Carter Offers Health Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today formally proposed the first phase of his national health plan — to shield every American from the costs of major illness, to provide free prenatal and infant care, and to reform programs for the poor, disabled and elderly. The price tag is $23 to $25 billion. No increases in the payroll taxes would be required under the Carter plan, according to an outline prepared by the administration. The effective date is 1983. There are two main features of the Phase One plan. • Health Care: a new $18.2 billion umbrella federal insurance program consolidating Medicaid — for the poor — and Medicare — for the elderly — into a single structure to produce better efficiency and reduce fraud, abuse and waste. General tax revenues would pay for this part. It also would cover the near poor, small and high-risk businesses and others not covered. • The Employer Guarantee: a $6.1 billion provision that builds on current group coverage by private insurers, requiring employers to provide minimum catastrophic coverage to all 156 million full-time workers and their families; coverage that starts after the first $2,500 in annual out-of-pocket expenses. Private insurers would administer the Employer Guarantee, while the government would handle Health Care or private plans, as would infant services for at least the first year of a child's life. Inflexible, publicly set doctor fees — based on average Medicare fees in the phase proposed today, suggesting that for elderly or poor participants in Health Care, advisory schedules would be set up for physician reimbursement under private plans. Employers would have to pay at least 75 percent of any premiums; employees no more than 25 percent. Coverage for all 24 million persons on Medicare would be improved, permitting, in one case, the aged and disabled an unlimited number of fully subsidized hospital days after the first day's payment. States would share some of the Health Care cost for low-income eligibles, but would be given about $2 billion in fiscal relief initially. Private insurers would administer the Employer Guarantee, while the government would handle Health Care or private plans, as would infant services for at least the first year of a child's life. Weinberg Considers Board Run

MANCHESTER - An active campaigner for President Jimmy Carter and a past candidate for secretary of state may be running for the Town Board of Directors.

Barbara Weinberg, a Pitkin Street resident, has been contacted by local Democrats to see if she is interested in being a candidate for the board.

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings said she is one of several persons who has expressed interest in running for the board in the past.

Cummings said she is one of several persons who has expressed interest in running for the board in the past. Cummings would not say where else the party has contacted about running this November.

In the past, there have been some hard feelings between some local party members and Mrs. Weinberg. She received support in the secretary of state's race from less than half of the town's delegation to last year's state convention.

Cummings had issued a rather strong statement before the convention that Mrs. Weinberg should not expect a full commitment from the town delegation even though she is a town resident.

Contract Needed For HUD Funds

MANCHESTER - The town will be required to sign a contract with the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development before it can receive an $86,500 grant for planned housing for the elderly on Spencer Street.

Ronald Black, deputy area manager for HUD, said the contract outlines the requirements the town would have to meet and maintain to receive the $86,500, which is extra Community Development money.

The requirements are the same that the town would have to meet to receive funding through the regular Community Development Block Grant program, he said. These include preparation of a Housing Assistance Plan, which lists town goals for providing housing for low- and moderate-income residents, and continuation of fair housing programs.

The $86,500 actually is distributed by the Capital Region Council of Governments. It is extra Community Development money that is not allocated through the regular block grant program.

Town residents April 17 voted to withdraw from that program by a 3-1 vote. Part of the reason for that vote was because of the requirements in order for the town to receive the Community Development funding.

The town attorney's office is studying whether the town could accept the $86,500 because of the language of the ordinance to withdraw approved by the April 17 vote. That withdrawal, however, has been challenged in a court case that still is pending.

Black said if the town fails to meet the requirements, HUD could withhold the $86,500. That decision would be HUD's, even though CROG actually approved the distribution of that amount of funding to Manchester, Black said.

The funding is needed by the town for completion of the proposed 40 units of housing for the elderly. The units would be located next to the existing 40 units on Spencer Street. If the town does not receive the funds, it could have a shortfall of more than $100,000 to pay for the project.

Louis Vuitton, Gucci and Yves St. Laurent had better watch out! The next trendy place for sporting a designer label may be on the road, says an executive of one of the nation's largest tire producers.

