It's May Day

From the traditional parade on Moscow's Red Square to memorial tributes for the war dead in Israel, nations spanning the globe today marked May Day — an annual rite of spring — with marches, rallies and speeches.

Outside the Kremlin, about 2 million Soviets marched, cheering and swaying banners emblazoned with "Long live the unbreakable alliance of the working class" and other slogans.

For the first time in a decade, Soviet troops took part in the parade and military drill teams staged fancy marching in front of President Leonid Brezhnev and the Kremlin leadership sitting atop Lenin's Tomb in Red Square.

Most countries mark May Day as a day to honor its workers, commemorating the strikers' march through the streets of Chicago that culminated in the 1890 "Haymarket Massacre."

Iranian Workers loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, shouting "Death to the communists" scuffled and pushed left-wing demonstrators during a May Day march commemorating the Islamic Republic's "first spring of freedom."

But in Israel, solemn celebrations marked the day with memorial tributes honoring some 14,000 soldiers who have died defending the Jewish state since its birth in 1948.

Nuclear Water

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Spillage of suspected radioactive water in the reactor containment building at Three Mile Island has doubled since the March 28 nuclear accident and poses some threat to plant instruments, U.S. authorities say.

Ken Clark, spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said Monday experts on the scene don't know exactly how the extra water entered the containment building.

About 225,000 gallons of radioactive water spilled from the reactor's cooling system into the containment building during the accident, and now another 200,000 gallons of water has gotten in, Clark said.

Boss Unaware

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge's top aide says his boss did not know until last June that for years his staff had made bogus Senate expense claims to ensure that Talmadge received the maximum allowable reimbursement.

T. Rogers Wade, who replaced Talmadge's chief accuser, Daniel Minchew, as the senator's administrative assistant in late 1974, told the Senate Ethics Committee Monday he discussed the practice of "drawing down the maximum" expenses only with Minchew, never with Talmadge.

Wade was the first witness in the committee's disciplinary hearings that could lead to the Georgia Democrat's censure or expulsion from the Senate.

Bush To Run

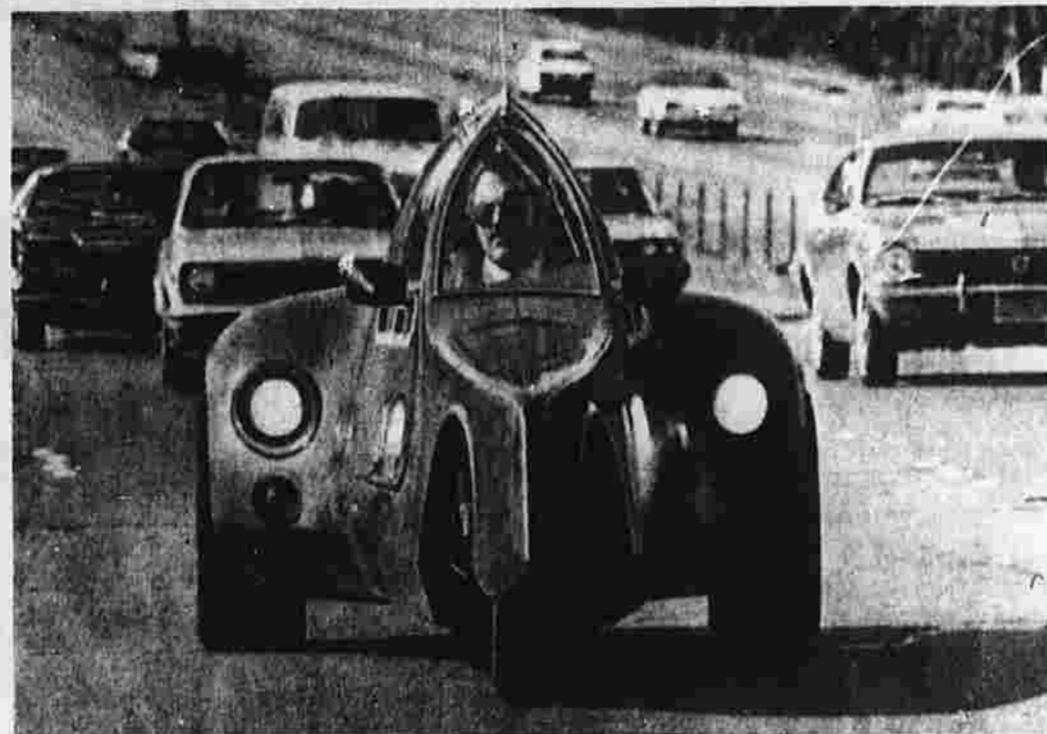

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former CIA director George Bush today became the sixth and one of the most liberal contenders in the crowded field for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

The Connecticut Yankee who made a fortune in Texas oil and found fame in two decades in politics and government pledged to be the candidate of "a new cad" who would "level with the American people."

"To be effective, leadership in the '80s must be based on a politics of substance, not symbols; of reason, not bombast; of frankness, not false promise," Bush told several hundred supporters in announcing his candidacy at the National Press Club.

EDC Role, Loan Plan May Help Downtown

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town might consider having its Economic Development Commission act as a purchaser and renovator of downtown buildings or it might establish a loan subsidy program to assist downtown development.

At least, these were two of the ideas discussed this morning by the Downtown Coordinating Committee.

The committee talked about its future, as well as Main Street's, now that town voters have decided to drop out of the Community Development program for two years. The town's withdrawal from the federal program means the loss of federal dollars that had been targeted for downtown.

For instance, the rehabilitation loan program and a downtown planner position no longer will be funded.

Phillip Harrison, a Main Street merchant, suggested the town might look into establishment of an agency that could work to renovate the downtown area.

He suggested the town's Economic Development Commission, which is nearing the end of its work as developer of the Buckland Industrial Park.

The commission, or whatever agency was empowered with the duty, would serve in the same role as a private development corporation, he said.

It might purchase available buildings in the downtown area, renovate them and then resell them, he said.

Or, the agency could act as a sponsor providing low-interest loans to property owners for improvements to existing buildings, Harrison said.

