Continues Tour
KRKOW, Poland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II continues his nine-day tour of his homeland today with a sentimental visit to Wadowice where he was born 59 years ago. Later he will visit the chilling death-bushted Auschwitz concentration camp, perhaps the most terrible monument which exists to the inhumanity of man, where 4 million prisoners were slaughtered. He also will hold a mass at the Birkenau death camp, consecrated by priests who were prisoners there and survived.

Wholesale Prices Take Small Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices of finished goods 10 percent higher in May than a year ago. For all food they were 9.6 percent higher.

While the dramatic reversal of food prices was good news for consumers, petroleum prices were not. Not only was gasoline rising, but higher petroleum prices were pushing up the prices of industrial chemicals, plastic resins and other industrial products derived from petroleum.

Prices of foods ready for sale to consumers actually dropped 1.3 percent in May, the largest monthly decline since a 0.3 percent increase last August. And it was a major improvement over increases of about 1 percent or more during recent months.

President Faces Two Decisions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is expected to announce two major decisions soon: whether to go ahead on the advanced MX missile system and whether to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

A White House official indicated both decisions are imminent, and perhaps will come within a day or two.

Carter held two meetings with top-level military and diplomatic advisers this week to discuss the various options on the MX experimental missile and how to make it less vulnerable to Russian firepower than the current Minuteman missiles.

The MX is more accurate in targeting and has double or triple the nuclear firing power of the Minuteman.

The president indicated at a news conference last week he was leaning toward approval of the MX, which could be shifted around to different launching sites so the Soviet Union would never know exactly where they were.

At Last, Abate Hears What He Waited For

By ANDREW M. NIBLEY
HARTFORD (UPI) — It took the whole session, but House Speaker Ernest Abate, told Senate leaders to get busy because he wasn't going to accept too many more of their bills.

The upper chamber chiefs were shocked, sore and awed by Abate's ultimatum.

But there wasn't much they could do about it.

Tuesday, with a good deal of pleasure, Abate gave the House the day off.

But he wasn't finished.

While Abate's obsession with a civil ending may have incurred the wrath of the Senate and the governor, his perseverance impressed his peers.

"You have been patient, you have been just, you have been diligent," Rep. James Kennedy, D-Hartford, told Abate. "And you have handled the responsibilities of your office, of which I am somewhat aware, with grace and with dignity and with decency."

It was Abate who took the speaker's job away from Kennedy this year.

He was the smallest increase since 0.3 percent last August. And it was a major improvement over increases of about 1 percent or more during recent months.

EDC Backs Burnham Street Work

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — The town's Economic Development Commission this morning supported doing planned work on Burnham Street even though some of the road may later have to be moved.

In another matter, the EDC also examined a hazard along a temporary road in the Burnham Industrial Park. The commission will seek a solution to the situation because closing the road might anger South Windsor officials.

Ray Giles, public works director, asked the EDC for advice on how to proceed with the Burnham Street improvements. A 2,000-foot stretch from Backland Street west has been slated for improvements in connection with the industrial park.

Part of that stretch, however, might be relocated depending on plans by developers of Backland Commons. Delaying improvements until then could result in the loss of state funding, which will pay half of the expected $500,000-$700,000 cost, Giles said.

"It would be perhaps criticized by some of the public if you build something and then it's ripped out," Giles said.

Other road work affecting the western portion of Burnham Street can be done without concern about future relocation. Most of the expense and work involves the eastern section of the street.

Giles also brought a second road problem to the EDC. This one involves a deep drainage channel just to the west of the temporary section of Windsor Street, which runs through the industrial park near the J.C. Penney Co. building.

The temporary section of the street is expected to be closed once the permanent road through the industrial park is completed and the Backland Road/Tolland Turnpike intersection is upgraded.

Some EDC members suggested closing the section of Windsor Street near the intersection to permit construction of the drainage channel. This option will be looked into, Giles said.

"Persons wishing to drive to Interstate 86 would have to take a longer route down Backland Road, and the intersection of that road with Tolland Turnpike needs to be improved to handle increased traffic. The permanent road through the park will not open for at least four weeks.

In the meantime, something has to be done to prevent any serious accident because of the channel alongside the temporary road.

Giles said guardrails would cost about $15,000.

Some EDC members supported another proposal mentioned by Giles — an earth berm built from land removed to form the drainage channel. This option will be looked into, Giles said.

The EDC also approved an additional $50,000 to permit construction of needed rail tracks.

Town Appeals CD Injunction

MANCHESTER — Attorneys for the town in the Community Development case have filed appeal papers that ask whether there was sufficient evidence for a temporary injunction and whether the white plaintiffs can take action on a discrimination charge.

The appeal papers, which challenge the issuance of a temporary injunction, in the case, were filed in the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals, David Barry, town attorney, said.

The town is appealing the injunction presented to grant the temporary injunction.

The papers also question whether the plaintiffs, who are white, have the standing to proceed in the discrimination case based on Title 8 of the Civil Rights Act and the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

The appeals papers say that there was not sufficient evidence presented to grant the temporary injunction.

The papers also question whether the plaintiffs, who are white, have the standing to proceed in the discrimination case based on Title 8 of the Civil Rights Act and the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's National Spelling Bee time again and out of the original 63 girls and 46 boys participating, only 32 are left.

The 18 girls and 14 boys who remain survived such tortuous rounds as "surrogates," "effluence," and "loquacious" Wednesday. But words like "eponymary," "masochist," and "balthazar," sent others to the sidelines.

The spell-off for the 1979 champion was expected to conclude today.

Hate Activity

In Atlanta Wednesday, the NAACP denounced a confrontation between blacks and the KKK in Decatur, Ala., last month and called for a federal investigation into the KKK and other white supremacy groups for possible violations of the Gun Control Act.

Two blacks and two whites were wounded May 26 when shooting broke out after about 30 marchers were confronted by a group of Klansmen.

Since the start of the year, the NAACP said, its branch offices had reported an "unusually high increase in hate group activity," including at least 10 cross-burnings in Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, also decried the violence.

