Rebels Fight

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Sandinista rebels tried to punch through a national guard cordon in the south today to capture the provincial capital of Rivas and establish a provisional capital there.

The guerrillas Sunday scored a major victory in the struggle to oust President Anastasio Somoza, capturing the national guard garrison in Leon, the nation's second largest city, 55 miles northwest of the capital.

The national guard said in a communique Sunday that 700 rebels, crossing from Costa Rica Friday and Saturday, has been contained just north of Sapoa, three miles north of the border.

The commander of the southern column, Eden Pastora, popularly called "Comandante Zero," announced over rebel radio that his immediate objective was break through guard lines in the south to seize Rivas, 19 miles north of Sapoa and declare it a provisional capital.

Brass Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Brookings Institution believes the U.S. armed services — in this age of mechanized weaponry — need graybeards with experience as much or more as they need young, combat-ready troops.

The emphasis on youth over experience may be a mistake, with only three out of every five military personnel regarded as being "fully productive," the institute's study, "Youth or Experience? Manning the Modern Military," said Sunday.

The study said the armed services, "adhering to outdated policies handed down from previous eras, place a greater premium on youth and vigor at the expense of experience," but there would be some new thinking in this respect.

"The ascendancy of technicians and specialists over warriors that has been the result of technological substitution has yielded a more industrialized military institution, a large segment of which closely resembles civilian organizations," it said.

Rubber Accord

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The United Rubber Workers today announced a contract settlement with Uniroyal Co., where 8,500 workers have been on strike since May 9.

A URW spokeswoman would give no details of the proposed three-year Uniroyal pact, but said it did exceed an agreement reached Friday with B.F. Goodrich.

Later today, the union's Big Four advisory committee is to decide which of the two proposals to use as an industry-wide master contract that will also affect Firestone and Goodyear.

The old contract for the 55,000 URW members expired April 21, but rubber workers continued on the job at three of the Big Four rubber producers.

Crews Waiting

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Emergency crews waited high in the Chugach Mountains near the southern end of the $9 billion Alaska pipeline today for the shipment of a metal sleeve that was forged in Anchorage for placement over a thin crack in the line.

The metal sleeve, forged Sunday, was to be flown to the crack site and installed today if it fit properly, said John Ratterman, spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Co.

Workers Saturday placed a temporary clamp over the 3-inch-long, hairline crack to quench the thin stream of crude oil that was spraying out at a rate of about 10 gallons a minute.

Carter, Brezhnev Sign Pact

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev signed the SALT II treaty today in a bid to prevent nuclear catastrophe on earth.

After signing their names 16 times on four treaty documents at a silk-topped table, the two leaders rose and to roaring applause shook hands and hugged each other warmly on the cheek in the European manner.

It was Carter who initiated the embrace. The signing in the ornate Hofburg Palace took place at precisely 1:02 p.m. (8:02 a.m. EDT).

Carter said afterwards that the treaty set the world "on a safer course," and Brezhnev said it "defended man's most sacred right — the right to live."

Carter grinned broadly during the signing and the Kremlin leader smiled. Aides on both sides beamed.

Then Brezhnev began an address in which he said, "In signing this treaty we are helping to defend the most sacred right of every man — the right to live."

"By concluding the SALT II treaty we are making a major step forward along the road of overall improvement of Soviet-American relations and consequently of the entire international climate," the 72-year-old Soviet leader said.

Carter, speaking next, said, "In setting our hands to this treaty, we set our nations on a safer course ... Mr. President, we both have children and grandchildren and we want them to live, and to live in peace ..."

The huge ballroom of the Hofburg Palace, where five emperors met in the Congress of Vienna in 1814 and where Ludwig van Beethoven premiered his Seventh Symphony, was packed with diplomats, government officials and press.

Crystal chandeliers lit the elegant room as Carter and Brezhnev took the only two seats at the gold leaf and silk covered table.

During Brezhnev's speech the American president sat with his hands clasped on the silk covered, gold-leaf decorated table. Carter, in a statement after the signing, called the treaty "a victory in the battle for peace."

He said, "The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which have gone on for nearly 10 years without interruption represent the realization that a nuclear arms competition without shared rules ... is an invitation to disaster."

His hands clasped throughout, the 54-year-old Carter said to Brezhnev, "Mr. President, we both have children and grandchildren and we want them to live, and to live in peace. We both have worked hard to give our own and our nations children that security."

Carter said, "Each of us has only one nation. We both share the same world. Not one nation on this earth, not one people, not one human being is harmed, or deprived by this victory in the battle for peace. A victory is here for all."

In a hushed ceremony at the Hofburg Palace, the world's two most powerful men signed their names 16 times each on documents comprising the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

Seated at the table Emperor Franz Josef I used in the 19th century for meetings of his privy council, the leaders put their signatures to four documents — the 22-page SALT treaty, its two-page protocol and its 43 pages of subsidiary documents.

"The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, which have gone on for nearly 10 years without interruption, represent the realization that a nuclear arms competition without shared rules, without verifiable limits and without continuing dialogue is an invitation to disaster," Carter said.

"Such an unrestrained competition would tempt the fate and the future and would insult our intelligence and would threaten the existence of humanity."

Addressing the 72-year-old Brezhnev, he said, "Mr. President, we both have children and we want them to live, and to live in peace. We both have worked hard to give our own and our nations' children that security."

Carter said, "As we set careful limits on our power, we draw boundaries around our fears of one another. As we begin to control our fears we can better insure our future. "In setting our hands to this treaty, we set our nations on a safer course," he said.

The ailing Kremlin leader said, "In signing this treaty we are helping to defend the most sacred right of every man — the right to live. By concluding the SALT II treaty we are making a major step forward along the road of overall improvement of Soviet-American relations and consequently of the entire international climate."

The treaty limits the two superpowers to 2,400 strategic missiles and heavy bombers each. That ceiling will drop to 2,250 after Dec. 31, 1981.

This limit will require the Soviets to reduce their missile force by some 250 missiles but will allow the United States to add nearly 400 if it should choose to do so.

It will allow each side to build one new strategic missile and the United States announced immediately before the summit — at which Carter and Brezhnev met for the first time — that it would proceed with the development of the land-mobile strategic missile called MX.

Talks at Capitol Frustrate Truckers

Transportation Commissioner Arthur Powers told the truckers they could increase their truck lengths by 5-feet to 60-feet, giving them more cab room. He said the permit would be in effect while the issue is studied.

The issues of truck weights, left lane restrictions and cheaper diesel were left unresolved.

"We're the people who haul your food," Chuck Herrick, a trucker based in California, said at the end of the meeting. "We're going to take our trucks and sell them and we're not going to haul your food."

Herrick's rig was one of about 30 that pulled up near the Capitol before the meeting at a state office building between Powers, Public Safety Commissioner Donald Long and Undersecretary for Energy Thomas Fitzpatrick.

The officials, six independent truckers, and five representatives of truck stops where drivers have staged blockades, gathered around a conference table to thrash out the problems.

The truckers met last week with Gov. Ella Grasso, but she told them there was little she could do about the high diesel fuel prices. The drivers then continued to cut off diesel sales by blocking pumps at various stations.

Following the meeting, the truckers said they would gather across from a Union-76 station in Branford, where they staged a park-in last week. Their representatives met at the Capitol with Rep. Gerard Paton, R-Milford.

A decision on whether the blockades will continue was expected later. The truckers removed their rigs from a Southington station earlier Monday. They also staged a short, overnight blockade at the R&R Truck Stop in North Stonington.

Bob Jacks, one of the owners of the Union 76-American Eagle Truck Stop off Interstate 84 in Southington, met Sunday with the truckers and reached an agreement calling for them to break up the blockade around 7 a.m. today.

A truck stop spokesman said the truckers agreed to leave for Hartford at that time for the meeting to discuss their complaints about high fuel prices and state regulations.

The truckers are upset about Connecticut's left-lane prohibition for their vehicles and the 73,000-pound weight limit. Forty-seven other states allow trucks weighing up to 80,000 pounds on their highways.

An annual attempt to increase the weight limit was defeated earlier this year in the Legislature, with lawmakers saying higher weights could mean increased problems for the state's already deteriorating roads. Mrs. Grasso told truckers who blockaded diesel pumps at three stops in Milford and Branford last week that there wasn't much she could do for them.

