Canal Voyage

The freighter Ashdod steamed into the Suez Canal today, flying the Star of David and sounding its sirens to mark the first voyage by an Israeli ship through the canal since the birth of the Jewish state in 1948.

The ship's transit was a successful test of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty which specifically called for the passage of Israeli-flag ships through the Suez Canal.

In Jerusalem, the Cabinet voted Sunday to reinstitute capital punishment for the first time since Nazi Adolf Eichmann was executed in 1962. The move, initiated by Prime Minister Menachem Begin, came in response to last week's seaborne attack in Nahariya by Palestinian terrorists.

Even as the Cabinet met, a terrorist bomb exploded outside the Brenner School in Fkar Sava near Tel Aviv, injuring three children, police said.

Tough Battles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by nationwide demands for a balanced budget and spending cuts, an austerity-minded Congress anticipated tough battles this week to determine federal spending levels for the rest of this year and next.

The House was beginning action today on its fiscal 1980 budget resolution, with a number of challenges expected to the recommendation of the House Budget Committee for $532.7 billion in outlays with a $24.9 billion deficit.

Passage of the resolution is in doubt. Most Republicans apparently will vote against it in any form and there are rumors that liberals, unless they can add extra money for the social programs, may join the GOP in opposition.

Faces Ordeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herman Talmadge, millionaire Georgia Democrat and one of the Senate's most influential members, today faced an ordeal in the Senate Ethics committee that could end his political career.

Trial-like disciplinary hearings that could end in Senate censure or expulsion were to begin in a somber atmosphere similar to that of a courtroom. It is the first disciplinary action against a senator since the 1967 case of Connecticut Democrat Thomas Dodd, which ended in censure.

Talmadge last year declared his innocence of allegations of financial misconduct and announced his plan to seek re-election in 1980.

Final Push

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan, his Labor Party apparently gaining on Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives, is calling on supporters for one final push to win Thursday's parliamentary election.

Mrs. Thatcher began her final drive Sunday to become Britain's first woman prime minister by appealing to the heart of Callaghan's support — trade unionists — who, she predicted, would work well with a Conservative government.

But Callaghan said the Conservatives "were beginning to panic" and "one last heave" by party supporters would put Labor over the top in the Thursday balloting.

The latest opinion polls published Sunday showed Mrs. Thatcher still ahead of her Labor rival, although in some cases by much smaller margins than earlier in the campaign.

Labor Trouble Persists

Guided by a race marshal and watched by several of the hundreds of spectators who lined the river banks, two canoes shoot the rapids in the annual Hockanum River Canoe Race Sunday. Paddlers Set Records

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — High, fast water in the Hockanum caused some problems for canoeists but also helped set a new course record for the third annual Hockanum River Canoe Race Sunday.

The new course record was set by Alan M. Hunter of Collinsville and his partner Kevin Duffy of Wethersfield in the two-man medium canoe class in a time of one hour, two minutes and 29 seconds. The previous record was 1:11:26 set during the first race in 1977.

The high water caused several registered entries to withdraw before the race Sunday, said Lee Watkins, chairman of the race. About 118 were registered at one point, but only 94 started Sunday's race and 82 finished.

At least six canoes were demolished during the rough course and several others were badly damaged, Watkins said.

The pace of the stream and the rapids behind Economy Electric Co. off Oakland Street increased the class rating, making the course much more difficult than normal, Watkins said. Normally a Class I stream, Sunday it was Class II & III at different points.

Several canoeists were dumped along the way, but only one serious injury resulted. Richard Phelps of Vernon was dumped from his canoe at the top of the rapids and was pinned between his canoe and a rock. The cut on his heel required 27 stitches at Rockville General Hospital, Watkins reported.

A lost canoeist was another problem the race committee encountered at the end of the race, when 15-year-old John Pajor of Wallingford paddled in alone, the last to finish at the Powder Mill Shopping Center in East Hartford. He reported that his partner Herby Rivera, 16, also of Wallingford got wet and tired and decided to abandon their canoe near the Town Landfill area off West Middle Turnpike. Rivera then walked to the K-Mart on Spencer Street. Police picked him up, and began looking for Pajor, thinking he was still in the river. It took about an hour and a half for the police and the committee to get the two partners together.

The first canoeists left the starting point near the Steak Out in Vernon about 9:30 a.m. and the last starters left at 11:30 a.m. The last to finish was Pajor at 2 p.m.

The Eighth District Fire Department had a boat in Union Pond and helped the canoeists portage at the falls by throwing a rope across the river.

The Ground Frequency Yankees Radio Club relayed information to officials and served as safety checks at 10 points along the race course.

The other winners, categories and times were as follows:

- Stan and Jane Wass of West Sutfield, short racing, 1:07:42
• Schuyler Thomson of Torrington and Cynthia Lynch of Burlington, mixed couples, 1:04:57
• Harriet Wallis of South Windsor and Jean Quinn of East Windsor, two women, 1:22:39
• Barry and Scott Budlong of Windsor, over age 21, under 15, 1:13:54
• Bruce Antonio and Glenn Setzler, both of Manchester, under age 15, 1:29:57
• Rick Sagan of Colchester, solo, 1:06:12
• Jackson King Jr. and Edmund Lamb II, both of Ledyard, aluminum canoe, 1:02:29
• Edwin Johansen and Donald Hart, both of East Hartford, fiberglass, 1:08:44

Nukes Soil Workers, Spark Big Protests

By United Press International Nuclear power turned on a lot more than the lights during the weekend.

Contaminated workmen in Canada and New England, triggered protests in Colorado, Oklahoma and North Carolina, rallied supporters around the mines of New Mexico and set politicians trembling in West Germany.