Flight Bumps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Transport Association said nearly 10 percent of the nation's 800,000 daily air travelers — were bumped from DC-10 flights Wednesday when the FAA ordered the nation's fleet out of service. But the airlines managed to accommodate many of them either by laying on substitute planes, switching passengers to other lines or rescheduling travelers on later flights.

In general, passengers seemed to take the inconvenience in stride, but a spokesman for the transport association, which represents 31 U.S. carriers, warned of possible serious problems ahead when the summer travel explosion begins later this month.

Pen Power

Gary Trudeau's Pulitzer Prize-winning comic strip "Doonesbury" is moving from the Washington Post to the Washington Star, which means it won't run in either paper for a few weeks.

But President Carter - a consistent target of the strip's cutting satire - isn't going to miss a stroke of the Trudeau pen.

The White House daily news summary, which keeps the president apprised of current events, will run it for his edification until it's back in print.

Coaster Break

New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne was willing to pose for pictures with "Rolling Thunder," but he was a bit of a coward when it came to the coaster.

The occasion - christening of Great Adventure Theme Park's new 56 mph, 96-foot-high $5 million roller coaster, Miss Mills - star of the late Broadway hit "The Wiz" - the governor, and Laura "Miss New Jersey" Berchtold, were among celebrities invited to the ribbon-cutting at the Jackson's Mills, N.J., park.

The Rolls Account

Almost all banks lure depositors with gifts - pop-up toasters like "The Wiz" - the governor, and Laura "Miss New Jersey" Berchtold, were among celebrities invited to the ribbon-cutting at the Jackson's Mills, N.J., park.

Penn Square offers a new Rolls Royce to any depositor who can afford the terms. So far only one has been able to - a Texas oilman bank Chairman Bill Jennings declines to identify.

He says the depositor took the Silver Shadow II in lieu of interest on a $1 million 6-month certificate deposit. Says Jennings, "You have to admit, offering a Rolls Royce is a heck of a lot better than waifu irons."

Quote of the Day

Sparky Lyle in Milwaukee, on the new class of people he's meeting in bookstores these days as he autographs "Bronx Zoo," his expose on the New York Yankees' 1978 championship season: "It's a different kind of person. Kurt Herbert Adler, general manager of the Yankees, says he's talked to all these players. They say they like the flow of the book or something about it. Not, 'Boy, you got your ass kicked last night.' It's very different."

Glimpses

Former Olympic figure skating champion Dorothy Hamill attended the New York premiere of the film "Players" Wednesday with the star - Dean-Paul Martin ... Former President Gerald Ford learned of Nancy Lopez Wednesday in a pro-am tourney prior to the start of the 26th annual LPGA Championship at Kings Island, Ohio ... In a change of signals, John F. Kennedy Jr. apparently will enter Brown University this fall, rather than Lehigh as previously reported. Kurt Herbert Adler, general manager of the San Francisco Giants since 1963, will step down in 1982 and be succeeded by Terry McEwen, president of the manager of London records.

Hebron Budget Meeting Set Tonight at School

HEBRON - The Board of Finance is conducting a special meeting tonight at 8 at the Gilead Hill School to again adopt a budget to present to an annual town meeting.

The Board of Education has been asked to attend this meeting. The budget for the coming fiscal year has been twice rejected at town meetings. Most criticism centered around the education budget which was reduced, by the finance board, in the amount of $63,700.

The initial budget figure was $2,945,420 and the second, $3,023,738, an increase of $78,318. Initially, the school board presented a budget of $1,298,579 which represented an increase of 2.2 percent over the current budget. With the cut made by the finance board, the increase was reduced to four percent.

The general government budget reflected a 15.3 percent increase with most of this in the salary accounts for elected town officials.

Unless a budget is approved soon the town will go into the next fiscal year with no money to spend. Tax bills can't be sent out until the mill rate is set.

Campaign By Slate Is Denied

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

MANCHESTER - Although a campaign manager has announced the formation of an Eighth District election slate, one of its members has disavowed intentions of running as a group.

Elizabeth Sadoski, who is seeking a second term as Tax Collector of the Eighth Utilities District, said she attempted to join forces with to show support for Larry Noone in his quest for the district presidency.

Mrs. Sadoski said the district never had one group running against another and didn't plan to start now.

Mrs. Sadoski seemed to agree, saying the three candidates would have to work with anyone that's elected. She said she felt Noone had the qualities to be president.

Another Strawberry Lane resident, Russell Smyth, supported the proposal from Giles.

"Mr. Giles' proposal is the first one that comes out of town hall that makes any sense," Smyth said. He asked that changes in the rate be developed so senior citizens on fixed incomes would not receive such large increases.

Directors have indicated that they do not expect to approve an increase as large as the doubling. The increase probably will be at least a 25 percent, which is the amount needed to pay for department operations next year.

Resident Opposes Water Rate Hike

MANCHESTER - A proposal to double the town's water rate is unfair to its customers, one resident told the Board of Directors Tuesday night.

The board held a public hearing on proposed water rate increases for 1979-80. The proposal submitted by Jay Giles, director of public works, would double the charges.

Giles said an immediate doubling of the water rates would eliminate a need to borrow $1 million. If this is spread over five years, it could cut the town's amount of borrowing from $20 million to $15 million.

Eugene Sierakowski, a Strawberry Lane resident, objects to the proposal. He said that before the April 27 vote when the bond issue was approved, residents were told there would be a gradual increase in water bills.

Another Strawberry Lane resident, Russell Smyth, supported the proposal from Giles.

Student Forum Pleases School Board Members

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Most school board members were encouraged by the roundtable discussion with Manchester High students Tuesday and indicated they'd like to do it again.

"You bet your life on it," said Robert Heavises Wednesday, a member of the board's curriculum committee. "We should do it more often and get more students involved."

"I thought it was a worthwhile experience and it should be continued," said Leonard Seader, who is not a committee member but did attend the discussion on his own initiative. "It's good for the board to have a direct dialogue with the high school people."

At the forum, nine MHS seniors discussed a varied range of topics involving the high school and education in general. According to J. Gerald Fliggobon, assistant superintendent for curriculum, the committee had listened to administrators and instructors over the year and decided to hear from "their clients," the students themselves.

Most of the discussion centered on the quality point average at the high school and what the students felt was an alarming attitude problem in the school.

