WHAT'S NEWS

Gang War

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Water C. Hilderman III, the Charlotte Police Department's authority on motorcycle gangs, said he was sure the killings of five members of the Outlaws gang were the result of a war between the Outlaws and the Hell's Angels. "The shootout was just a matter of time," he said. "The bodies of four men and a woman were found at the Outlaws' two-room clubhouse in North Charlotte early Wednesday by their leader. All had been shot and one of the bodies was mutilated. Hilderman said the local chapters of the Outlaws and the Angels have been struggling for control of the city's massage parlors and drug traffic."

Cancer Rates

BOSTON (UPI) — As a byproduct of their research on oral contraceptives, cervical cancer and sexual habits, Drs. Shanna H. Swan and Willard L. Brown of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in Walnut Creek, Calif., reported in a letter to the editor of the New England Journal of Medicine that cervical cancer rates may be four times lower in women whose sexual partners have had a vasectomy. Dr. Swan said the results support recent theories that some agent in sperm, absent in vasectomized men, may carry a cancer-causing virus.

"There's an increased risk among women whose partners are not sterilized," she said in an interview. "Our findings are consistent with the theory that cervical cancer is virally transmitted." The virus believed to cause human cervical cancer is called Herpes Simplex II. It belongs to a family of viruses that variously cause genital lesions, cold sores, shingles and chicken pox.

Wonder Drug

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A new antibiotic, still unnamed, was discovered by the Eli Lilly pharmaceutical division's Japanese partner, Shionogi & Co., and is being tested in the United States and Europe on patients suffering from a wide range of problems such as burns, urinary tract infections and upper respiratory infections. The new compound is a beta-lactam, in the same family as penicillin but with its chemistry considerably changed from penicillin, Lilly President Earl B. Herr Jr. said.

He added, "It is an extremely safe compound. There is no involvement of kidney or liver damage, so that individuals who are given this compound will be essentially free of any untoward side effects." Herr said it is too early to predict what antibiotics the new substance would replace, but because of its lack of side effects, "it's going to have a very broad usage wherever intravenous and intramuscular preparations are used."

Borg Advances

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Bjorn Borg removed his most dangerous rival Jimmy Connors, 5-2, 6-3, 6-2, in a sparkling 106-minute Wimbledon semifinal today to pull within one victory of becoming the first modern-day player to win the men's singles title four years in a row.

Borg, who carried his winning sequence at Wimbledon to 27 matches, Saturday will meet the winner of the second semifinal between fifth-seed Roscoe Tanner and unseeded American Pat Dugre.

Borg, sprinkling his game with 12 aces, has now beaten the left-handed Connors in five of their last seven meetings.

Two MHS Girls Head for Orient

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Two Manchester High School seniors, Lauren Woodhouse and Bette Sheldon, will leave Friday morning for a month of study and fun in Japan, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Thailand, Hawaii and China. They will participate in the Comparative Cultures of the Orient program of the American Institute for Foreign Study. They first heard of the program from Sean Young, formerly of Manchester who now teaches in California.

"When he first suggested we go, I thought it would be an opportunity we would never have again," Bette said. Young, a friend of Bette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sheldon of 35 Meadow Lane, will chaperone Bette and Lauren's group.

The girls are well prepared for their visits to the Orient. For an English project of their junior honors class, they wrote a 30-page report on their research of the countries they will visit. Lauren said she and Bette split up the countries. "We learned more about these countries because we researched things about each country, such as the temples and other things," Lauren said. When they return home, they will set up a program to speak and show slides of their trip to history and language classes at school and, perhaps, to the American Field Service and other groups, Bette said. They will get school credit for their trip and the program they set up, Lauren said.

The group will break up when they arrive in Osaka, Japan, and each will live with a Japanese family for three days to give them a first-hand look at the Japanese way of life. They will spend two days at a summer school in Kyoto, where they will learn the traditions, religion and the life-style of the Japanese people. The highlight of their trip will be their visit to China. "The thought of visiting China is exciting, because we will be one of the first groups allowed to enter. It's not definite yet. We will find out when we get to Hong Kong. If we can't, an alternate program will be arranged," Lauren said.

Lauren, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Woodhouse of 135 Timrod Road, said that each of them will keep a journal while they are gone. Knowing that they are going into a hot climate, Lauren said that "Bette's grandmother and friends of mine have sewed skirts and sundresses for us."

They will be in style, at least in Hong Kong, according to reports Mrs. Sheldon received Wednesday night. Young told her that he had just returned from Hong Kong and everyone was wearing sundresses.

Moffett Won't Run To Avoid Primary

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Toby Moffett, saying he was confident he could win but felt a "possibly bitter" primary would not be good for Connecticut or his party, today announced he will not run for the U.S. Senate next year. Moffett and Rep. Christopher Dodd, both D-Conn., had been considered the strongest candidates for the seat being vacated by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. In dropping out, Moffett threw his "wholehearted" support behind Dodd.

He told a Capitol news conference, "I have come to the conclusion that a long, costly and possibly bitter Democratic primary would not be good for our state, for our party or for my own Sixth Congressional District."

"Accordingly, although I am confident I would be successful, I choose not to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate in 1980," he said. Moffett, 35, a liberal Democrat who began his government career as a federal liaison to urban street gangs, said, "There is no doubt in my mind that the best thing for our state and our region is for me to devote full time to my efforts on energy, not a statewide campaign. Traditional ambition simply must give way to the realities of present obligation."

"The truth is this: I much prefer to spend the coming months fighting gasoline lines and heating oil price increases than fighting Chris Dodd. I intend to support him wholeheartedly, should he choose to run for the Senate in 1980."

Moffett said he decided to make his announcement at this time, saying "it is important that action be taken now before momentum builds further, and carries Chris and me to an unavoidable confrontation. The step I take today should assure that no bitter, divisive statewide primary will occur within our party next year."

He said his work in these terms in Congress "has brought me to the focal point of the most serious economic and political debate of my generation."

Ribicoff, the senior member of the state's congressional delegation, shocked his party with a surprise May 3 announcement he will not seek re-election and will retire from political life at the end of his current term.

Moffett fought off a primary fight in 1976 to win his first term in the House from Connecticut's 6th District. He was re-elected in 1976 and 1978, increasing his margin of victory each time.

After his re-election to the House last year, Moffett won the chairmanship of a key House subcommittee on energy. As the committee head he has battled Carter Administration energy policies and sponsored a resolution in the Democratic Caucus this year opposing the president's decision to decontrol the price of oil.

Moffett, the father of one daughter, was born in Holyoke, Mass., with his family moving to Suffield, Conn., when he was 2-years-old. In 1966 he received a Master's Degree in urban affairs from Boston University. He taught in Boston's inner city before becoming the liaison to urban street gangs for the U.S. commissioner of education.

In 1969 he was named as the first director of the federal Office of Students and Youth, a post he held until May 6, 1970, when he resigned in protest over the killings at Kent State University in Ohio and the U.S. bombing of Cambodia. He then served as an aide to former Vice President Walter Mondale, then a senator from Minnesota. In 1971 he accepted an offer from consumer advocate Ralph Nader, a Winsted native, to become the first director and organizer of the Connecticut Citizens Action Group.

Each hookup will cost about $2,000, he said.

The Building Committee made some remarks. The alarm system has been connected directly to the Eighth District firehouse, Granville "Ted" Lingard, district chief, said. But, the connection apparently was not made properly because when the fire alarm sounded in the school, it failed to signal the firehouse, he said. A box alarm was pulled, and there was no damage caused.

The Building Committee was not pleased with the Bentley School matter or the fact that the other two schools lack the direct connections.

"I can't believe in this town we don't have all our schools hooked up because it costs a few bucks," Committee Chairman Paul Phillips said.

Those bucks, however, have been provided in this year's Board of Education budget, Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools, said.

"There have been other priority items," he said. This year, though, the needed funding has been included, he said.

