Sound of 'Taps' Ends Holiday Observance

MANCHESTER — Taps sounded from near the Civil War monument in Center Park and echoed from the hill a few hundred yards south to end Manchester's observance Monday of Memorial Day and to honor again Americans who have died in the military service of their country.

The wreaths have been placed, the speeches had been made, and the assembled citizens quietly walked out of the park, each to pursue his busy life after a brief pause to reflect on the sacrifice of others and on the civil gifts they fought to preserve.

As always veterans' organizations played the major role in the observations, marching in the parade along with policemen and fire fighters, and civil organizations.

The route and routines are familiar and seem to gain dignity with repetition.

Robert Digan, director of the Youth Service Center, was the principal speaker. Drawing from the inscription on the monument in Arlington National Cemetery, Digan based his talk on "obedience to duty."

Listing some of the civil problems that face the nation, Digan said the issues require of Americans a willingness to make the same commitment that "our honored dead made, in simple obedience to duty."

Following is the text of Digan's address: For more than 100 years, Americans have paused on Memorial Day to honor those who have died in our nation's wars.

In Arlington National Cemetery there is a monument which carries the following inscription for all American casualties of war.

"Not for fame or reward
Not for place or for rank
Not lured by ambition
Or goaded by necessity
But in simple
Obedience to duty
As they understood it
These men suffered all, sacrificed all
Dared all — and died.
If we reflect on this message for a moment we see that the key phrase seems to be, "in simple obedience to duty." How inspiring for us to know that among us are people who so loved their country, and so loved its principles of freedom and justice that "in simple obedience to duty" they gave their lives so we could be free.

Our country has prided itself on such words as freedom and justice. It is only barely that words like duty, obedience and responsibility are heard today. There is no "civil responsibilities union" or such a thing as telling a wrongdoer his duties instead of his rights. Yet I choose to believe that responsibility is not a forgotten word for most Americans. I certainly choose in the conviction that love of country, love of neighbor, and love of God, all require simple obedience to duty and though we all know it, we are not always comfortable about saying it.

As a man who has spent his entire adult life working with the youth of this state I tend to view most things from a perspective that youth might take.

Hopefully, they too are learning that "obedience to duty" is a basic part of our free society. I sometimes wonder if we as adults are not misleading youth into believing that all that counts in life are materialistic and social accomplishments. To be a person, to stand secure, in the dignity of one's own humanity, before all men, is more important than all the money in the world, more important than all the power and all the glory man has created. As the inscription says, "not for fame or reward, not for place or for rank."

Will our young people learn from our example, that we honor those who gave their all for our freedom, because we truly believe in the values and principles which state that all men are created equal and have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We must practice principles in our relationships with everyone with whom we come in contact. Martin Luther King said about basic human rights, "If there are not eternal truths and values that a man is willing to live fully and die for, if necessary, he is already read whatever his age."

The question each of us must ask then, is, how much am I willing to suffer for the achievement of justice for all, whatever the obstacles, whatever the personal cost? Will everyone enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness because of my contribution to our way of life?

Answering such questions affirmatively and generously is what made each one of our honored dead a source of great pride and example to all of us. You may say, "I am only one person and the problem is so enormous." But each individual we honor today was only one person, yet they affected all of us millions of Americans.

Today in our great land we must recognize that the American Dream is far from a reality for every citizen. Eighty percent of our people cannot use their legal system to obtain simple justice, because the system has become so bulky, unwieldy, costly and unavailable to poverty level people and uneducated Americans. It is estimated that 5 percent of our population are unable to read, write or communicate above a 1st or 2nd grade level. As each of us knows, the number of people unemployed, and unemployable is staggering and each of them is denied the right to pursue happiness or to be hopeful for the future. The right to life is seriously minimized by a society that designs roads and cars which kill thousands annually. Does liberty mean the right to drink at 18 or the right to drink responsibly at any age. Our own community is being challenged at this very time to find a method of insuring that every American citizen has the right to adequate housing here or anywhere.

All of these issues require our attention, our effort and our willingness to make the same type of commitment that our honored dead made, "in simple obedience to duty."

There is another quote frequently cited on Memorial Day and it is that of President Abraham Lincoln. "So that these honored dead shall not have died in vain."

What we mean, I think, was that our honored defenders would have died in vain, if we had let them die in battle, while we live safely on in peace, and then proceeded to lose sight of the American principles and values... if we had turned to aggression for its own sake; if we had become immobile or timid; if we had contented ourselves with the worship of the past, or with self seeking. They would have died in vain if we had taken any of these courses, just as if we had confined our respect for their memory to strewing flowers on their graves on Memorial Day. Fortunately, each successive generation has added meaning to the sacrifice of America's earlier defenders by making its own sacrifices. Each has tried to build a world better than that of the past. Let all of us in Manchester be sure that America remains one nation under God, with liberty and justice for all, and our honored dead shall not have died in vain.

Injunction In CD Case Is Appealed

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town has decided to appeal the temporary injunction issued in the Community Development court case.

The appeal, which was filed in Hartford's U.S. District Court, will be heard in the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

The case was triggered by the April 17 vote by town residents to withdraw from the Community Development program. That decision then was appealed by three low-income residents in town.

Blumenfeld presided at a hearing about whether or not to grant a temporary injunction, and he did grant the injunction 11 days ago. This prevents the town from withdrawing from the Community Development program until a hearing on the merits of the case and a requested permanent injunction is heard.

The attorneys for both sides had met Friday with Blumenfeld to set a schedule for proceeding with that hearing.

The town, however, has decided to challenge the temporary injunction before proceeding with the hearing. The appeal probably voids the time schedule, which had set an Aug. 1 date for a pre-trial hearing.

"We have to take one thing at a time and exercise our rights on every level," Barry said of the town's decision to appeal.

William Shea, assistant town attorney, said, "The allegations and the facts that came out in the hearing are insufficient to put Manchester on trial for discrimination."

