Famine Eases

The gasoline famine eased along the Eastern Seaboard and motorists hit the highways in force during the weekend, giving many tourist resort operators their first summer taste of profit.

In Florida, a suddenly booming tourist business was overshadowed by the threat of a service station operators' strike, and in Arizona, a man out to beat the system learned he'd buried a liability along with a gas tank in his yard.

But where the fuel squeeze has been the tightest, businessmen catering to tourists finally were smiling Sunday.

"People were in here all day yesterday looking for places to stay," said a Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman in Southampton, N.Y., on Long Island. "I think it's the busiest weekend so far. The gas problem seems to have cleared up. I don't think people are having too much trouble getting gas any more."

Laetrile Kills

CHICAGO (UPI) — Laetrile, the controversial cancer treatment made from the pits of apricots and other fruit, can kill, the American Medical Association said today.

The AMA based its allegation on the research findings of Dr. Janardan D. Khandekar at Evanston (Ill.) Hospital and Northwestern University Medical School.

Khandekar fed Laetrile to groups of tumor-infected rats to study the affects of the substance, also known as amygdalin. He reported not only a progressive increase in the size of the tumors, but also death rates as high as 56.8 percent from cyanide poisoning in three of the study groups.

Skylab Wager

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Skylab again has proven Australians will bet on anything that moves.

Australian punters are intrigued by the inauguration of a grand sporting event at the plush Salamander Hotel in the Port Stephens area 100 miles north of Sydney.

This is a winner-take-all lottery on the outcome of the Skylab crash.

The Salamander's Managing Director Stephen McMullen says the winner will be the person who draws the area of the world where the largest lump of Skylab lands.

Organizers have divided the world map into 192 numbered pieces at $1 a section.

The draw will be made Monday. Whoever draws the area containing Port Stephens gets a bottle of champagne.

"At least he'll go out happy," McMullen said Monday.

Pumping Oil

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Saudi Arabia has begun pumping an additional 1 million barrels of oil a day in an effort to stabilize prices, an authoritative oil publication reported today.

The Middle East Economic Survey also reported a major new oil strike in Saudi Arabia by Aramco, a consortium of four foreign oil firms — Exxon, Texaco, Shell and Mobil.

Build-up Costly Without SALT

Sandcastles and Cupcakes

When you have 30 tons of sand in your back yard you can make a lot of sandcastles. Shawn Adams, center, received the sand as a present for his fifth birthday, last year and he was host to a group of children whose parents belong to the Tolland Area Association for the Retarded and Handicapped Inc., this weekend. The children were invited to the

Adams' home on North Elm Street to join in the sandcastle contest from 1 p.m. until dusk "or until every grain of sand has been eaten up, whichever comes first." The other children with Shawn are Amy Bolduc, left, and Karen Carrier. (Herald photo by Adamson)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top administration officials opened the Senate's great debate on arms limitation today by warning it would cost at least $30 billion to match unrestrained Soviet arms programs if SALT II fails. They said any attempt to change the treaty could open pitfalls for the United States.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance began what he called the "fateful" process by warning the Senate that any attempt to amend the treaty might jeopardize points in the treaty which are favorable to the United States.

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown said that an unrestrained arms race would result from Senate rejection of the treaty, and that competition could cost the United States an extra $30 billion.

Brown and Vance were the leadoff witnesses beginning a month of committee hearings on the pact which Senate critics assert is biased in favor of the Russians.

In testimony prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's first day of hearings on the arms pact, Brown assured the Senate that U.S. intelligence can monitor and verify any significant Soviet cheating. Verifiability of the pact has been one of the main sticking points cited by opponents.

"My judgment is that this treaty will make the people of the United States more secure militarily than we would be without it," Brown said.

"For that reason, I recommend the Senate give its approval."

He said the new treaty "is designed to assure that we do not need to rely on trust."

"It is verifiable ... The Soviets cannot gain a military advantage by concealed actions that violate the agreement," he said.

Vance said, "We proceed today with the second step in a fateful joint responsibility."

The first stage — the negotiation and signing of the pact — was done, he said, with an unprecedented amount of cooperation with Congress.

Vance acknowledged that the United States would have preferred lower levels of arms limitation, but he said, "The issue is where we are better served with this treaty or without it."

He said it is his belief that "we cannot realistically expect to shift the bargain more in our favor now through a process of amendment and reservation."

"Even if it were possible to reopen the negotiations, certainly they would be reopened on both sides. This could lead to the reopening of points that are now resolved in a manner favorable to our interests."

The Senate is expected to vote sometime in November on ratification of the treaty which President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev signed in Vienna last month.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said on a national television show Sunday that if a Senate vote were taken today, the treaty probably would not win the needed two-thirds majority.

A major question looming in the debate is what would happen if the Senate amends the treaty text.

MMH Budget To Hike Rates

MANCHESTER — If the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care approves Manchester Memorial's proposed budget of more than $20 million for next year, it will mean an increase in rates charged patients.

The proposed budget calls for an increase of 8.88 percent in rates. This means that the cost of a one-day stay in a semi-private room would increase from about $104 to about $112, according to Andre Marmen, hospital development director.

"Our increases in rates have been at the level of or below inflation rates the past couple of years," Marmen said.

The approximate eight-dollar increase is low compared to Windham Memorial Hospital which is proposing a $25 semi-private room daily increase, Marmen said.

The recommended rates are dependent on the commission's approval of the proposed budget, Marmen said.

However, he added that the cost to patient of some of the hospital services will decrease. He said that the physical therapy service, which is charged on a time basis, will decrease from 62 cents per minute to 60 cents, and operating room man hour charges will decrease from $2.64 to $2.62 per minute.

Increases will be reflected in other services such as an EKG exam, up from $20.20 to $20.38, and a diagnostic radiology exam, increased from $7.13 to $7.39. These figures are based on nationwide Relative Unit Value rates, Marmen said.

Recently, the hospital indicated it might reduce some of its rates temporarily because of excessive revenues caused by a greater patient mix than was anticipated when this year's budget was approved.

No decision has been made as to which services will get the lower rates, nor how much rate will be reduced.

The hospital has collected $741,000 more than estimated in its $16.1 million budget for 1977-78.

Town Mulls Four-Day Week

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Town officials Tuesday are expected to review ideas about how to save gasoline, and one of the proposals will be to have a four-day work week for at least some town employees.

Town Manager Robert Weiss last week instructed department heads to develop plans for what they would have to do if gasoline supplies were cut 15 percent or more.

Those reports are due today, and a formal plan of conservation is expected to be finalized at Tuesday's regularly scheduled staff meeting.

Jay Giles, director of public works, said the issue has been discussed at recent meetings of the public works department heads. One proposal they will make is to shift to a four-day work week, he said.

"I think it should be given more serious consideration," Giles said of the proposal. He believes such an arrangement would save gasoline because it would cut down the number of trips per week to work and to work sites.

Town employees who have a 40-hour work week would work four 10-hour days rather than five eight-hour days.

"They'll save one day's worth of trips," Giles said.

Some businesses and other municipalities, including Danbury, Conn., have adopted the four-day work week to cut the amount of employee travel to and from work. Danbury only adopted its four-day week recently and plans to continue it on an experimental basis through the summer.

Giles said the four-day week probably would not work in all departments. For instance, the Park Department could not properly maintain ball fields by working only four days and building inspections probably still would be requested Monday through Friday. In such cases, part of the department could work Monday through Thursday and the other part could work Tuesday through Friday, Giles said.

Giles said the idea will be proposed at Tuesday's staff meeting. Other department proposals also will be reviewed.

Weiss had a vacation day today but is expected to attend Tuesday's staff meeting. Assistant Town Manager Charles McCarthy this morning would not release the reports from the departments.

"We're going to do something definitive tomorrow," he said this morning. "Internal staff documents are not going to be helpful as far as a news story," he said of the reports on conservation steps prepared by the departments.

State Workers Lacking Agreements

HARTFORD (UPI) — The majority of the state's 40,000 union workers still don't have agreements three weeks before the Legislature is scheduled to meet in special session to ratify all employee contracts.

The union representing 1,200 Connecticut corrections workers reached a tentative agreement Sunday with the state on a new pact, averting a possible job action.

Meanwhile, a state police union official said that's good news for the prison workers, but his union members are still grumbling about a possible second job action.

Trooper Michael Ruffino, president of the State Police Council of the Connecticut State Employees Association, said 850 union members met in Meriden Sunday to discuss the status of the talks.

He said the possibility of future job actions was discussed and the council's action committee was considering alternatives, depending on how the talks proceed.

State police staged a work slowdown last week by refusing to issue traffic citations for all but serious offenses.

Ruffino said he was pleased that the corrections guards had settled because his union had been "breaking the ice" by winning the most concessions from the state.

With the corrections settlement, Ruffino said he hoped he could move forward and win his own union's contract.

State police contract talks are scheduled to resume Tuesday in Hartford.

The prison guards and other corrections employees became the third group of state workers to hammer out new contracts with state negotiators after the union representing 2,800 state social service workers reached agreement on a new pact Saturday.

Negotiators for the state and Council 4 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees reached tentative agreement on the corrections workers' pact at 2 a.m. Sunday, said Thomas Barnett, director of communications for the state Department of Administrative Services.

