

Tape Prompts Extension of Handicapped Program

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

VERNON — After watching a videotape of a small child struggling just to perform the simple task of taking out her sock, the Board of Education approved another year's extension of a program for severely and multi-handicapped children.

Additional personnel serving the needs of these children include the adaptive physical education teacher and classroom aides.

Dr. James D. Strauch, of the University of Connecticut, presented a preliminary evaluation report, on the program, to the board.

Dr. Strauch said that the first year of the program's operation has received a favorable report from the state Department of Education, the Bureau of Pupil Personnel and Special Education Services.

They said that future plans for the program include expanding the number of students, opening up the program for visitations by other towns and agencies, dissemination of pertinent information and materials, and providing a greater emphasis on the part of the parents.

Soil Stewardship Noted Next Week

VERNON — Soil Stewardship observance, which has its origins more than 1,500 years ago will be celebrated in Connecticut and throughout the United States and its territories on May 20 to 27, according to an announcement by Virginia Gignas, chairwoman, Tolland County Soil and Water Conservation District.

The theme for the 1979 celebration is "Interdependence," a concept endorsed by President Carter in his forward to the descriptive Soil Stewardship Week booklet.

Americans have always understood the value of working together to achieve common goals, President Carter said. "We have learned that unity of purpose and mutual dependence are essential to our growth as a society of self-governing people."

Opinion

Courts Run Town, Not Citizens

On April 17, the citizens of Manchester, by a three-to-one margin voted to discontinue participation in the Community Development Block Grant program for two years.

It was the vote and the voice of the people. Thursday, however, a federal judge issued an injunction barring the town's withdrawal from the program and has called for a full trial on the matter.

We disagree with the court's action.

We disagree on the basis of process.

One of the primary foundations of this country is the vote of the people.

They do have a right to express their opinion on issues and we believe that opinion, when expressed through a ballot, is valid.

We interpret the decision rendered by Judge M. Joseph Blumenfeld of the U.S. District Court as violating and discriminating against the rights of the people.

They have expressed their opinion through proper channels. They spoke and believed the question was settled.

Articulation + perception + understanding + education + faith + love equals 0.

One may be a silver-tongued orator. Or he may be a fortune teller sought out by thousands. He may be wise and learned and trusting. But if his life and actions are not motivated and invigorated by love for God and man, all these things add up to nothing for him. That does not mean his life may not count much for others. On the contrary, he may do great good for them. But only through love can a person experience within himself the infinity and eternity for which God created him.

Henry K - Open To Women Reporters

WASHINGTON - Henry Kissinger's well-cultivated reputation for single-handedly achieving impossible feats of diplomatic legerdemain earned him the sobriquet "Super K."

Whether the pudgy, bespectacled secretary of state with the burlesque, comic German accent deserved comparison with Superman is still a matter of conjecture. But one thing has been made clear from secret documents: Like the comic-strip hero, Kissinger was a pushover the Lois Lanes of the world. Whether from high hopes or low male chauvinism, Kissinger was repeatedly caught off guard by female journalists.

A year after he claimed to have been "angushed" over the Christmas-1972 bombing of Hanoi, he made the damaging admission to Flora Lewis of The New York Times that he had actually wanted to bomb even more, but "the president wouldn't let me."

Another staff reporter who outwitted the urban professor was Sally Quinn of The Washington Post. She would bump into him at Washington parties and after a few minutes of wily, womanly buttering up, Kissinger would be lulled into saying something ridiculous - which would promptly appear in the Post to the secretary's discomfort.

Kissinger eventually grew gun-shy of Quinn, and firmly refused her request for an "in-depth" interview.

"I wouldn't let Sally Quinn interview me," he confided to a foreign diplomat in 1976. "She is vicious. I don't know anyone who has survived being interviewed by her. I know her socially, but I don't talk to her."

Alas for Dr. K., he had already learned to his sorrow the perils of a clever woman reporter - Orleana Fallaci. He later ruefully described the taped interview he gave the Italian journalist in 1972 as the "stupidest thing" he had ever done.

