Market Falls

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market fell in moderate trading Friday in reaction to the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island, Pa., and the government's report of a decline in its economic indicators.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which managed to gain 0.52 point Thursday, lost 4.59 points to 862.18, but ended the week with a gain of 2.43 points.

The New York Stock Exchange index dropped 0.21 to 57.13 and the price of a share shed 12 cents. Declines topped advances, 791 to 607, among the 1,886 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Nuclear energy stocks generally plunged and dragged the rest of the market with them in the wake of the accident near Harrisburg, Pa.

General Public Utilities, the holding company that owns the Three Mile Island plant, asked that trading in its stock be suspended until the situation clears up. The stock was off 1/4 to 1 1/2% in active trading on the NYSE before transactions were halted. It was down 1/2 to 1 1/4% in composite trading.

Farmers' Markets

RICHMOND, R.I. (UPI) — Once-flourishing farmers' markets could soon make a comeback in Rhode Island.

A growers group, The Southern Rhode Island Small Farmers, plans a network of markets where its members can sell their home-grown products directly to the public. The first will open behind the Richmond School in May.

A second group, the East Bay Small Farm and Garden Association, plans to open markets in June in Newport, Portsmouth and possibly Middletown.

"There are no two ways about it," Hopkinton farmer Harold Markham said. "You just can't beat locally grown goods. They taste better, are more nutritious and cost less than most of the stuff you buy in the big stores."

Sees Carter Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Republican presidential candidate Lowell Weicker Friday predicted he Democratic Party will dump President Carter in 1980 and instead nominate Sen. Edward Kennedy or Vice President Walter Mondale or, as "a bad third," California Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

On Whom Is the Joke?

This is not your run of the mill April Fool's photograph. The photographer did indeed set out to get a gag shot along with his regular assignments. In the normal course of events, he took a picture of a gentleman, whose name we are not mentioning. Later he took a picture of a raccoon, whose name we never did learn. Then by means of a mistake too embarrassing to discuss, he found both images on the same negative, beautifully superimposed. John Stempfer is not reluctant to have us tell about it. He thinks nobody will believe it anyway. We know at least one raccoon and one gentleman who know it's true.

Public Forum Set On CD Funds Ban

MANCHESTER — Six panelists will present opposing views on the upcoming HUD referendum question at a public forum Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Iling Junior High School auditorium.

The Manchester League of Women Voters and the town's Human Relations Commission are sponsoring the event.

"Recent polls have indicated widespread public uncertainty and confusion concerning the HUD program and its role in Manchester's future," said Human Relations Commissioner David Call and Elizabeth Lauder, voters service chairman of the League. "We believe the forum will present a good balance of views on the question of whether Manchester should continue to participate in HUD's Community Development Block Grant Program."

The audience will be able to submit questions to the panelists and to resource people who are qualified to give factual information regarding the program.

James Breitenfeld, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, will moderate the discussion.

Speakers favorable to the town's continued participation in the HUD program will be Gerry Harvey of JOIN, Mayor Stephen Penny, and William Sliech, a member of the Downtown Coordinating Committee.

Speaking as advocates of a two-year moratorium on the use of block grants by Manchester will be Eugene Sierakowski of Concerned Citizens of Manchester, Town Director Joseph Sweeney, and Carl Zinsser, minority leader of the town's Board of Directors.

Manchester's Town Manager Robert Weiss and Ronald Black, area deputy director for HUD, will be present to answer questions.

Melt-Down Feared At Nuclear Plant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government, reporting the nation's most serious atomic emergency is far worse than they thought, said Friday there is danger of a reactor melt-down within a few days at Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania.

Dudley Thompson of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office of inspection and enforcement said the "real possibility" of partial melting of the uranium fuel to the "miniscule" chance the entire reactor core could melt — the worst type of nuclear catastrophe.

NRC officials also blamed workers at Metropolitan Edison, the utility that operates Three Mile Island, for uncontrolled radiation leaks from the plant since the accident Wednesday. The NRC said reactor operators erred releasing radioactive water to an unsealed building.

President Carter, reacting swiftly to the latest news from the scene, ordered immediate government measures to help cope with the situation — and indicated the accident will provoke more stringent nuclear safety standards.

White House press secretary Jody Powell told reporters Carter "has been briefed repeatedly on developments," and said the president advised a group of visiting editors and broadcasters Friday afternoon that "this incident will make it necessary to reassess our present safety precautions and probably lead to even more stringent safety and design mechanisms and standards."

Thompson and other officials said the melt-down risk can come when engineers try to cool the crippled reactor at Harrisburg, Pa., below its present level.

Officials said the reactor had reached a stable condition Friday afternoon, meaning there was no immediate risk and operators could plot the next steps with extreme caution. "We are faced with a decision (on how to proceed) within a few days, rather than hours," Thompson told reporters at an NRC news center.

"We ultimately face the risk of a melt-down (depending on) the manner in which we cope with the problem. If there is even a small chance of a melt-down, we will recommend precautionary evacuation."

The NRC said it had sent eight senior officials to the plant as advisers. The agency said responsibility for future actions rests with Metropolitan Edison "for the present" — but federal officials can seize the decision-making "if necessary."

The risk of fuel melting at Three Mile Island comes from a steam bubble at the top of the reactor that could — unless removed — increase in size and block the flow of cooling water. Officials said they hope to find a way to remove the bubble from the reactor a little at a time and avert the threat.

"It is a ticklish operation," Thompson said. "I guess it will take tens if not hundreds of hours."

If a reactor core loses its flow of cooling water, temperatures in the uranium fuel can increase enough to melt fuel rods or even part of the reactor core and — at theoretical worst — melt through the steel reactor housing.

A total melt-down accident would be the most devastating catastrophe that could strike a nuclear power plant, with the potential for spreading high levels of radiation over many square miles and perhaps killing thousands.

At the White House, Powell said a report about the possibility of a melt-down "is at the very least speculative."

Powell said the federal government has worked out with state officials a contingency plan for evacuation of high risk areas if the need arises. A decision on evacuation, he said, would be up to Gov. Richard Thornburgh.

"A decision on evacuation," Powell said, "would be based on events that are not happening now.

"The White House has set up adequate communications between the NRC, the White House, the site and the governor's office," he added.

A fictional, exaggerated version of an extreme melt-down is described in the new movie "The China Syndrome."