Raymond Noriko, one of the attorneys who represents the three low-income residents, said his clients now can consider a cross appeal. In granting the injunction, Blumenfeld agreed with only one of four reasons mentioned by the plaintiffs. They now can consider a cross appeal of the three reasons that the judge rejected, Noriko said.

Hardships Seen If Phase-In Ends

MANCHESTER — A temporary injunction to prevent continuation of the town's phase-in would create more hardship than benefit, according to a brief filed by the town.

Failure to grant the injunction, however, could lead to many suits against the town, the brief filed by the plaintiffs said.

The plaintiffs have challenged the town's adoption of the revaluation phase-in, which permits a community to spread the increases in assessments resulting from a revaluation over five years.

Attorney William Shea, who represents the town, and attorney John LaBelle Sr., who represents the plaintiffs, will present final arguments in the case this afternoon.

Both attorneys submitted their briefs over the weekend to Judge Brian O'Neill. O'Neill will preside at this afternoon's final arguments. After reviewing the briefs and listening to the arguments, he will make a decision on the requested temporary injunction.

If an injunction is granted, it would prohibit the town from using the phase-in to calculate tax bills for the upcoming fiscal year. Elimination of the phase-in generally would result in higher tax bills for residential properties and lower ones for commercial, industrial and personal properties.

"An injunction as requested by the plaintiffs would grant to the plaintiffs an insignificant benefit when contrasted with the hardships it would impose upon the defendants and others," Shea wrote in his brief. Town officials said much recalculation work would be required if the phase-in is dropped.

LaBelle represents eight property owners, most of whom own commercial property in town. In his brief, LaBelle said that his clients are not the only residents who do not benefit from phase-in.

"Many other taxpayers in the Town of Manchester will be involved and injured if the deferred assessment is held to be illegal," he wrote. Because of this, the injunction should be granted if there is some question about the phase-in's legality.

Failure to grant the injunction "could generate a multiplicity of suits if the only remedy that the public has is to bring an action to seek recovery of excess taxes paid," he wrote.

Officials Clash On 'Doomed' Jet

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two federal agencies dispute whether the victims of the nation's worst air disaster were doomed from the moment a tiny bolt snapped on takeoff, causing a wing engine to break away from the DC-10 jumbo jet.

Officials of the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board disagreed Monday whether the American Airlines DC-10 could have flown on to an emergency landing at O'Hare International Airport.

Medical examiners Monday also indicated the death toll from Friday's crash may rise past the current count of 273. The bodies of an infant and a small child not on the passenger list may have been among the victims.

Frank's Church

One of Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra's favorite projects before her death in a plane crash was the St. Louis Catholic Church in Palm Springs, Calif.

The mother of Frank Sinatra contributed to the church's construction and broke ground when building began. The church still had a $150,000 mortgage though — until Sunday night when her son burned it.

Sinatra sponsored a golf tournament during the weekend which raised enough money to pay it off. The church's pastor joined the burning ceremony, along with Sinatra's wife Barbara and six other golfers-contributors as Ed McMahon and Sammy Davis Jr.

Elton's Challenge

Elton John, still riding a wave of euphoria over the enthusiastic reception he's been given in the Soviet Union, says he hopes his tour will open the door for other rock stars.

And the British rocker, who opened last week in Leningrad and continued his concert tour Sunday in Moscow, says financial concerns seem to be the major stumbling block. Says he, of the Soviet scene, "It is not a money-making affair. That's probably why more (rock stars) haven't come over."

But he warns money-hungry colleagues that more than money is at stake — he says, "After while, you start running out of challenges. And once you run out of challenges as a musician, you might as well give up."

Grace Floats

It was supposed to be a quiet vacation on the Caribbean island of St. Thomas on Friday when Grace Jones, but those plans reckoned without carnival.

She just couldn't stay out of it, so she talked the management of the Virgin Island Hotel at which she was staying into sponsoring a float, complete with a sound system playing her music.

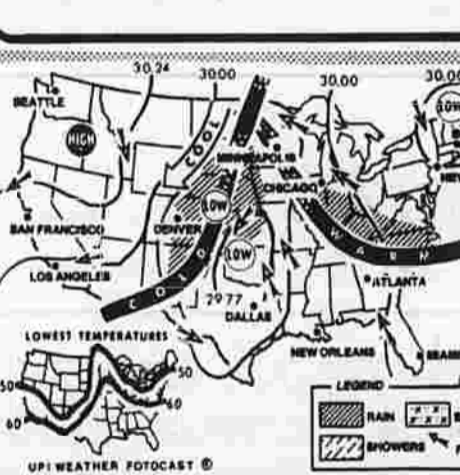

Grace rode the float — the first ever entered by an American in the carnival day parade — to a third-prize victory.

Quote of the Day

University of Illinois sport psychologist Rainer Martens, addressing the annual meeting of the Boys' Clubs of America in St. Louis and suggesting that bananas, rather than trophies and medals, be awarded to young people in organized athletics: "If you leave a banana on a mantle three or four days, you know what'll happen to it. You're best off to eat the banana when you get it. That's my message."

CRCOG Ponders Buckland Review

MANCHESTER — The Capitol Region Council of Governments will consider an in-depth study of the proposed Buckland Commons project.

Dana Hanson, executive director of CRCOG, said such a study is unusual, but it is being considered because of a request from the CRCOG Policy Board.

He attributed the request to concern about overdevelopment of the area for commercial use. Buckland Commons would include a huge shopping mall and a residential area. There have been two new shopping malls in the general area in recent years — one in West Hartford and one in Enfield.

Hanson said the CRCOG study would investigate how much of a market there is in the region and whether it would support a third large mall.

The study also would review land use and consumer needs in the region, he said. The cost of the study would be $10,000, and that money would have to be found from another source before CRCOG could begin the study.

The CRCOG Executive Committee will meet in about two weeks to consider the requested study, Hanson said.

Area Health Agency OKs Hospital Study

MANCHESTER — Manchester Memorial Hospital has received approval from the Health Systems Agency of North Central Connecticut for a proposed $250,000 preliminary planning study.