"I thought it (the discussion) was very interesting," Eleanor Colman said. "Most of them were quite articulate. Using the vernacular, they had their act together. Even the non-college bound, students seemed to have direction."

What part of the discussion intrigued them the most? "I found it interesting that the higher level students felt they didn't have heterogeneous grouping," said Carolyn Becker, chairwoman of the committee.

During Tuesday night's discussion, one student expressed regret that he did not have contact with the diverse segments of the MHS population and said he "missed something."

"I was surprised to hear the kids advocating more discipline," said Mrs. Colman. "They perceive it as something the students have to change rather than the schools having to change. Unfortunately, we didn't have the chance to pursue what could be done to change that attitude."

The discussion on the quality point problem didn't surprise her, however.

"The problem with the quality point average has been around as long as I've been on the board," she said. "I'm hoping the new arrangement will be more successful than in the past."

At Tuesday's meeting, the students said honors students were discouraged from taking some courses because the grade didn't carry as much weight as the more advanced courses. The subsequent grading affected a student's class standing, which some felt was a critical factor when applying to college.

Since the top students need the quality points to enter prestigious colleges, they "couldn't take things like art, ceramics and automobiles," said Mrs. Becker.

"It's too bad that can't be arranged," she said. "It's not the fault of the school, but of our culture maybe. We are a comprehensive high school and supposed to meet the needs of all these many, many different students."

Mrs. Becker said the committee has not had the chance to discuss the forum and cautioned against scheduling it on a regular basis because it might lose its spontaneity. "I want to think about doing it again," she said. "Maybe it wouldn't be wise for the students to expect it every year."

Sewer Link To Cost More

MANCHESTER — Property owners who want to hook into the town's sewer and water systems will have to pay more to do so next year, according to plans proposed by town officials.

The connection charges are included in the proposed 1979-80 fee plans submitted to the Town Board of Directors. The board has to act on these proposed plans before they go into effect.

Property owners are charged a one-time fee when they hook into either the water or sewer lines of the town.

The water charge for a one-inch lateral line connection has been $350. The proposed plan would increase that rate to $625. Jay Giles, director of public works, said.

The increase for a two-inch line would be from $500 to $750, he said. Likewise for sewers, the charge for a six-inch lateral line now is $450.

What we're finding is contractors would much rather have us do the job than do it themselves. When that happens, you know something is wrong," Giles said.

The number of requests for the town to do the hookup work indicates that the price charged by the town is cheaper than what it costs the contractor to do the job, Giles said.

He said the proposed increases in the charges would put town on about the same level as area communities.

Added Buses Not Answer For Safety of Children

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — Additional busing isn't the answer to safety for younger children going to and from school. Officer William Yetz of the Vernon Police Department told the PTO Council Wednesday night.

Yetz, who handles public relations for the department, talked about the "Helping Hand" program now in its third year.

Yetz asked for more support for police and asked parents not to be so quick to criticize.

The police department has had a pamphlet printed which explains the rights of the Vernon resident and their responsibilities to the police.

Yetz said police are starting a self protection class for girls in Rockville High School next year.

He said the "Officer Friendly" program was to be conducted in the elementary schools. The school board and the administration approved it but it is a question of police manpower.

Yetz asked for more support for police and asked parents not to be so quick to criticize.

The police department has had a pamphlet printed which explains the rights of the Vernon resident and their responsibilities to the police.

Yetz said that reports of recent incidents have been exaggerated. He cited the incident where a younger child was allegedly coaxed by a stranger to get into a car. The child did not, but the incident stirred up many parents.

It was because of this incident that the Board of Education recently agreed to bus all kindergarten children, living more than one-half mile from their school, during the noon period when older children wouldn't be walking with them.

Explaining that the additional busing (at additional cost) isn't going to work, Yetz said there are a lot of problems with the buses as it is. He said the problems at some of the school bus stops are unbelievable.

Yetz said the children are taught safety habits through the physical education program in their schools. He said he has gone into all of the nursery schools in Vernon to talk about safety to the pre-schoolers.

All of the schools in Vernon, except the Sykes School (Grade 6) and the two parochial schools, are involved in the Helping Hand Program. The high school and middle school are not involved.

Speaking of the additional busing, one mother said parents in the area of Vernon Elementary School had asked for buses before the incident where the child was coaxed to get in the car. She said they wanted buses because there were no sidewalks and no crossing guards. Another mother said reports about vigilante groups being formed was also blown out of proportion. She said it was just a group of parents who decided they should walk to school with the children.

Cable TV Committee Barely Meets Grant Deadline

MANCHESTER — The town's cable television advisory committee barely met the deadline Tuesday with an application for funds that would provide better and more extensive local programming through local access cable television channels.

Jay April, advisor to the committee, said that he worked with Assistant Town Manager Charles McCarthy and Assistant School Superintendent J. Gerald Fitzgibbon in writing the application which goes to the National Telecommunications Information Agency of the U.S. Department of Commerce, the agency which administers the grant money. April said there is $40 million made available by an act signed last November, which for the first time mandates that some of that money go to non-broadcast usage for telecommunications in the public interest.

The application was for a planning grant which would involve minimum equipment purchase, programming the access Channel 13, providing a consultant to develop a plan for the town in the CATV franchise area, staff, and a possible microwave hookup with other cable systems in the area.

April said the grant might also provide for programming for target audiences which he described as shut-ins and elderly people.

As to the actual programming and needs of the local representatives from other regions to discuss the town's needs for local access CATV programming.

"I think we have a fairly good chance of getting some grant money," April said, "because there has been little publicity about the grant."

Opinion
State Vacations; a Natural Choice

See Connecticut First. It's not a new slogan, but it's a good one. We hope it's revived for this year's vacation season, to conserve gasoline and pump some money back into our state's economy. The Nutmeg State boasts some fine attractions — The American Shakespeare Festival, Mystic Seaport, Gillette Castle, the Mark Twain House and more. When it comes to summer trips, one of Connecticut's chief advantages is its compact size. You can get anywhere in the state on a tankful of gas. So when you're planning vacation activities this year, consider our home state. You may be surprised at the diversity of things to do. For a copy of the 1979 Connecticut Vacation Guide, a state map and events list, write to Vacations, Connecticut Department of Economic Development, 210 Washington St., Hartford, CT 06104.