While this self-assessment may be open to question, there's no doubt the Fallaci interview, with its "lone cowboy" reference, didn't exactly enhance Kissinger's reputation, either among world leaders or the public at large.

Although he was aware of Fallaci's reputation as a tough interviewer - even Quinn warned him - Kissinger

Carter's Uphill Struggle

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With cannons to the right of him and cannons to the left of him, President Carter apparently believes a march down the middle will serve him in good stead in his coming battle for reelection.

But it will be an uphill struggle and different from his earlier triumph in 1976 when he was "Jimmy Who," an upstart invading the presidential race as virtually an unknown.

He is a different kind of politician than Democratic Party bigwigs have known in the past, and they apparently are still unreconciled. Party loyalty is a thing of the past. Each segment is seeking its own enhancement and none is prepared to rally around the president.

The name of the game is the White House. But even with their own man in the Oval Office, dissatisfaction is rampant. Clearly, California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is ready to go for the prize. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is waiting in the wings. Brown makes no bones about the fact that he is running. He also believes he has more answers, and more "vision" than Carter.

Kennedy has repeatedly said that he expects the president "to be renominated and re-elected." But he has always sidestepped chances to take a Sherman-like irrevocable position on the subject.

And Kennedy has left no opportunity to publicly lash Carter on his domestic policies.

Carter has alienated many elements of his own party because they have wanted to hold his feet to the fire on his unredeemed campaign promises. No other president in recent times has been held more accountable for his campaign statements.

But it is a different world, and there remains a great lack of trust in public leaders. Instant communications and long memories are what all politicians face today. The president, who ran on an anti-Washington platform, also is being faulted by the old pros for his lack of Washington experience, which they choose to call leadership.

He is also stymied by a lack of effective leaders - that is party lieutenants on Capitol Hill - who will go to the well for him. From time to time, they do him a favor, but that is about all. They are not rubber stamps. But they are also not adept in rounding up votes as some of their more eminent predecessors.

Carter has a few cards up his sleeve. He has, at least for now, the party machinery which basically works for the incumbent. Then there is the incumbency itself and all of the offerings that emanate from it.

The technique of playing Santa Claus on the campaign trail on the part of a president was blatant in President Ford's election campaign, and Carter has torn a few pages out of the book.

On the other side of the fence, Carter is being pounded by several Republican presidential aspirants. And as Carter knows only too well, it's easier to be the attack than to have to defend the crown.

While presidential politics saturate the air waves and fill the newspapers, there is time for all the candidates to make their individual impressions on a more questioning society.

In June, Carter has foreign travels to Vienna to meet Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and then to Tokyo for the Economic Summit. These trips may enhance his stature as a world leader.

But at home, the gasoline shortage and the prices at the grocery will be besetting the consumer, who is also the voter.

Editorial: Drinking Age In Question

Three boys — two seniors and a junior — leave Manchester High School at the close of third period. They pile into an old, dented wreck, and peel out of the student parking lot, leaving behind a cloud of dense black smoke.

The boys reach into their pockets as the car roars up Brookfield Street. Each produces two dollars and some change — just enough for a six-pack of beer apiece.

They are not out of the ordinary. Students do drink during school hours. This article is about what should be done about high school drinking, rather than what should not be done. This article is about the drinking age, and why it should continue to be set at eighteen years.

The story outlined previously does little to support the position this editorial takes. However, its purpose is not self-defeating. Its effect should not be one of shock, but one of enlightenment to the reality of a situation.

Some of Burnett's effective technical trick included the beautiful staging of a sunrise through a window, some good light fades to produce a rainy-day feeling, and nice, scratchy 1940's music played between scenes. Special recognition for behind-the-scenes work is due to Dwight Hahn's lighting crew, Randlee Trubits' sets crew, and Bob McNally's sound crew.

The second act of the play familiarizes us with several new characters. Clayton Evans and his wife Rena Leslie, two actors doing summer stock in the area, are played by Martin Simon and Patty Cone, respectively. The dashing Simon is impressive in his bit part, though he tends to overplay comedy for the sake of a much needed extra laugh.