No details of the pact were released pending ratification by the union rank-and-file, Barnett said.

The corrections workers were the first group of state employees to stage a strike when they walked off the job two years ago in a contract impasse. The union had said last week another job action was being considered if a contract agreement wasn't reached this week.

In addition to the corrections and social service workers a group of 520 University of Connecticut professional employees have reached a contract with the state.

That leaves about 33,000 general state Executive Department workers and about 2,900 higher education workers without contracts, Barnett said. The state has been bargaining with seven different unions representing about 22 separate contracts, he added.

The Legislature has scheduled a special meeting coinciding with its annual trailer session on July 30 where lawmakers will consider ratification of the contracts.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, July 9, the 190th day of 1979 with 175 to follow.
The moon is full.
The morning stars are Venus and Mars.
The evening stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.
Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, was born July 9, 1819.
On this day in history:
In 1900, Australia entered the Federal British Commonwealth.
In 1943, American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily during World War II.
In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened the United States with rockets if American forces attempted to oust the Castro communist regime from Cuba.
In 1974, Earl Warren, former governor of California and Chief Justice of the United States, died at the age of 83.
A thought for the day: Author Joan Didion said, "To have that sense of one's intrinsic worth which constitutes self-respect is potentially a hazardous thing."

But Someone Cares
It was a cruel enough break when amply endowed tennis pro Linda Siegel scandalized London's staid Wimbledon crowd by tumbling out of the top of her costume in a match against Billy Jean King. Cramer still wears worldwide press pictures of the tumble.
But someone cares. Linda received a letter of condolence that said, "I truly know how you must be feeling... I am a singer-songwriter but I have to grin and bear all the other things that go with the job. In your case, please remember, handle it with humor - grin when you bare it - it is the only way."
The note was signed, "Sincerely, Dolly Parton."

Job Hunting

Bianca Jagger - whose sole occupation has been the bustle of appearing in various places - says when it's all over she wants to get into a serious line of work.
She's in London now, preparing for the next round in her divorce battle with rock star husband Mick, but she's been at home, staying with her father in war-torn Nicaragua, where food is more precious than gold and the curfew is 8 p.m.
The experience apparently sobered her. She told attorney Marvin Michelson once the divorce is settled, she wants to return to Nicaragua and go to work - for the American Red Cross.

Brew-Haha

First, the first brother got himself consistently in hot water as a result of drinking beer. Now he's in hot water - at least in St. Louis - for talking about it.
Billy Carter, taping a segment of the Phil Donahue Show Sunday before a live audience, was asked what he thought of Budweiser. Said he, with typical candor, "I think it's not like it." That didn't go down too well in the city where the brew is brewed.
Carter was on the show to talk about his recent 24-beers-a-day alcoholism, which he says he's whipped. Said he, "I think I was probably an alcoholic the day I was born."

Splitting Hairs

Joyce DeWitt of "Three's Company" and Phyllis Diller have something in common - neither hair but both together on a segment of "Love Boat," now being filmed for fall release in Hollywood.
Joyce is cast in a dramatic role in the great appearance. That's a switch, but not nearly so great a one as Miss Diller's, whose hairdo generally hints at a finger stuck in a live electrical socket.
She's playing a lady agent for the Internal Revenue Service for this one, and only the star of the show - Gavin McLeod - can top her in conservative styling of the locks. He doesn't have any.

Quote of the Day

Bjorn Borg, on plans for the future now that he's won his fourth consecutive singles title at Wimbledon, England: "My goals in the future are to win a lot of big titles, make some records, and maybe some day they'll say I'm the greatest tennis player in history. That is my ambition."

Glimpses

Carol Burnett co-stars with Keith Mitchell this fall in the CBS-TV movie "The Tenth Month" - the story of a pregnant, unmarried, middle-aged woman who decides to keep and raise her child... Sarah Vaughan is in Sturtevant's new production, "Festival Canada concert... The Mills Brothers, Frank Laune and Glenn Miller Orchestra are playing the Westbury Music Fair... Producer Ed Shaw will present "America's Salute to the Astronauts" Friday at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas with Charo, Lola Falana, Dionne Warwick, Wayne Newton, Liberace and Glen Campbell on the bill... Teddy Pendergrass has produced a new single titled "Turn Off the Lights" which he's pitching to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger as the anthem for the "Save Energy Brigade"...

Speculation on Energy Highlights Conference

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - A regional feature of Kentucky Derby week in Louisville is a balloon race. But the biggest ascension of trial balloons in Louisville this year may be the energy proposals floating around the national governors' meeting.
President Carter decided to remain at Camp David instead of speaking to the National Governors' Association over the weekend, but he summoned a delegation from the group to his mountaintop retreat and then sent that delegation along with his wife, Rosalynn, Vice President Walter Mondale and a brace of top White House aides, back to the conference.
It is from them that some outline of what Carter is considering may be emerging.
- Stuart Eizenstat, the president's top adviser on domestic policy, arrived declaring Carter would "come out swinging" when he has his energy plan ready. Message: Look for something dramatic.
- Budget director James McIntyre, asked if the plan to balance the federal budget by 1981 was still operative, said he would advise postponing that long-held goal if necessary in the interest of dealing with the energy situation. Message: It is going to cost a lot of money.
- Both Mondale and McIntyre spoke of energy as a possible source of foreign policy blackmail. Mondale spoke of "the unscrupulous cartel" and "foreign powers who hold our economy hostage." Message: The national security will be invoked.
- Mondale, speaking of an all-out technological effort to achieve independence from OPEC, said Americans demand creation of "an Apollo project to create alternative fuel." Message: The White House may try to overtake Congress, which already is working on big plans to develop substitutes for oil.
- McIntyre later said a red tape-cutting "Energy Mobilization Board" patterned after the War Mobilization Board of World War II is being considered. Message: Carter may be looking for a "super agency" to bypass the bureaucratic morass that sprang into life with the Department of Energy.
As always, there was some heavy politicking at the governors' conference. Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, incoming chairman of the Democratic Governors' Association, sponsored a resolution endorsing Carter for reelection. It got the votes of 50 governors and one proxy.
Govs. George Nigh of Oklahoma, Richard Lamm of Colorado, Joseph Brennan of Maine and Harry Hughes of Maryland abstained, although the last two said they support Carter but do not think it is the right time to be endorsing anyone.
The governors continued their working sessions with policy committees meeting today, planning to wind up the conference with a general session Tuesday.

Ella Home, Led Support For Carter

HARTFORD (UPI) - Gov. Ella Grasso was back in Connecticut today after attending the National Governors' Association conference, where she led a resolution of support for President Carter's re-election.
Mrs. Grasso's resolution was adopted at a closed-door meeting of the Democratic Governors' Conference during the Louisville, Ky., convention this weekend.
Twenty-four of the nation's 32 Democratic governors attended the resolution was not aimed at thwarting Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who has support for a presidential bid, Mrs. Grasso said.
"This was not designed to stop anyone," she said.
Mrs. Grasso deplored the endorsement was the work of a White House staffer and said she had written the resolution herself. She admitted, however, the work had been reviewed by somebody at the White House.
The Democratic governors also elected Mrs. Grasso spokeswoman at their conference. She has previously served as vice chairwoman.
Mrs. Grasso was one of eight governors to meet Friday and Saturday with President Carter at his camp David retreat in Maryland.

Energy, Inflation Forces Confer With President

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Today's visitors to President Carter's Camp David domestic summit were two task forces studying the twin problems of inflation and energy - including a new standby gasoline rationing proposal.
Press secretary Jody Powell said the president is immersed in an unprecedented reassessment of national policies he believes will set policy for decades to come.
"He believes decisions to be made will have a profound effect, probably until the end of this century," Powell said.
Carter invited some 20 Democratic and Republican senators and congressmen to meet with him on the energy crisis in the morning and another 15 or so congressional leaders to confer in the afternoon on inflation and the economy. The task forces were selected by Senate Majority leader Robert Byrd and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill.
Among other things, the groups were reported to be ready to talk about presenting a new gasoline rationing proposal to a Congress

Stanley Ziemba, 20, of 132 Union St., Rockville, was charged Friday with possession of alcoholic beverages in a town park, breach of the peace, and interfering with a police officer.
He was released on a $100 bond for appearance in court in Rockville in July 17.
Raymond F. Bisson, of 50 Weymouth Circle, Vernon, was charged Friday with reckless driving, driving an unregistered motor vehicle and driving without a license. He is scheduled for court on July 17 on the motor vehicle charge and on July 27 for the reckless driving charge.
Gary M. Weber, 24, of 31 Lakeside Drive, Andover, was charged Friday with speeding, driving while his license is under suspension and failure to obey an officer's signal. He was arrested on a re-arrest warrant. He was released in court July 20.
Purchase (no age given), both of Willimantic, were charged Friday in connection with the investigation of a break into a private home.
Tracy was charged with third-degree larceny and burglary and burglary, second-degree larceny and failure to obey an officer. They were held at the Brooklyn Correctional Center and were to be presented in court in Rockville today.
South Windsor
Ozell Mickens, 52, of 49 Ann Road, South Windsor, was charged Saturday with failure to drive right. He was involved in a motorcycle accident on Sullivan Avenue.
Police said Covalski was driving south on Sullivan Avenue, was unable to negotiate a curve and was thrown from his cycle. Police said he refused medical attention. He is scheduled to appear in court in East Hartford on July 20.

