GLASTONBURY—The problem at Buckingham Reservoir in Glastonbury is not confined to a bunch of kids merely having a good time down at the old forbidden swimming hole. It is much more extensive according to George Murphy, forest manager and special policeman for the Manchester Water Department.

Murphy and soil analyst Thomas Ferlazo have just obtained special police status to patrol the 2,200 acres and they are finding it a very challenging task.

"What we are fighting out here is a tradition that people in Glastonbury have been following for years. They have always believed that since the reservoir was in their town, they could use any way they wanted. Now we are trying to break them of that habit," Murphy said.

"What do some of these habits include?" "People are stealing firewood, they are cutting down fences, ripping down signs, lighting fires and cutting their own paths for their four-wheel-drive vehicles," Thomas said.

As popularly believed, it is not always young people who cause the problem.

"We have had adults in here up to 45 years old. We know that there is one guy in this town who is cutting down live trees, but we have just missed catching him. We have also found a police officer and a juvenile, who was on parole cutting wood last year," Murphy said.

Murphy declined to comment on who the offending officer was and from which department he belonged, stating that the juvenile involved would probably lose parole.

Murphy explained that the cutting of firewood is detrimental to the watershed environment. If people cut down too many trees in critical areas, it could cause tremendous erosion. This would lead to rapid sedimentation in the reservoir and would lower water quality.

Murphy and Ferlazo have the area posted with signs which prohibit swimming, and other activities in the area. Many have already been torn down.

An access road called Coop Road, which is nothing more than a dirt trail, runs along the reservoir.

"We have tried to have it closed, because people can get in here with their four-wheel-drive vehicles. But a selected few fought it even though we said we would provide locks so that they could gain entrance," Murphy said.

According to Murphy, the Glastonbury Fire Department is also fighting against the closing of the road.

"They got together with some members of the town, to prevent us from closing the road. But it's not for safety reasons. They want to get in there to fish, swim and drink like everyone else," Murphy said.

Murphy said that he would provide keys for the department so that it would have access to the area too, but he said it did not like the idea.

William Constantine, a member of the Town Fire Commission said that the water department's proposal for giving the department keys has yet to be proposed.

"Of course we would like to see it open, but I think keys would be a good alternative. I really do not believe that our firemen are out there using the property," Constantine added.

Murphy explained that in September 1978, a select few citizens opposed the closing of Coop Road, along with what Murphy said was pressure from the fire department.

"We are all for giving the fire department keys, but we would have to know that just the district in that area would have them. If other districts got a hold of them, they could go in there anytime they wanted to," Murphy said.

"The people who are involved in this are not from the lower classes. They neglect the fact that their kids are swimming out here and hanging around. There just is not any hollering," Murphy stressed.

Murphy said that the Glastonbury Police have been excellent in trying to solve this problem. The police have already made 13 arrests for criminal trespassing this month.

"The police are really a top-notch outfit, but they are a little bit limited because of personnel problems, but whenever we need a cruiser when things get too much for us, they are right there," Murphy said.

Ferlazo said that between the two, they have been able to conquer the insurmountable. He said that they are diminishing the problem because they now have the power of arrest.

"Actually, though, we need a force of five officers to really keep an eye on this property," Ferlazo explained.

"They would all be on shifts, so we could have 24-hour coverage on the watershed."

The federal benefits include training, job search and job relocation assistance in addition to employees of Roosevelt Mills who lost their jobs or work reduced hours because of a sales decline stemming from increased sales of imported sweaters.

The benefits were extended after a Federal Labor Department review of the firm's market that was requested by workers in March. Of the 100 eligible workers, 65 still work at the Rockville plant, Ferlazo said.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., Friday described federal agency chief James Schlesinger as "the most incompetent government official in memory."

Dodd's comment was in a letter to President Carter repeating a request that Schlesinger be fired.

Dodd blamed Schlesinger for the "lack of confidence of the American people in current energy policy and the confusion over conflicting information on fuel supplies."

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso signed a bill into law Friday which required plain language in consumer contracts and approved another that stiffens penalties for arson — both effective Oct. 1.

The arson law would impose a sentence of life imprisonment on anyone convicted of setting a fire in which someone dies. The Legislature killed attempts to make the offense applicable under the death penalty statute.

The clear language measure, one which consumer groups have been pushing for years, requires all consumer contracts up to $25,000 in value be written in plain language. The law does not apply to real estate contracts.

A spokesman for the DPUC said the increase was rising costs for operating expenses, taxes and oil, the spokeswoman said.

"The DPUC bought NU's faulty reasoning, self-serving analysis, and short-sighted vision and passed the bill on to consumers," said a spokesman for the CCA's Utilities Coalition.

A spokesman for the DPUC said the only allowance for nuclear power plant shutdowns was that the utility will be reimbursed if the plants operate at less than 70 percent capacity.

Northeast's Millstone II atomic power generator recently was shut down for 10 days because of mechanical problems which forced it into a cold shutdown. The total cost of the shutdown was estimated at $5 million.

"Starting now and over the next year, if the plants do better than 70 percent, credit will be given on people's bills," the spokeswoman said.

"If the plants go down near 55 percent, the people will be charged for the extra oil."

When Northeast cannot operate its nuclear power plants, it reverts to oil-fired generation. But the spokeswoman said any such costs passed onto consumers would likely not occur, and if they do, it won't be for a year.

"I think they're (Northeast) going to come out fairly close in the course of a year to 70 percent," the spokeswoman said.

"We're required to give the company enough money to allow them to provide their customers with adequate electric service and gas," she said. Northeast has about 885,000 electric customers and provides gas to about 140,000 homes.

The 10 percent to 11 percent increase, if it's finalized, would take effect sometime in July.

HEBRON (UPI) — The Department of Public Utilities Control Friday tentatively approved an $8.4 million rate hike for Northeast Utilities — the largest utility rate increase ever granted in the state's history.

Connecticut's largest utility, which has more than 1 million customers, had requested a $131.2 million increase — the largest rate boost ever sought in the state.

A spokesman for the DPUC said the increase, if finally approved one week from today, will mean an average 10 to 11 percent increase on a residential customer's monthly bill.

The Connecticut Citizen Action Group, a statewide consumer group, immediately called the DPUC decision "little short of disastrous."

The precedent-setting tentative decision was made by a partly lame duck commission, which will be revamped July 1. Leaving will be chairman Miriam Butterworth and commissioners Gerald McCann and Thomas Standish.

