Carter Ends Talks With Japan Premier

TOKYO (UPI) — President Carter and Japanese Premier Masayoshi Ohira today wound up talks in preparation for the Big Seven "energy summit" which was overshadowed by the OPEC oil cartel conference on the other side of the world.

Security in Oiso was as tight as it has been in Tokyo where Carter arrived Sunday night. "What are you expecting, an invasion by sea?" asked one amazed White House staff member.

Spokesmen said Carter and Ohira discussed the new arms limitation treaty between the Soviet Union and United States, the Middle East and Carter's upcoming trip to South Korea.

Cartel Begins Pricing Parley

GENEVA (UPI) — The 13 OPEC oil ministers today began the cartel's most crucial price-fixing conference since the world oil crisis five years ago. A substantial increase was certain, with only the exact amount in doubt.

The ministers met behind a screen of tight security in the ballroom of the Hotel Intercontinental. They assembled in the conference room at 11 a.m. local time (6 a.m. EDT), with current Ministerial Council Chairman Mana Saad Otaiba of the United Arab Emirates presiding.

meeting he was suggesting an increased benchmark price, based on Saudi light crude, of perhaps $18.50 per barrel plus a ceiling price which could be around the $21.50 level.

agreement on a unified price and the current system of wildcat surcharges would continue. Economists have warned this could lead to a price of $25 per barrel on contract oil by the winter.

would cause a severe Western recession and thus damage the entire world economy. Western government and industry observers in Geneva said the best outcome would be on the lines of Yaman's position — an increase of 20 percent with an end to the premiums and surcharges applied by most OPEC states.

Merchant Poll Set Downtown

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Downtown merchants soon may be surveyed to find out what they would like to see done in the Main Street area. The Downtown Coordinating Committee this morning proposed this and other ideas, including a meeting of several town committees and boards, to expedite action for improving downtown.

in hiring and funding a full-time coordinator to oversee Main Street development. Such a position had been proposed and would have been funded with Community Development money until the decision by town voters to withdraw from the CD program.

Fighting City Hall Cuts Hot Dog Cost

You can't fight City Hall. Ron Gordon did and baseball fans in San Francisco now will get their hot dogs for a nickel less. Gordon was outraged when the Recreation and Park Department Commission agreed last year to allow game concessionaires to raise the price of winners to pay for a new hot dog wrapping machine. They claimed the machine could wrap only 1.63 hot dogs per minute.

After spending $1,600 of his own money, Gordon finally proved the machine is designed to do 46 dogs a minute — a volume negating the need for the extra nickel.

The clincher — and cancellation of the increase — came when he personally wrapped a dozen a minute — by hand — before the commission. And what will Gordon do now that he's won? Says he, "I'm just gonna get some rest."

Full Cycle

As a child star, Patty Duke Astin won an Oscar for her portrayal of Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker" — the story of the very special relationship Miss Keller had with Anne Sullivan, the incredible teacher and companion who pulled her out of her blind, deaf world and taught her to speak.

Now Patty is coming full cycle. In a remake of the story, for NBC-TV's new fall programming, she'll take the role of Miss Sullivan to a Helen Keller played by Melissa Gilbert of "Little House on the Prairie."

Long in the Tooth

The lady lightweight called a press conference Monday at New York's Nirvana restaurant to announce their upcoming bloodletting, but Uchi Doering — the European titlist from Germany — was an hour and 15 minutes late.

Her excuse — she had to go to the hospital and have a tooth extracted. Just to make sure no one doubted her word, she brought it along. American champ Cathy "Cat" Davis — the first woman ever to receive a boxing license in New York state — will try to remove the rest of them Thursday. The two will tangle for the world woman's title in Portland, Maine.

Search for Susan

Page Black, who does commercials for Chuck Fall 'N' Nuts restaurants and is the wife of board chairman and philanthropist William Black, is looking for Susan B. Anthony. Not the famed suffragette, but her modern namesake — to honor with hoopla when the new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin comes out July 2.

She finally found one — just one — among the millions of names in the New York phone book, but the lady in question said she's no descendant of the original Susan B. that it's her married name and she doesn't want to cash in on it.

