Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bagley of 52 Salmon Brook Drive, Glastonbury, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at a party hosted by residents of Center Village, where the Bagleys reside.

The couple was married May 9, 1929 at Randolph, Mass. They came to Glastonbury in 1941. Mr. Bagley was employed as a bus driver for the Connecticut Company, retiring nine years ago.

Among the dignitaries attending their anniversary party were Donald Peach, former Glastonbury town manager, William Willett, director of housing and some of his staff members: Milton Nilson, former director of housing; Scott Steven, a social worker with the Youth Services; Kim Johnson of the Social Services in Glastonbury; and Volting Nurses Association and some of her staff.

Center Village residents Alma Johnson, Edward Kowalski and Eracelle Nisson, president of the village's social club, sang and other residents and guests joined in a sing-along.

Helena Rockwell of Center Village made a money tree plant of one-half dollars cover with cellophane and sprayed with gold. Apple blossoms decorated the hall and an anniversary cake was presented to the couple. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Mr. and Mrs. Tilden are planning a trip to Bermuda.

Favorable Report

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — A study at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta refutes recent reports of an increased incidence of birth defects in babies conceived while their mothers were wearing an intrauterine device. Results of the study, conducted by the center, indicated no significant increase in occurrence of limb reduction deformities in babies exposed to the IUD at conception than those in either of two control groups. Results of the study were reported in Fertility and Sterility, a publication of the American Fertility Society.

WHAT'S NEWS

Still Missing

SALISBURY — State troopers continued combing the rugged wooded area near Mount Riga today in an attempt to find a Manchester hiker who has been missing since Saturday.

The search has continued throughout the week for Alexander Kochin, 32, of 293 Oak St., who was reported missing after failing to appear at a pre-arranged meeting with his parents Saturday night.

A spokesman for State police, Troop B, in Canaan said this morning the area is still being searched and plans to intensify the search tomorrow have been made.

The spokesman said details of tomorrow's search were not complete but it is believed the search party will include a helicopter and tracking dogs.

The spokesman said no sign of the hiker has been found since the search started. It is presumed foggy weather on Saturday apparently caused Kochin, an experienced hiker, to lose his direction. Fog also has hampered search efforts since Saturday.

FEC Chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. Robert Tiernan, who was publicly rebuked two years ago for making $2,000 in personal telephone calls on his government telephone, was elected chairman of the Federal Election Commission today.

Tiernan was elected unanimously without debate, despite the fact he still owes $4,000 in campaign debts.

The FEC writes the regulations governing bid debts in election campaigns. Tiernan, a Democrat from Rhode Island, succeeds Pennsylvania Republican John Aikens as chairman.

Tough Battle

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Lawyers for convicted murderer John Louis Evans III, who was granted a stay of execution six hours before it was to have taken place last month, expect a difficult battle before U.S. District Judge W. Brevard Harbo today when they return to court to challenge Alabama's death penalty law.

John Carroll, representing the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, contends the death penalty law allows arbitrary sentencing. The law requires an automatic death sentence upon conviction for certain crimes. But it also requires the trial judge to conduct a mercy hearing at which he must listen to any mitigating circumstances that might prompt him to reduce the sentence to life in prison.

No Difference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says consumers won't know the difference when the law that halted the proposed ban on saccharin expires next week. Diet soda and other processed foods containing the artificial sweetener still will be freely available, and probably will remain that way for the immediate future.

Technically, the FDA will be free after May 23, to re-propose its partial ban on saccharin, but the agency says it has not even prepared a paper to publish on re-proposing the ban. If it does re-propose the restrictions, it says, it would take at least another 18 months "and probably longer" for a ban to take effect because of the time periods required by law for public comment.

U.S. Economy Now Sluggish

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New government statistics show the nation's economy has turned sluggish, but whether the slowdown will lead to a recession later this year is still an open question.

At least one prominent administration official says a recession is inevitable unless economic developments Wednesday: Housing construction declined slightly during April and an industry spokesman predicted the situation would deteriorate further because mortgage funds appear to be drying up.

Output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities took its biggest dive in four years during April, but the government attributed most of the drop to labor problems within the trucking industry.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, bluntly projected a recession unless inflation can be controlled and said American workers must accept lower wage settlements as part of the deescalation process.

The Commerce Department said new construction of homes and apartments last month was at an annual rate of 1.75 million, down 37.00 — or 2.1 percent — from the March level.

Housing construction slumped badly during January and February as severe weather hurt the industry. It recovered strongly during March, rising by 28 percent, but slipped back again last month.

April construction, the department said, was 19.6 percent below the same month in 1978 when the overall economy was robust and homes were selling at record levels.

The future was even dimmer. Building permits, an indication of future construction activity, totaled 1.51 million, at an annual rate, a decline of 6.4 percent from March and nearly 21 percent from a year earlier.

"The April performance was quite respectable," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

It should be about the same this month, but things will get tougher beginning in June and for the rest of the year," he predicted.

Industrial production, meanwhile, fell by 1 percent last month, the sharpest decrease since a 2.2 percent drop in February, 1975. The Federal Reserve Board said:

Segregation Law Not Successful

WASHINGTON — Twenty-five years after the Brown vs. the Board of Education ruling made the "Separate But Equal" doctrine of education illegal, black and civil rights groups and lawyers involved in the suit complain the problems it was supposed to have eliminated are still very real.

On May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court ruling struck down laws that required or permitted segregated public schools. Yet today, 1.6 million children around the country still attend predominantly minority schools.

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, says meaningful integration is still a dream, particularly in the North.

"We note that the commitment has not been fulfilled," Hooks, 54, said Wednesday. "We note that blacks and other minorities are still faced with resistance to meaningful integration."

Just as Crane is the most conservative Republican in the race, Weickert was clearly the most liberal. He also was considered one of the longest shots in the field.

"I have always called the shots as I see them," Weickert said. "I see the numbers for Lowell Weickert as not being there." He faults rest on my shoulders alone.

Shortage of Gasoline Is Inescapable Fact

By United Press International
One inescapable fact surfaces in a UPI survey: Wednesday at all 50 states: Gas stations just don't have as much gasoline to sell this year as they did last year.

The reasons are complicated, but on the one fact remains: American motorists are facing a long, dry summer.

Each month, oil companies are allocating their stations anywhere from 5 percent to 20 percent less gasoline. And, every month, many stations are drained early, and they start closing more and more in the last week of the month.

This month, the last week includes the first major holiday of the season — the Memorial Day weekend — and most experts are predicting serious trouble.

In Maryland, where most of the state's service stations had used up half their monthly allotment by May 12, retailers spokesman John Banks called the situation "sticky," with possible holiday shortages.

In Nevada, where the economy depends on the tourist trade, station operators staggered operating hours in an effort to assure an adequate supply for Memorial Day visitors.

The supply situation in Las Vegas, however, was critical, with most major stations open only three to four hours a day.

West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller warned of gasless days at the end of every month from now on and said every tight fuel supplies are likely to hobble holiday travel. In Kansas, Gov. John Carlin urged residents to spend Memorial Day inside the state.

Other states hit by growing shortages included Texas and Missouri, and for diesel fuel, Iowa, Wyoming and Montana.

There was one bright note for would-be Memorial Day travelers. The nationwide service station protest threatened as a result of federal price ceilings also appeared to be running out of gas.

The UPI gasoline supply survey showed little support for the four-day closing, with dealers associations in 17 states rejecting it outright. The threatened demonstration apparently was defused by federal indications a price increase of 2 to 2.5 cents a gallon may be allowed.

One Candidate Quits, One Still Fights

In Connecticut showed him well behind Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan.

"Any way you cut it now, it's third place. And third place in this business is not good enough," Weicker said. "I can't go ahead and ask New Hampshire and Vermont and Florida to support me if they resignations."

Weicker, convinced he couldn't even win in his home state, Wednesday became the first candidate to withdraw from the crowded field for the 1980 GOP nomination, after only two months on the track.

Budget Set For Bolton

BOLTON — A $2,443,307.24 budget for 1979-1980 was passed at the Annual Budget Town Meeting Wednesday after the legal call for the meeting was read by Catherine Peterson, moderator.

There was no discussion on the budget which is not expected to result in an increased mill rate. The current mill rate is 60.6 mills.

The Board of Finance will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall to set the mill rate.

An item for $10,000 to repair the roof at Bolton Elementary School brought objections from William Felhing because the call read for the money to go into the Board of Education budget.

Felhing said, "I feel the intent is to have the money come from the capital and nonrecurring account so the words 'to the Board of Education' should be deleted. Those at the meeting approving Felhing's motion.

The meeting approved purchasing a police vehicle and equipment for $9,400. The money will come from the capital and nonrecurring account.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said about $6,000 is for the cruiser and $3,400 for two radios.

Those at the meeting approved allowing the town to borrow, on specific accounts, money as needed to meet the expenses and obligations of the town, if necessary, in an amount not to exceed the authorized appropriations.

Soupy Sues on Name Use

Soupy Sales is suing ABC-TV for $500,000 — says they're trying to give his name for a television series aimed at the young set whose parents watch "Soupy." Title of the kiddie version "Soupy."

Sales, singing in New York, says the network already has broadcast a couple of specials in which they used his name without his permission. These were called "Soupy and Me" and "Soupy for President."

He says that misleads the public into thinking he's involved when he isn't — wants an injunction banning any variation of his name from the network.