The proposal must now go to the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care. The hospital hopes to begin its four-year construction program in late 1980. The 300-bed facility plans to build new quarters for its obstetrical and pediatric services but reduce the total number of these beds. The proposed project also includes an expanded psychiatric service, conversion of a 50-bed building constructed in 1938 to administrative offices, and demolition of a 1919 building.

The Commission on Hospitals and Health Care will hold a public hearing on the proposal before a final decision is made.

Meeting Is Changed

COVENTRY — The Board of Education meeting, originally scheduled for Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Coventry High School, will be held Wednesday instead.

The board will also be asked to adopt a school calendar for the coming year; take action on job descriptions; approve bids for the cleaning of septic tanks; take action on a school zone exception request; approve revenue sharing bills; and approve a new secretary and substitute teachers.

Child Abuse Program Set

MANCHESTER — Manchester Memorial Hospital will sponsor a seminar for young adults to bring about an understanding and an acceptance of the feelings caused by child abuse, and the methods whereby that cycle can be broken.

The seminar will be free and open to the public and will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Women's Center on the campus of Manchester Community College.

Conducting the seminar will be Ann Bonney, child life specialist at Manchester Memorial Hospital; Sebastian Madry, professor of psychology at Manchester Community College; and Lorraine Rowe, children's program coordinator for Parents Anonymous.

"Many young adults who have been abused as children are frightened by the idea of becoming parents. It has been shown repeatedly that victims of child abuse are often abusive themselves when they become parents," says Ms. Bonney.

"Effective parenting, like any other skills, has to be learned. For many the only learning has been abusive parents, hence negative parenting skills are passed on from one generation to the next," she went on. "The cycle of child abuse can be broken through understanding and acceptance of basic needs and feelings, plus the learning of good parenting skills."

Fahey Backs Job Study

HARTFORD — State Sen. Marcella Fahey of East Hartford has sent a letter urging members of the state House of Representatives to support the Objective Job Evaluation bill.

"We fought very hard for this bill in the Appropriations Committee, and I know there are some House members who are strongly opposed to it," she said.

The bill will establish a study to evaluate state jobs on an objective basis.

"The present system of job evaluation in state service is not based on merit and as a result some workers aren't getting equal pay for equal work," she said.

Political Theme Familiar As Democrats Fete Seven

By GREG PEARSON

Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — There were plenty of familiar faces Saturday night at the Democratic Town Committee's annual dinner-dance, and President Jimmy Carter, have talked about declining voter turnout.

She asked for more persons to vote in elections and participate in politics. This will alleviate a problem she sees in the future — politics becoming a "spectator sport."

"We've got to be more vocal about what's happening," she said. She spoke proudly of her first-year work with the state Legislature. Many of her proposals have been passed or received favorable votes from committees. These include a proposal to permit door-to-door registration of voters.

The idea was opposed by most of the state's registrars of voters, but it was passed by the General Assembly. The support she received from some registrars, including

Jury Picking Begins Today

LITCHFIELD (UPI) — Jury selection begins today in the trial of Steven Asherman, a New York City medical student charged with murdering a classmate last summer on a secluded hilltop in rural New Hartford.

Assistant State's Attorney Anne Dranginis and former New York Assistant District Attorney Richard L. Albrecht of Bridgeport, who is representing Asherman, say the trial could take three to four weeks.

Jury selection is expected to take up to two weeks.

Asherman, 29, was arrested last Oct. 4 and charged with the July 30, 1978 murder of Michael Aronow, a fellow student at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Bells Will Ring Sunday

By NANCY CARR Church bells and carillons will begin ringing at 2 p.m. Sunday calling Christians to start their family journey to worship at the Manchester Community College in celebration of the birth of the Christian Church.

The celebration will begin between 2:15 and 2:30 at the Band Shell, giving everyone time to pack children, lawn chairs and picnic baskets in the car. There will be markers at the entrances to the MCC campus to direct you to the upper parking lot.

After we have gotten children, blankets and chairs settled, there will be a warm welcome and an invitation to all to join in our journey.

Around the Band Shell field will be four "stations" each with its own director. At the sound of a trumpet, celebrants will be invited to go to one of the stations, and at trumpeted intervals thereafter, the groups will be encouraged to proceed to another station so that everyone will visit each of the four stations. Our activities will center around our shared Christian beliefs in the power of our Lord through the coming of the Holy Spirit.

There will be instruction through creative movement and storytelling, a chance to witness to the Lord's goodness, a place to create a personal memento of the day and a time to send to a neighbor a message of love. There will be an opportunity to listen to music, as well as a song or two.

When we have visited all the stations, we will reassemble at our chairs and join in spirit, body and mind in jubilant worship. The things we have learned and done at the stations will be part of our worshiping.

There will be an invitation to stay and picnic at the end of the service. Hopefully, we will have created some feeling of common heritage by the end of the afternoon and my family and my family will glory together in the goodness of the Lord and joy of being Christians.

There will be fun, laughter, prayer, joining of hearts and voices, and lots of activity for energetic little hands and feet. See you at the Band Shell, Sunday, June 3.

May is MACC Awareness Month

Did you know that with your help and with the help of the 14 churches that form MACC we sponsor an auxiliary to convalescent homes in which volunteers operate cheer carts, show movies, distribute talking books, play bingo, bring patients to worship services and in many ways brighten the lives of over 800 patients in local convalescent homes.

Did you know that, together, we have sponsored for 11 years a two-week day camp for disadvantaged children (in danger this year), MACC movies for children and parent effectiveness training courses in cooperation with MCC.

Public Health Nurses Push Multiple Service

VERNON - For the second year in a row, the major emphasis of the Rockville Public Health Nursing Association has probably should be considered in the future.

Sara R. Manley, association director said in her annual report.

Ms. Manley said the association had a compounded problem this year because it not only provided fewer health supervision visits (152 fewer for this past March as compared to a year ago) but nursing care visits were increased without the replacement of the Vernon nurse.