A local Realtor, Phyllis Jackson, attended the committee meeting this morning and suggested a program similar to the low-interest loan one. She proposed that the town might return some of the tax money paid by downtown merchants to the downtown area.

This funding then could be used to subsidize the interest rate for improvement loans in the downtown area.

Mrs. Jackson's idea would combine two proposals — the housing rehabilitation loan program, which had been funded through Community Development, and a special downtown district, which would return tax dollars paid by merchants and was proposed in a bill submitted this year to the state Legislature.

The town would benefit because the improvements would lead to increased tax dollars for the town. Mrs. Jackson, who recently purchased a Main Street property, said.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said the program would be just like the rehabilitation loan program, and he wondered if it would be approved by the town since voters have indicated they do not want town funds used to continue programs previously funded through Community Development.

Another Main Street businessman, Warren Howland, said the proposal would be similar to subsidies provided new industrial developers. There were several comments made about the vote that the town withdraw from the Community Development program. The sharpest of these came from Harrison, who said, "We lost more than we have gained. The end result of too much democracy is chaos."

He also said, "It's the second time in two decades a referendum has pulled the rug out from under us." In the mid-1960s, the town voters turned down a renewal project for Main Street.

President Pressured On Energy

By United Press International
The pressure was on today for President Carter's congressional supporters to salvage his energy emergency plans in view of Carter's renewed challenge to Congress to "shoulder its share of responsibility."

The president said in his news conference Monday it is imperative to have gasoline rationing authority available for use in an emergency.

The House Commerce Committee and Senate Energy Committee scheduled meetings today on Carter's standby gasoline conservation efforts, including the two toughest ones: rationing and service station closings.

The House Commerce Committee turned down rationing last week, but Carter backers hoped to reverse that vote, particularly in light of his strong statements at his news conference.

In New York City, some 800 unionized gasoline deliverers are threatening to strike, a potentially crippling blow for the metropolitan area. Talks continued past the original strike deadline of midnight Monday.

The Kuwait news agency said Saudi Arabia, largest supplier of oil to the United States, and three other OPEC nations are selling crude oil on the spot market at $21.50 a barrel —

40 percent above their official prices. Official Saudi prices are fixed at a price between $14.50 and $16.50 a barrel. The other three countries selling at higher prices on the spot market are United Arab Emirates, Iran and Algeria, the news agency said.

And Bankers Trust Co. said in its energy newsletter from New York that, "Saudi announcements and action over the past year suggest that the kingdom is unlikely to re-emerge as a champion of low prices even if conditions later permit."

In the United States, Exxon USA Co. and Texaco Inc. announced they will allocate May gasoline supplies to dealers at 80 percent of May 1978 levels. Sun Oil Co. said it is lowering May allocations to 85 percent of base period volumes, from 90 percent in April.

In Washington, the Senate Energy Committee voted 12-5 Monday to eliminate the option of weekend closings from a compromise energy conservation bill that had been drawn as a substitute for Carter's plan.

Sponsored by Sens. Pete Dohinic, R-N.M., and J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., it would let states design their own energy saving to meet a target the president would set. States that fell short would have to accept a mandatory federal plan.

LaBelle Queries Rev-Share Limits

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — Attorney John D. LaBelle Jr. in Superior Court this morning attempted to determine on behalf of the Eighth Utilities District that there is a restriction on the use of Revenue Sharing funds for the Town of Manchester.

The district has filed suit to prohibit the town from using federal Revenue Sharing funds for the Town Fire Department.

The town has appropriated $65,000 of its present year Revenue Sharing grant for use by the Town Fire Department.

LaBelle questioned Town Director Carl Zinsner and Thomas Moore, finance director, on the allocation of the Revenue Sharing funds.

Moore said the federal funds basically are unrestricted although there are some prohibitions on using them for educational purposes. Zinsner also said that the funds are basically unrestricted. He said that the town directors have chosen to use a majority of the federal funds to relieve the burden on the town taxpayers.

Gordon Lassow, president of the district, was questioned about how the mill rates and budget of the Eighth District are established. Testimony was continuing this afternoon.

Drug Link To Cancer Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A drug widely used to combat high blood pressure and a key component of an anti-dandruff shampoo have been found to cause cancer in laboratory rats and mice, the National Cancer Institute reported today.

But in a third report presented to a non-government review committee, the NCI said the common home and garden insecticide malathion did not cause cancer when exposed to rats and mice in the two-year testing program.

The anti-hypertension agent, called reserpine, was introduced in 1954 and the government estimated more than a million people currently take the drug, which is sold under a number of different brand names.

The NCI also noted several studies suggested reserpine might increase the risk of human breast cancer by 50 percent to 100 percent.

But the cancer institute and the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute said the risk to life posed by untreated high blood pressure "far exceeds" the drug's potential cancer risk to humans. The NCI said it is generally agreed that a substance found capable of causing cancer in animals must be regarded as a probable cancer causer for humans. But it said the extent of the risk that might be posed by commonly used dosages of reserpine cannot be established.

The FDA said it agrees with the two health institutes that patients taking reserpine "should not abruptly discontinue its use" but should discuss the matter with their doctors.

At least 18 companies produce reserpine in tablet form and a major producer, the Ciba-Geigy Corp. of Summit, N.J., said the NCI's conclusions "are not supported by the data presented."

The dandruff shampoo ingredient in question is selenium sulfide. When administered in high doses by stomach tube to rats and mice five days a week for 103 weeks, the compound caused liver cancer in rats and female mice and lung cancer in female mice.

Selenium sulfide is used in a 1 percent concentration in Selsun Blue, a non-prescription shampoo, and in 2.5 percent concentrations in two prescription preparations: Abbott's Selsun, and Exsel.

The report said previous tests have shown that selenium sulfide is not normally absorbed through the scalp but can enter through open wounds.

Chemical Crackdown Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration plans to begin prosecuting companies that dump hazardous chemicals illegally and wants Congress to force the oil and chemical industries to pay for the resulting cleanup.

Barbara Blum, deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Monday the effort is aimed at preventing problems such as that at the Love Canal in Niagara Falls, N.Y., where more than 200 families had to be evacuated because of seepage from a chemical waste dump.

EPA said it was awarding $4 million to the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation to clean up the canal.

