Bigger Gallery
LONDON (UPI) — The Tate Gallery, famous for its collection of British and modern art, at last is getting its long-awaited extension. A new wing, increasing the Tate's exhibition space by 30 percent, was opened by Queen Elizabeth with a fireworks display over the River Thames in late spring and opened to the public several days later. It's the first expansion of the Tate for more than 40 years.

Lamprey Pie
Sea lampreys, abhorrent to most people, were considered delicacies for centuries. The parasite fish was a favorite dish of Roman Emperor Vitellius. A medieval French recipe called for stewed lampreys marinated in wine.

203rd Birthday

The nation's 203rd birthday Wednesday will be marked by more closed gasoline stations than in years past, but no shortage of gunpowder was evident. Virtually every community in the nation planned some sort of fireworks display. The highlights include the gathering of about 100,000 people, if last year's effort was any indication, around the Grant Park bandshell in Chicago to watch a fireworks display and listen to Peter Dinklage's "1812 Overture," complete with four cannons. New York's official festivities include speedboat races, street festivals and musical events in the Wall Street area — capped by the floating fireworks display. And, in Seward, Neb., the culmination of a year-long community effort will include a greased-pole climb, a log-sawing contest, colonial-style awl firing, a 15-mile "half marathon" race, a horseshoe pitching contest, band concerts, flea markets, antique car shows, children's theater and a "melter-drama," a buffalo and beef barbecue, an ice cream social, a Frisbee contest, and, of course, a square dance.

School Busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in separate opinions Monday, upheld citywide school desegregation plans requiring busing of a total 90,000 children in Columbus and Dayton, Ohio. It also denied appeals by school boards in Austin, Texas, and Minneapolis. Assistant Attorney General Drew Days III said the rulings may have an impact on pending desegregation cases in Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland and Pasadena, Calif., as well. He said the court "demonstrated it is committed to going forward to resolve finally the lingering problem of school desegregation in our country."

Press Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In another ruling that has upset the press, the Supreme Court said a trial judge may close a pretrial hearing when an accused criminal's attorney and the prosecution agree the hearing should be secret to guard against publicity that might jeopardize a fair trial. Press groups forecast an increase in secret judicial proceedings. Jack Landau, director of the Reporters Committee for the Freedom of the Press, commented, "The overall impact of this decision will be to deprive the public of timely and critical information about the criminal justice process, bearing in mind that 99 percent of all criminal cases in this country are settled during these pretrial proceedings."

Carter Makes Energy Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, who has given governors and refiners more power to distribute gasoline supplies, plans a national address Thursday night on "the steps we need to take" to meet the energy crisis. The twin announcements were disclosed Monday after a day in which Carter heard James Schlesinger, his much-criticized energy secretary, acknowledge that rural areas are receiving more than their share of scarce gasoline. The federal allocation system, Schlesinger said, puts gasoline "where the automobiles are not." Carter was to meet again today with his energy advisers before departing for Camp David where he will spend the Fourth of July. White House press secretary Jody Powell told reporters Carter had asked for television and radio time Thursday to "discuss the short-term and long-term energy crisis, reasons for it and the steps we will need to take to deal with it." In the next few weeks, Powell said, Carter will make major decisions in the energy area and then ask Congress to approve the "difficult choices." The fuel policy revisions drafted by the Energy Department amount to reassuring oil companies they can deviate from the nation's feast or famine allocation formulas by shifting as much as 5 percent of one area's gasoline supplies to a region that needs it more.

The shifts can take place within a state or from state to state, but would have to be justified by proof of a severe shortage in the area that would benefit. Philip Garon, an Energy Department spokesman, said suppliers could rely on a governor's determination that a severe shortage exists in a particular area. In an interstate shift, other factors like long gas lines and closed stations would have to be considered along with a governor's statement the state was experiencing a gasoline shortage. The reallocation power, coupled with a governor's 5 percent gasoline set-aside allotment, would permit as much as 10 percent of one area's gasoline supply to be used to relieve a shortage in another area of the state. The president personally told the governors of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut of the decision in a conference telephone call. The three states have serious shortages. During a meeting with a newly formed energy task force, Carter and Schlesinger, chaired quietly without posing for photographers. "Do you feel the allocation formula is fair to the Northeast?" Carter asked in a soft tone that was picked up only by open broadcast microphones. Schlesinger said, "It's a uniform formula," then paused. Carter asked whether he was trying to use the formula "put gas alone where the automobiles are?" "No," Schlesinger replied.

Police Job Action Now in Full Force

HARTFORD (UPI) — A job action by about 850 Connecticut State Police moved ahead full-force today with figures showing troopers have handed out only a fraction of the usual number of traffic summonses so far this week. Public Safety Commissioner Donald Long said troopers had issued seven motor vehicle summonses between midnight Sunday and midnight Monday compared to 212 for the same period last week. He met with commanding officers at state police units around the state to reaffirm his position that the officers — who are staging the slowdown to protest their lack of a contract with the state — should be reminded of their "moral and legal obligations" to enforce the law. Long had reacted cautiously Monday to the job slowdown amid uncertainty about how many troopers, if any, were participating. "I view any deliberate action to avoid enforcing the law as inconsistent with the role of the sworn police officer," the commissioner said. "Any such action will be dealt with in accordance with our normal procedures as outlined in the present contract."

