international politics."

Yet Carter ignored their advice to find a replacement for oil.

Two months after the Carter takeover, we reported that the Federal Energy Administration was ignoring "potential criminal violations" by the oil operators. "FEA officials across the country have pleaded for investigators to crack down on oil criminals," we wrote on March 25, 1977. "Auditors have begged for instructions and more personnel. But the requests have received resounding rejections in Washington."

The following month, we reported that Carter had left the oil industry's key people "in the right places inside the government to protect the oil interests."

We cited a confidential memo from frustrated officials who were trying to clean up the oil stains in government. "Big Oil still controls national energy policy," they wrote. The Carter administration's policies, the memo warned, "will reflect Big Oil's interests because the working data and supporting documentation is coming from the holdovers."

By the month of May 1977, the United States was spending a staggering $26 billion on imported oil each year. Yet there were no controls over oil purchases. "It is left to the oil companies, not the federal government, to negotiate the purchases," we reported. "This might be accepted as the American way, given our free enterprise system, except for some

"Our warnings began to stir up alarm in Capitol Hill by the end of the year. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., for one, wrote a stern letter to the Energy Secretary. "Many members of Congress," he notified Schlesinger, "have been deeply concerned over the growing control of our domestic energy resources by a handful of major oil companies."

Meanwhile, President Carter has been sobering about studies warning that the American way of life could be threatened if a solution isn't found for the energy crisis. Americans are now using 50 percent more oil than U.S. wells can pump.

He has considered many solutions. But the one that he has continued to favor has been to make the price of oil so high that fewer people will be able to afford it. He has promised world leaders that he will bring U.S. oil prices up to international levels by the end of 1980.

Meanwhile, he has encouraged the $1-a-gallon that would give the oil companies the double benefit of reducing consumption and increasing profits. They would make more money for selling less oil and the consumers would be the only losers.

The $1 Trillion Issue

There is considerably more drama in the Mideast maneuverings, and a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviets has higher political visibility.

But muted though advance notice has been, the upcoming congressional debate on MTN is as important a test as the administration is likely to face this year.

MTN is the Multilateral Trade Negotiation agreement, a comprehensive rewriting of world trade rules worked out in five years of sharp horse-trading in Geneva among 98 nations, including all of the world's major industrial economies and raw-material producers.

The agreement calls for a broad range of tariff reductions. But even more significant, it pledges the signatories to ease up on a multitude of import controls, product standards, licensing requirements export subsidies and the like. These trade-restrictive measures, in fact, have been the major concern of the negotiations.

The major industrial countries are also agreeing to open up bidding for government contracts to foreign firms.

The administration is mounting a major lobbying campaign in favor of MTN, and every bit of the effort is going to be needed. Congress is acutely aware of the nation's chronic trade deficit and under pressure from industries threatened by foreign competition and from organized labor, which translates more imports into fewer American jobs, is highly susceptible to protectionist pressures.

If most congressmen had their political druthers, they would make the American market more difficult rather than easier for foreign goods to enter.

Acknowledging the problem, the administration is agreeing in advance to restrict imports on a number of products, from clothespins to television sets and steel. And it has written into the current budget some $200 million for the restraining and relocation of workers adversely affected by an influx of foreign goods into the U.S. market.

But its major argument is that the United States has much more to gain than to lose by freer and therefore, it is assumed, a higher volume of trade. MTN by itself will not reduce the U.S. trade deficit. It will not, for example, curb the immense American appetite for foreign oil.

But it should make possible expanded exports to make paying for that oil easier.

And exports ultimately, it is argued, create many more jobs for American workers than are likely to be lost to foreign imports. According to the chief trade negotiator, Robert Strauss, access to government procurement contracts in other major countries alone opens up a $25 billion annual market to U.S. business.

Since 1970, the United States has lost more jobs to other countries than it has gained.

That's the way it is with jogs: Because we move faster, we age more slowly, and therefore live longer.

I had to laugh. "That's ridiculous," I scoffed. "The phenomena Einstein predicted would only occur at velocities approaching the speed of light."

"Have you seen me jogging around the block lately?" Goldthorn retorted.

Since I happened to have caught part of the Einstein program, I was in a position to pin him to the wall.

One sequence had Peter Ustinov playing both himself, on earth, and his twin brother, who was out in space. As the earth twin grew progressively more wrinkled and grey, the other twin's age did not change perceptibly.

"That was an illustration of how time could be influenced by dense gravitation around the mysterious 'black holes' in space," I said. "Joggers don't encounter anything like that."

"What about that pothole in front of your house?" Goldthorn demanded. "It's big enough to have its own gravitational field, isn't it?"

"Maybe so," I said, "but the effect is the opposite. Whereas 'black holes' delay the aging process, potholes make you grow older sooner than you normally would."

Then, pointing out that altitude as well as velocity theoretically has a bearing on the rate at which time elapses, I re.,.,.,. socked it to him.

"There is absolutely no evidence that Einstein had joggers in mind when he propounded the Theory of Relativity," I said. "It is more likely he was thinking of pole vaulters."

