

Equipment For Rham Postponed

HEBRON — Action was tabled Monday night by the Rham Junior High School Building Committee, on the buying of equipment and furniture for the school now under construction.

It was decided to wait until Peter Abel, architect and G. Robert Couillard, assistant superintendent of schools, can meet and prepare recommendations for the building committee to review.

The committee discussed the use of the excess fill to build an additional parking lot but the general feeling was that the committee didn't favor this use. Abel was asked to evaluate the cost to prepare the area as well as using the playing field or to sell the excess fill.

Couillard said that the committee is having trouble getting a supplier to supply the school with oil. David Cattinach, superintendent of schools, suggested having the district try to arrange for the additional fuel for the new school. It is estimated 20,000 to 24,000 gallons will be needed.

The architect was asked to provide cost estimates of a 10,000 and a 20,000-gallon oil tank.

During the meeting the committee voted to pay Abel for his services as of June, totaling $80.35, to pay the fee of $356.25 for the project representative and $9.90 for postage.

The committee also approved paying $47,038 to Fort Hill Builders, the general contractor.

The next meeting of the committee will be on July 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rham High School library.

Recession on Its Way

A woman on the beach at Atlantic City, N.J., gets more than she bargained for as her box of popcorn starts a feeding frenzy among the surrounding seagulls this past weekend. (UPI photo)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is plunging into the recession of 1979. Up to 1 million jobs may be lost by the end of the year, and inflation will remain at discouragingly high levels.

That gloomy forecast was made by the White House Thursday in its official mid-year review of the economy. It said a turnaround may begin to materialize late this year or in early 1980.

But any recovery hinges directly on the expectation — it's really a prayer — that the international oil cartel holds prices at current levels. Any future oil price hike will make matters worse.

Most private economists and congressional forecasters had already projected a recession was imminent. But the White House budget office administration had acknowledged it was a hand, or had offered such a pessimistic appraisal of the overall economy.

"I think we can properly characterize the 1979 forecast as containing a mild recession," said Lyle Gramley, a member of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisors.

"We think the recession will be relatively mild and short-lived," he said. "The recovery should begin later this year or sometime early in 1980. But it will be a relatively modest recovery" because of continued high energy prices.

Here is a summary of the new economic forecasts:

- Economic growth will decline by 0.5 percent in 1979, but increase by 2 percent in 1980.
- Consumer prices will soar by 10.8 percent in 1979 and 8.3 percent next year. With the exception of the 12.2 percent rise in 1974, 1979 would be the worst inflation year since the end of World War II.
- Unemployment will climb from 5.6 percent in June to 6.6 percent in the fourth quarter and to 6.9 percent by the end of 1980. Each percentage point of unemployment translates into about 1 million jobs.
- The budget deficit should shrink to $2.7 billion this year, $3.5 billion below previous estimates, and to $2.7 billion in 1980. The original projection of a $300 million budget surplus in 1981 was scrapped in favor of a $1.9 billion deficit.

The administration said the recession would more closely resemble the 1969-70 downturn rather than the severe 1974-75 recession.

During the 1969-70 slide, economic growth fell 0.9 percent over two consecutive quarters. In the 1974-75 downturn, economic growth slid 5.7 percent over five straight quarters.

The inflation forecast represented a major revision from January when the administration said prices would rise by 7.4 percent this year after a 9 percent climb in 1978.

Gasoline Supplies Adequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline supplies are generally adequate in all parts of the country, but rising gas prices are becoming as predictable as death and taxes.

The price of gasoline rose another penny last week and has shot up 23 cents a gallon since the first of the year, the American Automobile Association's weekly survey reported Thursday.

The AAA's spot check of 6,304 service stations indicated supplies are sufficient to permit service stations to remain open longer and ease the lines in many metropolitan areas. Fewer stations than last week said they were out of any one grade of fuel.

The AAA said service station operators in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware have threatened to strike to protest fuel allocation formulas, but supplies should be ample along major travel routes and for tourist destinations, resorts and national parks.

The AAA said New England, with the tightest gas supplies, had the most improved picture this week.

The average full-service gasoline prices were 96.5 cents a gallon for premium, 95.1 cents for unleaded and 91.4 cents per gallon for regular, the survey showed. Self-service averaged 94.2 cents for premium, 92.6 cents for unleaded and 88.6 cents for regular. New York had the most expensive gas, with full-service premium selling for an average of $1.02 a per gallon. Least expensive again was Texas, where self-service regular averaged 82.4 cents per gallon.

Health Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The influx of thousands of diseased and disoriented Indo-Chinese refugees into the San Francisco Bay area has made it difficult to screen out those who pose a health threat. Many make it through screening with skin diseases, intestinal parasites, active tuberculosis, leprosy and other illnesses.

Officials said Thursday the problem is compounded by a "secondary migration," in which refugees originally destined for other parts of the country return to San Francisco because of its mild climate and huge Asian population.

Moral Support

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon flew to Mexico today to give moral support to the exiled shah of Iran. He criticized Washington for abandoning the shah, saying, "You don't grease the skids for your friends."