Three Schools Need Direct Fire Alarms

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The Building Committee is concerned that three schools in the North End are not directly hooked into the fire alarm system, but the problem should be taken care of this fiscal year.

The committee met Tuesday night and discussed three schools that do not have a direct link with the Eighth District's firehouse. It was distressed that Bentley, Bowers and Wadsworth schools all lack the direct connection.

All other schools in town, including others in the North End, have the direct hookup. Such a connection insures that the fire alarm at the fire station sounds as soon as the alarm system at the school is set off.

Without the direct link, someone must pull a box alarm or call the station to notify the department of the fire. This occurred recently at the Bentley School, which recently has been renovated. The alarm system has been connected directly to the Eighth District firehouse, Granville "Ted" Lingard, district chief, said.

But, the connection apparently was not made properly because when the fire alarm sounded in the school, it failed to signal the firehouse, he said. A box alarm was pulled, and there was no damage caused.

Carter Has Plan to Cut Oil Demand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter abruptly canceled a major address on energy and the economy which was scheduled to deliver to the nation tonight on television.

No explanation was given for the surprise cancellation, which took even the president's top advisers by surprise. But reports indicated Carter was unhappy with the draft of the speech.

Carter made the decision at Camp David where he has been relaxing over the Independence Day holiday. He was reported to have gone fishing this morning.

Fowler's one-paragraph announcement was as terse as the statement canceling the nationwide address. He said: "The president has authorized me to state that, pursuant to the agreements held at the Tokyo summit, he intends to propose an early date a series of strong measures to restrain United States demand for imported oil."

At last week's summit, Carter was victorious in winning seven-nation approval of a proposal for country-by-country oil import quotas. Under that agreement, the United States has set a target which would limit its oil imports to 8.5 million barrels a day through 1985, based on a formula using 1977 import figures.

No new date has been set for a presidential address to the nation. But Carter is expected to attend a Democratic fund raising barbecue Saturday night in Louisville, Ky., and make an address to the National Governors Association there Sunday morning.

Thursday's cancellation of his energy address apparently surprised even close aides and White House speech writers. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and top White House energy adviser Stuart Eizenstat were not informed in advance.

A senior official late Wednesday said the president apparently was unhappy with the draft of the speech and the issues analysis he was working with. But the official did not say why that explanation had not been offered originally.

Carter was reported to have left most of his Cabinet in the dark, but he telephoned Vice President Walter Mondale, apparently to tell him of the cancellation.

At mid-afternoon, a White House aide told reporters the president would fly down from his mountaintop retreat Thursday afternoon and return there following the speech from the White House.

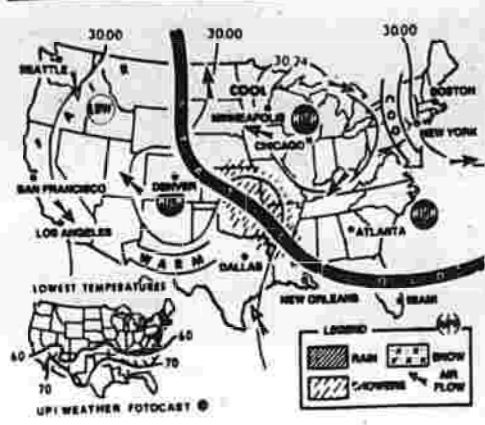

The spokesman also said nothing has gone up for review by the four FTC commissioners on the matter.

The trade publication said four types of government ads have drawn some complaints. They are ads for the Postal Service for special services such as "express mail," Savings Bonds ads from the Treasury Department, recruitment ads for the military and advertising by various state-run lotteries.

It said ads for bonds and lotteries may come under criticism for failing to disclose all the facts, such as the odds against winning or the value of a bond compared to other investments. Ads for the military and the Postal Service may have problems substantiating all their claims, it said.

The trade publication said another ad which has been criticized, from the Environmental Protection Agency, claims it is illegal for the owner of a car to tamper with its pollution control system. In reality, it noted, the law says it is illegal for a dealer or a mechanic to tamper, but not for the owner to do so.

Wedding Is Off

Teen-age singer star Marie Ommond has called off her engagement with Jeff Crayton, the Californian who proposed to her by throwing a banana cream pie in her face two months ago, because "we had doubts." Miss Ommond, 19, made the announcement Wednesday while signing autographs at a Fourth of July celebration in Montgomery, Ala. (UPI photo).

Fiedler Very Alone

America's beloved, bed-ridden maestro Arthur Fiedler was feeling very alone in his ivy-covered home as tens of thousands of Bostonians swarmed to the Charles River Concert, an event he christened 50 years ago. Nearly a half-century ago Fiedler, then a young, dashing figure with a military moustache, founded the Boston Pops' Charles River Esplanade concerts on the banks of the river separating urban Boston from the academic city of Cambridge. But for the first Fourth of July since 1929, the now snow-manned 83-year-old maestro was unable to attend. Instead he was propped up in bed recovering from a heart attack—listening to the radio, the score of the Esplanade concert music on his lap and the blinds drawn. "I feel a little melancholic," he said, stroking his moustache with his finger. "I regret I'm not with them all."

No Job with CIA

Singer-songwriter Joan Baez called charges by William Kunstler that she is an agent of the CIA "really weak, cheap." "I was labeled a commie-pinko when I was 16 and I'm suddenly now being paid to stop running the ads, saying the newspaper is trying to use the White House for commercial gain. Star Publisher George Hoyt rejected the report, saying, "We didn't see anything other than a humorous implication" in the ad. What's been appearing on Washington-area TV screens is an ad for the Washington Star, which is now running "Doonesbury."

Prior Restraint?

The TV show "White House" and what you hear sounds like Jimmy Carter complaining that he can't find "Doonesbury" in his local paper. Not surprising: The local paper, The Washington Post, stopped running Gary Trudeau's irreverent strip last month. What's been appearing on Washington-area TV screens is an ad for the Washington Star, which is now running "Doonesbury."

Hope Springs Eternal

It was Bob Hope working toward his biggest audience ever: 900 million Chinese. The show—the first U.S. July Fourth party in Peking since normalization of relations—also included an emotional introduction by U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock, the Philadelphia Boys' Choir singing an ode to the Mao Tse-tung, former Soviet ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov and disco singers Peaches and Herb, with Peaches decked out in a see-through pant suit. At intermission, one Chinese remarked, "Such a scene startles our eye. I understand this is mild compared to other disco singers."

Glimpses

Britain's Princess Anne and husband Capt. Mark Phillips arrived in Bangkok, Thailand, Wednesday, and were greeted by Princess Chulabhorn, who gave Anne a bouquet and hung a garland around Philip's neck. English Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, dubbed the "Iron Lady" by Russian newspapers, has been invited by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin for a visit behind the Iron Curtain.

Firm's Noise Said High

MANCHESTER — An engineer said Tuesday that the noise levels at the Manchester Ice & Fuel Company would exceed those levels permitted in a proposed state law. Keith Mironberg of South Windsor said noise from the Bissell Street plant would exceed those levels permitted in the law drafted by the state Department of Environmental Protection. He was called to testify by attorney Robert Bletchman, who represents two neighbors of the ice-making plant. The residents — Stanley Garszicki of 58 Bissell St. and Thomas Szanski of 82 Foster St. — have sued the business because they believe the noise is disruptive. The DEP regulations are not yet in effect, but they will be enforced in 1980, Bletchman said. Bletchman had engineers talk about the noise produced by the plant, and he also questioned Joseph Pulaski about the DEP law. Pulaski is director of DEP's noise section, and he talked about the reasons and origins of the proposed law. Attorney John D. LaBelle Jr. represents the Manchester Ice & Fuel Co. The case is scheduled to proceed and is expected to be completed this afternoon in Rockville's Superior Court. Gymnastic Classes MANCHESTER — The Manchester Recreation Department is conducting gymnastic classes this summer at the West Side Rec. District Election Tonight

MANCHESTER — After a false start and a change of plans, the Eighth United District holds its annual meeting and election of officers tonight. The meeting begins at 7:30 at the Bentley School auditorium, 57 Hollister St. District voters will elect a president and two members of the Board of Directors. Lawrence Noone is challenging incumbent Gordon Lassow for the presidency. Regardless of the outcome, Noone will vacate his director's position. The directors will also elect a tax collector and treasurer: Betty Sadioski and Howard Krenney, respectively, have served in these posts. As well as electing officers, voters must approve the budget for the fiscal year and the reports from the various officials. The directors have proposed a $465,916 budget and a 4.5 mill rate, 2.25 mills for sewer service and 2.25 mills for fire protection. The tax rate represents a half-mill reduction from the 1978-79 fiscal year because of new revenues expected from the addition of the Buckland section to the district. The annual meeting, which had originally been scheduled last Wednesday, was postponed because of a publication error. The public notice did not appear in the paper the mandatory five days before the meeting and the directors were forced to switch the dates.