Series Planned On Foster Care

EAST HARTFORD - Residents of Manchester and surrounding communities are invited to consider the world of foster care at a series of meetings this month.
The sessions will be held July 16, 23 and 30 at the East Hartford Public Library, 840 Main St., at 7 p.m. They are sponsored by the Department of Child and Youth Services.
According to Cathy Jones, a social worker for DCYS, special emphasis will be placed this month on fostering a teen-ager.
"Everyone seems to be afraid of taking on an adolescent," she said. "But they are our children also, and need the same things other children need. Past experience has shown that a community the size of Manchester hasn't yielded even one individual or family willing to take in a teen."
"Intervention in a teen's life at a time when they are searching for themselves, values and a good role model can affect the course of their whole life," she continued.
The department is mainly concerned with foster care for children six to 12 years old from broken families. Ms. Jones said, the age group most persons are reluctant to adopt either temporarily or permanently.
The meetings in East Hartford will feature films, a question and answer period and discussion with persons who are involved in foster care. No commitment is implied by attendance, but interested persons should attend all meetings. Both members of a married couple are encouraged to attend. Ms. Jones said.
For further information, call 1-800-882-6804.

Inflation Catches Up With Housing Agency

HARTFORD (UPI) - Spiraling inflations have finally caught up with the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority, prompting it to lift the ceiling on the housing it will provide mortgages for by $10,000.
"That puts the top price of a home the CHFA will finance at $88,000 for a new four-family home in Fairfield County."
"It had become extremely difficult to construct housing at a cost within the authority's price limit of $50,000 for a one-family house," said CHFA Chairman Arthur H. White. "We hope that these new price limits for newly constructed houses will help ease this situation."
The new limits approved were: single-family homes, $60,000; two-family, $85,000; three-family, 70,000; and four-family, $75,000. The limits will be $10,000 higher in Fairfield County where financing for condominiums is available up to $60,000 compared to $50,000 in the rest of the state.
CHFA is a self-sustaining mortgage lending agency set up by the state and raises its funds through the sale of tax-exempt bonds.

Holy Land U.S.A.

Tourist Attraction Has Bible Theme

By JAMES V. HEALON
WATERBURY (UPI) - Joe Teixeira is 14 and he likes to say he learned about God on his paper route.
That's because he delivered the Waterbury American each day to 20 customers and his route was near "Holy Land, U.S.A.," a tourist attraction with a biblical theme.
Its founder, John Baptist Greco, says 4,000 people visit it annually - many from the inner cities of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Joe hikes up the steep hill where Greco had a 52-foot crossbolted to the summit in 1856 and talks to Sister Josephine and Sister Lucy, who tell him what they tell the tourists.
"I learn about God. I know where he was born. I know about the three kings. Now I'm learning about the saints."
"I volunteered as a guide - help around the place, too, and they wanted to pay me. But I say no."
"I'd like to take people up the hill, tell them what I know, try to get them interested. I got to admit I like the way Mr. Greco put up that cross. At night, it's lit up and you can see it from a way off," Joe said.
John Greco, the lawyer who gave people something to look at on the Waterbury skyline - and civil libertarians something to think about - paused one day in 90 degree heat to chat.
He says he's not trying to convert anybody to his Roman Catholicism, just trying to inspire good will and understanding.
He is now 84, still practices law - he has many poor clients - and while tourists were in short sleeves, he wore a tweed jacket, a white shirt, a tie and a hat. His face was bronzed with the sun.
Greco is the son of an Italian shoemaker from Avellino near Naples and worked in his father's Waterbury shop as a boy.
He later attended Yale Law School on a scholarship. He sees nothing remarkable about his academic achievements. "Not at all. I'm just a poor human being like the rest of us," he said.
In the Depression years, he toured America exhorting people in the breadlines and migrants in the fields to love one another - better days were coming. He went into the CCC camps, the New Deal's Civilian Conservation Corps, and he saw what films and visual aides could do.
And that's how he got the idea for a miniature Holy Land, another Bethlehem, another Rome, another Jerusalem. He would have things like the palace of Herod, Solomon's Pool, the inn where Joseph and Mary were refused lodging. He lives frugally, attends Mass daily, and observes a holy hour. His earnings as a lawyer help support Holy Land as do parking donations and contributions from tourists.
They are given tours of the exhibits, some of them in underground vaults resounding the airy catacombs of the Christians. Sister Josephine Valenti shares the tours with Sister Lucy Vecera. Both are members of the teaching Order of St. Lucy Filippino.
In the 200-foot long catacombs, Sister Lucy gave a running commentary at each of the larger exhibits. St. Felicitas, for example, was put to death with her seven children for refusing to deny Christ.
The entrance to Holy Land is emblazoned with the legend, "The Cross - The Greatest Act of Love The World Has Ever Seen," and there are many other signs, among them one Joe Teixeira, the paper boy, might appreciate it. It says, "God Sees Everything We Do!"

Celebrate our new ways to save!

The Savings Bank of Manchester automatically increases interest on Regular Savings Accounts by 1/4%.
Something to celebrate! Starting right now, the interest on all SBM Regular Savings Accounts is boosted from 5 1/4% to 5 3/4% (for an effective annual yield of 5.72%) - the highest such interest rate available.
If you don't presently have a Regular Savings Account at The Savings Bank of Manchester, this is the perfect time to open one. If you do have a Regular Savings Account with us, you don't have to do anything - we'll automatically start crediting your account with that extra 1/4% interest.
SBM introduces an all new 4-year Bond Market CD - pays very big interest to smaller savers.
Something more to celebrate! We now can offer you a very high paying CD called a Bond Market Certificate. You need no minimum at all to participate in this CD. Yet it actually pays interest at a rate permanently fixed for the four year term just one percentage point shy of the monthly U.S. Treasury Security rate - currently 8.85%. Which means our current rate is 7.85%, for an effective annual yield of 8.28%. No other savings bank will be able to top this rate. And no commercial bank can pay as much! (If ever you've envied the big money saver, who's able to invest $10,000 in a high yield, 6-month Money Market Savings Certificate, this is for you. Our new Bond Market CD - requiring no minimum deposit* - is obviously more affordable for more savers. And it does provide a high yield for a longer term.)
We've eliminated all minimum deposits on all other Long-Term Savings Plans.
Also worth celebrating: we no longer require any minimum deposits on new or renewed long-term SBM CD's! It's up to *Account must have a minimum balance of $5.00 to earn dividends. Interest compounded continuously and credited monthly, day of deposit to day of withdrawal.

The law still requires a $10,000 minimum deposit on our popular 6-month Money Market Certificate. Federal regulations prohibit the compounding of interest on this account.

Cancer Victim Remembered as a Strong Fighter

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — Mark Santangelo, who was known in Connecticut as a cancer spokesman, has lost his 5 1/2-year battle with bone cancer. But he was remembered Sunday by his father as a strong fighter who gave of himself to help others understand and deal with the disease that finally killed him.

The 23-year-old Santangelo was described Sunday by his father, Anthony, as "a tremendous boy with tremendous friends."

"He knew as long as he could fight it he would fight it. But when he knew he could no longer fight it he was ready to accept it."

"We were very well prepared for his death," his father said. "He was very well prepared at all times."

Santangelo died Friday in New York City's Sloan Kettering Memorial Hospital where he had spent much of the past 5 1/2 years undergoing chemotherapy — what he described for TV viewers as "treatment with chemicals" — to fight the disease.

"He was about the strongest you could possibly be," Anthony Santangelo said. "I think he cared more about people. He was able to give more than he could receive."

"The cancer society came to us," his father said. "He did all he could for them. He was very happy to do all he could for them."

In the film Santangelo, fitted with an artificial leg, appeared in a movie playing golf, basketball and washing a car.

His message in the film and to other patients in the hospital was a simple one — never give up hope.

The young man was an inspiration to other patients at the New York Hospital and did everything he could for other patients and the cancer society, his father said.

"If you talk to the nurses at the Memorial Hospital clinic they'll tell you he helped more people. They received strength from Mark. I think that would be the real tribute to Mark," his father said.

Santangelo will be buried this week. He was graduated from Burdett College, Lynn, Mass.

Before moving to Manchester 17 years ago, he resided in Swampscott, Mass. She was graduated from Burdett College, Lynn, Mass.

She completed a real estate course at Manchester Community College, and a Network of Homes Training Program.

She is an associate member of the Manchester Board of Realtors and a member of the Women's Council of Realtors. She attends St. Francis of Assisi Church, South Windsor, where she is a member of the Parish Council. She lives at 50 Croft Drive with her husband Joseph and two children, Eileen and Daniel.

TBC Set To Review New Plant

MANCHESTER — When a town plans to build a major water treatment facility, it makes sense to want to have the town's Building Committee involved in the process.

Jay Giles, director of public works, has made such a request for construction of the treatment plant, which is planned for a site north of Spring Street and near the Globe Hollow swimming pool-reservoir complex.

"I would very much like the Town Building Committee to be involved in the planning and construction of the new water treatment plant," Giles wrote in a brief letter to Town Manager Robert Weiss.