Weiss Criticizes Mason For Comment on Racism

MANCHESTER - Community Development Coordinator Alan N. Mason was accused today by Town Manager Robert Weiss of using poor judgment in a recent interview.

The comment was made in reference to Mason's response to questioning from Andrew Gold of the Hartford City Planning Commission at a meeting this week of the Capitol Region Council of Government's review committee. Mason said that racism is the main reason for the residents' opposition to federal community development programs.

"I think he is guilty of poor judgment in not getting his full view across," Weiss said of Mason, "but beyond that I have no further statement."

Mason has issued a statement clarifying his statement. The statement was issued after Weiss received a protest of Mason's remarks from town directors, Republican Carl A. Zinsner and Democrat Joseph T. Sweeney.

Zinsner, who with Zinsner had asked for a retraction of Mason's statement, or his resignation, said today he is pleased to see Mason "acknowledge publicly a number of good reasons for opposing federal community development programs."

Friends may call at the funeral home Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The night opening, which he suggested be done once a week would provide a better service to the public, FitzPatrick said.

The director, however, has yet to see any report from the administration on the subject.

McCarthy was assigned by Town Manager Robert Weiss to prepare the report. He said Wednesday he thought a brief report on the subject had been sent to FitzPatrick.

FitzPatrick said Wednesday night that he has yet to receive any information on his request, which he made a few months ago. McCarthy said this morning that he had been mistaken. The town still is studying the issue and nothing has been sent to the director, he said.

FitzPatrick has suggested the idea as one to keep night offices open at night. He said he would like to see night offices open at night occasionally. FitzPatrick suggested the idea for those offices that deal directly with the public, such as the tax collector or assessor.

Retarded May Get State Housing Aid

MANCHESTER - The Housing Authority Wednesday night approved a plan for the state to rent one- and two-bedroom apartments for subsidized housing for the mentally handicapped who are capable of living in the community.

John Lamb, deputy director of the housing bureau of the state Department of Economic Development, told the authority that present plans call for 10 units of housing for the mentally handicapped to be located in Manchester or Vernon.

There are 71 communities, including Glastonbury, now involved in the program, and Manchester is one of 10 more communities where the state is planning to initiate the program, he said.

"We'll be looking at the housing market just as anyone would. It's an entirely voluntary program, and a landlord can agree to or not agree to rent to us," he said.

The program will give people now living in institutions who are capable of living in a community the opportunity to do so, Lamb told the authority. "The program is not to be used as a last resort, but it is to be used as a last resort when necessary."

Only those identified as capable to participate in the program will be involved. The apartments selected must be near public transportation and shopping facilities. All of those participating will be given jobs.

It is important that the program start out with a positive image. It will be educational only if emotional reluctance to it can be broken down. It's not going to be simple, but the objective is to get this group of Connecticut residents back into the community and in their own homes, Lamb said.

Before the state can carry out such a program in a community, the Housing Authority as well as the "governing body" of the town must allow the state to do it. "I think it is only proper for the town to invite us in," Lamb said.

Lamb reassured the authority that there was an extensive evaluation and assessment by qualified people before anyone is selected to participate in the program.

James Murphy also wanted to know if the retarded from Bridgeport, for example, would be sent to town. Lamb said that was "highly unlikely," and that most of the tenants would have originally lived in the area.

The Housing Authority and Board of Directors must sign a resolution in support for the program before it can begin. The authority plans to do so at next month's meeting.

MANCHESTER - A 15-year-old young boy in an area off Vernon Street. No charges have been lodged in connection with those incidents, which did not involve threats or assaults of any kind. Liegl is scheduled to appear in court April 2.

A seven-year-old girl sustained only bruises as the result of an auto-pedestrian accident Wednesday afternoon. Sandra Lebrun of 127 Birch St. was treated and released at Manchester Memorial Hospital for bruises on her scalp and ankle.

Police said the girl was one of three children who ran in front of a car on Birch Street driven by Karen Ferguson, 24, of 177 Birch St. The other two children stopped when they saw the car, but the Lebrun girl continued and fell to the pavement at the curb. The car skidded to a stop.

Police said it was uncertain whether there was any contact between the vehicle and the child. No charges were filed.

Steven Smith, 21, of 14 Wilcox Street Drive, Vernon, was charged with third-degree burglary and third-degree larceny on a warrant Wednesday. He was released for court April 3.

The Beantowners also have to be concerned with the arm miseries of Carleton Fish and Butch Hobson and in recent days have become worried about Freddy Lynn's lease. Boston would make a good script for 'General Hospital'.

California. Every spring the Angels look good on paper and they do again this year. The addition of Rod Carew can only help and their pitching staff seems to have fewer questionmarks. Now all owner Gene Autry has to hope is everything finally falls into place.

San Francisco has the pitching and maybe just enough hitting to down the pitcher-poor Cincinnati Reds and score to-be-in-turmoil Los Angeles Dodgers. There's a power leg in the latter camp and the question is when it'll explode.