Ms. Manley said it was interesting to look at the increase in visits for the month of September 1978 compared with the month of March 1979 in relation to visits to patients with specific diagnoses. The figures for 1978 were listed for the following: Cancer, 39; cerebro vascular accident, 18; fractures, 14; heart disease, 29; and psychiatric disorders, 9. For 1979: Cancer, 121; cerebro vascular accident, 44; fractures, 51; heart disease, 125; and psychiatric disorders, 46.

The director said that last year's report noted that increasing requests for home health aides and nurses led to increasing requests for extended hours of services in the evenings and weekends. She said the consortium did become a fact of life and the first staff nurse was hired in November of 1978 but unexpected calls for extended evening hours did not materialize in the areas served by the agency but she said the Rockville agency did have an increase in weekend visits since January, and the initiation of the use of the consortium nurse, on weekends, has been helpful.

The report states that the services provided by the Well Child Conference, on a weekly basis, have remained the same in scope, which means that screening and tests for vision and hearing need to be considered when the association has the appropriate personnel and space.

Ms. Manley said the agency isn't serving children of parents who receive Title XIX federal funds and that this factor probably should be considered in the future.

The bi-monthly immunization clinics were increased to a monthly basis as of last September.

Ms. Manley said the nurse consultation hours are well attended in each of the towns served by the agency and noted that this may be the method of prevention of acute illness for the ambulatory senior citizen. She said the popularity of the blood pressure screening clinic, which is only one component of the consultation sessions, is at times a deterrent to comprehensive health counseling because of sheer numbers of people and limited hours of the nurse. She said the agency plans to examine what can be done to correct this.

The nursing services have been expanded in Stafford and East Windsor. The nursing services will require the expansion of related services.

Complying with federal and state regulations has also added to the burdens of the director who is new this year.

The federal government is requiring a uniform system of reporting by home health agencies, effective July 1. Ms. Manley said it is a complicated process that is reporting volume, costs, and charges for agency services and will replace the former Medicare Cost Report.

The director was also confronted with learning a new auditing and budget format and she attended many conferences concerning this.

Because of previous poor attendance, the association made a change in Parents Classes during the year. Conferences were held with personnel of Rockville General Hospital to form a new plan. The association now uses hospital space and provides one class called "Health Education for Learning Parents," for parents who have attended the hospital's classes on the LaMaze method of childbirth.

In a survey, our customers told us that they want to know more about important energy issues. The purpose of this ad is to give you some of the information you have requested.

Keeping our programs going keeps your programs going.

Making sure your favorite TV program stays on the air isn't just the network's responsibility. It's also our responsibility. To see that your electric service is reliable. Consistent. Economical.

That's why it's so important for us to keep up the programs that keep our electric system in good shape. Programs like tree-trimming crews to make the lines more resistant to storm damage. Programs to provide backup systems in cases of emergency. Additional power lines to service new businesses. New homes.

But inflation affects our plans, our buying power, just as it affects yours. And like you, we've had to cut back on some of our projects. Make do with material and equipment that's not quite as good as we'd like. Let some things go uncompleted for the time being.

We need more revenues to keep the quality of our system. To keep our programs going. And insure that we can keep your programs going.

In the meantime, we'll continue to devote our energy to keeping the energy we supply as reliable as we can possibly make it.

Because we believe you deserve nothing less.

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Many thanks to all of those who shared their thoughts with my family and me, during our recent bereavement. It was amazing hearing from friends of my Dad, many who I had never met and who never knew he was my Pop.

Some notes came from people who worked at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft back when my Dad was a guard. Others heard him recite his prayers as VFW chaplain.

Incidentally (and Pop would never forgive me) he would have been 90 on May 31, not 89 as my column reported. Typographical error or confusion on my part I don't know, but at least I'll set the record straight.

Someday, when time heals at least part of the wound, I'll print my Dad's last poem. We found it so marked while moving some of his effects from his home. I think you'll enjoy it. Again, many thanks.

Force flight to Tel Aviv in January 1978 finally made it to the U.S. We had hoped they would visit Connecticut. It was amazing hearing from friends of my Dad, many who I had never met and who never knew he was my Pop.

couldn't get over the large supermarkets and how American housewives can buy everything all ready to pop into the oven.

As for traveling inside the super-market, she said, "I wouldn't leave my husband's side. It's too big, I'd get lost."

Eather and her husband, Iser, were so happy we had taken time to visit them. When we got back to Tel Aviv we are going to tell everyone that our American friends took the time to fly to New Jersey to see us," she said.

Next year, they want us to come back to Israel and in peace remains, to go into Egypt with them which will be the first visit for all of us. Sounds like a wonderful experience.

Needs a Friend

Received a letter from a Jackie Wilson fan named Mary Lou Casey so thought I would pass it along.

"Your Love Has Lifted Me Higher and Higher," but please remember

Maybe those words run through the mind of the man confined for almost 20 years to a nursing home. The man, Jackie Wilson, who recorded "Your Love Has Lifted Me Higher and Higher," will on June 9 have spent his last four birthdays in hospitals and nursing homes, trying to recover from a heart attack suffered in September 1975.

Jackie Wilson was on the top of the charts with many hits.

There are many fans out there who remember Jackie, but maybe they don't know that his birthday is fast approaching. A card or a letter helps to brighten everyone's birthday.

Jackie cannot celebrate his 45th birthday like we may plan ours. His special dinner will be the baby food he must eat due to his condition.

Maybe with stacks of cards and letters from well-wishers, it would help to make a special birthday.

The address for mail to Jackie is: Jackie Wilson, in care of Commonwealth Bank Building, 407 Main St., Metuchen, N.J., 08840.

Lee Roderick Roster Full Despite Weicker

WASHINGTON - Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut called a press conference the other day to announce he's dropping out of the race for president.

Trouble was, most folks never knew he was in it. In reality, he wasn't.

Oh yes, he announced his candidacy on March 12. But barely two months later his handwag had not only become mired down - it had actually started rolling backwards.

Weicker's support nationally was minuscule. And in his home state, voters not only didn't want him for President, they weren't sure they even wanted him representing them in the Senate any more. Polls show his favorable rating has dropped in Connecticut from 51 per cent a year ago to 48 per cent today.