S'n B Play Reviewed; Good Acting, Poor Plot

It is a disappointing shame to see as fine a high school theatre group as Sock 'n Buskin pouring its limitless energies into a play like "George Washington Slept Here," written in 1959 by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart. The play, though commendably put forth by the one hundred odd member group, has little thematic statement, an unexciting plot line, and humor that dies along with Franklin Delano Roosevelt and swooning girls.

The story centers around a family from New York. The Fuller family buys a broken down Pennsylvania farmhouse with the idea in mind that George Washington once slept there. The city girl lady of the house, Annabelle Fuller, is immediately disenchanted by its dust and shab, but Madge, the Fuller's daughter, falls in the love with its antique charm.

MHS Wins National Awards

Last year at about this time Manchester High School was notified that three of its students had won 3-D Medal awards. The students were Mark Meridy, Jeff Thornton, and Aaron Horwitz. They had received awards in the National Phase of the Scholastic Art Awards Competition for their 3-D projects made in Mr. Jonathan T. Hewey's metalworking class.

Well, Mr. Hewey's classes have done it again. The High School received notification last week that three of its students had won awards in the National Competition again this year. They are Senior Dana Gilbert, and juniors Tim O'Brien and Tim McLaughlin.

The proposal by MAP Associates would bring a 10-acre development to South Windsor and Manchester. Building in South Windsor can only be accomplished if the zoning is approved. Grady Tucker of Washington, D.C., speaker for the MAP Associates, said the mall would pay about $337,000 in taxes over the next five years.

At the last meeting of the senior commencement committee, details for our senior prom were discussed. A band named Clockwork had previously been chosen. It is an excellent band which has been playing locally for a few years. The prom will be held at the Red Coach Grille on June 8 from 8:00 to 12:00 and will be followed by the dance at MHS from 1:00 to 4:00.

Newton Fuller is played most admirably by John Gibault. Mr. Gibault is truly likeable and portrays his character with the utmost sincerity, time after time turning genuinely dull situations into lively ones. Annabelle is played with poise and concentration by Sara Eiman. She brings herself out of the script's weak moments with ease. However, Miss Eiman sometimes oversteers her limit in an attempt to make funny an anachronous play. Comedy, even the oldest of it, should be played straight.

Elizabeth Busky as Madge, and Jim Frenetta, as her boyfriend Steve, are entertaining in their supporting roles. Miss Busky is completely genuine in the sweetness she pours into her character, and Frenetta uses this to his advantage in shaping the easygoing, ineffectual character of Steve.

Members of the Future Secretaries of America (F.S.A.) enjoyed a super experience recently while visiting various offices in Manchester. Students were given work as secretaries in various business offices, such as law firms, doctors' offices, and in educational establishments. This not only gave the F.S.A. members a "hands on" experience, but also provided a feel for the career itself. Surely after F.S.A.'s special day, students had a better idea of what type of office in which they would like to work.

HSW Notes

It's campaign time again. Five juniors — Mark Bossidy, Hank Vinick, Glenn Eagleson, LeeAnn Stauffer and Jeff Daigle are jostling for position in the race for Student Assembly president. Posters already have begun to decorate MHS's halls. It is amazing the amount of effort put into the capturing of the trying, thankless job of SA president.

Truck Limits Challenged

SOUTH WINDSOR — Mitchell Trucking Company, Inc. of South Windsor is appealing the town's decision to restrict heavy truck traffic over the Graham Road bridge, claiming the town failed to conduct any hearing or meeting.

Another resident of the area said more than 100 trucks, some heavy trash haulers, were counted last Saturday. Trucking began as early as 6:30 a.m. according to the resident. Mrs. Davis said that area residents have asked for help in curtailing the problem of speeders in the area for the past three years, and the problem of trucks now using the roadways had complicated the problem to the point that residents were afraid for the safety of the more than 60 children living in the area.

Residents of the Graham Road area have complained to the Town Council that hundreds of trucks are using Graham Road. Citizens of that area said they feared for the safety of their children, as "one truck after another pounded along the narrow road."