Peter McDonald, manager of tire design for The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, says sales of tires labeled with company name and product category in raised white letters are on the upswing.

He likens the trend to the increased popularity of fashions, luggage and accessories with designer labels, and says it's an extension of the fad for driving a car with the model name painted on it.

"In cars, the whole trend began with the large letters that used to be painted on race tires as a form of advertising," he says. "Today, labeled tires are an 'in,' especially on their sports cars."

Actually, I never cared for labels myself. Who cares if it's a dress by Vera, sheets by Yves St. Laurent or a Ferrari gown. In fact, I'd feel rather odd going around with a sign on me. I had a Vera dress once and all evening

Dad is King

Dad will be king for a day in countries where Father's Day is observed on June 17, but in some other parts of the world, he would enjoy just a speck of the royal treatment.

On Palau Island in the South Seas, the ruling matriarchs traditionally could have any male executed if they disapproved of their contemplation. Near Sumatra, dad had to live with his wife's family, children take their mother's name and only daughters inherit property.

Dad was once in even worse shape in India. If father went into debt, mother could sell him into slavery to pay off the creditors. And by custom, Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins

Wellner May Get Post

VERNON - The Rev. Robert H. Wellner, 51, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, is one of the potential nominees for the post of bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut.

Clergy and delegates from the 186 congregations in the diocese will meet Friday at Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford, to elect a bishop coadjutor, who will automatically succeed the present diocesan bishop, the Rt. Rev. Morgan Porteus, on his retirement.

Although actual nominations will be made only after the 9:30 a.m. celebration of the Holy Eucharist, the names and biographies of the 13 clergymen, whom persons have indicated they will nominate, have been circulated.

It is possible that there may be other nominations that morning or that some of the 13 potential nominees will withdraw their names before nomination.

During the election, clergy and lay delegates vote separately. To be elected, a candidate must receive a majority of votes cast by each group on the same ballot.

Don Graff A Capital Issue

At some point back there when early man came out of the caves, or descended from the trees, he commenced refining his behavior. He lost his taste for raw meat. Matrimony became a somewhat more involved matter than grabbing the nearest female topknot. Survival might still be a challenge for the weak and the injured, but they were no longer deliberately exposed to hasten death. We've come a long way, with frequent detours and backtracks, down the road to civilization since those beginnings. But we are still experiencing difficulty, swearing off one deeply rooted tribal practice: the claiming of a life as penalty for a transgression. Capital punishment is as old and as universal as human society itself. Its implementation, however, has undergone considerable refinement down through the centuries. At one time and in some places, the theft of a loaf of bread could mean death in any number of barbarically inventive ways. The supreme penalty gradually came to be reserved for the supreme crime - murder, a life for a life. Only in fairly recent times, and in the West, has refinement reached the point of questioning the basic principle of capital punishment, the justification for the state's taking a life under any circumstances. The death penalty is in effect today in only a few Western countries, the United States notably included. And its existence here is determined by two Supreme Court decisions - a 1972 invalidation of then-existing state laws as arbitrary and discriminatory that did not, however, find the death penalty per se "cruel and unusual" and hence unconstitutional, and a follow-up decision in 1976 upholding rewritten capital statutes in three states. Most other states more or less promptly overhauled their laws along the lines of the approve three-

Thoughts

A recent survey revealed that 90% of Americans say they would welcome more respect for authority and greater emphasis on family ties. Even young people, both in and out of the churches, share these views. The Apostle Paul outlines the correct order of authority in human society: "But I would have you know, that the head of man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God." (1 Cor. 11:3. Where this ordered approach to life is observed happiness tends to prevail. Anarchy and disorder is never a boon to any culture. Families in which there is an absence of structure fail to develop in children a grasp of authority and its purpose. Likely they will fail to develop a wholesome respect for authority elsewhere, making for serious maladjustments to life's circumstances. And without exception such families fail to mature truly close ties. For all people there will come stresses that demand supportive relationships. Blessed is the person who can look to his family at such times! Eugene Brewer, Minister Church of Christ 394 Lydall St. Manchester, Ct. 06040