The truckers last Friday to end their four-day blockade of pumps at the two stops on the Connecticut Turnpike in Milford after the owner of one of the stops said he'd drop trespassing charges against nine drivers arrested last week when the blockade began.

In Concord, N.H., about 15 independent tractor-trailer drivers surrounded the New Hampshire Statehouse with their rigs and were told by Gov. Hugh Gallen that he will be their voice in Washington.

Citizen Unit Raps Report on Police

EAST HARTFORD — The crime prevention committee of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group has criticized a report by a consultant on police operations and procedures, calling the two-page study "totally inadequate."

The Rev. Alphonse Labieniec, a member of EHCAG's crime committee, called on Mayor Richard H. Blackstone to either justify the report or implement the proposed reforms in it by July 4.

"This report is totally inadequate," the Rev. Labieniec said. "We made a number of recommendations in a 20-page research report of our own and most of them weren't even addressed."

Pat Langevin, a member of the group and a Main Street merchant, called the report a "whitewash" by the mayor.

Mrs. Langevin said the group has anxiously awaited the report since last November, when the mayor announced he would order the study.

"After six months we end up with a six paragraph letter from a person who was in town a day and a half, telling us everything is fine," she said.

"We told the mayor in November that we didn't want this study to be a substitute for action," she said. "But that's what we've gotten. It seems the mayor is trying to whitewash the whole issue."

The group members said they've waited long enough and they want concrete answers and action.

The study, released two weeks ago, said the police department generally performs well.

But Tamm said the department has insufficient street supervision and, often, the highest ranking officer of supervision is only a sergeant.

Tamm, a former FBI training director, also supported Police Chief Clarence A. Drumm's cruiser district system, which EHCAG has opposed.

EHCAG pushed last fall for a return to neighborhood cruiser beats as a way to more effectively prevent crime, group members said.

They said neighborhood beats would allow officers to become more familiar with areas and residents and would allow residents to become more familiar with the police.

Blackstone ordered the study after repeated complaints from EHCAG members and other citizens about the police department's cruiser beat system.

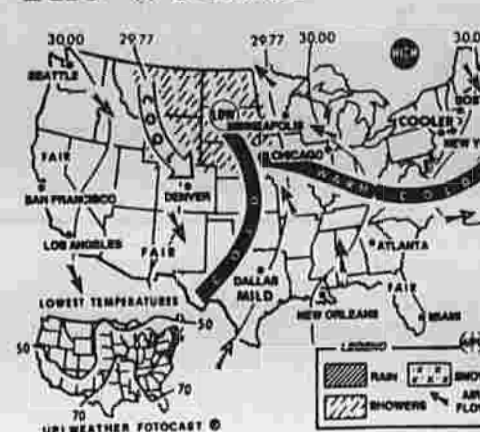

Cape Cod Air Crash

The Almanac

By United Press International Today is Monday, June 18, the 169th day of 1979 with 196 to follow. The moon is moving toward Mars. The morning stars are Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter. Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini. American capitalist Henry Clay Edger was born June 18, 1857. On this day in history: In 1812, the United States declared war on Britain for the second time in its brief history as an independent nation. In 1815, Napoleon was defeated at the Battle of Waterloo in Belgium. In 1972, a jetliner crashed near London, killing all 118 aboard. It was Britain's worst air disaster. In 1978, American astronaut Charles Conrad, Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz entered their 25th day in the Skylab space station, breaking a living-in-space record set by the Russians in 1971. A thought for the day: French writer Sebastian Chamfort said, "The most wasted day of all is that on which we have not laughed."

Hope Fires Jokes Like Machine Gun

It was just like the road shows of yore - but this one was on location, with Bob Hope firing one-liners like machine-gun bullets. He'll be in China for 27 days, filming a three-hour television spectacular, and Sunday he did Peking - plastering his own show poster on "Democracy Wall," wielding a golf club to put a ball beneath the foot of a huge bronze lion in the Forbidden City and handing out pictures to Chinese citizens - few of whom had the foggiest notion of who he was.

At the traditional 25-course Chinese dinner, he quipped, "It looks as if it's sponsored by Alka Seltzer... If you don't eat fast, you bite back." And on that famed Chinese specialty - 100-year-old fermented eggs - "They have some eggs here that I laid in Philadelphia."

Big Rubles

The heavyweights have slugged it out before at Caesars Palace - in boxing, tennis, bowling, even world championship poker. Now the Kings of the chess board will enter the Las Vegas hotel-casino arena for a single winner-take-all match with a $20,000 prize. The challenger - American grandmaster Walter Shawn Browne - will go up against Soviet world champion Anatoly Karpov in September. Browne initially challenged Karpov to a $20,000 match, but the champ turned him down - said the purse wasn't big enough to risk the dent a loss would put in his crown. But the hotel-casino anted up the balance for the big money and Karpov accepted.

Rock Shell Shock

Rod Stewart plays music to make anybody's ears ring, but it took a while to clear his own Saturday. The rock star turned off the amps after one of the 14,000 screams at his San Francisco concert tossed a cherry bomb onto the stage. At first, police thought he'd been shot. No one was hurt, but Stewart was so rattled by the explosion he had to take a 10-minute break to recover.

Shampoo Rinse

Los Angeles musician Bermane Mann says Warren Beatty swiped her script when he made "Shampoo" for Columbia pictures, and a Superior Court jury agrees. She's been awarded $185,000 to repair the damage. Columbia, which produced the film detailing the sexual exploits of a male hairdresser in Hollywood, also was found liable. Mrs. Mann, who left her job after developing Parkinson's disease, wrote a script she called "Women Plus" based on her experiences in a beauty salon. She submitted the script - after registering it with the Writer's Guild - to Columbia Pictures and says she never got it back. Beatty denies it all, but he has to pay up.

Quote of the Day

Soul singer Teddy Pennergrass, answering a roar of applause from 1,000 inmates at another of his "for women only" concerts at the California Institution for Women in Chino, Calif.: "What are nice girls like you doing in a place like this?"

Glimpses

Barry Manilow, returning to Arista Records studio in Hollywood for the first time in two years to make a new record, toasted the event during the weekend, saying, "We hope that this is as good a year for albums as it is for champagne." Joan Mondale, wife of Vice President Mondale and author of a book on modern art, stopped briefly in Paris Sunday to visit the Georges Pompidou Cultural Center, which houses France's largest modern art collection. Kathy Crosby and Hugh O'Brien are in New York rehearsing "Guys and Dolls" for a summer tour to begin June 24 in Kansas City, Mo. ...

Swimming in Reservoirs Keeps Forest Chief Busy

By DAVE LAVALLÉE Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY - As always at this time of year, swimming becomes a popular activity. It's just too bad that some of this swimming takes place at public drinking supplies. For Forest Manager and Special Policeman George Murphy of the Manchester Water Department, this is a particularly busy time of year. His department has already made 13 arrests this month for persons criminally trespassing on Manchester water property at Buckingham Reservoir.

In all, his department has made 30 arrests since the beginning of the season at both Buckingham and Porter Reservoir in Manchester. "Most of the people that we have caught are kids, who are drinking, taking drugs and swimming. These kids are always underage or have just reached legal drinking age," Murphy said. Murphy, along with land and soil analyst Thomas Perla, just obtained their special police status two weeks ago from the state, Murphy said. "We used to have a patrolman who handled these duties," Murphy said. "But he retired, so we had to do something so we could take action."

The department has sent all 30 arrests to the prosecutor and Murphy said that since he and Perla have been keeping close watch on the reservoirs, trespassing has diminished.

Murphy said that there are federal restrictions which prohibit swimming in a public drinking supply. He said that at the Porter Reservoir in Manchester the problem is not just with Manchester residents. "We have caught people swimming there who come from Wethersfield, East Hartford and as far away as California, Vermont and Hartford," Murphy said. "The parents should know that these kids are drinking their brains out," Murphy emphasized. Murphy said that no one has been hurt at the reservoirs yet. "Police in both towns have been excellent. In Glastonbury whenever we call for extra assistance, they are always right there with a cruiser. In Manchester, they have also been cooperative, but they are a little bit short on manpower," Murphy said.