Nixon, also noting the recent U.S. turn against its longtime ally, Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza, said at the airport that "if the United States does not stand by its own friends, we're going to end up with no friends."

Whisper Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge's voice softened and dropped from a well-meaning but naive whisper as he appealed to the Senate Ethics Committee to reach a quick decision in his financial misconduct case.

"The last several years have been a very trying experience for me," said Talmadge, who, since 1976, has lost his oldest son in a drowning accident, ended a 35-year marriage with a bitter divorce and took the care for a long-standing alcoholism problem.

"I'm human, and I have made errors in the future," said Talmadge, but in 30 years as a public official, "I've never used my office for profit.

With that, seven weeks of disciplinary hearings against Talmadge, the most serious action against a sitting senator in 12 years, came to an end.

Embassy Siege

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Four Palestinian guerrillas blasted their way into the Egyptian Embassy today, taking the ambassador and a score of other embassy employees hostage. A woman who was allowed to leave reported there were "many dead."

The guerrillas threatened to blow up the building unless Turkey recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization and severed relations with Egypt and Israel. They also demanded an airplane to fly them to an unknown destination.

Food Leverage

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A Carter administration spokesman says the world's grain producers would find it futile to try to use food as a political lever to force down high oil prices.

But now a multinational body of intellectuals is trying to bring morality and science together again, saying the dramatic issues facing the world can no longer tolerate their continued separation.

Rebels Offer Peace

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Sandinista rebels delivered a 12-point peace plan to U.S. special ambassador William Bowdler, offering concessions to Anastasio Somoza's national guard but the Nicaraguan president scoffed at the proposal.

The Somoza-run radio station Thursday announced censorship of the press because of "distortions" in foreign news coverage. Reporters were to be briefed on the restrictions at a government news conference today.

The guerrillas' plan apparently sought to exchange views on the guerrilla proposal but the outcome of the talks was not disclosed. The rebels took their plan to Bowdler, who was meeting with the Sandinista leadership in San Jose.

The rebel plan promised a role for the national guard in the new army they hope to create and a cease-fire with guerrillas returning to their barracks under a guarantee of their lives and future rights.

The guard members would be accepted into a new national army or would be allowed to leave the country unless they were charged with serious crimes.

It also asked for Somoza's resignation and acceptance of it by the Nicaraguan Congress and the installation of the original live-member (two Marxists, one leftist and two moderates) Junta of the National Reconstruction as the provisional government.

The Nicaraguan civil war again spilled over to neighboring Costa Rica Thursday, according to Radio Rolo, considered the semi-official voice of the rebels. It said national guard warplanes rocketed, bombed and strafed the Costa Rican border towns of Cabareta and Las Vueltas and Zapote.

If confirmed, the attack would be the first serious incursion by Nicaraguan aircraft into Costa Rica.

Religion and Science Come Together

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Some theologians have held scientists in suspicion ever since Galileo told a disbelieving 16th century Italy that the Earth revolves around the sun.

That mistrust reached new dimensions in the 19th century when Charles Darwin revealed his theories of evolution — further straining the relationship between the sacred and secular worlds.

But now a multinational body of intellectuals is trying to bring morality and science together again, saying the dramatic issues facing the world can no longer tolerate their continued separation.

Some 450 scientists, clergy and laymen from 55 countries gathered at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Thursday for a two-week discussion of "Faith, Science and the Future," sponsored by the World Council of Churches.

The conference will touch on such disparate issues as genetic research, nuclear weapons, computers and the energy crisis, hoping to show that faith and science can work in harmony.

The group uses the Greek word "oikoumene" — the world of human beings — as its motto, with a solitary floating sailboat as its symbol.

WCC general secretary Philip Potter said his group will try to convince clergy and scientists "we are in that boat together."

"You cannot (entirely) solve human problems with scientific and technological means," he said.

technology have been made in the last few years, but not in faith.

She said despite Carter's decision not to attend, his religious nature was shown when he recently called spiritual leaders together to discuss national problems with him and pray. "It is because he is a man of faith ... I am grateful we have a man who will try to take the time to put things in proper perspective," she said.

Humberto Cardinal Medeiros representing the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, said far too many people believe the issue has been whether to accept science or religion.

"Only if they mutually complement one another is there a possibility of a just, participatory society," he said.

There was one negative note on the opening day. Potter said some invited members from East European countries and the Soviet Union did not come. He implied this could have been due to political reasons, but did not elaborate.

In an afternoon session, physicist Prof. Robert H. Brown of the University of Sydney, Australia, said, "We must dispel the idea that science removes mystery from the world."

"It does remove minor mysteries, such as the mechanism of heredity, but in doing so it shows us where the major mysteries really are," he said.

"The mystery of creation is intact, pushed back by 20 billion years, but nevertheless, where it always was — in the beginning."

Friendly Lunch Ends in Death

By DAVID WYSOKI

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carmine Galante, the most powerful Mafia don in the United States, sat sipping red wine and puffing on a cigar over lunch with friends Thursday in a small garden restaurant in Brooklyn.