Old-fashioned makers won't mourn Weicker's withdrawal from the race. They still have six officially announced candidates for the 1980 GOP nomination, and four or five other likely candidates, including front-runner Ronald Reagan.

All aspirants to the White House have one thing in common: they try to put distance between themselves and the rest of the pack by telling voters they have something uniquely valuable. Weicker, for example, offered himself as the lone "liberal" alternative to his republican brethren.

Here are some other ways current Republican candidates are packaging themselves:

Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, latest entry in the presidential sweepstakes (but please stand by), went out to hometown Russell, Kan. to offer himself to his fellow Americans the day after spending Mother's Day with his widowed mother.

Despite that tender timing, Dole is offering himself as a tough guy alternative to settle Jimmy Carter. It's a shoe that should fit comfortably after Dole's abrasive campaign as President Ford's running mate against Carter in 1976.

"Bob Dole has the guts, the strength, and the vision to do the job," reads a printed profile from his campaign office. In case someone misses the point, the profile of the former GOP national chairman also has this quote from a Doasier magazine interview with his wife: "Should her husband's campaign

It then courses through his staff work for LBJ the Senator, his appointment as President Kennedy's Secretary of the Navy, and his election as governor of Texas in 1962.

Finally the release acknowledges Connally "was appointed Secretary of the Treasury by President Richard Nixon in 1971. He served in that post until mid 1972 when he returned to Texas and his legal practice."

Translation: The Nixon administration started to unravel on Aug. 4, 1972, the night five men were apprehended trying to bug Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate. But I left Washington the previous June, so don't blame me.

Other announced GOP candidates working on their own strategies include former CIA director George Bush ("Mr. Experience"), Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois ("Mr. Clean"), former Minnesota Governor Harold Stassen, and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Perot.

Then there are Reagan, Ford, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, and Rep. John Anderson of Illinois yet to announce their intentions.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the aisle, Icky Gov. Jerry Brown of California has all but said he's a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Unless Ted Kennedy is talked into making the race however, it appears unlikely that Carter won't be renominated.

All of which shows there are two time-honored principles at work here: (1) any American boy (or girl) has the right to aspire to the presidency; (2) the "Pater principle" - that is, any boy also has the right to rise to the level of his incompetency.

The dozen or so presidential candidates prove the first principle. Jimmy Carter nicely takes care of the second one.

Success, there will be, but not, grits, in the White House.

Texas John Connally - who looks surprisingly young heading into the first term - has another problem: disassociating himself from Richard Nixon's administration.

One way he's doing that is by dwelling at length on his life as a Democrat and giving short shrift to the period following his Republican conversion. The news release announcing his candidacy in January, for example, reaches all the way back to when he "served as an aide to then freshman Congressman Lyndon B. Johnson."

Other Editors Say

The federal Transportation Department hired the University of Alabama to conduct a study of automobile repair practices in nine of the country's major cities.

The report, recently published, bears out other investigations that indicated many persons leaving their cars for repairs were being overcharged for services rendered, or indeed being charged for repairs that need not have been made.

This kind of a rip-off naturally infuriates the public in the same way that it was infuriated when it learned that many operations performed in hospitals were not needed. The trouble is that the average driver, like the average patient in a hospital, really knows very little about what is required for his car or for himself. He is forced to take the word of an expert.

That's the rub. If the expert is untrustworthy then the driver or the patient is misled and ends up paying far more than he should.

What's the solution? It would be comforting to think the government, by exposing situations like these, can eliminate them. That, unhappily, is not the case. It would be nice if more investigators than even the government can afford to root out the fraudulent in any field.

But there is the self-protection of most of us can provide by being careful about the service station - or the physician - to whom we entrust either our car or ourselves.

Over a period of time you will become aware of the service station operator whose word can be trusted, and whose bills are always legitimate.

This is where you should go, even if at times doing so is a little inconvenient. You should find out for yourself whom you can trust, and then follow your own instincts.

In metropolitan areas that may be very difficult to do. Here it usually is not, and the result may well be that you will be spared the unnecessary and exasperating expenses that drives you road about to face.

Letter to the Editor

Manchester's Village Charm

To the editor:

Perhaps as an artist my eye is too critical, my vision too keen, my taste too rich for the simple "Village Charm" of Manchester but I doubt it.

Nothing that possesses true charm can be offensive, to the eye, nor grating on the ear, or below the appreciation of even the most cultivated.

If Manchester possessed anything of its former charm I think I would recognize it but I'm afraid it has vanished like so many other things of beauty.

The reason is perhaps that no one cares, or there isn't enough money or there is too much red tape involved in

Proprietors care little how their store fronts look in relation to the rest of Main Street so long as it fights for the public's attention and wins.

One store went so far as to invest in a whole new front using a rather attractive pseudo-colonial detailing with a stunningly reproduced doorway then plastered the windows with cigarette ads and the back of all things that are most beautiful or unique are covered in ugly signs and advertisements.

Store owners in an unfortunate just for attention fill every window with garish posters heaped upon even more garish displays.

Manchester's aesthetic integrity. Our town is rushing headlong into overdevelopment, overpopulation and economic overstimulation of the worst sort.

That "Village Charm" in the town slogan unfortunately no longer exists.

Main Street along with much of Manchester has become a shadow of its former self.

Before it is too late I wish we could step out of the shadows and see the light.

FBI Unleashed on Author

WASHINGTON - Not content with a court order forbidding Progressive magazine from printing an article on the "secret" of the H-bomb, the government has sicked the FBI on the author of the article. It has turned into a full-scale criminal investigation.

This latest government attack on the press is intended to deter the press to determine whether the Progressive reporter, Howard Morland, used classified information in his article, "The H-Bomb Secret: How We Got It, Why We're Telling It."

Under the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, communication of restricted data is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. So the FBI investigation is no laughing matter for Morland.

Morland insists that his article was written from publicly available sources and authorized tours of nuclear power facilities. In fact, one of the points of the article is that the government itself has been responsible for giving away the secrets of nuclear power.