Connecticut officials Monday promised to file a charge of bad faith bargaining against state police during the second day of the job action. Union troopers, sergeants and lieutenants voted Sunday to stop issuing traffic summonses — for all but serious offenses. Their working agreement with the state expired at midnight Saturday, but was extended by the Legislature. State police spokesman Joseph Crowley said speeding tickets were still being issued Monday and it would be a day before any statistics would be available to show the effect of the job action. A bargaining session began after the job action vote but broke down late Sunday, apparently because of a disagreement over the intent of an offer made by the troopers. No date was set for resuming talks. The job action, the police union contract offer and the union's alleged refusal to participate in a fact-finding process were the bases for an unfair labor practices charge the state's chief negotiator said he would file against the police. "The union leaders made us a take it or leave it proposal and we can't bargain on that basis," said Allan Drachman. A fact-finder, attorney Gary Ginsberg, entered the dispute two weeks ago and Drachman said the state would like him to begin a formal mediation process that would ultimately result in a non-binding recommendation. But the union has asked the state to agree in advance to whatever recommendation Ginsberg might make, and the state has refused. "We told the union we would not commit ourselves in advance, but would give the report serious consideration," Drachman said. Chief union negotiator Julius Getman, a Yale University law professor specializing in labor law, said the union felt that unless the state commits itself to the fact-finder's recommendations, "there would be no point to it."

Town Making Plans To Reduce Gas Use

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — Fearing continued cutbacks in allocations, town administrators have started work to order reductions in the town's use of gasoline. Volunteer cuts have resulted in some reductions in town usage, but this most recent step is expected to further reduce the town's gasoline consumption. Town Manager Robert Weiss has asked all town department heads to prepare a list of cuts the departments would have to make if the gasoline supply is cut 15 or 20 percent. Weiss has asked for those lists by Monday, and he plans to begin ordering some of those cuts Tuesday — a week from today. "What I've said is come up with a plan to reduce by next Monday. If you don't, I will," he said. So far, Weiss has been seeking voluntary compliance by the town staff. He has sent letters to department heads asking that they work to reduce their usage of gasoline. Some savings in gasoline usage has occurred since those requests for voluntary compliance, Maurice Pass, director of general services, said. But, Weiss feels more steps are needed. "It appears now this is for real, and we have to be prepared. We're just not going to get gas," he said. The town's allocation for July has been cut by 15 percent from the amount it used in July 1978. Thus, Weiss asked for department heads to prepare reductions needed to meet a 15 percent drop in fuel. "The 30 percent is in case things gets even worse," Weiss said of his request. He did not want to speculate on what type of cuts might be imposed for existing town operations or programs. Pass predicted that some town programs would have to be cut or reduced, but he also was hesitant to speculate about specifics until the department reports are completed. Weiss and Pass said the cutbacks are needed not only because of reductions in allocations to the town but also because of increasing fuel costs. "With gas prices what they are today, they can throw our budgets all to hell," Pass said. The cutbacks means the town will have to make cuts similar to those being made by homeowners to meet the gas crunch, Pass said. "We don't feel we're privileged

Outlook Is Better

HARTFORD (UPI) — A glimmer of hope on the gasoline front will give Connecticut residents a little more to celebrate this Fourth of July. State officials Monday gave some optimistic predictions about the holiday gasoline supply and Gov. Ella Grasso was working to have gas redirected to the state for long-term relief. Mrs. Grasso discussed the gasoline crisis in the northeast in a four-way telephone conference call with President Carter, New York Gov. Hugh Carey and New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne. She said Carter told her states strapped with a gas shortage now can appeal to oil companies directly to shift gasoline allocations to their states. "They're (White House) leaving it up to us to do it, but they're giving us tools we didn't have last week," she said after the 15-minute conference call. "The state of Connecticut will now ask the major oil companies to redirect their supply into Connecticut so that our allocation is closer to the national average allocation," Mrs. Grasso said at a news conference after the call. She said Carter told her a recently agreed federal Department of Energy rule will allow oil companies to redirect up to 5 percent of their gas allocations to those states with the most need.

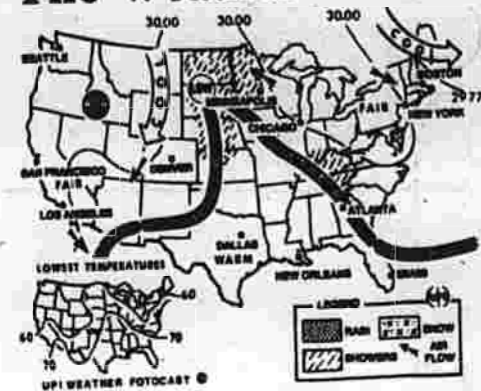

Crossroads, MACC Seek To Share Senior Center

MANCHESTER — Two service organizations in town have submitted a proposal that they be permitted to share the existing senior citizens center at 63 Linden St. The proposal from Crossroads and the Manchester Area Conference of Churches has been submitted to the Town Board of Directors and is expected to be discussed at the board's July 10 meeting. Nancy Long, a project director for MACC, said. The former Green School has been converted to serve as a new senior citizens center, so the Linden Street building soon will be vacated. Both organizations previously have asked the board to be considered as occupants of the building once the center is relocated. This is the first formal request made by the two that they share the Linden Street building. According to the proposal, Crossroads would have the entire first floor of the building, Nancy Long, a project director for MACC, said. MACC would have the basement area and would use that space as a multi-service center, Ms. Long said.