The deciding panel which has been deliberating the rate hike proposal for two weeks was Mrs. Butterworth, David Harrigan and Paul Weiner.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Serbian nationalist who staged a two-day trans-Atlantic airplane hijacking was returned to Chicago Friday to be sentenced on a bombing-conspiracy conviction along with five political compatriots.

Nikola Kavaja, 45, of Paterson, N.J., arrived shortly before noon at O'Hare International Airport, where he spent 11 hours Wednesday aboard a hijacked American Airlines 727 fruitlessly negotiating with federal authorities for the release of a jailed Serbian priest.

The bid for a police cruiser was awarded to a Willimantic dealer for $8,125. The cruiser is scheduled to be delivered by July 25.

A bid on a three-point hitch mower was over the budgeted amount so the bid was rejected by the board. No bids were received for a mobile radio. The board will now seek out prices from dealers.

The bidding for fire sirens was waived and Cliff Massey, civil preparedness director was directed to secure a firm price from a dealer for the sirens.

Selectmen Seeking Aide

At the board meeting, Tuesday night, the selectmen outlined some of the qualifications required for the position. They said it should be a person with some experience in the employment field and that experience should include knowledge about grant applications, negotiations with labor relations, organizational responsibilities and public information.

Anyone interested should send a resume and salary history to First Selectman Henry Ryba, 222 Bolton Center Road, Bolton, Conn. 06040.

Sunday Gas Outlook Bad

By HERALD STAFF
Gas has been tough enough to get in recent days, but if you're an "even" — a driver with a license plate that ends in an even number — you could be waiting until Tuesday to refill.

Despite a telegram from Gov. Ella Grasso stressing the importance of gas stations staying open this weekend, it appears few in the area will be open Sunday.

The situation looks a bit sunnier for today, except in Glastonbury.

Today is an "odd" day — a day when person whose plates end in an odd number or a letter from N-Z may purchase gas Sunday is an "even" day — the purchase date for plates ending in even numbers or letters from A-M.

Gov. Grasso this week sent a letter to all communities in the state and asked the energy coordinators to meet with service station operators.

"It is my hope that these meetings will result in voluntary agreements to assure that some stations are open for some hours on Sunday," she wrote.

Because of the odd-even purchase plan imposed earlier in the week by the governor, the importance of some stations being open on Sunday is intensified.

Maurice Pass, Manchester's director of general services and the town's energy coordinator, asked the Police Department to do the survey work.

"Saturday doesn't look too bad, but Sunday will be grim," a police spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said.

About 15 stations in Manchester will be open today, he said. Only two have indicated they will be open Sunday, he said. They are the A-1 Station on Center Street, which expects to be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Moriarty Brothers, also on Center Street, which expects to be open from 8 a.m. to noon.

The Manchester Police Department also delivered copies of rules and regulations about the governor's gas purchasing plan to all town service stations.

The grim gas news has kept other police departments hopping.

Asked if there was any news to report Friday evening, one South Windsor police dispatcher replied: "Nah, it's a pretty quiet night, except for 500 people asking me if a gas station's open. It's driving me nuts."

East Hartford
In East Hartford, a town survey indicated 27 out of 34 stations will be open today.

But the town survey shows that no stations will be open in East Hartford on Sunday.

Mayor Richard H. Blackstone, who ordered the survey last Monday, said gas stations have reported their fuel supplies have been cut back by an average of 25 percent this month.

He said the odd-even plan implemented Wednesday has caused a greater concentration of lines at the pumps. But, Blackstone added this said.

Blackstone said the town will "keep an eye on the line" this week and conduct a follow-up survey next week.

He said the odd-even plan "appears to be working reasonably well, except for the long lines in some areas."

Workers Eligible

WETHEPSFIELD (UPI) — About 100 present and former employees of a Rockville sweater mill are eligible to seek federal trade adjustment assistance, state Labor Commissioner Joseph Peraro said Friday.

The federal benefits include training, job search and job relocation assistance in addition to employees of Roosevelt Mills who lost their jobs or work reduced hours because of a sales decline stemming from increased sales of imported sweaters.

The benefits were extended after a Federal Labor Department review of the firm's market that was requested by workers in March. Of the 100 eligible workers, 65 still work at the Rockville plant, Peraro said.

Dodd's comment was in a letter to President Carter repeating a request that Schlesinger be fired.

Dodd blamed Schlesinger for the "lack of confidence of the American people in current energy policy and the confusion over conflicting information on fuel supplies."

Your neighbors' views: What is your opinion of Gov. Grasso's ration plan?

At Cohen, Bloomfield — "I think something had to be done. My personal opinion is that if it'll keep people from pinning off their tanks, we'll probably have no problems."

Carolyn Sulzinski, Marlborough — "I think it's a fantastic idea. With the $6 minimum, we'll keep the lines down."

William Bray, Vernon — "I don't think anything will work as long as the people don't comply. If they comply, then it's all right."

Bill Belfiore, Manchester — "I don't think anything had to be done and it's a start."

Richard Naab, Manchester — "It wasn't fair to some people. There wasn't enough time to inform them. They should have told them they were going to use this plan."

Jon Dennison, Manchester — "I don't think it's going to work. There's going to be a lot of trouble (at the lines). People are getting angry."

Janice Tracy, Manchester — "She had to do something. We have to conserve gas."

William Remecki, Manchester — "I think it's a pretty good idea. Everybody will get about the same chance at the gas lines. With the odd and even number days, it'll conserve some gas, too."

A Collectible Camera

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

The rippled window seen high up on the front is for the photo coil to look through and mastermind the automatic exposure control. (The camera has no batteries.) The handle at the rear side will transport the film and cock the shutter for the next shot with one stroke.

By means of this "magic," the camera will come up with a super-sharp picture readily visible on a 2 1/2 inch square - 120 roll.

The camera does a good job but it is not the only one of its kind. There are other models using 35 millimeter film (SLRs) using 35 millimeter film which is more convenient for color photography. (Nobody ever seems to use a 2 1/2 inch projector to borrow.)

Soon after the appearance of the Rollei-magic the whole line of twin-lens reflexes (TLRs) manufactured by Franke and Heidecke of Germany was phased out. Now if you go into a store and ask for a new Rolleiflex you will be shown a snazzy little 35-millimeter SLR with all the options that make up a "system."

This means interchangeable lenses from 14mm to 200mm and an automatic winder that will give two exposures per second (the latest fad).