Suddenly, three masked men carrying submachine guns and shotguns walked calmly onto the small terrace of Joe and Mary's Italian-American Restaurant and opened fire. The short, balding Galante was trapped.

His body peppered with bullets and buckshot, he slumped to the floor — the characteristic cigar still clenched in his teeth. Within seconds the "godfather" of the Joseph Bonanno crime family, was dead.

"It was an execution, I mean just that, an execution," said Deputy Inspector Martin Hayes.

Another detective said, "There was no warning whatsoever. They walked in calmly, did their job and left. It was too easy."

Galante's chest was riddled with buckshot. A gaping hole was where his heart should have been. A single bullet pierced his skull over the left eye.

Also killed was Galante's bodyguard, Nino Coppola, who was helping the mobster polish off a gallon jug of wine and a basket of fruit and rolls when the gunmen burst in.

The restaurant's owner, Giuseppe Turano, died later at Wyckoff Heights Hospital. His son, John 17, shot in the back by the thugs as he ran screaming to warn his father, was in critical condition at the hospital.

Galante, 69, and Coppola "died from multiple gunshot and shotgun wounds," the city's chief medical examiner, Michael Baden, said in clinical, flat tones. "Apparently death was very rapid."

Police reconstructed the killing as follows:

Galante and his guests — Coppola, Turano and an unidentified fourth man — had sat down to a light lunch about 2 p.m.

It was to have been Turano's "Bon Voyage" party before leaving to join his wife and daughter in Europe for the summer.

But before the main meal was served, a blue Mercury drove up. Three men got out, slipped ski masks over their faces and walked toward the storefront entrance. A fourth stayed in the car, waiting for the distinct "pop" of a shotgun before revving his motor.

The killers entered the dingy yellow linoleum-covered luncheonette area and shouted to younger Turano: "Hey, you get off

"Dragon Lady" Has Clout In Intelligence Community

WASHINGTON - One of the most important lessons of Watergate was - or at least should have been - that "national security" cannot be used as a cloak and dagger by the intelligence community to get the constitutional rights of individual Americans. The Nixon administration's best and brightest wound up in prison for their unwillingness to grasp this simplest truth.

A leader of the "old guard" that wants intelligence gathering unrestricted in the name of national security is Deanne Siemer, 38-year-old Defense Department general counsel. She was named to the powerful post by Carter on April Fool's Day, 1977, but her appointment has been no laughing matter for those who have crossed her path.

Long-legged and short-tempered, Siemer has an abrasive, intimidating style that has earned her the sobriquet "Dragon Lady" in some government circles. Those who are trying to curb the spoils are only the latest targets of her wrath: in her two years at the Pentagon, more than half her original staff has been fired, demoted or forced to transfer.

Siemer's weight has also been felt in the longstanding bureaucratic feud between the Pentagon and the CIA over which agency should be top dog in intelligence matters. The power struggle is going on in the Special Coordinating Committee, a National Security Council group charged with producing a new charter to let the FBI and CIA know exactly what they can and cannot do.

DPUC Denies NU Rehearing

By JACQUELINE HUARD

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Division of Public Utility Control has refused to reconsider its decision granting Northeast Utilities a precedent-setting $88 million rate hike, saying further hearings wouldn't cover any new ground.

State Consumer Counsel Barry Zitzer had asked for a rehearing and possible reversal of the decision. He said the rate increase was "anti-consumer" because it meant an average 12 percent hike in electric and gas rates. Newly appointed DPUC chairman John Downey refused Thursday to let Zitzer argue his appeal. Then he and commissioners David Harrigan and Paul Weiner voted unanimously not to hold a new hearing on the Northeast case.

"Each and every item he enumerates was considered fully and completely during 30 days of hearings," said Harrigan, who with Weiner and former chairwoman Miriam Butterworth had granted the increase. "This is merely a rehearing."

"I don't see any presentation of the arguments here as having merit to reopen this case," Weiner said. He also said some of Zitzer's arguments "are not full and are erroneous."

The items Zitzer objected to in a general veto of the DPUC's approving added revenue in the special utilization adjustment clause; inflation and nuclear waste disposal allowances; property taxes; and the Millstone II shutdown.

Northeast, with more than 1 million gas and electric customers, had asked for a $131.2 million increase. The rate hike granted was for two subsidiaries — Connecticut Light & Power Co. and the Hartford Electric Light Co. Zitzer said he will decide within one week whether to take the issue to court.

"I think we should have at least granted the courtesy of presenting our arguments," he said. Zitzer said the new make-up of the DPUC would help his case, but said "it looked like business as usual to me."

Gov. Ella Grasso did not nominate Mrs. Butterworth and commissioners Thomas Standish and Gerald McCann. She added Downey, Elythe Gaines and Marvin Loewit to the DPUC.

"This means that if consumers are to get any relief from this action it will have to be through the Freedom of Information Commission or through judicial action," Zitzer said.

He said he's filed a complaint with the FOI claiming the more important aspects of the Northeast case were decided by the DPUC behind closed doors.

Another complaint about the Northeast case also is pending.