So the search goes on. The first one found will get a bit more than just a free cup of coffee.

PZC Approves Permits For Warehouse Project

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter MANCHESTER — The Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night approved a special exception and in-land wetland application for the Industrial Park Corp. with several recommendations.

Nearby Grissom Road residents had protested the proposed development of a new J.C. Penney warehouse last month stating, among other things, that there would be an excessive amount of tree removal, and objecting to use of a railroad spur. The commission has taken into consideration the attitudes of the nearby residents in its recommendations which include light poles directed away from the residents, no exterior paging (public address), a light stockade cedar six-foot fence, a minimum of a 60-foot undisturbed buffer area within the fence of the property line and planting of four-foot high hemlocks with the condition that the Park Department determine what existing trees, if any, should be removed, planting and fence installation to be completed before issuance of a building permit, improvements to the concrete culvert at the residential property line, and drainage gravel placed outside the bends in the channel, weather light enclosures on each loading door, and walls on each side of the railroad spur to minimize the noise.

The commission also approved a subdivision modification for the Vernon Street Corridor, which has requested an inland wetlands permit to build a connector road between the corporation's Knollwood Road subdivision off Vernon Street to an undeveloped parcel of land to the northeast, now inaccessible to vehicles.

New plans show the developer has moved the site of the proposed road so that it would preserve the balance in the wetlands area and would have no impact on it, Attorney Thomas Fitzgerald, representing the Vernon Street Corp., said. Town planner Alan Lamson said that this is one of the locations recommended by the Soil Conservation Service. Lamson also recommended that the developer should provide a drainage ditch east of the road.

Grant Sought For Center

By ALICE EVANS Herald Reporter MANCHESTER — The town will apply for federal funds, made available by the Older Americans Act, to pay for the needed carpentering and furnishings at the Senior Citizens Center. The grant is to be used only as seed money, Sister Rose Alma of the Area Agency on Aging told the town's Commission on Aging Monday night.

The town or the Senior Citizens Center will have to come up with matching funds for the project. The first year the grant will cover 85 percent of the program cost, the next year, 70 percent, and the third year, 50 percent. Sister Rose Alma said that she has received an application for the funds and that it will be filed by Assistant Town Manager Charles McCarthy before the June 30 deadline. As with all such federal grants, the program must be for the low income and minorities. Sister Rose Alma reminded the commission of that more than once Monday night. She also suggested that the town request the present center at Myrtle and Linden streets. "It just seems that Manchester is large enough for two senior citizens centers," she said. There is only one problem the town may run into to obtain the grant. The Senior Citizens Center must be a multi-service center, not just the social center it appears to be now. If the grant is awarded to the town, the funds will not be available until January 1980, Sister Rose Alma said. The Commission on Aging Monday night also recommended the town arrange for a Connecticut Transit Co. but stop nearer to the Spencer Village housing project for the elderly on Spencer Street.

Heating Oil Supplies Barely Enough for Winter

BOSTON (UPI) — Many oil industry experts were taken by surprise by President Carter's decision to build up national home heating oil reserves to 240 million barrels, according to a leading industry analyst. "It took a lot of us who deal with the situation every day by surprise," said Charles H. Burkhardt. "We've never had a 240 million barrel reserve and I suspect we probably never will." He estimated that a reserve of about 217 million barrels will be sufficient for this winter. Burkhardt joined representatives of three major oil companies and a number of New England's primary distributors at a media seminar Monday intended to provide the industry's view of how the present energy crunch came about. Most agreed, barring unforeseen developments in the Mideast or an excessively severe winter and with moderate conservation efforts, New England, which normally consumes some 274 million barrels of fuel oil a year, should have enough No. 2 oil to see it through the winter — barely. Burkhardt, vice president of the New England Fuel Institute which represents about 1,100 independent distributors, said the industry was "just about on target" in its efforts to comply with President Carter's goal, but will probably fall behind.