The MACC food and clothing banks both would be located there as would the offices of the human needs director and the project entry director, she said. Those facilities now are in different locations around town. The MACC's main office would continue to operate out of St. Bartholomew's Church, she said. "The Board of Directors will decide how to use the Linden Street building. Other options that have been mentioned have included using it for town offices or selling it."

Two Masters Meet

At 92, Marc Chagall has a difficult time getting around these days, even to his own Paris museum to attend the many concerts held there. But the master got a chance to hear and meet another master last week at the Chagall Museum. After the listening to pianist Claudio Arrau play Beethoven's Appassionata, the painter motioned his hands toward the auditorium's beautiful blue walls adorned by his own works of art and said, "This room and your playing makes everything here pale beside it." Chagall, famous for his dreamlike paintings, had admired Arrau since hearing him play Beethoven 20 years ago in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Fourth Thought

Evangelist Billy Graham, who believes the United States is on the skids, says the nation ought to do something else beside set off fireworks this July 4th.

"We seem to be entering a period of almost decadence," Graham told a news conference Monday in Washington, "and some people are saying we are out of control, some people are saying the country can't be governed."

He said on Independence Day Americans should think about ways to "bring into focus the historical roots of the country and set future guidelines" for a return to "moral integrity."

Graham is speaking at a July 4th religious celebration sponsored by the Honor America Committee.

Rocker Can't Roll

Rock singer Roddy Llewellyn, Princess Margaret's erstwhile boon companion, can't drive for 18 months. Llewellyn was banned from the roads Monday after a court heard how the singer allegedly drove his van into a police car after a night's heavy drinking. Authorities said Llewellyn's van crashed into an unmarked police car at a London intersection, took off again at 40 mph and ran into a taxi. Llewellyn and Peter Schultens were together onstage, in the Bournville ballet, "Napoli."

His lawyer said Llewellyn admitted his judgment had been impaired after attending a party to celebrate another singer's 25 years in show business.

Danish for Danish

Dancing can work up a big appetite and for the Royal Danish Ballet, could be more fitting than topping off the evening with Danish pastry. The whole company gave its closing performance Sunday night at New York's City Center then went to the Tavern on the Green for a last supper and, of course, Danish pastry for dessert. Joining the company was Peter Martins, a Danish native who is now a member of the New York City Ballet. For the first time in a long time, Martins and Peter Schultens were together onstage, in the Bournville ballet, "Napoli."

Glimpses

In something of a turnaround, Soviet painter Ilya S. Glazunov has been formally awarded the state title "Peoples Artist." In June 1977, he angrily canceled a public exhibition of his works because Soviet authorities wouldn't let him display his huge canvases "Mystery of the 20th Century" ... Christopher Derick, president of Viacom Communications, has been elected to a three-year term on the Board of Directors of the National Cable Television Association.

Potholes Fixed at Field

MANCHESTER - Some potholes in fields at the Martin School have been repaired, Wilfred Dion, the Board of Education's supervisor of building and grounds, said. The fields are used extensively during the late spring and early summer months by the Little Miss Softball program. Mayor Stephen Penny had been contacted about the problem by one of the parents of a player in the league. Penny first talked to Ernest Turek, park superintendent, about the problem. But, Turek said the problem is not his department's. The Little Miss Softball program is run independently of the town's Recreation Department and the fields are property of the school system. Also, Turek said his workers and equipment already are spread thin. "We can't take on any more (work)," he said. "I can't do anything more unless I've got the people and money to do it," he said. Penny then turned the matter over to Dion, who said his crews fixed the fields as soon as he found out about the problem. "When we learned about it, we fixed it," he said. There is one main field and several surrounding fields at the Martin School, he said. Most of the pothole problems were in the surrounding fields. There usually are several softball games played at once at the Martin School site.

The units, which are located on Ellington Road (Route 30), consist of 104 one- and two-bedroom models in the first phase of the sale. Mr. Fenichel said 84 additional units will be available in the second phase. Bryre Wood has jogging paths, nature trails and exercise areas as well as the conventional tennis courts, swimming pool and cabana. Models are expected to be available for inspection in August, although advisers are available at the site's trailer office/showroom and at the realtor's Avon office. Park Buses Set in Area

SOUTH WINDSOR - Prompted by the present gasoline shortage, the Town of South Windsor is planning to establish a town bus service to the Rye Street and the Veterans Memorial parks. The service will start as soon as it is approved by the Town Council. Gregory Turek, the town's energy coordinator, has suggested that the trips be made to the parks on a daily basis with pickups to begin at 11:30 a.m. and the return trip to be made about 5:30 p.m. Allan Young, town manager, said the program is expected to cost about $119 a day for a seven-day service. Plans are to charge the riders 50 cents each way. Young said that the town has arranged for a temporary arrangement from the state Public Utilities Control Authority. Early last month Mayor Nancy Caffyn suggested that the town start some sort of shuttle bus service to the town recreation areas and Young said the town is investigating possible grants for such a transit system for the summer. All revenue taken in from the program will go to reimburse the town for bus expenses. It is expected that a two week trial program will start soon.