Verplanck Bake Sale

"Won't you buy some of mine?" Richard Chalfoux, right, asks of Kimberly Butcher, who has just bought a baked goodie from Ingrid Azan. The early morning in-school bake sale was held Wednesday in the Verplanck School cafeteria in Manchester. Proceeds from the sale will go toward the expenses of the U.S. Olympic team. The sale was sponsored by the fifth grade. (Herald photo by Pinto.)

Pedal Power

The plane Dr. Paul MacCreedy and Bryan Allen hope to fly across the English Channel weighs less than they do. In fact, Allen is the engine. They unveiled their "Gossamer Albatross" Wednesday in London. It has a 96-foot wingspan and it's covered with transparent "Mylar"— a film so thin the whole covering weighs only 3 pounds. The whole craft weighs only 70.

Allen—a cyclist and hang glider enthusiast—turns the propeller with frantic pedaling and he's certain he can provide the one-third horsepower for at least two hours needed to fly the 23 miles from England to France. And it's not just art for art's sake. If they make it, they win the $200,000 Kremer prize — donated by an English businessman for the first man-powered channel flight.

From A to Z

The Rhode Island Board of Examiners says if Dr. Nathan Feigelman wants his dentistry license back he'll have to get himself a new mythical partner.

The board, meeting in Providence, Wednesday lifted Feigelman's license — says he invented a partner named Aaron A. Aaron to get his office listed first in the yellow pages. Feigelman says that wasn't the motive — that he really meant to go into business with a fellow by that name, but the deal fell through.

Says he, "What business would I be making up a dentist?" But he has to cancel the listing before he can pick up the drill again.

Quote of the Day

Former Nixon aide John Ehrlichman told a Los Angeles TV interviewer he had not spoken to the former president since he was fired six years ago. When asked whether he ever expects to hear from him, "I don't expect any fudge in the mail."

Glimpses

Amy Carter will accompany President and Mrs. Carter on their journey to Japan and South Korea at the end of June, but the White House says she'll skip the Vienna SALT summit meeting June 15-19. The New York Drama Critics' Circle handed out laurels Wednesday, naming Bernard Pomerance's "The Elephant Man" best play of the season and "Sweetney Todd," scored by Stephen Sondheim and written by Hugh Wheeler, as best musical. Pope John Paul II, who turns 59 on Friday, received a surprise birthday party Wednesday during his weekly audience in St. Peter's Square when a group of nuns and a delegation from a nearby town presented him with a cake and a flower petal picture of the Madonna.

Notch Traffic Proposal Brought Before Public

By DONNA HOLLAND Herald Correspondent

BOLTON — About 70 people attended a public hearing Wednesday to discuss a plan to rechannel traffic at the Bolton Notch area. The plan was proposed by the state police.

The presentation on the proposed changes was made by Sgt. Anthony Kalkus, Colchester State Police, Troop K, north sector unit supervisor and Trooper Mark Coleman of the north sector. Trooper Coleman suggested the changes and Sgt. Kalkus helped refine them.

The proposed plan as well as comments and further revisions to the plan, suggested by local people, will be brought to the Department of Transportation on May 24.

First Selectman Henry Ryba, and others will meet with the DOT on May 24.

"I'd like to have Bolton tell the Department of Transportation that we are sick and tired of the accidents there and we'd like them to push ahead,"

Sgt. Kalkus said, "Since Jan. 1 there has been 125 accidents in the north sector which comprises the towns of Bolton, Andover, Hebron and Columbia."

He said, "72 or 58 percent of those accidents were on the Route 6 corridor. For the last year and a half the police have been working to reduce accidents in the area but enforcement alone won't do it."

Sgt. Kalkus said the new commuter parking lot will be opening very shortly and it will cause a greater influx of traffic in the area.

Trooper Coleman said, "The proposal is a temporary solution to a bad problem. The permanent solution would be the completion of Interstate 84."

Trooper Coleman said, "We don't want to stop traffic on the interstate because all you'll get is more accidents. People don't pay attention to lights and signs, they only pay attention to something they can't get through."

He said, "We're trying to eliminate as many of the hazards as possible. Our biggest concern is slowing traffic flow down."

Residents expressed concern that several of the town roads, mainly South Road, Stony Road and Williams Road, will get too much traffic if the changes are implemented.

Victim Needs Driver's Name

MANCHESTER — The identity of a truck driver who hit a lady bicyclist recently is needed for insurance purposes.

A lady, who wishes to remain unidentified, said she was riding her bicycle past St. Bridget Church last Saturday about 4:30 p.m. when a mirror on a passing truck caught her arm and threw her off balance so that she fell off her bicycle.

According to the victim, the truck driver stopped to see if she was all right. At the time, she said she thought she was and remounted her bicycle to go home without asking the driver's name.

Since then, she says her arm has bothered her and she has not been able to return to work.

She says she needs the driver's identification for insurance purposes.

The accident occurred right at the time of a wedding at the church and the victim says there were witnesses.

The driver may contact the victim by contacting her at 161 E. Middle Temple, Manchester, telephone 648-3595.

Area Police Report

VERNON — Thomas E. Burke, 20, of 50 Park St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday night with possession of alcoholic beverage in a park, in violation of a town ordinance. The alleged incident happened in Henry Park. Burke's court answer date is June 1 in Rockville.

Donald S. Young, 18, of 178 Tracy Drive, Vernon, was charged Wednesday night with criminal trespassing on school property and reckless driving.

Police said Young was observed squealing his car tires in a school parking lot. The trespassing charge was added when it was found he was not a student at the school and had no official business at the school.

He was released on his promise to appear in court on May 29.

Patrick J. Dowling, 25, of 12 West St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday with failure to pass to the left of a parked vehicle.

Police said Dowling struck a car parked at the curb on West Main St. The parked car belonged to Priscilla Bates of Manchester. The Bale's car had to be towed.

Dowling is scheduled to appear in court on June 1.

At a surprise news conference on his 48th birthday, Weicker Wednesday produced the poll to show why he was giving up the ghost on his presidential candidacy, barely two months old.

The poll — compiled two weeks ago by Weicker's Salisbury Research and Information Systems — showed 26.3 percent of the Republican voters polled backed Ford for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination. Ford has not announced his candidacy but in the 1976 election he beat Jimmy Carter by 71,000 votes in Connecticut.

Weicker came in third with only 13.9 percent of the vote, while Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker was a close fourth with 11.1 percent. None of the other GOP candidates received over 10 percent.

"Any way you cut it now, it's third place, and third place in this business is not good enough," Weicker said. "I can't go ahead and ask New Hampshire and Vermont and Florida to support me if they won't in my own state."

Most in GOP Concur In Weicker Decision

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some were relieved, others disappointed. But most Connecticut Republicans felt Sen. Lowell Weicker made a "realistic" decision when he junked his candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination.

Only hours after Weicker dropped out of the race Wednesday, long-time Weicker foe, Sen. George Gunther, R-Stratford, said sarcastically, "I'm very disappointed."

"I'd would rather he stayed in and got whipped good and then maybe that would deflate his ego and he would go back to Washington and be a real U.S. Senator for a change," Gunther said.

But Senate Minority Leader Richard Borzuto, R-Waterbury, was sorry to see Weicker go.

"I'm disappointed. I frankly viewed the Weicker candidacy as an opportunity, an opportunity to stimulate excitement in Connecticut for the presidential campaign," he said.

Weicker's maverick tendencies have bruised Republican egos in Connecticut more than one occasion.

Youth's Death Probed

HARTFORD (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy was buried under tons of rubble for more than half an hour after a heart attack at an Albany Avenue residence and instead found the boy's hysterical mother.

Officers then learned the city may have been buried when the garage collapsed.

"That's when we called the fire department again for additional manpower to look for the boy," Thompson said.

The police sergeant said the city building department has been called into the investigation to determine whether the building was posted as dangerous.

The youth was pronounced dead at St. Francis Hospital from multiple injuries at 8 p.m., Police Sgt. George Thompson said.

Thompson added Losada and two other youths were playing inside the building, located at 15 Fairmont St. when Losada reportedly kicked a brick support column, causing the concrete roof and brick walls to collapse.

The other youth escaped, but Losada was trapped, Thompson said.

The police sergeant said the city building department has been called into the investigation to determine whether the building was posted as dangerous.

Area Police Report

VERNON — Thomas E. Burke, 20, of 50 Park St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday night with possession of alcoholic beverage in a park, in violation of a town ordinance. The alleged incident happened in Henry Park. Burke's court answer date is June 1 in Rockville.

Donald S. Young, 18, of 178 Tracy Drive, Vernon, was charged Wednesday night with criminal trespassing on school property and reckless driving.

Police said Young was observed squealing his car tires in a school parking lot. The trespassing charge was added when it was found he was not a student at the school and had no official business at the school.

He was released on his promise to appear in court on May 29.

Patrick J. Dowling, 25, of 12 West St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday with failure to pass to the left of a parked vehicle.

Police said Dowling struck a car parked at the curb on West Main St. The parked car belonged to Priscilla Bates of Manchester. The Bale's car had to be towed.

Dowling is scheduled to appear in court on June 1.

At a surprise news conference on his 48th birthday, Weicker Wednesday produced the poll to show why he was giving up the ghost on his presidential candidacy, barely two months old.