Thought
After Easter Questions
Jesus was around for some time after Easter. There was plenty of time for the disciples to ask him all sorts of questions. I think their questions probably resembled questions we have for traveler who has gone to a distant exotic country. We want to go there too someday. So we ask, what was the food like, how long did it take to get there, did you see my relatives, what was the weather like? Our questions have a curious mixture of fear for ourselves and excitement to get going. Perhaps the most crucial question is this: where will we stay, and can we depend on our room reservation? This was my greatest fear when we went to England. In spite of my most careful planning, I had my neck popping up, what if we got stuck at 7:30 at night with no place to stay and we are left out in the cold? Jesus, what if mortality overtakes me and I have no place to go? What if I'm left out in the cold? Jesus skipped over the less important questions about food and weather, and answered this one right away. He even sponged like an imkeeper. "In my Father's house are many rooms; I will soon go and prepare a place for you, so that where I am you may be also. Everything else was unimportant compared to this stinging fear of their mortality. It was this fear for their own lives after Jesus was killed, that was foremost in the disciples' heads. All of us can so easily think that all will be lost in our mortality, but the Easter season, and every Sunday is the day to confirm within ourselves and for each other the certainty of our own resurrection with Christ. And unlike what we may have been told as children, we don't have to believe this blindly. One of us stood up to Jesus and said, "I want to be sure it's you; show me your hands and feet I want to see for myself the places where your hands and feet were pierced." Thomas refused for all of us to believe Jesus' resurrection, as if he were blind. If you too have refused to believe blindly, if in these brief words you feel as if you too have been painfully resurrected a little bit with Christ, you have. Rev. John Holliger, Vicar St. George's Episcopal Church Bolton

China's Newest Shake-Up

WASHINGTON — Red China is the despair of Western intelligence experts. If, as Churchill observed, Russia is riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma, mainland China is a fortune cookie wrapped in an egg roll inside a bowl of fried rice. Our China watchers are not only in the dark about what is going to happen in Peking, they often don't even know what has already happened there. A measure of our experts' befuddlement is the fact that they didn't learn of Hua Guofeng's appointment as acting premier until weeks after the event — and then only by reading about it in a Hong Kong newspaper. "According to a Western press report, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman said today that Public Security Minister Hua Guofeng had been appointed 'acting premier,' a U.S. intelligence report states. This intelligence scoop was classified 'Top Secret,' nature spokeswoman. "Trying to keep track of fluctuations in what intelligence insiders jokingly call the 'Peking Order' is baffling and frustrating task. Although it sounds like an attempt to handicap a horse race, trying to unravel the complexities of Chinese politics is a deadly serious exercise. The direction taken by the most populous nation on earth can be of crucial importance to the rest of the world, and any supposits pointing toward that direction cannot be ignored by our policy makers. The ups and downs of recent months — abrupt reversals of economic and ideological policies — have convinced the intelligence community that Red China is experiencing one of the most volatile periods in its turbulent 30-year history. On the dog-eat-dog tradition of Communist regimes, someone must be saddled with blame for the 'failure' of policies that have now been declared mistaken. But intelligence sources told our associate Tom Rosenfield they still haven't figured out who will be the scapegoat this time around. Our experts think it's possible that current kingpin Deng Xiaoping — remembered by most Americans as the genial little man in the big white cowboy hat — will lose some of his popularity in the shakeup. This will be nothing new for Deng, described by one intelligence source as "acerbic, hard-driving and undiplomatic." He already has been purged twice and rehabilitated twice. The keenest speculation centers on

Hua, whose rise to power so astonished the Western experts. One secret analysis frankly called Hua's appointment in 1976 as acting premier a "revelation." According to an intelligence rundown the year before, Hua was considered a possibility for top leadership only "over the longer term," since he had come to Peking from the hinterlands only a year earlier. American China watchers, who had expected Deng to be named premier, quickly developed 20-30 hindsight after Hua's appointment. "In retrospect," says another secret CIA report, "it is obvious that Deng's ascension to power was opposed at every step by the left. Indeed, in some respects Hua Guofeng would be a better man for the premiership than Deng ... Next to Deng, in fact, Hua is the most logical candidate for the job." Hua's greatest asset is considered to be his ability to avoid identification with any one faction in the deadly long wars of Chinese Communist politics. While this deprives him of a power base, this weakness is believed to be offset by his accessibility to all factions as a compromise leader. Whether Hua's tightrope-walking skill will get him through the current

Presidential Training Paid Off

WASHINGTON — Until now, had Carter is in the soup. But without endorsing another vote for Carter, I suggest that a condition Ford says resulted from Carter's overstimulation of the economy in 1977. That's as may be, of course; the fact is, it happened. And as things stand today, Carter could have a tough time convincing the public that he will give the Republic the stability it needs. Ford zeroed in on Carter's problem in an interview with United Press International. Carter, he said, "had no reservoir of support up there (in Capitol Hill). He was a new neighbor on the block. He had no long-standing relationship with Republicans or Democrats, and you don't build that overnight." Carter did have support — among blacks and liberals. But unlike Jerry Ford, a longtime member of Congress who became Republican House leader, Carter was a stranger to Capitol Hill. He couldn't call in any IOU's in Congress because he didn't have any. Indeed, he often seemed to be campaigning against a Congress owned and operated by the Democratic Party. The voters proposed, but Congress has disposed with harsh and continued rejections of Carter policies. Meanwhile, the campaign to draft Ted Kennedy continues apace. Even House Speaker Tip O'Neill, who says he's on Carter's side, says Kennedy could beat Carter for the nomination. Blacks, liberals, and active women's groups have turned away from the man they elected. Again without casting a Carter vote, it is simply too bad. What we need in 1976 was a two-term president. So far, however, this good and decent Georgian just hasn't shown a fist ball with enough hop to get himself re-elected. Here, unfortunately, we go again.