American Indians in the Southwest said, "These holy mountains have been blessed by our Great Spirit" — and "compared nearby uranium mining operations to the desecration of a church."

In Plymouth, Mass., where officials still are cleaning up residue left by faulty fuel rods several years ago, physicist Ralph E. Lapp said it all.

"When you get a hot plant, you're going to get radiation exposure. It's as simple as that. The memory lingers on."

He was talking about his own problem, but he may as well have been talking about Three Mile Island, in Harrisburg, Pa., from which the memories of the worst nuclear accident in history lingered and grew.

Officials in Toronto said Sunday two nuclear plant workers received more than a year's normal radiation quotient in one day while repairing a damaged generating system.

Dr. Don Watson, manager of safety services for the plant, said there was little cause for concern, since their exposure still was considerably less than a barium X-ray would have inflicted. But he added, "the important thing is, we lost control."

The Boston Globe reported Sunday workers at the Plymouth, Mass., Pilgrim I plant have been exposed to comparatively high levels of radiation for several years because a leak spread radioactive material through the plant's cooling system, leaving a number of lingering "hot spots."

Despite improved worker exposure records and a $1.5 million cleanup program, Boston Edison officials said it still may take two years to correct the situation.

For protesters, Three Mile Island remained the call to arms. In Colorado, 284 of them — including anti-war activist Daniel Ellsberg — were arrested.

Ellsberg called the Rocky Flats Nuclear Weapons plant near Golden "a Harrisburg waiting to happen." He led protesters in a march that briefly blocked three roads leading to the facility.

Demonstrations on a lesser scale were staged in Durham, N.C., and Gore, Okla.

In uranium-rich Grants, N.M., nuclear power backers rallied in defense of the mining industry that made a boom town of their city.

"What the country needs now is an educational process to overcome the fears of the nuclear power industry," ex-astronaut Sen Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said.

Several miles away, anti-nuclear forces led by the American Indian Environmental Council, staged a protest rally against uranium mining.

The shadow of Three Mile Island reached all the way to West Germany where politicians facing election saw in the Pennsylvania accident a golden chance for the "Green," or environmentalist, party to seize the balance of power.

It didn't. Anti-nuclear "Greens" drew only 2.42 percent of the vote, but they left their mark.

As his first order of business Monday, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt scheduled a discussion of plans for the final storage of nuclear waste in deep underground salt beds, and the government said it will license no more nuclear plant construction until waste disposal is assured.

By United Press International Labor disputes continued to plague Connecticut industries today with workers at a Milford plant expected to be on the picket lines and continuing strikes at two other major firms.

The stage also was set for another strike as union employees at Torrington's largest employer overwhelmingly voted Sunday to authorize a strike if they don't have a new contract by May 11.

Meanwhile in New Britain over the weekend, some faculty of Connecticut's four state colleges picketed a negotiation session to protest drawn out contract negotiations for about 1,200 state college professors.

About 300 United Auto Workers were expected to walk off the job at the Robert Shaw Controls Co. in Milford early today after rejecting the company's last offer for a new contract Friday.

The union had authorized a strike for midnight Sunday and although company officials couldn't be reached for comment one person at the plant said attempts at reaching a last-minute agreement apparently had failed.

The company, which makes home thermostat controls, reportedly had offered the workers a three-year contract with total wage and benefit increases of $1.60 an hour. But a union spokesman said Friday the pact was only worth about $1.30 an hour.

More than 3,300 workers at Fafnir Bearing plants in New Britain and Berlin stayed off the job for a second week in their contract dispute involving two unions.

But negotiators for the United Auto Workers, which represents all but about 200 of the workers, were to resume full-scale bargaining with Fafnir negotiators today.

The other union, which represents machinists, said Sunday it was awaiting a company response to a proposed settlement before returning to the bargaining table.

About 1,900 workers at the Avco-Lycoming Division in Stratford remained off the job today as their strike against the aircraft and tank engine manufacturer entered its third week.

Talks in the dispute have been stalled by the company's insistence that the settlement be kept within President Carter's suggested 7 percent lid on wage and benefit increases. Avco-Lycoming officials say they must follow the guidelines because of the firm's large amount of defense contract work.

At the Torrington-Co. in Torrington, United Auto Workers voted 701-50 Sunday to authorize a walkout if they don't have a new contract when the present pact expires May 11.

About 1,650 of the 2,350 persons who work at the firm's ball-bearing manufacturing plant in Torrington are represented by the union.

UAW Local 1645 President Angelo Franculli said the company's final contract offer will probably be presented to the workers May 12. If the pact is rejected and the workers go on strike it would be the first walkout at the plant since 1963 when union members struck the company for 17 weeks.

Report on Tests Still Unreleased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Education Association has attempted for months to obtain the material behind an unreleased government report that contends students can be coached in preparation for college entrance examinations.

The Federal Trade Commission has said it is still compiling statistical data on its report which — according to the NEX — concludes that students who take costly crash courses to prepare for supposedly "coach-proof" college entrance tests do better than students who do not study for them.

The Federal Trade Commission report and the NEA contentions were to be discussed at a national consortium on testing today in nearby Arlington, Va. The FTC has yet to release the report or discuss its contents. The agency also has not decided whether to make the report public or even to approve or reject the report or modify it.

This has led to an accusation by NEA Executive Director Terry Herndon the FTC is watering down its findings.

The NEA said it learned of the report from "reliable sources" and it seems to confirm the tests "are less consistent in their ability to predict potential" than the testing industry and others have claimed.

The Standard Aptitude Test, or SAT, is administered by the College Entrance Examination Board which opposes the use of outside tutors. The board contends a two-week crash course won't really help the hopeful college student do any better on the exam.