The poll — compiled two weeks ago by Weicker's Salisbury Research and Information Systems — showed 26.3 percent of the Republican voters polled backed Ford for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination. Ford has not announced his candidacy but in the 1976 election he beat Jimmy Carter by 71,000 votes in Connecticut.

Weicker came in third with only 13.9 percent of the vote, while Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker was a close fourth with 11.1 percent. None of the other GOP candidates received over 10 percent.

"Any way you cut it now, it's third place, and third place in this business is not good enough," Weicker said. "I can't go ahead and ask New Hampshire and Vermont and Florida to support me if they won't in my own state."

Most in GOP Concur In Weicker Decision

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some were relieved, others disappointed. But most Connecticut Republicans felt Sen. Lowell Weicker made a "realistic" decision when he junked his candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination.

Only hours after Weicker dropped out of the race Wednesday, long-time Weicker foe, Sen. George Gunther, R-Stratford, said sarcastically, "I'm very disappointed."

"I'd would rather he stayed in and got whipped good and then maybe that would deflate his ego and he would go back to Washington and be a real U.S. Senator for a change," Gunther said.

But Senate Minority Leader Richard Borzuto, R-Waterbury, was sorry to see Weicker go.

"I'm disappointed. I frankly viewed the Weicker candidacy as an opportunity, an opportunity to stimulate excitement in Connecticut for the presidential campaign," he said.

Weicker's maverick tendencies have bruised Republican egos in Connecticut more than one occasion.

Youth's Death Probed

HARTFORD (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy was buried under tons of rubble for more than half an hour after a heart attack at an Albany Avenue residence and instead found the boy's hysterical mother.

Officers then learned the city may have been buried when the garage collapsed.

"That's when we called the fire department again for additional manpower to look for the boy," Thompson said.

The police sergeant said the city building department has been called into the investigation to determine whether the building was posted as dangerous.

The youth was pronounced dead at St. Francis Hospital from multiple injuries at 8 p.m., Police Sgt. George Thompson said.

Thompson added Losada and two other youths were playing inside the building, located at 15 Fairmont St. when Losada reportedly kicked a brick support column, causing the concrete roof and brick walls to collapse.

The other youth escaped, but Losada was trapped, Thompson said.

The police sergeant said the city building department has been called into the investigation to determine whether the building was posted as dangerous.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, at a press conference Wednesday at the State Capitol, announced that he is dropping out of the race for the Republican Presidential nomination. He decided to withdraw because he didn't have the necessary support in his home state. (UPI photo)

Weicker's Decision Based on Opinion

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Lowell Weicker's presidential dreams were dashed by a poll — a poll that showed Connecticut voters are fond of former President Gerald Ford and even under Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

At a surprise news conference on his 48th birthday, Weicker Wednesday produced the poll to show why he was giving up the ghost on his presidential candidacy, barely two months old.

The poll — compiled two weeks ago by Weicker's Salisbury Research and Information Systems — showed 26.3 percent of the Republican voters polled backed Ford for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination. Ford has not announced his candidacy but in the 1976 election he beat Jimmy Carter by 71,000 votes in Connecticut.

"Any way you cut it now, it's third place, and third place in this business is not good enough," Weicker said. "I can't go ahead and ask New Hampshire and Vermont and Florida to support me if they won't in my own state."

In his latest split with party regulars, the state's liberal junior senator recently announced he would support state GOP chairman Fred Biello for re-election.

However, Biello didn't gloat when he heard Weicker was giving up the ghost on his presidential aspirations.

Weicker produced a poll of Republican voters in Connecticut. He said the poll well behind former President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Sen. Weicker is a realist, and I admire the realistic view he has taken of the situation," Biello said.

Sen. Michael Morano, R-Greenwich, and Weicker's campaign manager during two senatorial races, agreed.

"If you don't have your own home state, you're in trouble," Morano said.

Town Seeks Prices For Road Patching

MANCHESTER — The town is seeking bids for one of two methods it uses for patching of town roads.

The methods are used as part of a new program for making permanent road repairs after cuts into the pavement to install utilities.

The program, started last summer, has a contractor or utility company make a temporary road repair which later is made permanent by the town.

Previously, the contractor or utility was required to make the permanent repair. The system created some problems, however, because some of the repairs were not done well, according to town officials.

The new program gives the town more control over the permanent repairs of the town roads.

The town wants its road repairs by using one of two methods. One is the conventional method used for road patching. This requires replacement of the temporary patching with hot bituminous material. The town now is seeking bids for this method. Those bids will be opened June 5 at 11 a.m.

The second method of permanent patching done by the town is a more modern approach called infra-red patching.

Ron Charter, who is a junior construction aide in charge of the patching program, said the infra-red method can be used only when the temporary patch was done using hot bituminous material. That material cannot be used in colder weather, however.

The infra-red method uses a special machine, which is placed on top of the temporary patch. The machine then reheats that patch, more surface material is added, and the road repair is permanent.

The method used by the town for the temporary repair depends on what materials were used to make the temporary patch, Charter said.

"If there is an option, I'll go with whatever method is cheaper," he said.

The infra-red method is done for the town by Felix Marion, a contractor from Peabody, Mass. It costs about $7 per square yard. The bids to be opened June 5 will determine the contractor for the more conventional road repair method.

Official Backs Law To Protect Water

WOODHULL (UPI) — A Connecticut health official says many water supplies across the nation contain a cancer-causing chemical and says new state and federal laws are needed to protect the public.

Virtually all of Connecticut's large water supply wells that are used to serve populations in excess of 1,000 persons contain some quantity of suspected carcinogenic materials, Woodhull said.

"We do have a substantial chloroform problem," he told the local health directors. "It has caused raging debate in the industry because nobody wants to admit there is a problem."

Woodhull said chloroform — also called trichloromethane (THM) — has proved carcinogenic to animals and scientific research and testing indicates it can cause cancer in humans.

"We have to accept this likelihood and do everything we can to eliminate it from our drinking water," he said.

He said extensive health department tests show virtually all the large wells have some degree of contamination and about 50 percent of the smaller wells are polluted.

Woodhull said federal environmental officials have also found THM in water supplies across the nation which are chlorinated.

He said the chemical can be reduced by first filtering the water and then rechlorinating it.

If the water is filtered first, less chlorine is needed and it won't combine with organic impurities, he explained.

Woodhull blamed much of Connecticut's problem on water companies which use surface water from 27 reservoirs serving 1 million residents without filtering the water.

The state has 29 filtration plants and 11 more are scheduled to be built.

"That's a big step forward. For so many years we couldn't get anybody to build a plant," Woodhull said.

He said the next most important steps are continued testing and for state and federal environmental officials and Congress "to enact and carry out the needed laws to protect our drinking water supplies."

District Meeting Is Said Illegal

MANCHESTER — A hearing officer for the state's Freedom of Information Commission has said a January meeting of the Eighth Utilities District Board of Directors was illegal.

The FOI Commission will meet May 30 to decide on the proposed ruling of William Clew, a commission member and the hearing officer assigned to this case.

The case involves a complaint filed by the Journal Inquirer and one of its reporters, Ralph Williams, Jr. Williams challenged a meeting in early January that reportedly involved a majority of the district board and its attorney, John LaBelle Sr. The meeting apparently concerned discussion about whether to file suit to force the Town Fire Department to leave the Buckland firehouse.

LaBelle recommended no such legal action. Some district officials had sought the step because Buckland now is part of the district, but no such action has been taken based on LaBelle's recommendation.

Clew ruled the district did not post proper notice of the meeting, step that should be taken for any meeting of a public agency. He also said that minutes of the meeting should be produced and that the district follow the FOI law in the future.

The full commission will decide whether or not to accept Clew's recommendation at its May 30 hearing.

The district had argued at the April 5 meeting conducted by Clew that the FOI had no jurisdiction over the January meeting. The session was a meeting between an attorney and a client, so the FOI law did not pertain, the district said.

Clew rejected this argument in his recommendation.

He also rejected a charge by Williams that LaBelle "knowingly and willfully" induced the district directors to violate the FOI law.

Voter Registration Signs 200 Persons

MANCHESTER — More than 200 persons became new voters during registration sessions held recently at local high schools and Manchester Community College.

The sessions were organized by the town's registrars of voters office.

More than half of those new voters, 116, were signed up at Manchester High School. All but three of those are town residents.

A total of 51 students at East Catholic — 21 from Manchester, 30 from other towns — became voters during that school's registration session.

At Manchester Community College, 34 students, 10 from Manchester, 24 from other towns, signed up as new voters.

A total of 14 students from Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School also became new voters. Nine of the students are from Manchester while the other five are from surrounding towns.

Segregation Still Realty

HARTFORD (UPI) — The head of the Connecticut State Conference of NAACP Branches says segregation in public schools remains a reality 25 years after the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark school desegregation ruling.

In its 1954 Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education decision, the high court ruled desegregation in public schools should be ended "with all deliberate speed."

Group Takes Land Option

MANCHESTER — A group of persons, including an attorney from Hartford, has taken an option for a 137-acre site on the north side of Sheldon Road.

The group, however, has no immediate plans for use of the site. Donald J. Brooke said. Brooke, a Hartford attorney, was listed as the trustee for the property on a bond for deed filed Wednesday in the town clerk's office.

The bond for deed gives the group an option on the 137 acres on the north side of Sheldon Road, which is an industrial area.