Ms. Blum said the EPA will put some 50 staff members to work on other toxic waste problems shortly and will ask Congress for an additional $131 million and 190 jobs beginning this fall.

She said the staff will look into dangerous situations with a strong eye to court action against those responsible.

"Beginning in fiscal 1980 we hope to be able to refer as many as 50 cases per year to Justice (Department) for prosecution," she said. "In those cases where federal legal action is impossible, we intend to provide legal and technical support to assist state and local governments for appropriate cleanup action."

In addition, Ms. Blum said, the administration will ask Congress next month to create a $400 million national emergency fund — paid for by the oil and chemical industries — that could be used to clean up oil and chemical spills.

She said EPA already is collecting data at 44 dump sites with plans for clean up or litigation. She did not identify those sites.

Ms. Blum made the remarks in a paper prepared for a workshop in Denver.

The EPA has estimated there are between 1,200 and 2,000 potentially hazardous dump sites across the nation. Last November, it identified 102 of them, and Monday it added 32 to the list.

But the agency said half the sites identified pose no immediate threat, either because they are being cleaned up or because additional investigation showed they are not major problems.

Town Limits Challenge On Library Unionizing

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town's challenge to library employees forming a union was narrowed Monday to four department heads from 11 the town wanted to exclude from the new bargaining unit.

Representatives of the town agreed at a state Labor Relations Board hearing Monday to limit the testimony to the two remaining department heads who had not been questioned in the previous hearing. A total of 10 employees, who had been challenged by the town, were present at the hearing because of subpoenas sent by the Council & American Federal of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Assistant Town Attorney Thomas Prior questioned Dorothy Williams, head of the Mary Cheney Library Reference Department, and Dorothy Miller, head of the library's Cataloguing Department, about their duties in an attempt to show supervisory capacity and thus ineligibility for the union.

Attorney William Gagne, representing AFSE, also questioned the two women in an effort to show that their supervisory duties were limited.

When questioned by Gagne, Ms. Williams said she does everything everyone else in her department does. Preparing schedules for the three full-time and two part-time persons in the Reference Department, she said, is a duty that is different, Ms. Williams said.

Both women said they could not fire, hire or transfer employees in their departments. If encountered with a disciplinary problem, Mrs. Williams said she would consult with John Jackson, head librarian, and would not handle the situation on her own.

Ms. Williams said she does not evaluate employees for promotional wage increases, but Mr. Miller said she does that for her department.

Both said they help train the personnel.

Both attorneys tried to establish the department heads' role in preparing the library budget. Both department heads said they make recommendations on the budget, but do not prepare it.

When Jackson was called to testify Monday, he concurred that the department heads make recommendations regarding the library budget. He said they are "mainly recommendations where dollars are necessary, but they don't always have a dollar sign."

Jackson agreed to a question from Prior that he is ultimately responsible for the complete provision of library services to the town.

Gagne also attempted to establish in his questioning of Jackson that the head librarian has the final responsibility for hiring and assigning personnel.

Jackson, his library assistant, confidential librarian for the Whilton Memorial Library had previously been excluded from consideration for union membership. There are a total of about 25 full and part-time library employees, excluding high school pages.

Gagne objected to two pieces of evidence presented by Prior, one of which was a formal personnel system for the library and the other a list of classifications for the jobs at the library.

Because the testimony was limited to the three employees Monday, the hearing on the union challenge was completed. The attorneys agreed to submit briefs within three weeks of receipt of the transcript of the Monday hearing.

After the hearing, Donald Beecher, staff representative of Council 4, said he was pleased with Monday's testimony which he said did not prove that the department heads were supervisory.

Beecher noted that there are few bargaining units in libraries in the state, but that persons in supervisory capacities, such as foremen, head custodians in schools, social workers and others are members of other employees groups. He added that many of them have members of unions whose respective unions since they were formed and their right to be in the union has not been challenged, as in this library case.

The Municipal Employees Relations Act establishes certain criteria, such as education, supervisory capacity and rights to discipline, for union members.

Director Questions Elderly Programs

MANCHESTER — Wanting to make sure the town's senior citizens center does not become a "country club," John FitzPatrick, a member of the Town Board of Directors, asked several questions about the operation Monday night.

Wally Fortin, director of the center, attended Monday night's budget workshop, and his answers seemed to satisfy FitzPatrick, who said the center is aiming to service all of the town's senior citizens.

FitzPatrick, for instance, questioned one of the senior center trips to such places as Bermuda.

Fortin said, however, that those lengthy trips are a minority of the trips sponsored by the center. Most of the excursions are one-day events, he said.

The more expensive trips are held for those members who can afford to travel. Fortin said these members should not be denied such trips if the senior center can help arrange them.

FitzPatrick also asked what steps are being taken to reach more of the town's senior citizens. Fortin said an aide at the center, Joseph Diminico, is working to set up more programs, particularly some that would interest men.

"They all aren't interested in cards and bingo," Fortin said.

Diminico has worked on new programs, including fishing, golfing and gardening, Fortin said.

After listening to Fortin, FitzPatrick seemed satisfied with the responses.

"I didn't want to see us create a country club that so exclusively rules out the majority at the sake of the minority," FitzPatrick said.

Director Betty Intagliata also read a letter from a group of senior citizens, who asked that the town provide funding for Diminico's position if the present CETA funding expires.

Director William Diana praised Fortin and the senior citizens for the show they put on last weekend.

Vernon Council Adopts $17.9 Million Budget Plan

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON—Following a most unusual budget hearing Monday night, and following a lengthy heated argument among members, the Town Council adopted a total $17.9 million budget to present to the May 15 annual budget meeting.

The first budget hearing was held last week and this drew only 18 or 20 people, other than officials involved in the budget process and reporters. The meeting drew comments from only one person and lasted less than 15 minutes.

Last night's meeting set an even more unbelievable record, it was attended by five minutes, other than officials, no one spoke and it lasted less than two minutes.

The action came after the hearing when council members were preparing to adopt a budget to go to the town meeting. And arguments erupted when Democratic members on the council said they could not adopt the total budget because they were in disagreement with the way the plan for non-union town employees was handled.