No Influx Predicted in Dental Ads

MANCHESTER — Local dentists do not expect a great influx of dental advertisements, even though an agreement between the Federal Trade Commission and the American Dental Association temporarily has lifted any ban on advertising.

"I don't think we'll see much utilization of the change," Dr. John Barry Jr. said. Barry, a Manchester dentist, is president-elect of the Connecticut State Dental Association.

The FTC has a suit against the American Dental Association that challenges dental group restrictions, such as any limiting on advertising.

The FTC, which has a similar suit pending against the American Medical Association, has said the elimination of such restrictions could lead to lower dental bills.

The agreement reached between the FTC and the American Dental Association says that the final decision reached in the American Medical Association case also will apply to the dentists.

While the case is pending, all ethical restrictions prohibiting advertising will be prohibited. Even so, there probably will be little noticeable effect.

"I don't think dentists will see any advantages to advertising in the long run," Dr. Norman Dutton of Manchester said.

"Dentists are busy," he said as he explained part of the reason he feels there will be no influx of advertisement.

Dentists, in fact, already are permitted to advertise, and few have done so thus far, Dutton said.

The American Dental Association will send letters to its members and say that advertising is permitted. Such letters could lead to some increase in advertising, but Dr. Barry doesn't think so.

"It's a matter of professionalism. A majority of dentists want the profession to remain the same," he said. Dentists also dispute whether the agreement will lead to any reductions in dental costs.

Board Approves Tax Transfers

HEBRON — The Board of Finance has voted to accept the recommendation from the tax collector to transfer uncollectable taxes, in the amount of $12,253, from the existing Hard Lists, to the Suspense Tax Book.

These taxes are a combination of motor vehicle and personal property taxes which the tax collector has been unable to collect because the person who owes them can't be contacted.

First Selectman Aaron Ried said that he has flagged the following courts, indicating possible overexpenditures: Zoning Board of Appeals, gasoline, insurance, vital statistics, equipment and referendum expenses.

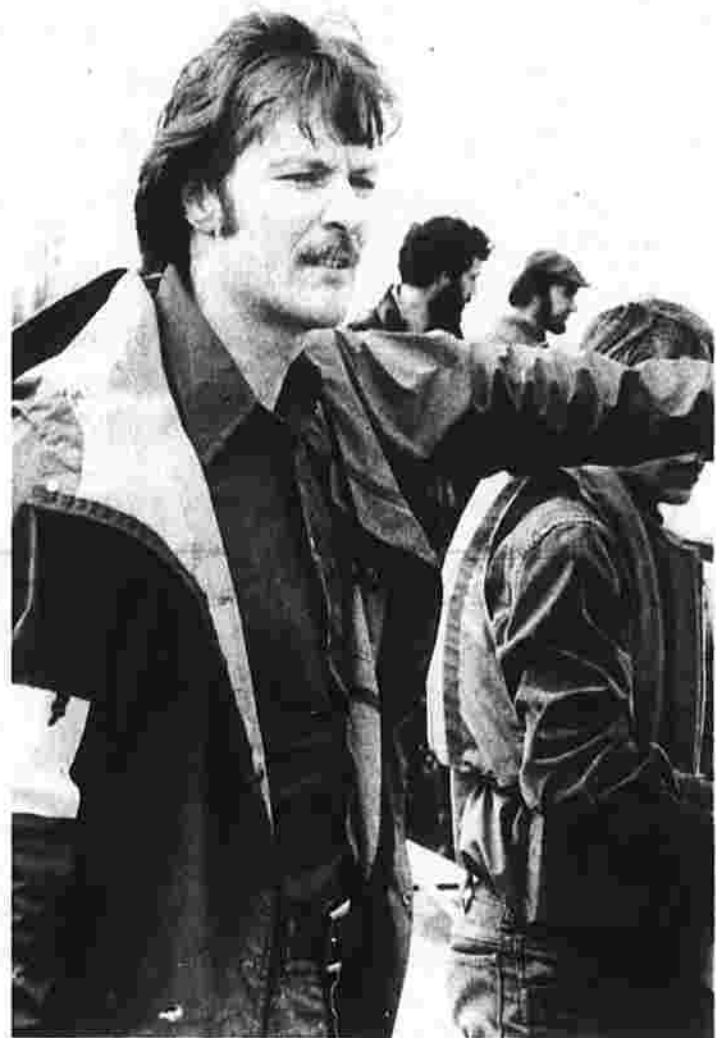

He has not asked for any transfers to be made as yet and he said that the selection's budget appropriations were alright until May.

The annual town meeting on the budget is scheduled for May 14 at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium of the Hebron Elementary School.

Young Mayor Doing OK

Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich may not be old enough to run for the presidency, but he certainly was running for something Saturday and he wasn't doing badly with the 1,100 labor, senior citizen and public interest group representatives who turned out in Columbus, Ohio, to hear him.

Kucinich, branding the U.S. tax system "programmed economic injustice," says he's out to forge a grass-roots "anti-corporate alliance."

His address, in which he called corporations "vampires... sucking the blood out of our cities and states," got the 32-year-old maverick mayor two standing ovations.

Art Lesson

Fine art can be dangerous if you happen to be pursuing it in Czechoslovakia and don't watch where you're going.

Pennsylvania Congressman Larry Coughlin found that out during a recent visit to Prague — says he was walking through President Gustav Husak's palace, admiring the priceless furnishings and paintings, when he suddenly found himself in Husak's living quarters — with a pistol-toting plain clothesman "who didn't speak English."

He didn't collect a bullet for a souvenir, but says he still shudders — that the incident points up "a police-state atmosphere where officials live in grand style while ordinary citizens exist in drab conformity."