The property presently is owned by Monaco & Sons Paving Contractors Inc.

Brooke said he and several other persons are interested in purchasing the Sheldon Road property. He would not say, however, who or how many other persons are involved.

He also said there is "nothing imminent" planned for the property and gave no indication when the group might be interested in developing the now-vacant site.

Biebel Supported

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — The Greater Bridgeport Republican Heritage Group have endorsed the re-election bid of incumbent GOP State Chairman Frederick Biebel.

The group's president, Manuel Garcia, commended Biebel Wednesday for "effective leadership" and continued assistance to the Bridgeport group during the past two years.

Garcia added he "urges all Republicans to unite and support Biebel in the upcoming election."

Digan To Speak at Memorial Day Ceremonies

MANCHESTER — Robert J. Digan, coordinator of youth services for the town Board of Education, will be the principal speaker at the annual Memorial Day ceremonies May 28 at Center Park.

Digan has taken the inscription from the monument at Arlington National Cemetery as his theme. It is "Not for fame or reward; not for place or for rank; not lured by ambition or goaded by necessity, but in simple obedience to duty as they understood it, these men suffered, all sacrificed all, dared all and died."

The observance will begin with a parade, starting at 9:30 a.m. from Forest and Main streets and conclude with the ceremonies at Center Park.

This year's church service will be May 27 at St. Bartholomew's Church, where a memorial mass will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m.

Digan became the state's first certified youth services officer in 1967, the same year the town set up the Youth Services Center. A graduate of St. Michael's College in Vermont, he earned his master's degree at Notre Dame University while serving as a probation officer in South Bend, Ind. Later, he was a social worker in Massachusetts, placing children in foster homes and working with unwed mothers, putting their children up for adoption.

In 1965, Digan became a probation officer for the Juvenile Court in Vernon while living in Manchester. He worked with Manchester children as well as youths from the Vernon area. Since becoming coordinator of youth services, he helped to create and develop the first town Youth Commission, initiated youth-oriented groups to combat youth drug abuse and helped to develop education subcommittee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Drugs, he helped to prepare the Connecticut Comprehensive Drug Plan.

As youth services coordinator, he has developed new approaches to school-police-court liaison, with the goal of identifying and assisting youth in conflict with family, community and/or school. In 1972, as a member of the education subcommittee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Drugs, he helped to prepare the Connecticut Comprehensive Drug Plan.

CATV To Show River Race Tape

MANCHESTER — Persons with cable TV will have a treat in store next week.

Those who wish to experience the thrill of shooting the rapids of the Hockanum River without getting their feet wet or taping time to country fiddle tunes can watch the third annual Hockanum River canoe race and the annual fiddle contest which took place in Hartford.

The race, taped and narrated by Jay April, will be shown Tuesday, May 22, at 7:30 p.m. on Community Access Television Channel 12.

The showing, which runs about a half hour, was videotaped April 30. It features hundreds of Manchester area citizens and everyone is a star, according to April, who is the town communications specialist and an independent video producer. April includes interviews with both race participants and spectators.

Much of the appeal of the tape is April's spontaneous narration flavored with wit and humor.

Another videotape, the fourth annual New England Fiddle Contest held in 1977 in Bushnell Park in Hartford, will be shown Thursday, May 24, at 7:30 p.m. April has selected this to set the theme for this year's fiddle contest which will be Sunday, May 26, in Bushnell Park.

The "fiddle" videotape produced in 1977 by Media Access Dynamics includes lots of "boogie," Jacob's Reunion, and Welling and Wallach.

Community Access Cable Television Channel 12 is provided for community use by Greater Hartford Cable Television Inc.

Manchester's Cable Television Advisory Council has activated this channel for community responsive programming on a regular basis. Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. are the channel's current regular program hours.

Anyone with suggestions or comments is asked to contact Jay April at 646-9775.

Volunteer Lack Closes Day Camp

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Interfaith Day Camp, which has provided a camping experience for local and Hartford disadvantaged children for the past 11 years, has been canceled this year because of the lack of volunteers.

In the past, the camp has had anywhere from 40 to 80 campers each year. This year, the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, sponsor of the annual camp, had hoped to provide a camping experience for 40 disadvantaged children. Mrs. Nancy Carr, its executive director said.

The 1978 camp almost failed to open because of the lack of volunteers, but at the last moment, two young women volunteered to direct the camp.

This year, Mrs. Carr said, no adults have volunteered to staff the camp. The volunteers were needed to recruit and coordinate teenage counselors, raise money, organize and direct arts and crafts and sports programs and to supervise the kitchen crew, she said.

All interested adults were asked to contact Mrs. Carr by Tuesday if they were interested in serving as a volunteer. No one did, she said.

Plant Pests Flourish During May

STORRS — A list of the most troublesome plant pests to expect in May and methods for their control has been compiled by Edmond L. Marrott, consumer horticulturist, Dr. Milton G. Savas, entomologist, and Dr. David B. Schroeder, plant pathologist, all with the University of Connecticut Cooperative Extension Service.

Vegetables

CLUB ROOT OF CABBAGE AND OTHER COLE CROPS. This is first noticed when the leaves begin to yellow and the plants will during the days. The roots are enlarged, knotted and twisted. The causal organism, a slime mold, lives in the ground and enters the plants through the roots. Use clean seed and transplants. Protect transplants in infected fields by watering them with a Terracel solution. Follow label instructions.

WILT OF TOMATO, Fusarium and Verticillium wilts are soil borne fungus diseases. They enter the plants through the root system and plug up the plant's vascular system, causing it to wilt. The lower leaves turn yellow and eventually the entire plant yellows and dies.

A five-year rotation is suggested along with using wilt resistant varieties. These are indicated by a V and F on the seed packet. Also, select vegetables suitable for Connecticut.

ROOT MAGGOTS. These small, wormlike insects feed on the roots of cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, radishes and onion. Use diazinon according to label instructions. Root maggots are exhibiting increasing resistance to diazinon, however.

SOIL INSECTS. Root-feeding insects such as wireworms and white grubs are often troublesome on some vegetables. For best control, apply diazinon as a spray, dust or granule according to label directions prior to planting. However, do not apply diazinon to soil where eggplant, pumpkins or rutabagas are to be planted.

CUTWORMS. These fat, hairless caterpillars are usually found just below the surface of the soil. They chew plant stems off at ground level and are especially troublesome on newly set tomatoes and peppers. The cutworms are serious pests because they overwinter as full grown larvae in the soil and are ready to feed as soon as plants are set out.

To avoid cutworm damage, use "collars" made of milk cartons or paper cups. Place these barriers around the stems when you set out the plants. OR apply diazinon dust or granules (see label for rate) to the soil to be planted to tomatoes and peppers and mix into the top four inches of soil. OR apply a small amount of carbaryl dust around the stem of newly set plants.

FRUIT

CEDAR APPLE RUST. This fungus disease attacks the fruit and leaves of apples, leaving a characteristic yellow or rust colored spot. It requires the cedar as an alternate host.

Infection occurs during warm, rainy periods in spring. The spores are blown from the "cedar apples," which are bright orange gelatinous horny galls, onto the young apple foliage and fruit.

For control, use thiram or ferbam. Most general orchard sprays do not contain either of these fungicides; therefore, it is necessary to add it to the spray mixture.

STRAWBERRY FRUIT ROT. They have been severe in the past two years following wet spring weather. Weather conditions this spring also have been favorable for fruit rot development. Application of fungicides, such as benlate, captan or thiram, will help keep fruit rots under control. Fungicide applications should be initiated at bloom stage.

APHIDS, MITES, PLUM CURCULIO. All attack various tree fruits. General purpose orchard mixtures will control these pests if complete and properly timed coverage is applied.

Ornamentals

LACE BUGS. They will be hatching in mid-May and begin feeding on azaleas, rhododendron and andromeda. They are small, flat, lace-winged, sucking insects about one-eighth of an inch long. Their feeding causes foliage to appear stippled pale yellow or silvery, and the undersides of leaves are spotted with brown gummy material. In addition, they excrete a sugar-rich substance called honeydew on which a black, nonparasitic fungus named sooty mold appears in May and June and lay eggs on the plants look black.

Lace bugs can be controlled by spraying the undersides of leaves with carbaryl or malathion. Repeat treatments are usually necessary during the summer months especially in cases of heavy infestations.

RHODOENDRON AND LILAC BORERS. Rhododendron and lilac are susceptible to attack from borers. The adult moths appear in May and June and lay eggs on the twigs. The larvae that hatch from their eggs tunnel under the bark and into the wood and can cause severe wounds. Branches may wilt and sometimes break off.

One method of control is to cut out the borers and injured stems and burn the refuse. Then coat wounds with tree paint or paraffin. Also, you can protect plants by spraying lindane on the main stems and branches at two week intervals during May and June. The liquid lindane is preferred over the wettable powder because of its superior qualities.

BIRCH LEAFMINER. The adults are small black flies that have been active for a few days. Their larvae feed on the tissue between the upper and lower leaf surfaces, producing brown blotch mines. Severely infested trees have a "blighted" appearance.

Examine the terminal leaves of gray, paper and European white birch frequently. If you can see small mines when leaves are held up to the light, it is time to spray. Materials that can be used for their control are acephate (Orthene), carbaryl, dimethoate, malathion or Metasystox-R.