Giles Seeks Sewer Talks

MANCHESTER - Jay Giles, the town's director of public works, wants to meet with representatives of the Eight District to discuss future sewerage work that would affect South Windsor.

South Windsor and Manchester have been negotiating in recent weeks about a sewage agreement between the two towns. The agreement says that both towns will install sewer lines in the district's territory. Giles said that he is more efficient and less costly to do so. South Windsor officials feel the Eight District's involvement could jeopardize the Manchester-South Windsor sewage agreement, but Manchester officials have assured them that the terms of the agreement will be met.

State Checks Gas Prices

HARTFORD (UPI) - A state survey will probably show violations in how prices are posted at the pumps - and not price gouging - is the major problem at Connecticut's 3,100 gasoline stations, a state official says.

"We feel the dealers here in Connecticut are acting in a responsible manner," said Joseph Belanger, deputy director of the state's Energy Division, "and I will be extremely surprised if we uncover any widespread gouging." Belanger said a team of investigators visited every gas station in the state last week to gather data for the new pricing task force.

AARP Installs Morasco

MANCHESTER - Francesco Morasco of 59 Alfred St. was installed recently as president and director of the Manchester Chapter No. 1275 of the American Association of Retired Persons. He and other officers were installed at the chapter's seventh annual meeting held at Willie's Steak House.

The Rainy Day Trio entertained with a program of songs to guitar accompaniment. The new officers and working committee will meet Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon at the First Federal Savings at 34 W. Middle Turnpike. Other officers elected are Fred Morzer, Mary Warren, Lucille Lillian Shensie, second vice president/director; Florence

White Gown Stands Out In Graduation at Tech

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Dressed in her white gown, Cheryl Wask looked different from her 91 other classmates who graduated Friday night from Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School. And, even though she said she felt no different than her fellow graduates, there was no denying she was Friday, she became the first female graduate of Cheney Tech. Her attitude probably varied little from that of most of the 91 males in the class.

Let's put it this way, I'm glad to be out of here," she said with a smile. It's not that she didn't enjoy her stay. She said she seldom doubted her decision to attend the area's technical high school.

Members Being Sought For Youth Commission

MANCHESTER - The town's Youth Commission is seeking applications from young persons interested in becoming members.

Kevin Moriarty, chairman of the commission, announced applications for membership will be available at Manchester Community College, Manchester High School, Bennett Junior High School and Hilling Junior High School. The applications also may be obtained at Mary Cheney Library and the Municipal Building. The commission was formed last year to discuss and work on those problems that affect youths in Manchester. Most of its members are under 21, but there also are some adult members. The Town Board of Directors also passed some new regulations for the commission. These regulations, approved last week, establish an advisory board to oversee the commission's work. The board will consist of representatives from the Youth Services Department, the Police Department, the school administration, Crossroads and the Manchester Community Services Council. Appointments to the commission will be made in July. New members will be needed to replace some of the students on the commission who will be leaving for college in the fall. Meetings of the commission are scheduled for the third Wednesday of each month.

Senate Assaults Electoral College

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The electoral college has persisted throughout the 200 years of American history despite the fact that three times it resulted in denying the presidency to the candidate who won the most votes.

The system faces its greatest assault this week in the Senate, with the outcome very much in doubt. The House has laid out a busy schedule for itself this week after lumbering through last week by passing only one bill and postponing others. Key bills on tap would implement the Panama Canal treaty; create a department of education, and order President Carter to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia by Oct. 15 - but only if he considered it in the U.S. interest to do so. However, there are already signs the Panama Canal bill, which has been pulled back several times for lack of votes, may again be withdrawn. The education bill, which has been stalled by GOP-delaying tactics, also may be pulled. But Democratic leader Robert Byrd says the Senate will begin - no later than Thursday - debating a constitutional amendment providing direct popular elections of presidents.

In past years, such a move had little grass-roots support. The political climate has changed, and newer polls show the amendment has broad backing nationwide - but it still faces serious opposition in the Senate from some conservative and many small-state senators. The amendment has been pressed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and others since 1966. The House approved it 339-70 in 1970, but attempts to bring it to a vote in the Senate were foiled by a session-ending filibuster that year and by the inability to pry it out of the Judiciary Committee in other years. A filibuster is considered certain for this year, but supporters surely can get the 60 votes needed to cut off a talkathon if they hope to win the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

"As has often been said, the system has backfired three times - in 1824, 1876 and 1888 - when the candidate who received the most votes did not move into the White House," Byrd said. "I wonder what kind of a mandate a president would have today if he won in the electoral college, but was not the choice of a majority of the American people?" he asked. The constitutional amendment would abolish not only the electoral college, but the winner-take-all system under which each state gets a fixed number of electoral votes. At present, all electoral votes go to the winner in that state with nothing for the loser even to the difference in the popular vote is minuscule. Under the amendment, a president would be elected by direct popular vote on a nationwide basis. If no candidate received 40 per cent of the vote, there would be a runoff between the top two winners.

Turn Changes Suggested

VERNON - With the July 1 date fast approaching when the "right turn on red" law goes into effect, the Vernon Traffic Authority has made some recommendations to the state Department of Transportation.

All of the traffic lights in town are owned by the state. Police Chief Fritz said that information obtained by phone, from the state, would reduce the number of signs that are ready to go. Some signs prohibiting the turn on red because of advanced turns would be removed, the chief said. Those signs prohibiting the turn on red at Elm Street and West Main Street, the officer recommends that the no turn on red sign be removed.

Two Struck and Killed By Ambulance on I-86

MANCHESTER - Two Southbury, Mass. men were struck and killed by a speeding ambulance as they crossed Interstate 86 after their car had run out of gasoline late Sunday night, police said.

The victims were identified as Clifford Torres, 36, and Germaine Alicia, 30, who police said were riding with friends when the car ran out of gas near exit 94 in the east-bound lane. Police said the two men got out because they expected other friends from Southbury shortly and were going to wait for them. The two crossed over into the west bound lane to get some coffee at a nearby restaurant and were crossing back with the ambulance struck them. Police said the ambulance, which was transporting a heart attack victim from Stafford Springs to Hartford, was traveling 85 miles per hour and was in the left lane. The accident occurred at approximately 11:40 p.m. under misty conditions, police said. There was no lighting on the highway and the men wore dark clothing. The ambulance had its red lights flashing, police said. Another ambulance was dispatched to the scene to transport the heart patient, a 48-year-old woman, to Hartford Hospital, police said. No charges have been filed, police said, and the accident is still under investigation.

White Gown Stands Out In Graduation at Tech

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Dressed in her white gown, Cheryl Wask looked different from her 91 other classmates who graduated Friday night from Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School. And, even though she said she felt no different than her fellow graduates, there was no denying she was Friday, she became the first female graduate of Cheney Tech. Her attitude probably varied little from that of most of the 91 males in the class.

Let's put it this way, I'm glad to be out of here," she said with a smile. It's not that she didn't enjoy her stay. She said she seldom doubted her decision to attend the area's technical high school.

Members Being Sought For Youth Commission

MANCHESTER - The town's Youth Commission is seeking applications from young persons interested in becoming members.

Kevin Moriarty, chairman of the commission, announced applications for membership will be available at Manchester Community College, Manchester High School, Bennett Junior High School and Hilling Junior High School. The applications also may be obtained at Mary Cheney Library and the Municipal Building. The commission was formed last year to discuss and work on those problems that affect youths in Manchester. Most of its members are under 21, but there also are some adult members. The Town Board of Directors also passed some new regulations for the commission. These regulations, approved last week, establish an advisory board to oversee the commission's work. The board will consist of representatives from the Youth Services Department, the Police Department, the school administration, Crossroads and the Manchester Community Services Council. Appointments to the commission will be made in July. New members will be needed to replace some of the students on the commission who will be leaving for college in the fall. Meetings of the commission are scheduled for the third Wednesday of each month.

Senate Assaults Electoral College

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The electoral college has persisted throughout the 200 years of American history despite the fact that three times it resulted in denying the presidency to the candidate who won the most votes.