Warren, issued an injunction forbidding publication of Morland's article, the government quite properly sent FBI agents to visit the dozen or so persons who had received advance copies, to make sure they had returned the articles as the court ordered.

But the criminal investigation of Morland is another matter. To Theodore Jacobs, director of the Project for Open Government, it smells of harassment. "This is a repetition of the process used in the Pentagon Papers case, where criminal prosecution was brought against Ellsberg," Jacobs told me.

The heart of the matter, as Jacobs pointed out, is the "chilling effect" such harassment will have on reporters and their sources. No one likes to be interviewed by the FBI.

"People will be frightened to talk to reporters," Jacobs said.

And that, apparently, is a situation that Jimmy Carter, like Richard Nixon before him, would be happy to see.

NO THANK YOU: President Gerald Ford had the politician's eye for the proper gesture. Back in 1975, he decided it would be nice to send personal greetings to the 39 crew members of the ill-fated merchant ship

"Other than him, there ain't nobody here but us chickens."

The Lighter Side

Blazing Nostalgia

I don't see how he lived through half of them, it took him so long to slap leather.

Your average movie-goer might not have noticed that imperfection. But to a real movie cowboy connoisseur, it was disillusioning.

Offhand, I would rate Randolph Scott, Johnny Mack Brown, Hopalong Cassidy, Bob Steele and maybe Andy Devine as faster on the draw than Wayne, although not necessarily more accurate.

In equestrianism, Wayne clearly was not in the class with Ken Maynard, whose exploits on the wonder horse Tarzan were legendary. I also would put him below Tom Mix, Hoyt Hinton, Buck Jones, Bruce Bennett, Bob Livingston and maybe Gabby Hayes.

Livingston, you may recall, preceded Wayne in the role of "Stoney" in "The Three Mesquiteers" series. I always thought he sat his horse better.

(If, by the way, the names of the other two "Three Mesquiteers" were slipped your mind, they were Max Terhune in the role of "Ibally" and Ray "Crash" Corrigan as "Tuscon."

Bennett, although better known for jungle movies, made a deep impression on me the way he rode in "Blazing Six Shooters."

As for whip-snapping, a minor skill, Wayne couldn't touch Lash LaRue. Leaving roping aside, this brings us to singing.

Wayne couldn't sing a lick, or certainly not on the range with Dick Foran, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry. As far as I know, Wayne never danced in a western. However, I saw him jitterbug with Adele Mara in "The Fighting Seabees," and believe me he was no Ginger Rogers.

Neither was Adele, for that matter.

What Wayne did have going for him was sticfulness. I would take him over any movie cowboy in a brawl, and that includes Clint Eastwood.

Incidentally, during the 1942 filming of a fight scene with Wayne in "Reap the Wild Wind," an actor named Victor Kilian lost an eye. But all that is now water under the saddle.

Board Mulls Food Prices, Fund Drives

MANCHESTER - The Board of Education will discuss the possible impact of federal changes on cafeteria prices and a proposal to limit charitable fund-raising in schools when it meets tonight in the Manchester High School library.

Raymond Demers, the board's business manager, will give a report on the possible pending federal steps which would cut subsidies for the reduced milk and reduced lunch program, according to School Superintendent James P. Kennedy.

"The federal change could have a substantial impact on cafeteria prices," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said the policy he proposed on the limitation of charitable fund-raising events in the school system is the result of a growing number of requests for school participation.

"What we're getting is five to 10 requests a year for participation in various bikeathons, walkathons, hikeathons, and we're trying to put some kind of control so that there would only be one in the fall and one in the spring," Kennedy said.

The principals of elementary schools would decide which event would be assigned to the elementary level, Kennedy said that on the secondary level, the principal and the student council would decide which event the school would participate in.

Allowing too many activities to take place puts a burden on the schools and on children, and people would wonder what the school administration thinks about it, Kennedy said.

"Fund-raising activities by charitable organizations which depend on the participation by school children and securing of 'sponsors' should be limited," the policy says, "to one approved activity in the fall and one in the spring."

The policy also says that "it is the intent of the Manchester Board of Education to protect students and staff from commercial exploitation and to minimize encroachment on teaching time."

Cut Down at Plate

MILWAUKEE (UPI) - It was almost a half hour before Manager George Bamberger could accept what happened to his Milwaukee Brewers Monday.

Even then, the normally talkative Bamberger had trouble discussing the win-losing run by Mickey Rivers that lifted the New York Yankees to a 2-1 victory.

"He's capable of hitting out, but it was the timing of it that was the problem," Bamberger said. "When he stepped in, I was thinking of ways we could lose. I was thinking of him getting a hit and stealing second, something like that. Anything but a home run."

The homer, Rivers' third of the season, came off left-hander Bill Travers and resulted in the first major-league victory for rookie reliever Ron Davis.

Mrs. Robinson was born Oct. 16, 1900, in Manchester where she lived all her life.

She was a teacher in the Manchester school system before her retirement about 35 or 40 years ago. She taught at the old Keeney Street School, and did substitute teaching at Washington and the former Lincoln Center.

Jenkins Stops R Sox..Again

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) - Texas Rangers second baseman Bump Wills needed only one sentence to critique his club's 5-2 win over the Boston Red Sox Monday night.

"It's the best game we've played all year," he said. "I think that way since we scored the go-ahead run in the fifth and then drove in two insurance runs in the eighth. Rangers starter Ferguson Jenkins did not feel pretty good as well as he beat the team he loves to beat the most."

And the Rangers as a whole could be fairly pleased with themselves since they beat the Red Sox for the eighth consecutive time. Boston has not won a game in Arlington Stadium since Sept. 4, 1977.

"This is a team you want to try to prove yourself against," said Wills.

Jenkins, who went seven innings before retiring with a slightly strained elbow. "They have a hitting machine and sometimes you try harder against them."

Jenkins, 6-2, and carried a grudge against Boston Manager Don Zimmer, who has an ample tongue.