New Hampshire Sets Minimum Purchases

New Hampshire Monday joined the growing list of New England states trying to conserve fuel and cut the long lines at service stations by requiring motorists to purchase a minimum amount of gasoline when they do more than fill up, said Gov. Hugh Gallen signed an executive order forcing owners of four-cylinder cars to buy at least $5 worth of gas with each trip to the pump. Owners of six-and eight-cylinder cars are required to buy at least $7 worth. Gallen signed the order after the New Hampshire Retail Gasoline Dealers Association had endorsed the plan.

"They reinforced what I heard earlier. That there has been a lot of tipping off, people buying $1.50 or $2 worth of gasoline," said state energy Chief William Humm. The order is not legally binding because it is not approved by the state Executive Council, but Gallen warned he would get the council's okay if motorists and station owners do not comply with the order. In Maine, meanwhile, state officials and gasoline dealers met to discuss the growing gas shortage. But Energy Director John Joseph said Gov. Joseph Brennan would take no action until after July 1 because the situation was not as dire as in New Hampshire.

Massachusetts Gov. Edward King has ordered stations to restrict gas to cars with half a tank or less, but has not set minimum prices. Long lines were still reported in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and parts of Connecticut Monday.

Many 'No Turn' Signs Coming Down in Area

The State Traffic Commission last week decided to remove 683 "no turn on red" signs that had been posted on state roads. That total includes five in Manchester, eight in South Windsor, nine in Vernon and one in Coventry. The state Legislature has passed a law that will permit right turns at red lights unless the intersection is posted for no such turns. The law goes into effect Sunday. But, unlike many laws that go into effect with little fanfare, the right-turn-on-red proposal has received plenty of attention. The state has been criticized by legislators, local officials and residents for imposing stiff restrictions on where the right turn will be permitted.

This resulted in the posting of 2,877 signs prohibiting such turns at state intersections. Municipalities, most of which followed the state's rigid guidelines, also installed signs on town-owned roads. People have criticized the posting of the signs because they said it negated the intent of the law — to speed traffic through intersections and eliminate unnecessary idling. A subsequent review by the State Traffic Commission resulted in the decision to remove 661 of the signs that had been posted.

The signs to be removed are at the following locations: Manchester — Interstate 84 westbound off ramp at the intersection with Spencer Street; Oakland Street at Main Street; Lenox Street and Porter streets at East Center Street; Welcome Place at East Middle Turnpike; Mott's Shopping Center intersection at East Middle Turnpike; Wyllys Street at Spring Street.

Vernon — Green Circle Road at Route 83; Center Road and Dart Hill Road; Route 83; Route 31, West Junction; Interstate 86 off ramp at Howard Johnson's; Center Road at Route 30; Wells Road at Route 30; K-Mart Shopping Center at Route 30; Pitkin Street at Route 83; Route 74 and Old Town Road at Route 83.

South Windsor — Route 194 at Route 5; Chapel Road at Route 5; Pleasant Valley Road at Route 5; Colony Road at Route 5; Newberry Road at Route 5; Strong Road at Route 5; Sullivan Avenue Shopping Center at Route 194; Governor's Highway at Route 5.

Coventry — Route 31 and Grant Hill Road. Hebron Finance Board — The Board of Finance will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building. The board will discuss a letter sent to the town treasurer concerning the regional levy for 1979-80 and a request from David Cattanchuck, superintendent of schools, asking for appropriate dates for budget presentation and hearings for the 1980-81 fiscal year.

The board will also discuss the 100th annual town report now at the printers; and a letter from Joseph Pelletier, chairman of the Board of Education, relative to the budget.

Construction Firms Gas Crunch Losers

By ARTHUR P. BUSHNELL
United Press International

The construction industry has become the latest victim of the gas crunch as contractors announced 110 layoffs because they've run out of fuel for their equipment.

An initial 45 construction workers had been laid off for the same reason last week.

A Torrington firm said Monday it will shut down municipal projects in Norwalk and Cromwell because it is out of gas.

The Bonvicini Building Co. said it will suspend work today on a sewer project in Norwalk where 20 of its employees and 40 subcontractor employees were working.

Another 50 men will be laid off from a project at Cromwell High School.