The closest a U.S. power plant has come to such catastrophe was in October 1966 when a piece of metal broke loose at the Fermi breeder reactor near Detroit, partially blocking the flow of cooling water and causing a partial melting of reactor fuel.

Thompson said the term melt-down — as he used it — covered everything from the melting of only a few pellets of uranium within the reactor fuel rods to the total melting of the reactor core.

In a total core melt, he said, the molten core would fall into a pool of water in the basement of the reactor room. He said the water could turn explosively to steam when the molten core hit, creating enough pressure to burst seals in the containment building around the reactor and release massive amounts of radioactive steam.

Carrier and UTC Agree on Merger

HARTFORD (UPI) — Carrier Corp. and United Technologies Corp. Friday announced they have agreed in principle to a merger which will make Carrier a wholly-owned subsidiary of UTC, ending more than four months of litigation.

Carrier had taken UTC to court after it opened its tender offer in November, charging the merger would violate federal anti-trust laws. Friday's agreement will allow UTC, Connecticut's largest private employer, to take over the Syracuse, N.Y., giant air conditioning manufacturer.

The merger plan will require approval of the boards of directors of both UTC and Carrier, as well as the approval by a majority of the shareholders of both companies. Tentative plans call for the merger to occur in July, a joint statement said.

Both firms said their representatives on the other company's board will not participate in any deliberations or vote on the merger.

Hartford-based UTC, an aggressive merger seeker, lists Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group and Otis Elevator Co. among its holdings. It had sales of nearly $6.3 billion last year.

UTC now owns approximately 49 percent of Carrier's voting securities, which were acquired in a cash tender offer and by open market purchases since last December.

Each share of the new preferred stock will be entitled to one-half vote and will be convertible into .375 share of UTC common stock, the statement said.

The new preferred stock will be redeemable beginning in 1986 at $29 per share and thereafter at redemption prices declining $50 per year to $25 per share in 1995 and subsequent years.

Before the effective date of the merger, Carrier will redeem its 4 1/2 percent senior preferred stock. In the merger each outstanding share of Carrier $1.86 cumulative preferred stock will be exchanged for 1.815 shares of the new preferred stock of United.

Each outstanding share of the Carrier $3.00 cumulative preferred stock will be exchanged for two shares of the new preferred stock. Each outstanding share of the Carrier $2.25 cumulative preferred stock will be exchanged for 1.86 shares of new preferred stock.

Teamsters Reach Contract Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Teamsters union and the trucking industry reached agreement Friday on wage proposals and neared final settlement on a new three-year contract, sources close to the negotiations said.

The sources said the wage agreement came after the industry offered a new proposal earlier Friday.

The agreement, according to a source, calls for yearly wage increases of 80 cents, 35 cents and 35 cents per hour and health and welfare benefits costing 14 cents, 8 cents, and 8 cents per hour.

The average wage of the Teamsters currently ranges from $9.45 and $9.60 per hour.

The bargainers were continuing their talks on non-economic issues and also to decide the timetable for future cost of living adjustments.

Earlier Friday, Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons had said his union was making progress toward a settlement with the trucking industry as a midnight Saturday strike deadline approached.

But he cautioned: "We haven't settled on a contract yet."

Fitzsimmons commented during a lunch break after negotiators met throughout the morning, both jointly and separately with chief federal mediator Wayne Horvitz.

"I said we made progress, we make progress every day," he told reporters.

As he arrived for the negotiations, Fitzsimmons said, "We've got our fingers crossed" that a strike can be avoided. He raised his hands and crossed the fingers on each.

The current three-year contract covering 300,000 truck drivers and warehousemen expires at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Rank-and-file union members have voted to authorize negotiators to call a strike if necessary.

Thoughts

Certain words of the Spirit call for special attention during this season. One such word is "Halleluiah," which means, "Praise God." The only times it actually appears in Scripture is on the four occasions it is used in the 19th chapter of the Book of Revelations. Where Halleluiah occurs in the Old Testament it is translated by "Praise God," but in this new Testament book the original Hebrew form, transliterated into Greek, is retained. "Hosanna," it is one of the few Hebrew words which have established themselves in ordinary religious language. It is hard to think of any word in any language which is more pleasant to sing. Just pure vowel sounds connected, not by hissing sibilants or explosive labials or dentals, but by the one and only genuinely liquid consonant in our entire alphabet: A word which just flows out, easily, naturally.

Amazing Grace When we've been there then thousand years, When we've been there then thousand years, When we've been there then thousand years, When we've been there then thousand years. We've no less days to sing God's praise Than when we'd first begun. The Rev. Philip A. Sheehan, Pastor, St. Bridget Church, Manchester.

Letter to the Editor

Property Purchase Supported

To the editor: Four years ago, Coventry citizens rallied around to repel the Devo invaders and succeeded in warding off a proposed New Town in Coventry. An even greater threat faces our community today and once again we must mobilize to save the biggest asset we have - our lake. A recent report on lake quality conducted by federal, state and local environmental scientists makes the dire prediction that in the foreseeable future we may find our lake becoming a sea of grass, making swimming, boating and water skiing a thing of the past. We can forestall this eventuality by purchasing the Salvation Army property. With state and federal funding picking up 75% of the cost, the town will only have to foot the bill for about $75,000 over a five year period. This is only $3 per person per year. Surely we can afford $3 a year for such a valuable asset. We must protect what is left of our watershed basin.

The town does not presently have adequate recreation areas where all age groups can stroll, picnic or enjoy a quiet afternoon together. How often have you wanted to take your children or grandchildren for a swim and picnic on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon where you could rest in the shade at the same time? Our only town beaches are hot, sandy and overcrowded all summer. If we care about our town and its resources and if we would like to see Coventry stay "just the way it is," lake and all, we must join together in supporting the purchase of the Salvation Army property. You can help by talking to your neighbors and getting a groundswell of opinion going which would move people to come out and vote for the most important issue since Devo. Remember the town referendum is April 3rd and the open house is April 1st. It's our town and lake and we're the only ones who can save it. Debra Durkin, 1712 Main St., Coventry.

Bad Case Equals Safe Law?