David Truskoff, director of the Connecticut Committee for Lower Utility Bills, said he will ask Downey to investigate alleged improprieties in the case. He objected to a trip Weiner took to Irving Trust Co. in New York City last November with Northeast President William Ellis.

Truskoff said Northeast board chairman Lelan Sillin is a director of the bank and Northeast has a $6 million open account with the bank. Weiner has said the trip was only to gather data on the utility's finances.

Tax Growth Low, Legislator Says

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state government should use "extreme caution" in spending money because of a dip in the growth rate of the sales and use tax, says the co-chairman of the Legislature's tax-writing committee.

The sales and use tax is Connecticut's biggest money-maker, estimated at $750 million for 1978-79. "We feel extreme caution is very much in order," Sen. Audrey Jock, D-Mansfield, co-chairman of the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee, said Thursday. "We think it may be a harbinger of what's going on."

She said the cumulative sales tax growth through May 31 of this year was 14.8 percent higher than for the same period in 1978. The sales tax collected in June was only 15 percent higher than June, 1978, she said.

"This, mind you, was based on May sales well before the worst impact of the gasoline crunch," Mrs. Beck said. "It appears therefore that retail sales in Connecticut are beginning to reflect growing consumer caution in the face of the anticipated economic downturn."

She said there has been no "real growth" in national retail sales since the beginning of the year. Because Connecticut's economy historically lags four to six months behind the national economic picture, "we can construe the June sales revenue figures to be warning sign for us to proceed with caution," Mrs. Beck said.

She said Gov. Ella Grasso took "prudent and timely" action this week in cutting back state agency budgets by 3 percent — the maximum allowed without legislative approval.

Anthony Milano, secretary of the Office of Policy and Management, said the cuts were made because budget officials are worried about the cost of pending state employee contracts and possible revenue losses from the sales tax.

Milano said the funds withheld amounted to about $30 million of the state's $2.4 billion budget. He said the money could be restored to agency budgets later.

State regulators Wednesday questioned whether the announced deal was in violation of the agreement made last year.

That agreement involved Times Mirror's purchase of controlling stock in Hartford and Meriden cable television companies.

At the time, regulators noted Times Mirror did not own any newspapers, radio or television stations in the franchise area, but concluded that the firm "shall inform the agency of any and all contemplated acquisitions of Connecticut media."

Times Mirror's offer to purchase the morning daily for $105.6 million was announced Tuesday. In his letter, Slater pointed out that the deal had not been consummated yet and that it could be several months before it is finalized.

He offered to cooperate in answering further DPUC questions but added he was unsure what further obligations Times Mirror might have to regulatory officials.

A Collector's Dream

Jon Wilson, 10, of Concord, Calif., looks over some of the toy steam engines that will be auctioned off in Owls Head, Maine, Saturday. Several hundred antique hot air, steam, and gas engines will be on the auction block for collector's bidding. Alcohol lamps fired small boilers that drove pistons and flywheels even small steam whistles. Note drive piston on unit, left, and grinder wheel on unit at right. DPUC Given Notice About Courant Deal
HARTFORD (UPI) — An attorney for the Times Mirror Co. says the company regrets state regulators learned of their intended purchase of the Hartford Courant through news reports and has submitted official notification of the deal.
Hartford attorney Howard Slater, representing Times Mirror, said a letter was sent Thursday to the state Division of Public Utility Control in accordance with a July 13, 1978, agreement.
State regulators Wednesday questioned whether the announced deal was in violation of the agreement made last year.
That agreement involved Times Mirror's purchase of controlling stock in Hartford and Meriden cable television companies.

MHS Gets a Cleaning

MANCHESTER — With summer school out of the high school building, the staff has a golden opportunity to give the 25-year-old building a thorough cleaning.

According to Principal Jacob Ludes, that's exactly what's happening. Ludes said Thursday the custodial staff is painting most of the classrooms on the first floor and will paint water-damaged ones on the second floor after the roof has been patched. New ceiling tiles will be put in once the roof remedies are completed.

The Board of Education appropriated $7,500 for patching work at the high school and Iling Junior High, Ludes said. The roof has been troublesome during rainstorms and is in need of permanent repairs. A 29-member Citizens Advisory Committee last month urged the repairs as soon as possible.

Ludes said the parking area in front of the school is being redesigned to permit more efficient removal of snow in the wintertime. He said a dumbbell-shaped curve will be moved straight across and remove the snow. Before that, Ludes said, the snow had to be dumped in some of the parking spaces.

Other work includes a thorough cleaning of each classroom, including the venetian blinds and the radiator covers. The custodians have removed desks and chairs from each room on the second floor and plan to buff and wax each floor before moving downstairs.

"They're doing a good job," Ludes said.

That's Entertainment Anti-Smoking Bloc Wins in Show Biz

By ALLEN M. WIDEM
The anti-smoking bloc has had its winnings with American entertainment — be it in motion pictures or television — with markedly less inhaling evidenced, and as if this wasn't enough, puff, puff, salute to The American Dream, puff, puff, America's scheduled airlines are targeted for stepped-up confrontation.