Town ordinances require the Building Committee to make periodic reports and recommendations on all school construction projects and any other buildings designated by the Town Board of Directors.

Giles has asked Weiss that an upcoming board agenda include an item to designate the water treatment plant construction as a project for the Building Committee to participate in.

The treatment plant is a major phase in the $20 million bond issue approved for water system improvements. The water distribution system also will be upgraded.

Weston & Sampson of Boston will do the engineering planning for the treatment plant, and the town Friday interviewed five firms, Weston & Sampson, that are candidates for engineering for the distribution system work.

Talks Aim For Pact At CL&P

HARTFORD (UPI) — Officials representing 1,800 Connecticut Light & Power Co. were to meet with company representatives today in an effort to coax a better offer out of them to avert a possible strike.

"We have proposed a two-year contract and modified our wage increases, but the company refused to discuss it," Joseph Kelly, business manager of Local 457 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said this week.

"We don't want to strike," he said. "But if there isn't any change we'll do it."

The two sides were to meet in Meriden for their first bargaining session since last Tuesday when talks broke off after the union made a one-year contract offer calling for a 7 percent wage increase.

William Keveney, spokesman for CL&P's parent company, Northeast Utilities, said he was hopeful an agreement could be reached.

The linemen, electricians and power plant workers narrowly rejected the company's proposed one-year contract with 7 percent pay increases June 26. A first strike threat was averted last week when federal mediators stepped in and both sides agreed to resume the negotiations which broke down Tuesday.

The workers are represented by union locals 450 and 457, the same two locals that are also negotiating a contract for about 300 workers at the Hartford Electric Light Co., another Northeast subsidiary.

The HELCO talks hinge on the outcome of the CL&P talks, the union has said.

Joins Realty Staff

MANCHESTER — Helen T. O'Brien has joined the staff of Daniel F. Reale, Realtors, Inc., Network of Homes, as a Realtor associate.

Before moving to Manchester 17 years ago, she resided in Swampscott, Mass. She was graduated from Burdett College, Lynn, Mass.

She completed a real estate course at Manchester Community College, and a Network of Homes Training Program.

She is an associate member of the Manchester Board of Realtors and a member of the Women's Council of Realtors. Indoor Plants Big Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — The indoor plant business has grown to multimillion dollar annual sales and the industry looks for continuing strength from the trend to natural decorating.

The Department of Agriculture estimates Americans spent $275 million on indoor plants in 1978. Of that total, Florida growers accounted for 44 percent, or some $120 million. California was second with more than $73 million, around 27 percent.

Plants increasingly are not just plunked in a lumpy window but are part — often an expensive part — of the decorating scheme.

John Schweiger, senior vice president of Sunspray, marketing division of American Flowerland and one of the largest indoor plant growers in the country, in a telephone interview, said "the growth of the business partly reflects the trend to the natural look in furnishings, but the tremendous increase in the cost of home furnishings also has helped our industry. You can still buy a fair-sized plant for $15 that adds to the decor," he said.

They can, of course, cost as much as $200. Since, even at best, plants are susceptible to disease, improper care and, it sometimes seems, just contrariness, care should be taken to start with good stock.

Individual growers often guarantee their plants to be healthy when they leave the nursery, and few who market their own give the same guarantee to the retail customer. But a large percentage of house plants are purchased from outlets that give the buyer no such security.

A group of growers is trying to launch a program that would require its members to meet strict guidelines for health and appearance. Such plants would be tagged with the "Florida Foliage Producers" logotype. Sunspray is joining the group.

"We have not made a decision whether to put the label on our plants yet," Schweiger said. "But we do agree wholeheartedly with the concept of improving the overall quality of the business."

While Sunspray already has strict quality control standards at its nurseries, Schweiger said, "anytime you're dealing with something that is living and growing there's a perishable factor." An attempt to improve quality would have to assure not only certification at the nursery, but that shipping, packaging and handling is done with care.

"Our business is not just buying raw material, running it through a production line and having a finished product," Schweiger said.

Firms File Dissolution Certificates

Three area businesses have filed certificates of dissolution with the secretary of state's office as required by law.

The three firms are NMD Realty, Inc. of Manchester, Sycamore Hills Realty Corp. of Glastonbury and The Center Home Company No. 1, Inc. of East Hartford.

Creditors should present claims against NMD Realty by Oct. 15 to Attorney Robert W. Gordon, 417 East Center St., Manchester.

Claims against Sycamore Hills Realty should be made by Oct. 15 to Edward J. Allison, Sycamore Hills Realty Corp., P.O. Box 133, Glastonbury.

Claims against The Center Home Company should be made by Oct. 21 to Attorney Charles F. Dana, 50 State St., Hartford.

Wins Awards

The Barrows Comp., Realtors, won three advertising awards at the Thirty-First New England Realtors Convention, last week. Entries were received from Realtors in all six New England states and were judged by the presidents of the six state delegations.

Richard Duggan, director of advertising for the Barrows Comp., accepted stationary and business cards, a second place for best newspaper display advertising and another second place for best residential brochure.

The Barrows Comp. had previously won a national award for best real estate television advertising.

Visiting Koreans Say U.S. Is Like Korea

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — "America is not the way it is pictured in films, magazines and books. It's so different. It's like Korea. America is about families and people."
Byung-Jo Cho, a guest at the home of Robert and Joan Morra, said, "I expected very strong individualism — everyone for himself — yet I saw at a Fourth of July gathering, friends, family and neighbors working together, having fun together, each bringing something so all could share a togetherness I had not expected."
Byung-Jo Cho and his wife, In-Sook Jun are staying with the Robert Morras and Yeon Jae Nam and Pan Yong Kang are staying with Richard Morra family as part of the Friendship Force. Byung-Jo Cho is the director and coordinator of the program from Korea.

The program was started last year by Rosalyn Carter (Mrs. Jimmy) as a "people to people" program to improve relations and understanding between our country and other nations of the world. Cho said, "We wanted to learn about you first hand and would like you to know us as a people not just a place on the map or a label on a pair of sneakers."
One of the things Cho feels makes America what it is the "very strong self-reliance in the young people."

He said, "They work to earn their money even though their families can well afford to provide for them. In Korea, when a family can afford it, their children will not work."
Cho said, "We in Korea feel Korea holds a special place in America's interests in the Pacific. We feel it is America's key in the Pacific."
"We are there to help when you need us such as we did in Vietnam."

"We also consider America our strongest friend and a key to our survival."
"As Israel is in constant threat from its Arab neighbors we too are living under the cloud of threat of war with the North."
"This fear of aggression from the North is very real in Korea. Imagine you in Bolton having a superior enemy force in Hartford. Living with this constant threat we must rely on the strong American presence for three or four more years until we are strong enough and the situation in Asia is stable enough that our own economic and military strength will deter any aggression from the North."
Cho said, "I hope that 'Koreagate' does not damage all the good relations that have been built throughout the world. The Korean people will never forget that America freed them from Japan in World War II and came to our aid during the war with the North."
He said, "You have given us the opportunity to build a strong and free nation —"

for this I and the Korean people are grateful."
Cho said, "If you wonder why I speak so much of freedom and national security, it is because it is so much a concern in our daily lives."
There are about 120 Koreans visiting in Connecticut and the same number of Connecticut residents are now visiting Busan, Korea, as part of the Friendship Force program.

Cho is the executive managing director of Woo Sang Food Co., Ltd., the authorized bottler of Coca Cola in Busan.
Nam is president of a company that manufactures ladies handbags and luggage and Kang is president of a construction company.
Robert Morra said, "It's been great having them. They feel so at home that the other day when my father's guests were returning to his house they said 'Come up to our house tonight.'"

He said, "It was a great experience, one in which we feel we made two new friends. It was truly a learning experience, one in which more Americans should participate."
Joan Morra said, "I had a chance to sit and talk with In-Sook Jun and develop a one-to-one relationship that both of us got a great deal out of."
Emice Lavitt, Joan's mother, took the Korean guest to Tallwood Country Club in Hebron where everyone was treated by the club's owners to a full round of golf.

The Korean guests also enjoyed visiting the 1720 home of Roberta Simon and the modern home of Lore Plano in Bolton as well as area shopping centers and other sights.
The Koreans may be a step ahead as far as some women libbers are concerned. In Korea when a woman marries, she maintains her family name, she does not take her husband's name.

Cho said, "We are very impressed with the people's kindness. We expected a more reserved people. We will never forget our host family's hospitality."
Sue Morra, the wife of Peter, and a Korean, acted as interpreter when necessary as did another family friend, Onie Quendile of French Road.

Swimming Event Set To Help Red Cross

The Recreation Departments of South Windsor and Glastonbury along with three other towns, Hartford, Simsbury and Windsor Locks, will sponsor the first annual Swim-A-Cross for the benefit of the Greater Hartford Chapter of the American Red Cross on July 14.
The programs will take place in each town and the times will vary according to each town and the pool where the program will be conducted.
Swimmers, regardless of age, may register. They obtain pre-length pledges from sponsors who may donate any amount per length. Official sponsor sheets and other information is obtainable from the town recreation offices.
The Greater Hartford Swim-A-Cross is one of many such events taking place nationwide by Red Cross chapters as part of its Centennial Roll Call. When the Red Cross reaches its 100th birthday in 1981, a nationwide "Centennial Swim for the Red Cross" will take place. The Red Cross agencies have been teaching swimming in communities since 1914.