Democrat Steven Marcham advised the original motion to adopt the budget to ask that the question be divided so the council could vote on the education and the general government budgets separately. The motion failed in a 7-3 party-line vote.

Democrat Marcham eventually passed in a close 6-6 vote with Republican Jane Lamb abstaining because she is a teacher and therefore an employee of the Board of Education.

The budget package, totaling $17,900,000, includes an amended general government budget of $5,228,122 and an education budget of $10,913,752 plus a separate Sewage Treatment plant budget of $16,700,000.

The Sewage Treatment plant budget is offset by revenues coming in from sewer users. It is not included in the amount to be raised by taxes.

Mrs. Marie Herbst, a Democrat, said she couldn't vote for the total budget because she objected to putting in the salaries under the new pay plan because she doesn't feel the plan is being implemented properly.

Mrs. Herbst was chairman of the committee that worked with civil service people to set up the plan. Many of the employees have filed appeals to their salaries. Mrs. Herbst also said she didn't agree with Mayor Frank McCoy's recommendation for the Capital Improvements budget of $1,000,000.

Mayor McCoy objected to the comments about the pay plan. He told Mrs. Herbst she praised it at first but now "you're saying it's no good." He said he has already promised that more work will be done on the plan after the budget process is completed.

Mrs. Herbst said she nor other committee members will take any blame concerning the plan. She said the plan is alright, that the problem is in its implementation. She said it could have been straightened out sooner if a director of administration had been hired sooner.

Some Republican council members said they weren't in agreement with everything about the budget but that they wouldn't vote against it. Marcham answered, "I think we have a right to a difference in philosophy."

The mayor termed Mrs. Herbst's comment about the hiring of the director of administration, "unfair, unwarranted and unjust." He said he had nothing to do with the former director of administration leaving and the appointment of a new one wasn't something that could be accomplished at the drop of a hat.

Republican Councilman Morgan Campbell then moved to set the revenue figure at $17,968,635 to coincide with the budget appropriation for expenditures and to allow the mayor to adjust the budget accordingly. Marcham then moved to amend this to have the cash surplus read $225,000 instead of the $100,000 the mayor recommended.

This extra would be part of the money expected in additional education funds, if the courts approve the request for additional tennis courts to be located at Eye Street Park and Timothy Edwards School at a cost of $82,000. Some $11,000 is refundable from a federal grant.

Also in the budget is $200,000 for economic development improvements, $100,000 for purchase of open space lands, $10,500 for Town Clerk files and $3,000 for schematic drawings for the proposed municipal swimming pool which will be presented as a referendum question in November.

In order to finance the services proposed for the 1979-80 fiscal year a tax levy of 40.7 mills would be required, which would represent a 0.2 percent decrease in the tax rate.

Numerous residents commended the council for creating a "responsible budget," including G. Warren Westbrook, Republican Town Committee chairman for Westbrook said that the obvious small turnout of citizens for both the Board of Education budget hearing and the General Government budget hearing showed the residents "have confidence in the council."

Mrs. Patricia Sprenklemeyer said that she had spoken to numerous residents, including those who belonged to the Concerned Citizens group and they agreed that they did not want to see a tax increase in South Windsor. Mrs. Sprenklemeyer said that she personally would like to see more money drawn from the educational budget and added to the general government budget.

The council will discuss both budgets on Thursday.

South Windsor Residents Favor Budget Reduction

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Correspondent

SOUTH WINDSOR—The majority of the 45 persons attending Monday night's hearing on the General Government budget favored the council's cut of $252,840 — a proposal deemed necessary, by most council members, in order to hold the tax rate during fiscal 1979-80.

The proposal presented to the public hearing Monday included $5,382,392 for department operations and debt service, representing a 7.7 percent increase over the adopted 1978-79 budget. Also included in the proposal was a capital improvement budget for $683,000, creating a total general government budget of $6,041,592 — an increase of 14.8 percent overall.

The council spent a great deal of time in reviewing all town staff, boards and committees with a view to saving money. Mayor Nancy Caffyn said, "The council is aware of the effects of ever-increasing inflationary costs of the day-to-day budgets of our citizens, and in reviewing governmental requests we have attempted to balance the increased tax needs in growing operations with the proposed budget. At the same time we have attempted to limit increases in operational expenditures and debt service. Mrs. Caffyn said that some areas of public services that the council felt had been neglected for many years would be brought under consideration. Mrs. Caffyn said that many citizens have expressed concern during the past four years for more recreation, social and work opportunities for the teen-agers of South Windsor.

Mayor Caffyn said that the Park and Recreation budget, included in the total general government budget, is an expanded day camp program as well as programs for young children, dance and bridge lessons and fitness programs.

Mrs. Caffyn said the Capital Improvements and Capital Outlay section of the budget incorporates necessary projects that the council felt had been neglected over the past years such as $90,000 allotted for improvements in the police communication center, $47,000 for public building improvements, $6,000 for park and recreation improvements and $38,000 for pollution control projects.

Grasso Begins Shakeup In Utility Control Unit

HARTFORD (UPI) — In a major shakeup, Gov. Ella Grasso has moved to replace three commissioners in the Division of Public Utilities Control with a former CIA agent, a dismissed school superintendent and a retired businessman.

The governor's nominations Monday will leave only two of the panel's existing commissioners with jobs after July 1.

Nominated by the governor were Edythe Gaines, who was dismissed as Hartford school superintendent last year, Marvin Lewchik, a retired Republican businessman from Bloomfield, and Business Regulation Commissioner John Downey, a former CIA agent who spent 20 years in a Chinese prison on spy charges.

If confirmed by the Legislature, they would replace DPUC Chairman Miriam Butterworth and Commissioners Gerald McCann and Thomas Slanshik. Mrs. Grasso chose to nominate DPUC Commissioner David Harrigan and Paul Weiner.

Prosecutor Not Charged

WALLINGFORD (UPI) — The chief state's attorney's office will not seek an arrest warrant for a Meriden Superior Court prosecutor accused of tampering with evidence by a one-man grand jury.

However, the decision Monday doesn't close the books in the case of Meriden assistant state's attorney Charles Thompson in connection with a probe of alleged wrongdoing in the Hadden Police Department.