The system faces its greatest assault this week in the Senate, with the outcome very much in doubt. The House has laid out a busy schedule for itself this week after lumbering through last week by passing only one bill and postponing others. Key bills on tap would implement the Panama Canal treaty; create a department of education, and order President Carter to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia by Oct. 15 - but only if he considered it in the U.S. interest to do so. However, there are already signs the Panama Canal bill, which has been pulled back several times for lack of votes, may again be withdrawn. The education bill, which has been stalled by GOP-delaying tactics, also may be pulled. But Democratic leader Robert Byrd says the Senate will begin - no later than Thursday - debating a constitutional amendment providing direct popular elections of presidents.

In past years, such a move had little grass-roots support. The political climate has changed, and newer polls show the amendment has broad backing nationwide - but it still faces serious opposition in the Senate from some conservative and many small-state senators. The amendment has been pressed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and others since 1966. The House approved it 339-70 in 1970, but attempts to bring it to a vote in the Senate were foiled by a session-ending filibuster that year and by the inability to pry it out of the Judiciary Committee in other years. A filibuster is considered certain for this year, but supporters surely can get the 60 votes needed to cut off a talkathon if they hope to win the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

"As has often been said, the system has backfired three times - in 1824, 1876 and 1888 - when the candidate who received the most votes did not move into the White House," Byrd said. "I wonder what kind of a mandate a president would have today if he won in the electoral college, but was not the choice of a majority of the American people?" he asked. The constitutional amendment would abolish not only the electoral college, but the winner-take-all system under which each state gets a fixed number of electoral votes. At present, all electoral votes go to the winner in that state with nothing for the loser even to the difference in the popular vote is minuscule. Under the amendment, a president would be elected by direct popular vote on a nationwide basis. If no candidate received 40 per cent of the vote, there would be a runoff between the top two winners.

Coventry Graduation

Search for Success, Grads Told

As friends and families snap some candid shots, members of the Coventry High School graduating class file across the field during ceremonies Saturday. (Herald photos by Adamson)

COVENTRY — "We must continue to grow and search for our own individual success," Brenda England, valedictorian for the class of 1979, told graduates and friends and relatives Saturday at the Coventry High School commencement exercises.

"At times things have not gone smoothly, but I feel that this class is one who has shared much and has become a very close knit group," Miss England said.

Dennis Joy, principal of the school, presided over the ceremony, complimented the class on its cooperation and the pride they had for the school.

Patrick Cromie, class salutatorian, gave a very philosophical speech, saying, "This is the culmination of twelve years of good work and close relationships," and reminded graduates that "tomorrow is better than a thousand yesterdays." He also said that "too many people search only for protection and this does not allow for growth. 'On the threshold of a new decade, we need people to carry the world and not hide behind protective walls.'" he said.

Joy commended the students for their achievements, saying that the most class of '79 had collected the most money of any class in the history of the school with extracurricular activities and programs.

At the end of the ceremony, the benediction was given by the Rev. Robert Edmiston, and "Pomp and Circumstances" was played by the Coventry High School Symphonic Band.

Lot of Gold in Rings

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The Balfour Co., which began the Don't look now, but this year's class ring tradition in 1885 at West Point, says rings have never been more popular. The Gold Institute, an industry organization based in Washington, says 460,000 ounces of gold were used in rings for the 2.1 million high school and 400,000 college members of the Class of 1979.

Hebron Meeting Slated

HEBRON — A special meeting will be conducted tonight at 6 in the Hebron Elementary School gymnasium. The meeting has four items on the agenda. The first item is to receive and take action on a budget document including the use of Federal Revenue Sharing funds, for the fiscal year 1979-80, as recommended by the Board of Finance. This budget totals $3,945,438 for both the general government and the elementary school budget. The second item is to elect two members to the Regional Board of Education for four years which start July 1, 1979, and end June 30, 1983. Both incumbent candidates, Frances Danaber and Andrew Mulligan have expressed interest in seeking these positions again. The third item is to authorize the Board of Selectmen to enter into agreements with the State Department of Transportation for the expenditure of funds now available or to become available for the next fiscal year July 1, 1979 to June 30, 1980 for the improvement and maintenance of town roads. The final item is to act upon the Town Reports for the fiscal years 1975-1976 and 1976-1977 as printed.

MACC News

We're in the United Way

I know you share with us our pleasure upon receiving the announcement that the Manchester Area Conference of Churches has been unanimously voted into membership of the United Way of Manchester. Six other agencies are members of the United Way of Manchester: Manchester Public Health Nurses, Homemakers River East, Child and Family Services, Manchester Community Child Guidance Clinic, Lutz Junior Museum, Manchester Association for Retarded Citizens.

The position of human needs coordinator, so ably filled by Joanne Mikoliet, is essentially the social services department of MACC. It is through this staff position that so many of our crisis intervention services and aid to low income elderly and families are coordinated. Such services include: human needs fund, the fuel bank, emergency food pantry and clothing bank, etc.

We look forward to a long and fruitful relationship with the United Way as we continue to seek ways to provide food, clothing, shelter, counseling, financial help and other supportive services to those Manchester residents in crisis situations for whom no other services or resources are available.

Project Explore became a reality last Monday. What is Project Explore? Read next week's column and we will share the rest of our good news.

Pentecost Sunday Speaking of celebrations, and a joyful spirit, we had a remarkable example of spirit over circumstances at the Pentecost celebration. The bells began to ring and the rain to fall at one and the same moment. In spite of clouds, showers, and confusion 100 brave souls were welcomed by Rev. Dale Gustafson and undaunted by the rain drops. The marvelous crew who are members of the Division of Christian Unity did a hasty shuffle, rearranged all the stations on the bandshell itself, urged people who had come in spite of the drizzle to furl their umbrellas and raise their voices in celebration and fellowship.

The Family Journey to Worship was shared by a Christian family from many religious roots and experiences. (At a rough estimate I would say our oldest celebrant was in his 70's and our youngest around 2.)

Carolyn Ramsey (South Methodist) held her listeners spellbound with her dramatic story telling of 'O Happy Day.' Jim Irvine (Second Congregational) and Judy Torstenson (Emanuel Lutheran) were leaders of the station where we made wooden crosses and then donned them as part of our profession of faith. A special thank you to Jim and Roscoe Thompson who prepared all the pieces of wood. Ambrose Diehl (South Methodist) helped us put message of love and joy on balloons to share with friends and neighbors (a most appropriate station for Ambrose since he is the radio ministry coordinator for MACC.) Our beloved Shirley Stagor (Center Congregational) and Roberta Macaro (United) were sacred dancers (Never thought I would, but with seventies and toddlers dancing around me I couldn't resist joining them.) Our experiences together were incorporated into a Margaret Kehler and worship service directed by Phyllis Stratbowski of Ric and Pam Quental. Christmas Unity Next year The music was a special gift and we thank Harry Carr (St. Bartholomew) and a very ecumenical and spirited group of singers and guitarists for our MACC display on the left wall as you go into the clouds dispersed, the wind dries the grass and hears Jerri Lemelin, Marge Holmes, Pet Utting, Jarce Holmes, Richard Neale, into June. Our thanks to

Gordon Dean for helping us make arrangements. The Library is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thank You To Mr. & Mrs. Russell McKendrick who have joined our growing list of MACC sponsors and to Mrs. Alfred (Doris) Schimmel who has recently become a MACC sponsor. To Elsie Swenson and Mrs. Sarah Hoffman and several anonymous "Friends" for donations to the MACC Emergency Pantry. To Arlene Mayer for her donation to FISH. To Donald Cornell, Mrs. Cobill, Mrs. Schackner for mattresses for Laotian refugees. Notices Vacation Bible School Dates — Trinity Covenant July 9-13 (9 a.m.-noon), Concordia Lutheran. Call the churches for registration information.

High School Junior Pageant Runner-Up

Lori Pelikan

SOUTH WINDSOR — Miss Lori Pelikan, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pelikan of South Windsor, a junior at South Windsor High School, has been selected as first runner-up in the eighth annual Miss Connecticut National Teen-Ager Pageant held in Meriden.

Miss Pelikan was sponsored by Andrew Oil Company, Larry's Auto Supply and Richards and Kethma Realty Estate.

From among more than 500 applicants, 50 girls were chosen as finalists to participate in the state pageant which was the official state finals for the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant. Each contestant was judged on scholastic achievement, leadership, poise, personality, and beauty.