Washington Window
Foreign Policy Role Questioned

By JIM ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The SALT II debate raises again an unresolved issue that has troubled U.S. foreign policy since the founding of the republic: How much power does the Senate have? How much should it have? The Constitution is ambiguous, only saying that the Senate should give its "advice and consent" on treaties by a vote of two-thirds of the senators present. The two-thirds rule, incidentally, was born at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 when some frontier states feared that the numerical superiority of eastern states would give away U.S. navigation rights in the Mississippi river. The Constitution is less clear on whether the Senate can also change the treaties. But, despite objections from various presidents, beginning with George Washington, the Senate has taken the power to amend the treaties, or attaching less binding conditions and understandings. The Panama Canal treaty was passed with reservations, understandings and amendments. The executive branch had to go back to the Panamanians and convince them to accept the changes after the Senate had done its work. The SALT II agreement in 1972 was not amended by the Senate, but several conditions were attached to it, including one by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., saying that any future strategic arms agreements would have to give equal numerical limits to both sides. Such was the case with the U.S. membership in the League of Nations in 1920. Even if it had gotten the necessary two-thirds vote (it did not), it was so crippled with Senate reservations that President Woodrow Wilson probably would have vetoed the mutilated treaty had it reached his desk. Administration officials fear that this may be the fate of SALT II; never tested in a straight Senate vote, but loaded down with amendments that will unravel the whole seven years of negotiations. As Secretary of State Cyrus Vance put it during a May television interview: "The (treaty) is inter-related and intertwined and various parts of it bear upon other parts. Therefore, to amend any part runs a grave risk of killing the treaty completely." Note that Vance is not denying the Senate's constitutional right to tinker with the clockwork of the SALT package; he is simply saying that it will probably fall apart if 100 Senators, in effect, try to crowd around the negotiating table. Vance is saying that radical surgery, in the form of amendments, will probably be fatal. That warning may have had an unintended effect. Some Senators are not at all clear to our intelligence experts. But then, it's probably not clear to the Red Chinese leadership, either. Washington Whirl! One of the continuing complaints about Jimmy Carter and his White House staff is that, after two years, their relations with congressional leaders are still amateurish to the point of chaos. In an effort to counteract this prevailing impression, Carter has let it be known that the White House "leg men" on Capitol Hill — the special assistants who handle the nuts and bolts of coordination — have access to the Oval Office. Every morning, when Carter meets with his chief congressional liaison man, Frank Moore, he invites Moore's House and Senate assistants, William Cable and Danny Tate, to sit in. the softball season is in full swing in Washington. As a well-intended effort to let the Central Intelligence Agency work out its hostilities toward the press in a harmless manner, we challenged the spooks to a game on the Washington Monument grounds. Shortly before game time, CIA spokesman Dale Peterson called and canceled because of rain. It was, he said, pouring at CIA headquarters in suburban Langley, Va. But it's not raining in town — we told him; surely the CIA, with all its sophisticated equipment, could tell what was going on five miles from headquarters. Nope, replied Peterson, that would constitute "domestic surveillance."

Jim Spencer Delivers, Yanks Win for Gidry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Marshall has been having the kind of year relievers dream of. But Wednesday night, the ace reliever threw a "bad pitch" and Jim Spencer was more than happy to take advantage of it.

Spencer, batting for Bucky Dent with runners at second and third and two out in the bottom of the ninth inning, drove a 2-2 pitch from Marshall to left for the winning hit as the New York Yankees edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2 Wednesday night.

"It was a high screwball, a bad pitch, a hanger," Spencer said of the game-winner, which gave Rod Carew the victory. "You can't see him (Marshall) every day and he's probably the best in the business at what he does. In that situation, he's gonna go with his best pitch because he doesn't wanna get beat with his second best. The pitch stayed up and I went with it."

The 20-inning rally was made necessary by three consecutive Minnesota singles with two out in the top of the inning. Gidry, 6-4, had replaced the injured Reggie Jackson and Juan Beniquez twice in the game.

"It was nice, a two-run single," said Gidry. "My wife, whose husband was injured in the Vietnam war, had just died. I was really glad to get two runs. I really enjoyed it."

Spencer's heroics couldn't go out there and pitch well all the time," said Gidry of his five relievers. "Everything was up stairs for me but I made some good pitches when I needed them. You know I'm doing a good job when I have to scuff and I can still win."

Gidry's wildness allowed Minnesota to take a 1-0 lead in the first inning. After two were out, Ron Koseman, making his first American League start in New York, Koseman, who pitched for 12 seasons as a member of the New York Mets, yielded seven hits in 8 1/3 innings in suffering his fourth straight defeat following seven consecutive victories.

"I was very anxious to pitch this game. I couldn't wait to see Koseman, who left the game to a standing ovation from the crowd of 34,076. I started thinking about it after my last start. It (the ovation) was very satisfying. I've always been treated with respect here."

"You know he's a great pitcher when you go out to face him," Gidry said of his opponent. "He's never had the team to back him up though. But he's throwing the best left-handers around for a long time."

Martinez Keeps Baltimore on Top

NEW YORK (UPI) — Through the first two months of the season, Dennis Martinez has established himself as one of the game's premier pitchers and his right arm has kept the Baltimore Orioles atop the American League's tough Eastern Division. Trouble is, nobody seems to know it.

"I still feel I'm the second best right-hander on the team behind Jim Palmer," said Martinez, after tossing a four-hitter Wednesday night to lead the Orioles to a 3-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals. "But that's nothing to be ashamed of."

Martinez, 23, struck out nine to record his second shutout of the year and permitted only one runner to reach third base. Willie Wilson and George Brett accounted for all of Kansas City's hits.

Elbowing in the American League, New York edged Minnesota, 3-2, Chicago outdug Boston, 8-5, Milwaukee trimmed Texas, 4-3, Toronto nipped California, 6-4, Cleveland topped Oakland, 6-4, and Seattle downed Detroit, 4-3.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

Minnesota crushed his 13th home run and Cecil Cooper rattled over three hits to help Larry Sorensen lead the Reds to a 2-0 victory. Jesse Jefferson spanked a personal 13-game losing streak.

Mariners 4, Tigers 3

Willie Horton hit his 300th major-league homer and Ruppert Jones added a solo blast, leading Seattle to a victory over Detroit.