Buckland Rezoning Opposed

SOUTH WINDSOR — Some 130 residents opposed the proposed zoning change that would bring a portion of the Buckland Commons Shopping Mall to South Windsor, during a three-hour public hearing on the matter this week.

Residents opposed to the zoning change said the mall would threaten their safety and lower their property values by generating traffic which would clog town roads. The financial benefits that it would bring, they argued, are far outweighed by the danger to the area.

The proposal by MAP Associates would bring a 10-acre development to South Windsor and Manchester. Building in South Windsor can only be accomplished if the zoning is approved.

Recognition and congratulations are certainly due to these students and their teacher for their excellent job in continuing a fine record in the National Scholastic Art Awards Competition, which is certainly a credit to our school — Grace Jaworski.

At the last meeting of the senior commencement committee, details for our senior prom were discussed. A band named Clockwork had previously been chosen. It is an excellent band which has been playing locally for a few years. The prom will be held at the Red Coach Grille on June 8 from 8:00 to 12:00 and will be followed by the dance at MHS from 1:00 to 4:00.

That's Entertainment Hollywood Aiming For Young Folks

By ALLEN M. WIDEM

It's just about the half-way mark in 1979 and all's well in Hollywood. The new crop of the so-called sci-fie genre is offering such titles as "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," "Battistar Galactica," "Star Trek: The Motion Picture," whatever.

The intent, if one studies the "trend" manifested by Hollywood, is to appeal with grandiose showmanship to the young folks: in Hollywood parlance, that's generally applicable to the Under-25 crowds.

The new crop of the sci-fie genre is as good as what has gone before. Obviously, the special effects are much improved. There is no built-in lesson of enduring quality to the Under-25 crowd — over and above Star Wars will best the Deers of Dark Deeds.

Some folks in Hollywood call this escapism entertainment. And there are the more concerned across America all too quick to ask why Hollywood, yes, Hollywood, cannot bring it upon itself to provide greater insight into what life, life in these concluding years of the 20th Century, is really all about.

It is predictable, but true, that the more concerned among Hollywood's decision-makers will offer, in rebuttal, that not every Walt Disney Studios movie brings out people the way all Disney products do.

The film buff, along with Hollywood's decision-makers, will insist that the screen's more serious output strives to inform as well as to entertain, and yet, the very economics of the movie-making process demands more escapism than any other component in story-structuring.

Mike Sammet brought smiles to a pre-war World I American and Irving Thalberg and Louis B. Mayer gave the very essence of a never-never land in MGM's Perfidious War II attractions.

The trouble with this argument, of course, is that, to all extent and purposes, the office-pattern of television, depending on the proffered project, Hollywood studios no longer maintain a writer/actor combines. Now when a studio decides to "go" with a project, the creative components are hired, or, as Show Biz say it, "packaged."

Twenty-five years ago and more Hollywood was churning out hundreds upon hundreds of motion pictures. The figure nowadays is under 150 (a figure encompassing major studio, California-based product). It goes without saying that there are a lot of bucks involved in each of the 150.

We venture to say that a major film budget could carry all house expenses for a studio's fiscal year once upon a time. And it is obvious, so many at all, that not too many film-makers can be so willingly glib on an untried story-line far from the comfortable setting of escapist.

Red Sox Back on Top

BOSTON (UPI) — Maybe Kiko Garcia and Eddie Murray would be better running around the track at Fenway than the baseball diamond. At least they could finish what they started.

The Orioles, who fell out of first place in the see-saw American League race, trailed 3-2 in the sixth when Murray slipped rounding third and was nailed. Garcia then killed a seventh inning rally trying to go from first to third on a hopper through the hole in the infield.

Softball
Two runs in the eighth inning out-did one at Acadia Restaurant night on Tuesday night at Cheney.

College Ball in RSox Shadow

BOSTON (UPI) — Spring in New England marks the dawn of a new Red Sox baseball season and the unwinding of the grueling and seemingly interminable hockey and basketball schedules.

For every Jim Beattie and Pete Broberg who escape the cold climates to make it to the warm weather spring training, there are the numerous others counting the days to summer vacation and playing the game for fun, as it should be played.