Vernon Council Extends Moratorium on Massage

VERNON — On request of Mayor Frank McCoy, the Town Council Monday night voted to extend the moratorium on massage parlor operations for another 45 days.

On Feb. 26 the council passed a resolution to put the moratorium on for 60 days to allow time to make changes in the town's massage parlor ordinance.

The new amendments call for massage parlor owners to obtain a special permit to establish in neighborhood commercial and general commercial zones and the request for the permit would also have to go to a public hearing. The amendments also set specific opening and closing hours for the parlors.

The original resolution on the moratorium stated that the town and its health department will suspend the acceptance of applications for and the issuance of permits for the establishment and operation of massage parlors within the town.

Court Nixes Conviction On Witness Credibility

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Supreme Court today ruled a state prison inmate was wrongfully convicted of attempted escape because prosecutors withheld damaging evidence about the credibility of a key witness.

The high court overturned the conviction of Frederick Merrill and ordered a new trial after the inmate pleaded guilty to escape because "the failure of the state to disclose information affecting the credibility of a key witness in the petitioner's criminal trial denied him a fair trial."

Merrill was found guilty of attempted escape from the Connecticut Correctional Institute in Somers.

A key witness for the state was Almas Merrill. Some inmates have testified he, Merrill and other inmates were plotting an escape attempt in 1972.

After Nims gave authorities a signed affidavit about the alleged plot he was granted his first prison furlough, and the state's attorney's office wrote that he was "a valuable consideration can possibly be afforded him."

But at the trial Nims said no promises had been made to him, and he had only testified because he was a public-spirited citizen who wished to see justice done.

89-Year-Old Democrat Has Sharp Political Memory

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — She no longer is as active in Democratic happenings as she once was, but Mary Dannaber still has a deep interest — and a sharp memory — about politics.

In fact, Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings said Mrs. Dannaber knows as much about the party's history as anyone else in town.

This distinction is especially significant for a woman who came from a family of Republicans.

"All my family were very active Republicans," she said. "Just for that, I'll become a Democrat."

Her husband, the late Thomas Dannaber, served as Democratic town chairman during the 1930s, and she was a member of the town committee for more than 20 years.

While her husband was chairman, she had to help him in the party's operation. His job often would take him out of town during the day, so she had to answer questions from party members who called the home.

"I had to find out what was what. I was always active with him," she said.

"She provides it right out of her head," Cummings said.

Along with her political work, Mrs. Dannaber also has been active in many civic groups, including the American Legion Auxiliary and the Manchester Memorial Hospital fund drives.

Her past work includes time spent as a school teacher when she was 18.

"The kids were bigger than I was," she said. She also worked at the Rogers Paper Manufacturing Co and in the old town court.

"I ended up with five jobs in the court," she said.

Mrs. Dannaber has lived in Manchester since she was eight. In fact, her father built the home she now lives in.

She still follows local politics, but she admits that the size of present-day Manchester makes things a bit more difficult to follow.

"It used to be we knew everybody in town. There are so many new people I can't keep track of who's who," she said.

MANCHESTER — The down on the emissions of state Department of Environmental Protection has granted a permit that will allow the Rogers Corp. to install an incinerator at its Mill Street plant.

The incinerator actually March 12 hearing will reduce the company's emissions into the air, according to testimony reasons for installing the incinerator. Solons Kill Bill To Boost Taxes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Legalized gambling operators would be worried about giving up more of their take to the state, at least not for another year.

The Legislature's Finance Committee Monday killed two gambling revenue proposals, including the only tax increase in Gov. Ella Grasso's proposed $2.4 billion budget.

The bill was rejected 21-7 one minute after the tax-writing committee voted to kill another measure that would have made state gambling facilities pay taxes on their income before deducting expenses and salaries.

The committee approved three bills designed to improve property tax relief for the elderly, but it killed measures to set up shelters for victims of household abuse and require the registration of home improvement contractors.

Mrs. Grasso in January proposed raising the state's cut at parimutuels to an estimated $2.4 million.

The bill was rejected 21-7 one minute after the tax-writing committee voted to kill another measure that would have made state gambling facilities pay taxes on their income before deducting expenses and salaries.

The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities urged the committee to approve the measure as a way to provide towns and cities with $20 million at no cost to the state.

Sen. John Frete, D-Woodbridge, said he was not opposed to the concept but called on the committee to delay the bill and further study the idea.

Frete, co-chairman of the Energy and Public Utilities Committee, said the measure was specifically designed to benefit Hartford and New Haven. He said the bill was approved "five minutes before the deadline."

Mrs. Grasso's gambling tax was coupled with a proposal to reduce the tax on machinery replacement parts from 7 percent to 3.5 percent, for an estimated loss of $2.3 million in revenue.

But the committee last week scuttled the machinery parts tax cut proposal. Committee co-chairman Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Mansfield, said at the time that Mrs. Grasso's bare bones budget was close to the vest and no cuts were possible.

Another gaming tax proposal, drafted for the committee by former state gaming commissioner Lester Snyder, was also killed.

It would have required gambling facilities to pay taxes on all income. They presently pay the 10 percent corporation tax which only applies to net profits after expenses, consulting fees and salaries are paid.

In other action, the committee approved bills raising income eligibility for elderly seeking property tax relief from $6,500 to $10,000, in- cluding Social Security payments.

The committee added the blind and disabled to the so-called "circuit breaker" tax relief program, but not applied for them. Elderly homeowners now in the program can remain in it.

After lengthy debate, the committee voted to kill a proposal that would have allowed communities to impose property taxes on telephone, telegraph and cable television companies.

The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities urged the committee to approve the measure as a way to provide towns and cities with $20 million at no cost to the state.

Sen. John Frete, D-Woodbridge, said he was not opposed to the concept but called on the committee to delay the bill and further study the idea.

Friendship Flight

Excitement is mounting with the announcement that the Friendship Force will make its third people-to-people exchange trip in August.

These are great trips and ones which stick with you years later.

I was fortunate enough to participate in the first trip to Tel Aviv, Israel, and also the second one to Hanover, Germany. Part of the fun is not knowing, when you apply and are interviewed, just where in the world the flight is going.