Fund Eyed On Center In Bolton — BOLTON — An application for funding for a senior citizen center will be submitted to the Community Council of the Capital Region Inc. Title III funds totaling $103,080 have been earmarked for eligible activities relating to multi-purpose senior centers, by the government. The funds may be used for the "acquisition, alteration or renovation of a facility for use as a multi-purpose senior center or the construction of a facility for use as a multi-purpose senior center including payment of staff salaries, equipment and supplies." First Selectman Henry Ryba sent for the application that was turned over to the Senior Citizens Committee for action by the Board of Selectmen. The board wants the application returned to it at least one week before the deadline for submission.

Canadian Political Spectrum has embraced a plethora of political persuasions. Since the year of Confederation, 1867, there have been over 45 different party labels in official existence and countless elections. Most of these parties have never attained any national prominence; indeed, the majority disappeared into oblivion without electing a single candidate.

Troopers End Job Slowdown

HARTFORD (UPI) — Any moment now, troopers are likely to get a ticket from state police who ended at midnight their four-day-old job slowdown to protest the lack of a contract.

Attorneys for the state and police union met Wednesday and agreed to resume negotiations that had broken down when the troopers took their job action and the state had threatened to file an unfair labor practice charge, said Michael Ruffino, president of the state police unit of Connecticut State Employees Union.

Ruffino said the state agreed to submit contract differences to an out-of-state factfinder. A session was scheduled for July 16, Ruffino said.

Ruffino said the state also agreed not to file an unfair labor practice charge and promised not to take disciplinary action against troopers who participated in the slowdown.

Ruffino said the attorneys did not discuss the job action itself in making the decision to resume talks, but he said the slowdown had been "effective in terms of participation and results."

He said the union agreed to return to the bargaining table only because of the job action produced action on the part of the state negotiators, but he said another job action could start

Overdue Taxes Paid After Lien Threats

MANCHESTER — About 10 percent of the property owners who have been threatened by the town with liens have paid their overdue real estate taxes, James Turek, collector of revenue, said.

The town Monday filed liens against 138 property owners who owe a total of $10,651 in real estate taxes for the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Turek said probably slightly less than 10 percent of those 138 taxpayers have paid their overdue taxes since the lien notifications were sent. Most of those who paid owed smaller amounts of taxes, he said.

"We cleaned up some of the smaller owners," he said. Those persons owing larger amounts have not yet paid, he said, but many of these overdue accounts usually are paid in July.

The Herald plans to print a list of those taxpayers who have not paid their taxes and have received lien notifications from the town.

Dr. LeSurre Retires as Registrar at University of Hartford

WEST HARTFORD — Dr. James S. LeSurre, 274 Parker St., Manchester, Conn., has retired from his post as registrar at the University of Hartford.

Before his departure, Dr. LeSurre was guest of honor at a reception arranged by his staff colleagues and faculty friends. The event was held in the Sultan Lounge at the Congrus Student Union.

Dr. LeSurre joined the adjacent faculty of Hillier College, an original 11 of its component, in 1951. For 12 years he taught evening courses in business and English. In 1969, he joined the university's College of Education and Allied Services as an associate professor.

He became registrar Aug. 1, 1976, after serving as the university's certification officer for students in education, art, education and music education.

An educator and author, James LeSurre is a native of New Rochelle, N.Y. During World War II, he was an officer in the U.S. Navy. He was assigned to naval communications intelligence, with principal duty in Melbourne, Australia.

Author of numerous works, Dr. LeSurre is best known for his 1965 book entitled "Guide to Pedagogues: Handbook for Puzzled Parents" (Harper & Row).

The work is a glossary, partly satirical and partly serious, of educational terms written for the benefit of parents and teachers. Prof. LeSurre's articles have appeared in "Saturday Review" and "The Nation's Schools."

During the years 1936-47, except for wartime service, Dr. LeSurre was a trust administrator with the Commercial National Bank & Trust Co., New York City. From 1947 to 1950, he was an instructor at Nichols College in Dudley, Mass.

After a year at Hillier College, he began an 18-year career with the State Department of Education, where he served in a variety of administrative posts, principally as consultant in charge of state certification for public school teachers.

Dr. LeSurre is an alumnus of Dartmouth College. He earned his master's degree in 1961 at the University of Connecticut.

He is married to the former Jean Jaquez, of Bayside, N.Y. The LeSurre family has four children.

Their older daughter, Miss Jean E. LeSurre, of Vernon, is an English teacher at Rockville High School. The younger daughter, Miss Jeanette LeSurre, a UConn graduate, is a staff member at the UH Hartford library.

James S. LeSurre Jr., is in the real estate business in Laconia, N.H. John H. LeSurre, a UConn graduate, is a staff member at the UH Hartford library.

Liquor Request Withdrawn

BOLTON — The application for a hotel liquor license for Mr. P's Cabaret on Bolton Lake was withdrawn by Albert McGrail, the applicant's lawyer, Tuesday afternoon. No reason was given for the withdrawal.

The State Liquor Control Commission had scheduled a hearing on the application for 10:30 this morning. The hearing was canceled.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn said, "It was a fine thing he did (withdraw the application) and we should congratulate him. It's a fine thing for Bolton."

Ahearn said a large number of people including six state police officers, representatives from the Department of Environmental Protection, and townspeople, planned to attend the hearing.

First Selectman Henry Ryba said, "It's kind of ironic this happened shortly before the country's 203 birthday (July 4, 1979) when people united for a cause they believed in."

More than 200 townspeople, including town officials and clergymen, signed a petition objecting to the application and requesting the hearing.

Selectman Douglas Cheney said, "The biggest mystery is why the owner doesn't improve the septic system. He can't do anything until he does."

Recently the DEP ordered the establishment to be closed and to remain closed until the faulty septic system was repaired and approved by it.

The applicant for the license was Philip Parlapiano. He along with his father and brother and James Toccoano own Mr. P's cabaret.

Ryba said, "The townspeople should be thanked for their efforts." He said, "I'm quite happy."

MANCHESTER — Three cafeteria employees in Manchester schools attended the recent Connecticut School Food Service Conference and Workshop at the University of Connecticut.

The participants were Mary Upping, cafeteria director, and Esther Peach and Marie R. Palizza, cook managers.

Conference topics included nutrition education, costing recipes, menu planning, nutrient analysis by computer, salad bars, food procurement and receiving, food production, food safety and government commodities.

MANCHESTER — The town's directory of services for the elderly has been printed and copies of it may be obtained.

The directories will be available in the offices of the town manager and the Human Services Department. Diane Wicks, director of human services, said. Copies also may be obtained at the senior citizens center.

The directories list all services provided in Manchester for elderly residents.