The first place winner was Carolyn Pendergast of Preston and she will represent Connecticut at the national pageant to be held in Atlanta, Ga. in August. Miss Pelikan will serve as alternate.

SWHS Grads Have A Touch of Class

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Reporter

SOUTH WINDSOR — Three hundred and sixty-one members of the class of 1979 — called by faculty and students the "class with a touch of class" — solemnly marched the winding path from the high school to the grounds on Nevins Road for commencement ceremonies Saturday evening.

A gentle breeze provided some relief from the hot, humid air and tugged playfully at the traditional mortar board hats and angel winged graduation robes.

Girls in gold carrying a single red rose and boys in maroon appeared dignified and reverent as they were led to the roped seating area by Principal Gregory Plunkett.

Hundreds of relatives and friends with lawn chairs and blankets tilted the soccer field and adjacent hill to witness the graduation ceremony of what most teachers said was a "very special class."

Salutatorian Aris A. Harrison praised the "caring faculty" of South Windsor High School.

"The class of 1979 is a class with a touch of class," said Miss Harrison. "We have learned respect for one another. We have learned what cooperation is all about."

Miss Harrison said that some years ago every member of the class knew what they wanted to be when they grew up.

"The answer came easy then," said Miss Harrison, "but now the question is a more urgent one and the answers come harder."

Miss Harrison told her classmates that it was not wealth or prestige that were important in life but rather genuine happiness and security and a sense of purpose.

"These are the important things in life," said Miss Harrison.

Valictorian Deborah T. Gobetz said the class of 1979 is a class with a touch of class. "We have had the opportunity to develop our individual talents and interests while students at South Windsor High School," said Miss Gobetz. "There is a new spirit of the class of 1979 which has lent a positive tone."

Thirty nine of the 361 students in the class of 1979 graduated as South Windsor Distinguished Scholars with an A average for four years of high school.

Grads Show Name Trend

SOUTH WINDSOR — What's a name? Most would answer "nothing," but a quick scan of the graduation lists of the past few decades would indicate a definite trend in names, especially for girls babies.

Parents of the South Windsor class of 1979 had the advantage of published books on "what to name the baby" when the members of this year's graduating class were born in 1961.

Although a few traditional names such as "Mary" and "Ann" popped up on this year's graduation roster, the graduation named "Lisa" were still in a definite majority with 13 girls named "Lisa" part of the class of 1979.

"Susan" was the second most prevalent girl's name on the list with "Debra" running a close third. Four years ago the name Debra or Deborah was the name chosen by most parents of girl babies in 1967.

Boys still seem to be named in a traditional manner in 1961, with "Robert," "Michael," and "James" heading the list.

Names such as "Ruth" and "Alice," popular during the 1930's were missing from today's graduation lists and the vast number of "Judy's" graduated during the 1960's has dwindled down to one in the class of 1979.

LEND AN ARM

We don't want it for long. We do want it for life. For the life of some patient in a hospital here or in a nearby community.

You see, it's more than your arm itself that's important to us. It's what can come from your arm.

That's blood. Blood that can mean life to an infant, a student, a parent, a retiree. Or maybe all of them.

We're not fussy whether it's your right or left arm you prefer to lend us. We're looking for the arm that stretches out to hug people back to health. You can help us find it.

BLOOD...Let's get it TOGETHER

Connecticut Departments of Income Maintenance and Human Resources Have Moved To
330 Broad Street, Manchester

The Manchester Office shared by the State Department of Income Maintenance and the State Department of Human Resources has moved to a new location off Broad Street in the shopping plaza with the King and the Marshall's stores.

The new office is on a ground level and is designed to provide access for handicapped persons.

The Manchester Office has responsibility for helping persons interested in the following programs:

- Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC)
- Work Incentive Program (WIN) for AFDC recipients
- Food Stamps
- Medicaid
- The State Supplement to the Supplemental Security Income Program (Aid to the Aged, Blind, and Disabled)
- Adult Preventive and Protective Services
- Children's Protective Services

The Department of Income Maintenance and the Department of Human Resources were formerly one agency called the Department of Social Services. The phone number for the Manchester Office remains 647-1441.

RV Rule Plan Tabled; Swensson Says It's Needed

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — A proposed change to regulate the parking of recreational vehicles has been tabled indefinitely, but the person who suggested the regulation still feels it is needed.

Joseph Swensson Jr., a member of the town's Planning and Zoning Commission, feels the final product of the PZC will be less restrictive than the existing proposal, but he feels something is needed.

Swensson originally suggested such a regulation after receiving some complaints from town residents about neighbors who park several such vehicles on their front lawn.

The Planning Office drew up a proposed regulation that would prohibit the parking of such vehicles on front or side yards and established distance requirements for parking near streets or other properties.

The proposal has drawn much public reaction since it was first introduced, and the PZC decided to table the matter indefinitely while it considers possible changes or rewording.

The PZC, which is guided by light timetables for most of its decisions, could table this matter indefinitely because it is a proposal it introduced itself. Thus, the timetables that guide applications for zone changes and subdivisions do not apply.

Swensson said of the tabling, "It bothers me because I think we should take some action." But, he also said he understands the reason for the tabling since the PZC has many other matters to consider.

"I think there's a need for it," he said of the proposal. He said some residents have parked several trailers, campers or mobile homes in front yards.

"That's showing no consideration for the neighbors," he said. "He said the proposed regulation might be too restrictive for some persons with small lots, so he thinks some changes might have to be made. But, he feels such a compromise still should deal with those flagrant violators who have been parking several vehicles on their front lawn."

Attracted to Cults
NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York psychiatrist whose specialty is cult-involved teen-agers says certain young people are more vulnerable than others.

Dr. Alex Deutsch of the Cabrini Mental Health Clinic says students who are unsure of their future plans and who long for a sense of belonging are especially attracted to cult life.

Donations of Blood Big Need

MANCHESTER — Local Red Cross officials are asking that before taking off for vacation, you give some thought to those who will not be able to enjoy a vacation this year but must stay in hospital rooms.

The need for blood takes no vacation; it is needed even more during the long summer months than in the winter. Red Cross officials say. Donors are being asked to give blood and share their good health with others before leaving for their good times.

The bloodmobile will be in Manchester on Wednesday, June 20 from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Temple Beth Shalom, 400 E. Middle Turnpike.

Appointments may be made by contacting the Manchester Red Cross office at 645-5111. Anyone in good health between the ages of 18 and 66 years of age may donate blood of all types is urgently needed.

Red Cross urges you to do a good deed — be a blood donor.

Eva Donita Tiner and Raymond William DeZeno Jr., both of Fairfield, were married June 16 at Trinity Baptist Church in Fairfield.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie C. Tiner Sr. of Miami, Fla., formerly of Vernon. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. DeZeno Sr. of Fairfield.

The Rev. David DeVries of Trinity Baptist Church of Fairfield performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a daron organza gown designed high illusion neckline with appliques of silk venise lace and seed pearls on English netting, fitted bodice, Bishop sleeves with fitted cuffs with appliques of matching lace, and full A-line skirt bordered in lace and extending to a chapel train. Her full-length veil was edged in lace and attached to a white crown of lace. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers.

Miss Susan G. Cochran of Vernon served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Best Bolinis of Stamford, Miss Cindy Johnson and Miss Christine Vallinus, both of Vernon, and Miss Debbie Ticker of Stratford, the bridegroom's cousin. Sara L. Covington of Scarborough, Maine, was flower girl.

Gordon M. Shanks of Fairfield served as best man. Ushers were Donald DeZeno of Fairfield, the bridegroom's brother; Bennie C. Tiner Jr. of Norfolk, Va., the bride's brother; Glenn J. Laliberte of Chester, and Andrew Savo of Monroe. Joel B. Covington of Scarborough, Maine, was ring bearer.

A reception was held at Journey's Inn in Bridgeport, after which the couple left for California and Wyoming. For traveling, she wore her mother's wedding outfit, a two-piece white linen suit with a peach-colored blouse. The couple will reside in Milford.