Letters to the Editor Accurate Nuke Information Needed

To the editor: Certainly the media should present both sides of controversies, but it is time that it found some way to require both sides to be reasonably factual. I do not know what kind of a scientist Chauncy Kepford is, but his testimony before the U.S. House Science and Technology Subcommittee, as presented in Lee Rodrick's June 4 column, is only a replaying of an old anti-nuclear broken record. Kepford recited some well publicized, but poorly understood nuclear plant malfunctions through none of them caused harm to the public. The Enrico Fermi reactor was an experimental reactor, not a commercial reactor. Two of 100 rods sustained heat damage because of a mechanical failure which restricted circulation of the coolant. The reactor was immediately and easily shut down. A well-known fact is categorically impossible under the existing operating conditions. The actual repair time was a few months. Not because of lack, but because of basic safety design principles, there was not a melt-down nor was one very likely, and fatalities as the result of a melt-down would have been much, much less likely. The charge that a large part of Pennsylvania was in jeopardy was preposterous. Incidentally, a good case can be made for assigning a major part of the responsibility for deficiencies in the nuclear safety program to the anti-nuclear members of Congress who have, through their political pressures, prevented the NRC from becoming an effective regulatory body and have made it an anti-nuclear propaganda mill. Kepford, with no proof and apparently the same amount of knowledge, described the NRC's radiation monitoring after the TMI accident as incredibly incompetent. The responsibilities for the Three Mile Island accident, an inexcusable series of mistakes, undoubtedly includes operators, management, the manufacturer, and the NRC. Jack Anderson Ford Criticized For Taking Fee for Speech

WASHINGTON - Former President Gerald Ford received a $10,000 honorarium last June for a speech at a conference that was sponsored by a private South African trade organization, Ford's remarks were later used by pro-government forces as part of the South African government's massive propaganda campaign in support of its segregated apartheid policy, according to authoritative U.S. government sources. In light of the resignation last week of South African President John Vorster for his part in the illegal government funding of the propaganda campaign, Ford's acceptance of a whopping fee is especially embarrassing to the man who is still titular head of the Republican Party. No one is accusing Ford of dishonesty, hypocrisy or supporting racism. His speech was a reflection of his previously known views on South Africa. In the main, he suggested that the United States should not restrict business investments in South Africa or impose other economic sanctions because of apartheid. But as one authoritative government source told our associate Gary Cohn, "Ford used incredibly bad political judgment." Ford's speech was delivered to a conference in Houston sponsored by the South African Foreign Trade Organization, an ostensibly private group. But the conference was, according to a reliable source, "orchestrated" in part by South African Information Minister Cornelius Mulder. He has since resigned for his part in the alleged misuse of $60 million to $120 million in secret government funds to support apartheid policies. The propaganda campaign included alleged payoffs to foreign politicians and journalists, secret funding of a pre-government newspaper in South Africa, and a reported attempt to purchase the Washington (D.C.) Star, presumably as a mouthpiece for South African policies in this country. An official of the South African embassy here insisted that the Houston conference was run by a private group. But he admitted that the trade organization has received some funds from the South African government in the past. "The conference and Ford's speech," a U.S. government source told us, "were part of the South African government's propaganda effort to use American business and political leaders for domestic political ends. The intent of the conference was to land someone like Ford. It was a tremendous political coup and an incredible blunder on Ford's part." Ford's $10,000 speech was used by the South Africans to show that the Carter administration's anti-apartheid stand is not the only - or even the predominant - view in the United States. "For an ex-president of the United States to go to this conference and accept a large honorarium, while knowing that improprieties in the (South African) Department of Information had been alleged, was naive to say the least," the source explained. A source pointed out that Ford is not alone in his acceptance of largesse by supposedly private South African organizations. Several members of Congress and congressional aides have accepted junkets to South Africa, and in some instances the "private" organizations turned out to be fronts for the South African government. "It was inappropriate for Ford to take a large amount of cash under questionable circumstances," the government source said. "It could turn out that the private sponsors were really a front for the Department of Information." Footnote: A spokesman for Ford acknowledged the indisputable facts of Ford's speech and the honorarium involved. But while admitting that the situation was known to be "fraught with peril," the spokesman insisted there was no wrongdoing, because Ford was paid by individual firms and conference participants, not a foreign government.