This is, mainly, so that participants will be going as ambassadors—not necessarily tourists.

Legion To Mark 55 Years

The Dilworth-Cornell-Quay Post of the American Legion in Manchester will celebrate its 55th anniversary at a dinner-dance, Saturday, May 19 at the Legion home, One American Legion Drive.

Hosting the annual event will be the Past Commanders' Association of the post as it has since its inception.

Chairman of the PCA, Albert Frederick, is general chairman. He has appointed Ernest Linders as ticket chairman.

The post officers have asked the PCA to incorporate the annual initiation ceremonies with the dinner-dance. This will take place in a brief ceremony following dinner.

The Legion will invite one of its own outstanding leaders in veterans' circles, business and community affairs to speak at the initiation of the event.

Frederick has also appointed Henry Wierzbicki, a past commander, as publicity chairman.

Beauty Aids

Elastic stockings help help some as they're active athletically and have varicose veins.

School Band Contest

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Inc., Chicago-based food processor, announced that the popular High School Band Bonanza Program will run from Sept. 1 through Dec. 31, 1979 and will be expanded to include both junior and senior high schools over America.

Patrick J. Peters, director of sales promotion and merchandising services, says the company will once again award a total of $50,000 in cash prizes for tapes submitted during the best original musical arrangements of Libby's jungle band.

There will be five first place

The Friendship Force wants you to want to go to visit with other peoples of the world, perhaps to a country you might never have selected as a tourist.

I know I'm especially excited because I had a letter last week informing me that my host family, Father and Isador Greber of Givataim, Israel, will be coming to New York, May 23, to attend a wedding. So, we shall be able to visit with them and, hopefully, they will want to come to Manchester and spend some time here. We had such a wonderful time in their home and it will be great seeing them again.

Jogging

The old adage, "you can't run away from your problems," may not be as true as we once thought. Lately, experts have found that running definitely has a positive effect on people's moods.

In the May issue of Seventeen Magazine, Dr. Gabe Mirkin, co-author of "The Sportsmedicine Book," says "Runners can expect six-to-eighteen hour mood life after running."

"Any anxiety or depression present before running will almost certainly be lessened afterward."

Experts aren't sure why running should have such an uplifting effect

Don't Forget

Lucky Me

Sunday I attended a delightful brunch, sponsored by the Daughter of the British Empire, Britannia Chapter in West Hartford.

It was a great time, and the food was delicious.

But, talk about embarrassing moments. The group conducted a drawing—and I won five door prizes.

Today, I think I'll run out and buy a lottery ticket and see if my luck will hold out one more time.

Goldwyn's Cook

It's Fun Feeding the Stars

FULLERTON, Calif. (NEA)—The only thing she could count on was that lunch would be served at noon. She seldom knew the number or names of the guests until moments before the first course was to be served.

But it was the spontaneity in her cooking that made Josephine Berger so popular with the celebrities at movie producer Samuel Goldwyn's table. They included Betty Davis, Clark Gable, Judy Garland, Joan Crawford, Bing Crosby, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Richard Nixon — to name a few.

Now 80 and a resident of a local convalescent hospital, Berger usually prefers to have someone else do the cooking. But she can still serve up delightful reminiscences of her days as a chef at the stars.

Cooking came naturally by necessity to Mrs. Berger. The eldest of 12 children of an Austrian shoemaker and his wife, she taught herself to cook to help her mother care for the large family.

"No one ever taught me how to cook," the white-haired Mrs. Berger recalls. "I could just take things, throw them together and they would come out tasting good."

She was only 10 when she immigrated with her family to New York City.

"Paper had heard from friends how good America was, so he decided he would find out for himself," she explains. "It was good, we would stay, I'm, we would go back to Austria."

Apparently Papa found the country to his liking. The family made it its permanent home.

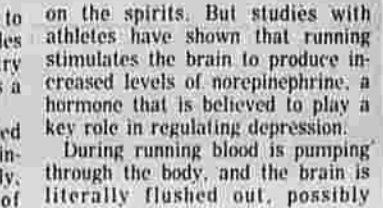

Shortly after her arrival, Mrs. Berger began hiring out as a cook for the wealthy families of New York and Vermont, including members of the Rockefeller clan. Her earnings went to her mother to help care for the family.

At 18, she met Alfred Berger, who applied for a job as a butler at a house where she was in charge of the household staff. She hired him, and they were married soon after. Eventually they settled in southern California.

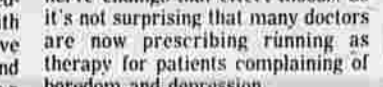

Mrs. Berger's path crossed that of pioneer movie maker Goldwyn in the mid-1940s.

As she remembers it, Goldwyn was a guest one evening at the home of her employer. He needed a cook — legend had it he had fired 22 cooks in 22 days — and hired her away that night after just a few letters of her cooking.

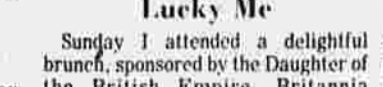

Although Goldwyn wanted Mrs. Berger to manage his Beverly Hills home, she agreed only to cook noon meals in his studio apartment. By then she had a young son, and her main interest was her family.

Increase in Tax Rate Not Likely to Survive

MANCHESTER — The town's budget will be set next Monday night and already the mill rate that Town Manager Robert Weiss proposed has increased slightly. That increase is not expected to survive budget cuts made by the Town Board of Directors, however.

Weiss has proposed a $28,140,341 budget that would have resulted in a 46.41 mill rate. Thomas Moore, the town's director of finance, said that the Grand List has decreased slightly since Weiss submitted his proposed budget.

The Grand List's decrease is due to changes made by the assessor's office and would result in a slight increase in the mill rate if no cuts are made in the budget. Such cuts are expected to be made when the board meets Monday to set the budget for 1979-80.

Thus, the mill rate will come in at less than those calculated in Weiss' budget proposal. Moore said, using Weiss' budget, the mill rates would be 46.99 mills at 97.5 percent tax collection rate, 46.75 mills at a 98 percent collection rate, or 46.32 mills at a 98.5 percent collection rate.