Bold, Not Old

California Congressman Jim Lloyd has a new cause to champion — that of the aging airline pilot. He says in Washington he'll co-sponsor a bill to overturn an FAA rule compelling pilots to retire at 60.

Says Lloyd: "The irony of the situation is the pilot of an airplane may be 59 1/2 years old, blind in one eye and a reformed alcoholic. He may have had cancer, be 50 pounds overweight, and be a five-park-a-day smoker. But once the pilot passes his 60th birthday, even if he has 20-20 vision, can run a marathon, and hasn't been sick in years, the FAA says he is such a risk that no tests exist which are sure enough to keep him in the pilot's chair."

Urban Cowboy

Since he's the essence of country music, fans scarcely would expect to find Waylon Jennings in anything called "Urban Cowboy." But that's the way it is.

The down-home Grammy winner, who has 10 gold and platinum records to his credit, has been signed by Paramount producers Bob Evans and Irving Azoff for the role, based on Aaron Latham's Esquire magazine cover story "The Ballad of the Urban Cowboy; America's Search for True Grit."

The role should be no problem, Jennings says.

Climpes

More than 43,000 people turned out with Rising Sun paper flags at Tokyo's Imperial Palace to greet Emperor Hirohito on his 78th birthday — Arthur Fiedler will be back at the podium, directing the Boston Pops Tuesday night in "Fiedler's Fiftieth" — honoring the octogenarian maestro's golden anniversary with the orchestra — Julie Harris, who opened Sunday night in the Broadway show "Break a Leg" with costar Jack Weston, had a special treat waiting back stage — a kiss from her Yorkshire terrier Theresa — Lowell Thomas Sr. will receive the Illinois Institute of Technology Alumni Association's highest award — the Henry T. Heald Award for "outstanding service to human progress" — next Saturday in Chicago.

Dissidents May Settle In Region

By United Press International
ALEXANDER GINZBURG and VALENTIN MOROZ, two of the five Russian dissidents freed by the Soviet Union in exchange for two convicted spies, may end up living in New England.

Ginzburg, 42, has been invited to live with fellow exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn in Cavendish, Vt. The Nobel Prize-winning author's wife Natya said this weekend that Ginzburg will arrive Tuesday at their secluded country home.

A source close to the dissidents said, however, Ginzburg would probably not stay there permanently.

The Boston Sunday Globe said Moroz, a historian who was serving a nine-year term for exposing his ideas on Ukrainian nationalism, was considering taking a teaching position at Harvard University's Ukrainian Research Institute in Cambridge, Mass.

Moroz, also 42, taught Ukrainian history before being jailed in 1965 by Russian authorities for anti-Soviet activities.

The dissidents were exchanged Friday for two men convicted of spying for the Soviet Union. Ginzburg and Moroz arrived in the United States Saturday along with Mark Dymshits, Eduard Kunetsov and Georgi Vins.

Violence Erupts at Party

PLAINVILLE (UPI) — Two persons were shot and a third run over by a car after a disturbance broke out during a party that drew about 250 persons to Plainville's Padre Park Sunday night, police said.

Police Chief Frank Roche said about 50 policemen from Plainville, Southington, New Britain, Farmington and the Hartford state police barracks were called to the park about 6:30 p.m. to quell the disturbance.

Roche said six persons had been arrested as of Sunday night and charged with interfering with police after they began fighting with the officers who went to the park.

Police were still investigating to determine who did the shooting, he said.

Roche said the party was being held by a group of local youngsters when "outsiders came in and altercations ensued between the two groups."

He said one of the two persons who had been shot was treated and released at a New Britain hospital while the other one was undergoing surgery as was the person struck by the car.

Roche said the party was usually held in town parks, the chief said. "I don't know how this one got by," he said. "That permit was issued by the Recreation Department. I'll have to speak with them about this one."

Rent Subsidy Still Available

SOUTH WINDSOR — Three of the 20 units allocated for South Windsor under the local rental subsidy program are still available according to a progress report by Ms. Lisa Heinz of Imagineers, a Hartford firm which is administering the local program.

Seventeen of the units have been assigned, according to Ms. Heinz. The three units which are still available are one bedroom rentals for the elderly.

In order to qualify for the program the applicant must be a senior citizen with an annual income under $10,550, with total housing costs exceeding 25 percent of the income.

"I'm sure there are elderly people in the community who need the kind of assistance offered by this program," said Ms. Heinz. "And we are going to have to count on the community to help us find them."

Inquiries from persons who believe they might qualify for one of the three allocations for elderly should call Ms. Heinz at Imagineers in Hartford.

While only 25 percent of the 100 persons who applied for 20 subsidies offered in South Windsor were actually local residents, many were former residents or had family in town, according to Ms. Heinz. Of the 17 applicants selected, six are presently residing in town. The others have 60 days to locate a rent, difficulty is anticipated in this area because rents are plentiful Ms. Heinz said.

Hearing Is Tonight On Water Pollution

HEBRON — The Water Pollution Control Authority's study committee will conduct a public hearing tonight at 8 at the Hebron Elementary School.

Members of the study committee will discuss the reasons why Hebron received an abatement order; and why a Water Pollution Control Authority is needed, and then conduct a question and answer session.

The meeting is being held to provide the residents of Hebron with information before the town meeting is held on May 14.

At the town meeting the residents will be asked to accept a proposed ordinance which will establish an authority.

The Board of Selectmen and the town attorney have drafted a tentative ordinance which includes how the membership of the authority will be decided, the number of members, the length of terms of office and the composition of the group. Final action on the proposed draft will be taken by the selectmen at the May 3 board meeting.