The Lighter Side Don't Let's Be Beastly

By DICK WEST As a debt collector, Uncle Sam has been badly outdone by the debtors. Let us recapitulate. Last month, using all of their fingers and most of their toes, Treasury accountants calculated the national debt at $665.66 billion. Which proves that Uncle Sam has no peer as a borrower. He is no slouch as a lender either. Offsetting a portion of the $665 billion the government owes the people is $140 billion people owe the government. This means that if Uncle Sam were simultaneously to pay off his debts and collect what he has coming, he would be only $525 billion in the hole. But before you break out in anubas and gladsome hallooing, be advised it isn't likely to happen. The record, as developed by a Senate appropriations subcommittee, indicates that even if Uncle Sam could scrape up the $665 billion he owes, he would fail to extract anywhere near the $140 billion owed to him. In fiscal 1978, the last period for which such figures are available, the government wrote off $3.5 billion in bad debts. For the most part, defaulters were not your basic widows and orphans who would have lost the farm had Uncle Sam foreclosed. According to Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., who recently complained in the Congressional Record about the "simply awful job" of debt collection, many of those who defaulted were "prosperous and affluent individuals who could well afford to pay." Some of the debts deemed uncollectable were owed by "persons who had sufficient credit to secure mortgages on vacation sites or second homes," he said. If Sasser has his way, the advance may soon shift the other way. He has prepared a Senate resolution proposing that the Internal Revenue Service lend other agencies a hand in squeezing deadbeats. Calling on the IRS for assistance in debt collection is roughly equivalent to getting help from the Godfather. Its flint-hearted extraction techniques have been duly celebrated in song and story. Under Sasser's plan, tax returns qualifying for rebates would be checked against delinquent loans and accounts. No remittance, no refund. Sasser said this pitiless process would keep deadbeats from "making a monkey out of the American taxpayer." Maybe so, but to the more compassionate or squeamish citizens, it might seem excessively harsh. Cornering a deadbeat in a dark alley and breaking his fingers is one thing; garnishing the poor devil's tax rebate is quite something else.

Team to Beat Won Picked the "team to beat" in the Hartford Road Dairy Queen's Softball Classic last weekend in Manchester was Huntley's Chasers of Huntington, Long Island.

The New Yorkers proved their advanced billing was no fluke, running through the double elimination play staged at Robertson Park and Fitzgerald Field with a spotless record.

"We've played them five times in the last two years and have yet to win," Coach Larry Morrison of the Queens lamented yesterday.

The Chasers, a most talented squad, are ranked 10th nationally among the fairer set slow pitch squads having posted wins during the past two seasons by 2-1, 3-0, 3-1 and 6-1 margins over the locals.

The Queens came close to breaking the spell Sunday, losing a heart-breaker 2-1 with both New York runs scoring in the last inning after two batters were out.

Paired a second time, the Chasers scored runs in two in three innings and took a 6-1 decision to complete the perfect weekend record.

Stanley Back in Bullpen After Blanking Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Boston right-hander Bob Stanley said "Good-bye" in a manner most major league pitchers would like to say "Hello."

Stanley, in perhaps his final start of the season, needed just 91 pitches Monday night to mow down the Kansas City Royals 4-0 in 10 innings. Stanley allowed only four singles, did not walk a batter and struck out four in putting his record at 1-1.

Stanley now moves out to the Boston bullpen, which has been disappointed by the ineffectiveness of Bill Campbell and an injury to Jim Wright. The Red Sox have already called up Joel Finck, a starting pitcher with a 7-1 record at Pawtucket of the International League, to take Wright's place on the roster.

"I'm glad I went out that way," said Stanley. "If my going to the bullpen helps the ballclub, it's all right with me. I've said for the last couple of years that all I've wanted to do was pitch. I've had my best year (1977) coming out of the bullpen. Maybe I'll do well there. We've got to have more than one guy out there. We don't want to burn Drago (ace reliever Dick) out."