The Loyalty Opposition — those folks who score the use, the sight, of Tobacco — are urging, admonishing, cajoling the airlines to adapt, assume, admit a continuing policy, a constant pattern, of thwarting the cigar smoker, the cigarette smoker, the pipe smoker. (No word as yet about chewing tobacco!)

One cannot go from here to there, or come from there to here, without fear of not being able to indulge in The Habit. Well, as a cigar smoker, one who doesn't indulge in cigarette smoking or pipe smoking, the argument may have merit. But when it comes down to a matter of Let's him and you fight, I back away, and puff, puff, want to know, demand to know, Who's in Charge Here?

Not that many years ago, aw, give or take a couple of decades, a bad guy in a movie could be found snarling over a cigar (Eric Edward G. Robinson). A cigar (the lady friend of the bad guy in those long ago days) would smirk over a cigarette. A detective of sorts about to do battle with doers of dark deeds could puff away at his pipe, provide the rationale of it all. You could bet on the pipe smoker coming out ahead. At least then.

In the Fifties, with television just beginning its massive impact on the entertainment scene, one could discern a fancy for cigarette smoking. Cigars cropped up once in a while — again the puff was guy out to do something not exactly pure, wholesome and promising. There are no statistics readily compiled as to how the tobacco chewer fared.

The sitcoms, the crime series, even the westerns were not without some degree of cigarette smoking in the Fifties. But by the Sixties, everything was downhill. Less and less cigarette smoking. Practically nil, as far as pipe smoking. The cigar-chomper, outside of the sporadic left-havers-party motif, was noticeably missing. By the time Archie Bunker started smoking occasionally on "All in the Family" it was the early 1970s. It was with considerable pleasure — and no small measure of surprise — to watch Jackie Cooper, as the city editor of The Daily Planet, puff away, well, one scene in Warner Bros. superduper "salute" to Movie Spectacles, "Superman." Let it be added, however, that beyond Cooper's brief, so very fleeting cigar puffing, I couldn't discern another puffer in any of the newspaper sequences.

Cooper lifted his pencil on his desk, but a city editor, a big city newspaper editor, with just one tiny little cigar scene, well, it wasn't this way back in the late Fifties when Clark Gable played a city editor in Paramount's earnestly made "salute" to newspapering tunes, "Teachers Pet."

I know, I was part of the nation's "working" press "invited" to play newspaper people in the movie at the Editor's Invitation. Matter of fact, City Editor Clark Gable and I got into an elevator for a minute-length scene, he smoking a cigarette. I putting on a cigar. Horror of horrors! The scene, my one big break, you hear me, Hollywood! It was eventually chopped from the final print. Gable smoked all through the film. Yestee!

I'm not one to delve into the science/medicine findings, determinations, relative to smoking. I've considered The Habit a personal choice. I rage inwardly when I scan a 1979 television situation comedy with nary a sign of an ashtray — let alone a cigarette. To a pipe smoker, this is real! Has television become so utterly averse to the very massiveness of the anti-smoking bloc to rule out any and all indications of smoking?

After all, millions of people DO smoke, and these very same millions of people ARE part of the American scene. To ignore the presence of smokers is to say, in effect, that motion pictures never happened, that television never happened. Entertainment is something that contains the promise of a Never Never Land, with some very real implications of life itself. And smokers — to a man and a woman — say that to ignore the presence of The Habit is to write off a hefty share of the population's choice, preference, call it what one will!

Furniture Exhibit Set

NORWALK — The Norwalk Historical Society will present the most extensive exhibition of Connecticut period furniture ever held in Fairfield County, from Saturday to July 27. The exhibit will be held at the Town House Museum in the Mill Hill Complex, a collection of restored buildings, which includes the law offices of Connecticut's Governor Fitch, built in 1740.

Curators for the exhibition are Ken Fremm, a native of Norwalk now residing in Wilton, Premra, a graduate of the Rochester Institute of Technology and owner of the Borda Press, is a collector of and authority on early American clocks. Co-curator is Jim Filastro II, a graduate of the University of Connecticut. He is an historian, an editor of the Norwalk Support Museum Newsletter and expert on 19th century American silver.

Possibly no other colony developed as many regional schools during the 18th century as did Connecticut. There are unique stylistic characteristics to the furniture of New London, Hartford, Litchfield and Fairfield Counties.
Working in the Chippendale style local cabinetmakers produced ornate pieces of furniture which are ranked as some of the most creative and beautiful of those produced anywhere in the American Colonies.

Several of the most famous of these pieces will be in the exhibit, including a signed Samuel Loomis (1746-1814) desk. This magnificently carved desk was made for the Deming Mansion in Colchester. A room from this house is preserved in the American Museum, Bath, England. Loomis was one of the greatest master cabinetmakers of the Connecticut school and used all of his skills in decorating this chest with its beveled front, rope turned corners and shell carved lid. The desk is being loaned from the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

Another masterpiece is on loan from the Winterthur Museum in Delaware. It is an exquisite block-fronted chest of drawers with high style rococo decoration including ornate carved shells and fluted resting on orientally scrolled bracket feet. It was made in cherry around 1760.
The furniture will span the period 1700 to 1800 and will contain furniture from the pilgrim period to the Sheraton style.