Church Group Eyes Old Senior Center

MANCHESTER — Manchester's central core has the inner city problems of low income divorce and isolated elderly citizens.
The Manchester Area Conference of Churches is seeking to serve the human needs of the... own area's people when the Senior Citizen Center on Linden Street is vacated this fall. According to a report by the MACC on potential use of the building, it would be "an excellent facility in the downtown area for other uses."
The MACC has completed a survey of the town's central core and found a variety of needs to be serviced in two geographical areas, census tracts 5147 and 5148.
Tract 5147 is the area located between Pine and Spruce streets and south of Center Street. Tract 5148 incorporates all area between Spruce and Autumn streets, north of Oak Street and south of East Center Street.
According to the survey, tract 5147 has the highest level of poverty, divorce and senior citizens in Manchester. The other tract ranks second in the percentage of families below the poverty level and in divorce rates.
MACC endorsed the use of the top floor of the Linden Street facility by Crossroads, a local counseling agency, and said the ground floor could be used as a multi-service center to the elderly, handicapped and low income families housed in the downtown area.
Tract 5147 has 8 percent of its residents

Vernon Firms Complying With Obscenity Ordinance

VERNON — In their effort to make sure that all Vernon businesses are conforming with the town ordinance concerning the display of literature that might be considered pornographic, the Vernon Police Department has found that the majority of businesses selling that type of literature are in compliance with the ordinance.
The ordinance calls for this type of literature to be put out of the reach and vision of children and suggests that it be kept on a high shelf or behind the counter.
Police said the following stores were found to be selling the type of literature covered by the ordinance: Arthur Drug Store, the "Big I" store, two Cumberland Farm stores, Faxon Drug, Seven-Eleven stores on Route 63 and Route 30, and Mile Hill Drug.
Also, CVS Pharmacy at Vernon Circle, Vernon Drug, Handy Stop Store and Extra Mart Store.
Police said the majority of the stores

Congressional Leaders Predict Long Sessions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional leaders predict long sessions when the legislators return from a 10-day recess before taking off four weeks later for a month-long summer recess.
The administration begins an uphill fight for ratification of the SALT II strategic weapons treaty and Sen. Herman Talmadge, a veteran Georgia senator, opens his defense against charges of financial misconduct today.
A day later, the Senate votes on whether to limit further debate and allow the limit vote on the constitutional amendment to alter the way presidents and vice-presidents are elected.

Skylab Is Due Wednesday Morning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Skylab is getting closer, and NASA trackers now think it will enter Earth's atmosphere in a 30-hour period centered on 10:28 a.m. EDT Wednesday.
A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Sunday said the errant 77-ton space laboratory is "coming down." And the North American Air Defense Command said it dipped to within 119.2 miles of Earth Sunday.
Trackers said Skylab was taking 88 minutes, 5 seconds to orbit Earth at midday Sunday, with the high point of the orbit at 129.3 miles and a low point of 119.2 miles — the closest to Earth Skylab has been since it was launched in 1973.
According to the latest calculations, the "window" in which NASA officials said Skylab would enter the atmosphere would be 7:28 p.m. EDT Tuesday until 1:28 a.m. EDT Thursday.
That calculation was 10 hours earlier than Saturday's predicted re-entry period, and spokesmen said the time would be refined even more today and Tuesday.
Officials cautioned Skylab could fall any time during the 30-hour period and 10:28 a.m. was merely the midway point.
"It could fall anywhere 15 hours on either side," a spokesman said.

Democratic leader Robert Byrd has announced the Senate will meet early and stay in session late, and is likely to meet on Saturday.
Beginning 14 days of SALT hearings that will run through early August, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has summoned Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown as lead-off witnesses.
Although the 15-member committee is considered generally favorable to ratification, it includes a number of strong opponents, including Senate Republican leader Howard Baker.
The panel expects to present its recommendation to the Senate in September, allowing debate to begin about Oct. 1. The ratification vote is tentatively scheduled for around Thanksgiving.
Pressed by the Senate Ethics Committee, Talmadge reversed an earlier decision not to present a defense. The panel made it clear that unless the Georgia Democrat changed his mind, he would be subpoenaed to testify. His defense is expected to last a week, perhaps longer.
Tuesday's vote is considered crucial to the prospects of the amendment providing for the direct election of presidents, which previously has been stymied by delays and filibusters. It passed the House by a wide margin in 1970.
Limiting further debate requires 60 votes which amendment supporters hope to muster. Then they have to get 67 votes — if all senators are present — to approve the constitutional amendment.

Africa would be possible land-impact areas.
Engineers believe two-thirds of Skylab will be consumed by heat as it decelerates from 16,000 mph at re-entry. About 500 pieces capable of causing injury are expected to come down intact and land in a zone 4,000 miles long and 100 miles wide.
But the chance of any specific individual being hit is 600 billion to one.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Leaks to the Press Drive Jimmy Up the Wall

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON—Did Richard Nixon ever leave Washington? Sometimes it's hard to tell.

As president, Nixon was regarded as so extreme in his fear and loathing of the press as to approach paranoia.

He received his Ph.D. in rehabilitation and counseling from the University of Connecticut. From 1966 to 1970 he was a counselor with Community Progress Inc., an agency working with young school dropouts, many of whom were emotionally disabled.

public—and thus to the media. Like other presidents before him, Jimmy Carter hasn't been able to live up to his campaign principle of "open government, openly arrived at."

So it's a reasonable guess that when Carter holds his scheduled Cabinet meeting today, one topic will be raised: Our access to the confidential minutes of past Cabinet meetings.

As we have noted in previous columns, the Cabinet minutes we obtained scarcely contain sensitive or embarrassing material. They are not bombshells that will rock the republic, as Nixon's "smoking gun" tapes did.

But apparently Jimmy Carter waxes furious when his secrets are leaked. Thus the Cabinet transcripts have been foolishly classified to the participants as "for your eyes only."

failed to turn up our source. After some administration aides complained that they didn't have sufficient personal contact with the president, Carter instructed his domestic policy chief, Stuart Eizenstat, to assemble the White House aides. The president informed them that he preferred to keep staff meetings small to minimize the chance of leaks to the press.

On Feb. 5, 1979, the president was irate over a TV news report that "U.S. officials believe that the Bahkhar Government (in Iran) will fall, probably in the next day or so."

reliant president keep his campaign promise. Watch on Waste The Tacoma, Wash., constituents of Rep. Norman Dicks, D-Wash., are getting a 1.4-mile shortcut between downtown and an interstate highway on the outskirts, but it's the American taxpayers who are being taken for a ride.

Because it is elevated, the mile-and-a-half highway will cost an incredible $71.3 million. By comparison, most urban construction of federal highways costs about $8 million a mile.

The Lighter Side Few Cells Left, So Stop Crime

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI)—Reports from here and there reveal that spot shortages of prison cells are developing across the country.

Several states already have experienced scarcities, most recently by Virginia. Almost 400 Virginia prisoners were paroled ahead of schedule this week because of overcrowded conditions in the state's slammer.

So grim is the situation, some penologists are urging that President Carter make a televised appeal to the American people to commit fewer crimes.

"I'm not going to get into a big finger-pointing match over who is responsible for the cell shortage," one penal expert told me. "You could blame the governments for failing to build enough new jails. You could blame the courts for sending more prisoners up the river than the coolers could handle. Or you could say it is the fault of greedy felons who have driven up the crime rate faster than additional hoosegows could be provided."

Letters CD Suit Handling Is Issue

This has nothing to do with the pros and cons of the Manchester low-income housing issue per se. Rather, it deals with the way the suit against the town, which is an attempt to overturn the results of the recent referendum, is being handled:

1. The suit is being funded by the Legal Aid Society of Hartford County Inc.

2. This agency is partially funded by the United Way of Greater Hartford and, as a matter of fact, the United Way logo appears on its stationery.

3. The executive director of the Legal Aid Society responded "decline to comment" when asked where the remainder of the funding is to come from.

The above facts, which can be substantiated, cause one to ask: 1. Do we want to continue to support an agency who, directly or indirectly, wittingly or unwittingly, is concerning itself with a politically controversial matter in which the federal government is involved?

2. Do we want to continue to support an agency that is channeling part of its contributors' donations to another agency who is making an attempt to tamper with or take away from some Manchester residents one of their most precious freedoms, i.e., the right to have the votes of the majority prevail?

3. Isn't it ironic that certain people in Manchester who contribute to the United Way and who voted against the issue in question must watch while the Legal Aid Society uses a portion of their contributions to try to force upon them something which they legally and overwhelmingly proclaimed they do not want?

4. Finally, is there anything at all that we can do to make certain that the dollars people contribute to the United Way will not be used against them, as in this particular instance, while at the same time not depriving those who truly need our help?

In my judgment, this is an extremely serious and complex problem which must be resolved with delay. Hopefully, we will find satisfactory answers to our questions well in advance of the next United Way Fund Drive. If we do not, it appears we will have to draw our own conclusions and then act accordingly.