Texas earned a 3-2 lead going into the eighth inning, with Oliver providing a two-run homer in the first and Wills scoring from third on a double-play ball in the fifth. Then, with the bases loaded in the eighth, Wills singled off Jim Wright — the third Red Sox pitcher of the night — to score two runs.

"Wright had just thrown four straight balls to Nelson Norman," said Wills. "So I was looking for a fastball. That's what he threw and he got it up a little."

That left it up to reliever Sparky Lyle, who allowed two singles in the ninth, but managed to record his seventh save of the year and move the Rangers to within a half-game of division-leading California.

The condition of Jenkins' throwing elbow caused some brief concern during the game, but neither Jenkins nor Manager Pat Corrales seemed particularly worried after the contest.

I threw a lot of breaking balls and that strained it a little," said Jenkins. "I think it will be fine. I usually throw about 10 minutes each day and I don't plan to skip throwing tomorrow."

Boston's only two runs came in the third on a single by Gary Allenson, a double by Jerry Remy and a single by Fred Lynn.

Rivers Provided Punch for Yanks else gets hurt. They've got 10 pitchers besides me. There's just not enough work for everyone."

Travers, now 2-0, noted he was the second time he had given up a game-winning home run to Rivers. The first came in 1977 at New York.

"It's gone a little before, so I should have known better," he said. "The Yankees had taken a 1-0 lead in the third but missed a chance for another run when Cliff Johnson was thrown out at the plate."

Johnson led off with a double and was cut down by Lezcano while trying to score on Bucky Dent's single. Dent went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a single by Willie Randolph.

The Brewers tied the game in the seventh when a pair of mental lapses by Beattie allowed Lezcano to score. Lezcano opened with a single and moved to second on Paul Molitor's sacrifice. After Sal Bando walked, Lezcano stole third while Beattie advanced to the plate. Even the scream of third baseman Graig Nettles failed to get Beattie's attention.

Moments later, pinch hitter Charlie Moore hit a high chopper to Beattie, who held the ball as Lezcano raced home with the tying run.

"I guess it was a case of too much concentration," said Beattie. "I was concentrating so hard on the batter that I forgot about the other runners on base."

The condition of Jenkins' throwing elbow caused some brief concern during the game, but neither Jenkins nor Manager Pat Corrales seemed particularly worried after the contest.

I threw a lot of breaking balls and that strained it a little," said Jenkins. "I think it will be fine. I usually throw about 10 minutes each day and I don't plan to skip throwing tomorrow."

Boston's only two runs came in the third on a single by Gary Allenson, a double by Jerry Remy and a single by Fred Lynn.

The field and nearby tennis courts were flooded before a Park and Recreation Department employee turned off the water.

Police reported a burglary late Saturday night at Manchester Ice and Fuel Co., 51 Bissell St. A hammer was used to smash the cash register and $50 in cash was stolen, in addition to the CB base station in the room, police said.

Non-Credit Courses Set

MANCHESTER - Among the 22 non-credit courses being offered this summer at Manchester Community College is a group of seven especially for personal development. All of the courses will begin in mid or late June. "Parenting Skills Training" is for parents, prospective parents and other interested persons who want to become acquainted with different attitudes about, and approaches to, being a parent. Topics include myths of parenting, types of parents and the implications of each type, stages in development, modeling, nurture and discipline. "Feedback" is an introduction to the phenomenon by which a person is capable of voluntarily controlling certain bodily processes. The course will cover technique for regulating blood flow, muscle tension, brain waves, rate of heart beat and will explain the use of such control in treating a variety of diseases. Other courses in the personal development group include "Astrology," "Conversational Italian," "Humanistic Philosophy," "Typing for Teens and Pre-teens" and "Meditation."

MCC Graduates Cited

MANCHESTER - Three students in the graduating class at Manchester Community College have received awards from the social science and public service division of the college for academic excellence. The awards were presented in an informal ceremony at the college last week. Adelle Ugolik of Vernon received an engraved pewter bowl as the student in the general studies program who earned the highest grades in social science courses taught at the college. She had a perfect "A" average which, in addition to other qualifications, earned her the rank of valedictorian of her class. She plans to take more courses at MCC next year, and eventually, to work toward a baccalaureate degree. She is married and has three children. Marilynn Mae of Kensington also received an engraved pewter bowl as the student who earned the highest grades in general studies programs.

Race Uses Little Gasoline

SOUTH WINDSOR (UPI) - While high performance racers gobbled up fuel Sunday in the Indianapolis 500, about 30 drivers cruised up to Vermont and back in a race to see who could bring the best mileage out of 10 gallons of gas. Drivers of all ages and from all walks of life left the starting line at 7:30 a.m. in the fourth annual "10 gallon fuel efficiency 500." A little more than five hours later, Bob Rodier of South Windsor, crossed the finish line in his stripped down Fiat 850, finishing first for the third year in a row, said South Windsor Jaycee Bruce Braithwaite, chairman of the event. Rodier's car - minus bumpers and interior seats - got just under 60 miles per gallon doing 55 mph. His victory was worth $50. First place in the production class went to Dick Maher of South Windsor who drove a Honda which got 45 miles per gallon at 54 mph. The first dealer car to enter the race - and the only American entry was the American Motors Corp. Spirit which got 30 miles per gallon fresh off its Hartford showroom floor. "Everyone's a winner in this race," Braithwaite said. "It pits the driver against his car." Braithwaite reported only one auto casualty - a car that blew a gasket and broke down. The 27-mile race - from South Windsor to White River Junction, Vt. and back - is designed to promote fuel efficiency at the expense of the more grandiose Indy 500. Braithwaite said.