Bad cases, a truism of the legal profession has it, make bad law. That looks very much like the situation we have in the case of the United States of America vs. the Progressive magazine. It's a tough one, both for the courts to decide and for the press, which itself is vitally affected, to take a position on. Once over very lightly. The Progressive, a publication of limited circulation (circa 40,000), but pronounced social consciousness, would publish an article on the workings of a hydrogen bomb. The government, asserting the article contains secret information of benefit to potential enemies and additionally would "severely undercut the arms control and disarmament policies of the United States," has asked the courts to prohibit publication. So what we have is a head-on between two basic interests of the American polity - national security and freedom of the press, or an aspect thereof. What the government is asking is restraint prior to publication, a form of censorship which volumes of previous decision have held constitutionally unacceptable.

The case is not like the recent flurry of First Amendment confrontations between the courts and press, which the most part have involved the question of access to governmental agencies to the unpublished material of individual newsmen and the premises of news organizations. Nor is it in the pattern of the Pentagon Papers case, although there the government also sought to suppress publication on the grounds of national security. But the Pentagon Papers did not involve secret scientific details or even current military information. They were a history of the Vietnam war which even the government's advocates had difficulty demonstrating were a threat, rather than merely an embarrassment for many public figures involved, at their late date of publication. This time the government has a formidable array of experts - atomic scientists, arms specialists, security officials - to back up its case. The article is sufficiently explicit to enable nations not in the hydrogen club to develop a fusion technology. The Progressive contends that if so, they could have gotten the information the way it did - through a thorough study of documents and published material available to the public. The magazine says it had access to no classified information and was revealing no secrets. Its purpose in seeking publication is to enable the public to make informed decisions on arms control. That's where it stands. Turning as it does on scientific fact and detail which only experts can evaluate, the case is a conflict between principles to enable the public to make informed decisions on arms control, and the government's desire to keep secret scientific details or even current military information. They were a history of the Vietnam war which even the government's advocates had difficulty demonstrating were a threat, rather than merely an embarrassment for many public figures involved, at their late date of publication. This time the government has a formidable array of experts - atomic scientists, arms specialists, security officials - to back up its case. Rifle Shooters Compete MANCHESTER - More than 220 junior and sub-junior rifle shooters from Connecticut and Massachusetts took part in the recent 16th annual David L. Swanson Memorial Trophy Match sponsored by the Manchester Rifle Club and held at the rifle range building at the Nike site. The shoulder-to-shoulder competition has grown from an interclub tournament to one of the largest matches of its type in New England. Fourteen junior shooting clubs were represented at the match. 1979 match honors went to Jay Poirier from the Blue Trail Range team. He compiled an aggregate score of 388. This score ties a record set by his coach, David Lyman, six years ago. Teammate Robert Broughton was second overall with a score of 387. Junior competition in the Swanson match is broken down into two rifle matches and an aggregate score to determine the overall match winner. A possible score would be 400. Awards are presented in all three phases. In the four man team competition, Torney is president and Thomas Tierney is the first and second place winners. The first and second prize winners went to the junior entries from the Blue Trail Range. The Manchester Rifle Club entry of Alan Shear, Matt Ryzewski, Deana Pilney and Jason Stansfield placed third. The team scores were 783, 771 and 760. Mrs. Emma Swanson of Manchester presented the winners' trophies.

He announced at the time that he and his wife, Vivian, who resigned as a member of the Town Board of Directors, planned to enter a business venture together. That plan has changed since, however, and Ferguson has entered the insurance business. Mrs. Ferguson's future plans are not yet definite, but she has said she plans to take time off this summer.

MANCHESTER - Attorney Richard Dyer and Thomas Tierney have been appointed co-chairmen of the 1979 Cancer Crusade for the Manchester Unit of the American Cancer Society. The crusade starts Sunday. Dyer was chairman and Tierney was vice chairman of last year's Cancer Crusade Committee. This year's goal for the Manchester unit is $38,500, which will focus on a door-to-door drive in which volunteer canvassers will distribute an educational leaflet on cancer prevention and ask for donations. Rehabilitation, research and public and professional education. "Much of the money will come right back into our own community, as it did last year, when approximately 150 cancer patients were aided in ways ranging from loan of sickroom equipment to financial aid," Tierney said. "The purpose of the crusade is twofold. Dyer said. "Raising money is important, but so is raising people's consciousness about cancer prevention." During April, the crusade will focus on a door-to-door drive in which volunteer canvassers will distribute an educational leaflet on cancer prevention and ask for donations.

Death and Dying: The Funeral

By VANDERLYN R. PINE From the 1720s, when Massachusetts prohibited "extraneous" expenses at funerals, to the 1970s when the Federal Trade Commission investigated contemporary funeral practices, funerals have been the subject of considerable controversy in America. Despite such controversy, the funeral has persisted, albeit with some modifications, because it fulfills the needs of both society and the individual.

In the 1960s, for example, millions of people witnessed the funerals of President John F. Kennedy and the Reverend Martin Luther King. Televised coverage of the public ceremonies allowed people across the United States and throughout the world to share with the Kennedy and King families the shock, grief, and sorrow that accompany unexpected death.

In today's industrialized, impersonal society, however, the funeral is usually of major significance only to those close to the dead person. Some families may be of enormous size, but only a few are of significance to society in general. Functions of the Funeral Throughout history, the funeral has served several major functions. First, it serves to acknowledge and commemorate the death. Second, it allows for the disposition of the dead body. Third, it assists in reorienting the bereaved to their lives. Fourth, it demonstrates economic and reciprocal social obligations. Thus, the funeral reinforces the bereaved person's role in society while affirming the social order itself. It also affirms family cohesiveness, with the extended family conveying a sense of being part of a larger whole. In this way, a funeral demonstrates the "roots" of the individual, the family, and society.

Rites of Passage In most societies, certain ceremonies or rites of passage are observed for socially important events, such as a birth, marriage, or death. The funeral is simultaneously a rite of separation, a rite of transition, and a rite of incorporation. First, the funeral separates the dead from the living, disposing of the dead through offering material payment for the funeral, the bereaved attempt to add a tangible expression to their public sentiments of grief, thus communicating to society the depth of their loss. It is this matter of material expenditure that long has caused criticism of American funeral practices. In 1967 Jessica Mitford's "The American Way of Death," which castigated funeral directors for their methods and faulted contemporary funeral practices for their extravagance, became a best seller. Since 1972, the Federal Trade Commission has sought to promulgate trade rules to regulate funeral directors in the conduct of their business. Today's Customs Such recent criticisms and government efforts challenge the economic and social utility of funerals while presuming that today's customs and practices were invented largely by the funeral directors themselves. Although some aspects of present-day practices are based on accommodations that funeral directors felt were helpful or necessary to meet community desires and their competition, today's funeral customs reflect fairly widespread community values and beliefs. Funeral practices tend to follow ethnic, religious, and socio-economic patterns, and American customs reflect the cultural mix that is characteristic of American society. The recent criticisms also reflect changes in public attitudes and behavior. Popular writing criticizing funeral customs has fostered some changes. Other changes are due to increased education and geographic and social mobility, which often are accompanied by a tendency to try to handle death by rational and utilitarian rather than emotional actions. These attitudes make such practices as viewing and embalming the dead body seem unnecessary or unimportant.