COLUMBINE LEAFMINER. One produces serpentine mines and the other, blotch mines. Watch columbine foliage for the beginnings of these mines. You can handpick affected leaves, or spray with acephate (Orthene) or diazinon.

Crockett

Questions and answers in this column are based on mail to "Crockett's Victory Garden," a public television program.

By JAMES U. CROCKETT

Is the soil from my garden usable for starting my annual and vegetable seeds indoors?

A: Yes, however, here in the Victory Garden we use a sterilized mix to avoid introducing insects into the greenhouse or diseases from the soil to our seedlings. Most garden centers sell such a sterile mixture.

Q: What is meant by a "French lilac"?

A: In 1876 breeding programs in France led to many improvements on the common lilac. These new varieties with larger flower clusters, more colors, smaller and more manageable shrubs, many-petaled blossoms and a longer blooming period became known as French lilacs.

Q: When is the best time to plant New Zealand spinach?

A: New Zealand spinach, not really a spinach, is best planted in May when the weather starts to get warmer. Since true spinach needs cool temperatures, New Zealand spinach is a good summer alternative.

Q: Could the clay pots I used to start my seedlings in have contributed to all of them dying?

A: Clay pots dry out faster than plastic ones. If you start your seedlings in clay pots, be sure to water properly and that most likely means more often.

Q: How do I tell when my compost is ready to use?

A: When all the original ingredients you have placed in the compost are barely distinguishable then it is ready to incorporate into the garden.

Farming Peaceful for Retiree

By Frank Atwood

Sam Morgan worked at two jobs for 20 years, as a guard at the Connecticut State Correctional Institution (State Prison) in Somers and as a vegetable grower and roadside stand operator on Silver Lane, East Hartford.

Now retired, Mr. Morgan speaks of the tension he endured in the prison job and the restfulness he found on Silver Lane. "I don't know," he said, "if I could ever have made it to retirement without the farm." In his acres of tomatoes and sweet corn he found "a peace I can't describe."

When Mr. Morgan retired from the prison job in 1974 he had been promoted to night supervisor. This year he has partly retired as a farmer. The stand is being operated now by Joseph Wilkos, Jr., and his wife, Claire. Joe is raising vegetables on 21 acres of land rented to the younger couple by Mr. Morgan.

Available now for sale, the first crop of the spring season, is rhubarb that grows in two long rows running back from the road along the side of the stand. The stalks are being "pulled" daily and the harvest will continue until summer heats turn the stalks "woody." The big leaves are lopped off and the stalks weighed out for customers by Claire Wilkos.

Near the cash register Mrs. Wilkos has a hand-written recipe for rhubarb pie that customers may copy. It came to her from the first Mrs. Morgan who tended the stand before her death.

Under Beach Umbrellas

The Morgan family started selling produce at the roadside in 1956, when the two daughters, Ruth and Joyce, tended tables under two beach umbrellas in the shade of an apple tree. Drivers pulled off the road close to the stand and the girls handed bags of vegetables through the car window. The daughters helped with the farm work until they went to college and then were married. Each of them could operate a tractor as well as any boy, their father says.

Mr. Morgan has hired many boys and girls to help on the farm at busy times. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkos worked in the field for Mr. Morgan before they thought of running their own business. Now their two sons, 13 and 12, are in Mr. Morgan's young crew.

Still the owner of all the land, Mr. Morgan is raising crops on 25 acres. He will sell his strawberries to "pick-your-own" customers. Some of his vegetables may go to his old stand but he will sell most of them from his own truck on early-morning trips to the Regional Market in Hartford.

Mr. Wilkos is already going to the Regional Market three times a week. He buys flats of vegetable and flower plants to be sold at the stand.

Later, when sweet corn is ready, Mr. Wilkos expects to make six trips a week to the market. Like Mr. Morgan before him, he holds two jobs. He drives a gasoline tanker truck for Atlas Oil, starting work at 5 a.m. and delivering gasoline to filling stations on a route that changes from day to day. He gets home at 2:30 and then starts his farm work. On days when he goes to the market in Hartford he is up at 3 a.m.

Mrs. Wilkos has breakfast with her children and sees them off for school before she goes to the stand. Her father-in-law, Joe Wilkos, Sr., has come before that from his home on Silver Lane to open the stand for her and carry the flats of plants outside for display.

The stand closes now at 7 p.m. but Mrs. Wilkos is sure she will have to keep it open later in the evening when the summer vegetables are ready. She will need help, especially to sell sweet corn. She says that is a job for two people, one to bag the corn and one to handle the cash register.

The two men have raised their seedling plants together in cold frames, since there is no greenhouse on the farm. Seed was started in flats and the small plants moved to individual peat pots where they stay until they are ready to be set in the field.

Both men have tractors and the attachments for soil preparation and cultivation. This modern equipment is very different from the tools Mr. Morgan learned to use as a boy when he helped his father raise vegetables and tobacco in Suffield. The elder Morgan used a horse and was sure it was not good for the soil to be packed down by the wheels of a heavy tractor.

Mr. Morgan, married a second time, lives now in Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkos and their sons live in a house on Silver Lane, East Hartford.

Bill To Alter Process For Home Applications

MANCHESTER - A bill passed Tuesday by the state House of Representatives would alter the way Manchester, and many other towns, handle applications for group homes for mentally retarded persons.

The bill was passed by a 109-32 vote in the House and now goes to Gov. Ella Grasso, who must sign it for the proposal to become law.

The bill would require communities to treat group homes with six or less mentally retarded residents and two staff members the same as private, single-family homes.

This means such group homes could be located in any zone where single-family homes are permitted without any special action by local zoning boards.

In Manchester, for instance, any group home application now must receive a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals.

There is, however, a pending proposal to change the way the town handles applications for such group homes.

That proposal would have the Planning and Zoning Commission grant a special exception for such a home rather than have the ZBA grant a variance. The PZC held a public hearing on the proposed change at its May 7 meeting and is expected to discuss it further at its meeting Monday night.

Alan Lamson, town planner, said the proposed state law would alter either method of town approval for group homes for the mentally retarded.

If the governor signs the state proposal, the group homes with six or less residents could be located in any residential zone in town, Lamson said. No action by any zoning body would be needed in such cases, he said.

The PZC or ZBA still would have to grant approval for those homes with seven to 10 residents, he said. Town zoning regulations prohibit group homes with more than 10 residents.

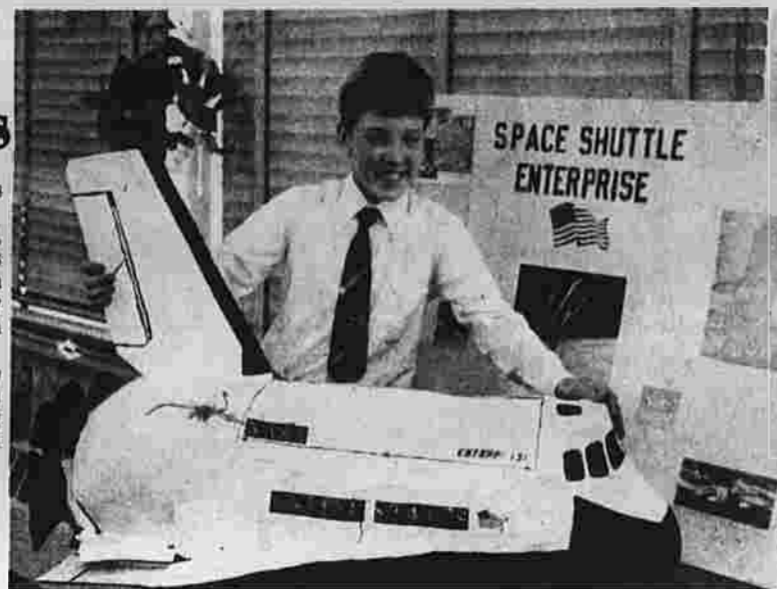

Dance Will Benefit Missing Girls Fund

VERNON - There will be a dance June 9 to raise money for the Vernon Missing Girls Fund.

The fund was started earlier this year in connection with the investigations of the cause of the deaths of two young women from Vernon who had been reported missing and later were found dead, and into the whereabouts of other young women who are still among the missing.

The dance will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Maple Grove Club, Franklin Street. Music will be provided by the "American Way."

The donation will be $5 per person. For more information or tickets, call Donna Villa, 872-7969 or Linda Tew, 648-3851. All proceeds will go to the fund.

Offer Withdrawn On Rec Property

HEBRON - William E. Leary of the Amston section has informed John Marco of the Recreation Committee that he is withdrawing his offer to sell land to the town for use as a recreation field.

The asking price for the land, which is located on Wall Street, was $145,000.

In a letter to Marco, Leary cited two reasons for withdrawal of his offer. He said the local assessor has established a "fair market value" on the land at $80,000 and secondly, the first selectman has said he doesn't believe the board would recommend spending more than $100,000 for its purchase.

Leary told Marco that he has received many offers from persons who wanted to buy his property, the last being in November for considerably more than the price offered by the town but "I felt I had a moral obligation to hold the land for the town because of its location," he said.

He said rather than become involved in any petty bickerings with town officials he was withdrawing his offer to sell the land.

GOP Claims Sills Made Deal on Budget Switching

SOUTH WINDSOR - Monday night's Town Council vote, which restored $20,000 to the Board of Education budget and sliced away the proposal of a full time Town Planner from the General Government budget, has prompted charges of collusion from four of the five GOP council members.