Council To Set Tax Rate

SOUTH WINDSOR - The Town Council will meet tonight to formally set the tax rate for fiscal 1979-80 at $9.18 mills, representing a drop of 1.8 mills in the present tax rate of 40.8 mills. The mill rate is levied on the grand list of Oct. 1, 1978 and will finance a total budget of $13,796,330. The total budget consists of a Board of Education budget of $8,111,738 and a General Government budget of $5,684,592. Both budgets were adopted by the Town Council May 14. The meeting on May 14 resulted in charges by four Republican members, of an illegal meeting between GOP member Robert Sills and the four Democratic council members. Republicans charged that Sills met with Democrats to arrange a deal, whereby the Council voted 5-4 to deduct $20,000 from the General Government budget and restore $20,000 to the Board of Education budget. The $20,000 deducted from the General Government budget eliminated the town manager's proposal that the town hire a full-time town planner. Although Sills recommended the monies be restored to the Board of Education budget, for repairs to some of the elementary schools, the Town Council has no authority to dictate where the money was allocated to the Board of Education is spent. The 1979-80 fiscal year begins July 1 and ends June 30, 1980. The tax rate of 39 mills is established by considering indirect revenues totaling $4,670,028 and anticipating the estimated surplus of $50,000 announced recently by Town Manager Allan S. Young. Some Democratic members of the Town Council have criticized Young, charging that he kept the anticipated surplus a secret until after the budgets had been adopted. Young denies the charges, reminding the Council members that the surplus for this fiscal year was anticipated six months before the surplus of last year was announced. He said that the surplus could not have been anticipated with any degree of accuracy because of last minute spending. He said that he continually made the Council aware during budget deliberations that the estimated surplus figures were not complete.

Bolton Group Joins Union

BOLTON - Custodians and maintenance workers employed by the Board of Education voted Saturday to file a petition to join the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) union. The petition to join will be filed with the State Board of Labor Relations this week. The majority of the seven employees affected, voted to join. A spokesman for the employees said the workers want "better wages and fringe benefits." The employees currently belong to the Bolton Custodian Maintenance Association, a recognized bargaining body, but not a union. Town highway employees recently petitioned to join. A secret ballot election will be held June 25 to decide whether or not the three highway employees will join a union. Subdivision Hearing. The Planning Commission will have a public hearing Wednesday to discuss the Leah-Christie Estates subdivision on Boston Turnpike, formerly the Perret property. The subdivision consists of seven lots. The commission discussed final plans for Marshall Taylor's subdivision, called Sheridan Heights, on Brandy Street. One street name in the subdivision has been changed from Levey Road to Alexis Drive. The commission approved the final map of phase three of the Piano Heights division. Soccer Registration. Final registration for the soccer program will be from 6 to 7 tonight at Herick Memorial Park. The program is open to boys and girls in Grades 3 through 8. Hearing Set Tonight. There will be a public hearing tonight at 8 to discuss park regulations and revenue sharing funds. The selectmen agree $3,045 in revenue sharing funds should be used to purchase new garage doors for the town highway garage.

Cotter Supports CD Vote

MANCHESTER - U.S. Rep. William Cotter said he feels the decision of the Manchester voters in the Community Development case should be enacted. Cotter voters last month approved a two-year withdrawal from the federal Community Development program. That decision, however, is being appealed in a lawsuit now pending in U.S. District Court. Cotter expressed his views about the Community Development matter during a brief interview with The Herald Saturday night. He was in town for the local Democratic dinner-dance, at which seven party members were honored by the Democratic Town Committee. "There's a mandate here. The people have spoken. Frankly, it should be respected," Cotter said of that vote as a "landmark situation." Cotter represents Connecticut's First Congressional District, which includes Manchester. He spoke briefly to the 350 local Democrats who met at Willie's Steak House for the annual dinner-dance. Cotter's comments to the crowd included only a general mention of the Manchester dispute about Community Development. In the interview, Cotter said the vote of the residents should be upheld by the courts. He classified the court challenge of that vote as "a landmark situation." But, while the case is unique and has attracted much local and state interest, it is not discussed frequently in Washington, Cotter said. "Other than officials in the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, few talk about it," he said.

Restaurant Fire Probed

CANTON (UPI) - Fire officials today were investigating the cause of a Memorial Day fire in which a controversial local restaurateur and his wife were critically burned. Domenick Cifarelli, 55, and his wife, Patricia, 46, were listed in critical condition early today in the burn unit at Hartford Hospital from the fire Monday afternoon in Mr. Domenick's Marche Restaurant on Route 44, officials said. A hospital spokesman said Cifarelli, who ran for governor last year as a write-in candidate, received second- and third-degree burns over 75 percent of his body, and Mrs. Cifarelli received first- and second-degree burns over about 30 percent of her body. Their son, John Cifarelli, 25, charged the fire "was no accident." The couple and their son were arrested last week by state police during a raid in which a blackjack operation was broken up, police said. John Cifarelli claimed the fire had been set by someone trying to stop the operation, but fire officials said they hadn't found any evidence to support that claim. Collinsville Fire Chief Gordon Harmon said the fire was confined to the couple's residence in the rear of the building where it caused extensive damage to the interior. The town fire marshal and the state fire marshal were called in to investigate the cause of the fire. Cifarelli had vowed to continue the blackjack operation at the restaurant despite the raid in which six other people were arrested on gaming charges. In that raid, police confiscated gambling apparatus, including part of the table. Cifarelli, who's had an ongoing feud with the state Liquor Control Commission, complained that it was unfair for the state to legalize some forms of gambling while cracking down on others.

Meeting Canceled

MANCHESTER - The June 7 meeting of the Cheney National Historic District Commission has been canceled. The commission will meet again Thursday, June 21 at 4:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Fish Game Set At Museum

MANCHESTER - Running fish or running for fish will be the name of the game June 2 at the Lutz Junior Museum, 126 Cedar St. from 10 a.m. until noon. What is the mad run for? To add native sea life to the museum's "living room." Thus crabs, saltwater fish, and other wave lover's will be able to live peacefully with the squirrels, owl, and other wildlife already housed at the Lutz Junior Museum. Museum volunteers are organizing the marathon which will take place on the track behind the museum. Participants, by finding sponsors, will pace themselves to raise money for the saltwater aquarium. Those interested in participating are asked to preregister by calling the museum at 643-9949. Costumes are encouraged. A bake sale will also fulfill hunger pangs during the activities.