A good book on old cameras is "Collecting Photographica" by George Gilbert (Hawthorn Books Inc.). Here we read of the "rapid rise to fame of the Rollei line of twin-lens reflex cameras." It started in 1929, when in 1932 - "Easily the world's most famous TLR... fast handling and compact with a crank to advance film, it reached ahead of all competition."

Another TLR by the same firm, at half the price, was the Rolleicord. At its recent annual meeting the members of the Manchester Philatelic Society elected the following to be officers for the year beginning June 12:

President - Harry Clon.
Vice-president - Richard Steele.
Treasurer - Evelyn Dickson.
Corresponding Secretary - Richard Embser.
Recording secretary - Maurice Landry.

The club will get-togethers on the regular meeting nights all summer, i.e., the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. Some place and time: Mott's Community Hall, 7 to 10 p.m. There will be no business meetings but the circuit books will be on the tables.

Collectors' Corner

A Collectible Camera

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

The rippled window seen high up on the front is for the photo coil to look through and mastermind the automatic exposure control. (The camera has no batteries.) The handle at the rear side will transport the film and cock the shutter for the next shot with one stroke.

By means of this "magic," the camera will come up with a super-sharp picture readily visible on a 2 1/2 inch square - 120 roll.

The camera does a good job but it is not the only one of its kind. There are other models using 35 millimeter film (SLRs) using 35 millimeter film which is more convenient for color photography. (Nobody ever seems to use a 2 1/2 inch projector to borrow.)

Soon after the appearance of the Rollei-magic the whole line of twin-lens reflexes (TLRs) manufactured by Franke and Heidecke of Germany was phased out. Now if you go into a store and ask for a new Rolleiflex you will be shown a snazzy little 35-millimeter SLR with all the options that make up a "system."

This means interchangeable lenses from 14mm to 200mm and an automatic winder that will give two exposures per second (the latest fad).

A good book on old cameras is "Collecting Photographica" by George Gilbert (Hawthorn Books Inc.). Here we read of the "rapid rise to fame of the Rollei line of twin-lens reflex cameras." It started in 1929, when in 1932 - "Easily the world's most famous TLR... fast handling and compact with a crank to advance film, it reached ahead of all competition."

Another TLR by the same firm, at half the price, was the Rolleicord. At its recent annual meeting the members of the Manchester Philatelic Society elected the following to be officers for the year beginning June 12:

President - Harry Clon.
Vice-president - Richard Steele.
Treasurer - Evelyn Dickson.
Corresponding Secretary - Richard Embser.
Recording secretary - Maurice Landry.

The club will get-togethers on the regular meeting nights all summer, i.e., the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. Some place and time: Mott's Community Hall, 7 to 10 p.m. There will be no business meetings but the circuit books will be on the tables.

Special event for June 26 - members may bring up to five lots for an auction.

Survey Set By Squadron
MANCHESTER - The Manchester Power Squadron in cooperation with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will be conducting today and Sunday also July 7 and 8. This survey is part of the U.S. Power Squadron's Cooperative Charting program conducted throughout the U.S.

The gigantic task of maintaining the over 500 nautical charts to reflect the latest changes affecting the safety of navigation became a difficult assignment for the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the charting agencies. In 1962 the U.S. Power Squadrons with its 61,000 members was called upon to assist in this vital activity by reporting, in a uniform manner, the changes detected in the waters which they frequented.

Findings of the Manchester Power Squadron Survey will be forwarded to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in the next review of local nautical charts.

Approximately 30 vessels will be participating in the water and shore facilities will be reviewed by other squadron members.

Any person aware of an inaccurate change in marine facilities, submerged objects, landmarks, obstruction in and above the water, or useful suggestions for charter improvements to the NOS nautical charts should contact Fred Schilke at 644-9274, Gene Blackwell at 644-1688 or Don LePar at 282-8488.

Hunt on for Sewer Odor
MANCHESTER - For officials and employees of the town's Sewer Department, Friday was hardly different from any other day this week.

They again spent part of their time searching for the cause of an odor problem that has resulted in many complaints from residents who live near the sewage treatment plant off Olcott Street.

Frank Jodanis, water and sewer administrator, feels the odor is not caused by any one problem. There actually may be several contributing factors, he said.

"I don't know whether it's the leaves, the treatment plant or the landfill," Jodanis said.

The town-owned landfill is in the same area as the sewage treatment plant. In between the two is the area where the town dumps leaves that he picked up during the past year.

When these leaves decompose, they do have an odor that could be part of the overall smell.

Tracing the actual source of the odor is difficult, Jodanis said. Earlier this week, for instance, one resident who had complained about an odor was brought to the area. When he smelled the leaves, he said that was the same odor he had experienced.

The next night, however, there still were complaints about different types of odor, Jodanis said.

Officials from the state Department of Environmental Protection also have come to the area to help determine what might be causing the smell.

Old problems have occurred in the past years in the area.

Specialty Autos Displayed
MANCHESTER - Capitol Tire of 324 Broad St. is hosting three specialty automobiles as part of a nationwide performance rally at Firestone tire dealerships.

The autos in the display are a 1932 Ford coupe; a customized 1955 Chevrolet coupe; and a 1976 Pontiac Trans Am.

Each of the autos are using various types of Firestone tires.

During the display several prizes, including a set of radial tires, custom wheels, shock absorbers and spark plugs, will be awarded.

Capitol Tire is the only Firestone dealership in New England to host the rally.

The display ends today.

Potter To Display Crafts
MANCHESTER - John L. Hull, a local potter, has been selected as one of 100 exhibitors from nearly 500 applicants to participate in the Guildford Handicrafts Exposition July 19, 20, 21 from noon to 9 p.m. The show will be on the Guildford Green about one mile south of Exit 58 on Interstate 95.

Hull displayed two of his works recently at the Greater Hartford Civic and Arts Festival.

For the past nine years Hull has focused on perfecting the clay, glazing and firing techniques. Now he works solely in porcelain. He has been involved in the construction of several different types of kilns as well as building his own. To create the desired effects in producing his distinctive style of pottery, he develops original recipes for clay and glaze.

After School Care Boon for Parents

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — In more and more families, both parents are working. And, in more and more cases, these parents are finding it difficult to provide suitable day care for their children after school hours. This situation helped spawn "latchkey" programs. Latchkey programs are supervised, after-school programs for children who would otherwise be left on their own or with a babysitter or neighbor.