Labor, Consumer Groups Demonstrate at Oil Firm

By CHRIS BLAKE Herald Reporter EAST HARTFORD - About 150 persons, including members of a coalition of labor and consumer groups, protested against the high prices of gas and long lines at the pumps Monday by staging a demonstration outside the district office of Mobil Oil.

Labor leaders, addressing the orderly crowd outside of 111 Founders Plaza, charged the oil companies with creating a shortage to increase the price of gas. They asked Martin DiMezza, Mobil's regional marketing director, to answer eight printed questions. The coalition chose Mobil because it sells more gas than any supplier in the state and because of its high profits during the first quarter of the year.

U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., criticized the Carter administration's decontrol policy, saying it has forced Americans to "buy down and pay more for the same super profits."

He said President Carter's deregulation of oil companies has caused more than a 50 percent increase in the price of gas. Moffett said the national energy policy "puts private profit ahead of public interest and accountability."

Before his speech, Moffett said he saw last week's economic summit in Japan as constructive. He praised President Carter's import limit system, which the nations at the summit passed. "I'm very happy to see that Carter is taking a tougher stance with OPEC," he said before addressing the crowd. Other speakers included labor leaders and representatives of citizen action groups, including the East Hartford Citizen Action Group. Lou Kiefer, of the International Association of Machinists, said the

Thursday, which had been delayed since last Wednesday because the public notice had not appeared five days before the scheduled meeting. However, LaBelle said, "You do violate the FOI (Freedom of Information Act) by not posting the notice in the town clerk's office 48 hours prior to the meeting."

Blitchman then urged President Gordon Lassow to reject any motion for an executive session and publicly discuss what he called Lassow's "omission of duty" in the confusion over the public notice publication. "I ask you to take the openness of the public meeting," Blitchman said, "to discuss the concerns of your performance as an officer respecting the notice (which was) inadequately given the paper."

Before that idea could be bantered about, some citizens in the audience challenged the legality of the special meeting as well and asked LaBelle for another opinion. The special meeting was not filed," he replied, "and you would violate the FOI if you held this meeting, too."

Well, I would adjourn then," said Noon. The notice for the meeting was posted on the door inside the tax collector's office Monday, but was not filed with Town Clerk Edward Tomkowiak's office. LaBelle said as a matter of custom, and because the district clerk does not have an office, the notice should have been filed with Tomkowiak's office.

Racial Imbalance Law Is Idea Without Plan

HARTFORD (UPI) - The racial imbalance law the Legislature passed 10 years ago to do away with segregation in Connecticut schools is still an idea without a plan. The Legislature's Regulations Review Committee, for the second time in a decade, Monday rejected the regulations proposed by the state Board of Education to implement the law. The vote was 12-1 with one discussion.

"We'll have to go back to square one and begin to review the regulations again," Education Commissioner Mark Shedd told reporters later. He said the absence of regulations leaves the state open to liability. Deputy Attorney General Peter Gillies said the committee, except for a few specific criticisms of the proposed regulations, left the department with few concrete suggestions for change. "I think it is important that the state show it is in fact moving to adopt these regulations," said Gillies. "All the rules had been approved by the state attorney general's office."

In a related matter, U.S. District Court Judge Ellen Burns in New Haven accepted an agreement Monday between the city of Bridgeport and the NAACP and other groups which stated that school segregation does exist in Bridgeport. The acceptance of the consent decree means Mrs. Burns now will decide how to right the situation. It will be the first court interpretation of the 1969 racial imbalance law.

The city of Bridgeport and the complainants have recommended achieving school desegregation through voluntary student transfers and new school construction.

Rep. Richard Tulisano, D-Rocky Hill, the lone committee member who voted in favor of the regulations, said he voted that way only so the committee would discuss the issue. He said he's not sure if he favors the proposed regulations. "We just keep playing games with it," said Tulisano, co-chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee. "The Legislature has had an opportunity to review the issue. They have not repeated it."

Shedd said the plan offers several alternatives to busing to achieve racial desegregation, such as magnet schools or a voluntary change in school boundaries. But Tulisano said desegregation can't be done without busing. "There's no way you're going to do it unless you cross town lines," said Tulisano. "If you're going to do it, all the other suggestions are impractical."

Shedd said there are definitive school segregation problems in five communities - Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Waterbury and Stratford. The only community which is doing nothing about it, he said, is Stratford. Stratford is the home town of Deputy Senate Minority Leader George Gunther, the co-chairman of the committee who moved that the regulations be rejected. He said the Legislature should take another look at the law itself.

Shedd said the regulations will be reviewed and resubmitted. The committee has set a tentative date of Aug. 2 for its next meeting.