Carter Being Ignored But Kennedy Is Feared

By LEE RODERICK WASHINGTON—The bearded young man in the faded T-shirt looked strangely out of place in the Los Angeles airport. But the placard he held was clear enough: "More people have been killed rising in Ted Kennedy's car than have died in nuclear power accidents."

When people realize that the alternative to reducing crime rate would be long lines of lawbreakers waiting for prison cells to become available, the pressure to curtail transgressions will be overwhelming," he predicted.

"This is Carter's big chance. Maybe his appeals to the public to hold down wages and prices and conserve energy did land largely on deaf ears. But if he can devise workable guidelines for stabilizing the prison population, all will be forgiven."

"I recently returned to the capital after a visit to several western states. Expecting to be pressed for an assessment of the Carter presidency, I found instead that Topic A in the hinterland was not Carter at all, but, rather, the chances of Kennedy sitting in the White House a year and a half from now.

That prospect is more than a little unnerving to most of those I talked with. "Carter is ineffective to be sure," said the Chicago-based president of one of the nation's largest corporations. "But at least he has many of the right ideas. What I fear about Kennedy is that he would be a very effective president—in carrying out all the wrong ideas."

Kenney poses a real problem in our plans for 1980, Joppy... But this isn't exactly what I had in mind when I said I'd whip him.

There are 200,000 more people in prison today than there were in 1970. There are 200,000 more people in prison today than there were in 1970.

Career Housing Official Looking at Big Picture

By JACQUELINE HUARD - HARTFORD (UPI) - Career housing official Joseph Canale says he'll look at the big picture when he begins work next week as the first commissioner of Connecticut's new Department of Housing. "I want to make sure people don't confuse it with a department for public housing," says Canale, who's resigning as executive director of the Danbury Housing Authority to head the cabinet-level agency. He's been a member of the New England Region of the National Association of Housing and Development Officials and was named a member of the Governor's Task Force on Housing from 1971 to 1972. He swears in this to the $22,500-a-year post Friday 13 to assess what's needed for housing in Connecticut - breaking it down to a per-unit demand and how to meet the demand over three years. "Land values and building costs are sky high. We're pricing the low to moderate-income people out of the housing market," Canale said. A lot can be done to bring prices down. "We can work with developers to modify their plans to reduce costs, like putting in smaller driveways," he said. Canale doesn't believe his almost exclusive experience in Danbury will be a drawback to heading a state housing department. He maintains the housing problems in Fairfield County, taken generally, are the same as elsewhere in the state. "We have a critical situation in Fairfield County with large corporations moving in and setting up their national headquarters. The housing market has gone wild," he said. "The problems are the same; the question is numbers. The more people you have, the bigger the problem is."

Voyager 2 Films Jupiter's Satellite

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - away. The ring was discovered by Voyager 1 in March. Scientists said the ring is believed to be similar to the rings of Uranus than those of Saturn. After the close encounter, Voyager will continue its scientific investigations of Jupiter and its moons, particularly concentrating on a series of photos of the volcanoes of Io, the bright, orange moon that is closest of the four to Jupiter. Also, JPL spokesmen said, the spacecraft will photograph and study tiny ammonia ice particles. The satellite also may have a "tenuous atmosphere" of sulfur dioxide as a result of the gases emitted by the volcanoes.

Cops Probe Suspicious Store Fire

MANCHESTER - Police have followed some leads, but have not concluded the investigation of a Friday night suspicious fire at King's Department Store in the Manchester Parkade. The blaze, which occurred around 8, was confined to a small section of a stockroom, although smoke billowed throughout the rest of the store. Between 50 and 60 persons were evacuated as the Town Fire Department responded. No injuries were reported.

According to police, a store cashier told police two women had mentioned seeing two youths, one white and one black, playing with matches. Another woman, who was not named, recalled seeing two youths, a white and a black between 12 to 14 years of age, outside the building after the evacuation, but did not see them inside the store.

Police followed these leads, but no arrests have been reported as yet. The fire was discovered by an assistant manager, who noticed smoke coming from the stockroom. He told police there was a cardboard box burning on top of a desk, which was located approximately 30 to 35 feet from the main fire. The principal blaze engulfed some paper products and a few plastic bottles of rubbing alcohol.

Police said the store employee attempted to put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher when the sprinkler system did not activate. Fire Chief John Rivosa said today four units responded to the blaze and the last one cleared at 10:45 p.m. The exact cause was not pinpointed, but Rivosa said it was deliberately set.

Lines Long To Pay Tax - MANCHESTER - Some persons who go to town hall to pay their tax bills are angry even before they step in the door. Then, a wait in a long line to pay that bill only makes them angrier.

That has been the case for many months. The longest line of the year even a more trying period for workers in the town's tax collector's office. To help ease some of these frustrations, the town has set up a roped-off area where taxpayers could line up to pay the bills. This was done to help speed taxpayer traffic and ease congestion in the building's hallway.

The problem is that the new arrangement is not being followed by those entering the building. James Turek, collector of revenue, said the roped-off area starts near the rear entrance of the Municipal Building at 41 Center St. Taxpayers are supposed to line up in that area and wait at a certain point, marked by a sign, for the next available teller. The arrangement is similar to the one found in most banks.

John Lovenshtein hit a solo homer and Billy Smith added a two-run shot in the seventh inning to account for Baltimore's runs but the big play of the game was Dempsey's block of home plate, which prevented California's Brian Downing from scoring the tying run.

With the bases-loaded and one out in the ninth inning, pinch-hitter Willie Davis lofted a short fly ball to Gary Roenicke, a late-inning defensive replacement. Downing was sent by Angels' third base coach Bobby Knopp and the California catcher was nailed at the plate to save the game.

In other games, New York blanked Oakland 2-0, in a double-header. Cleveland defeated Minnesota 5-4 and the Twins came back for a 7-2 victory in the nightcap. Chicago nipped Kansas City 4-2, Milwaukee swept two from Detroit, 5-4 and 3-1. Texas defeated Toronto 4-3 and Boston beat Seattle 8-2.

Key Block of Plate

Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey has plate blocked and Brian Downing of Angels was unable to score in ninth inning yesterday. Orioles won, 3-2, to snap losing streak. (UPI Photo)

Block of Plate Saved Orioles

NEW YORK (UPI) - Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey knew something drastic had to be done about snapping the Orioles' five-game losing streak. Oriole manager Earl Weaver said the 29-year-old receiver did something rather unorthodox.

"Dempsey told me that he bopped the two pop-ups on purpose," said Weaver after the volatile catcher joked about making two errors but atoned for them with a game-saving play in the ninth inning of Sunday's 3-2 Baltimore victory over California. "After the game, I told him that he was the only player to make two errors and get his hand shaken by the manager after a game."

John Lovenshtein hit a solo homer and Billy Smith added a two-run shot in the seventh inning to account for Baltimore's runs but the big play of the game was Dempsey's block of home plate, which prevented California's Brian Downing from scoring the tying run.

With the bases-loaded and one out in the ninth inning, pinch-hitter Willie Davis lofted a short fly ball to Gary Roenicke, a late-inning defensive replacement. Downing was sent by Angels' third base coach Bobby Knopp and the California catcher was nailed at the plate to save the game.

In other games, New York blanked Oakland 2-0, in a double-header. Cleveland defeated Minnesota 5-4 and the Twins came back for a 7-2 victory in the nightcap. Chicago nipped Kansas City 4-2, Milwaukee swept two from Detroit, 5-4 and 3-1. Texas defeated Toronto 4-3 and Boston beat Seattle 8-2.

Tiant No. Too Excited After One-Hit Triumph

OAKLAND (UPI) - Old pro Luis Tiant did not seem too excited after stopping the Oakland A's on one hit in a 2-0 New York Yankee victory that gave the defending World Champs a sweep of their four-game series.

Tiant threw only 85 pitches Sunday for strikes. He faced 28 batters and started 21 off with strikes in running his record to 6-3. Ricky Henderson's line single in the third was the only thing between Tiant and a perfect game. It was his third one-hitter in a career that began 16 years and 210 wins ago.

Asked if he still dreams of pitching a no-hitter, the 36-year-old Cuban said calmly, "Sure, I'd like to pitch a no-hitter. Maybe I'll pitch for only two more years."

"I get all that one," said Jackson, whose homer went far above the right-center field wall. It was his 19th home run of the season and his eighth RBI of the series.

Both White and Porter won batting races to win a starting assignment. White, with 1,622,358 votes, beat out California's Bobby Grich, who had 1,622,357 votes. Grich became the league's fifth second baseman in as many years. White was selected All-Star in 1978. Porter, in breaking a stranglehold that New York's Thurman Munson and Carlton Fisk owned on the catcher's spot since 1973, polled 1,046,365 votes to Munson's 1,046,364. Porter became the league's sixth catcher to become the league's first-time starter.

Red Carew of the California Angels, currently on the disabled list, was selected to the starting rotation in the fourth game of the season. Carew, however, is scheduled to participate in the ceremonies in the Kingdom.

Other AL starters include third baseman George Brett of Kansas City and outfielders Jim Rice and Fred Lynn of Boston. Rice was the overall vote-getter among the outfielders, overtaking Lynn, who held the position for most of the balloting.