In a statement released this week, Mayor Nancy Caffyn, and Councilpersons Joan Cushman, Richard Ryan and Lincoln Streeter charged that fellow Republican Robert Sills conferred with Democrats, before Monday's meeting, and arranged a deal.

The deal, according to the charges, was for Sills to vote with the Democrats in favor of restoring monies to the Board of Education budget, if the Democrats voted with Sills to eliminate the Town Planner from the budget.

The Democrats and Sills met illegally, according to the remaining Republicans, and the matter may be brought before the Freedom of Information Commission.

"The issue is not the increase in the Board of Education budget, as every council member should vote their personal convictions and let the chips fall where they may," said the Republicans. "It is quite another matter to fix the vote prior to the meeting and to have a pay off arrangement which is totally unacceptable to an open government and represents actions which are not in the best interests of the Town of South Windsor and its citizens."

The GOP members also said that, until Monday night, Councilwoman Jackie Smith had supported the position of a Town Planner and "apparently succumbed to the political pressures."

Mrs. Smith could not be reached for comment.

The charges came as the result of votes taken following a public hearing Monday on the $5.69 million General Government budget. The public hearing was the second on the budget, and was called by Mayor Nancy Caffyn because of a further cut in the capital improvements area of the General Government budget.

Sills has said that he informed some of the Democrats of his intentions to amend the resolution for adoption of the Board of Education budget to include an additional $20,000. Sills said that he had reviewed the maintenance areas of the budget and felt that repairs in some of the elementary schools, including a new ceiling at Eli Terry School, were needed. He said he felt "the safety of our children" was more important than the hiring of a Town Planner.

Sills said that he merely hoped the Democrats would vote with him and said that he had told some of the other Republicans of his plan as well.

Deputy Mayor Robert Myette said that Sills did not propose a deal with him.

The four Republican council members said that the vote "must have been concocted during some form of a caucus either in person or on the telephone."

Councilman Arthur Champagne said he felt the Republicans were angry because they had lost the vote.

"Maybe we should bring four crying towels," said Champagne. "It seems whenever a Republican breaks rank, the others have to cry about it."

Senate Approves Ban On Directory Charges

HARTFORD (UPI) - Bills to impose a moratorium on directory assistance charges and create a separate state Department of Housing have been given Senate approval and sent to the House.

The Senate voted 24-5 after lengthy debate Wednesday to approve a watered-down version of a bill designed to permanently ban telephone companies from seeking charges for operators' assistance.

The amended bill would prohibit any attempt to ask the Division of Public Utility Control to consider directory assistance charges until Oct. 1, 1983.

The Senate voted 23-3 to approve a cabinet-level Department of Housing with a commissioner to promote adequate and attainable housing for citizens.

All housing activities now handled by the state Department of Economic Development would be placed under the new department which would also draw up a three-year master housing plan.

The bill provides $100,000 to help the commissioner monitor the housing market in the private and public sector and compile and maintain data to report to the Legislature and the governor on the status of housing in the state.

The new agency would have regional housing agencies with volunteer advisory boards working with municipalities on housing, redevelopment, urban renewal and community development.

The moratorium bill was approved after lengthy debate on the issue and whether the Legislature should be involved in regulating a utility.

Sen. Michael Shelley, D-Tolland, who proposed the original bill, angrily denounced the attempt by the Southern New England Telephone Co. to charge private users 20 cents for directory assistance.

Gaming Czar Bill Clears Hurdles

HARTFORD (UPI) - The bill to create a legalized gambling czar has cleared its first legislative hurdle amidst Republican charges of political maneuvering by Gov. Ella Grasso.

Rebuffing GOP charges of political maneuvering, Democrats in the Senate Wednesday approved 25-10 and sent to the House the bill to allow the governor to place the czar in office by July 1.

Democrats control the Senate 26-10.

The bill would replace the present nine-member state gaming commission with an executive director and a five-member advisory board, also to be named by the governor.

Republicans charged the first reorganization of the commission since it was created in 1971 was nothing more than a political maneuver by Mrs. Grasso to take over the commission.

Senate Minority Leader Sen. Richard Bozzuto, R-Waterbury, labeled the Democrats' claim the reorganization would produce a more efficient agency a "gam."

He added the bill places the as yet unnamed czar in the hands of the governor to do her bidding and "protect her political future."

Bozzuto said proponents of the bill "don't care whether gambling is honest or dishonest. Nothing will change. It's business as usual. The candy store is open."

Senate President Pro Tem Joseph Paolillo, D-Hartford, said the commission as it was created had done what it could and "was imperfect. We're trying to improve it. It has served its purpose, and now we must move on."

He defended the governor in noting she had made no drastic moves in her first term to change the commission.

"We're moving carefully, and we should join hands in this endeavor," Paolillo said.

But, Bozzuto charged Paolillo's comments were "an attempt to cover up the political intention of this legislation."

"Admit it. Don't hide behind it, there's nothing wrong with politics," Bozzuto said.

The commission, which holds a 5-4 GOP majority, is comprised of appointees chosen by legislative leaders of both parties.

It was created under a unique political deal between the Republican administration of Gov. Thomas Meskill and Democrats who controlled both houses of the Legislature.

With the accelerated growth of legalized gambling in Connecticut, the panel has come under fire for allegedly failing to effectively regulate the industry.

Commission members have accused anti-gambling interests of sabotaging its work, and they have blamed a lack of support from the Grasso administration in supplying needed additional personnel.

The nine commission members are paid $10,500 per year while the executive secretary receives $32,000 in the full time post.

Contractor's Delays Stall Park Opening

By DONNA HOLLAND

Herald Correspondent

BOLTON - Indian Notch Park will not be open by Memorial Day and at this time it's anybody's guess when it will open.

Douglas Cheney, Public Building Commission chairman, said, "I have no idea when it will open. It will open when the contractor finishes the punch list and it is accepted by the Building Commission and Park Department."

Cheney said, "There is still work to be done, simple little things but we can't use the place until they are done."

The park has been plagued by problems that began even before construction work began. An unknown number of hours was spent on paper work to get the $12,000 grant from the Economic Development Administration.

Development started Dec. 9, 1977 and was to have been completed June 9, 1978.

Delays caused by bureaucratic entanglements, soil conditions, vandalism, weather, and payment schedule moved the expected completion date ahead several times.

Now, lack of progress by the contractor

Britain's Grimmiest Hours

Well, the worst has not happened in Britain. The election has not produced a hair-thin parliamentary majority or worse, a no-majority situation in which a patchwork coalition government would have been dependent for day-to-day survival upon a few votes scraped up from among the splintered minor parties.

Instead, Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives are firmly in control and with every prospect of remaining there for the next five years, unless it suits her political purposes at any point in the interim to call an early election.

Thought

It was a tough winter, wasn't it? If you were in Florida or some other climate you probably can't testify personally in answer to that question. But if you are in January and February, even if you want to forget such things, you probably still remember the chill of rooms with a turned down thermostat, the weary rattle of coat and hat and boots and gloves everytime you wanted to outside. If you're like me, you longed for spring all through the month of March, and well into the month of April.

Jack Anderson Is Mafia Taking Over Caribbean?

WASHINGTON — Such is the fear of power of organized crime in Latin America that it now appears possible the Mob will eventually take over effective control of some small Caribbean countries.

This alarming prospect was confined behind closed doors by Viron Vaky, assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs, who has been following the ominous developments closely.

Some of those who heard remarks took precise notes and leaked them to us, feeling that the danger merited public exposure. When reached by our associate Les Whitten, Vaky first buffed that the meeting was off-the-record; then, after much hemming and hawing, he conceded that he had mentioned the Mafia in connection with "a number of little countries" in the Caribbean. But he tried to play down his remarks as mere "speculation."

Indeed, inspection of the participants' detailed notes shows that Vaky seemed more worried about leftist subversion in the area than about the Mob. Whatever the exact order of Vaky's priorities, the briefing could mark a significant change of direction for the Carter administration's Latin American policy. Vaky is a man who usually chooses his words carefully, and is regarded as an influential administration adviser. Vaky did not identify the countries he had in mind. When asked about the possibility of a Mafia takeover, he said that his briefing remarks were intended to mean only that "something like that conceivably could happen."

In fact, intelligence sources who were surely available to Vaky have confirmed to us that the Mob has achieved dangerous penetration of a number of Caribbean nations. In Haiti, for example, organized crime has close ties with the government of dictator Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier. Our sources say narcotics are smuggled through Haitian airfields with the active connivance of corrupt Haitian officials.

In the Bahamas, we were told, the Mob has made inroads into the governing and certain banking establishments. Similar reports have reached us from the Cayman Islands and from Grenada, where the leftist coup in Grenada last March may have changed the situation there. Mafia influence is traditionally weak in left-wing regimes.

Jamaica, the Netherlands Antilles and the Dutch-French island of St. Maarten-St. Martin are also mentioned as Mafia targets.

As a Mafia target, Vaky's remarks are significant. A strange inertia by federal bureaucrats may be indirectly causing thousands of unwanted pregnancies among women who use over-the-counter contraceptives. In the absence of vigorous government supervision of manufacturers' fulsome advertising claims, consumers can't tell whether the ads are exaggerated, misleading or ambiguous — until it's too late. Medical surveys have shown that over-the-counter products may be only 70 percent effective, yet their makers claim 98 or 99 percent effectiveness. A group of law students working under Prof. John Banzhaf at George Washington University is preparing a legal petition to get the Federal Trade Commission to take action against the deceptive advertising.