Paradoxically, this tendency to avoid involvement with the dead body is occurring simultaneously with an increased awareness of the value of confronting human existence openly and face-to-face. Thus, even though it is often argued that "remembering the person as he or she was" is less painful, some psychologists maintain that viewing the dead body helps reinforce reality by permitting the survivor to confront directly his or her loss. Similarly, direct disposition of the body with no public ceremony - one increasingly common alternative to the traditional funeral today - may cause psychological problems by denying the bereaved a social opportunity to cope with the loss. Although less than 10 percent of those who die annually in the United States are cremated, the practice is growing in many parts of the country and is increasingly accompanied by a tendency to avoid the cemetery. Traditionally, the cemetery has enabled society to express its basic values and to inform us of the status of people buried there and their place in history and in our lives. Again, it is a commentary on our times that this reduced noting of family continuity is occurring simultaneously with an increased interest in our family "roots."

In spite of changes and criticisms, funeral practices have remained relatively stable. These changes that have occurred are the result of social changes and varying personal needs and desires. No longer is death symbolically noted by mourning clothes or floral wreaths that publicly "announce" one's bereavement; rather, death and mourning are increasingly a private concern. However, since it is crucial to have social and psychological supports, the funeral

Churches Confront The Energy Crisis

By United Press International

Dr. George Outen, general secretary of the United Methodist Church's board of church and society, says church people have a special responsibility when it comes to energy use and conservation.

It is a theme being increasingly heard in religious circles, not only in response to the latest round of oil price hikes, but as religious leaders and theologians reflect on the whole meaning of stewardship among fears that the world is rapidly running out of non-renewable natural resources.

The most recent manifestation of Christian and Jewish involvement in the energy conservation movement came recently with the announcement by the Interfaith Coalition on Energy of its "covenant for conservation" campaign aimed at involving local churches and synagogues to initiate a specific energy conservation program.

The Lutheran Church in America and the American Lutheran Church, in announcing their support for the energy conservation program, called it "a theological imperative."

This imperative stems from the responsibilities of Christian stewardship of God's creation and its resources," said the Lutheran Council USA in announcing the support of the two Lutheran denominations.

The Rev. William H. Miller, S.J., director of the Interfaith Coalition on Energy, also underscored the theological background in announcing the new campaign.

All energy resources, of which the human race depends for heat and a multitude of other necessities, are gifts of our creator God, gifts which the Lord gives to supply the needs of all peoples.

TV Special Scheduled

"The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe," a television special produced by the Children's Television Workshop in cooperation with the Episcopal Radio-TV Foundation, will be shown Sunday and Monday from 8 to 9 p.m. on Channel 3 in two animated one-hour segments.

The fantasy, written by C.S. Lewis in 1950, is the first of five tales in "The Chronicles of Narnia." It is an adventure story, and at the same time an invitation to step into Narnia and learn some things about ourselves and our values.

The Prayer of the Chalice

Churches have various customs about the celebration of Holy Communion, some do it weekly, others monthly, some every other month, and I recall a church near Boston that used to do it only once a year.

Many will be breaking the bread and sharing the cup tomorrow, the first Sunday in the month, and practically all Christians will be participating in the sacrament on Monday Thursday just before Easter, which this year falls on April 15th.

It therefore seems appropriate to share this "Prayer of the Chalice" written by Frances Nuttall and selected for me by a very dear friend in northern Scotland last December. The author also did the calligraphy.

Prayer of the Chalice
Father, to Thee I raise my whole being — a vessel emptied of self. Accept, Lord, this my emptiness, and so fill me with Thyself—Thy Light, Thy Love, Thy Life— that these Thy precious gifts may radiate through me and overflow the chalice of my heart into the hearts of all with whom I come in contact this day—
reveling unto them the beauty of Thy Joy
and Wholeness and the serenity of Thy Peace
which nothing can destroy.

Wilson Retiring Today; Policeman for 25 Years

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Officer Curtis L. Wilson will have only two weeks off when he finishes his last day of patrol today with the Manchester Police Department, before he takes up work related to his specialty on the police force as firearms training instructor and armorer.

Wilson is retiring today after 25 years on the Manchester force and he says he will miss it.

"I'll miss working with the people and in the town. It's tough to quit. I've spent half my life being a cop." Wilson turned 50 this month.

Wilson said what he has liked most about police work is helping the people. He also has enjoyed the training of the other officers in the use of firearms. He said he likes to train them so well in the use of the guns that the use becomes second nature in an emergency situation.

Wilson has accepted a position with Quick Arms, Inc. of Cranston, R.I. He will be selling firearms for the company and working out of the Meriden office.

Wilson's training in firearms for the Police Department has included the FBI instructor courses in Peekskill, N.Y. and Quantico, Va. and the Weapons Armor School and non-lethal weapons instructor's course at Smith and Wesson in Springfield. Wilson has been certified as a firearms instructor by the National Rifle Association.

Patrol Captain Henry Minor credited Wilson with helping to make the Manchester Police Department one of the best trained departments in the state.

Wilson commented that the job of a police officer has changed considerably since he started work in February 1954. He said he thinks the changes in personnel and training are for the better and believes that a good education is valuable for police officers "as long as they use it right." But he added, "street knowledge" and the use of common sense and knowing how to treat people are the most important assets for a good officer.

Wilson has spent most of his working life as a police officer outside of four years in the Coast Guard and a few months in various other jobs before joining the police force.

He now lives at 25 Homestead St. with his wife, Rosemary. Wilson has two sons, two stepsons and a stepdaughter and one grandchild.

Prison Inmates Learn Culinary Skills

IRELAND ISLAND, Bermuda (UPI) - Casemates, Bermuda's maximum security prison, is no place for a gourmand. But a gourmet might appreciate some of the work that goes on in the prison's kitchen.