But the excitement of football and basketball doesn't seem to carry on to college baseball. There just don't seem to be the immediate importance or the fan interest.

Against this somewhat depressing backdrop looms the Brandeis baseball team, an outfit of athletes-scholars which has compiled an impressive 24-2 mark this spring.

Trio Signed
ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills have signed three players as free agents, including a former NFL star.

Draftee Arrives
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Chuck Correal, an eighth-round draft pick of the Philadelphia Eagles, became the team's first draftee to arrive at terms by signing a series of three one-year contracts, it was announced Wednesday.

Strong Pleas Forestall Bill on Abortion Curbs

HARTFORD (UPI) — An attempt to make it more difficult for a pregnant girl to get an abortion by requiring permission of a probate judge was buried Thursday under an emotional avalanche. House members, who coaxed the final 80-50 vote against the bill, told their colleagues it wasn't fair to burden the young and pregnant with yet another problem. "We're putting a piece of punitive legislation on the books for a woman," said Rep. Naomi Otterness, D-Lebanon. She added the original proposal requiring notification of the girl's parents should apply to the father, too. "This legislation is essentially

House Passes Measure To Curb Public Smoking

HARTFORD (UPI) — Puffing on a cigarette in a restaurant, supermarket aisle or nervously drawing on a cigarette while waiting to see a dentist, soon might be illegal in Connecticut. After thrashing over the right to smoke vs. the right to breathe clean air in the House passed through a proposal Thursday to ban, in most cases smoking in restaurants, hospitals, food stores, public buildings and waiting rooms. The bill itself is "absurd," said Rep. John DeMerrell, R-Essex. "I think it's gone well beyond the

UConn Surveys Damage

STORRS (UPI) — University of Connecticut officials think the film "Animal House" may have had an influence on students who went on a rampage this week and caused record property damage on campus. Officials were still trying Thursday to determine the exact extent of the damage. But Frederick Adams, vice president for student affairs and services, said it was "extensive." In an apparent response to the end of the exams, students ransacked the rural campus Tuesday and Wednesday smashing windows, setting bonfires of books, ripping up furniture and rags and scattering paper and garbage everywhere. Most of the damage was in the area

COVENTRY — A sewer facilities plan, referred by the Water Pollution Control Authority, has been approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The plan presented was a revised one. A year ago the commission rejected a proposal that called for sewer installations in the lake area, with some extension into North Coventry. The revised plan reduces some capacity in the area of the lake but

Setback Variance Granted

COVENTRY — A request for a setback variance, made by the town's Cemetery Commission, has been granted by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The request was made to allow gravesites two feet from the property line. It was rejected last month because the commission couldn't prove hardship. The Cemetery Commission is in the process of developing some three- and one-half acres of town-owned land located on Route 31, across from the landfill area.

Unique... In Every Detail

Here is a four bedroom home with one of the most unique floor plans ever seen. Yet it is as practical as it is distinctively and charmingly different.

A flat drawing cannot hope to do justice to its exterior distinction. Its angled wings, distinguished drive thru carport with those beautiful twin arches, the lovely rear balcony — all should be seen to be truly appreciated. Yet one can easily imagine the beauty of those sumptuous planters, the mission tile mansard roof and the unique gallery window.

The huge, sunken family room massively dominates the central area of this home — its fabulous fireplace, a dramatic focal point. Note, too, those sliding glass doors opening to the rear outdoor living area beneath the balcony. And see that delightfully well equipped wet bar.

The left-hand wing includes a formal living room, well equipped kitchen with a big L-shaped work area, beautiful dining room with so much expanse of glass that meals here are delightfully at fresco in mood, plus a half bath and an extremely well-outfitted utility room, conveniently designed to serve also as a rear entry.

Across the house are three first-floor bedrooms and a full second floor. Truly imaginative planning makes this area one of the most distinguished features of this most distinguished house. Note that beautiful fireplace, the lovely, long private balcony, the huge dressing area and separate walk-in wardrobe, and that dream-bathroom, complete with Roman tub.