The latchkey movement started in Portland, Oregon, in the early 1970's. The word latchkey originated in the World War II period, when children were their house keys around their necks so they could let themselves in the house because both of their parents worked in the military.

The YMCA operates four latchkey programs in the state. The newest one started this year in East Hartford at the Burnside School.

The YMCA's program started here in February and concluded last week. Doreen Guertin, a YMCA supervisor under the program, said the program has been a "godsend" to some parents who have found trouble locating a reliable babysitter.

Ms. Guertin said children participate in recreational activities, free play, arts and crafts and a story time.

"Parents are happy with it," she said. "They prefer it to a babysitter situation, where a kid might just be plunked in front of a TV."

She said the children have access to the Burnside School's gym equipment, both indoors and outdoors.

Children go to the gym or an outside play area right after school and stay until a parent picks them up.

Charles C. Goding, branch executive director for the YMCA, said there are private day care centers for pre-schoolers. But there is a "definite need" for a day care program for school-aged children, he said.

Goding has called a luncheon meeting for Monday with town officials and others involved in the first-year program to discuss the future of latchkey.

He said the YMCA has the experience and the know-how to carry out the program, but it needs facilities and, possibly, transportation to make it viable.

He said he will tell others at the luncheon that the YMCA is willing to coordinate the latchkey package if others will help in providing some of the components.

The YMCA operates the program on a fee basis. The fee is $1 per hour, or $15 a week if the child stays the full school hours each day. Fees for the second and third children from the same family are 85 cents and 70 cents per hour respectively.

Even though the YMCA's studies have shown a need for after-school day care, the latchkey program has encountered two problems which have hurt its chances of getting outside funding, Goding said.

First, there are not enough children enrolled in the Burnside program to qualify it for three-year grants from the state Human Resources Department, he said.

The Burnside program has a maximum enrollment of 17 children and the Human Resources Department requires a minimum of 30 children for an economically feasible program.

The state would provide funds for low-income families who qualify to help reduce the fees for the program.

Without this money, the program will have to continue on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The second problem is a Catch 22 situation. The YMCA could run an economical viable program by basing its student body on other schools who require after-school supervision. But, it lacks the funds to provide bus transportation.

Goding approached school officials early last year when the YMCA proposed the program. But, he was told the school department could not provide busing for the program.

He said the YMCA has been fortunate that Burnside Principal Norma Kibbe has allowed the YMCA to use the school.

The state put Ms. Kibbe in touch with the YMCA after the YMCA came to the state asking where it could find a location for a latchkey program last year. Ms. Kibbe had also come to the state asking if there was any way of providing after-school day care at the school.

The state put the YMCA in touch with Ms. Kibbe.

"Miss Kibbe has been a marvelous sparkplug and she is deeply concerned with those who live in her school population area," Goding said.

He said the Burnside area has one of the highest apartment populations and one of the highest transiency rates of any school in town.

He said day care is a primary need in the Burnside area.

Studies by the East Hartford Citizen Action Group and the YMCA have indicated a need for day care, both at the pre-school and school-aged levels.

Goding said the YMCA chose the latchkey concept because it didn't want to duplicate private day care centers for pre-schoolers.

Meeting Rescheduled

VERNON — The Zoning Board of Appeals will meet June 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizen Center, Park Place.

This is the rescheduled meeting from June 20 when that meeting had to be adjourned due to lack of a quorum. The meeting will hear the appeal of a decision of the building inspector denying a permit for expansion of the Smart Set East, a Route 30 health club and massage parlor.

Square Dance

EAST HARTFORD — The Circle 8 Square Dance Club will hold a dance tonight at 8 at George J. Penney, 869 Forbes St.

It's the annual Strawberry Festival. Glen Zeno will be calling and the Leemons will be cueing the rounds. All dancers are welcome.

Police Report

MANCHESTER — Police charged 10-year-old Douglas Ogden, of 127 Branford St., Manchester, with breach of peace after a Friday afternoon argument with another man at a gas station.

Police said the incident was not gas-related, but stemmed from an apparent long-standing disagreement. Ogden was released on a $500 non-surety bond for a July 9 court appearance.

Police charged John A. Yanchak, 18, of Farmington with reckless driving. Court date is July 3.

Timothy J. Donahue, 26, of 25 Walnut St. was charged with driving while his license and registration is suspended, police said. Court date is July 10.

Grant Has Strings

MANCHESTER — While the town attorney's office has ruled the town may accept an $86,500 Community Development bond grant, the final decision on accepting that grant apparently will depend on the requirements attached to receiving that money.

And, according to Town Attorney David Barry and others, those requirements still will be the same as what the town had to meet while receiving its annual Community Development funding.

Town voters April 17 approved a two-year withdrawal from the CD program.

William Shea, an assistant town attorney, ruled the ordinance that established the withdrawal did not prohibit the town from receiving the $86,500 grant.

But, to receive the money, the town still apparently will have to meet the same requirements that had been set for receiving other CD money. Some of the requirements were part of the reason voters approved the withdrawal.

Town Manager Robert Weiss Thursday said the town does not have to meet such obligations to receive the $86,500 grant.

Weiss Friday said he may have misinterpreted Shea's decision. He expects to discuss the matter further with the town attorneys.

If those CD requirements have to be met, it is unlikely the town will accept the grant.

The $86,500 funding had been designated for use to pay part of the cost for the housing for the elderly. Without the grant, the town will have to use its own funds to complete the 40 units of housing expected to be built on a Spencer Street site.

Carter, Other Buyers To Discuss Oil Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is flying to Tokyo Saturday for a summit meeting with other western leaders who also face energy, fuel hungry citizens and a powerful oil cartel that is getting ready to raise prices again.

American officials said Carter will try to get his fellow leaders to cooperate on a strategy for dealing with the soaring prices and limited exports of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But the officials said confrontation and a "buyers cartel" against OPEC already have been ruled out.

Carter — who returned just last Monday from a Vienna summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev — departs Andrews Air Force Base at 1:15 p.m. EDT for a 15-hour trip to Tokyo.

Packed into his 13-day journey are state visits to Japan and Korea and a rest and relaxation stop in Hawaii, where he will participate in a July 4 parade before flying home that evening. He returns to Washington in the early morning of July 5.

On the eve of his departure, Carter said he is flying to Tokyo Saturday for a summit meeting with other western leaders who also face energy, fuel hungry citizens and a powerful oil cartel that is getting ready to raise prices again.