Residents wishing additional information may contact any of the following members of the study committee: David Marnick, chairman; Frost T. Krist, secretary; Raymond J. Burt, Larry Thornton, Basil Boyensky and Henry Sander.

Comment Time Tuesday

MANCHESTER — The Town Board of Directors will conduct a public comment session Tuesday from 9-11 a.m. in the directors' office in the Municipal Building.

The sessions are held twice each month and permit residents to meet with a board member and discuss any matter involving town government.

The sessions are held the first Tuesday of each month from 9-11 a.m. and the third Thursday of each month from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Faulty Fuel Rods Blamed for Leaks

BOSTON (UPI) — Workers at Pilgrim 1 nuclear power plant have been exposed to comparatively high levels of radiation for several years because of faulty fuel rods in the plant's reactor which leaked radiation, it was reported Sunday.

The Boston Globe said moisture in the uranium fuel rods, made for the atomic facility by General Electric Co., had spread radioactive material through the plant's cooling system.

The leak created so-called "hot spots" at the power station, which "remain active nearly two years after the last of the faulty fuel was removed," the Globe said.

Despite improved worker exposure records and $15 million program to clean up the leaking radiation, officials at Boston Edison — which runs the nuclear plant — concede the problem may not be eliminated for two years.

Ralph E. Lapp, the utility's chief nuclear engineer, said radiation due to the fuel problem never exceeded federal standards, but said the company is working to improve radiation levels inside the facility.

The Globe said Boston Edison reports to the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission show 137 persons were exposed to radiation at Pilgrim 1 in 1978 was 2.91 rems, which is higher than the national average of 0.36 rems in 1976, and 473 in 1977.

Average individual exposure of persons absorbing radiation at Pilgrim 1 in 1978 was 2.91 rems, the highest in the nation, the story said.

A rem is a unit devised to measure effects of radiation on human cells. The Globe said most of those exposed were outside workers hired by the utility to replace the faulty fuel rods and assist in other reactor and plant maintenance.

"We're trying to reduce individual exposure and it's working," said Paul McGuire, the Pilgrim plant manager. "In 1976, we did things that reduced it in '77. The stuff we did in '77 has really reduced it (radiation exposure) in '78."

In 1977, the NRC wrote that "the chronic and repetitive nature of items of noncompliance (with radiation protection rules) at this plant demonstrates a lack of effective radiation safety controls."

The federal agency subsequently fined the company $10,000 after a surprise inspection at the nuclear power plant. Inspectors pointed out exposure-related problems at Pilgrim were "recurrent."

Roger Silva, a maintenance staff engineer at Pilgrim who is also Plymouth selectman chairman, told the New England Radio Network Sunday, "I don't think they've discovered anything new," referring to the Globe story.

Sam Walter, a union steward for Pilgrim in 1978, was 2.91 rems, the highest in the nation, the story said.

South Windsor Council To Air General Budget

SOUTH WINDSOR—The Town Council will put the general government budget, trimmed by some $160,000, before the public for comment tonight at 7:30. The $160,000 was cut by the council from the originally proposed $6.3 million budget, following Town Manager Allan Young's conclusion that some of the requests for construction and new equipment were not critical. Young told the council that Public Works Director Richard Shattuck advised that the Deming Street culvert with a $70,000 price tag could be postponed. The police communications system is expected to cost less than the amount originally allotted in the initial budget, also creating a reduction in the final budget figure. Young also recommended postponing the purchase of two trucks and reducing the town's contingency and debt service accounts. If approved, the final general government figure would be $6.13 million. The public hearing will be held in the council chambers of Town Hall. A worksession and special meeting of the council will be held immediately following the general government budget

Town Taking Steps Energy Cutbacks Difficult

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER—Saving gas and energy is on the minds of most people these days, including town officials. But, most town administrators see little else the town can do to cut its consumption. Steps already have been taken to reduce the town's expense for such items as gas and electricity. Maurice Pass, director of general services, said. Future steps, however, would mean major expense or a cutback in the service provided by town departments, officials say. Pass said the first phase of energy conservation is the easiest—making sure lights are turned off, air-conditioning and heating units are turned down and wasteful trips by automobiles are eliminated. "It's an all-important step," Pass said of these simple conservation steps. It's also a step the town has implemented, he said. Pass sent a letter to town department heads earlier this year that warned of a possible cutback in the town's allocation of gasoline. This, along with expected price increases, makes cutting back the use of gas an inviting prospect. Town Manager Robert Weiss also sent a letter in March to town employees. He asked them to turn off lights while rooms are not being used and to resist using the air conditioners until absolutely necessary. "Large departments to closely monitor their use of automobiles and, where possible, reduce the amount of travel which takes place," he said. He suggested town employees work to create car pools. Pass said the town also has redone the heating system in the Municipal Building at 41

Center St. The new system provides more room-by-room control and has cut down on heating costs, he said. This and the other steps taken by the town has led to conservation of fuel. Future conservation will be harder to come by, however, he said. "There are just so many areas we can save," Pass said. Other steps will be more expensive than ones already taken by the town. Both the Municipal Building and Lincoln Center could use new storm windows, but such a change would be costly, he said. Frank Jodanis, the town's water and sewer administrator, said future planned improvements to the water system will help reduce his department's use of gasoline. The $20 million bond issue for water improvements, which voters approved April 17, includes construction of a treatment plant. This will provide one location for all water treatment. Treatment of water now has to be done at several different locations. "The only way we can make a substantial dent in gas usage is to have a centralized operation," he said. When asked about conservation efforts, Town Engineer Walter Senkow laughed and said, "I'm walking more. His department is working to group the activities of an inspector so several items can be checked in one trip. The Police Department has developed a contingency plan that it will implement if gasoline becomes scarce or the price becomes prohibitive. The six-step plan includes taking some non-emergency complaints over the telephone, rearranging the patrol districts, and having two persons instead of one in police cruisers. "If fuel is not around or the cost goes up, we're going to have to do something to implement part of the plan," Police Chief Robert Lannan said.