Park Buses Set in Area

SOUTH WINDSOR - Prompted by the present gasoline shortage, the Town of South Windsor is planning to establish a town bus service to the Rye Street and the Veterans Memorial parks. The service will start as soon as it is approved by the Town Council. Gregory Turek, the town's energy coordinator, has suggested that the trips be made to the parks on a daily basis with pickups to begin at 11:30 a.m. and the return trip to be made about 5:30 p.m. Allan Young, town manager, said the program is expected to cost about $119 a day for a seven-day service. Plans are to charge the riders 50 cents each way. Young said that the town has arranged for a temporary arrangement from the state Public Utilities Control Authority. Early last month Mayor Nancy Caffyn suggested that the town start some sort of shuttle bus service to the town recreation areas and Young said the town is investigating possible grants for such a transit system for the summer. All revenue taken in from the program will go to reimburse the town for bus expenses. It is expected that a two week trial program will start soon.

Liquor Hearing Thursday

BOLTON - The State Liquor Control Commission will conduct a hearing on the application of Philip A. Parlapiano, for a hotel liquor permit, Thursday at 10:30 a.m. in Room 558 of the State Office Building in Hartford.

The building is located on the corner of Capitol Avenue and Washington Street. Parlapiano is applying for the permit for Mr. P's Cabaret on Bolton Lake. He owns the establishment along with his father, brother and James Toscano.

A remonstrance signed by more than 200 Bolton residents, including Bolton officials, objected to the granting of the licenses and resulted in the hearing Thursday. The remonstrance claimed the premises were conducted as a "lewd establishment advertising so-called exotic dancers and catering to the prurient interests of its customers."

It further claimed the premises were in violation of a pollution abatement order from the Department of Environmental Protection and a court judgment. In April the establishment was closed by the DEP and will remain closed until plans for a directed septic system are approved by the environmental unit.

The people who signed the remonstrance may appear at the hearing to present testimony under oath with respect to the unsuitability of person or place and will be subject to cross-examination under the rules of the Commission. Bolton officials are urging residents to attend the hearing. Carpooling and transportation arrangements to the hearing are being made by H. Virginia Butterfield and Paul Barron. Anyone needing a ride or wanting more information should call Mrs. Butterfield at 646-3899 or Barron at 649-8821.

Additional Lifeguards

COVENTRY - The Town Council has directed the Parks and Recreation Commission to hire two lifeguards for the July 4 holiday. The council feels the lifeguards will be needed due to the possibility of larger crowds at the beaches. Up to now there have been no lifeguards on duty.

Elderly Bus Use Rising

MANCHESTER - Even though ridership of the town's buses for the month of June 15, for instance, shows a dramatic increase in recent weeks, operators of the system expect the gas problems to cause a jump in use of the buses.

"I think a lot more people are going to use it because of the gas situation," one woman who works at the system said. "I think it's going to get a lot busier," she said.

The most recent figures available, through June 22, show a dramatic increase in ridership, however.

TV Community College Will Expand to Cable

MANCHESTER - The Connecticut Community Colleges has announced that its TV Community College will expand to include the use of cable television for the broadcasting of fall TV courses beginning Sept. 11.

The expansion results from an experiment undertaken last year with the Greater Hartford Cable system in Manchester and Manchester Community College.

Foreign Students Stop For Visit in Manchester

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER - Only an occasional T-shirt with a foreign country spelled on the front, or a definite foreign accent would identify a group of youths arriving in Manchester Monday as other than Americans.

About 36 foreign exchange students of the American Field Service arrived in the Manchester High School parking lot Monday forenoon for a few days' visit with host families before returning to their respective native countries. After an orientation session, the youths were picked up by their host parents and a week of activities were begun.

Monday night, the group gathered at Concordia Lutheran Church where members of the Sphinx Temple Highlanders gave a demonstration and performance by Bill Douglas, piper, and Norman Jones and Kenny Jones, drummers. Today, guests and hosts take off for the beach at Westbrook as guests of Mrs. Kathy Hedlund, whose daughter, Jacqueline, spent last summer in Iran under the AFS program.

Tonight, there's a bowling event for the young guests will be introduced to the home of Mark Twain and Harriet Beecher Stowe in Hartford on Thursday. The day will top off with a party at the home of an AFS committee member.

The week of events winds up Friday with a day in Wickham Park featuring a cookout and talent show, which will include ethnic dances. Called an AFS Bus Stop, the stopover in Manchester is one of many similar bus trips in the United States that is part of the end-of-stay activities for foreign students who have spent a year living with families and attending school in the United States. In all, 85 bus groups will travel to 250 communities.

On July 11, all the bus groups will meet in Washington, D.C., area where the AFS students will say good-bye to each other before boarding charter flights home. The visitors in Manchester this week come from as far away as Yugoslavia and Peru, Finland and New Zealand, Germany and Japan.

AFS is a privately supported, non-profit international scholarship program. There are 2,500 chapters throughout the United States and 154,000 volunteers around the world providing high school students opportunities to live in another environment and to learn about another society and culture.

This year, Manchester was host to a girl from New Zealand, and a boy from Argentina.

Coventry Will Join Region Transit Unit

COVENTRY - Ratifying the action of the Town Council, Coventry citizens voted unanimously Monday night at a town meeting, to establish and join a regional transit district.