His few days in Washington between summits gave him a first hand look at the frustrations motorists experience trying to find gasoline and the tensions caused by the soaring prices and limited exports of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

While the White House has been sympathetic to a degree, Carter has repeatedly stressed that Americans must learn to conserve fuel — and he complained they are not making a good faith effort at this stage.

Carter will arrive in Tokyo Sunday for a formal welcome ceremony will be held Monday morning. Carter has said the most "exciting" highlight of his visit will be meeting Emperor Hirohito — a courtesy call requiring him to wear a formal cutaway.

The president will be accompanied by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and numerous White House aides. Sources said Energy Secretary James Schlesinger wanted to go along since energy is the priority item on the summit agenda, but was not asked.

Mrs. Carter and daughter Amy, 11, also will make the journey and have scheduled a side trip to Kyoto, the 1,000-year-old former imperial capital.

The two-day summit begins next Thursday, shortly after OPEC nations meet in Geneva to discuss price increases. Carter was expected to take the lead in offering ideas on how to cut energy demand, restrain imports and stimulate investment in new energy sources.

On Friday, Carter starts his visit to Korea with an overnight stay at Camp Casey, close to the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea. He will be briefed on the military situation.

He also plans to meet with South Korean President Chung Hee Park and South Korean dissidents. U.S. officials said Carter will discuss political oppression during his talks with Park.

Court Upholds Carter On Denying Contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that President Carter has authority to deny large government contracts to companies which refuse to comply with his voluntary anti-inflation program.

The appeals court reversed a May 31 decision by U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker, who said the president had unconstitutionally assumed enforcement powers not given him by Congress.

Chief Judge J. Skelly Wright, in the majority opinion, said Congress did give the president such power when it set up the present government procurement system in 1949 and instructed him to foster "economy and efficiency" in government purchasing.

If the administration's program succeeds in lowering inflation, Wright said, "the government will face lower costs in the future than it would have otherwise."

"The people of this country are experiencing a cruel period of economic inflation," the majority opinion said. "In an effort to relieve the distress caused by that inflation, Congress has authorized the president to issue wage and price standards and to encourage voluntary compliance as an act of good citizenship."

Bozzuto Backs Irwin

HARTFORD (UPI) — Senate Minority Leader Richard Bozzuto endorsed James Irwin Friday to head the Republican State Party, conceding the candidacy was doomed by denying he wanted Irwin's backing for any future political plans.

GOP State Chairman Frederick Biebel already has counted heads and says he has the votes on the Republican State Central Committee to carry him over the winning edge when the balloting is held Tuesday.

Bozzuto will not vote at the State central Committee meeting.

"I'm not certain if (endorsement) will have any impact at all if the numbers we're hearing are correct," Bozzuto told a Capitol news conference. Even Irwin acknowledged he didn't have much of a shot at the chairman's job.

"I think there's a good chance Mr. Biebel will win," Irwin said.

Bozzuto was asked by a reporter if he will seek the Republican nomination for the seat being vacated by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. He said he hadn't decided yet, but was "encouraged" by talks with local GOP committees.

Miss Connecticut Pageant

23 Young Ladies to Compete

By BETTY RYDER
Lifestyle Editor

Time is flying for pretty Grace Jaworski, as she prepares for the upcoming Miss Connecticut Scholarship Pageant, Inc. set for June 29 and 30 at New Britain High School.

The attractive 18-year-old, who just graduated from Manchester High School, captured the title of Miss Manchester 1979 in February making her eligible to compete on the state level.

Grace, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jaworski of 83 Pitkin St., Manchester, will sing an operatic aria as her talent presentation. Accompanying her at the piano will be Jack Carlson, who teaches fourth grade at Highland Park School. Jack also plays at St. Rose Church in East Hartford and had Grace in his fourth grade class several years ago.

Her vocal coach is Jan Wodel, who in her attractive studio on Hartford Road, puts Grace through some time-consuming sessions perfecting her vocal talent.

How did Grace become involved in the pageant? Well, at first it wasn't easy. "Her father didn't think it was right," Mrs. Jaworski said. "But after he became more familiar with the program and its goals, he agreed to let her participate. Now, he's her No. 1 fan."

Between rehearsing, graduating from Manchester High School, and selecting a wardrobe for the competition, Grace has been busy.

"The merchants in the area have been just wonderful."

Wearing an attractive beige suit and striped blouse, a gift from the Carriage House Boutique," Grace said. "I'm delighted with my wardrobe. The merchants have just been great. With the help of Sally Middleton, we coordinated outfits from Arnoldsens, Corset Casuals, J. Garman, House of Hale, Weather-vans, Harvey's, My Store for Lewis and the Fly Front." In addition, Grace will have her hair styled for all appearances by Artistic Hair Designs.

As Miss Manchester, Grace received a $750 scholarship and hopes to attend Tyler School of Art at Temple University.

"I'd like to study animation — Disney-type that is. I might as well aim high," she said.

Grace is already on the right track having won a blue ribbon and honorable mention in the Connecticut Scholarship Art Competition.

Serving again this year as manager and chaperone, will be Rick and Ellen Lawrence. No newcomer to the pageant activities, Rick has been involved in the Miss Manchester Scholarship Pageant, sponsored by the Manchester Jaycees, for six years. His pretty wife, Ellen, who serves as Miss Manchester's chaperone, also had Grace as a student when she taught fifth grade.

Getting just the right color is important, and Sally Middleton, well-known model and beauty expert, gives Grace just a touch of blusher.

66 Events in Relays Slated Today, Sunday

George Straznitskas

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Track and field buffs should get their money's worth when the fourth annual Manchester Community College-sponsored New England Relays are staged today at Manchester High's Wigren Track and Sunday at the college campus.

All told, 66 events are listed. The entry list for day's schedule numbered 624 and 256 for Sunday's Connecticut AAU 12-mile championship and three mile run. Post entries were out for today but distance runners will be able to sign up before the start of Sunday's race at 4:30.

Activities get under way this morning at 9 with official ceremonies at 1 o'clock, followed by the principal attractions. Grammar school races and time trials will be featured up to noon.

Two defending champions who will be back are sprinter Tom Mahan of Boston University and George Straznitskas in the 12-mile Sunday.

Mahan copped the 120-yard hurdles here the past two years and is the reigning Yankee Conference and New England intercollegiate indoor and outdoor champion and won the ICAA outdoor crown as well. His best time this spring was 13.6.