Warning Created Lines

HARTFORD (UPI)—A Connecticut gas station owner claims reports about widespread station closings this weekend led to long lines at the pumps, creating the shortage motorists were warned about. "All these forecasts that stations were going to be closed became a self-fulfilling prophecy," said Charles Matties of Matties West Hartford Exxon. "It created such a run on stations that most of us had to close early." Matties stopped pumping at 9 a.m. Saturday and didn't sell any gas at all on Sunday—joining the estimated 75-90 percent of the stations shut down statewide on Sunday. "Most of us are allocating our sales on a daily basis, trying to control our hours of operation so that we can get through the month," Matties said. "A lot of people bought gas this weekend that they didn't need because they were afraid they wouldn't be able to get any." The American Automobile Association club has reflected this concern of the club, that people be fed, clothed, the elderly, the handicapped and the poor be treated with respect and dignity. This concern has taken form as the party, clothing bank, furniture bank, ministry to shut-ins and elderly groups of churches gave banded

Council of Churches Shows Concern for Needy

By NANCY GARR
MCC Executive Director
Our office has received a number of calls concerning the women mentioned in the article headlined "Woman Leaving Because of Vole," printed in the Herald a couple of weeks ago. Some of the callers were concerned, one gentleman even called to offer help in finding an apartment. The church has, historically, always served the poor and the abandoned. The first orphanages, the first hospitals, the first "soup kitchens," the first homes for the elderly and the forerunners of so many other services to the poor were offered by the church centuries long before enlightened governments began to provide them. The concern of MCC churches, and the Christians of Manchester for people in need is certainly nothing new. MCC has reflected this concern of the church that people be fed, be clothed, the elderly, the handicapped and the poor be treated with respect and dignity. This concern has taken form as the party, clothing bank, furniture bank, ministry to shut-ins and elderly groups of churches gave banded

Second Hearing Due On Vernon's Spending

VERNON—The Town Council will conduct the second public hearing on the general government and education budgets, tonight at 7:30 in the auditorium of the Sykes School, Park Street. The proposed budgets total $17.7 million with $10.9 of that being for education and representing a 6.9 percent increase over the current budget. The slightly over $6 million general government budget represents an increase of 3.8 percent. The first public hearing, this past Tuesday, drew only about 20 persons, other than council and school board members, and only one comment from a representative of the League of Women Voters speaking in support of establishing a capital improvements budget. This budget has been a source of controversy between some council members. The Democrats on the council, indicated after last week's hearing that they would

In a survey, our customers told us they want to know more about important energy issues. The purpose of this ad is to give you some of the information you have requested.

Tonight is brought to you by Northeast Utilities.

When you turn out your lights tonight, take just a moment to stop taking your electric service for granted. And see it the way we do. As a responsibility. A responsibility we've managed to meet in spite of inflation—so far. Through modern technology and old-fashioned belt tightening, we've managed to keep the services coming. Services like tree-trimming crews to keep the lines free. Storm restoration teams to get the lines back up. Home energy audits to get your costs down. Time-of-day rates to cut peak hour demand. Customer service centers to cut through red tape. 24 hours a day. We provide free energy conservation advice for people who have trouble trimming their bill. Third party notification for people who have trouble paying their bill. And many other services. But now we're feeling the squeeze of inflation just like you. Maybe even more. In fact, since 1975 our electric operating expenses have gone up 29%. While our electric rates have gone up only 3%. We need adequate revenues. With them, we can assure you of the existing services we provide. And perhaps even develop new ways to add more of the services that make your lives a little easier. Your power more reliable. And in the long run, your electric rates more economical. You see, we think you should be able to take your electric service for granted. Tonight, tomorrow night, and every night.

Opinion Vote Interpretation

Although the referendum vote concerning the continued use of Community Development Block Grant funds is nearly two weeks old, interest in the result of the vote still remains a topic of discussion.

As everyone knows, the voters, by about a three-to-one margin, have told town officials to stop participation in the Community Development program for a two-year period.

We believe the vote on all the issues is clear cut and definite. The people have said no to further participation and no to the town assuming any costs connected with the projects.

First Woman Prime Minister for Britain?

By GREGORY JENSEN LONDON (UPI) — Even if Britain's May 3 election makes Margaret Thatcher the first woman to head a government in the Western world, there won't be much dancing in Britain's streets on that account.

Financial Expertise Needed

Three concerns were expressed by a number of residents: the increase of town staff (possibly by as many as six); the need for twice a week trash pickup and the need for a leaf pickup in the fall.

A fourth concern was expressed by the president of the Manchester Taxpayers Association. Her concern was the continual draining of the town staff's pension fund when general revenues run low.

The taxpayers should be invited to a second public hearing before the final budget is adopted so that they can see which concerns are being heeded by the Board of Directors and which ones are being ignored.

We are fortunate enough to have pension and financial experts from large corporations living in our town who have volunteered their expertise (free of charge) to the Board of Directors to aid them in their budget deliberations.

Has the Board of Directors actually engaged these financial experts in any budget deliberations? I feel that these professionals could be a different asset to the Manchester budget process.

Jane Hinto Damron 32 Philip Road Manchester

"I was placed in a prison cell... I was beaten and hounded like a wild beast during a hunt. Many times I have been seized on the street and thrown into dirty, smelly cellars they call a detention cell."