Mrs. DeZeno is employed by the Fairfield School System. Mr. DeZeno is a staff accountant for Dresser Industries of Stratford. (McLaughlin photo)

Cops and Protesters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Party, an organization that makes no secret of its unconventional conspiracy theories. The Labor Party representatives claimed that a planned demonstration at the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear station was "nothing but a cover for terrorist activity," according to the state police documents.

The method of operation will be the same as recently used at a bloody anti-nuclear power plant demonstration in West Germany," the report added. No violence occurred in New Hampshire.

Two of the 47 people arrested during a non-violent demonstration at the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant near Avila Beach, Calif., were later revealed to be deputy sheriffs assigned to infiltrate the protest organization.

True to the tradition of agents provocateur, the two undercover officers were the only members of the protest group to suggest the use of violence.

When opponents of nuclear power gathered last summer for a meeting near Toms River, N.J., two men photographing the attendees' autos misrepresented themselves as newspaper photographers.

They later were disclosed to be free-lance photographers who had been working for two years under a contract with the Jersey Central Power and Light Co., operator of the nearby Oyster Creek nuclear plant.

As in the past, the overzealous public and private law officers appear unwilling or unable to distinguish between potential terrorists or saboteurs and those engaged in peaceful demonstration or non-violent civil disobedience.

At the same time, the files of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission are replete with dozens of cases of fines, ranging up to $10,000, imposed upon utility firms for violations of federal security standards at plant gates and inside nuclear power facilities.

Instead of dispatching intelligence agents to scurry about the landscape and pry into the lives of critics, the power companies could perform a public service by improving their record of inept security where it's most appropriate—at the generating stations.

The legislation apparently was drafted specifically for the benefit of the Washington Public Power Supply System, which is building three commercial nuclear reactors near Richland, Wash., and two near Saugus, Wash.

Intelligence files reluctantly disclosed by the New Hampshire State Police showed that they considered seriously the erroneous information provided by "two very well informed broad police powers, including authority to arrest citizens anywhere in the state."

If Soviets Cheat Would U.S. Do Anything

WASHINGTON — The catchword in the debate over the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty is "verification." Will we be able to tell if the Russians are cheating?

An equally important word — but one that is rarely if ever mentioned by supporters or opponents of SALT — is "enforcement." What will we do if we catch the Russians cheating?

A law that's not enforced is no law at all. Drivers will speed with it if police never make arrests. But there is no impartial traffic cop to flag down violators of SALT II. Each side must be its own enforcer.

As a practical matter, the enforcement options are limited and tricky. We can complain, of course, but the Soviets have a long track record of shrugging off complaints. We can dig to the brink of nuclear war, as we did in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. But the implications of such saber-rattling in the nuclear age are grotesque.

Provisions of both SALT I and II call for disagreements to be settled by the Standing Consultative Commission. The history of SALT I, however, suggests that the SCC carries about as much weight with the Russians as a Little League umpire. Top-secret documents and intelligence sources reveal a few Soviet tricks that President Carter will not disclose to the Congress when he delivers his address on the SALT talks. The Soviets "drove trucks through loopholes" of the first treaty, as one source put it, and we challenged their cheating only mildly. "We sucked our thumbs," one SCC source told our associate Dave Van Atta. "It shouldn't happen again."

The "Don't-get-tough" policy came right from the top. A Secret Defense Department memo in 1976, titled "SALT Contingency Planning," advised against flexing too much muscle on "ambiguous" or "minor" violations of SALT.

In the event Soviet actions were ambiguous, then it would seem that the U.S. response would be to keep our options open in case of future abrogation and conduct those activities which are consistent with the letter of the agreement. "This is basically our current plan."

In other words, the Soviets were allowed to cheat a little, but we played by the rules. It didn't take the Russians long to catch onto this pusilly policy, and they cheated their way blithely through the first arms treaty.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger approved of this appeasement, and attempted to rationalize it in the secret National Security Decision Memorandum 283 to the Central Intelligence Agency and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"The U.S. Commissioner (SCC) should inform his counterpart that the U.S. Government is not accusing or implying that the USSR is in violation with existing SALT agreements," Kissinger wrote. "(The issues) involve questions concerning compliance and related situations we consider ambiguous. The purpose of raising these issues is to resolve these questions, and, as necessary, to bring about corrective action."

Kissinger suggested that if the Russians were unresponsive, we might offer to back down on some of our own "ambiguous" interpretations — in effect, proffer the Soviets a bribe to obtain compliance. The only alternative to complaint or confrontation would be to disavow the treaty altogether. Kissinger would never have done that — he and President Nixon had gotten too much political mileage out of SALT I. For the same reason, President Carter is unlikely to scuttle SALT II, one of the few concrete achievements of his administration. And that's why you will hear little about enforcement of the inhumane dilemma of SALT, when Carter addresses Congress on the treaty!

Bayting Times: Big Business lobbyists are engaged in a quiet but determined effort to sneak through Congress a controversial amendment that would save corporations many millions of dollars in price-fixing cases. Sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., as an addition to an important anti-trust bill, the amendment ostensibly protects small businesses from potentially ruinous runarounds in multimillion-dollar price-fixing suits. But the real beneficiaries, our Capitol Hill sources say, would be the nation's corporate giants, whose price fixing picks the consumer's pockets on a vast scale.

By limiting corporate liability, the Bayh amendment would encourage Big Business to drag price-fixing cases out indefinitely. This practice lines the pockets of the big-name law firms representing the corporate giants, but adds millions to the costs of punishing the guilty in price-fixing conspiracies.

Under the current system, the victims can often obtain relatively quick settlements and thus stop the gouging — by using the threat of increasing damage awards if the case drags on.

Lobbying for the amendment, according to our sources, has been spearheaded by Time Inc., whose subsidiary, Inland Container Corp., is based in Bayh's home state. Inland has a price-fixing suit pending.

Heavy hitters from the "Fortune 500" list have been twisting arms in Capitol cloakrooms on behalf of the little-publicized amendment, which one knowledgeable source said would "completely screw up settlements in antitrust cases."

The Big Business amendment may endanger the entire antitrust legislation. Several senators may vote against the bill if the cushion for corporate fatcats is included.

sent them rather than some special interest. If people are starting to feel sorry for Carter, he might be able to convert that feeling into votes for the lonely little guy standing up to the big boys and catching a lot of flak for his efforts.

It would be strange to see Carter, after four years in the White House, running an "outsider" campaign once again. But Truman, who came to the presidency with more than a decade of Washington experience, managed to project the image of himself as a decent sort of fellow who was simply trying to do his job in the face of overwhelming opposition.

What came of that was Truman's 1948 "miracle" comeback. The conditions may be shaping up for Carter to try to duplicate it in 1980.

fact that a flycycle only carries one person, compared to more than 250 who can ride in a DC-10." "Passenger space is somewhat of the problem," the consultant added. "The solution might be to line up 250 Gossamer Albatrosses side by side, tie their wings together and let them fly along together."

"Good thinking," I said, "but I'm wondering if the passengers might not object to sitting on bicycle seats and pumping the pedals all during the flight. Airline passengers are accustomed to a bit of pampering, you know. I doubt they would take kindly to so much exertion."

"My federal aviation source shook his head. "We look upon the Gossamer Albatross as a logical extension of the 'no frills' flights that have become so popular lately."

"Moreover, its flights could be tied in with the jogging craze and other exercise fetishes that are sweeping

Washington Window
A "Truman Miracle" in 1980?

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK WASHINGTON (UPI) — We are now starting to see published suggestions that Jimmy Carter take the Lyndon Leap — announce that he will not be a candidate for reelection.

The logic behind this friendly advice (mostly from ultras of the conservative and liberal stripe) is that Carter is so low down in the polls and so far over his head trying to deal with the nation's problems that his best move would be to step aside and let both the Democrats and Republicans put forward their best candidates for 1980.

The first impulse of the president and his friends upon hearing such suggestions probably is indignation, but perhaps they should recall the response of Marine Maj. James Devereaux when asked during World War II what his besieged and outnumbered Wake Island garrison needed.

The doughy leatherneck was reported to have said, "Send more Japs." Carter might say, "Send more critics." Why? Because it looks from here as if there is a small but growing wave of public sympathy for Carter forming.