Gary Alexander beat out a hit to shortstop leading off the eighth inning and scored two outs later on a triple to lead the Yankees to a 3-0 victory. The Yankees' fourth straight triumph.

The Orioles grabbed a 1-0 lead off Royals starter Paul Splittorff, 8-5, in the fourth on a single by Rich Dauer and Lee May's RBI double, then made it 2-0 in the fifth on a Kiko Garcia double and Dave Skaggs' run-scoring single. Gary Roenicke hit his 11th home run in the sixth inning to close out the scoring.

"I just feel great, man, just great," Martinez said after his seventh complete game. "You can't win by the results that I've finally

Montreal Manager Just Viewed Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just when the Montreal Expos thought nothing could stop them, something did: fatigue.

"I was enjoying it just watching victory," Montreal Manager Dick Williams said Wednesday night after his club scored 11 runs in the fourth inning en route to a 12-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"All we did was make some changes, get everyone in the ballgame and let our extra men get some at-bats," continued Williams, who has the Expos in first place in the East Division, a half-game ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals. "You don't give any take signs or anything, you just watch."

Ellis Valentine drove in three runs to highlight the inning. His 11 runs were three shy of the National League record since 1900. Chicago scored 14 on August 25, 1922. The Expos also scored eight runs with none out, four less than Brooklyn's record set on May 24, 1953.

With Atlanta leading, 2-0, Montreal sent 15 batters to the plate in the fourth against two pitchers. Valentine drove in the first run of the inning with a single, then later in the inning singled home two more runs. Warren Cromartie also drove in two runs with a single. Phil Nietro, who pitched eight batters in the fourth before departing, fell to 6-9.

Ross Grimsley, 5-4, hurled a six-inning shutout before yielding to Dave Palmer, who retired all six batters he faced.

In other games, St. Louis edged San Francisco, 6-5, Houston nipped Philadelphia, 4-3, the Chicago Cubs blanked San Diego, 3-0, the New York Mets defeated Cincinnati, 5-3, and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles, 5-4, Cincinnati 6, Giants 5

Product of Tough Neighborhood

Wilkins Took Right Path as Youngster

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the benefit of any out-of-towners who haven't been there yet, Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant section isn't exactly the garden spot of the world.

You can get a few thrills just by walking through the neighborhood. If you see a cat with his tail up, you know he isn't from the immediate area. The kids who go to school there don't always graduate, some of them are accepted.

Lenny Wilkins, coach of the NBA champion Seattle SuperSonics, was born and raised in Bedford-Stuyvesant. That gave him a good opportunity to go wrong if he wanted, but he was one of those unusual kids. He did it all the way around and he kept it that way. He played basketball whenever he had the chance. That shouldn't necessarily be taken to mean he was a Goody Two Shoes.

"You didn't grow up in Bedford-Stuyvesant without having fights," he said.

Tuesday, a day during which Brooklyn Borough President Howard Golden honored him with a citation on the steps of the Lincoln Center, he had heard about it on the radio.

Wilkins was playing golf at the time and his wife received a call from the Sonics' front office telling her about the deal only a few minutes before one of her relatives phoned her from New York informing her he had heard about it on the radio.

All that is forgotten now. Especially since the Sonics, a team without any success, was defeated then in seven games for the championship last year.

Essentially, Wilkins' philosophy on basketball is simple: you play hard and you prove yourself. "I think basketball was designed to be a team game," he said. "Those teams that play with a team concept usually are more successful."

This is to let them know Wilkins saw it and he's smiling now like they'd never believe.

Wilkins smiled and said, "They still seem me about not sweating. I dunno, I feel I get excited and lose my head, how am I going to help the team?"

Generally, Wilkins wears such a solemn expression, he looks almost grim. None of this was lost on the Sonics fans in Seattle's Kingdome, a city that took in a hometown celebration banner during the championship which said, "Let's Make Lenny Smile."

This is to let them know Wilkins saw it and he's smiling now like they'd never believe.

Also returning in this year's lineup are Chris Van, a junior, who hit .270 (17 for 63) and led the most runs in the county in 1978 with 11. Junior second baseman Mike Nicholas, who hit .370 with three spectacular defensive plays against South, also will be back. He hit a .288 clip (10 for 35).

Top returning hurler is senior lefthander Chuck Dumez. He had a 4-1 win-loss mark. Colpitts is expected to see more big league play, while Dean Tully, 8-4, are two of the top candidates.

Another possibility is sophomore left-hander Tom DeBranski, who didn't pitch an inning last year, while it was anticipated he'd see jayvee varsity action this season but was hurt in a motorcycle accident last year. He was 4-1 in 1977 and has a couple of pitches, he has

Final Vote Due

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The NBA's Board of Governors will meet in Chicago Friday to take a final vote on the request by owners of the New Orleans Jazz to move the team to Salt Lake City. The franchise status must be approved by at least 17 of the NBA's 22 owners.

The vote was delayed by the fact that two weeks after Sen. Russell Long, D-La., asked for time to see if local buyers could purchase the club. But Jazz owner Sam Battistone has rejected offers from the Fair Grounds Corp., which operates the city's race track.

UConn Offers Plans for Building Storage Sheds

PLAN NO. 6096

PLAN NO. 6093

PLAN NO. 6100

STORRS - Have you ever wanted a small shed to store your lawn and garden tools, equipment and supplies, patio furniture, sports equipment and bicycles? The University of Connecticut's Department of Agricultural Engineering is offering working plans at a nominal charge to homeowners who wish to build a storage shed.

The three plans offer multiple designs for small sheds which can be used for storage of the aforesaid equipment. What's more, they can be used as a workshop, a playhouse or a poolside cabana.

Plan 6086 contains three working plan sheets showing four buildings from 8 x 10 feet to 12 x 16 feet in size. The 2 x 4 inch framing is covered with exterior plywood siding.

Buildings can be lighter if desired. Plan 6093 is a gambrel roof design, with the battens painted to contrast with the color of the vertical board siding, such as white over red barn stain. A four-foot wide door on one end allows easy access for garden equipment. A bill of materials is also included on the single sheet plan.