A 98.5 percent collection rate generally is considered to be high, but the town is expected to exceed that figure this year.

The board has been reviewing the manager's budget for the past month. It is not yet clear how much they plan to slice from his proposal, but the board's cuts undoubtedly will produce a mill rate lower than the one proposed in Weiss' budget.

The directors reviewed revenues in the budget at Monday night's meeting. Some of those revenues, as proposed in Weiss' budget, probably will be cut by the directors.

Weiss said that he has made conservative estimates about the revenues from the Building Department. He estimated $90,000 in fees from the department because most building in the Buckland Industrial Park does not have to start in the 1979-80 fiscal year. Some of that construction could be under way during the next construction season, though.

Weiss also said the board could increase his $3.5 million estimate for planning and zoning revenues by $1,000,000 because the fees for planning and zoning applications have increased.

financial standing as reasons the credit rating was increased. The town also has a modest debt burden and has paid back debt promptly, Weiss said. Representatives of Moody's also visited Manchester recently, and Weiss said they were impressed with the progress made in the Buckland Industrial Park.

Dr. Sandquist Retires
MANCHESTER — Dr. Evelyn S. Tan has assumed the office and practice of internal medicine of Dr. Alfred H. Sandquist at 17 Hayes St. Dr. Sandquist retired, effective today.

The pair ranked with the top athletes of the class. Buckland, a gentleman vegetable farmer these days in his retirement, was the premier swimmer on three MHS teams that he represented.

Smith, for many years in his own insurance business in Manchester, was the No. 1 singles player with the tennis squad for two seasons.

"I was captain of the swimming team in both my junior and senior years, and also team manager," Buckland recalled. "I also doubled as coach although Will Clarke had the title. We had to have a faculty man in charge and Clarke was named for Principal Clarence Quimby."

Buckland said swimming was introduced as a varsity sport in 1927. Buckland sparked the Indians to two CCIL swim titles, excelling in the 100-yard and 200-yard races. He was also a star in the 400-yard and 800-yard events when all home meets were staged at the East Side Rec Center Pool.

Swimming was always a big sport with the Hilltown Road man and he continued after graduating from Manchester High at Westminster College, where he coached the swim team, setting records along the way. He also gained as Manchester town men's swim champion in Globe Hollow competition.

Smith noted yesterday that Manchester's three Gold Key recipients from the Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance, will be at the 25th — Pete Wigren, Tom Kelley and Joe McCluskey.

Wigren coached track and cross country in 1929 while Kelley handled the coaching reins for the football and baseball squads.

McCluskey graduated in 1929 and went on to become the most famous member of the class, gaining All-America honors in track and then on to fame in the Olympic Games.

One member of the Class of '29 was John Johnston, who was a reporter at The Herald following his retirement as a school teacher on Long Island. He was a football player for three years in addition to excelling in the classroom.

Captains of the '29 athletic teams, Carroll Maddox, who churns out news each day from his office as public relations director for Manchester Community College, made the "bedlines" last Saturday when he registered the first hole-in-one of the golfing season at the Manchester Country Club. Maddox has been a long handicap player for many years — John Phelps will start his 18th year in the Manchester Little League baseball program Saturday when play starts at six different sites. Phelps is in his sixth year as American League commissioner who plays games at Wadsworth Field, starting Monday. Little League games for all three leagues — American, National and International — will be scheduled every weeknight with makeup games on Saturday.

Town Credit Rating Up

MANCHESTER — The town, receiving praise for its financial record, also received an increase in its credit rating by Moody's Investors Service Inc.

"I'm delighted," Town Manager Robert Weiss told the Town Board of Directors Monday night after he informed them of the increase in the town's rating.

The town's rating, previously A-1, was increased to AA by Moody's. The AA rating is the second highest given by the firm, and most area communities have the A-1 rating previously held by Manchester.

"Most changes they've made in recent years," Moody's mentioned the town's tax collection effort and its Superior Court. Arguments on the case were heard Monday by Judge Brian O'Neill.

She was represented by attorney Robert Hirtle who said the method for evaluating teachers was vague and violated his client's constitutional rights.

Mr. Hornat was a creative teacher whose teaching philosophy differed with that of the school's principal, Marcia Kenefick.

Attorney Thomas N. Sullivan, representing the town's Board of Education, responded that there was sufficient evidence to support the dismissal of Mrs. Hornat and that the evaluation of her was a fair one.

Director Joseph Sweeney said the town cannot put funds in an escrow account each time it is threatened with a lawsuit about funding.

"We could literally be bowled over by the threat of lawsuits," he said.

Director John FitzPatrick said, "I don't think we have anything to worry about" and he asked about the possibility of the town consulting in some cases.

Weiss indicated state officials have gone to Washington D.C. to talk to federal officials about the Community Development issue.

Through a joint and cooperative investigation by members of the Special Services Squad of the Vernon Police Department, Manchester Police Department and the State Police, four Vernon residents were arrested on warrants Monday and all were charged with third-degree burglary and first-degree larceny.

Charged were Donald Swan, 21, of Willowbrook Apartments; Arthur Craft Jr., 23, of 113 Prospect St.; Janet L. Gross, 28, of 111 Brooklyn St.; and Gary Craft, 20, of 255 Center Road.

Police said all were presented in court in Stafford Springs Monday. Swan and Arthur Craft were held in lieu of posting $20,000 bonds and Ms. Gross was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond and Gary Craft on a $3,000 non-surety bond.

Vernon Police said the arrest warrants were obtained in connection with the investigation of a Jan. 13 burglary into the Sage-Alton store at Vernon Circle where money was allegedly taken in excess of $10,000.

Police said that at this time additional cases are being compiled in order to supply the court with at least 15 cases in connection with burglary and larceny in various degrees. Police said all have similar methods of entry and all took place in Vernon.

Police said further information regarding the additional counts won't be released until the specific charges have been filed with the court.

Teacher's Appeal Heard

HARTFORD — Attorneys representing the school system asked a judge who is hearing the case Monday in Hartford's Superior Court.

John Hoeverman, who was fired in 1977 from her job as a teacher at Buckley School, has appealed her dismissal to Superior Court.