Pittsburgh has the pitching and hitting and if the Pirates' defense improves - watch out Philadelphia has its dream infield but the Phillies have two questions. Is Pete Rose a first baseman and who's on the mound in the starting rotation? MANCHESTER - The Housing Authority Wednesday night approved a plan for the state to rent one- and two-bedroom apartments for subsidized housing for the mentally handicapped who are capable of living in the community.

John Lamb, deputy director of the housing bureau of the state Department of Economic Development, told the authority that present plans call for 10 units of housing for the mentally handicapped to be located in Manchester or Vernon.

There are 71 communities, including Glastonbury, now involved in the program, and Manchester is one of 10 more communities where the state is planning to initiate the program, he said.

"We'll be looking at the housing market just as anyone would. It's an entirely voluntary program, and a landlord can agree to or not agree to rent to us," he said.

The program will give people now living in institutions who are capable of living in a community the opportunity to do so, Lamb told the authority. "The program is not to be used as a last resort, but it is to be used as a last resort when necessary."

Only those identified as capable to participate in the program will be involved. The apartments selected must be near public transportation and shopping facilities. All of those participating will be given jobs.

It is important that the program start out with a positive image. It will be educational only if emotional reluctance to it can be broken down. It's not going to be simple, but the objective is to get this group of Connecticut residents back into the community and in their own homes, Lamb said.

Before the state can carry out such a program in a community, the Housing Authority as well as the "governing body" of the town must allow the state to do it. "I think it is only proper for the town to invite us in," Lamb said.

Lamb reassured the authority that there was an extensive evaluation and assessment by qualified people before anyone is selected to participate in the program.

James Murphy also wanted to know if the retarded from Bridgeport, for example, would be sent to town. Lamb said that was "highly unlikely," and that most of the tenants would have originally lived in the area.

The Housing Authority and Board of Directors must sign a resolution in support for the program before it can begin. The authority plans to do so at next month's meeting.

MANCHESTER - A 15-year-old young boy in an area off Vernon Street. No charges have been lodged in connection with those incidents, which did not involve threats or assaults of any kind. Liegl is scheduled to appear in court April 2.

A seven-year-old girl sustained only bruises as the result of an auto-pedestrian accident Wednesday afternoon. Sandra Lebrun of 127 Birch St. was treated and released at Manchester Memorial Hospital for bruises on her scalp and ankle.

Police said the girl was one of three children who ran in front of a car on Birch Street driven by Karen Ferguson, 24, of 177 Birch St. The other two children stopped when they saw the car, but the Lebrun girl continued and fell to the pavement at the curb. The car skidded to a stop.

Police said it was uncertain whether there was any contact between the vehicle and the child. No charges were filed.

Steven Smith, 21, of 14 Wilcox Street Drive, Vernon, was charged with third-degree burglary and third-degree larceny on a warrant Wednesday. He was released for court April 3.

California. Every spring the Angels look good on paper and they do again this year. The addition of Rod Carew can only help and their pitching staff seems to have fewer questionmarks. Now all owner Gene Autry has to hope is everything finally falls into place.

Already people are asking "divisional pennants?" - and the major league baseball teams haven't broken spring training camps yet.

If everything remained true to the season, which of course it won't, the selections here would be the New York Yankees, California Angels, San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Yankees are having a horrible spring but maybe it's a sign from their heydays. They always had terrible camp marks and then would run away when the gun sounded.

Don't be surprised to see the Boston Red Sox as far down as fifth place. Bill Campbell might be ready sooner than anticipated but then again Bobby Sponsi counted on in some corners to break into the starting rotation, has already been assigned to Pawtucket.

Carter Indiana's Hero With Hoop at Buzzer

NEW YORK (UPI) - Butch Carter, a 6-foot-5 junior guard won the National Invitation Tournament for Indiana by sinking a 20-foot jump shot with six seconds remaining, which gave the Hoosiers a 53-52 victory over Big Ten and state rival Purdue.

However, nearly 15,000 people and a national television audience knew how close he came to being the goat. Indiana was trailing, 52-51, and had the ball with 4:30 remaining when it elected to go into a stall and wait for the last shot. The Hoosiers moved the ball around and clipped 3-22 off the clock when Carter sped Ray Tolbert underneath for what appeared to be an easy basket.

However, Purdue's Mike Searce intercepted the pass and it appeared that with only 1:08 remaining the Boilermakers would win.

Following Searce's interception, Purdue went into a freeze. They whirled the clock down to 21 seconds when its big center, Joe Barry Carroll, was fouled.

All he had to do was make both ends of a one-and-one and there was little chance Indiana could win. But, Carroll missed the first shot and Indiana got the rebound and a chance at the final shot.

After a foul was called on Purdue's Arnette Hallman, Indiana took the ball out of bounds. But, not before a lengthy skill session from Coach Bob Knight. In an attempt to coach Purdue and get strategy across to its own players, Knight called three straight time outs.

The Bulls with 21 points and Earl Monroe added 20 points. Greg Ballard 16, Dave Corzine and Larry Wright 10 each for the Bulls - all off the bench. Toby Knight led the Bulls to a 24-10 lead in the fourth quarter to score nine of his 24 points and pace San Antonio.