By joining the district now, it enables Coventry to take part in the basic framework of the district and make decisions affecting the town. The prerequisite of the transit district is to retain the present Dial-A-Ride program and the UConn shuttle bus service, and expand on both services.

The district's decisions and actions will be made by its Board of Directors. The directors will consist of two citizens from each town who do not hold public office. Along with Coventry, Mansfield and Windham have also joined the transit district.

The new system will be supported by state and federal funds, member municipalities, and private contributions. There will be no added costs to Coventry above the present $3,000 it is paying for the Dial-A-Ride program. Sue Anderson, director of the Dial-A-Ride program, said that $3,000 should be adequate through 1981.

Dan Manby, addressing the citizens last night, said that "By joining the transit district, it gives the town more clout and more funds for a possible commuter bus service." By setting the framework, the advantages and benefits could be many for the town in the future," he said.

Citizens felt very positive towards the transit district, which will enable more mobility for those who have none, such as the elderly and the handicapped. The district eventually wants to

Police Report Busy Weekend

MANCHESTER - Police reported several thefts Monday following a busy weekend.

An officer on patrol over the weekend discovered a damaged door at 388 Fleming Road, site of the former sewage treatment plant for the Eighth Utilities District. The officer stated some youths kicked in the door and apparently had a drinking party. Nothing of value was in the building.

A man living in a Center Street apartment building stepped out for coffee Sunday night and returned to find $40 missing from a can on top of his bureau. The money was from a tag sale held earlier in the day. Police said the lock on the man's door was pried open, but neighbors reportedly saw no one in the corridor.

Police said an East Middle Turnpike residence was entered sometime Saturday while the occupants were away on vacation. Some liquor was reported missing. Two 5-gallon cans of gasoline were stolen sometime Saturday from a Cliffside Drive garage, police said. A 1971 Cadillac valued at $5,000 was stolen Saturday night from its parking spot in front of 158 Spencer St. Police said the owner parked the car there overnight and rode home with someone else. The car was unlocked, but the owner had the ignition keys.

Police also made the following arrests Saturday night. Mark W. St. John, 23, of 5 Quaker St., Manchester and Theodore C. Trudon III, of Daytona Beach, Fla., were charged with breach of peace.

Police said the two were refused admittance to the Pumpernickel Pub, 432 Oakland St., because they didn't conform to the establishments dress code and allegedly became belligerent toward the pub employees and some customers.

Police said St. John was released on a $250 non-surety bond and Trudon was released on a $750 cash bond. Trudon was also charged with failure to submit to fingerprinting. Court date for both is July 16.

Gunshots were heard, but the man with the shotgun and Irish Setter was never found.

A man carrying a shotgun and accompanied by the dog was reportedly seen walking west on Hilliard Street Sunday afternoon. Witnesses, according to police, saw him enter a wooded area behind the telephone company and East Catholic High School. Shots were heard near the Hockanum River.

Two Hurt in Accident

MANCHESTER - A Sunday morning accident left two persons injured in a two-car collision at the intersection of Olcott and South Adams streets, police said.

Melanson and a passenger, 25-year-old Mark Turner of 80 Mill St., East Hartford, were treated for head lacerations and released at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Carter Cut Gas Supplies to Keep Pledge

WASHINGTON — Suppressed White House minutes indicated the President Carter deliberately cut back gasoline supplies this year to keep his pledge to the other industrial nations that the United States would reduce oil consumption by 5 percent.

As late as May 7, after motorists in California already had started lining up for gasoline, Carter notified the Cabinet bluntly: "Our priority will continue to be home heating, agriculture and emergency needs over highway driving." He threatened: "There will be less gasoline, and it will cost more."

Copies of the minutes were restricted to Cabinet members and marked "for your eyes only." Nevertheless, our associate Gary Cohn has obtained the confidential minutes from White House sources.

At the April 23 Cabinet meeting, the President turned to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger for a detailed report. The minutes record: "Dr. Schlesinger said that the nation continues to reduce its imports of oil and that this reduction may create a problem in public understanding."

He blamed the drop in the oil gauge upon reduced shipments from Iran and cutbacks in Saudi Arabia. "This will create constraints in oil supplies," he reported, "in the beginning of the coming summer."

Yet he acknowledged that the government itself was endeavoring to hold down oil imports to meet "the reduction goals to which we are committed as part of the international energy agreement."

State secret mimics: "The Secretary indicated that, in general, we will meet out goal of reducing overall demand in the United States by about five percent."

The President also kept dropping hints that he would decontrol gas prices, without quite doing so. The refiners held off expanding their production capacity, meanwhile, in anticipation of higher prices.

According to the minutes Schlesinger's deputy, John O'Leary, reported to the Cabinet on May 7 that "the Department of Energy anticipates national gasoline supply reductions will average two to three percent this summer over last summer, combined with an anticipated average increase in usage of three percent."

Carter did nothing to alleviate this anticipated shortage until he started hearing from angry motorists. He has taken full credit with other industrial nations, meanwhile, for keeping his pledge to cut oil consumption by 5 percent.