The Connecticut Construction Industries Association asked Mrs. Grasso and Energy Undersecretary Thomas Fitzpatrick to waive maximum construction vehicle gross and axle weight limits, enabling vehicles to carry loads 12 percent heavier and resulting in a 10 percent fuel savings.

Connecticut officials Monday bolstered the state's dwindling gasoline supplies for July, amid the first reports that service station lines were decreasing in some parts of the state under mandatory odd-even sales.

Gov. Ella Grasso's office tracked down 8 million gallons of gasoline which had been shipped to a bankrupt Connecticut retailer and Attorney General Carl Ajello moved to block the transfer of the needed fuel to another state.

There were unconfirmed reports the gas, which had been sold to a New York broker, was to have been loaded onto barges Tuesday for movement to Providence, R.I., and Boston.

State officials said the bonanza will be added to July's supplies, more than making up for gas Mrs. Grasso had ordered used to ease the end of June demand.

The situation at service stations in the Hartford area showed some signs of easing up Monday. But the lines still appeared out-of-control in Fairfield County, with more than 100 cars lining up hours before stations opened.

Gas lines that had stretched for blocks last week were replaced by a few as two or three cars waiting for their turn at the pumps by mid-morning in the Hartford area. Longer lines had also been reported earlier in the day.

At Spillane's Service Center — one of two stations reported open on Sunday — lines had dwindled from Sunday's dozens of cars to four or five at a time.

"They're pretty well sticking with that odd and even," said the station manager, who added "about 95 percent of them" were filling up. Many apparently were unsure the lack of short line would persist and continued to fill 5-gallon cans with gasoline.

Lines up to 300 cars had been reported at some of the few gas stations that were open Sunday. Those long lines continued in Fairfield County Monday.

Many county motorists tried to get to the pumps early because most stations

Special Order Needed To Get Gasland Fuel

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut is awaiting a special order from the federal Energy Department that officials say will force the distribution in the state of 8 million gallons of gasoline already owned by a New York broker.

Gov. Ella Grasso said Monday a court order is ready in case anyone tries to take the gas from the Goodhope Industries terminal in New Haven. The gas was for the company's bankrupt Gasland service stations, which closed their Massachusetts and Connecticut outlets last November.

DOE Deputy Administrator John O'Leary promised the gas will be redirected to Connecticut, the governor said. Mrs. Grasso said it will more than make up for what was borrowed from July's allocation to meet June's demand.

The governor dispatched state workers — three from the Tax Department and one from the state energy office — to the New Haven tank farms Friday in search of the reported cache of gas. A spokesman for the governor said an unidentified "oil company" was the source of the information.

Mrs. Grasso said the state's gas shortfall in June was estimated at more than 18 percent and the surplus gas will cut that by about 4 percent. The Gasland stations used to pump 5.6 million gallons of gas in the state monthly.

Attorney General Carl Ajello, following a meeting with the governor and the state's congressional delegation, said a Superior Court restraining order obtained over the weekend was "in the sheriff's hand" just in case.

"We're not going to let it leave," Ajello said.

Irate Truckers Will Go to Jail

By United Press International

Irate independent truckers blockading five major Connecticut truck stops say they're willing to face jail, but warn more arrests could trigger violence.

Three arrests have been made in connection with the protests but no injuries have been reported.

Gary Roby, spokesman for truckers blockading a North Stonington stop, said Monday most truckers were willing to face arrest but he added that will only cause more problems.

"If that happens then tempers are going to fly and you'll see violence," he said.

"People are starting to get upset. The country just seems to ignore us and they don't see the important role independent truckers play in the economy," Roby said.

The truckers — tired, frustrated and angry that their demands haven't been met — Monday continued peaceful blockades at the five diesel fuel pumps.

"They're getting very jumpy and when they get jumpy, trouble usually follows. I hope there isn't any," said Herb Johnson, a spokesman for the striking truckers.

"One little, simple, insignificant incident could touch off a lot of violence, a lot of problems," Johnson said.

Gov. Ella Grasso met one of the truckers' demands Friday night and agreed to increase Connecticut's allowable truck weight from 73,000 to 80,000 pounds, but only for trucks carrying food and fuel during the emergency period.