"Supervisory" Tapes
Ma Bell calls it "supervisory observing of business." A less motherly description is "phone tapping." Telephone company service representatives — the people who deal with your complaints about bills or other troubles — have long known that your calls can be monitored by supervisors at any time. The customer, of course, isn't aware of it. Phone company officials insist the tapping is done to make sure customers get proper service. They add that there's no way anyone outside the phone company could listen in.

"And with little acknowledgment or encouragement from Washington, the idea has been spreading." Following the Iowa lead with all the grace he could muster, Carter announced federal assistance for construction of 100 farm-based alcohol distilleries. There are already 400 service stations selling gasoline in the state.

"We gotta keep things in perspective — compared to next year, they're dry holes."

Third World Meets

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — When the term "Third World" was coined — and its origin is disputed, it was simple enough: it meant poor or under-developed countries.

But the emergence of oil-exporting nations and economic powerhouses such as Brazil, Hong Kong and Singapore are forcing U.S. officials to ask whether something called the "Third World" still exists.

"There's a Third World and a Fourth World, at least," said one U.S. delegate to the 5th U.N. Conference on Trade and Development, meeting here until June 1. It convenes every four years.

Delegates from developing lands naturally dispute the American point of view and say Washington is merely trying to "divide and conquer" the poor lands.

"Diversity within unity, that is the key," Tanzanian delegate Wilbert K. Chagala said. "No matter the differences, we are all in the same boat."

But members of the U.S. delegation say a "growing disparity of interests" among the developing nations has split the so-called Third World into four factions, each with different interests and priorities.

Formost among these are the most advanced developing countries — Brazil, Mexico, and the four "tigers" of Asia: Taiwan, Hong Kong, Singapore and South Korea.

These economic success stories are most interested in breaking trade barriers in the United States, Japan and Western Europe to their own products — textiles, shoes, steel and electronic goods. Most of the rhetoric about "protectionism" comes from these nations.

The second group is the oil exporters — the 13 nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The Arab members at least have money, often more than they know what to do with.

Their primary objective at the Manila meeting is to remain behind the scenes and avoid embarrassing discussion of oil prices, one of the major reasons for the world's economic distress.

"They just want to be invisible," one U.S. spokesman said.

The Saudi Arabians in particular eschew public comments. Asked about the conference, one Saudi delegate grinned and said, "I think it will be very nice."

A third transition group includes Thailand, India, Peru, Colombia and countries that depend on the export of commodities. They are most vulnerable to fluctuations in prices of tin, sugar, coffee and other commodities and, therefore, are the most interested in a common fund being established to ease the ups and downs.

These are the countries getting hit by the "double whammy" effect of increasing oil prices. They must pay more for petroleum and also more for goods produced in inflation-plagued industrial countries.

"They are in a really tough bind," said a U.S. delegate.

The fourth category are the "basket cases" — Bangladesh, most of black Africa and Caribbean countries such as Haiti. They want more outright aid from rich countries and have less of a stake in the existing world order, making them the radicals or "wild cards."

Super imposed over these divisions are geographical variations. The group of 77, which in fact includes 120 developing nations, insists that one speak of rich versus poor, north versus south, industrial nations versus the Third World.

"This conference is billed as a simple confrontation between rich and poor, but it is really a much more complex than that," a U.S. delegate said.

Joyner Explains Voting

HARTFORD - State Rep. Walter Joyner (R-12th District) voted on Wednesday when the House by a vote of 70 to 69 passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would mandate binding arbitration as a last resort in teacher negotiations (See story on page 19).

Joyner said today he had asked State Rep. Muriel Yacono (D-12th District) to assist him in having the vote reconsidered but she declined. He said Mrs. Yacono could have asked for reconsideration since she had voted yes and therefore on the prevailing side of the question.

The close vote sea-sawed with vote changes Wednesday.

Joyner said he was the only representative from Manchester who voted the way town officials wanted. School and town administrators have opposed binding arbitration in teacher negotiations.

Rep. Francis Maloney (D-12th District) is recovering from open heart surgery and has not been able to attend sessions.

Concerned Citizens Back Town Funds for Housing

MANCHESTER - The Concerned Citizens for Manchester is supporting the Housing Authority's request for the town to provide funds for site improvements for its proposed new elderly housing complex off Spencer Street.

The authority is still awaiting the decision of the Capitol Region Council of Government on whether or not it will release $88,500 in HUD funds, which might be affected by the town's referendum last month to replace the federal funds it expects to lose because of the town's withdrawal from the federal Community Development Block Grant program. The drive to force the withdrawal from the program was initiated and organized by the citizens group.

Kicks Up Dirt

Sliding Frank Benettieri (12) scores Penney High's third run in the fourth inning of yesterday's contest against Manchester High at Kelley Field. Indian catcher Dave Parks (5) waits for throw which never came. (Herald photo by Strempfer)

Penney captured its ninth win in 16 outings, tying the school mark for most wins in a season. It has four chances to make Tuesday. "If we don't win one, then we don't deserve to make it," Lippes simply stated.

The Knights got all the runs they needed in the fourth of Tribe starter and loser Ken Hill. 0-2. Dave Blake blasted a long triple to deep center. When the relay skayed a mile high over third base, he was awarded home.

Pete Cace and Frank Benettieri stroked back-to-back singles and a walk to Bob Linell jammed the sacks. Karl Schultz was caught looking but sophomore Al Danfee belted a two-run single for a 3-1 edge. Manchester got its runs in the fifth off Penney southpaw hurler Bob Park. Danfee belted a two-run single for a 5-1 edge. The team's double scoring Hill and Jack Lyon.

It remained that way until the seventh where the Knights scored five times, three on mental misuses and a fourth on a dropped fly ball. Penney, in contrast, was giving burn-out solid defensive support. Dunfee at shortstop and second baseman Dino Peruccio each came up some time spots.

The defense has been outstanding the last four to five games. "Lippes adapted," "We got into a batting slump for a while but we're now starting to hit the ball and getting back into the groove. We're just playing solid, fundamental baseball and that's the key in high school."

Catholic Girls Gain Tournery

Attaining its first state tournament berth in the three-year tenure of Coach Jay McConville yesterday was the East Catholic girls' softball team with a 5-4 eight-inning win over St. Bernard in Uncasville.

The Eaglesites are 9-4 for the season with four games left. It takes 51 percent to qualify for the girls' tournery. It marks the second time in seven years East has gained post-season play. The Eaglesites qualified previously in 1975 under former Coach Donna Reid.

Sophomore Luci Hurst turned in a route-giving performance on the hill to top pick up the win. She walked two, fanned two and scattered 12 hits.

East scored twice in the first. Mimi Laneri singled and scored as Trish O'Connell's bunt was thrown away. O'Connell, who reached third on the misplay, scored on a wild pitch.

St. Bernard knotted the score in the third with Estelle's lead again in the sixth. Laurie Barry walked and took second on a wild pitch. Barry moved to third on an infield out and scored on O'Connell's long sacrifice fly to right. Two hits in an error and a sacrifice fly gave St. Bernard a 4-3 lead in its half of the sixth.

The league-leading Indians go to 13-2 with three games left on the regular season slate and a two-game bulge over 11-4 Enfield High. Manchester can clinch outright possession of the championship Friday against Enfield at the Raiders stadium at 3:30.

Penney slips to 5-10 with the setback.

The Silk Towners score three times in the first inning and added five tallies in the second for an 8-0 edge.

In the latter frame, Lymne Wright walked, swiped second and scored on a passed ball. Lisa Tildem walked, stole second and scored as Kathy Conroy's grounder was booted. Lisa Schwartz singled, Wendy Warren ripped an RBI single scoring Conroy. Shirley Adams knocked in Schwartz.

East Catholic girls' track team absorbed a doubling yesterday, bowing to Northwest Catholic, 69-54, and homecoming Glastonbury High, 73-48, at the Tomahawks' track.

The Eaglesites now stand 7-4 for the season.

Jackson Player of Week

NEW YORK (UPI) - Reggie Jackson, who suddenly found his hitting eye could be just as potent in N.Y. as in the American League Player of the Week Tuesday for his 12 for 28 batting spree that included three homers, a double, triple and 11 rbi.

Jackson lifted his average from .399 to .415 during the week of May 7-13 and drove in at least one run in each of seven games, extending his hitting streak through 10 games. The bespectacled Jackson also scored six runs, drew four walks and had a slugging percentage of .923.

Penney Heads for Tournery And Indians to Sidelines

Penney captured its ninth win in 16 outings, tying the school mark for most wins in a season. It has four chances to make Tuesday. "If we don't win one, then we don't deserve to make it," Lippes simply stated.

The Knights got all the runs they needed in the fourth of Tribe starter and loser Ken Hill. 0-2. Dave Blake blasted a long triple to deep center. When the relay skayed a mile high over third base, he was awarded home.

Pete Cace and Frank Benettieri stroked back-to-back singles and a walk to Bob Linell jammed the sacks. Karl Schultz was caught looking but sophomore Al Danfee belted a two-run single for a 3-1 edge. Manchester got its runs in the fifth off Penney southpaw hurler Bob Park. Danfee belted a two-run single for a 5-1 edge. The team's double scoring Hill and Jack Lyon.