During the four weeks ending June 1, the domestic demand for petroleum products fell to 17 million barrels a day. This was 6.2 percent below the 1978 level for the same period. Most of the decline, as Carter had intended, came in gasoline consumption, which was down 10 percent.

Yet all too typically, the White House is trying to blame everyone but Carter for the gasoline shortage. Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters that Washington deserved long gas lines for not heeding the president's energy proposals.

Obviously, Powell didn't expect the press to get hold of the hush-hush minutes, which quote the president. In the secrecy of the Cabinet room, he anticipated "less gasoline" at greater cost because he was granting "priority" to other needs "over highway driving."

Mayor's Entreaty: We reported some weeks ago on the case of Ida Nudel, the only woman Zionist imprisoned in the Soviet Union for her protest activities against the Kremlin's repression of Jews. She was sentenced to four years in a Siberian labor camp after defiantly hanging a protest banner from the balcony of her Moscow apartment.

New we have learned that Nudel, whose aide to Soviet dissidents and their families carried her a heroine's status among Soviet Jews, has a new champion: Mayor Edward Koch of New York City.

When he was a member of Congress, Koch was an outspoken defender of human rights. His concern continues unabated. The mayor recently wrote to Oleg Troyanovsky, the Soviet ambassador to the United States, asking that Nudel be "removed immediately" from the men's barracks to "more humane surroundings."

Koch wrote that "both you and I have many complex matters before us," but added: "The matter of this woman's plight is so serious that I would urge you to give it your immediate attention."

He has had no response from Troyanovsky.

Lassow Responsible For Meeting Error

To the editor: Last night (June 27) I attended the annual meeting of the Eighth District and I still don't quite believe what took place. Approximately 300 people came to the meeting—many of them taking time off from their jobs to attend. Imagine our shock to find that we had all gone for nothing. It seems that the meeting had to be postponed because the notice was not published in the newspaper on time.

Harry Truman once said "The buck stops here." Since it is the responsibility of the president of any organization to oversee every detail, it is the ultimate blame of this fiasco lay on the shoulders of our President Lassow?

Meeting Mistake Can't Be Excused

To the editor: On Wednesday, June 27, I attended the annual meeting of the Eighth District for the purpose of elections and budget approvals of the board members. I, along with about 300 other eighth district members, were greeted with the message that we were attending an illegal meeting. The proper notice time in the paper had not been met. Mistakes happen—people are only human & but for the President of the District not to have personally guaranteed that the notice would appear as required by the law, is unacceptable.

This is the most important meeting of the year. People will be elected to serve on our Board of Directors and budgets will be presented for the approval of the residents of the District. If the President could not be bothered to see that this meeting was held, what is his problem? He is afraid of losing his position on the board? Is he afraid that the number of people that would meet at the end of June would be too large for him to manipulate? Does he think the group of people that would attend the meeting, on a popular week for vacations, would be smaller, and would not challenge his record for the past year, which was not very much?

A Vote of Thanks For Saving Parks

To the editor: Recently Town Director Cassano announced that the town should develop a commuter parking lot near the Spencer Street exit of Interstate 84.

Although I do not care to comment on the merits of drawbacks of such an idea, we should give thanks to one individual in Manchester who saved the recreational park at Charter Oak from becoming a mass of asphalt. I will remember several years ago when Manchester and state officials wanted to convert Charter Oak park into a commuter parking lot, thereby destroying one of the finest recreational areas that our children had in Manchester at that time.

Ed Wilson spoke out (fortunately) against the destruction of Charter Oak and even went so far as to say that he would place an injunction against such a foolish plan.

Those of us who have children all owe Ed Wilson a vote of thanks for saving Charter Oak Park.

Finding Candidates Not Hard, They Say

By GREG PEARSON There is a predictable occurrence in a town election year that is happening again as both parties prepare for November.

Leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties in Manchester are saying they have more candidates than they need to fill the slots.

Some who have been involved in local politics say this a good public relations ploy for both parties. But, Democrats and Republicans alike have to scramble to get enough candidates, they say.

Others, however, feel the leaders are telling it straight. They say enough people still are interested in seeking elected office to keep the parties from searching too much for candidates.

"I think parties have to put some effort into finding candidates," Vivan Ferguson, a former Republican member of the Town Board of Directors, said.

She feels a party has an easier time getting candidates if it appears that party will win in November. People don't mind going through the rigors of pre-election campaigning if they appear to be a sure winner.

Nathan Agostinelli, a former mayor, said he feels both parties have lists of prominent residents who get asked to run every time a local election approaches. Both parties traditionally have to look for candidates, even though their public statements make it appear they have plenty, he said.

The two town chairmen both say they do have the candidates. "There have been real serious indications from more people than we have seats for," Ted Cummings,

The Lighter Side

Rallying 'Round Gasoline Flags

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Smithsonian Institution goes in big for wistful exhibits — the kind of retrospection that starts nostalgic dripping from every pore.

Its artifacts typically run to cigar store Indians, penny candy counters and other bygone bits of Americana displayed in exact replicas of their original settings.

Fretty soon now we can look for the Smithsonian to open an exhibit that features a full-size reproduction of a gasoline station.