For instance, Joe X, an inmate who has served half of a 10-year stretch for robbery, was preparing omelets with cheese sauce and spinach - in the kitchen recently while an armed guard watched. Joe and other inmates learn how to prepare things like lobster thermidor and an array of appetizers and desserts. Such foods do not become part of the prison's menu.

But freshly baked bread, which outsiders covet and some have been lucky enough to acquire, is on the menu. Joe X is one of eight inmates selected from the prison's (recent) population of 86 to participate in a program in which they learn how to cook, which they learn how to cook, which they learn how to cook, which they learn how to cook.

Edwards meets his students once a week in the prison's kitchen. With only one prison officer in attendance, he lectures the inmates on use of cooking tools and equipment, on hygiene, on food and menu preparation and on catering calculations. The prison ban on alcohol makes for is one institution that has thrown full support behind the program. Periodically, the inmates - well dressed in civilian garb but under guard - are taken to the hotel's massive kitchens to observe preparation of food on a large scale. The visits give the prisoners a chance to ask questions of some top chefs. Edwards says that such visits also help prisoners "become more optimistic about finding a job when they are released."

The course would be a dismal failure without outside help, Edwards notes. The luxurious Southampton Princess Hotel, a 15-minute drive from the prison's gates, is one institution that has thrown full support behind the program. The visits give the prisoners a chance to ask questions of some top chefs. Edwards says that such visits also help prisoners "become more optimistic about finding a job when they are released."

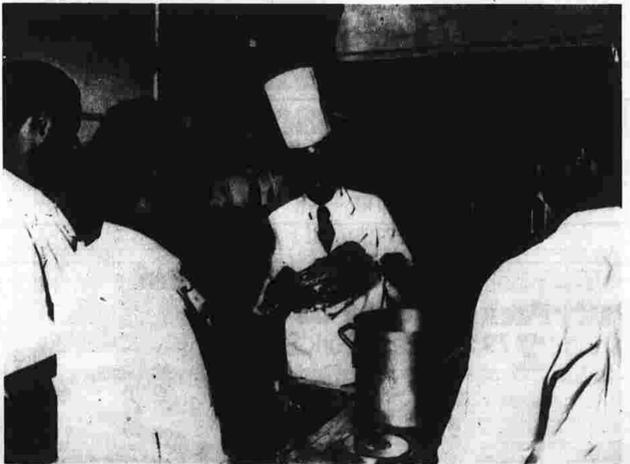

With the blessings of prison authorities, similar visits are arranged for catering kitchens at Bermuda's Civil Air Terminal.

A prison guard watches as Henry Edwards of the Bermuda Hotel teaches inmates of Casemates Prison how to prepare a meal for the discriminating palate. Those involved with the program hope it will give inmates a very marketable skill when they are released from prison on an island catering to tourist tastes.

Senior Citizens News

H. W. ALLEN FORTIN
Hi neighbor! We have three buses for the dog track and now have a waiting list. We also have a full bus for the Washington, D.C. trip scheduled May 31, June 1 and 2.

Our next trip registration will be easy because it is for a day of fishing and a visit to a fish hatchery. Registration will be from 8:30 a.m. until noon. Stop by Monday morning and check in with Joe Diminico.

Speaking of fishing, Joe is making arrangements for a professional business man, Ray of Ray's Tackle, to teach you fly-fishing. Also one day, Joe Garman will be on hand to give pointers on fly casting. Another fine day is being arranged by Joe for a "Senior Fishing Derby" at Sauteles Pond Saturday, June 9.

Here's some good news for golfers. We will hold an organizational meeting Monday, April 2 at 7 p.m. We have been invited to play Monday morning at the East Hartford course. If you cannot make the meeting, but are interested in playing, call Joe Diminico.

For anyone who wants a few pointers or wants to learn to play, Joe will be available to teach. Our variety show is only weeks away, and we still have lots of tickets left. "Horah for Hollywood" is scheduled Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28th, at 8 p.m. Our large bus will be taking people to the Friday evening performance. We have a full bus and now are taking names for a waiting list.

Our furnishing equipment fund drive is officially under way and we are off to a good start with something like $1,100 already in the till. We hope all our Gold Card holders will make a donation and that more civic and business groups will pick up the ball and bounce in a few bucks. We haven't set any particular amount, except the more we get, the more furniture and equipment we can buy. One big item will be a P.A. system with speakers in all rooms. We have a super committee working on decorations to make the center a colorful and enjoyable place.

All right, let's get to the happenings here at the center. It all starts with results of our Senior Bowling League at the Parkdale Lanes. Class A high triple, Sue Farnell 437, Florence Doust 437, Clarence Peterson 436, high single, Sue Farnell 172, Florence Doust 172, Clarence Peterson 246. Class B high triple, Polly Kenneway 352, Joe Picaut 484, high single, Viola Wenzel 139, Tony Golias 190.

Wednesday morning was busy. We had a free blood pressure clinic and 134 took part. We thank the Manchester Public Health Nurses Association and their volunteer helpers and Mrs. Gloria Weiss, nutritionist, for doing a splendid job. While that was going on, we had the Friendship Circle and crewel embroidery class all mixed together. Upstairs we had 46 players for our pinocle games and the winners were: Bea Gorming 619, Ruth Search 592, Olive Houghaling 583, Sam Sebors 574, Lillian Lewis 567, Ann Thompson 566, Betty Grabig 565, Marjorie McLain 563.

In the afternoon it was bridge with 39 players and the winners were Nadine Maloni 5,430, Tom Reagan 5,130, Barbara Conklin 4,830, Marge Kayser 4,270, Ed Hinder 4,110.

We send our congratulations to Ruth Strong who celebrated her 88th birthday Thursday. She was with us after spending the winter in sunny Florida.

Next Thursday we will have Sal Anello, manager of the Social Security office in East Hartford, as our guest speaker. He will discuss the expected 1979 changes in Social Security and Medicare.

South Windsor Council Pares Budget

SOUTH WINDSOR — Council members have started work on whittling down the proposed joint town government and board of education budget of $14.5 million, in hopes of sparing the town what would be a 3.4 mill tax hike if the budget package is approved as is.