Americans certainly are unhappy about inflation and the energy crunch. But that does not mean, as Carter's opposition in Congress and in industry seems to think, that the president will get all the blame from the public.

The public, with reason, probably is hopelessly confused by the continuing battle between the White House and Capitol Hill over energy.

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last week's epic flight of the pedal-powered Gossamer Albatross across the English Channel may be giving federal aviation officials ideas about a replacement for the grounded DC-10.

"I'm not making any recommendations at this point," said one government aviation consultant who was asked about the implications of the trans-channel hop. "It is evident, however, the Gossamer Albatross has several things going for it that would make it attractive to the airlines."

"Perhaps its biggest asset would be the saving on jet fuel. Its bicycle-like propulsion could be the answer to the Energy Department's prayer. "Another outstanding feature is the low noise level. Takeoffs and landings by the flycycle would put an end to the incessant carping about noise pollution around major airports."

"I can see the advantages all right, but aren't there certain negative factors that might render the Gossamer Albatross unacceptable for commercial aviation?" "I am thinking in particular of the

"I can see the airlines advertising trip on the Gossamer Albatross as a 'health flight' that would cause the passengers to lose weight while toning up their cardiovascular systems."

I said, "You obviously have given this matter a lot of study, but a couple of things still bother me. The Gossamer Albatross has a 96-foot wingspan. If you tied 250 of them together, the wing would be more than four miles long. There aren't many airports with runways wide enough to handle that kind of traffic. "Besides that, the Gossamer Albatross only flies about 8 miles an hour. That means a flight from here to Los Angeles would take about 15 days. A DC-10 does it in a few hours."

"True enough," the consultant said. "On the other hand, in a Gossamer Albatross there's no danger of an engine falling off."

Place for Martin in Baseball - New York; Lemon to Join Front Office Tomorrow

NEW YORK (UPI) - Somebody once said that as long as the game of baseball exists, there would be a place for Billy Martin.

Now, 11 months after being fired and -10 months earlier than expected the fiery little man they call "Billy the Kid" is back at the helm of the New York Yankees.

After a secret meeting between Martin and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner in Columbus, Ohio Sunday, a move was set in motion to elevate current Manager Bob Lemon to the position of general manager and make Martin the manager in the home-

There's also another aspect to his making the move now. Remember how Billy Martin had been saying he wished George Steinbrenner would let him know one way or another whether he's coming back because there were other clubs interested in him? Martin was telling the truth.

He never identified any of the clubs, but the San Diego Padres were one of them, and had he gone with them, he very likely would've gotten a 5-year contract.

Getting back to Lemon, though, actually, he led the Yankees to two playoff victories, first against the Red Sox and then against the Royals, after which he guided them to a world championship against the Dodgers.

Steinbrenner shares that feeling and that's why he's going back with Martin as his manager so far ahead of schedule.

George Steinbrenner did not come with the morning milk. He attended Culver Military Academy in Indiana, which is the same school Walter O'Malley went to, but when it comes to having those so-called "street smarts," he's right up there with Billy Martin.

Whenever Steinbrenner wishes to know anything about his ballclub, he will talk with his front office people and get his information from his ballplayers.

This time, Steinbrenner came away feeling Lemon had lost complete control of the players, not that they were rebelling against him because he is a sweetheart of a guy who nobody can help liking, but that they had lost their initiative or hunger to win under his guidance.

Bob Lemon's heart isn't going to be broken over being the Yankee manager's job back to Billy Martin. He has already signed a contract with the Yanks, basically as their absentee general manager, from his home in Long Beach, Calif.

Martin now is as convenient a replacement for Lemon as Lemon was for him. The Yankees have been saying him all along because he's still under contract to them and that means there's no problem there. He is it a big problem if he doesn't work out because as the saying goes, there's more where he came from and it's George Steinbrenner feels he has to make another move sometime in the future, he already has a made-to-order candidate in Gene Michael.

Michael, the Yankees' former Boston Red Sox coach, is doing an excellent job managing the Columbus Clippers in the International League. He has been right up there in the ninth inning. Don Baylor then hit a home run to give the Yankees a 3-2 lead. Michael was groomed as a future Yankee manager and in all probability, one day he will get his chance.

In Detroit's 4-1 victory over the California Angels Sunday, Anderson not only recorded his first victory in the American League after four games, but he demonstrated his managerial ability by leading his team to a 3-2 lead in the ninth inning.

After John Thompson looped a two-run single in the eighth inning to highlight a four-run outburst and trap a 4-1 tie, the Angels put runners on first and second with one out in the ninth inning. Don Baylor then hit a shot out to left-center and center fielder Ron LeFlore made a leaping catch at the wall. Willie Davis, the runner at second, tagged and went to third.

But Anderson noticed that Davis left second base early and ordered his pitcher Aurelio Lopez, 1-1, to appeal the play. First-base umpire Terry Cooney agreed with Anderson and ruled in his favor, creating a double play and ending the game.

California started Don Asse, 6-5, retired the first two batters before LaFlore singled to start the eighth. Tony Perez belted a two-homer and Larry Parrish, Gary Carter and Ellis Valentine added each one to pace a 20-hit attack, giving Montreal its victory and ending Joe Niekro's nine-game winning streak.

Phillies 9, Reds 3. Bob Boone's third hit of the game, a two-run double, ignited a six-run rally in the eighth inning to break a 3-2 tie and lift Philadelphia. The rally handed reliever Doug Bair his second homer in as many days as starter Randy Lerch, 4-4, got the win.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 1. Ed Whitson, 5-5, pitched and Tim Lincecum combined on a two-hitter and Tommy Lee knocked in three runs, tying a fifth-inning double, leading Pittsburgh to a sweep of its three-game series with Los Angeles. The win was Whitson's first since April 1978.

Pinch hitter Bill Madlock broke a 4-1 tie in the eighth inning. Baltimore got past Minnesota 8-5, Chicago beat Boston 6-1, Seattle edged Cleveland 6-5, Milwaukee defeated Kansas City 8-3 and Texas beat New York 6-2.

Blue Jays 10, A's 9. Shortstop Alfredo Griffin made up for a ninth-inning error that gave the A's a one-run lead with a prearranged curve.

Place for Martin in Baseball - New York; Lemon to Join Front Office Tomorrow

NEW YORK (UPI) - Somebody once said that as long as the game of baseball exists, there would be a place for Billy Martin.

Now, 11 months after being fired and -10 months earlier than expected the fiery little man they call "Billy the Kid" is back at the helm of the New York Yankees.

After a secret meeting between Martin and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner in Columbus, Ohio Sunday, a move was set in motion to elevate current Manager Bob Lemon to the position of general manager and make Martin the manager in the home-

There's also another aspect to his making the move now. Remember how Billy Martin had been saying he wished George Steinbrenner would let him know one way or another whether he's coming back because there were other clubs interested in him? Martin was telling the truth.

He never identified any of the clubs, but the San Diego Padres were one of them, and had he gone with them, he very likely would've gotten a 5-year contract.

Getting back to Lemon, though, actually, he led the Yankees to two playoff victories, first against the Red Sox and then against the Royals, after which he guided them to a world championship against the Dodgers.

Steinbrenner shares that feeling and that's why he's going back with Martin as his manager so far ahead of schedule.

Bolton Sets Land Class

BOLTON - Residents desiring and qualifying to have their land classified as farm or forest land are asked to call the assessor's office as soon as possible.

Particulars as to the requirements for that type of classification may also be obtained by calling the assessor's office.

Residents who own land that is currently classified as farm or forest land do not have to contact the assessor's office.

To have land classified as forest land requires 25 acres or more, and operating farm unit must be sufficient to sustain the person or persons operating it.

Calvin Hutchinson, assessor, said, "The land can be classified as such at any time but in the year of reevaluation when land prices are expected to increase, it is my opinion anyone having land that could be classified as farm or forest land should do so."

Residents who have been left a yellow calling card by United Appraisal, the town's revaluation firm, are asked to call the assessor's office if they have not already done so.

Hutchinson said those people receiving a card have not yet had the inside of their homes inspected and they should call to make an appointment to have it done.

The number to call is 649-4764. The office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Hutchinson said about 95 percent of all property in town has been inspected on the outside and about 90 percent has been inspected on the inside.