Walter Davis scored 33 points, Paul Westphal had 28 and Alvan Adams contributed 23, to lead Phoenix over Boston. The Clippers 106, Warriors 103.

Randy Smith sank two free throws with 12 seconds to play to clinch the win for the Clippers.

Trail Blazers 114, Lakers 110. Maurice Lucas hit a layup with 14 seconds remaining to ensure the Portland win.

Several reports also indicated Cunningham could be in line to succeed the highly successful J.D. Morgan, 60, when Morgan steps down as the UCLA athletic director.

Morgan, who has been athletic director at UCLA since 1963, underwent open heart surgery last year and has been in poor health.

The Times said another report has Cunningham becoming the assistant athletic director under Morgan.

Caps, Penguins In Listless Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Danny Belisle couldn't have been more accurate when he talked about his team's play Wednesday night against the Pittsburgh Penguins.

"It was a listless game," the Washington coach said. "Both teams played about the same."

Actually, both teams played exactly the same, and came away with a 2-2 tie. The deadlock was earned when Bryan Walter and Dennis March scored third-period goals for Washington. The late scores offset a pair of goals by Pittsburgh's Rick Kibbe, who scored his 22nd of the season in the second period and his 23rd in the third.

The tie marked the Penguins' fifth straight game without a loss and moved them one point ahead of the idle Los Angeles Kings in the battle for second place in the Norris Division and an automatic playoff berth.

Red Wings 4, Maple Leafs 2.
Dallas 6, Oakland 4.
Detroit 7, Philadelphia 3.
Boston 7, Boston Bruins 6.
Anders Hedberg scored two goals.

Pat Hickey added a controversial tally and the Rangers held off Chicago in a wild eight-goal third period, for the Black Hawks' seventh straight loss.

Norfolk Stars 7, Flyers 3.
Mike Fidler and Steve Payne each scored their first NHL hat trick to power Minnesota.

Sabres 3, Hawks 2.
Gil Perreault and Jim Schoenfeld took advantage of late defensive lapses to score unassisted goals in the third period for the win.

Blues 1, Canucks 1.
Thomas Gradin scored midway through the game to give Vancouver its tie with St. Louis to remain eight points ahead of the Blues for the final playoff spot in the Smythe Division.

WHA
Brett Callighan and Steve Carlson each scored two goals in the second period and the win lifted the Oilers five points ahead of the second-place Quebec Nordiques.

Staub Plans to Retire

NEW YORK (UPI) — The biggest news out of Florida Wednesday night had nothing to do with any of the exhibition games played — it was that one of baseball's most consistent clutch hitters may well have called it quits.

Rusty Staub apparently has decided he does not want to continue as the best designated hitter in league — and is retiring from the Detroit Tigers.

Staub, 35, and Detroit Tigers' President-General Manager Jim Campbell held their first talk Wednesday since a statement developed between the two during the winter. Both sides refused to budge.

"It looks like I'll have to sit down and write a letter to Jim and explain to him that I'm not going to be playing baseball for him this year," Staub said.

Staub, 35, hit 273 with 24 home runs and 121 runs batted in for Detroit last season, but decided during the winter he wanted an additional three years tacked on to his current pact, which has two years remaining.

In exhibition play Wednesday, the Tigers beat Boston 5-1, the Chicago White Sox topped Kansas City 7-6, in

NHL-WHA Meets Today

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Hockey League Board of Governors is reconsidering its recent refusal to admit four teams from the rival World Hockey Association.

The board failed to approve an expansion plan March 8 at a meeting at Key Largo, Fla. NHL President John Ziegler scheduled a special meeting in Chicago today to reconsider the controversial proposal.

The original, 16-page plan would have required each WHA team to pay $6 million to join the NHL and barred Canadian-based WHA clubs from participating in a national TV pool of Hockey Night in Canada for three years.

The earlier vote was 12-5 in favor of expansion, one short of the required 13 votes. Published reports have indicated Montreal or Vancouver, or both, would change their votes and accept the merger proposal. Toronto, Boston and Los Angeles also reportedly voted against the plan during the earlier balloting.

WHA franchises in Edmonton, New England, Quebec and Winnipeg would be accepted into the NHL, increasing the number of league teams to 21 if the plan is approved. Cincinnati and Birmingham would be paid to fold.

Ziegler said the merger process may take some time because a formal proposal must first be presented to the NHL board of governors, then the WHA owners must decide if they are willing to accept the terms the NHL sets. An NHL spokesman said Wednesday the special meeting could "last only an hour or go on for two days."

In addition, the National Hockey League Players Association has warned it would seek a $12 million payment from the NHL before agreeing to any merger. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHLPA, said the association would require half of the $24 million the four WHA clubs would reportedly have to pay to gain an NHL franchise.

Eagleson also said the group is opposed to the requirement WHA clubs give up players to enter the NHL.

"I don't think we should stand around as players and let the four new additions strip themselves of their assets just to please the president of the NHL," Eagleson said. Despite Eagleson's objections and reports the WHA is interested in attracting European teams, the WHA apparently still is seeking approval of the merger plan.