The Town House Museum is located across from the Old Norwalk Green on Wall Street and East Avenue, Exit 16 on Interstate 95. The building will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and to 4 p.m. on weekdays.

FILMETER
A capsule look at cinema

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

GOLDENGLI (PG) — Susan Anton, James Callaghan, Curt Jurgens, Sports drama. — Mad scientist tries to turn his beautiful daughter into the greatest runner ever, eyeing three gold medals in the Moscow Olympics. In the process, he dies, his wife, wrecking her, mentally and physically. Contrived, foolish and implausible. But Susan is awfully nice to look at. (CAUTION: Some gratuitous nudity that should have earned it an R rating.) GRADE: C-

LAST AND FOUND (PG) — George Segal, Glenda Jackson, Romantic comedy. Writer-director-producer Mel Frank tries to tell the story of a man's first love. A Touché and another man in another light-hearted exercise. Magic is tough to recapture, however, and this gets off on an all-nighter, but does so about halfway through in a tedious examination of the tenure system on college campuses. GRADE: B-

BEYOND THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE (PG) — Michael Caine, Sally Field, Telly Savalas. Adventure. Producer Irwin Allen tries it again with an all-star cast on an all-nighter, but does so about halfway through in a tedious examination of the tenure system on college campuses. GRADE: B-

IN-LAWS, THE (PG) — Peter Falk, Alan Arkin. Comedy. Adventure. Feel like a good laugh? This is it — a wild and crazy film about the people it catches. The crew tries to kill it and definitely vice versa. If you like the type, this is GRADE: A, but avoid it if you care any.

KIDS ARE ALRIGHT, THE (PG) — The Who. Documentary. The story of the band's first band in the few weeks and a bit of music from concerts, TV shows and films throughout the career of The Who. A straight-and-down documentary that works through the power of the music and the four compelling personalities that made up The Who. Must for rock fans. GRADE: B+ (Paterson)

PRISONER OF ZENDA, THE (PG) — Peter Sellers, Lynne Frederick. Epic-summer comedy. This idea, on paper, sounds sure-fire. Sellers in a triple role in the oldie about the shookey who dodges the monarch. But it's a sure-fire movie to watch, and this one never lights up. It all seems strained, more-so than Hollywood. GRADE: C-

Mystic-New London Area Popular State Attraction

This looks like the year of Connecticut folk to discover Connecticut. While you're conserving energy, you can find out why thousands of visitors each summer flock to our woodlands, beaches, towns and cities.

Consider a weekend in Connecticut's most popular tourist destination, the Mystic-New London area.

You'll find a variety of activities tied to our maritime heritage, all less than a tankful of gas from home, no matter what part of the state you come from.

Plan to arrive in Mystic Friday evening and check in at the motel. Park your car and get ready for a new adventure.

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to see how much enjoyment you can pack into your weekend without starting up that engine unnecessarily.

If you stay at one of the motels near the Mystic exit off I-95, you will be near enough to walk to Old Mistick Village, a good place to spend your evening.

Take your choice of several restaurants and after dinner go for a get-acquainted stroll around the Village. It's a cluster of shops designed to put the fun back into browsing. There are antique dealers, doll and toy emporiums, craft shops, boutiques, book and gift stores, even a movie theater. Stop at the Tourist Information Center for a map of the area and information to help plan your visits. Shops are open until 9 p.m., the information center until 8 p.m.

Saturday morning you're ready for Mystic Maritime Square. It's within walking distance of the motels, or if you prefer to ride you can take the free shuttle bus that makes the rounds of Mystic's major tourist centers every 40 minutes from 10 a.m. to 5:10 p.m.