The truckers weren't happy with her decision.

"It stinks," Johnson said.

Roby said "it doesn't do a damn thing for us at all. If they can do it for food and fuel why can't they do it for the rest? I haul machines into factories and that provides jobs," said Roby, 34, of Danielson.

The spokesmen said the truckers planned to stay as long as it takes for their demands to be met.

"We're just going to hang in here until we get what we want, as long as it takes. We have no choice. Either we lose our trucks and go out of business or hang in until we get some kind of legislation," Roby said.

The truckers are demanding 100 percent fuel allocation to truck stops, fuel surcharges on all trucks to make up for the soaring cost of diesel fuel and a uniform 80,000-pound weight limit and 60 foot length limit in all states.

Police and operators of the truck stops said there were no problems or incidents of violence Monday.

Council Nixes Rule On Pesticide Permit

SOUTH WINDSOR — The South Windsor Town Council, Monday night, unanimously rejected an ordinance calling for a permit before the application of any pesticide out of doors.

The 90-minute public hearing which produced some heated discussion was attended by many of the town's farmers.

"It seems with all of the regulations that the federal and state governments have it should not be necessary for more on the local level," said strawberry farmer Charles Chapin.

Chapin said that pesticides are necessary to protect the crops and farmers. He said farmers could not properly protect their crops if they had to be delayed by local officials who have no interest in farming.

One resident reminded the council that none of the farmers present at the meeting expected the council to be authorities on pesticides, and that they should realize they are not.

The ordinance which was proposed by Mayor Nancy Catlyn, who was unable to attend the meeting, required that a permit be obtained from the local director of health. The director of health must be convinced that the application of pesticides would not be injurious to human or animal life, crops, vegetation, or natural resources.

Democratic council member Jackie Smith said the ordinance was "like trying to kill a flea with a cannon."

Mrs. Smith said she felt the proposed ordinance was impractical and could not be enforced.

$3,000 Surplus Forecast

SOUTH WINDSOR — The school system will end the 1978-79 year with a $3,000 surplus, according to a recent report by School Superintendent Robert Goldman.

Goldman said the money will be turned over to the Town Council following the end of the fiscal year June 30. Goldman said the money comes from a number of accounts and not from one budget category.

"Returning the surplus doesn't mean we didn't need it in the first place," said Goldman. "There are those who would say that but they are wrong. A budget is a list of needs, but things happen during the school year. The surplus of $3,000 was arrived at by applying sound business procedures."

Junior Women's Club In New State Group

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Junior Women's Club is part of a new state organization organized early this month.

The 72 Junior Women's Clubs in Connecticut met June 9 in Wethersfield and organized The Connecticut Junior Women Inc. The member clubs were recently part of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's Clubs' Junior Membership.

Maureen Borski Jr. of Enfield is the director of the new Juniors. The group is combining its efforts on behalf of its state project, Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, to raise money to start an infant apnea (sudden cessation of breathing) center at Bridgeport Hospital in Bridgeport.

Thrift Shop Sale

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Community Thrift Shop, located at 900 Sullivan Avenue, is holding a clearance sale of all items, starting today. All clothing in the shop will sell for $1 per bag full or 25 cents per item.

The shop is open every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 1-4 p.m. The shop is sponsored by the South Windsor Women's Club and all proceeds are returned to the community in the form of scholarships or donations.

Betty's Notebook

By this time next week, we should be in Pusan, Korea, staying with a host family. It's all very exciting.

We had our induction meeting and were told that we must remember to take our shoes off when entering a Korean home. Little straw slippers will be provided for walking inside their homes.

Our bus departs from the Hartford Civic Center Sunday at 6:30 p.m. and our flight departs from JFK Kennedy International Airport at 11:58 p.m. We arrive at approximately 7:40 a.m. on July 3 and from there will board an aircraft for the flight to Pusan.

After our visit in Pusan, several optional trips are offered with all roads leading back to Seoul, our point of departure to the U.S. We have planned a trip to Osaka, Japan, and hope to have four nights there. Hotel accommodations have been arranged in Kyoto, which is the ancient capital of Japan, and it is there where our friend, Hirosumi Shimizu and his family resides.