"There are 23 teams in professional hockey, 17 in the NHL and six in the WHA," said WHA President Howard Baldwin. "Of the 23, 18 wanted expansion and five didn't — what more do I need to say."

Gullikson Upsets Connors

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Tom Gullikson was not having a good year.

The 28-year-old tennis professional from Easton, Pa., had won only three singles matches this year — until Wednesday night.

That's when he twisted his serve enough to unbalance No. 1 seed Jimmy Connors and eliminate him, qualified for a quarterfinal berth against sixth-seeded Roscoe Tanner.

The left-hander's surprise win ended the hopes of tournament promoters to match Connors and second-seeded Bjorn Borg at the finals Sunday afternoon.

Connors' coach, Roscoe Tanner jumped to the top of the pack seeking backhand and forcing him to hit under the ball rather than over it, as is his custom.

"It worked," Gullikson said after the match. "Did you see the problems Connors had handling my kicking serve to his backhand?"

Gullikson, ranked 37rd worldwide, defeated Connors in three sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, in the second round of the $175,000 Festival of Tennis Tournament in the New Orleans Municipal Auditorium.

The unseeded Gullikson pressed Connors, particularly in the final two sets, by kicking the ball to Connors'

Borg, No. 3 seed McEnroe and No. 5 seed Brian Gottfried were on the sidelines Wednesday. All three were scheduled to play their second-round matches Thursday.

Borg was scheduled to meet Dick Stockton in his second-round match and McEnroe was paired against Kim Warwick. Gottfried was to slay Sherwood Stewart.

Austin and Evert Meeting Tonight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tracy Austin, knowing what question was coming at her next, shrugged her shoulders coyly, smiled, and said, "Don't ask."

The question came anyway. Does she think, at the age of 16, she's mentally prepared to beat Chris Evert, the one top player she has yet to conquer?

"Chris is 24," Austin replied. "She's had a lot more experience than me, and that's what makes the difference in mental attitude."

The two young ladies, both opening round winners Wednesday in a $250,000 woman's tennis championship, meet for the fourth time tonight and Evert, for one, knows that past performance means naught.

"I've never lost to Austin, but I haven't played her since the U.S. Open," Evert said following her first round 6-3, 6-4 victory over Sue Barker. "Tracy is a tough opponent. She's not a little girl any more and this business of being her idol won't mean a thing."

Austin got off to a slow start in her match against Wendy Turnbull Wednesday, but then broke the Australian's service three times in each of the final two sets for a 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 victory. In the other opening round contests, top seed Martina Navratilova was devastating in a 6-3, 6-3 conquest of Greer Stevens, and Virginia Wade beat Dianne Fromholtz, 6-4, 6-1.

Under the format of the double elimination tournament, it will be winners against winners and losers against losers tonight. Thus, Turnbull and Barker will begin the elimination tournament, but they will be Evert-Austin, Navratilova-Wade and Fromholtz-Stevens.

It will require two victories to qualify for Saturday's semifinals, and a $100,000 jackpot, the richest prize in women's tennis, awaits Sunday's winner.

There will be recruiting battles waged over other top prospects but none for one.

Standout East Catholic High left-handed pitcher Craig Steuernagel confirmed Wednesday he will be attending the University of Connecticut in the fall.

"I wish he was a freshman right now," voiced UConn Assistant Coach Andy Baylock, who followed Steuernagel's progress the past two years, upon hearing the confirmation.

"He is the No. 1 pitching prospect as far as the teams we've seen in the 1979-80 season."

The slenderly built Eagle hurler burst on the scene two years ago striking out 56 to 58 2/3 innings and compiling a 5-4 record. The hard-throwing southpaw added 85 strikeout victims in 57 2/3 innings a year ago with a 3-4 won-loss mark. Steuernagel is expected to be the ace of the East staff in 1979 with Coach Jim Penders looking for a big season.

"I'm very happy he's going to Connecticut. I love the kid, he comes from a beautiful family. We're getting a solid student, a solid citizen."

"I like him, I like the program he's coming from," Baylock continued. Steuernagel will attend the School of Business Administration.

Jude Knapp Tom Matman

Jude Knapp of Manchester was named the outstanding wrestler in the Bantam Division of the Connecticut AAU Open Tournament last weekend at Rockville High.

John Knapp of Manchester was also a winner in the same division as well as Reverele, Craig Williams and Joel Castin of Vernon.

Bill Revell of Vernon was tops in the Junior Division while other winners included Amy Slicer of Vernon, Joe Flanagan and Bob Riskey of East Hartford.

Guest of the group's training program last week was Bob Backlund, champion of the world's wrestling title. He also participated in calisthenics and demonstrated several techniques allowed in amateur wrestling.

Perry All Academic

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — For the second straight year, Ronnie Perry of Holy Cross was named to the university division 1978-79 All Academic basketball team, announced by Bill DeWalt of Vernon.

Perry, a 6-foot-3 junior guard, led his team to a berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Perry — with a 3.87 grade point average in economics — is the nation's No. 13 scorer with a 24.8 points per game average. He ranks fifth in free throw shooting at 90.7 percent.