As it turned out, the Jack Kramer I drew as a partner was out of New Haven and was a "no show" for the day.

His name was scratched from the schedule and was assigned a "no name" substitute.

At least for a short while, I had hopes of teaming with the "real" Jack Kramer.

As brilliant in a losing cause for the Royals was Steve Busby, who is still struggling to return from rotator-cuff surgery three years ago. Busby allowed two singles - one on a ninth-inning bunt by Jerry Remy - through nine innings before departing because of a groin pull after issuing back-to-back walks to Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson in the 10th.

Busby was replaced by Marty Pate, whose first pitch was ripped into the left-field corner for a double by Dwight Evans to put the Red Sox in front 2-0.

At Hubrosky came in at that point and issued an intentional walk to George Scott. To load the bases, Blevins threw a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate to score Hobson and Hubrosky's hurried throw to the plate, sailed past catcher Darrell Porter to allow Evans to score from second. Scott went to third on the fly and trotted home with the final run on a groundout by Rick Burleson, ensuring Busby his third loss in five decisions.

"I wished I would have pitched well enough for us to win," said Busby. "I wasn't too happy with my consistency. I got us into some tight spots (six walks) and it eventually cost us the game."

Middletown Tops Legion

Four errors opened the floodgates for four earned runs in the third inning as Middletown Post 75 downed the Middletown American Legion baseball team, 6-5, last night at Eagle Field in a non-league clash.

The game was called after six innings because of darkness at 6 o'clock at Eagle Field against Simsby. It has a return bout Thursday at Middletown before returning to Zone Eight play Friday night against Enfield at 6 o'clock.

Middletown scored twice in the opening frame and four more times in the top of the third for a 6-0 bulge. Manchester got two of those back in the same half on Dave Blaker's two-run homer over the rightfield fence.

Scoring in front of him was Dave Botas who reached on an error.

The locals plated their other marker in the sixth on a double steal, Shawn Spears scoring as Kyle Ayer got himself caught in a rundown between first and second.

Spears was the losing hurler, giving the distance. He was touched for three hits, walked one and struck out seven. Only two Middletown runs were earned. Middletown hurler Brian Hunter was rescued for four innings. He walked two and fanned five.

Today's Games CLEVELAND (UPI) - The Cleveland Indians announced Monday the signing of three more of their draft choices - Cody Rissler of Texas A&M, John Henry Smith of Tennessee State and Dee Medwin of Tulane.

Whether it be Soderholm, Watson or no one ("We can play with 24 men," said Manager Don Zimmer), the Boomers looks to be gone. The deal can be made, the Sox will probably give him his outright release.

Cyclist Reaches His Goal

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter MANCHESTER - Gary Marchuk, 22, of 157 Eldridge St., left town May 7 on his 10-speed bicycle. His goal was San Francisco and Monday he arrived there and received a celebrity's welcome.

Gary called his mother, Mrs. Nancy Marchuk, also of Manchester, to tell her of his safe arrival. He has kept in contact with her throughout the five-week trip, either by phone or by letter. He expects to fly back (with his bike) later this week.

Would he do it again? Well not right away, but his mother did say he said he might try to trip to Florida sometime in the future.

Gary bought the bike he rode, several years ago, with money he collected in his spare time as a paperboy for the Manchester Herald.

His mother said the bike was stolen and stripped once but he retrieved it and put it back together again. She said it was his prime means of transportation for school and for work as he didn't get his driver's license until after he was 18.

When he arrived in San Francisco he was met by television and newspaper reporters and given a certificate of recognition by the March Women's Club which will conduct a "Lunch with Dr. Seuss" program June 20 at 11:30 a.m. at the Douglas Library.

MANCHESTER - School Superintendent Raymond Allen Jr. will report on the staff evaluation program that the Board of Education meets Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Center Building library.

The board will also review reports on the industrial arts program for Grades 9-12 and the home economics program for the same grades and on policies concerning solicitations, immunizations and health counseling.

Under new business the board will discuss election of one new member to the board, the fuel, gasoline and trash disposal suppliers, 1979-80 budget adjustments, the board meeting dates for July, a bus driver application, staff appointments and a resignation.