In a prepared statement by the council's Republican members, the GOP supports the budget. It is obvious that the budget is in a bind. The council said that they intend to "scrutinize both budgets in depth" in order to make cuts wherever possible. The council said that they invite citizen comment and participation during the next few weeks while they examine the budgets.

Town Manager Allan Young said this week that the town needs some $1 million in additional tax monies to finance the budget as it stands. He said, however, that the budget did not include some anticipated school grants which could run upward from $200,000 to $250,000, or possibly the equivalent of what would be a one mill increase.

The possibility of an additional $400,000 in sewer user fees was also not included in the budget when figured. Some $400,000 of the $1 million needed to finance the budget is already realized by the increase in this year's Grand List, creating a need for an actual increase of $600,000 in new tax revenues. Reducing the possibility of $350,000 in school grants and $40,000 in sewer user fees if they are realized would mean an actual increase of 1.5 mills to finance the remainder.

Young, however, told the council that the possibility of the additional $400,000 in revenue, not accounted for in the preparation of the budget, was "highly unlikely." Democratic councilmen have also said they are not in favor of a 3.4 increase in the tax mill rate, although both Edward Havens and Arthur Chumley said they would favor a "slight" hike in order to keep up with present municipal services.

The Board of Education budget was presented to the council at $8.2 million for fiscal 1979-80, representing a $29,000 or 7.7 increase over last year's budget. The municipal town budget was presented at $6.3 million, a $1.3 million increase over last year's figure.

During his initial presentation of the budget to the council this week, Young explained that salary and benefits for town employees amounted to a $277,033, or 1.5 percent increase over last year's budget. Young said the increase broke down into the following increases: Employee benefits, $115,342; new full time employees, $31,446; promotional increases, $6,364.

Young said that capital improvements, purchase of open space land and the construction of additional tennis courts amounted to a $500,000 cost in the proposed budget.

Coon Educator of Year

COVENTRY —George Coon, a social science teacher at Coventry High School, was presented the first annual educator of the year award during the Thursday night meeting of the Board of Education.

The presentation was made by Paul Marzone of the Coventry Jaycees. Coon is also the school's social science department director. During the regular board meeting, administrators of the town's elementary, middle, and high schools, spoke to the board about the problems of discipline and school procedure.

The administrators said the problems are relatively few but annual, when there is a problem it is due mainly to lack of discipline in the home.

"The lack of cooperation from the home is the biggest problem with discipline," the administrators said.

The board also discussed the pending visit, for the next two weeks, of 14 students and teachers from France. The visitors will be staying with Coventry families.

A reception for the visitors will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the school library.

The board also briefly discussed plans for a school exchange with Venezuela, for the coming school year.

In other action the board appointed Ron Jordano as junior varsity baseball coach for the high school and Benjamin Kurian as tennis coach.

Panel OKs Subdivision

HEBRON —The Planning and Zoning Commission voted to approve the August Bonola subdivision on Hope Valley Road with some stipulations.

The commission said that the plan for Lot 5 with the location of the septic system and reserve fields will be submitted to the commission before a building permit is issued.

A wetlands permit must also be granted by the Wetlands Authority before any activity can be started on the lot.

Also granted was the Joshua Farms Section 2 subdivision with the stipulation that Lot 6 must have a specially designed septic system due to its high water table.

Action was deferred on a request of Anthony Donzoma, for a West Street subdivision and also for North Hill section 4. Garrett Powning of Hope Valley Road will appear before the commission with the request to resubdivide property on that road, totaling 15 acres, with a 50 foot access strip.

Originally the lot was approved with the stipulation that only one dwelling could be constructed because of the access strip. Powning said he has discovered that his neighbor's swimming pool is located on a portion of his property and in the process of clearing the matter he wants to create a five-acre lot with a 40 foot access strip.

The commission voted to conduct a public hearing on April 10 at 7:30 p.m. on the request of Craig Rowley for a Jones Street subdivision.

Scholarship Forms Due by Wednesday

MANCHESTER —Wednesday, April 4, is the deadline for filing financial aid applications to the Manchester Scholarship Foundation.

On behalf of the Foundation, John DeQuattro, president, encourages graduating high school seniors who are residents of Manchester and Manchester resident Manchester Community College students who plan to transfer to apply for this financial aid.

The Foundation, which administers about 60 funds, relies on an objective analysis of each applicant's need by a college financial aid officer.

Based on the financial summary sheet of the scholarship application form, and the first page of the Internal Revenue income tax return, the financial aid officer's analysis considers such factors as total family income, assets, taxes, extraordinary medical expenses, size of family, and the number of family members in college.

Foundation directors never see the family financial information which is forwarded directly to the aid officer by the applicant.

In recent years, the scholarship awards have been larger as the foundation seeks to make a significant contribution toward escalating costs of Post-secondary education in colleges, technical schools and vocational schools, according to DeQuattro.

Better Year Seen For Eaglette Nine

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Editor

"Last year was disappointing," recalls East Catholic girls' softball Coach Jay McConville, "I don't expect this year to be disappointing.

The Eaglettes, with high expectations going into the '78 campaign by McConville, mustered only a 6-8 won-loss mark. Incomplete weather forced cancellation of four games, and "we lost three or four one-run games. We shouldn't lose them this year," offers the third-year leader.

First action for the Eaglettes in 1979 will be Wednesday afternoon when they entertain Bolton High at Robertson Park at 3:15. East has a 17-game schedule, nine home dates. They will open with senior Ellen Petkaiatis behind the plate with sophomore Mimi Laneri in reserve. Juniors Jane Price and Colleen Shanley are battling it out for the first base job with the former holding a slight edge.

Sophomore Kathy Skehan, who saw service as third base a year ago, is fighting for the second base slot. Pitchers when not on the hill could also be utilized as second, McConville states.

"I feel we have good depth. It is very hard cutting this year," he repeats.

McConville, however, won't go out on the limb and predict a superior season having been burned once. He hopes not to have to worry about any first base job with the former holding a slight edge.

Schedule: April 4 Bolton H, 6 Windsor H, 10 Rham H, 12 Hartford Public H, 18 St. Bernard A, 18 Hartford May 2 Northwest Catholic H (at Nike Field), 4 Mercy H (at Nike Field), 5 Rham A 10:30 a.m., 7 St. Bernard H, 9 South Catholic, A, 11 Hartford Public H, 18 St. Bernard A, 18 Hartford A, 19 Northwest Catholic H, 20 A.M., 21 St. Paul A, 23 Bolton A. Other home games at Robertson. Most games 3:15 p.m. but check sports slate for starting times.