Qualified Physicians Lacking with Schools

CHICAGO (UPI) — High school athletes would recover faster from injuries if doctors familiar with sports medicine were at the scene, a Chicago physician says.

Dr. Richard Shaw, who has nearly two decades of sports medicine experience, said Tuesday the recovery period from injuries to prep athletes could be reduced if the nation's high schools spent more money to recruit and educate school doctors.

Shaw, an official of Blue Cross-Blue Shield in Chicago, said high school athletic programs have advanced far more rapidly than schools' ability to provide medical care for their athletes. He said an extensive training program, possibly funded by the states, could help provide the needed experience for high school doctors and nurses.

"I think we can cut down the recovery period from many of the injuries if we have the people at the scene who know what they are doing," Shaw said in an interview.

"I'm not saying we can prevent injuries this way, but having the properly trained doctor who knows about sports medicine is a must."

Shaw's comments came on the eve of a governor's conference on sports medicine in Illinois high schools held in Chicago today. The conference will discuss injury treatment and prevention, product liability and the role of doctors with enough training to serve the school on a part-time basis, but many do not.

"Of course, we are talking about money, but the schools who have the choice whether to cut back their athletic programs or cut back the medical programs would be unwise in cutting back the medical side."

Rangers Won't Stand Pat Under Corbett

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Like most self-made millionaires, Brad Corbett doesn't tolerate inefficiency.

When something or somebody doesn't perform up to expectations, Corbett doesn't hesitate to get rid of the problem. That's why this year's version of the Texas Rangers bears only a slight resemblance to last year's.

Corbett, the Rangers' owner, carved into his team this past winter like a surgeon performing a facelift. Gone are Toby Harrah, Mike Hargrove, Juan Beniquez and Bobby Bonds, all of whom had become favorites of the Texas fans.

In their place are such talents as Buddy Bell, Oscar Gamble, Sparky Lyle and Jim Kerr. Has Corbett created a handsome prince with his scalpel ... or another monster?

"Last year we were strong on paper but, for some reason, we lacked self-confidence," says outfielder Al Oliver. "And this year I don't think we're as strong offensively as we were last year."

In order for us to win our division, I think we'll have to put all three aspects of our game together — good pitching, timely hitting and good defense. This is something we didn't do last year."

Another newcomer is Manager Pat Corrales. He was given the job on the final day of last season and he already has built a solid rapport with his club.

"Now we have a manager who is liked and respected by all," said Oliver. "Believe me, that's a rarity in the big leagues today."

Staub Plans to Retire

NEW YORK (UPI) — The biggest news out of Florida Wednesday night had nothing to do with any of the exhibition games played — it was that one of baseball's most consistent clutch hitters may well have called it quits.

Rusty Staub apparently has decided he does not want to continue as the best designated hitter in league — and is retiring from the Detroit Tigers.

Staub, 35, and Detroit Tigers' President-General Manager Jim Campbell held their first talk Wednesday since a statement developed between the two during the winter. Both sides refused to budge.

"It looks like I'll have to sit down and write a letter to Jim and explain to him that I'm not going to be playing baseball for him this year," Staub said.

Staub, 35, hit 273 with 24 home runs and 121 runs batted in for Detroit last season, but decided during the winter he wanted an additional three years tacked on to his current pact, which has two years remaining.

In exhibition play Wednesday, the Tigers beat Boston 5-1, the Chicago White Sox topped Kansas City 7-6, in

Herzog Tells it Best About Bosox Failure

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Whitley Herzog tells it best.

"We were going to Boston for the second time last season and my wife told me she wanted to go with us," says the Kansas City manager. "I told her, 'Why do you want to go now — you'll be there for the playoffs anyway.' They had a she hasn't stopped giving me hell since."

The saga of the 1978 Red Sox is that of a Love Boat that collided with Plymouth Rock and sank grudgingly into the sea. Cruising into September with a seven-game lead in the American League East, the injury-ravaged Red Sox lost 13 of their next 16 before rallying in the last week to force a one-game playoff with New York.

After 163 games, the Yankees and Red Sox were separated by one run. It was enough.

"That sure was exciting wasn't it?" asks Boston Manager Don Zimmer about last year's final weeks. But Jim Rice made each game exciting for Zimmer by being routinely spectacular. The outfielder-designated hitter won the AL Most Valuable Player Award for leading the majors in six offensive categories. He was the first AL pitcher to compile at least 400 total bases in 41 years but even he couldn't help the team overcome late injuries to Dwight Evans, Butch Hobson and Jerry Remy.

Luis Tiant and Bill Lee are gone from the pitching staff and Zimmer says he has to find two starters to go along with Mike Torrez, Bob Stanley and Dennis Eckersley. The key man on the team, however, is reliever Bill Campbell according to Zimmer.

After brilliant seasons in 1976 and 1977 with 30 victories and 51 saves, Campbell was limited to only 29 appearances last season due to a sore elbow. Eight of the team's last 17 losses last season were by one run, including the big one on Oct. 2 when

Big Task to Fill Rose's Shoes

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — He wears the same size nine shoes as Pete Rose but Cincinnati's Ray Knight will have an enormous task trying to fill them.