When she went to a clinic for treatment of a heart condition she developed in 1972, Nudel was treated instead for alcoholism, though she does not drink.

Finally, on June 1, 1978, Nudel went too far. She hung a banner from her apartment balcony and openly criticized the government.

Harden threatened the ensign with court martial and Molter with transfer back to the United States if they persisted. But Kaletia checked with a legal officer and stood up to Harden's bullying.

The admiral? He is Rear Adm. George B. Shick Jr., who visited the Greek base in 1977, met the young couple and encouraged them to marry. He later wrote: "The good news of your forthcoming marriage brought a smile to my face... People like you make the Navy go..."

Military Marriage When Lt. Jg. Gary M. Kaletia married Tawny Molter on Dec. 21, 1977, a rear admiral sent them his warmest congratulations from Washington.

Footnote: The State Department assured me that they are watching Nudel's case "very closely," and that official concern had been conveyed to the Soviet government "at very high levels."

Footnote: In a series of earlier columns, we reported on another military match made in heaven which led to similar harassment.

"I'd like to see a woman prime minister just to see how she'd perform," he said. "Give her a chance, I say."

"If a woman can run the state of Washington and the city of Chicago," said an American tourist, "I guess a woman can run this place."

Dave Cowens Parts Company With State House Official

BOSTON (UPI) - When Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics parts company with a firm, he takes himself right out of the picture. State Rep. Michael Morrissey had a photo of himself and Cowens shaking hands hanging on the wall of his State House office.

Cowens walked into the office Friday, ripped the picture down the middle and walked out, as two legislative aides watched dumbfounded.

As he was doing that I asked him, "What's up, Dave?" said aide William Hogan. "He said, 'I don't want to be in the same picture with Mike Morrissey. He's no friend of mine.'"

'Lost' Photos Displayed

NEW HAVEN — Lost from sight for more than 50 years, the recently re-discovered photographs of Harriet V.S. Thorne will go on exhibition at the Yale University Art Gallery beginning Thursday.

As an early member of the New York Camera Club, Mrs. Thorne's style was influenced by her associates and better-known contemporaries, such as Alfred Stieglitz and the photo-successionists. In particular, a clear parallel can be made between her work and that of Gertrude Kasebier.

Bolton Dog Fund Money Held for Lack of Pound

BOLTON — Since October 1977 the State Canine Control Office has withheld the town's share of dog fund money because the town did not have a dog pound. Louis Golet, chief canine control officer for the state, said, "The decision to withhold the funds was made last October and the state treasurer was notified not to release Bolton's share of dog fund money."

Golet said, "The amount being withheld from Bolton is $1,386.16 and actually it's been withheld for two years."

Although town officials knew the funds were being withheld since October 1978, the matter only came to light recently when the Board of Selectmen approved a $1,500 appropriation for the dog warden's salary. The salary normally comes from the town's dog fund account

Annual Area Relays Rely on Volunteers

MANCHESTER — The fourth annual Manchester Community College New England Relays scheduled in June will involve not only more than 1,500 athletes, but several hundred area citizens who volunteer each year to make the relays a successful event.

Helping, also, to promote the spirit of the track and field event are elementary school students who participate in the New England Relays poster contest now going on in local schools. Every student entering the contest gets a free ticket to the relays.

Musical events and a photo and art contest make this an event to be enjoyed by the whole community, according to Mrs. Marilyn Fesl, head of the community events committee.

Sixty-six track and field events will be conducted at the Manchester High School sports facilities Saturday, June 23, while on Sunday, June 24, a three-mile race and a 12-mile Connecticut A.A.U. Championship run will start and finish at the MCC campus.

Also on Sunday at MCC, there will be a flexibility clinic and runners' clinic. The flexibility clinic will feature information on exercising the muscles both before and after athletic activity. The runners' clinic will feature information on foot care, diet, running techniques and training schedules.

Poster Contest Begins

MANCHESTER — Students from elementary through high school can actively participate in the Manchester Community College New England Relays poster contest now going on in local schools.

The poster contest is divided into four categories with first, second and third place winners in each group.

Division for awards are as follows: Senior division, Grades 10, 11 and 12 — first place, $50 and a gold medal; second place, $15 and a silver medal; third place, a bronze medal.

Intermediates, Grades, 7, 8 and 9 — first place, $25 and a gold medal; second place, $10 and a silver medal; third place, a bronze medal.

Juniors, all elementary grades — first place, $15 and gold medal; second place, $5 and silver medal; third place, a bronze medal.

Special education, all grades — first place, $25 and a gold medal; second place, $15 and a silver medal; third place, a bronze medal.

Each poster must be on standard poster board (18 inches by 24 inches) and must include the name of the event — 1979 MCC New England Relays — and dates and places that the events are scheduled.

Posters may include reference to a particular event, such as the 12-mile road race, or track and field events such as pole vaulting, the 100-yard dash, high hurdles, etc.

Members of the Manchester Arts Council will judge the entries. Mrs. Terry McConnell of Dartmouth Road is coordinating the poster contest.

Fosters may also refer to any of the several non-athletic events that are scheduled in conjunction with this year's relays. These include opening ceremonies featuring the 102d Army National Guard band, a runners' clinic, a photo and art contest, and concerts at the Bicentennial Band Shell.

Opening ceremonies with the band begin Saturday, June 23, at 1 p.m. On Sunday, June 24, at 3 p.m., some of the state's outstanding runners, among them John Vitale, will conduct a runners' clinic. Also on Sunday, before, during and after the road race, the Band Shell will feature the musical talents of The Sammy Brown Band, The Juggernaut Jug Band, Silk & Steel, and hopefully, Locomotion Circus. All of these programs are offered free to the public.