For those homeowners who want a simple inexpensive storage shed, there is Plan 6100 - Utility Shed. This building is basically 8 x 8 feet plywood covered frame shed with a metal roof that can be expanded to 8 feet by 16 feet.

The department, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, maintains a plan service containing working drawings for over 600 structures of interest to homeowners and farmers. The department has available a plan index at no charge.

The shed plans are available from the Department of Agricultural Engineering, University of Connecticut, Box U-15, Storrs, CT 06268. Plan 6086 costs $1.50, Plan 6093 costs 50 cents, and Plan 6100 costs $1.

How to Do It

Paint Failure

Q. Why does paint fail earlier on the south and west sides of my house? S.M., Iowa.

A. What you describe is not so much paint "failure" as ordinary day-to-day exposure to the elements. Paint on all houses, in any climate, will always have a shorter life on the sides exposed to the sun. If you take a good look at your roof, you will find the same holds true for asphalt shingles. If you are trying to cut down on the painting chore, your best bet is to use a high-quality paint and to give some thought to applying an extra coat to the south and west walls.

Don't Shake the Varnish

Q. Recently I was told never to shake a can containing varnish, but my informant did not know why. There must be a reason. What is it? Y.M., Wash.

A. In a can containing varnish from which some of the contents have been used, air is entrapped when you replace the lid. If you shake the can prior to use, tiny air bubbles will form in the varnish and these will be picked up by the brush and laid on the surface being finished. As the varnish dries, these air bubbles form tiny flecks you can feel when you pass a finger over the surface. Always stir - never shake - varnish.

'Splicing' a Carpet

Q. My carpet dealer says that my room and a small, narrow hallway are too wide for the standard width of carpet and too narrow for the next larger width; and that he can save me money by splicing on a strip to the required size. Can he make invisible or nearly invisible splices? He insists he can, but I'm doubtful. - B.O., Alton, Ill.

A. Experienced carpet installers can splice, or patch, wall-to-wall carpeting in looped, sheared or shag texture to the required size. Can he make invisible or nearly invisible splices? He insists he can, but I'm doubtful. - B.O., Alton, Ill.

Paint Peeling from Concrete

Q. Poured-concrete foundation walls of my 10-year-old home were originally painted above the ground. Last year I repainted them with latex. This has peeled off in large sheets from ground level to the top of the concrete, leaving the original paint. Can you tell me why, and advise what I should do? J.R., Washington, D.C.

A. The original coat must have been an oil-based exterior paint. Latex-based paints do not always bond solidly to the smooth oil-paint surface. If the original coating is still in relatively good condition, adhering solidly to the concrete, I suggest that you scrape off all the loose material with a wire brush, wash and rinse the surface, let it dry thoroughly and apply an oil-based masonry paint. If you want to use latex instead, prepare the surface by removing as much loose material as possible with the wire brush, then applying a surface conditioner such as Glidden's Y-40 Spred Spar Varnish mixed with naphtha or mineral spirits. Follow directions appearing on the can before painting. Sandblasting is an expensive alternative.

Crops Devoured By Grasshoppers

PIERRE, S. D. (UPI) - Grasshoppers, as much as a part of South Dakota's prairie life as the wind, are devouring crops at such a rate this year that an emergency has been declared.

"We've probably got 800,000 to 1 million acres loaded with hoppers west of the Missouri River," Ben Kantack, South Dakota's chief entomologist, said Tuesday. "There's as many as 100 per square yard. When you get that many it looks like the ground is moving."

It's so bad that on Tuesday Gov. Bill Janklow declared a grasshopper emergency to help farmers deal with the critters. The declaration allows release of state funds to help farmers and ranchers fight the grasshoppers.

Hoppers have been the scourge of South Dakota prairies since the first cow was driven up from Texas and the first plow broke the soil more than 100 years ago. Indications are that 1979 will be one of the worst hopper years.

Kantack said eight grasshoppers per square yard will consume as much grass as an adult cow.

"If you're overgrazed or moisture's short, like it is, even four hoppers a yard is too many," he said. "The real economic problems will come when they get bigger and start eating."

Peonies Are Handsome, Reliable and Rewarding

By FRANK ATWOOD

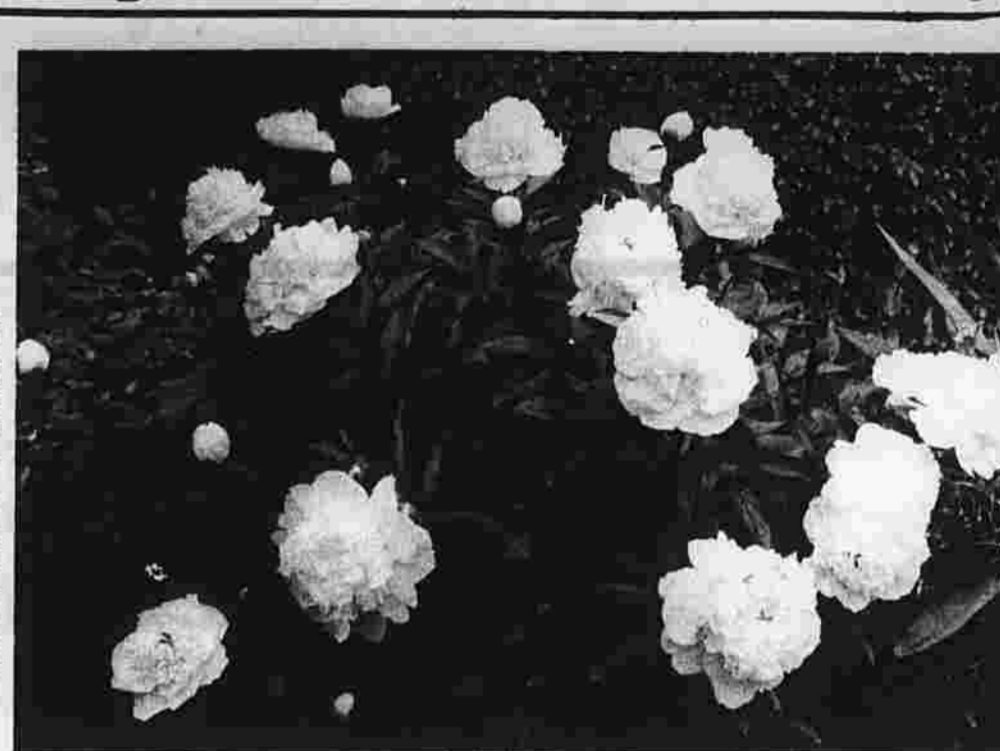

We have three clumps of peonies in our flower border and their handsome flowers have reminded me, once more, what reliable and rewarding plants these are. Severe winters give peonies no trouble. Roses die but peonies go on and on. Like lilacs, peonies can be found flourishing near a cellar hole in some long-abandoned flower garden.