Rose peddled his annual 300 batting average to Philadelphia during the offseason and Knight is determined to prove his 200 average last year was due to inactivity. Sparky Anderson is also gone after guiding the Reds to second-place finishes in the National League West the last two seasons.

The Reds' camp has its share of intrigue. Anderson has been seen interviewing his successor, Manager John McNamara, for a Los Angeles television station and Joe Morgan and Tom Seaver — two of baseball's brightest stars during the '70's — are question marks after injury-filled seasons.

"I've always liked a challenge ... it's in my blood," says McNamara, who has to fight off the oncoming San Francisco Giants and San Diego Padres in addition to catching division winner Los Angeles. "Nobody's told me I had to win the pennant or else," McNamara says, "but this year is the chance of going all the way."

Cincinnati was a close second behind the Dodgers in runs scored but the pitching staff was among the league's most generous in 1978. Seaver fell from 21-6 to 16-14, Fred Norman was battered after the All-Star break and Bill Bonham comes off elbow surgery.

The Reds, however, still boast a potent lineup, and if Morgan returns to his 1975 and '76 Most Valuable Player form, they may wrest the West title away from the Dodgers.

STRENGTHS — One of NL's best power hitters in George Foster; top-notch reliever in Doug Bair; excellent infield defense; good overall speed; solid blend of veterans and youth.

WEAKNESSES — Starting pitching more shallow than a bay at West title; little power beyond Foster and Johnny Bench; will miss Rose's leadership as well as his 200 hits, 10th at catcher behind 31-year-old Bench.

OUTLOOK — Rose is gone and the Reds' pennant hopes may have gone with him. Enough quality hitters remain, however, but Reds need bounce-back seasons from Morgan and Seaver to lead them to sixth divisional title of decade.

Correct Winter Care Results in Rewards

By FRANK ATWOOD

Gardeners are having their reward now for the trouble of potting spring bulbs last October...

The three flowers reached full and perfect bloom the day I took the picture. The next morning they had started to look less than perfect...

The green leaves stayed strong and upright, building a supply of food in the large bulbs for another year...

Hyacinths, for me, have been among the most reliable spring bulbs to force for early bloom...

Flowers Outdoors

We have two spring flowers outdoors, most welcome in early March. A clump of snowdrops, pushed through a covering of dead leaves...

The bulbs were barely covered. The pots were thoroughly watered and then left to drain. Before cold winter weather, they were set in the cold frame on a bed of bark chips...

Moisture reached the buried bulb pots from rain and melting snow, since the tarpaulin is not tight...

Crocuses are equally reliable and we have two kinds showing color, a deep purple crocus and one that has stripes of brown and yellow...

Singer Teaches History Through Nautical Ballads

By OLGA SULLIVAN

MANCHESTER — Balladeer Jim Douglas of Somers entertained the Manchester Historical Society at a recent dinner meeting with songs of the sea and their history.

A professional folksinger and historical balladeer, Douglas earned his master's degree in history from the University of Connecticut. He incorporates the history of times past with the songs of the period.

His program was mainly songs of the sea combined with slides of the Charles Morgan and Myrtle Seaport. Douglas is particularly interested in songs and ballads of ordinary people of the 1812 to 1899 period, whose livelihood depended on the whaling industry. Since most whaling trips lasted from three to five years during which time about 30 whales were caught and processed into oil...

After the long period at sea, the men returned to port and were paid according to the size of the catch. It usually took about a month for the men to be relieved of their funds and many signed on for another trip, Douglas said.

The long period at sea did not prove to be as adventurous to others and they found other work.

Doctor Named Recipient Of Annual Chamber Award

MANCHESTER — The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce announced today that as part of its celebration of local achievement it is presenting a 1979 Community Service Award to Dr. Douglas H. Smith.

Dr. Smith, who will receive his Community Service Award for community beautification, has lived in Manchester since 1964. The local anesthesiologist is a graduate of the Syracuse University Medical School, and he and his wife Jean are the parents of three children, Bradley, Jeffrey, and Cynthia.

In selecting Dr. Smith for this distinction, the Chamber reviewed a history that includes involvement in several ongoing efforts, creation of new activities where unmet needs existed and an untiring devotion to improving the environmental and aesthetic quality of life in Manchester.

Dr. Smith became involved in civic affairs in Manchester by joining and playing an active role in the Jaycees. In 1964 he joined the Chamber's Environment and Beautification Committee, and over the past 15 years has twice held the chairman's position. Under his leadership, the committee has historically been a strong point of the Chamber with programs such as the Memorial Tree Program, beautification awards and town-wide clean-up programs. A strong advocate of using regular maintenance procedures as a deterrent to decay and vandalism, Dr. Smith has led area efforts to improve roadside and town entrance areas.

"Looking back over his accomplishments with the Environment and Beautification Committee, Greg Wolff, chairman of the Board of Chamber, described Dr. Smith as "the type of leader the Chamber must have if we are to be successful in our efforts to improve the quality of life in Manchester. He is certainly not one to back away from hard work or overwhelming odds, and his dedication and perseverance are an example for the rest of those involved in community affairs."