HAPPY HUNTING TIME

TURKISH TREASURES — Tucked away in the hills beside a rushing waterfall, this delightful little shop is filled with old Turkish copper jugs, plates, pans, and pitchers; antique brass platters, skewers, saucers, and vases; and marvelously hand-carved merchaum pipes. Owner Bobbi Byrnes travels to Turkey to buy these items herself, and because she imports directly, her goods cost a lot less than they do in most import shops (about $30 to $110 in many import shops), hand-painted, transparent glass baster bowls, which make ideal holders for floating candles, $12 (hard to find elsewhere); small, hand-carved black merchaum pipes, $20-$49.50 to $40 in most pipe shops); brass candleholders, $5 to $40 (about twice that price in other import shops). Keep this place in mind the next time you're looking for an unusual gift. Byrne's Fells Art and Imports, 2991 South Street, Coventry, 06238. Open 1 to 5 Wednesday through Sunday.

One Job Pleases Panel But Another Is Disturbing

MANCHESTER — The Town Building Committee is pleased with the speedy finish of the conversion of Green School, but it is disturbed with continuing problems at Washington School.

Green School has been converted for use as a senior citizens center. All of the contract work — which was funded with Community Development funds and had to be finished by the end of June — has been completed.

"They said it couldn't be done. We did it," Phillips, chairman of the committee, said. His comments triggered applause by the committee members.

Phillips said letters would be sent to firms that took part in the conversion project and took steps to make sure the work was done on time.

Annulli and Sons of Manchester was the contractor for the project. The committee also praised the work of Dominic Anastasio, a retired plasterer who assisted with the job.

There still is some work at the Green School that was not included in the contract that has to be completed. The center is expected to be operating by September.

While the committee is pleased with the Green School job, it is angry with uncompleted work at Washington School.

Wilfred Dion, supervisor of buildings and grounds for the Board of Education, said drainage improvements and other outside improvements still are needed. Dion and committee members said this work has not been finished properly by Custom Concepts Builders of Connecticut, the contractor for the school improvements.

The committee said it would look into hiring another firm to complete the work and then bill Custom Concepts. Dion had workers from his department already do some work at the school's front area.

"That was one area I just couldn't live with," Dion said. Richard Lawrence, architect for the school project, said some equipment needed at the school has been ordered but has not yet arrived.

Work at the police station is just about finished and the day treatment center for special education at Bentley School should be finished later this month, the committee was told.

McCoy Eyes Firehouse Site

VERNON — Mayor Frank McCoy has indicated he favors a parcel of land, owned by the town, for the site of the proposed new firehouse south of Interstate 95.

The Permanent Municipal Building Committee has listed five possible sites and had indicated there might be some problems getting the fire trucks in and out of the former Tillaghtagh property.

The mayor, however, said he has asked Town Engineer Leonard Sczesny to re-inspect the area with an eye toward cutting back the north side of Birch Street. The property is located at the intersection of Church and Washington streets and Birch Street. The state would have to grant the town a right-of-way over the railroad track.

The mayor said that the cutting back on Birch Street would improve the turning area for the trucks but wouldn't require any major reconstruction of the intersection.

Selecting that site for the proposed firehouse would mean the $40,000 the town has already appropriated to buy land could go toward the cost of building the firehouse.

The final decision of the location has been left up to the Town Council and the mayor. The building committee had recommended as its first choice property at the intersection of Birch and Dobson roads. The asking price for that is $38,000.

The committee listed as its second choice the town-owned property. The third choice would be the McCoy-owned property on Washington Street.

The fourth choice is in the Lake Street and Tunnel Road area.

Sheltered Workshop Needs $20,000 to Get Started

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

VERNON — Hockanum Industries Inc., a sheltered employment facility for the mentally retarded and other developmentally disabled persons, needs $20,000 to get the program started to be eligible for state and federal funding in the future.

Most of the money is needed to hire a director. Dr. James Strauch, president of the Board of Directors, told those attending a special meeting Monday night that he can't advertise for a director until he has the money.

Dr. Strauch said the director's salary will probably be $15,000. He said there are many handicapped persons in the Vernon area who need a sheltered workshop. Some of the area people now attend the Manchester Sheltered Workshop and a few go to Springfield, Windham, and Enfield.

Dr. Strauch said that Hockanum Industries position is not unique. "We have a mission and that is for all of us to look at ways that Hockanum Industries can survive. I think there is enough interest and concern to make this thing go," he said.

George Ordway, a member of the board, detailed some of the history of the program. He said since its founding in the early spring it was decided that a workshop should be started to employ 20 persons, ages 21 and older.

The board has made arrangements with the Vernon Board of Education to rent the former Polling School in Rockville at $1 a year to house the workshop. The board has tried to determine its financial obligations and to determine suitable job specifications for the director.

He said the $20,000 needed initially won't be easy to come by.

As do the other workshops, the board will seek contracts from private industries for small assembly jobs to be done by "employees" of the workshop.

Several Bolton officials attended last night's meeting but no Vernon officials were present.

John Campion of the state Department of Mental Retardation said his department is interested in developing as many vocational services as possible. He said he is holding grant applications for Hockanum Industries but the grant will never be enough to operate the full program. He said, however, that when agencies are trying to get started the department tries to give more money.

The aim is to open the workshop in September. Once it is open the board can apply for federal and state funding. Dr. Strauch figures it will cost $80,000 to $90,000 a year to operate the workshop.

He said there are no workshops that he knows of that are totally self-supporting. He said the need for funds will continue to be a struggle for the board.

Andrew Tricarico of Vernon, who is involved with the United Way, said he will propose a request for funds to that group.

Because of the short time the board will have to raise the funds, a steering committee was set up Monday night. Within the next few days the committee will prepare fundraising proposals.

Dr. Strauch said the board has sent letters to various foundations asking for grant money but part of the program is that Hockanum Industries doesn't yet have a tax exempt status.

Volunteers have been running tag sales and other such events just to pay the current bills.

It hasn't been determined just what the workshop will serve. Dr. Strauch said plans are to have the Vernon facility serve more severely handicapped persons than some of the other facilities do.

Members appointed to the steering committee are Mrs. Pierog, Olivette Marquis of Ellington; Barbara Zemnek of Vernon; Tricarico, Charles Vassilopoulos, and Ordway of Vernon; Dave Minicucci of Bolton; and Dr. Strauch of the University of Connecticut.

To donate funds to the workshop, send them to Hockanum Industries, P.O. Box 2002, Vernon, Conn. 06066.

When Fire Engine Won't Fit

Marshal Starts In Full-Time Job

VERNON - William Johnson, chief of the Vernon Fire Department, who has been part-time fire marshal for the town since he started his duties this week as the town's first full-time fire marshal.

Johnson's annual salary will be $13,976 but he had originally asked for $18,000, noting that the salary set by the council would mean a pay cut for him as he would have to give up his existing full-time job.

The recommendation for the full-time marshal's job was made by a Fire Study Committee which has also recommended that the town's two fire departments be consolidated.

The question of the consolidation will be decided when it goes on the voting machines in the November town elections.