St. Louis' pitcher Steve Carlton was selected by the league, with the pitchers announced Tuesday and the voters Wednesday. Bob Lemon, who pitched for the Yankees' 16-game comeback last season only to be fired this season, will manage the team.

Smalley, a four-year veteran, entered the season with a 251 lifetime batting average. He began blossoming last season when he hit .272 with 18 homers and 77 RBI. This season he leads Brian Downing of COLT INTERTOWN - The Manchester Merchants scored two victories, 10-3 over Mansfield and 11-4 over Hebron yesterday at Moriarty Field.

The Merchants rapped five hits in the win over Mansfield and were aided by seven bases on balls. Bob Lebreux's bases-loaded triple highlighted a six-run seventh inning. Frank Marandino pitched four strong innings in relief to nail down the win versus Mansfield.

Mark Butler buried six innings of two-hit ball to pace the win over Hebron. He aided his own cause with a single as Merchants host Willimantic Wednesday night at Moriarty Field in a 6 o'clock.

Perry Worked Out Victory - NEW YORK (UPI) - It was a great Gaylord Perry performance, but the 40-year-old right-hander was able to work out his ninth victory Sunday.

Gaylord found a way to win, observed San Diego Manager Roger Craig after Perry pitched the Padres to a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets in the first game of a Sunday double-header before the Mets took the nightcap 4-1. "That was maybe his worst game of the year," Perry, who settled down after allowing three runs in the first two innings, was making his sixth career start, tying him with Kid Nichols for 10th place on the all-time list. He struck out only two, making his season total 99, second in the National League. Dave Winfield helped Perry in the first game, driving home two runs with a third-inning single. In the ninth inning, the nightcap, Winfield learned that he had topped the N.L. poll in votes for the upcoming All-Star game.

Fisk on Road Back After Two Homers

SEATTLE (UPI) - It's been a struggle for Boston catcher Carlton Fisk to come back from a persistent elbow injury, but his two homers in the Seattle Kingdom Sunday night indicate he's at least part of the way back.

Fisk's two solo shots, plus similar smashes by Bob Watson and Dwight Evans, paced the Red Sox to an 8-2 walloping of the Seattle Mariners and kept them within two games of Baltimore, the current leader in the American League East.

"No, I wouldn't say he's all the way back," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer of his big catcher. "You didn't see him catch nine innings. When he does that for a couple of games I might think he's all the way back. He's a big man in our lineup and I certainly hope he can be in there often."

Fisk seemed more concerned with a sore finger he picked up when he was hit by a pitch. It came with the bases loaded, giving him an RBI for a total of three in the game. "I think how the finger feels might determine how much I can play in the next few days," he said.

As for his homer outburst, he explained, "I was out for some extra long batting practice with Coach Walt Hrinak and we got some things straightened out. I think it showed." Zimmer hoped Steve Renko's pitching wouldn't be overlooked because of the four homers the Sox produced. "He's just been super all year. He's been one of the most consistent pitchers on our staff the whole season."

Renko allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked three en route to his seventh win in ten decisions. It was his third complete game in his last four starts.

Renko lost his shutout bid when Dan Meyer's triple drove in both Mariner runs in the sixth inning.

The Red Sox manufactured a 3-0 lead in the first on Rick Burleson's double, Watson's infield hit, three walks, and a hit-batter (Fisk). Watson and Fisk hit back-to-back homers in the third to make it 3-0. The Red Sox added another run in the fourth when Carl Yastrzemski hit into a double play with the bases loaded.

Fisk's second homer of the game and another solo blast by Evans in the fifth closed out the Boston scoring. The homers for Fisk were his third and fourth of the year. For Watson it was his sixth and for Evans his twelfth.

Golf Skill and Luck As Nelson Proved

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Larry Nelson says he knows golf is not only a game of skill but of luck and strategy, and two key decisions turned out to be important factors in his playoff victory over Ben Crenshaw at the $300,000 Western Open Sunday.

Nelson began the day with a one-stroke lead but saw that evaporate when he ballooned to a 4-over-par 76. However, he managed to sink a 5-foot par on the final hole to force a playoff with Crenshaw and led a 2-foot to the first playoff hole to win the $54,000 first prize.

strategy, saying "He won the coin toss and he chose for me to hit first. He did right."

Nelson's final round was in sharp contrast to his steady play through the first 54 holes. He had no bogeys on Friday and only one on Saturday. "This was one of the toughest days I've ever spent on a golf course," Nelson said. "The further I played, the more bogeys I made. I did not have many bad shots but they were getting away from me."

Standings First Tour Win For Hollis Stacy

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Hollis Stacy's golf game is back on the beam, and that's bad news for the field in this week's U.S. Women's Open in Connecticut.

Stacy paid a $100 fine for entering the 100-hole tournament and her tournament late, but she had the last laugh — she won it all Sunday in a two-hole sudden-death playoff against Judy Rankin and Laura Baumgardner.

Open, said she decided at the last minute she wasn't going to stay back in Savannah and net nervous. "I needed to find that competitive edge," she said. "Maybe it will help me in the weeks to come. I concentrated to play sharp all week."

Overall, I played well. I felt I needed a win going into the Open. "It was the first time in four years that Stacy won an LPGA tourney playoff. "The year starts now," she said. "I know how she feels. I played extremely well and what saved me was my short game. I'm going into the Open with a positive attitude."

Ansaldi's, A&N Remain Unbeaten

Two clubs remained unbeaten in the Farm Little League Tournament as a result of contests Saturday at Wadwell Field. Ansaldi's outlasted the Blues, 6-4, while Army & Navy tripped 7-Eleven, 17-4, to remain undefeated in the double elimination play. It was the first setback for both the Blues and 7-Eleven.

The Blues return to action Tuesday night at 6 o'clock against Civilian at Wadwell Field. Wayne Lindstrom singled, tripled and homered, Chris Greene roped two bingles and Chris Sember doubled for Ansaldi's. Greg Covenski ripped two doubles, Mike Carroll two bingles while Keith Evanski and Scott Gentilecure each had two-base knocks for the Blues. Both teams played errorless ball.

Joey Angeloni homered and singled twice to pace A&N, which was beneficiary of seven walks and two errors in the third and fourth innings when it scored 11 times. Six different players had one hit each. Four different players had one bingle each for 7-Eleven.

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Harold Solomon faces Eddie Dibbs in the first match of the $300,000 Forest Hills Invitational, he'll be looking across the net at an old nemesis. The 26-year-old Solomon, known for his consistent groundstrokes and incredible endurance, has played Dibbs before — many times. Although the matches are always close, it's been three years since Solomon triumphed and it's beginning to look like a jinx is at work. "I guess Eddie is favored to win — he won the last time we played in the quarterfinals of the Italian Open but I had match point," said Solomon. "There really wasn't much of a difference."

Dibbs, 23, agreed that his opponent would be no pushover. "I've beaten Harold a lot but it's always really tough." Unlike a number of their foes, both Dibbs and Solomon have been resting the last few weeks and are primed for this event. "They have always since the French Open in early June, choosing to bypass the English grass circuit to play on their favorite surface — clay."

"I don't care to play on the grass in England," said Dibbs, adding, "I don't speak the language." Solomon feels that might give him an advantage. "I've won the top two Vitas Gerulaitis and John McEnroe, who hopes to duplicate Gerulaitis' 1978 feat of winning the top two WCT events at Dallas because of the money-rich Forest Hills tournament — might not be as 'burned out' as I was last year."

Each player will meet the three opponents in his group once in the preliminary rounds. The individual with the best record in each group, as well as the one with the next best record advance to the semifinals on Saturday.

Formal's won its first two outings, 28-2 over Windsor Locks and 26-6 over South Windsor, before being dumped into the losers bracket in the double elimination play by Windsor by a 12-5 count.

Li Neuhelb had four hits, Marcy MacDonald three homers, Kathy Cooney, Karen Wright and Georgeanne Ebersold three hits apiece and Beth MacDonald and Diane Ferguson two apiece in the win over Windsor Locks. Ferguson batted a two-hitter to raise her record to 10-1.

Ed Ebersold and Marcy MacDonald had three hits, Neuhelb 12-for-22, Ebersold 10-for-28 and Botteron 10-for-31 to pace the Penguins in the tourney.

Queens Rally to Win Lee Event

Hartford Road Dairy Queen women's softball team captured the Bunny Lee Memorial Tournament last weekend in Lynn, Mass. The Queens came out of the losers' bracket in the double elimination play to win the title, posting a 6-1 mark. They now sport a 24-12 overall mark.

Daurer Juncos and Lenya's second 4-for-4 and 3-for-4 respectively. Gibe Ford was the winning batter by a 4-2 count with DQ scoring three in the first and one in the fourth. Lee Liga had three hits and Linda Galati and Marge Malone two each.

Laura was 12-for-18, Malone 15-for-27, Gilmartin 11-for-22 and Galati 8-for-19 to pace the Queens. Malone knocked in 10 runs while Galati and Galati each had eight RBIs.

The Straw Hat Circuit Wows State Residents

MENSWEAR WATCHERS SAY THE STRAW HAT IS MAKING A COMEBACK. Theater buffs in Connecticut know it's been here all along. The Straw Hat Circuit - summer theater where struggling unknown thespians get their feet wet and big stars make a big splash - is alive and wowing the people from Stratford to Storrs, Sharon to Stamford. Musicals, mysteries, comedies, heavy drama, headliners, old favorites and brand new productions - take your pick: There's something for everyone on Connecticut's summer stages.