Even now, while gas stations are in their gettysdamming period, you can bet that curators from the Museum of History and Technology are out on field trips, lining up memorabilia for the Smithsonian collection.

One item they will surely want to acquire is a complete matched set of the color-coded flags that service stations in this state started flying this week to signal their status to motorists.

Under the system adopted by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, a green flag means both leaded and unleaded gasoline are available; yellow means leaded only and red means the pumps are closed.

Sometimes as I am inching along a gas line I can visualize visiting the future Smithsonian exhibit with my as yet unborn grandson.

"Thunderation, Grampy!" the amazed tyke exclaims. "What in tar-nation is that?"

(I like to fancy my as yet unborn grandchildren as picking up my pet expressions.)

"That, sonny, is what we used to call a service station," I explain. "Back in the days when people drove automobiles, this was the kind of place we would go to get fuel."

Thoughts

A few days ago visiting a man in the Rockville Hospital, I shared with him this Bible verse. "We do not have a high priest who cannot sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who has been tempted in all things we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need." Jesus shared with our humanity and understands what we have to go through. He is there to help and to love us through our difficult hours.

This truth was part of David's experience as he is stated in the 4th Psalm. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore we will not fear, even though the earth should change. And it can be part of your experience as well. What he was stating was: God is still in control."

Sometimes sin and guilt separate us from God. It is Jesus, the Savior, who brings us back. The most exciting news in the world is that Christ gives full and final forgiveness to anyone who is penitent in heart. He restores us to fellowship with God, and this is the meaning of a full life! This is our original destiny.

When this happens there is life abundant, and an ability to handle difficulties because you are not alone. The Lord shares it with you. May you know fully the release from your burden, and walk free in Christ. For "if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed." Amen.

Jackson Puzzled, Hurt At Ovation for White

NEW YORK (UPI) — If he didn't try to dispel the doubt, ease the anxiety he feels in some way, Carlton Fisk couldn't he'd go crazy, so next time you're watching the Boston Red Sox, check the dugout and you're liable to see how one man keeps from becoming a prisoner of his own mind.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for five months to a 56-year-old sex fiend. If this letter makes no sense it's because I no longer know what a decent night's sleep is. I'm 33 and have been married twice before. I don't want to be a three-time loser, but this man is an absolute machine. His demands are exhausting, but he thinks I should be happy. I am not. I've even told him that I don't need or want all that sex, but he doesn't listen.

I've had a very active life with many interests. I belong to many organizations. I sculpt, paint and am interested in underwater photography, the local aquarium, Hawaiian music and island flowers.

My husband resents my activities. All he wants is me—in bed. And I mean for hours, day and night!

I try to keep a neat apartment and stay on top of my business dealings and correspondence, but now I no longer have the time or energy.

How do I slow this man down? EXHAUSTED IN HONOLULU

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Tell him his demands are excessive. Let him know how much sex is enough for you. If that's not enough for him, give him two choices: 1) See a doctor to "slow him down." 2) Find a woman who is more in sync with you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an avid sports fan who says I am a jinx. He is convinced that if I am in the same room with him, the team he wants to win will lose. He bases his opinion on past experiences. It's true that when I watch a game with him his team either does poorly or loses, but it's just coincidence, and it's ridiculous for him to label me a jinx. When he gets to the point where his friends will call him up when their team is losing to ask if I'm watching the game with him.

We have a one-bedroom apartment, so there's nowhere for me to go except the bedroom when he wants to watch a game on TV. I have had enough of his nonsense. He promised to listen to my advice.

Do you double a one-heart bid to your right. Your partner responds one spade. An Iowa reader asks what call we recommend. We simply jump to four spades.

The only excuse for South's failure to make today's three-trump contract was laziness. He didn't bother to think.

West made the unfriendly opening lead of the deuce of clubs. A heart lead would have given South no chance to lose the game.

South did duck a couple of clubs but had to win the third lead. Then he led a spade.

Your Birthday

July 4, 1979

Patience pays large dividends this coming year. Don't be discouraged if things don't happen immediately. Give everything the proper time to mature, and success is guaranteed.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) Chances are that you'll have a wonderful time today, but you're not a keen manager of your resources. Take it easy on your work today. Let that begins with your birthday. Mail it for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Being kind to everyone else but forgetting your family is neither fair or nice. Keep your domestic affairs in perspective and you won't spoil a line day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Keep your mind on what you're doing today. You could be so wrapped up in having a good time that you absentmindedly precipitate minor mishaps.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's a financially promising day for you, but you tend to be foolish about what you do with your funds. Don't loan to persons you don't know well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) It's not worth being right if it takes beating another into the ground to prove your point.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll have to take care not to reveal something told to you in confidence to a skittish busybody who asks probing questions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think before you speak if you're around superficial people who bore you to tears.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll regret hurting anyone. Zero in on one activity, and forget about what you think you are missing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) For the whole, today should be quite enjoyable, as you'll spend your time with friends and kinfolk. However, to avoid trouble, keep your opinions and advice to yourself.

TAUROS (April 20-May 20) Don't forget to consult with the family before you make any decisions about today's events. It's important that you think about them first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could spend much effort today rationalizing and making excuses for things that really don't call for it.