The music groups are classes as fine musical groups offering a variety of music that the entire family will enjoy, according to Mrs. Marilyn Fesl, head of the community events committee.

The photo and art contest enables camera hobbyists and artists to capture the theme, spirit and action of the relays on film or paper. Entrants will prepare their work during and after the relays and submit them for judging at a date and place to be announced.

Sullivan Will Head Law Day Observance

MANCHESTER — Attorney James J. Sullivan, a member of the law firm of Janenda & Gallagher, is chairman of the 1979 Law Day Observance in this area.

In making the announcement, president Allan D. Thomas of the Manchester Bar Association said the national theme for the May 1 observance is "Our Changing Rights." It is intended to "stimulate examination of both the issues that divide and the truths that unite us," he said.

Manchester Law Day events will be co-ordinated with the observances sponsored by the Connecticut Bar Association as well as the other 25 local and county bar associations throughout the state.

Over the past decade, Connecticut, with the assistance of the local associations, has established an outstanding record, winning the top American Bar Association Award for its observances in eight years of the past ten years.

"It is our intention to have another successful event in the area," Thomas said.

Sullivan received a bachelor's degree from Providence College in 1970 and a law degree from Suffolk University Law School in 1973. He was admitted to the Connecticut Bar in 1973. He is a member of the American, Connecticut, Hartford Country and Manchester Bars and Associations. He is attorney for and

Bolton Finance Board Reviews Budget Plans

BOLTON — The Board of Finance has been reviewing the proposed budgets for 1979-80 and making some changes.

Daniel Harris, finance board chairman, said "A lot of time has been spent discussing the capital and non-recurring account and whether or not certain items should be purchased from it."

Harris said the board is reacting favorably to an administrative assistant for the Board of Selectmen but there should be a cut in that category because the finance board doesn't believe the person will be working in July.

He said the board reacted favorably to a public works department foreman and would like to see the department implemented. He said the board did not react favorably to a park crew leader and feels it is inconsistent with the public works proposal.

Harris said $5,000 has been eliminated from the unemployment budget and $4,000 from the sand and salt budget. He said the board is also updating revenue estimates.

Harris said, "You have to remember that nothing is final until the whole package is put together."

The finance board will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center to continue discussing the budget.

Revaluation Under Way On Bolton's North Side

BOLTON — Inspection of property north of Bolton Turnpike and the Bolton Lake area, for the purpose of revaluation, is under way. The on-site investigations will continue until all property has been revalued.

The revaluation is being done by United Appraisal.

Calvin Hutchinson, assessor, said call-backs are being made to people who weren't home when the outside measurements of their house were taken.

Hutchinson said no values are being placed on the property yet. All property owners will be notified of their new assessment by the end of the year.

Society Not Active
The Bolton Historical Society has not had a meeting since May 1977 because of membership problems. No future meetings are planned.

Kerry Carey, society president, said the group's annual meeting should be in May but she does not plan to have a meeting.

There was no response to an earlier attempt to see if there was any interest in keeping the society going," Mrs. Carey said. Unless I get a request to have the annual meeting and unless there is a sizeable response, I am not going to do anything."

The society was founded in 1976 by the Bicentennial Committee and has a paid membership of about 25.

Anyone who is interested in reactivating the society should call Mrs. Carey at 648-7439.

WORKSHOP ON EXPANDING WOMEN'S CHOICES
This summer The University of Connecticut's Storrs Campus is sponsoring the following workshop:
EP5Y 298-10
EXPANDING WOMEN'S CHOICES: CAREER AND FAMILY LIFE (Three Credits)
This course will explore the literature describing women's choices, careers, dual careers, family, and coping skills. The workshop will provide the participants an opportunity to examine their personal decision making patterns, assess their worlds, and make some choices in a supportive group.
Workshop meets May 21 - June 11, Monday - Friday from 9:00-11:45 a.m.
Women who are questioning the direction of their lives; or any person working with women, life-planning and the development of skills needed for coping with career and family choices are encouraged to attend this workshop.
Cost is only $45 per credit! This workshop is open to both degree and non-degree students.
Registration by mail must be completed by May 2, 1979. Registration in person must be completed by May 11, 1979.
For more information on the course, registering procedures, fees, etc., call the University's Office of Credit Programs at 486-3832.

He Won't Accept Her Gift of Gab

DEAR ABBY: What's my problem? My husband doesn't want me to talk to him. Gerhard asks me not to talk to him during mealtime because he's "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid I should try to talk to him while he's reading or watching TV.

Win at bridge

The beauty of weak two bids hand with either 23-24 high card points or with 27 or more high card points. Partner responds with an artificial two-diamond response to show any ace, king or two queens. With this response the partnership is committed to play in 2-1. If you have a hand with 23-24 high card points and a weak two bid, you should bid 2-1. If you have a hand with 23-24 high card points and a weak two bid, you should bid 2-1.

Ask the Experts

New Jersey reader asks: "What is meant by 'ace over two bids'?" Immediate ace showing responses to opening forcing two bids. A conventional that is not recommended. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

AD CRAFT

The Herald

Over 125 entries were received for The Herald's fifth annual "Ad Craft" contest. Entries were judged by The Herald advertising staff and prizes were awarded in the following categories: (1) 4th, 5th, and 6th grades; (2) 7th, 8th, and 9th grades; (3) 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. A first prize and two honorable mentions were awarded in each category, and an over-all grand prize winner was named. Many excellent entries were submitted and judging was very difficult.

The Herald regrets being unable to publish all entries. Our congratulations to all the winners and our thank you to all the entrants.