Hockey Merger Goes Through

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Hockey League added the Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, Quebec Nordiques and New England Whalers Friday when the NHL's expansion plan was approved by the potential applicants.

John Ziegler, the president of the NHL, revealed, "We are expanding the NHL by taking in four teams for the 1979-80 season. We are not taking in four World Hockey Association teams. We are conducting an expansion draft which will give the new teams some NHL players."

Each of the four former WHA franchises will pay $6 million to the NHL with a down payment of $4.5 million required by June 1. Two of the teams in the six-team WHA did not apply for admission to the NHL. However, the Birmingham Bulls will receive $2.8 million in repatriation and the Cincinnati Stingers $3.5 million. The expansion forced a realignment in the NHL's four divisions in order to accommodate the new league of 21 teams.

Next season the NHL will be aligned as follows:

- Norris Division — Detroit, Los Angeles, Montreal, New England and Pittsburgh.
- Adams Division — Boston, Buffalo, Minnesota, Quebec and Toronto.
- Smythe Division — Chicago, Colorado, Edmonton, St. Louis, Vancouver and Winnipeg.
- Patrick Division — Atlanta, New York Islanders, New York Rangers, Philadelphia and Washington.

New England is the addition to the Norris, Quebec to the Adams, Edmonton and Winnipeg to the Smythe and Washington switches from the Norris to the Patrick Division.

The NHL will play an 80-game schedule in 1979-80, with each team playing two home and two away games with all other member clubs. The number of games in the playoffs will increase to 16, including the four division winners and 12 wild card teams. There will be no reclaimed players. "This makes it certain that Mark Howe will be reclaimed by the Whalers," said Baldwin. "I'll make that decision."

"It also means that players such as Quebec's Buddy Cloutier and Marc Tardif will remain with the Nordiques if they choose to select them," said Ziegler. "The expansion draft in June (in Montreal) will add NHL players to the new teams which should help them."

In June an expansion draft will stock the new teams. Each of the present 17 NHL clubs will protect its skaters and two goaltenders. The order of the draft among the former WHA teams will be determined by lot. No NHL team can lose more than four players or one goalie without its consent.

"I believe we got the better of the deal in the expansion draft and in the appointment of players."

Under the expansion plan, NHL teams will be able to reclaim WHA players in the present 17 NHL teams, however, they will make a priority selection of two skaters and two goaltenders from the list of

Home Ice Rue For Whalers

Still unable to find home cooking to their liking, the New England Whalers dropped a 3-1 World Hockey Association decision last night to the league-leading Edmonton Oilers at the Springfield Civic Center.

The Whalers saw their home record slip to a poor 2-16 and they are in danger of slipping into fourth place in the WHA depending on the outcome of Winnipeg's contest with Quebec.

Edmonton assured itself the top rung another night as it took a three-

Hot Watson Grabs Three Stroke Lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Tom Watson, back in the form that made him the world's top golfer the past two years, offset a hole-in-one by Lanny Wadkins with an eagle on Friday to shoot his second 65 and surge into the lead midway through the Heritage Golf Classic.

Watson, a late starter, was two strokes off the pace when Wadkins sank a 17-yard a-put at the 17th hole at Harbour Town Golf Links. But he caught up with a pair of back nine birdies, moved two strokes ahead when he put his 144-yard approach shot in the cup at the 18th hole and then built a three-stroke lead by sinking a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

That gave Watson, who won 10

Borg Topped By Alexander

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Australia's John Alexander upset top seed and defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 Friday to join New York's Vitas Gerulaitis and John McEnroe in the semifinals of the Ramazzotti Cup world championship tennis tournament.

Gerulaitis defeated Tomaz Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-2, while McEnroe wrapped up his semi berth with a 6-2 victory over Rhodesia's Andrew Pattison.

"I entered the court without much of a chance of defeating him," said Alexander after the one hour, 28-minute match against Borg. "I think what undid him was his fault in the backswing by the public."

Alexander's win was a revenge for his loss to Borg in their only previous match, in Boston four years ago.

Gerulaitis, 34, took one hour and 16 minutes to defeat the unseeded Smid, 21, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Bruins Supportive But Still May Sue

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Bruins General Manager Harry Sinden, the most vocal opponent of a merger between hockey's two professional leagues, said Friday the Bruins will support the new league but still may take legal action in the future.

"The Bruins will do whatever they can to make the new 21-team league as strong as possible," Sinden said. "We are not taking a sour grapes attitude and we won't let the league down."

"But we have preserved our legal options. They took something away from us in Chicago (last week). They (the NHL Board of Governors) formulated a draft under which we would lose four players without our consent. If you have property rights, no one can take them away from you without your consent," he said.

Sinden said he didn't want to make any threats nor express any disappointment about the future of professional hockey.

"I've always been a big NHL man, but I'm not a fan of the merger, even though the Stanley Cup champions own the rights to more than 30 WHA players."

"They may reclaim them, but the new clubs can't take them back. If the Canadiens don't protect them, I don't think it will make that much of a difference," he said.

Joe's World Fish Derby

I received some mail this weekend announcing two different fish derbies. East Glastonbury Fish & Game Association has its annual Derby April 1, and the Manchester Sportsmen's Association has its annual Derby the following Sunday, April 8.

For the uninitiated, let me explain Fish Derby.

As in the case of these two clubs, this annual event is a chance to stock their ponds with trout, and make some money for future stockings, and activities.

The first stockings of trout generally take place a few days to a week before the derby. The club ponds are then open to the public on Derby Day only.

The general public is apprised of this by advertising, posters, and signs placed in stores and meeting places, and by "plugs" in outdoor columns in different newspapers.

An entry fee is generally charged, and then there is a charge for each trout caught by the entrant after that.

The charge for the fish is generally a "break-even" price, or a little bit under. The money is made on the entrance fees and the skeet, trap, turkey and gun shoots, that are held in conjunction with the other goings on.

It's really an exciting and busy atmosphere. In some instances, breakfast can be bought, hot dogs and doughnuts, lunches, soda, coffee, etc. are available; all served up and dished out by hard working club members.

There are prizes in different categories, i.e. largest fish on bait, largest fish on fly, etc., smallest fish caught, largest fish caught by child to 8 years, from 8 to 12, to 15, etc.