There are old barns in the state where summer stock replaced livestock, where the decoys went from hay bales to footlights: One is the White Barn Theatre in Westport. For a plush Victorian look there's the 1876 Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, the only theater dedicated to the preservation and development of the American musical. Both revivals and original productions regularly move on to Broadway after opening at the Goodspeed. "How about a tent?" the Oakdale Musical Theatre in Wallingford started as big top years ago and retains the original seating in-the-round under its lattice-work dome. The American Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford, designed to recall the Globe Theatre of Elizabethan London, specializes in the Bard. This year's offerings are "Julius Caesar," "Twelfth Night" and "The Tempest."

Atheneum Sets Display

HARTFORD - The Lions Gallery of the Senses at the Wadsworth Atheneum will present an exhibition of objects from its permanent collection during the entire month of July. The display has been designed to illustrate the wide variety of objects in the gallery has presented in the past. Every exhibition in this participatory gallery encourages the use of a sense other than sight. During the current display the sense of hearing may be explored through the sound sculpture of Harry Bertolita, a gift to the museum from the Ladies Visiting Committee of the Connecticut Institute for the Blind.

String Quartet Coming

NORFOLK - The Tokyo String Quartet will appear at the Yale-In-Norfolk Summer Music Festival in the first of all-Tokyo performances Friday, July 13, when the world famous quartet will play works of Haydn, Bartok and Schumann. All seats in the Music Shed are reserved. Call 542-5537.

Folk Festival Planned

MIDDLETOWN - Folk singers from north, south, east and west will gather for a Wesleyan Folk Song Festival July 13, 14 and 15 at the Center for the Arts at Wesleyan University, rain or shine. There will be free workshops mornings and afternoons July 14 and 15 in such areas as native American ballads, blues, shaped note singing, cowboy songs and sea songs. Several free events include a children's concert Saturday morning, a cinema with

Roller Olympathon Slated

VERNON - A Roller Skating Olympathon, to benefit the United States Olympic Committee, is scheduled for Aug. 3 at the Vernon Skate Park on Route 83. The event will start at 10 a.m. and continue seven hours until 5 p.m. Pledge proceeds from the olympathon will be donated to the U.S. Olympic Committee and the public is welcome to participate by registering to skate or by contributing to Olympathon '79 at the rink.

Summerstage Sets Ballet

HARTFORD - The Hartford Ballet, under the artistic direction of Michael Uihoff, will appear at Summerstage for one performance only, July 17 at 8 p.m. The Summerstage performance at Trinity College's Austin Arts Center will be the only appearance by the critically acclaimed dance company in Connecticut this summer. The program for the evening features the Hartford premiere of a contemporary ballet entitled "Percussion Concerto." Other works to be presented from the Company's ever-increasing repertoire include "Leggiero," "Patriosulficratrameritu," and "Bach Cantata."

College Offers Hit Play

NEW BRITAIN - "Anastasia," the hit Broadway play about the woman who claimed to be the daughter of the last Russian czar, Nicholas II, will be presented July 12 to 14 by Theatre First! at Central Connecticut State College. Performances begin at 8 p.m. in the College Theater. Theatre First! is a new summer company composed of faculty and experienced actors selected from across the Northeast. The company is sponsored and managed by the Department of Theater.

Repertory To Begin Season

HARTFORD - On Wednesday, the Wednesday Noon Repertory at Central Church House, 60 Gold Street in downtown Hartford, will begin its summer series of noontime programs. The film "Never Give Up" (Imogen Cunningham) produced and directed by Ann Hershby, will be shown. An award-winning film is an "inspirational and intimate visit with

Car Use Studied In Town

MANCHESTER - The town owns 105 vehicles that weigh one ton or less, and 40 percent of those are driven home by town employees. These are the results of a study done by Budget Analyst Janet Chaves, who is reviewing the number of vehicles owned by the town. Members of the Town Board of Directors have requested such a study to see how many vehicles the town owns and if they can be used more efficiently.

The vehicles listed in the study include all police cruisers and automobiles and pickup trucks used by the Public Works Department and other departments. The study completed by Ms. Chaves shows that 40 percent of the 105 vehicles are driven home at night by the town employees who use them during the day. This is for security reasons because the town has no large non-secured or enclosed parking area where the vehicles could be kept and protected from vandalism at night.

Summer Refreshment

Region's Governors Discuss Heating Oil

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Northeast governors concerned about the availability of home heating oil next winter plan to sit down today with White House adviser Jack Watson to discuss the problem. Massachusetts Gov. Edward J. King, after a meeting Sunday with other governors belonging to the Coalition of Northeastern Governors, said he was concerned that the nation had fallen behind in the production of home heating oil.

Bridge Pact To Be Given

HEBRON - The Board of Selectmen is expected to award the bid for repair of the bridge on Old Colchester Road when it meets Tuesday night at 7:30. The Town of Colchester will pay half the cost of the total job. Another project, the Graville Falls road work, was bid separately and will be paid for by the Town of Hebron only.

Costly Repairs Needed For Jamestown Bridge

JAMESTOWN, R.I. (UPI) - A Rhode Island Department of Transportation engineer says the 7,000-foot-long Jamestown Bridge across Narragansett Bay is falling apart and will cost millions of dollars to repair. "When you think of it, they built that bridge for $3 million and now it's getting to the point where we have to spend nearly a third of that every year just for routine maintenance," said J. Norman Chopy, chief DOT engineer.

McCoy Warns Officials To Reduce Gasoline Use

VERNON - In a memo to all town department heads, Mayor Frank McCoy chastized them for increasing rather than reducing their gasoline and diesel fuel consumption and warned them that all departments will have their allocations reduced by 25 percent. "Trinity's summer stage reduction will be the two fire departments and the Ambulance Corps. The mayor said, however, that these three departments have already indicated they are making conservation efforts.

The monthly allocation for the departments, other than the three excluded, will be: Board of Education, 367; Canine Control, 104; Day Care Center, 68; Engineering, 68; Housing, 27; Senior Citizen Center, 184. Also: Parks Department, 227; Recreation Department, 204; Police Department, 1,042; Veterinary Department, 85; Driver Education program, 254; and Public Works, 2-306 plus 1,241, diesel fuel. McCoy said that the 25 percent reduction was figured on the average gallonage used during the past three months.

Sunny Days, More Gas Help Tourism in Region

By United Press International Shorter gasoline lines and three consecutive days of warm, sunny weather helped bring out New England tourists - but not in numbers on a par with previous years. Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer premier performance at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass. drew nearly as many concert-goers as last year, but tourist attractions in the rest of the region reported drops from the same period a year ago.

Region's Governors Discuss Heating Oil

Such retrofits aimed at increasing the efficiency of oil burners in the northeast - where half the homes are heated by oil - would save $1.7 billion annually, or up to $281 for an average homeowner, Byrne said. Such retrofits could cost homeowners anywhere from $50 to $1,750. An additional attraction of such modifications, according to King, is the relatively quick return on the initial investment in terms of heating oil savings.

Teens Charged

TORRINGTON (UPI) - Two teen-agers have been arrested in connection with an accident during an alleged drag race June 29 that resulted in the death of a 23-year-old man. State police say Andrew Russ, 19, of New Hartford, was charged with racing and released on a written promise to appear in Torrington Superior Court July 31. Charles Robinson, 17, of Torrington, was charged with reckless use of the highway by a pedestrian, police said. He is to appear in court July 20.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 18 years to a beautiful woman. I recently learned that she has been having an affair with my boss. My close friends tell me that it has been common knowledge for some time. I never suspected a thing, but now many things fit together like a jigsaw puzzle. I've been sent out of town on business trips that could have been handled locally. And although we are not in his social circle, my boss has invited us to his country club and included us when other employees were invited. I am in no position to quit my job. I've considered divorce, but I'm concerned about the effect it might have on our children. I am heartbroken, depressed and confused. If I didn't love my children so much, I'd drive my car into a brick wall at 90 miles an hour. Can you help me?

DEAR BETRAYED: This is not the end of the world. If ever a person needed emotional support and objective professional counseling, you do.

I urge you to phone your local Suicide Prevention Center. They're listed in your phone book. They offer individual and group therapy sessions to help you survive your depression and put your life back together again. Please call now. Write to me after you've seen them. I care.

DEAR ABBY: We have two teenage sons. My husband opened a savings account for each of them when they were very young and each year he puts several hundred dollars into their accounts, plus the money they receive for birthdays, Christmas, etc.

Our problem is trying to get the boys to earn money and save it on their own. What little they do earn they would fritter away on treats, records and foolishness if their father didn't insist that half of every dollar earned must go into a bank. This gives them very little incentive to earn money. They say, "What for? Dad will only make us put it in the bank."

What to do?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: An children live for today. The future seems unreal to them. The "I-want-it-now" attitude is the hallmark of immaturity. Train your children to save. If they don't learn to save what they earn, they'll never learn to save. Explain how the money you save will help them live a better life. Show them how to budget. Encourage them to save for a goal.