The tie man with the long name, Straznitskas is one of New England's top distance runners, as well as the current Connecticut marathon champion. Last year he ran away from the field in the longest race on the two-day schedule.

Most interest centers around the expected duels between Bill Krohn of Manhattan College and Charlie Duggan of Florida in the mile Saturday and the three mile run Sunday. Duggan copped this race two years ago and Krohn triumphed last June.

Weightmen will hold the spotlight in two events, the National AAU championship 56-pound weight toss, with two-time USA Olympian and defending champion Bill Backus due to perform, and the shot put with local man Pacey Pet the man to watch.

Bob Hall, a four-time Olympic squad member, is expected to offer Backus with his stiffest competition along with NCAA decathlon champion Brad Olson.

Pet, a sophomore-to-be at Dartmouth, moves up in class from high school to open and will be watching against his more experienced foe, Bob Orlando of Northeastern in the man to be in the shot. The New England champ has tossed the ball 90 feet, 9 inches.

Littie, Ed Brown, former Seton Hall sprinter and the meet's top performer in '78, and Rich Edwards of the University of Houston will match. Who for stride again in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Jeremy Edmunds, of Glastonbury, top women's high school athlete a year ago, heads a formidable list of women which includes Sally Sullivan in the 120-meter.

Two Greater Boston Track Club javelin throwers entered are Rocco Peitto, the New England champion, and Bill Currier, who has tossed the spear 222 feet.

All that's needed for a successful day with record-breaking performances is good weather.

Moriarty's in Tie

Nothing was decided last night at MCC's baseball diamond as Moriarty Bros. and Hartford Jai-Alai played to a 6-6 tie in a game called after five innings because of darkness. The contest was also played under protest because of too much pine tar on a Gene Houser's bat.

Hartford batted around in the first and scored four times with Moriarty's coming back with one in its half. Jai-Alai made it 5-1 with a three-run rally cutting it to 5-4 by the mBs.

Gene Johnson had an RBI single and

Big Track Stars Found in Jersey

PISCATAWAY N.J. (UPI) — Renaldo Nehemiah and Greg Foster will be among the missing, but many of the big names in track and field will compete Saturday in the first New Jersey Olympic Track Classic at Rutgers University.

Nehemiah, who ran in Europe this week, and Foster, his chief competitor, have elected to skip the outdoor invitational Olympic fund-raising meet leaving the 100-meter hurdles runner weak. But a formidable group of the key 1980 Olympic figures will be there — and several exciting matchups are slated.

The Invitational Mile — 1,500 meters — may be the best competition of the day, with New Zealand's John Walker, who won the Olympic gold medal at Montreal in 1976, probably set to go against the likes of NCAA champion Don Paige of Villanova, who finished second to Steve Scott in the 1,500 meters at the AAU championships in Walnut, Calif. last week, and Steve Lacy, who finished fifth. Meet officials are also hoping to induce South Africa's Sifiso Ndlovu to run the mile.

Others entered in the meet, which will consist only of finals, are Fred Sowerby and Stan Vinson in the 400 meters, James Sanderson and Clancy Edwards in the 100 and 200 meters, former Olympian Mark Eneyard and Jim DiFenno in the 800 meters, former Olympian Mike Roche in the steeplechase, Greg Robertson and Mike Shine in the 110-meter hurdles and the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, Todd Gaulty in the one-mile walk, Dan Ripley, Mike Tully and Earl Bell in the pole vault, Fairleigh Dickenson's (N.J.) Franklin Jacobs in the high jump and Al Orter in the discus throw.

East Hartford Drawn

East Hartford and Stafford battled to a 1-1 stalemate called after eight innings because of darkness in American Legion Zone Eight baseball action last night at Shea Park.

Next action for the Post 77 entry is Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock against visiting Windsor at Shea Park.

East Hartford played its lone run in the first. Dino Peraccio singled, stole second and scored on Ron Durler's RBI single.

Stafford picked its run in the second.

Legion in Rally To Edge Windsor

Three runs in the top of the seventh inning snapped a 3-3 deadlock and lifted Manchester past Windsor, 6-3, in American Legion Zone Eight baseball action last night at Windsor High.

Windsor, 4-1 in the Zone and 6-3 overall, hosts Bloomfield in a battle for first place in the Zone today at Eagle Field at 1:30. Bloomfield also is 4-1 in Zone play.

The Post 100 entry scored twice in the second as Mike Linsenbiger singled, Dave Bottaro singled, Howie Furlong sacrificed the runners up and Mike Gilbertello delivered a two-RBI single.

Windsor scored once in the third before Manchester added a run in the fourth. Linsenbiger singled, Bottaro sacrificed, Furlong grounded out and Gilbertello reached on an error, the run scoring.

Linsenbiger knotted it with runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Britz, Alcott Share Top

HERSHEY, PA. (UPI) — Jerilyn Britz, continuing her fine play of the past two weeks, eagled the 16th hole Friday en route to a 4-under par 68 and a tie with Amy Alcott for the first-round lead in the $100,000 LPGA Lady Keystone Open.

Britz barely missed a double eagle on the 67-rod par-6 16th, hitting a 5-wood second shot from the rough, that rolled over the hole before coming to rest three feet away. She sank the putt and parred in to tie Alcott.

Britz, who finished in a second-place tie at the LPGA championship and tied for fourth last week at the LPGA's top in Rochester, N.Y., shook off a double bogey 7 on the second hole with five birdies and her eagle over the 6,398-yard par 72 Hershey Country Club West course.

Baseball Field to Politics For Ex-Yank Hurler Byrne

NEW YORK (UPI) — Standing there in the directors' room, courtly and soft-spoken, as usual, with the late afternoon sunlight catching the iron gray in his hair as well as the thin blue pin-stripe in his cotton and polyester summer suit, Tommy Byrne, who once was called "The Wild Man," looked more like some clean-cut, well-turned-out candidate running for governor.

He laughed at the suggestion. "Nothing like that," said Tommy Byrne, who still holds the record for giving up the lead in a game last season by an Yankee pitcher, "I'm very happy doing what I'm doing."

Byrne is the mayor of Wake Forest, N.C., where he went to school and from where he jumped straight from the campus to the Newark Bears of the International League in 1940.

He and 10 other former Bears were honored at The Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., Wednesday night and you never saw so many guys so happy to see each other. The reunion was supposed to be solely for the 1957 Newark team which ran away with the pennant by 25 1/2 games, but so many from that club were gone, that other former Bears were invited.