Hutchinson said, "It is important for everyone to have the inside of their property inspected."

Unlicensed Dogs - With the deadline for licensing dogs only two weeks away, about 500 dogs in Bolton remain unlicensed.

Catherine Leiner, town clerk, said 539 licenses were issued in 1978 but only 106 have been issued this year. All dogs more than six months of age must be licensed on or before June 30.

The license fee for neutered male or spayed female is $3.50, for unneutered male or unspayed female is $7.70 and for a kennel, $51.

Licenses may be obtained at the town clerk's office Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Licenses may also be obtained by mail by sending last year's license or the following information: owner's name, address, phone number, dog's name, breed, sex and color markings and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Burglary Reports - The Vernon Police Department investigated seven burglaries reports June 1 to 7 with goods taken amounting to $3,877.

Breaks were into apartments on Center Road and South Street; residences on Bolton Road, Walker Terrace, and Park West Drive; and businesses on Kelly Road and Route 30.

Coventry Clinic Planned Friday

COVENTRY - The Public Health Nursing Association of Coventry Inc. will sponsor an immunization clinic Friday from 5 to 6 p.m. in the board room of the Town Hall.

The clinic is open to all town residents of all ages. This will be the last clinic before school starts again in September.

Anyone under the age of 18, and wishing to be immunized must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and no immunizations will be given anyone under age 18 unless they have a consent form signed by a parent or guardian.

The measles-mumps-rubella immunization will be given to children ages 15 months to pre-school age. One shot of live (weakened) vaccine gives long lasting immunity to all three diseases, association officials said.

Measles vaccine will be given to children age 15 months or older. A single dose booster will be given if the child was immunized before age one year or has had gamma globulin with rubella vaccine.

Shots for German measles, (Rubella), will be available for children age 15 months to puberty.

Oral polio vaccine will be given to children age two months to 15 years. It will not be given to adults. Immunization requires two doses given six to eight weeks apart. Booster shots are given at 18 months and pre-school.

Those planning to come to the clinic should bring their immunization records with them to help determine what others are needed and to record those given.

The clinic will be under the direction of Dr. Robert Bowen, town health director.

Ward Will Head Grange - ANDOVER - Richard Ward was elected Master of the Andover Grange at the group's June meeting.

Hebron PZC Sets Hearing - HEBRON - The Planning and Zoning Commission will conduct a public hearing on June 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Office Building on several requests, mostly concerning subdivisions.

The June 26 hearing will be on the following requests: Anthony DonArma, for a four-lot subdivision on West Street; Joshua Farms, section 3, a 34-lot portion of the original Joshua Farms subdivision; North Hill lots 4A, 4B and 5; three lots located on Colchester Road and two on Reidy Hill Road; and the Harry Meeson business plan of development for land located south of Route 66.

The board also approved the outdoors application for Thomas Cardillo. Cardillo asked to install a driveway off Church Street in the last remaining parcel of land owned by the Carson Brothers.

A referral from Marlborough Planning and Zoning Commission, concerning the proposed three-lot subdivision which abuts the town lines of Hebron and Colchester on Old Route 2, drew no comments of concern from the commission members.

John Hibbard, commission chairman, told the members that he had signed a new liquor permit for the Gran Sasso Restaurant to comply with changes which the owner had made.

The June 26 hearing will be on the following requests: Anthony DonArma, for a four-lot subdivision on West Street; Joshua Farms, section 3, a 34-lot portion of the original Joshua Farms subdivision; North Hill lots 4A, 4B and 5; three lots located on Colchester Road and two on Reidy Hill Road; and the Harry Meeson business plan of development for land located south of Route 66.

The board also approved the outdoors application for Thomas Cardillo. Cardillo asked to install a driveway off Church Street in the last remaining parcel of land owned by the Carson Brothers.

A referral from Marlborough Planning and Zoning Commission, concerning the proposed three-lot subdivision which abuts the town lines of Hebron and Colchester on Old Route 2, drew no comments of concern from the commission members.

John Hibbard, commission chairman, told the members that he had signed a new liquor permit for the Gran Sasso Restaurant to comply with changes which the owner had made.

Trinity Summerstage Opens Third Season

HARTFORD - Summerstage will launch its third season of professional theatre at Trinity College's Austin Arts Center on Friday at 8 p.m. with Alan Ayckbourn's Broadway triumph, "Absurd Person Singular."

A preview performance of the play will be presented Thursday evening. Ayckbourn, often referred to as "the British Neil Simon," penned "Absurd Person Singular" in the early seventies as a comic expose on married life in suburbia. Originally produced in London, the play crossed the Atlantic in 1974 and enjoyed a successful Broadway run of 600 performances.

The Summerstage production, scheduled to run through July 7, is staged by Artistic Director Roger Shoemaker, who guided last year's company of actors through "Scapino." Incorporating simultaneous settings of three kitchens, the play focuses on the interactions of three couples on three consecutive Christmas Eves.

The first holiday party encountered on stage is hosted by an up-and-coming young couple played by Ted Graeber and Kate Van Buren. Graeber is familiar to Hartford audiences for his performances in over fourteen productions at the Hartford Stage Company including "A Flea in Her Ear," "A History of the American Film," and "The Estate." He also spent four seasons at the American Shakespeare Theatre where he performed the title role in "Richard II." Ms. Van Buren comes to Summerstage from Washington, D.C. where she is currently creating an environment for the world premiere production of "Mind of Strings," scheduled to open on Broadway next winter.

Costumes have been designed by Martha J. Banks who, last year, designed the wardrobe for the Summerstage productions of "Scapino" and "A Shot in the Dark." Cynthia J. Hawkins, who returned from the Seattle Repertory Theatre to provide the lighting design.

The eight-week Summerstage season will continue through Aug. 18. Theater, music, children's theater, and dance events will be part of more information, contact the Summerstage box office at 625-1471.

At Nutmeg Playhouse - Terry Fox as Ruder (left) and Jeffrey Adams as Lutz appear in the University of Connecticut Nutmeg Summer Playhouse's opening production of Sigmund Romberg's "The Student Prince," on stage at the air-conditioned Harriet S. Jorgensen Theater at 8:15 p.m. each evening through June 30. There also will be a Saturday matinee at 2:15 p.m. June 29. Tickets for this opera from "the golden age of American musical theater" are on sale at the Jorgensen box office. Call 429-2912 for more information and reservations.

Food Faddism Child Abuse - NEW YORK (UPI) - Parental food faddism should be regarded as a form of child abuse, say some physicians in the United States, England and Israel.

A report in MD, a medical publication, says serious malnutrition occurred in infants and toddlers fed macrobiotic or other strict vegetarian diets.

The article said a London medical group treated four infants for severe nutritional problems and rickets the doctors attributed to the parents' food faddism.

An Israel group also treated four babies suffering from severe malnutrition. All were members of a vegetarian religious group that had emigrated from the U.S.

The U.S. doctors quoted in the report found rickets in four of 54 children on a vegetarian diet.

SOME 2,500 Vietnamese men, women and children drifted into the South China Sea Monday, facing almost certain death because they were cut off by Malaysian officials with promises of U.S. rescue ships waiting offshore.

Vietnam Refugees Face Death at Sea

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Some 2,500 Vietnamese men, women and children drifted in the South China Sea Monday, facing almost certain death because they were cut off by Malaysian officials with promises of U.S. rescue ships waiting offshore.

Malaysia, which announced Friday it will expel all 70,000 "boat people" now on Malaysian soil, forced the first batch of 2,500 aboard five wooden vessels Saturday and towed them out to sea from the village of Kuala Besar.

U.N. officials fear all of them are most likely to be drowned because the boats are not seaworthy, "one diplomat in Kuala Lumpur said."

Accompanied by naval craft, the boats — each packed with about 500 Vietnamese — were towed out one at a time at hourly intervals from the northeast village of Kuala Besar, 430 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, the sources said. There was speculation the vessels may be the refugees' own craft, repaired by the authorities.

More than 400,000 Vietnamese have left their country since the communist victory in April 1975. As many as half of the "boat people" drowned at sea.

U.S. spokesmen said President Carter would raise the subject at his Vienna summit with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev because of Moscow's presumed influence with the Vietnamese government.