Nobody Will Win In Senate Probe

By MARTHA ANGLE AND ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) - Regardless of the outcome, there will be no "winners" in the Senate Ethics Committee probe of financial misconduct charges against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga. "It's scarcely worth comment let alone rebuttal. He has suggested that any "errors" that occurred were the result of sloppiness and confusion on the part of his staff. A United States senator, Talmadge has implied, is too important and busy to concern himself with such matters. If his staff screws up, why that is unfortunate but hardly a federal crime. Blaming the staff is a hoary tradition in Capitol Hill, the last bastion of feudalism in modern America. From the lowest file clerk to the lobbyist administrative assistant, every aide serves at the whim of the senator who has hired him or her. Labor laws, civil rights laws and the like which protect other employees - public and private - do not apply to congressional workers. The result is that pleasing and protecting the boss become an art of the kind that has given politicians in general - and members of Congress in particular - such an unsavory reputation. It doesn't matter, at bottom, whether you believe Talmadge, a 23-year veteran of the Senate "club," or his chief accuser, a former top aide named Daniel Minchew who has now turned on his old boss. Somebody in a position of public trust - senator or staff aide - indisputably played fast and loose for years on end with taxpayers' money and with campaign funds and did so with a cavalier disregard of the laws against such impropriety. And it took a press investigation, rather than internal checks, to bring the whole scheme to light. Minchew says Talmadge was responsible for submitting false expense vouchers to the Senate and for converting campaign funds to personal use by means of a secret Washington bank account. The senator says Minchew is a "proven liar, cheat and embezzler" who used his name but acted without his knowledge or consent. The Ethics Committee has also accused Talmadge of filing false campaign finance disclosure reports, failing to report gifts and property on those documents, and failing to report correctly on his federal income tax returns gifts made to his wife, Betty. The senator, with an imperious wave of the hand, has dismissed those charges as "trivial" and "pet-

Sykes School Can Be Redesigned

To the editor: Much has been written, over the past year, about future use of the existing Sykes School in downtown Rockville. Many individuals, who have thought about the use of the facility, have agreed that it is not conducive to total athletic activities. Various educational organizations have felt that funding for teachers, equipment and supplies could be a real financial struggle. Our regional YMCA (Indian Valley) is looking for a facility within the next year, which includes the same needs mentioned herein. Yet, when the "Y" considered the Sykes facility, they observed a school facility which has most inadequate parking, open-air and athletic facilities. One may wonder, with such a healthy and generous income flow (over $20,000 each year from the George Sykes Memorial Fund) why the facility could not be redesigned to include adequate facilities for a healthy, vibrant, community-spirited organization (or organizations) to operate effectively. Perhaps adjoining land or other funds could be purchased, or charitably accepted, in order that some form of total community programming could be accomplished. A most charitable individual who moved away from the Rockville area years ago (the late Edward Burke) recently donated a sizable sum toward helping "the boys of Rockville." Perhaps he saw the need then (as it still exists today) for various programs which would create and promote positive leadership activities for youth within the decaying atmosphere of a once-proud little city. Perhaps various community leaders whose organizations work with "the boys of Rockville" could sit down together with the Trust Division of Connecticut Bank & Trust Co. and think about the real opportunity available to revitalize this part of our town, while including all of the resources and various individual talents available, and establish a workable project with the "benefit of all" in mind. I'm sure that community-minded leaders like Youth Services Director Jack Walsh; Little League Mentor Frank McCoy; Vernon Youth Hockey President Bob Teddlody; Hockanum Valley Community Council Director Bob Puhl; YMCA Director Larry Corrigli, etc., working along with other capable community advisers, could put away excellent ideas together, which, eventually, could provide a total meaningful plan for the benefit of our communities young (our future leaders) and old, alike. In this time of our country's strife with the oil and gasoline shortages, we should all want to help with the sharing of ideas - toward helping our own communities develop community or regional centers - centers where we all can share athletically, educationally and spiritually with each other. I suppose that we might ask ourselves: "Do we really want to help and share with each other as neighbors and friends?" If so, perhaps we would not need to travel so far for friendships, nor need to overly heat our homes because of the absence of friends with which to share and warm our lives. Police Loss Concerns Firemen

To the editor: This is a copy of a letter sent to Manchester Police Chief Robert Lannan. Dear Chief Lannan: We, the members of the Town Fire Department Local 1579 International Association of Fire Fighters wish to express our concern over the recent loss of a police officer, Sgt. Larry Smith, with the resignation of Sgt. Larry Smith. After working closely with Sgt. Smith on countless occasions over the past 19 years, it is the unanimous feeling of the men in the local that Sgt. Smith was an outstanding officer and a tremendous credit to your department. Men of his caliber and dedication to your department and to the Town of Manchester are very rare. To lose a man through retirement or even through death cannot be helped, but the loss of such a man over one incident such as this, is indeed a tragedy. It is not the intention of this local, nor the purpose of this letter, to interfere in the internal affairs of the Police Department, but rather to express our concern in allowing this career to be ended, when this man has so many good years left to offer. It takes, as you well know, something special to be a police officer and an extra measure to shoulder the responsibility of an entire shift of men. Everyday incredible pressures of police work take their toll. Few are really qualified to what extent. We are all guilty of making a mistake from time to time, but we feel time will prove that a bigger mistake will be made in allowing Sgt. Smith to leave. The members of this body wish to urge you, as the department head, to take the opportunity to sit down with Sgt. Smith and to urge him to reconsider his decision. Very truly yours, Town of Manchester Fire Department Robert O. Martin, President Local 1579, I.A.F.F.

Sgt. Smith A Good Man

To the editor: As a Manchester Police Officer and resident of Manchester, I write this letter openly to thank Sgt. Lawrence Smith (Smitty) for 19 years of loyal and faithful service to the town of Manchester and for seven years as a dedicated and compassionate police supervisor. Sgt. Smith set an example for his men to follow by his humanistic approach to handling those insoluble problems police officers are faced with every day. His bearing was always professional and his manner always a credit to the department. He pursued a formal education graduating from Manchester Community College in 1978 at age 49 with an associate degree in law enforcement. He was a certified CPR instructor in the Regional Police Academy and was an accredited Emergency Medical Technician. His men called him Smitty and spoke candidly to him about their personal and professional problems. If a tough job needed to be done or a dangerous situation required handling, Smitty was always the first one through the door leading his men, inspiring confidence. It was with heartache that we learned that Sgt. Smith had resigned. Good men are hard to find, but men of Sgt. Smith's character and quality are rare and too valuable for us to lose without wondering why, and what precipitated his resignation. We wish you the best of luck in your new endeavors and we know you'll succeed. Always remember where your friends are and that we are behind you 100 percent. Sincerely, Gary E. Waterhouse

A Race Against Death To Save 'Boat People'

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON - This is the story of Thach Minh Loi, a tragic young man who once fought alongside American troops in Vietnam. He was left behind to become one of thousands of anonymous despairing "boat people" driven to flight by the communist regimes of Indochina. His sister in American appealed to us for help. It was a race against death, as we tried to prevent Thach from killing his family and himself. He had given up hope because he thought they would never be allowed to come to the United States. It has been estimated that 30 to 60 of every 100 boat people die at sea in their desperate struggle to find haven. Those who survive find their ordeal has just begun when they make it to a foreign shore. In Malaysia and Indonesia, they are herded into squalid camps where starvation and disease exact their deadly toll. Now both countries have slammed the door on new arrivals. We tried desperately to reach Thach Minh Loi in the office of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), the office of the United Nations High Commissioner on Refugees and Volunteer Agencies, we won the race. We got word to Thach that he, his wife and two young children would be permitted to join his sister and her American husband in the United States. But the near tragedy of Thach Minh Loi demonstrates the bureaucratic fumbling and mindless red tape that are contributing to the anguish of the boat people. Thach is a sensitive, intelligent, 31-year-old former U.S. Marine army officer. He succeeded in escaping with his family last November. They made their way to Malaysia and were shoehorned into an overcrowded refugee camp where living conditions were unspeakable and food was barely enough to survive on. Thach wrote for help to his sister, Chung, who had become a naturalized citizen after coming here with her Navy husband, Joseph Ellis. From their home in Vero, Utah, the Ellises called upon federal immigration officials in Las Vegas to attest that Thach was relative and to guarantee the financial support of his family. On March 21, the immigration service approved their petition to bring the Thach family over and notification was sent to the U.S. embassy in Kuala Lumpur. Then a bureaucratic curtain of silence fell. Despite repeated letters requesting information, the Ellises got no response from either the State Department or the embassy in Malaysia. In late April, Mrs. Ellis got an alarming letter from her brother. He described the death and disease in the refugee camp and told of having to scavenge rats and snakes to feed his family. Asking why he had never had an answer to his plea for help, Thach told his sister he saw no way out except to kill his wife, their infant daughters and himself. Clearly, his sister's news that they had been cleared to come here had never reached him. In desperation, the Ellises asked us to intervene. The office of former Sen. Dick Clark, the State Department's coordinator for refugee affairs, refused to lift a finger on Thach's behalf. The press spokesman at the Malaysian embassy here was equally unhelpful. He said their resources couldn't be used for "personal purposes." Fortunately, Mario Noto, deputy immigration commissioner, took action. He sent an investigator to the camp to get the facts and then ordered the INS man in Kuala Lumpur to search for Thach. The United States Catholic Conference and the office of United Nations High Commissioner on Refugees and Volunteer Agencies also recognized the urgency of the situation. They agreed to ask their people on the scene to look for Thach. Conference phoned us with the happy edict: A representative of the volunteer International Refugee Committee had found Thach and told him of his acceptance. He and his family should be processed and on their way to the United States in a matter of weeks.