Low Energy Home Will Be Shown

MANCHESTER — A new addition was made to the ERA Lescapance Agency, 457 Center St., Wednesday, when a new modular home was erected.

The New England Homes Energy Saver Modular Home will soon be ready for display at the agency's location.

The home uses a new method of construction proven by U.S. government agencies.

The homes have proven to save up to 55 percent on heating costs.

The home also offers substantial savings in construction costs.

Plan Interiors Wisely

As with the overall house design, plan the interior arrangements to insure your family's comfort and satisfaction. There are, however, many ways to economize.

Make rooms multipurpose as well as practical. For example, combine family room and kitchen or family room and dining room.

A large "activity room" can replace the formal living room and den.

Large openings between rooms make small areas functionally larger.

If room dimensions conform to standard rug sizes, carpet widths, or resilient flooring sizes, you can save a great deal when furnishing and finishing.

Limit hallway space to what is necessary for good traffic circulation.

Hallways that include built-in storage and laundry equipment areas become multipurpose.

'Low-Calorie' Houses Have Growing Appeal

ELAINE POVICH SPRINGFIELD, Va. (UPI) — "Low-calorie" homes — ones that gobble less fuel in a year than similar homes do in a month — are selling faster than diet cola in this affluent Washington suburb.

Builder Harry Hart, who constructed the first "local" homes as an experiment and would sell, can't believe it. "We're so overwhelmed with demand," he said. "You can't drop your hand to your side but the phone will ring. We have 300 people on the list for callbacks."

At first glance, the "local" homes — which sell for a base price of $90,000, typical for the region — look like other suburban homes. They come in one- or two-story versions, with or without garages, and have angular lines, sun decks, dark wood facades and sloping roofs.

The real energy-saving devices in the homes are not readily visible — all walls are double insulated. "There's more insulation in these walls than most houses have in the ceiling," Hart said.

Wayne Shick, the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign architecture professor who designed the homes, said they are insulated "to the level we call super-insulation."

Shick said the homes are designed to keep the air warm by people, appliances and lights inside, even when there is no sunshine.

"Five of the six bought this house seldom require heat when the outdoor temperature is warmer than 50 degrees, due to internal heat gain," he said. "The super-insulation can carry you through the rainy days."

On a crisp, sunny spring day, when outdoor activity required a jacket, open windows were observed in several of the homes. "They sometimes just get too hot inside," Hart said.

In the summer, when it's hot and sticky in Virginia, Hart said the homes hold cooled air inside as well. He said the homeowners spent about as much on electricity in the winter months (about $40 a month) as they did in the summer (about $43 a month), indicating air conditioners didn't run that much.

Another problem is freezing pipes in the winter, Hart said. Shick recommends insulating behind the pipes, but not on the inside side, so the pipes are exposed to warm air. Hart said most of his owners bought the homes — six have been completed, another three are under construction — for reasons other than energy-saving.

"I've got a lot of buyers who are believers now," he said. "And when you get a believer, they are really a believer."

How to Do It: Fix-Up Tips

Painting Brick

Q I own an older brick house and although the brickwork is still in good condition the structure is of a style I think would look better painted. But my wife says no. Can you help us decide? F.M., New York.

A This question comes up for discussion often. I'm inclined to agree with your wife. I, too, don't like painted brickwork, and painted masonry, in fact. Paint on masonry, also brickwork, tends to weather rather rapidly, resulting in a grayish, patchy look that's not pleasing to the eye. You can give some old brickwork a freshened appearance by coating it with a masonry sealer, which is a colorless liquid similar to clear varnish.

Softening Putty

Q Several windows in my home need to be repainted. But how do I effectively soften old putty so that it can be removed easily, without damaging the wood? Can I use my propane torch? E.W., Pa.

A Yes, you can use the torch with the standard head, nozzle, cut one inch from the fire hazard in mind. It's best to remove the sash from the frame. One slow pass of the torch flame along the putty line usually does it. Knife out the softened putty immediately, also point on the frame that is softened; you'll have to repaint anyway. If the first pass doesn't get all the old putty, make a second sweep of the flame, but be sure to keep it moving fast enough to prevent charring of the wood, or breakage of the glass pane.