Charlie Keller, Joe Collins, Spud Chandler, Alley Donald, Marius Russo, Babe Dahlgren, Joe Beggs, Jim Gleason, Allie Clark and Jack Fallon were on hand with Byrne for the special get-together. The only one in that group that never made the majors was Fallon. Hall of Famer Monte Irvin, who played for the Newark Eagles in the old Negro National League, also was among the invitees along with Frank Smith, one of the years' old groundskeepers.

"Being a mayor has some of the competitive aspects of playing professional baseball," Byrne explained. "What you find yourself doing is trying to please your constituents as well or better than the mayors of other municipalities of comparable size. Like baseball, you win some, you lose some, and when you lose, you pick yourself up and start all over again."

Seeing some of his old Newark teammates around him made Byrne recall the first time he reported to the Bears.

"They were the first ballclub I ever played for," he said. "Since I was coming from Wake Forest, a small college and a small town at-

Different Strokes

A friend of mine, Dick Maloney of Princeton Street, asked me, "How come you never write about us lead ball fishers here."

I've been asked that question before by other trolls, bait fishermen, spin fishermen, bass fishermen, salt water fishermen, etc., etc.

The implication, not with Dick or most of my quiers) is that I am being a fish snob, writing about fly fishing methods of fishing (for me) there is still get a tremendous thrill out of watching that bobber suddenly dip under the surface, and then start to race.

As for salt water fishing, I just don't have enough of it. In the last 20 years to write intelligently about it, my experience is too limited, and I have promised myself a little more exposure in this area of piscatorial pursuit.

Trolling is another facet of fresh water fishing that I have played around with on a limited basis only, and I promised Dick Maloney that I will travel to Quabbin Reservoir with him to chase lake trout and salmon.

Two weeks ago, he showed me a 12 pound fish that dwarfed the 6 pounder he had caught on the same day. This really made me sit up and take notice: to discover that such good large fish are fairly close to home. Most of my trolling for lake trout and salmon entailed long trips to Maine and Vermont.

This particular column is in no way intended to be a sermon, or a positional dissertation on all types of fishing, and more specifically, an elitist attitude about fly fishing. The latter, unfortunately, is an attitude that so many newcomers to fly fishing have tried to promulgate on to anyone who will listen.

I just like to fly fish; I like everything about it. ... And as the old saying goes: "Different strokes for different folks." Everyone should enjoy fishing the way he or she wants to, and no one method can be touted as being better than another.

So, to the people who have questioned me, I hope that this is a clear statement on how, why, when, and where. ... If I haven't touched on your method enough... Sit tight, I'll get to it yet.

Phils Lost Faith

Lomborg (UPI) — Jim Lomborg, the arm which carried the Boston Red Sox to their "Impossible Dream" pennant-winning season of 1917, says he wishes the Philadelphia Phillies had shown more faith in him this season.

Lomborg, 36, was released Saturday in a situation where I'd had to pitch in control and with discipline," said Lomborg, whose appearances usually were in games where the outcome was not in doubt.

"Those are the situations I always liked. But they didn't have any confidence in me. The one start, I found out Saturday I was pitching on Sunday because someone else was hurt. The others were just mop-up work where the games didn't matter. That's the way it was," he said.

Lomborg led the Red Sox to the 1917 pennant with a 22-8 mark. He then injured his knee skiing in the off-season and was never quite the same.

EIGHTH UTILITIES DISTRICT OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT. To The People of the Eighth Utilities District From Gordon B. Lassow, President. Another year has gone by. The Eighth District, as in a metaphor, is like a flower, slowly coming to full bloom and, like that beautiful flower, it is nurtured by two distinct entities. First, its gradual increase in population and industry is producing more revenue for the District and the Town. Secondly, its people show stronger unification in the defending of the rights of the District. But alas as a beautiful flower has problems of existing so does the District. Forces from outside try to intimidate its beauty and, to even pick it. This is not Happen.

Olympic history

A series of historical film features focusing on the great moments and personalities of past Winter Olympics will be produced for ABC Sports. The features will be presented on the air both in advance of and during coverage of the XIII Winter Olympics from Lake Placid, N.Y., next February.

Both archive film footage of past Olympic performances and historical still photo animation will be included in the shorts. In addition, they will be enhanced with interviews with great Olympians and contemporary footage to be shot exclusively for this series.

Cronkite's dream

"In Our Times," a continuing series of daily, live, half-hour current events television programs, available for broadcast to all 50 states via satellite relay to Public Broadcasting Service Stations, is planned for premiere in January 1980.

The educational series will deal with timely, developing news stories, linking what students are seeing on news programs and in reading newspapers to their basic high school curriculum. The series is the idea of Walter Cronkite, who will be actively involved in the project.

Shelley Hack will star as Tiffany Welles, Charlie's third angel when ABC's "Charlie's Angels" returns for a fourth season this fall.

Prize winner

Susan Richardson, star of ABC's "Eight Is Enough" series, and four of her real-life family members were grand prize winners on the May 21-29 special daytime versions of "Family Feud."

Competing against other celebrities and their families, Susan's team consisted of her husband, Michael; her parents, Rachel and Howard "Richie" Richardson from Coatesville, Pa.; and her grandmother, Olive Thomas from Winterhaven, Fla. Susan said the $10,000 grand prize will be donated to the Green Peace organization to aid its fight against the slaughter of baby seals.

Ring contender

Big and brawny Gerrie Coetzee, the undefeated (21-0) South African heavyweight champion, will face the toughest challenge of his professional boxing career when he tangles with former world heavyweight title-holder Leon Spinks in a scheduled 12-rounder to be televised live from Monte Carlo on NBC's "SportsWorld" Sunday, June 24.

Gerrie Coetzee

This is Spinks' first match since he lost his title to Muhammad Ali last September in a unanimous decision.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Yaphet Kotto, Sonny Grosso and Albert Saeedman (left to right) portray narcotics detectives for the New York City Police Department, in "Report to the Commissioner," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," June 27.

Some ancient Chinese believed that when a tiger died, his soul was transformed into amber.

Dial-ogue

ORIGINS - I recently saw an excellent TV special, "The House on Garibaldi Street," about the capture of Adolph Eichmann. But I wish you could answer a question for me? I know Topol is Israeli, but Nick Mancuso isn't, is he? I saw him in another movie and he sounded like an American. - Mrs. Essie Borden, Frederick, Md.