Thoughts

Across the street from where we live in the country there are several blackberry bushes growing wild. I've gone over there and thoroughly enjoyed them, every August. An old-timer once told me that the difference between a good blackberry crop and a poor one is the timing of the spring hoarfrost that falls on the blossoms. Without frost, he explained, the blossoms hang on too long and as a result the plants don't produce fruit. To the uninitiated, the frost might seem a fruit killer; but to seasoned nature observers it is necessary step in the growth process which leads to juicy berries. Most people know what it is to face blossom-killing "frost" in their lives, too, and they would prefer to avoid such dark nights of the soul. But often the fruits of such tests are stronger character, stronger determination, stronger faith. When you face difficulties that delay you or force you to detour from your chosen route, be careful cursing the fates. Out of an experience that seems totally negative at the time, may come a marvelous new opportunity. Like hoarfrosted blackberries, God may have a plan that will turn your adversity into a fruit-producing blessing. We usually don't learn very much from our good times, but we learn much from our times of difficulties. Lord, when I get discouraged remind me that out of hardship can come blessings. "For weeping may last for the night, but joy comes in the morning." Paul in his hour of pain and difficulty heard Jesus say "My Grace is sufficient for you, for power is perfected in weakness." Paul's response was "therefore I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses so that Christ's power may rest on me." Amen. Milton S. Nilson Trinity Covenant Church

Evans Learns How to Hit at Fenway, Homer in Ninth With Two Outs Wins

BOSTON (UPI) - Dwight Evans thinks he's finally learning how to hit in Fenway Park. And if his ninth-inning, game-winning homer Wednesday night is any example, the learning process is going well.

his average 40 points in the last six weeks. "I have learned to be patient, not to hit my pitch, but to hit my body to the rest. I was just trying to take the ball somewhere. Everyone is going to do it - it was just my turn."

Butch Hobson started the winning rally when he punched a two-out single to left. Jim Dwyer came in as a pinch runner and trotted home ahead of Evans. "Evans has been super for us the last six weeks," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer, whose team is now 3 1/2 behind division-leading Baltimore.

"Torres pitched tough," said Zimmer, who had Bob Stanley ready in the bullpen. "Everyone thought I should have taken him out. But he was pitching tough and I was going to stay with him."

Other runs came on a homer by Fred Lynn, his 22nd, infield outs by Carlton Fisk and Rick Burleson, and an RBI single by Jim Rice. "We haven't been playing all that well and you have to play great baseball to beat the Red Sox in Fenway Park," said KC first baseman George Scott, who was traded from Boston to the Royals on June 11. "They play better here than any team in baseball plays at home. They're awesome."

Nichols Down Medics, 2-1

Boland Oil And Legion On Tonight

National League champion Medics was the first club eliminated in the Town Little League Tournament as it absorbed a 2-1 setback at the hands of National League runner-up Nichols Tire Tuesday evening at Leber Field.

Boland Oil and American Legion, first round winners, are slated to clash tonight at Leber Field at 8 o'clock. It was a scoreless deadlock through five innings with Nichols breaking the ice in the top of the sixth. Brian Dunn and Dan Guachione reached safely on back-to-back errors. Eric Johnson bunted into a force at third but Bob Lamotte singled to right scoring Guachione. Ken Memory's one-hop single over the first sacker's head scored Johnson with what proved to be the game winner. Ken Brown doubled off the alley in right in the Medics' sixth. He took a passed ball and scored on Mark Chichowski's single. But winning pitcher Ken Moeane bore down to retire the final two on a combination of the mound and the bat. Moeane finished with a four-hit, strikeout out and walking only one. Losing pitcher was Rich LaFramme, who was making his first appearance of the season. He fanned eight and issued two walks. Greg Palmer singled and doubled for Nichols.

Joe's World

By JOE GARMAN
You Should Have Been Here Yesterday

Just arrived at Henry's Lake, Idaho, after a day's ride from Salt Lake City. We flew from Bradley to Salt Lake; hired a car and drove on for a long, long, planned vacation of fishing, photography, and sightseeing.

For as long as I can remember, my wife, Joyce, and I have talked, and talked, about a trip to Yellowstone and the Tetons; and fishing the Madison, Snake River, Henry's Fork above the Ranch, Yellowstone Lake, and the rivers and ponds within the Park.

The ride up from Salt Lake City was an easy one, and our enthusiasm was really heightened by the country we saw, as we drove along. I almost went off the road at one point, when we passed some magnificent water on the north Fork Snake River.

The fly fishing only started to get half again as wide as Main Street, and the fly fishermen working the river only fished me on most of the trout in the foothills of the mountains.

Rising up from what seems to be the flats of the lake (it's so hard to judge distance in this vast country, I know it is a good deal further than the end of the lake) is Sawtooth Mountain, a huge snow covered peak, that is part of a large range, the Centennial Mountains. Wow! What a view!

The lake itself is supposed to hold some very large trout, and from the word Bill Cairns gave me, trout fish, unless you use nymphs, and then, only over weed beds.

Well, I've done quite a bit of fishing before, so naturally, right after we arrived, I was "hot to trot," and asked how the fishing had been. The answer was one that I am used to.

Whalers Finding Financial Angels
HARTFORD (UPI) — Backers of the Hartford Whalers are finding entry into the National Hockey League to be an expensive proposition. The consortium has just shelled out another $10 million to finance the move and pay off the team's debt.

Donald Conrad, executive vice president of Aetna Life & Casualty Co., which owns about 30 percent of the team, called the new arrangement "a fantastic vote of confidence in Hartford."

The companies also pledged more than $3 million to keep the Whalers financially afloat until the Civic Center coliseum reopens as scheduled in January.

The Whalers are one of four former World Hockey Association teams which were granted entry to the NHL in March after a seven-year contest. The price tag was set at $4.6 million this year and $1.3 million over the next five years.

The Whalers have been playing since their arrival in Hartford in 1974 as part of a downtown revitalization effort and had accumulated $5.5 million in bank loans, costing the team more than $600,000 annually in interest payments alone.

Conrad said the owners realized "it was an unusual burden" for the franchise to begin its new venture with such a debt.

The five companies that own two-thirds of the team — and kicked in two-thirds of the $10 million — are Aetna; Hartford Insurance Group; Connecticut General Insurance Corp.; United Technologies Corp.; Moriarty's Bus.

Eighth Straight Win Notched By Manchester Legion Nine

Winning has become habit-forming for the Manchester American Legion baseball team.

The Post 102 nine made it eight wins in a row yesterday with an 8-3 duke over Windsor Locks in Zone Eight play at Windsor Locks High. Manchester looped Torrington, 11-3, in a non-zone clash Tuesday evening in Torrington while it came from a 10-4 deficit last Sunday to best the Providence, R.I., Elmwood Post by a 15-10 count in 11 innings.

Carr Gains First Place

Three local tracksters competed and advanced at Sunday's Connecticut Junior Olympics staged at Greenwich High.

Harry Carr took first place in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and second in the 120-meter high hurdles. Patti Walsh took second in the 400-meter hurdles and first in the 100-meter hurdles.