We are really getting excited and am sure it will be a wonderful trip. Of course, the young lady of the family departs with her friend Heather Plague, for Bermuda on Wednesday morning. They will stay there, basking in the sunshine, until July 4.

It's a great place for young people and we have made many friendships there. Maybe after my long trip - jet lag and all - a little R.R. in Bermuda would be just right.

Incidentally, on my trip, we will have about a 2 1/2 hour layover in Anchorage, Alaska, and that will give us a chance to get a glimpse of that city.

I understand there are still a few seats left on the Aug. 17-27 Friendship Force flight to West Berlin, Germany, and host families are still needed. Anyone interested can call 647-1419.

WHEN I WANT YOUR OPINION, I'LL ASK FOR IT!

Frank and Ernest

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: AMY'S POP asked what you thought the chances were for a happy marriage between Amy and Jerry, her fiancé, a regular sports nut. Jerry ate, drank, slept, talked and lived sports, but Amy didn't share his enthusiasm. AMY'S POP said he tried to tell her that guys who lived for sports made poor husbands and worse fathers, but she wasn't buying it. You told Dad to back off.

Well, my husband is a sports nut. He watches sports on TV every chance he gets. When we were first married, I'd watch too, to keep him company, but I was bored and complained a lot. Finally, I realized how lucky I was that my guy was home with me—not out drinking and running around with the guys like a lot of other husbands. I confess that when my man isn't watching TV he tends to get underfoot, so I welcome the weekends to sew, clean house, read or write letters. If Amy keeps busy she won't mind it a bit.

DISAGREES WITH AMY'S POP

DEAR DISAGREES: My mail has been running about 90 percent with me and 10 percent with AMY'S POP. Here's one for my side:

DEAR ABBY: Any guy who lives for sports has got to be very selfish. I know what poor Amy is letting herself in for if she marries a sports fanatic because I married one. Only mine is worse. His love for sports takes him out of town. He follows "his" teams, so whenever the Vikings, the Twins or Minnesota U goes out of town to play, my guy goes, too. When they lose, he sulks for a week. His whole life is wrapped up in sports. And as if that isn't enough, my man also loves hunting and fishing! During the fishing season he fishes with his father. During the hunting season he hunts with his brother. During bowling tournaments he travels with his team. Anything that takes him out of town without me looks good to me! I can't go because I'm stuck with my own kids, which gives you an idea of what his favorite indoor sport is.

MINNEAPOLIS MAMMA

DEAR MAMMA: Read on for some advice from a sports nut himself:

DEAR ABBY: I'm a sports nut, so I know how Jerry feels. I have a few words of advice for other sports nuts who are still single. Either marry a girl who into sports the way you are, or stay single. I've dated for four years all through college up to a great extent. I went to all the games with me and pretented to love them.

As soon as we were married she let me know she thought sports were for little boys and it was time I "grew up." We never fought about anything else, but we fought about sports enough to end our marriage.

I hear she's living with a guy, and that's major you think he does? He's an assistant basketball coach at a major university. I hope she marries him. It will serve her right.

SPOILS NUT

DEAR ABBY: About Amy, who is going to marry a sports nut? I hope the reconsiderer. I am married to such a man and it's awful! He lives for sports. The minute he opens his eyes in the morning he runs out to get the paper so he can look at the sports page.

At breakfast there's no conversation since he is carefully reading the sports section.

During our love-making he's listening to some game on radio. I think men who are devoted to sports take a sad oath of celibacy.

East didn't have anything like a four-spade bid. But he knew his opponents and was certain that South would not be shut out. And East felt that he had the right medicine for a high mummy suit contract, so he bid four spades.

South really should have passed. He knew that his partner would be short in hearts and that four spades might well be set. At these tables where West did play four spades, most declarers went down two tricks against a heart lead by South's ace, a diamond return won by North, then a second diamond taken by North, a diamond ruff and a heart ruff.

At his table, West opened his ace of spades. Eventually, East added three trump tricks for a diamond ruff and a heart ruff.