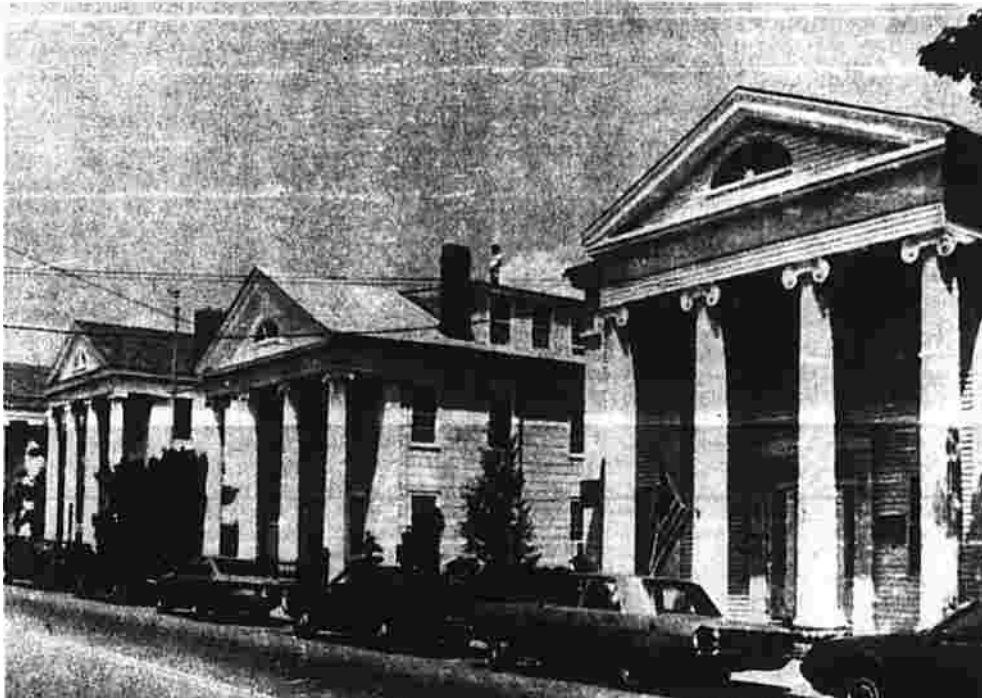

The Aquarium, which has become a major attraction in its five years of existence, houses 30 different exhibits, all clearly marked so that you guide yourself through your own pace. In its twilight halls you'll encounter some 2,000 specimens of seals at home in displays that point out their individual characteristics. Dolphins and sea lions demonstrate their remarkable skills in hourly shows in the marine auditorium.

Outside is the spectacular new Seal Island exhibit, where seals and sea lions splash and dive in made-order habitats that exactly replicate their natural surroundings. Aquarium hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; admission is $4.50 for adults, $2 for children 5-14.

Saturday afternoon is reserved for Mystic Seaport. If you're up to a half-mile walk, go on foot; otherwise catch the next shuttle bus. The Seaport is a trip to the nineteenth century, when Mystic was a shipbuilding center and whaling port. There are homes, shops and ships of the period and working craftsmen who explain their tools and methods. The Charles W. Morgan, last of the wooden whaling ships, rides at anchor in the harbor, ready for boarding, along with the old-time square-rigger Joseph Conrad.

New London's other historic attractions include Shaw Mansion, which served as Connecticut's naval office during the Revolutionary War; the Hempsted House, a beautifully preserved 1678 home; and the 1829 Deshon-Allyn House, built for a prosperous whaling captain. Other points of interest in the city are the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, with its new Visitor Center, and the training bark Eagle, which can be boarded when it is in port, Connecticut College, where you'll find the Lyman Allyn Museum of Art, the Connecticut Armory and the James Science Center; and the Moran Nature Center and Zoo.

Nearby in Groton you can board a World War II submarine, or the Croaker, and see how it was underwater in the big war. There are seaplane and boat rides available at the same location, 359 Thames Street.

Up the hill is Fort Grisold State Park, scene of a bloody massacre in the Revolutionary War and a historic home, the 1750 Ebenezer Avery House, open to visitors Friday through Sunday 2 to 4.

For information on points of interest in the Mystic New London Area, and all of Connecticut, write to the Economic Development, 210 Washington St., Hartford, 06106 or call toll-free 1-800-842-7492.

At 8 p.m. you can board the coal-pulled Sabine for an hour and a half cruise around the Mystic River and around the harbor. Cost is $3 for adults, $1.50 for children.

Afterwards you can get a taxi, or take in a little more of the salt air as you walk the half-mile to the motel.

Seaport Offers Tour of Houses

MYSTIC — A new Historic Houses and Buildings Tour now available at Mystic Seaport will provide groups with a behind-the-scenes look at some of the museum's historic structures.

The Seaport is on the site of the former Greenman Brothers Shipyard, and contains several buildings of historic note. Some original Greenman buildings have been incorporated into the present-day museum, and others have come from other communities to be restored at the Seaport.

To learn more about group tours, contact the Travel Development Office, Mystic Seaport, Mystic, CT 06355.

Careful with Map

HARTFORD — Connecticut drivers with Charter Oak Passes, which are intended to encourage residents to save gas by using state recreational areas, can further conserve gas by choosing to visit the ones closest to their homes.

The concept will take place at the Hatch Shell on the Charles River. Explained, it will recreate his famous July 4, 1776, bicentennial concert which drew more than 400,000 persons for one of Boston's largest community celebrations.

On the program are the "Jubilee Overture" by Von Weber, Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor, "Opus 23," with Myron Romaniuk as the soloist. He has performed more often than any other soloist with the Boston Pops. Following the intermission, the "Star Spangled Banner" will be played, followed by a patriotic sing along as arranged by Richard Hayman.

The major work of the evening will be the "1812 Overture Solemnelle" with church bells, cannons and aerial bombs. For an encore the "Prayer of Thanksgiving" will be performed, one of Maestro Fiedler's favorites, and the concert will close with a playing of the "Stars and Stripes Forever," without a conductor.

Unlike the 1976 concert, however, there will not be an extensive fireworks display following the concert. Harry Ellis Dickson will conduct the program.

Jazz Feeling Natural Burke Is Unique Pianist

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — You may have heard him perform his jazz arrangements at weddings, restaurants, night clubs, country clubs, or if you're lucky enough to live in the neighborhood of his home at 33 Teresa Road, you've heard him practicing alone or with an instrumental group.