The second time I went to Labrador, 10 years later, when we arrived we were informed that it was the hottest week on record and that they didn't expect the fishing to be very good. Once again, the Good Lord was good to us, and even though the weather did not change, the fishing improved enough to make the trip worthwhile.

If you read my recent column about the trip to Paconomishine Lake, you will recall that Gene Moriarty greeted us with our reports about the salmon fishing in the river, and how slow the bass fishing was in the lake, all because of a long spell of wet weather.

Well, we have enough time to spend here, to see if next week is going to improve things, and as for yesterday — well, that was yesterday. I'm going to make sure that "Wait 'til next week" really works out. You'll be hearing from me... That's for day sure!

IMLACH TO RETURN
TORONTO (UPI) — The air was still thick with hoopla and congratulations when George "Punch" Imlach, new general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, smiled coldly at onlookers and reminded them one day he would be fired.

"Knowing you're gonna be fired someday makes the job easier," Imlach remarked after Maple Leafs owner Harold Ballard told reporters Wednesday Imlach was returning to be the Leafs' general manager after a 10-year absence.

Bruins Tab Creighton

BOSTON (UPI) — Fred Creighton, who guided the Atlanta Flames to four winning seasons but was fired this spring when the NHL club failed again in the Stanley Cup playoffs, today was named head coach of the Boston Bruins.

Creighton's signing was announced at a news conference where he fielded questions from reporters. He replaced the popular Don Cherry, who coached Boston for five seasons again in the Stanley Cup playoffs, today was named head coach of the Boston Bruins.

Bonnett Wins 'Cracker'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — When a driver starts a race on the NASCAR circuit, it's unusual for him to ask to be replaced while his car still is in the running.

But three of the 41 drivers who started the heat-cranked Daytona International Speedway race on Wednesday asked for replacements and Neil Bonnett, winner of the $208,000 race had to be given oxygen when it was over.

Several other drivers were treated at the track, where the heat rose in waves from the asphalt, it was better than 100.

Bonnett, the youngest member of the Alabama gang, which includes brothers Bobby and Donnie Allison, deftly avoided accidents and threaded his way through openings in slower traffic to win by 2 car-lengths over Terry Parsons.

Rookie Dale Earnhardt was third, pre-race favorite Darrell Waltrip was fourth and NASCAR's all-time leading money-winner, Richard Petty, came in fifth, two laps behind the track.

Gary Ballou, Rick Newsom and D.K. Ulrich wilted under the extreme heat and had to be replaced. Several other drivers were treated at the track, where the heat rose in waves from the asphalt, it was better than 100.

Joe's World

Just arrived at Henry's Lake, Idaho, after a day's ride from Salt Lake City. We flew from Bradley to Salt Lake; hired a car and drove on for a long, long, planned vacation of fishing, photography, and sightseeing.

For as long as I can remember, my wife, Joyce, and I have talked, and talked, about a trip to Yellowstone and the Tetons; and fishing the Madison, Snake River, Henry's Fork above the Ranch, Yellowstone Lake, and the rivers and ponds within the Park.

The ride up from Salt Lake City was an easy one, and our enthusiasm was really heightened by the country we saw, as we drove along. I almost went off the road at one point, when we passed some magnificent water on the north Fork Snake River.

Borg and Connors In Spotlight Today

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — No self-respecting Hollywood mogul would have allowed it to happen; showing the climax before the last reel hits the screen is bad offi-

But Wimbledon does not follow any scenario, and that's why Sweden's triple-champion Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors clash in Thursday's semifinals instead of disputing the crown for the third successive year.

Connors was seeded third behind fellow American John McEnroe because he was a doubtful starter. Connors' wife Patti is expecting their first child any day and it was not certain if the 26-year-old left-hander would be able to tackle Wimbledon where he has been a three-time losing finalist.

His relegation in the seedings rebounded on the organizers. Connors was drawn in the same half as Borg while McEnroe, the young pretender to the world crown, suffered a fourth-round upset and it is fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner and fellow American Pat Dupre who are expected to contest the other semifinal.

Borg, the 23-year-old champion, summed up the feeling of experts and fans alike: "I believe Connors should have been seeded No. 2. Right now

Most of 3,400 Miles Pleasant for Bicyclist

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Gary Marchuk, 20, of 157 Eldridge St., rode some 3,400 miles across the country on his bicycle and now he's back home. And he said he doesn't regret a moment of it, even some of the few unpleasant experiences.

Gary left Manchester on May 7 carrying about 100 pounds of gear. The trip took 31 days allowing three days to visit an old friend in Colorado and a few days after he arrived at his destination, San Francisco, Calif., before flying home.

He experienced freezing cold nights and beastly hot days in the deserts, high winds and snow through the mountains, traffic problems in Chicago, sunburn, being driven off the road by cars and trucks, but he still says he would do it again.

He said in the desert it got so hot that he could actually smell the tires on his bike melting. He said there was no shade anywhere and the wind blew so hard that he felt thirsty all of the time. "In fact the wind blew so hard at times that it blew the sweat right off my spoon," he said.

It was over the Memorial Day weekend that Gary got off his planned route to meet Tom Warnick, a Manchester resident who is now living in Colorado. He enjoyed a few days of good eating and nights of comfortable sleeping there before moving on.

He said in Denver, Colo. he had to buy some warmer clothing to ride through the mountains. He said the trip through the mountains took two days and he went across the Continental Divide, twice.

He said many times he had to push his bike through the mountains because of the strong headwinds. He said the high altitudes affected his breathing. He was about a mile above sea level and the air was very dry and very unpredictable. He coasted down the mountains for about 30 miles.

He said the desert area of Nevada was one of the hardest stretches of the trip. The towns were 80 to 100 miles apart so he had to plan his days accordingly. He said the desert heat caused many flat tires and even the patches wouldn't stay on.

In Utah he met another cyclist and rode about 150 miles with him and the company was a pleasant relief. After that the two split because the other cyclist was taking the northern route to Oregon and Washington.

Along the way he was treated well by people in most towns and many offered to put him up for the night and feed him.

His pleasant experiences were few, but one that really upset him happened in Pennsylvania when he saw a man deliberately try to run him off the road. Along the way he was also attacked by many dogs, especially in the mid-west where they don't tie up their animals.

He said the truck drivers were really nice. He said they seemed to understand the problems of a cyclist and gave him plenty of room as they went by.

He said most people in the west drive small pickup trucks and he had many offers for rides. He had to take one once when his bicycle broke down and had to go to a repair shop.

In Utah he stopped to try and get some milk in one of the towns and wasn't able to. He said he left and a short time later a man came along with two bottles of milk and left them on the side of the road for him.

His first experience with getting sunburned was when he was going through Pennsylvania. He said he had blisters all over his legs. He said eventually his legs got used to the sun but one day he decided to take his shirt off and he regretted that because he got so sunburned he couldn't sleep for three nights.

He said it took a few months to plan his route and then it was mapped out for him by the AAA. He said he pretty much followed Route 66 all the way to California.

He said along the way he knew that he could make it to California but sometimes he wondered if his bicycle was really his. He bought it for $100 and he said he made money by delivering packages. He said he made money by delivering packages. He said he made money by delivering packages.

COVENTRY - The Booth-Dimock Library will offer a series of workshops, films and story hours for children during the summer months starting on July 10 with a creative dramatics hour.

The first program will be led by Barbara Goodwin and will be from 2 to 3 p.m. on July 17 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Kate Schmitt will offer a puppet workshop and on July 24 at 10:30 a.m., Peter Bassett will show films about horses.

On Wednesdays during the summer, starting July 11, films will be shown at 1:30 p.m. in the Children's Room at the library. Children five and younger must be accompanied by an adult.

Story hours for children ages 3-5 will be held on Thursdays from 12:30 to 1 p.m. and "bag lunch" story hours for children ages six and older will be given on Fridays starting at 11:30 a.m.