In addition to his work with the Chamber, Dr. Smith is presently chairman of the Hockanum River Light Art Committee, an organization he has served with since 1970. He is also a past-president of the Manchester Land Conservation Trust, Inc. and is currently the group's program chairman. The Chamber noted that through his efforts with these two organizations, and with the help of many other dedicated volunteers, Manchester has come to be respected as a community concerned with preserving its open space and providing a healthy environment for its residents.

Often seen testifying before local and state legislative bodies, Dr. Smith has been credited with increasing the awareness of the business community with regard to its commitment to the appearance and welfare of the community. A relentless observer of the condition of public land, he has continually provided guidance and leadership to many local groups, said James Breitenfeld.

The Community Service Awards were created to honor those persons with outstanding records of service in important areas. The public and friends of the award recipients are invited to share in the celebration when the Chamber formally pays tribute to these leaders at its 78th Annual Banquet on April 4. Ticket information is available through the Chamber office at 257 East Center St.

Survey Response Begins

BOLTON — Raymond A. Allen Jr., superintendent of schools, said Wednesday that the response to the surveys, sent out by the school system, has been gratifying to an officer in the U.S. Navy. He developed a Japanese garden on traditional lines in Bloomfield and suggested that some of the garden club members might find a similar project easy and rewarding.

The filled out forms can be placed in the mail, brought to school by students, left at the office of the superintendent, or left in the Board of Education mail box on Notch Road, the superintendent said. Returns must be in by this coming Monday.

Allen said that the direction the school system is to take in the future is perhaps the most important issue to be considered in the town in the last 20 years and the administration and board need the thoughts and feelings of everyone concerning this matter.

Respondents are also asked if they agree or disagree with several statements concerning the elementary program and others concerning the high school program. They are also asked how they feel the grades should be organized and are offered three plans for consideration. One plan puts K-8 together and high school alone; another puts K-4, a middle school for Grades 5-8, and the high school; and the third offers elementary for Grades K-4 and high school for Grades 7-12.

They are also asked if they feel Bolton students would receive a better education by attending a larger high school in another community or if they feel it is important to keep Bolton High open.

In connection with deciding if the high school should be kept open or not, respondents are asked how important a factor is the cost of education of a student at Bolton High; if the school were to close which school would they prefer sending students to; and would they favor other towns sending students to Bolton High.

Dems Criticized On Advice Vote

MANCHESTER — Republican Director Peter DiRosa has criticized the Democratic majority for avoiding its role as decision-makers by approving advisory questions about the Community Development Program.

DiRosa also commented on the need for information about how much funding will be needed to complete Community Development projects. He said the Democrats will provide the figures about how much funding is needed to complete projects if the ban goes into effect June 30.

Anti-Nuke Group To Risk Arrest

GROTON (UPI) — A group opposed to nuclear weaponry says its members are willing to risk arrest in an effort to close the Electric Boat shipyard during next month's launching of the first Trident nuclear submarine.

Groton police said Wednesday as many as 1-500 people may attend the protest. Police said they had no definite plans at this moment for dealing with the demonstrators, but had no reason to consider calling in the National Guard or extra assistance.

EB spokesman Alex Piranian said the shipyard had made special security arrangements in light of the planned protest.

New Britain Officials Face Extortion Charge

HARTFORD (UPI) — Three past and present New Britain officials are free on bond after being charged in connection with an extortion plot involving persons applying for city jobs.

They appeared before Superior Court Judge John Brennan shortly after their arrests. Hackett was charged with one count of perjury and one count of bribe receiving, which carry a maximum sentence of 10 years in jail if he is convicted. Banulski was charged with two counts of perjury and also faces 10-year maximum jail sentence if convicted.

Chief State's Attorney Austin McGuigan said the one-man grand jury probe which led to the arrests will continue. He refused to say whether there will be more arrests, but said additional evidence will be gathered.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My parents fought all the time. When they finally got a divorce, I was sent to live with my grandparents. Well, they fought worse than my parents, but it was better than an orphanage.

I had a pretty tough life as a kid, but it didn't do me any harm.

When I had a paper route when I was 10, I had to get up at 4 a.m. daily. Nobody drove me. I went alone in the pitch dark and I was sometimes 20 below zero.

They say kids learn from example, but that's not always true. My father was an alcoholic. After seeing what it did to him and our family, you couldn't pay me to take a drink. My grandfather smoked like a chimney and his breath smelled so bad I vowed I'd never smoke. And I never have.

Sometimes the bad examples kids see will work in reverse. Instead of imitating those bad habits, kids will try all the harder to do the opposite.

What do you say, Abby?

South's two-notrump opening bid was slightly off beat because he lacked a stopper in hearts, but it most clearly described in one bid his high-card strength and distribution. North showed both his suits and his five-spade bid opened first- or second-round control in spades; in this case, a void. Although six diamonds was cold, as notrump was not a bad contract, it seemed to depend on West having either missing heart honor.

After the lead of the jack of spades, however, declarer could not win the hand.