Bathroom Walls

Q Can I paint my bathroom floor to ceiling on four walls and from tile to ceiling over the shower stall. The bath is small; 3 feet wide and only 3 feet long, with an 8-foot ceiling. Now I'm told that the paper will make a small room look even smaller and will deteriorate quickly. What do you say? Mrs. J.N.C., Lincoln, Neb.

A I tend to agree with your advisers — especially where a small figured, painted brickwork, but this is not to say that paper should not be used. Judging from the size of the room, I think it would be better to paper only the walls above the shower, or perhaps paper just one wall.

Your wall-coverings dealer will recommend the type of coating (paper or fabric to use. Wash, rinse and dry the walls thoroughly before you apply it.

Painting Tubs

Q Can I paint my basement laundry tubs, inside and out? If I can, what paint should I use? M.P., New York.

A You can paint them, but wouldn't a thorough cleaning do just as well? Laundry tubs are virtually impregnated with soapy residues, and preparing them for painting will take some cleaning — repeated scrubbing with a strong detergent solution. If you must paint, do a really thorough cleaning job first. Otherwise, there's no way. Epoxy enamel is the only paint you can expect to last under such adverse conditions, and I'd recommend the aerosol type. Wear rubber gloves while cleaning and a painter's respirator while spraying, and be sure to turn off all gas pilot lights (furnace, water heater, dryer), first. ## Mortgage Rates Slow Production

WASHINGTON — A projected 20 percent decline in housing production and high mortgage interest rates will be the main topics of discussion when home builders meet there this month to set policy and legislative goals for the 117,000-member National Association of Home Builders.

Over 1,500 builders from across the country will attend the six-day NAHB Spring Board of Directors Meeting at the Washington Hilton Hotel, beginning Thursday, May 17.

"Inflation and rising mortgage interest rates threaten to cut new housing construction to about 1.6 million units this year, down from 2 million units last year," said NAHB President Vondal S. Gravelle of Birmingham, Ala.

"Mortgage interest rates approaching 11 percent nationally have squeezed millions of families with incomes between $15,000 and $24,000 out of the housing market," Gravelle said.

Other concerns of NAHB include still rampant inflation which continues to drive up the costs of building materials.

Simple Adjustments Cut Water Usage

FRANKLIN PARK, Ill. (UPI) — The average family could cut water consumption by up to 30 percent by making a few adjustments on plumbing fixtures and following simple conservation measures.

That's the opinion of Charles Allen, a plumbing equipment manufacturer in the Chicago suburb of Franklin Park.

"There's a lot of room for savings because we use excessive amounts," Allen said in an interview. "All it takes is some public awareness."

Allen, who is president of Sloan Valve Co., said the same measures that save a precious resource also save money.

He said water could become a "critical problem" in the future in some areas of the country — including Arizona, California and parts of the Pacific Northwest — because of either short supplies or inadequate treatment facilities. He said this could mean higher water prices for consumers.

Generally, the price of water hasn't gone up as drastically as it might not be as visual to the American public as the fuel crisis, and there is not much concern," he said.

"For instance, some estimates say if our facilities remain stable by the year 2000, our use of water will exceed our ability to supply it."

Allen said a 1976 study showed a household with one toilet, two faucets and one shower could cut 66 gallons of water consumption by 25 percent by using $7.58 of plumbing equipment.

Allen recommended other conservation measures:

- Keep a bottle of drinking water in the refrigerator so you don't have to let the tap run until the water is cold.
- Turn the water off while shaving and brushing teeth; shaving with a running faucet uses about 20 gallons.
- Stopper the sink or use a dishpan when washing dishes; you could save 30 gallons per meal.
- Fix dripping faucets. Check for running toilets or toilets with leaky float valves — a leaky valve can waste 70,000 gallons a year.
- Determine if the valve is leaking; he said, put one or two food coloring tablets in the toilet tank. If there is a leak, he said, you will usually see a quick color change in the water.

For example, new faucets, toilets and showerheads are designed to use less water than older ones, and plumbing equipment manufacturers have helped local authorities