MANCHESTER - Future public health concerns, including the storage of toxic waste, will be detailed in a report next fall to the Advisory Board of Health.

Buckland Developer Unsure on Housing

SOUTH WINDSOR — The developers of Buckland Commons don't know when they will resubmit an application they withdrew recently concerning rezoning of the residential portion of the development.

John Figuerra, Partner of MAP Associates Inc., the Texas-based developers of the massive residential and commercial complex on adjoining land in both Manchester and South Windsor, said that the developers withdrew the application in order to be able to devote more time to another application currently before the South Windsor zoning commission concerning the commercial portion of the development.

At the last zoning meeting, so much time was spent at the hearing on the commercial zoning application that the meeting had to be cut off for continuation at another date, Figuerra said. He said the reason for the lengthy hearing was the

Board Not Decided On School's Future

BOLTON — Although the Board of Selectmen approved the report of hearing from the Board of Education that Bolton Center School would be turned over to the town, the school board said it is not yet ready to make that commitment.

The two boards met Monday to discuss their future plans. First Selectman Henry Hyba said the selectmen are considering a facility for various town offices and don't know if they should proceed with plans to get a new building or if they will be able to use the school facility.

Joseph Haloburo, school board chairman, said, "At this point we are not ready to commit the building for your transportation. We are still negotiating with the Willington Board of Education to get its students for our high school. We should have an answer from them by January 1980."

Hyba said, "We have to start moving in some direction for town projects." He mentioned the town considering a public safety complex, town garage, paid disposal site, dog pound and town office building.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said, "We have major building projects in mind. What if the town builds an expensive project for office facilities and then you people close the school."

Dog Tag Sales Are Slow

MANCHESTER — Employees in the town clerk's office said that the recent work load for issuing licenses has not let them dog-tag at the end of the day.

But, they wish more persons would come now to pick up their dog tags to prevent the inevitable end-of-the-month rush.

Dog owners are required to purchase licenses for their pet pooches this month. But, through the first 12 days of the month, license-purchasing activity has been slow, workers in the town clerk's office said.

Bertha Laise, an assistant town clerk, said the office has issued only about 500 licenses so far. It usually gives out about 3,000 of the licenses during a year, she said.

This is enough to fill 22 books of dog-license forms. Right now, the office only is working on its fourth book, Mrs. Laise said.

Another worker in the office, Emily Vernon, said the office has sent a representative or representatives to our meetings so we can all share what we are thinking about.

Haloburo said the school board would send representatives to the meetings.

Report Says Garage Best Near Town Hall

COVENTRY — The Garage Site Selection Committee established by the Town Council to investigate various locations for a proposed Public Works garage, has released a report stating that the town owned property behind the Town Hall is its primary choice for site consideration.

The GSC had looked at several sites for possible location, but from its investigations, it was concluded that the town-owned property is the only site that could be feasibly used.

In 1969-71, there was unofficial approval by various town officials at the time, that this area was an ideal site for the location of a town garage. But this approval was never officially documented by any administrative group and considered on this issue never completed.

Other sites considered by the Committee were the land fill area, which was given low priority; private property on Sam Green Road, which at this time is not for sale, state-owned property on Wrights Mill Road, known as Camp Coventry and operated by the Mansfield State Training School, and the Vegetable

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Abby's Treed By This One!

DEAR ABBY: Now it has been disclosed that a certain brand of bread whose advertising claims "40 per cent more fiber" uses wood in part for that fiber!

The following questions come to mind: How much of that bread must I eat in order to bark? Will it help in searching for my roots? Will it make me a budding genius? Will it be easier to get leaves of absence? Will it sap my strength? Will my son be a chip off the old block? I'm ready to climb the walls. (Pained, of course.) I pine for some answers.

MARGARET IN HIGHLAND PARK

DEAR MARGARET: I woeen know.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will celebrate our 40th wedding anniversary soon. Our children plan a party for us in the social hall of our church.

A few years ago you ran a special invitation in your column which I liked very much. It was a nice way of saying "I love you" to my husband. I'm sure others will find it helpful, too. Thank you.