Our peonies, white, red and pink, were coming into full bloom last week when I returned after four days on a bus tour down the East Coast to Washington, D.C. with the Connecticut Horticultural Society. I had seen the flowers in splendid public and private gardens, but none lovelier than I found at home.

The pink peonies blossom first, followed by the white and then the red, a few days apart. They are the old-fashioned double peonies, with heavy, rounded blooms. When rain comes the blossoms droop to the ground, bending or breaking their long stalks. That is, I think their only fault and that can be cured by staking.

These clumps of plants were started the year we moved to Manchester, from roots we bought at a garden center and planted in the fall. That is the proper season to divide old roots and start new clumps. Well-drained soil and full sun are the best conditions. They respond to a fertilizer application once a year, but need nothing more.

Wherever peonies are planted, ants will find them and try to see them

Flower Awards Explained

STORRS - All-America flower awards are given for uniform plant size, blossom form and color intensity, says a University of Connecticut extension consumer horticulturist.

Dr. Edwin D. Carpenter of the Plant Science Department says that flowering season and weather resistance are also important considerations.

According to him, the 1979 winners meet these qualifications, and a description of their characteristics follows.

Queen Sophia Dwarf French Marigold (bronze medal) has been named in honor of the Queen of Spain. Dark bronzy red when first open, the flowers mature to reddish gold and finally grade into burnished copper. Blossoms average two inches in diameter and sheathe the 10 to 12 inch plants from top to bottom.

Nick-Red Nicotiana (bronze medal) is a member of a new type of flowering tobacco which grows shorter, has more flowers and opens the blooms during the day. The solid red flowers are rain resistant that begin to open when the plants are about 12 inches high and continue until the plants reach 18 to 24 inches in height. Unfortunately, Nick-Red Nicotiana is not as fragrant as the night blooming varieties.

Orange Prince Fanny (bronze medal) differ from other orange flower pansies in that they flower earlier, have larger flowers and are a vivid, "lively" color. Each blossom is two and one-half to three inches in diameter. A brown-black splash highlights the center of the blossom. This flower has the ability to hold the color even when hot weather begins to reduce the number of flowers produced. Light afternoon shade and a consistently favorable soil moisture, however, can carry plants through the summer in areas where heat is moderate.

Holiday Cheer Ornamental Pepper (bronze medal) brings the vibrant Christmas colors into the summer garden. It reportedly endures higher levels of heat and humidity than many annuals. Plants reach a height of six to nine inches and spread a foot or more. With the arrival of warm weather, the fruits begin to turn yellow brushed with purple and then holly-berry red. Mature plants show all three full colors. Holiday Cheer Pepper also makes a good pot plant indoors during the fall and winter.

Peter Pan Gold Zinnia (bronze medal) continues the small, well-proportioned plants typical of other Peter Pan cultivars. Peter Pan Gold produces clear light gold

Crockett's Corner

By JAMES CROCKETT

(Editor's Note: The questions and answers following are based on viewer mail to Crockett's Victory Garden, produced by Station WGBH-TV, Boston, and seen weekly on Public Broadcasting Service affiliates nationwide.)

Q: I received a potted azalea for Mother's Day. Can I plant it outdoors?

A: Most of the holiday azaleas are florid azaleas, not hardy azaleas, and should remain indoors. However, they will enjoy a summer outdoors in filtered sunlight. Be sure to bring them in before the freezing weather arrives.

Q: Last year you visited a garden in Pennsylvania. What is the name of it and where is it?

A: We had the opportunity to visit the Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pennsylvania for more information write to them.

Q: Here in Vermont I have tried in vain to grow melons without success. Any suggestions?

A: Both cantaloupe and watermelon need a long season of warm weather. I would suggest for your area to start seeds indoors two or three weeks before setting them out. Grow them in rich soil and a sunny spot.

Q: What is causing all the holes in the leaves of my cabbages, broccoli, and cauliflower?

A: The cabbage worm is the culprit. They can be controlled with bacillus thuringiensis, a non-toxic-to-humans organic substance, which is sprayed on the leaves in a soapy solution.

Q: My new rose garden is beset with pests and leaf problems. What do I do?

A: Especially with roses, preventive measures are most important. In early spring apply an all-purpose rose spray that contains a fungicide and an insecticide. This application should be repeated per the instructions on the insecticide.

Q: Last summer my brussels sprouts grew to 35 inches but the sprouts were small like marbles.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren Can't Fault Him In Fault-Finding

DEAR ABBY: I've stolen all my life. I started taking small things from my friends. I've stolen money from my mother's purse and also my father's pocket. I've even shoplifted just to get away with something. I've never been caught. I guess I've been lucky, or maybe I'm just good at it.

DEAR GUY: A guy who knows his faults as well as you know yours is no "faller" in my book. You are fair enough to blame only yourself for your weakness, smart enough to know that you lie to attract attention, and sufficiently honest to admit you want friends and a clear conscience.

DEAR BUZZ: I know. But "darkest" someone sounds better to my ear. Just as "put your best foot forward" should be "put your better foot forward" if one wants to be absolutely correct. However, I'll opt for putting one's best foot forward - whether I'm referring to a person or a carpet.

DEAR PUZZLED: She could be waiting to see if she gets a better offer. Call her and tell her she can't give you a definite "yes" now, you'll like to call somebody else. (That should take the wind out of her sails.)

June 8, 1979 This coming year will be an active one, and you'll be putting more energy and effort into satisfying some inner needs. Take care that what you work for is what you really want.