Smith, for many years in his own insurance business in Manchester, was the No. 1 singles player with the tennis squad for two seasons.

"I was captain of the swimming team in both my junior and senior years, and also team manager," Buckland recalled. "I also doubled as coach although Will Clarke had the title. We had to have a faculty man in charge and Clarke was named for Principal Clarence Quimby."

Buckland said swimming was introduced as a varsity sport in 1927. Buckland sparked the Indians to two CCIL swim titles, excelling in the 100-yard and 200-yard races. He was also a star in the 400-yard and 800-yard events when all home meets were staged at the East Side Rec Center Pool.

Weihs Suggests Escrow Account
MANCHESTER — Town Manager Robert Weiss Monday night again repeated that the Town Board of Directors should consider establishing an escrow account for the town's Federal Revenue Sharing funds.

Such a step would require the town to raise an additional $892,500 in local tax dollars, but board members said it clear the idea is not to their liking.

Weiss mentioned the idea because he said there is a possibility a lawsuit could jeopardize the town's receipt of its $892,500 Revenue Sharing grant. He made it clear he did not recommend such a step unless there is sufficient evidence to support the dismissal of Mrs. Hornat and that the evaluation of her was a fair one.

Director Joseph Sweeney said the town cannot put funds in an escrow account each time it is threatened with a lawsuit about funding.

"We could literally be bowled over by the threat of lawsuits," he said.

Director John FitzPatrick said, "I don't think we have anything to worry about" and he asked about the possibility of the town consulting in some cases.

Strong Cromwell Stops Tech, 13-6

"They were hitting everything," exclaimed Cheney Tech Baseball Coach Aaron Silvia after seeing Cromwell High rap 16 hits en route to a 13-6 baseball decision yesterday at the Beavers' diamond.

The victory moves Cromwell's conference mark to 6-2 and overall standing to 7-2 while Cheney slips to 4-4 in the conference and 6-4 overall.

The team return to action today at Coventry High in a 2:15 start. "That's the best hitting team I've seen," Silvia continued. "Chuck Danzer was throwing the ball hard but he did not have the power to keep his pitches low. And they were just hitting, hitting, hitting..."

Cromwell scored twice in the second inning with John Rice and Steve Rose delivering the markers. Cheney fought back to take the lead in its half of the frame.

Chris Vanam and Dumez walked Rich Tamiso sent a chopper to third which Dave DeLisio gloved, but pegged wide in first. Vanm scored on the other runner stopping the second and third. With two outs, Dave Gustamachio was intentionally walked leading the bases and pinch hitter Ken Pitts dumped a two-run single to shallow left.

The visiting Panthers, however, struck back twice in the third scoring five times. John Schmalzinger an RBI triple followed by Jeff Ekstrom an RBI single. Jeff Burkhardt grounded out to third. Dan Rane's no-run play, but Rice unloaded a two-run homer into the woods in left A.

At last count, 69 class members signed their intentions to be present and the overall figure was 117 which means that there will be Saturday when play starts at six different sites. Phelps is in his sixth year as American League commissioner who plays games at Wadsworth Field, starting Monday. Little League games for all three leagues — American, National and International — will be scheduled every weeknight with makeup games on Saturday.

Penney High 7-6 Winner
By KEVIN CASEY Correspondent

There should be no loser in a 14-inning game but fortunately Penney High was winner in Dino Pernecki's RBI single which it nipped home-standing Wethersfield High 7-6 yesterday at the home of the Panthers.

The win improves the Black Knights' league standard to 5-2 and overall mark to 6-2 while the Eagles stand at 3-2 in the league.

Penney returns to action today in East Hartford against visiting Coard High in a makeup game at 3:30 p.m.

Mary Anderson led off the Penney 14th with a lead and stole second. He scored as Pernecki drilled his second hit of the afternoon.

The Knights trailed, 6-3, going into the top of the ninth inning but fought back to knot it. "We showed a lot of poise," voiced encouraging Penney Coach Mike Lippages.

Wethersfield moved in front with four of its six runs off Penney starter Paul Pires. "The soft field threw our timing off in the early stages. The fielding took a turn for the worst but Paul did a good job," Lippages cited.

Each team committed five errors. Penney stranded 11 while the Eagles were left 13 on base.

Parlow walked four and fanned five. Greg Fearon, 3-1, started and hurled the loss for M.C.C. Jack Rancini hurled five strong relief frames for the Cougars, issuing two bases on balls while striking out six.

M.C.C. caps its regular season today against the Eastern Connecticut State College, Jayvees in Willimantic at 5 o'clock.

Indians Score 25 Runs Beating Fermi in CCIL

Hitting and run-making were in vogue yesterday as Mancheater High demolished Fermi High, 25-7, in CCIL baseball action at Kelley Field.

The triumph was the Silk Towners fourth in seven outings while the loss drops the Falcons, who were charged with 12 runs in three games.

Manchester resumes action today at Enfield High in a makeup game at 3:30.

The Indians rallied 17 hits, only two extra base hits, and were beneficiaries of 12 bases on balls in running up their highest run total in almost five decades. The most runs Manchester has ever scored in a game is 22 against Rockville in 1931. This is second most.

Manchester scored four times in each of the first two innings, added six more in the third, held in check in the fourth but tallied twice in the fifth. Four in each of the sixth and seventh frames and closed it out with a single digit in the eighth.

Fermi had two runs in the third, one in the fourth and fourth in the sixth in the match ball affair which lasted almost three hours.

The Indians' first frame was highlighted by Dave Foster's sacrifice bunt but Cromwell added two runs in its eighth.

It was 3-6 going into the seventh and Cheney's Silvia thought his club had it shut. "We had some good hitters coming up," he recalls, "but they got four runs and that put it away."

Dumez, 1-1, went 4/3 innings and was raked for 11 hits and seven runs, six earned. He walked two and batted one. Jim Hummer started for Cromwell but lasted only 4 1/3 innings. He was touched for five runs on seven hits while striking out four batters. The other runner started for Cromwell but lasted only 1 2/3 innings, scattering two hits while striking out four while walking one. He got great for the win.

"We're facing the No. 1 pitchers now. It's not like before," Silvia remarked.