As a matter of fact, he is neither Israeli nor American. He was born in Italy and reared in Canada. Playing something you're not is what acting is all about. For his next picture he'll be playing an American Indian.

AGING MOD - I saw "The Return of the Mod Squad" on TV a while ago, and would like to know if Michael Cole was in an accident or something. What happened to his face? Also, how old is he? - Lee Bergman, Burlington, Iowa.

Your first question relates in a way to the second. At 36, age has something to do with the way Cole looks now, as opposed to the way he looked when "The Mod Squad" went off the air. He did also have a car accident that left his face scarred, but it happened during the run of the original series. With a longer haircut and more youthful face, the scars were less noticeable than now. I suppose. Still, I wouldn't say there's anything really wrong with his face.

ROOKIES - I watched "The Rookies" when it was on, and liked it very much. I would like to know what year it was first on, and how long it was first on. - Marge Barnes, Pleasantville, N.J.

The trio of rookie cops first hit the airwaves on Sept. 11, 1972. It went off the air on July 6, 1976.

ROCKED - What is my favorite actor, Rock Hudson, doing these days? "Wheels" was the last thing I saw him in. Where can I write to him since he's not in a regular series anymore? - M.B., Clayton, Calif.

Even without a regular series, Hudson always works in a few TV projects a year. You'll see him next in a dramatic film, "The Martian Chronicles," on NBC. For now, you can try reaching him through the public relations department at NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

DEADLY CRASH

Jack Klugman (right), as Quincy, points to something he finds odd in a wrecked race car - a doubt that brands the crash a possible homicide - in the "Speed Trap" episode of NBC's "Quincy" on Thursday, June 28.

Hal Linden Views Show Biz From the Top

By DAN LEWIS

Hal Linden flew into New York to spend exactly 35 seconds in front of a camera for the Tony Awards telecast, then got up bright and early the following morning and returned to California.

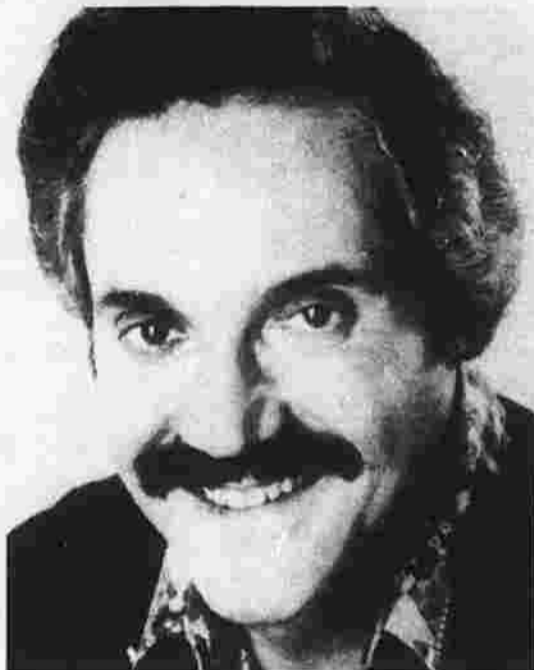

This quick flight reveals the new attitude that Hal Linden enjoys with the success of "Barney Miller." He's not pressured to support his wife and children, or develop his career. He's made it, and now there must be time to savor it — the wealth and the stardom — with his wife, three daughters and son (ranging in ages from 18 to 11).

Linden wasn't bothered when a brief recollection of his years on Broadway was cut at the last moment due to time problems. Instead, he graciously presented the grand finale of the Tonys — for Best Play.

"A few years back, when 'Barney Miller' was just getting off the ground, and every moment on the screen was precious, I might have been bothered," he noted. "But not now. I do this for Broadway, for the Tonys."

His new status and attitude are directly attributable to the endurance of "Barney Miller," which will go into its fifth full season (it began in mid-season in January, 1975) next September. There may be some minor changes, but if that is to be, it will only be obvious to Linden when he shows up on the set.

"They don't tell me much," meaning he has little pre-production contact with the show's creator and executive producer Danny Arnold. "I show up on the set, they hand me the script."

Hal Linden has achieved both success and wealth as the star of ABC's police-station comedy, "Barney Miller."

Does he have any input as far as scripts are concerned?

"Oh, I sometimes make suggestions. They don't pay attention to them most of the time," he responded.

Up to this year, Linden was still compelled by the desire to expand his career. During hiatus periods, he made films. He also made frequent guest appearances on the few variety shows, or musical specials that played on the networks.

Until recently, it was little known to the public that Linden is an accomplished musician. He made his entry into show business as a clarinetist with such big bands of the "swing era" as Sammy

Kaye, Bobby Sherwood and Boyd Raeburn. He also sang in those bands.

Linden went on to study at the American Theatre Wing in New York after being discharged from the Army. His long association with Broadway began when he understudied and eventually took over Sidney Chaplin's role in "Bells Are Ringing."

There were many other musicals, culminating with his Tony-winning role in "The Rothschilds" in 1971.

But as the career grew on Broadway during those years, so did his family, and the money demands far exceeded the dollars he earned on stage.

And so Linden moon-

lighted for many years in the very lucrative "voice-over" field. He was the voice behind hundreds of commercials.

"I used to triple, sometimes quadruple my stage income from those commercials," Linden recalled. Eventually, the voice-overs earned him a six-figure income. The income allowed Linden to advance his stage career and be selective.

Television beckoned and he made several pilots. Then came "Barney Miller." That, too, was an uphill struggle. The critics' endorsements were a large plus in its early survival. They cheered the series as a well-conceived, brightly written and excellently performed series. It was a comedy that didn't insult one's intelligence.

"The most gratifying part," Linden observed, "is that policemen like our show. We don't insult them. It's funny — here's a police show that doesn't have shoot-outs, screeching tires, no fisticuffs. We show a human side of police."

These days Linden feels doubly secure: both career- and money-wise. He proved his versatility, especially last season when he starred in the film "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" Plus, he hosted his own special, in which he sang and danced and played the clarinet.

But now he doesn't want to work that hard.

"I'm taking it easy for the two-month hiatus," Linden declared. "I was given a number of scripts, but none that I liked. So I turned them all down. I'm spending the summer — until we go back into production (the middle of July) — with the family."

ADAM AND EVE — What was the name of the old TV series that starred husband and wife, Ida Lupino and Howard Duff? It wasn't "The Thin Man," was it? — M.L. Bricker, Hickory, N.C.