It remained that way until the seventh where the Knights scored five times, three on mental misuses and a fourth on a dropped fly ball. Penney, in contrast, was giving burn-out solid defensive support. Dunfee at shortstop and second baseman Dino Peruccio each came up some time spots.

The defense has been outstanding the last four to five games. "Lippes adapted," "We got into a batting slump for a while but we're now starting to hit the ball and getting back into the groove. We're just playing solid, fundamental baseball and that's the key in high school."

East Hartford Nips Windham

Defending CCIL baseball champ East Hartford High is just not ready to relinquish its title, yet.

The Hornets moved back into a tie for the '79 crown yesterday with a come-from-behind 5-3 win over Windham High in East Hartford. Both teams had earned 4 league marks with three games remaining.

The Hornets' winners of five in a row, are 12-4 overall.

The visiting Whippets scored three times in the sixth inning to erase an early 1-0 Hornets advantage. Tom O'Sullivan's sacrifice fly, Pete Herberger's RBI sacrifice walk and infield miscues resulted in the Windham markers.

East Hartford, which scored on a double steal in the second, nibbled away and got a run back in its half of the sixth. Matt Proctor singled home Ron Durler but Kevin Hickey also tried to score was out at the plate.

The Hornets knotted it in the seventh. Ted Hillech was hit by a pitch, Chris Nicholson walked and Tyler Jones was hit by another serve from Hope jamming the bases. Durler grounded into a force at home but Mike Harty drew a bases on balls, forcing in the tying tally.

That was all for Hope, who walked seven and fanned five in 6 2/3 innings. Reliever Gene Woods got Joe Kohler on a liner to center for the final out.

Woods, though, was touched for a pair of eight-inning tallies and took the loss. Matt Proctor walked, one of four fouled by Woods, swiped second and took third on a passed ball.

Hillech also drew a bases on balls. He was caught in a rundown, and dropping the nightcap, 9-3, to CVC for Glastonbury High. Coventry High was blanked by CVC rival Vinal Tech, 1-0, while South Windsor was ripped by Newington, 15-4.

Heckuva Match

It has all the earmarks of being a heckuva game. East Catholic journeys to Middletown tonight to face Hartford County Conference (HCC) rival Xavier High at Palmer Field at 7:30. At stake is the Eagles' sole possession of first place in the baseball standings. East is 7-1 in conference play, Xavier 8-1. East topped Northwest Catholic Tuesday, 2-1, while the Falcons were demolishing St. Paul at Palmer that evening, 10-4. East is 14-1 overall, riding a 12-game winning streak. Xavier is 15-1 and has won 10 straight. The Falcons' only loss was to East, 3-0, last on April 23 at Eagle Field. Xavier is defending champ, East last won in 75. Craig Steernagel, 6-0, hurled a six-hitter in the first clash. He will start for East tonight. Junior right-hander Ed McMillan pitched in the first meeting, too. He spun a three-hitter, but two scored in the same inning when East came twice. He will be on the mound for Xavier. He'll be ace vs. ace.

Give Credit

At last Friday's Manchester-Simsbury game, Ken Hill pinch-hit for designated hitter Jim Glushko. The next time around Hill went to hit but Trojan Coach Jack Wilson said "No, that's not the rule." He was right. The umpires, neither of whom had a rule book handy with one having to rush back to his car, found the regulation and interpreted it correctly. The rule states "If a pinch runner or pinch hitter is used for the designated hitter, the DH is terminated at the end of that half inning." The rule upes a two-base hit. The "old" rule, in force a year ago, allowed the pinch hitter to become the DH.

Letter of thanks On the evening of May 12 at the Knights of Columbus Hall we held our 20th annual banquet. The event marked my final year as secretary of the Knights Bowling League. To my surprise, I was presented with many gifts of appreciation. Truly, these gifts were not anticipated in the least. Due to limited time, I was unable to thank all involved and would like to take this time to do so. I would like to thank Bernie Giovino, Roger Maccone, and the staff of the Park Lane. Thanks, too, to Frank and Sonia Sutula of the Suffolk Caterers. Also, much thanks must go to the people who have done most of my work over the past few years, namely, the league secretary, Ken Tomlinson, Jr., and also Sandy Davis, Joanne Frederickson, Sandy Ragna and the incredibly ambitious Nickie Hodge, who also doubled as the league treasurer. An extraordinary thanks must go to my right-hand man, Ellie Newcomb. It was he who oversaw and fulfilled all of the bowlers' wants and needs, he truly ran the league in my absence. There were many others, including the entire group of just about the finest men around: The bowlers of the Knights of Columbus Tenpin Bowling League and especially our master of ceremonies, Fred Nasiffy. Again, many thanks to everyone involved in this very special night, and to all the people who have helped to make these last few years such happy ones. Sincerely, Henry "Hank" Wittke Editor's Note: Wittke received a gold pen and pencil set from the Park Lane, provisions from Suffolk Caterers, and from the league members, a C.B. set and purse.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Oil pipe seal gaskets - A dry, sticky, black deposit on the inside of the oil pan is the tip of the iceberg. If the seal is leaking, it is not burning the fuel-air charge completely. The combustion chamber and the unburned carbon shows up as a thick deposit in the exhaust system. A small amount of fresh oil shows up. All excessive checking of oil during 15-20 minutes of driving. If a sign of unburnt gas and the trouble may be either the carburetor, spark or system, or both.

Mantle and Buddies No Worse for Wear

NEW YORK (UPI) - Mickey Mantle had a rough night. He didn't try to hide it, he admitted it cheerfully, which is completely in keeping with his character. Mantle and his buddies, Billy Martin and White Ford, had been in Winnipeg the night before making an appearance at the YMHA there and none of them had gotten any sleep since the next plane connection they could make to New York was at 4 in the morning.

Standing over another part of the room, Billy Martin, who was fired by the Yankees last July and is supposed to come back to manage them next year, was asked how it felt being out of the game this long. "Oh, God, it's killing me," he said. "You know who has helped me? Mickey Mantle. He knows when I'm depressed. He'll call me up and say 'Let's go fishing,' or something like that. There's another guy like him in the world."

Health Care Workers Ask Help on Contract

HARTFORD (UPI) — The union representing 6,500 state health care workers who have threatened a job action next week has thrown its contract dispute with the state into the hands of Gov. Ella Grasso for the firm being.

Union President Jerome Brown would not make any promises Wednesday concerning future job actions but added the one being considered for next week would be called off if Mrs. Grasso agreed to call the Legislature into special session to act on a contract expected to be hammered out soon by negotiators.

Brown's District 1199 of the Health Care Workers Union will conclude polling its members today on a possible job action — which could include an illegal strike. As of Wednesday, the union leader said members were voting 9-1 in favor of a job action.

However, he added the action would be called off and the union would agree to begin a lengthy mediation process, if the governor agreed to call the special session.

The Legislature, which must approve all state employee union contracts, adjourns June 6, and union leaders are worried contracts that come in after that date won't take effect until they are ratified in next year's session.

Mrs. Grasso had no immediate comment on the union's request, which Brown said was made known to state negotiators OLD SAYBROOK (UPI) — Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., whose district includes the southeastern Connecticut shoreline, says it would be "absolutely ludicrous" to build a bridge across Long Island Sound.

A Dodd aide voiced the congressman's opposition to a proposal to study whether a bridge could be constructed across the sound from Connecticut or Rhode Island to Long Island at a Wednesday night hearing in Old Saybrook.

Dodd said in a statement the proposal should not have even been "dignified with a hearing."

"I think it's absolutely ludicrous for us to be spending $250 to $350 million to build some road across Long Island Sound to transport more automobiles," the 2nd District Democrat said, "especially at a time when we have rising costs of fuel."

It seems to me that whoever is proposing this bridge would be far wiser to go back to the drawing boards and put the money into a good mass transportation system in the Northeast," he said.

Cars now are carried across the sound during summer months by toll ferries sailing from Bridgeport and the Groton-New London area.

Another public hearing on the bridge proposal was held this week in Bridgeport. Hearings are being held to solicit public opinion on possible bridge routes before a feasibility study on the project is begun.

Board Gives Permission For Fund Applications

VERNON — The Board of Education, Monday night, gave the school administration the authority to apply for Title VI funding for special education programs.

According to the grant specifications, top priority must go to unserved students and then to underserved pupils.

Dr. Albert Kerkin Jr., assistant superintendent of schools, said all principals and appropriate supervisors were asked to assess needs and make recommendations.

A sum of $138,255 will be allocated, per child, on a count of 800 or a total of $108,800. In addition, the town's two parochial schools, with a count of 25 students in the special program, are being allocated $3,456.25.

Kerkin said that any carryover from this year will be applied to the salary accounts. He said it possible, additional money will also be used to increase testing help, supportive help and/or learning disability help.

The proposed budget for the coming year allows $80,000 for instructional staff; $27,950; $18,300 for other supportive staff plus $2,000 for students in the work-study program; $750 for an audit; $3,000 for in-service workshops; $5,000 for transportation expenses for students; $450 for travel expenses for staff; $225 for field trips; $1,400 to administer the program; $1,250 for instructional; $200 for textbooks; and $1,050 for equipment.