All programs, except the film showings, require pre-registration a week in advance by coming to the library or calling the library, 742-7666.

A summer reading club, sponsored by the Coventry Junior Women's Club will meet at the library on Wednesdays before the film programs. Those interested should contact Ester Schulz for more information. The library will also offer a reading certificate to children who read eight books or more during the summer.

The children's room needs young people to help review new books, at all levels. For more information call the library.

New Associations
A Friends of the Library Association was formed recently by a group of townpeople interested in helping maintain the library collections and the old library building.

The first project of the new volunteer group will be to sponsor a large book sale in September. Any Coventry resident interested in joining the group or in donating books, magazines or recordings to the sale, should contact Margaret Norris, chairman of the group, at 742-7681 or the librarian.

Business Farm Market Planned

MANCHESTER - Beginning Sunday, July 15, the Manchester Farmers' Market will open and operate every Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. until the end of October. The market will be located in the parking lot of Five Flags on Broad Street.

Heading the venture are Richard Sturgeon, president of the Connecticut Farmers' Association for Retail Marketing (ConnFARM), and Edward Bobbitt, of the Five Flags Catalogue Showroom. ConnFARM, a non-profit organization, is committed to the development and organization of direct marketing opportunities for Connecticut produce farmers, and to the education of the public as to the need for closer ties between local farmer and consumer.

Sturgeon said, "Connecticut is too dependent on trucks in produce, a problem we are all too aware of with the fuel situation facing us today. Connecticut farmers could raise a much larger percentage of the produce consumed by the residents of this state."

"Direct marketing outlets such as the Manchester Farmers' Market will promote more vegetable farming in the state. In turn, the consumer will benefit from fresher produce and lower cost," Sturgeon continued.

Article of Correction
A release of information from the state Department of Public Utilities Control to take a more realistic policy on line extension requirements.

"By relaxing what the industry felt were unreasonable requirements, the DPUC has seen the CATV companies respond by increasing the pace of building. The ultimate beneficiaries are the people of Connecticut who are increasingly able to obtain better television pictures and a wider choice of television programming," Hubbell said.

Cable TV Covers One-Fourth of State

HARTFORD - The number of cable television subscribers in Connecticut has passed the quarter of a million mark, and the state has a higher percentage of residences on cable and a faster growth rate for cable than the rest of the nation.

An industry spokesman credits the situation to higher consumer demand and recently eased state rules.

Figures gathered by the Connecticut Cable Television Association show a total of 259,198 customers as of June 1, being served by the state's 19 operating cable companies. This means, the CCTA survey reports, that 24.6 percent of the state's residences are connected to a cable TV system, compared to less than 20 percent nationwide. Also in the past year, an increase of about 60,000 subscribers represents a 33 percent growth rate, compared with a 12 percent growth rate nationwide for CATV.

"I think this is an outstanding record of growth, especially since Connecticut did not begin to get cable TV until 1972... when a federal freeze was lifted and legal blockades in the state were removed...

making it the last state in the nation to get cable TV," said CCTA President Richard Hubbell of Rollins Cablevision, Branford.

"But from a standing start, cable moved ahead in Connecticut and in the past few years, especially, it has grown at a very rapid pace. Despite that pace, we find it hard to keep up with consumer demand for cable TV."

"Because of shortages of material and qualified personnel, keeping pace with demand may be even harder in the future," Hubbell said. "However, cable TV companies have been helped in the past few years by the decision of the state Department of Public Utilities Control to take a more realistic policy on line extension requirements.

"By relaxing what the industry felt were unreasonable requirements, the DPUC has seen the CATV companies respond by increasing the pace of building. The ultimate beneficiaries are the people of Connecticut who are increasingly able to obtain better television pictures and a wider choice of television programming," Hubbell said.

AID Program Buys in State

WASHINGTON - The United States foreign aid programs acquired more than $49.5 million in goods, services and agricultural products in Connecticut last year, according to a study by the Agency for International Development.

The commodities and services are used to help stimulate economic growth in less developed countries, many of which supply raw materials for U.S. manufacturing and other firms for food and supplies.

Of the Connecticut total, $49,314,221 went to manufacturers and other firms for food and supplies. The balance, $14,000, went to Connecticut farmers and food processors for grain and other agricultural commodities.

According to the AID survey, contracts for technical services totaling $10,852,416 were in effect in Connecticut at the end of the 1978 fiscal year.

Among firms in the commodity procurement list were Mechanical Finishing Co. of East Hartford, $5,650; United Technologies International, $554,533; and Ingersoll Rand Co. in Manchester, $892.

Computer Kit Aids Program

STORRS - When can a computer programmer use a computer program to program a computer? Hopefully in the not too distant future, according to Dr. John R. White, an associate professor of computer science at the University of Connecticut. White and Dr. Taylor Booth, a professor of electrical engineering and computer science, are working on a "tool kit" for programmers setting up computer systems.

The kit, which will be a set of computer programs, works to integrate both the "software" or programming, and the "hardware" or the machine which the programs will run on.

"The 'tool' will indicate how each component in a computer works what it produces and how it was designed and built."

"Then a software engineer could ask what the purpose of this design or that program was and get an answer," says White, who was a programmer for five years before coming here.

Inner City Residents Learning Horticulture

By FRANK ATWOOD

A Manchester girl who has her own home now in Bolton is teaching inner-city families of Hartford how to grow flowers, house plants and vegetables. Mary Jordan Walz is horticulturist for the Knox Parks Foundation, which has offices and classroom space at Elizabeth Park.

Mary Jordan Walz picks cherries from a tree near the home she rents from Dr. Robert Butterfield on Vernon Road, Bolton, overlooking Bolton Lake. (Herald photo by Adamson)

Some of the classes at the Foundation have been brought to Elizabeth Park for talks and demonstrations. Miss Walz says the children learn that soil is important and they learn how to plant seeds. She tells them that wood ashes scattered on the plants will protect them from aphids, and that either mint or tansy, planted with the vegetables, help to control cabbage worms.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Beverly is a beautiful blonde, immaculate and built like a fashion model, age 33, widowed five years. I am average looking, 35, divorced four years and considered a sharp dresser.

We met four years ago. After an on-and-off courtship, we married. We are both employed, occupy a new apartment and have no family members living with us. I have a meager savings account, which I put into a joint savings account.

The problem: Beverly arrives at 8:45 a.m. Monday through Friday, takes three minutes to prepare her breakfast, eats in five minutes and spends two hours dressing for work. She leaves at 8 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to an 8 to 8:30 job. (Clerical, not executive.) She arrives home at 4:45 p.m. I usually have dinner ready. We eat together, clean the kitchen, after which she goes to her bathroom and prepares for her next day's work. She retires at 8 p.m., face greased up, lying on her stomach to protect her hair and her hands in the air to keep from smudging her freshly polished fingernails. Every Friday evening she allows 15 to 30 minutes for sex because she doesn't have to worry about her hair. (Her hair appointment is Saturday morning.)

On weekends she does the laundry and apartment cleaning. It helps because of her routine we invite no guests nor do we accept any invitations out. I do most of the shopping and errands.

We've been married six months, and I've suggested a marriage counselor. That's out. Beverly refuses to discuss our problems or make any adjustments.

The only beautiful women make poor wives? Divorce seems the only solution. What are your thoughts?

E. IN E.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. I have a close relative who has not visited us for some time and I simply must have her visit soon. She's been living for an invitation.

I rarely invite her because in the past she has inspected my house like the white toronado. I've never had her examining every nook and cranny. She even puts on her glasses to inspect my oven!

I have three small children and things do get cluttered, but I think I'm a fairly good housekeeper.

I suppose she wonders why I don't invite her more often, but her inspection tours drive me up a wall.

Any suggestions?

DEAR ABBY: Sometimes bringing a problem out into the open and talking about it works wonders.