It's really super to watch the kids. Especially the group from 3 or 4 (who fish with dad's help) and the 8 to 12 group, which is a totally independent (they think).

The younger (Izak Walton) keeping pace with the serious fishermen racing the pond's closing time at 4 p.m. or when money runs out.

Fish Derbies are really great institutions for frustrated fishermen. They benefit those anglers, who, at this point in April, with weeks to go

Country jamboree

Kenny Rogers

"A Special Kenny Rogers," an all-star music special served up with savory slices of country life, will be presented Thursday, April 12, on CBS. Portions of two Kenny Rogers concerts — one in the Houston Astrodome, the other in Nashville — are featured.

Rogers' guest stars, Ray Charles, The Oakridge Boys and Dottie West, help display the sights and sounds of East Texas which left their imprint on young Rogers. Legendary blues singer Lightnin' Hopkins makes an impromptu appearance.

Derek Jacobi

Starting June 10, PBS's Masterpiece Theatre will re-air "I, Claudius," the 13-part chronicle of the dissolute old Roman lifestyle, complete with incest, adultery, prostitution, rape and Mafia-style politics as practiced in imperial circles.

Derek Jacobi brilliantly portrays Claudius, Sian Phillips is Livia, and Brian Blessed is the confused and repugnant Augustus. The series is based on the Robert Graves novel.

Car case

Rock Hudson stars as a key executive in a major automobile conglomerate and Lee Remick portrays his troubled wife, who finds the pressures of their life style a challenge, in "Wheels," Part I, to be rebroadcast on "NBC Novels for Television," Wednesday, April 4.

In this rebroadcast of last year's miniseries, Hudson plays big-business politics and makes romance a sideline, while his wife finds solace in her own affairs.

BAD VIDEO — I've been very disappointed since "Compulsion," the story about Leopold & Loeb, was supposed to be on TV. Instead the station aired that stupid "Sheriff of Fractured Jaw." I am mainly interested because I had the original book, a first edition (before a friend borrowed and never returned it). Will it be on again? — Gertrude Fallon, Venice, Calif.

Since "Compulsion" was made in the '50s, it has not been on network television in some years. So, we are talking here of one of your local stations or affiliates running the film. I know this excellent movie about the '20s Chicago thrill-kill trial airs regularly in New York. I would assume it pops up now and again on the local station that planned to air it. Write them with your complaint and query.

NO GREEN STAMPS — Why is "Starksy & Hutch" off the air? They are so good, I've never missed a show. My husband also likes it very much. Is David Soul going to be in any more TV shows? — Mrs. Harvey Kellum, Jacksonville, N.C.

"S & H" are, at the moment, only temporarily off the air. The series was pre-empted for six week

BRIDGING A GAP — I sure need your help. My father-in-law and I have had a long-time disagreement over Jeff and Beau Bridges. I say it was Beau who starred with Clint Eastwood in "Thunderbolt and White Lightning." He says it was Jeff. Can you "bridge" this argument and for all? — Judy Mackey, Snyder, Texas

You'll need more than my help to win this argument. First off, the movie was "Thunderbolt and Lightning." Second, I'm afraid father-in-law knows best. It was baby brother Jeff.

TRUMPETS — Could you please tell me about the great actor who portrayed Private Robert E. Lee Pruitt on NBC Novels for Television: "From Here to Eternity"? Has he done any other acting? Where can I write him? — C. McGlynn, Rochester, N.Y.

TV Dial-ogue

VET — My brother-in-law and I have a bet going. I say Martin Milner of "Adam 12" was one of the two guys from "Route 66." He says it isn't him. Also, I say he drove a 1966 yellow Corvette. He says it was a '66 Mustang. Plus, what was the story of the show all about? Was it just about going across country? — Gary Brenton, Tiverton, R.I.

I'd say both you and your brother-in-law need a crash course in TV trivia, although he's further off the mark than you are. First, Martin Milner was one of the characters. George Maharis was the other (later replaced by Glenn Corbett). As to the third character — the car — what's with this insistence on 1966? The highway was Route 66, but the show began in 1960 (a while before the Mustang rolled off Ford's assembly lines). And as for the color being yellow — you must have dreamt that. The show was filmed in black and white, so if it were yellow you wouldn't have known anyway. It was a recent (in 1960) edition white Corvette convertible. Finally, the show's creators thought providing action, adventure and romance was enough.

V FOR VECTOR — I really enjoy watching "Battlestar Galactica." I think Maria Jenson is really good as Athena. Could you tell me where to write to her? Also, was Jack Haley (the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz") playing the role of Vector in the episode that aired Feb. 25? I would appreciate an answer because my roommate and I have a bet going. — Danna Stroud, Santa Barbara, Calif.

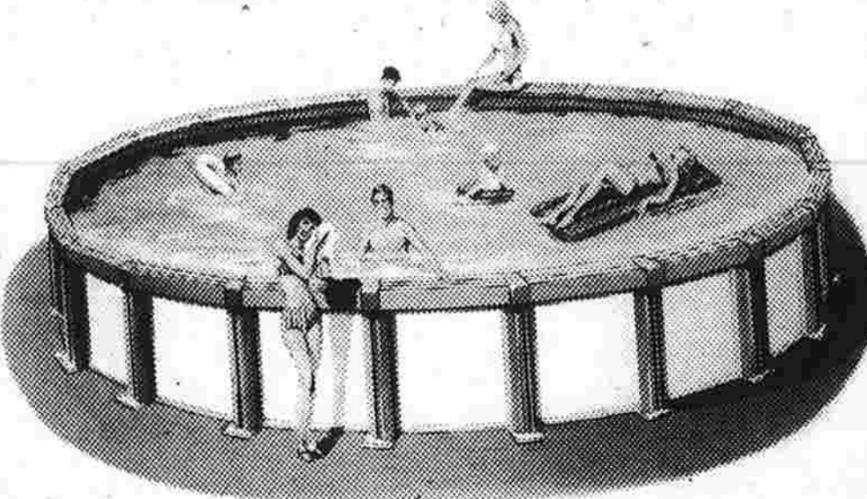

Write the cast of "Battlestar Galactica" at Universal Studios, Universal City, CA., care of the show. I hope you told your friend that Jack Haley played Vector and not that the Scarecrow played him. Haley did play the android on the show, but he was the Tinman in "The Wizard of Oz." Tsk-tsk.