This performer is Bob Burke, 33, who at the age of three began to demonstrate his talent for music.

In the school he attended, he says that's where the students' musical education began. And while he was in the third grade, his teacher discovered Burke had perfect pitch.

During the fourth and fifth grades, Burke began to pick out tunes on the piano.

"Easter Parade" was my first one," Burke says.

As he developed familiarity with the feel of the keys, he would play two notes at a time, in harmony, gradually expanding to octaves and eventually adding a left hand accompaniment.

Burke's talent was encouraged with piano lessons.

"I had to learn classical, but my talent ran more to jazz and popular," Burke says. Later, his teacher advised Burke to concentrate on the style he was most interested in — jazz.

Burke's progress is a story of continual development and success — from involvement with school bands, winner in talent contests, jobs with dance bands in his teens, and after graduation from high school, a job with the Al Jarvis band.

What makes Burke's story unique is that he is blind, and has been since birth. His training and education were received at the Oak Hill School of the Blind, although he also received some of his musical training at the Hart College of Music, University of Hartford.

Bob Burke fingers a tricky embellishment to a jazz arrangement during a rehearsal with the Bob Burke Jazz Quintet which will perform Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell. (Herald photo by Adamson)

Pops Sets Memorial Concert

BOSTON — On Sunday at 7:30 p.m., the Boston Pops Orchestra will begin a memorial concert dedicated to the memory of long-time Boston Pops conductor, Arthur Fiedler.

The concert will take place at the Hatch Shell on the Charles River. Explained, it will recreate his famous July 4, 1776, bicentennial concert which drew more than 400,000 persons for one of Boston's largest community celebrations.

On the program are the "Jubilee Overture" by Von Weber, Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor, "Opus 23," with Myron Romaniuk as the soloist. He has performed more often than any other soloist with the Boston Pops. Following the intermission, the "Star Spangled Banner" will be played, followed by a patriotic sing along as arranged by Richard Hayman.

Yankees Unload Power To End Kingdome Jinx

SEATTLE (UPI) - The Kingdom whammy cast by the Seattle Mariners over the New York Yankees for the better part of two seasons came to an end Thursday night in an outpouring of 19 base hits and a solid pitching performance by Catfish Hunter.

Seattle had won seven straight under the Kingdom roof, including two in 1978, but the last meeting of the clubs there this season was no contest.

Seattle Manager Billy Martin was noncommittal about Gossage's brief appearance, saying "It was just trying to find himself because he hasn't worked in so long."

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) - With only a weekend series against the Oakland A's separating the Red Sox and the All Star break, it may be time to start looking at Boston's midseason blessings.

Rich (Goose) Gossage made his first appearance for the New York Yankees since April 18, when he tore ligaments in his right thumb in a clubhouse scuffle with his then teammate, Cliff Johnson.

Hunter also broke a personal jinx, beating the Mariners for the first time in his career. He had lost to them four times over three seasons. His 1979 record is now 2-5.

San Francisco Wins Respect

NEW YORK (UPI) - As just three games in the major leagues, San Francisco rookie catcher Dennis Littlejohn has earned the respect of the Montreal Expos and, more important, his manager.

Littlejohn drove in three runs and John Montefusco won his second game of the season Thursday night to lead the Giants to a 5-3 victory over the Montreal Expos and a sweep of their three-game series.

Dennis is good defensively and he has a lot of guts," said Giants Manager Joe Altobelli, who said Littlejohn also earned a spot on the roster after a great spring training. "He's shown he can hit."

The Expos led 1-0 in the fourth inning when Terry Whitfield struck a two-out single and Roger Metzger drove him home with a double.

Montefusco, 24, gave up 10 hits in eight innings plus before giving way to Gary Lavelle. Lavelle, who notched his 12th save, was touched for an RBI single by Steve Dawson, who also drove in the first-inning run with a double. Gary Carter hit his 14th homer of the year in the eighth for the other Expo run.

Reputation of U.S.A. At Stake in Pan Am

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Having met and conquered most of the competition on the playing fields in the Pan American Games, the United States took its reputation to court today with men's basketball coach Bobby Knight standing trial on assault and battery charges filed by a local policeman.

The officer, Jose de Silva, charged the coach slugged him without provocation during an altercation Sunday. If Knight loses his case, he could be fined $500 and be sentenced to up to six months in jail. It could pave the way for a civil suit by de Silva.

A conviction also would be a severe blow to the already marginal popularity of the U.S. in Puerto Rico. After Thursday's 106-98 victory over Brazil, the United States performed surprisingly well without star injured guard Kyle Macy. Knight refused to comment on his trial and instead talked about the championship game.

Hamilton-Standard Awarded Windmill Contract

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Hamilton Standard, producing windmill power in one day power many parts of the world, announced Thursday it has a multi-million dollar contract to help develop a windmill for Sweden's government.

"We believe that wind energy systems will, in the future, apply a significant amount of electricity in many areas of the world and at costs at or below nuclear, coal or oil-produced energy," Hamilton Standard President Richard F. Gamble said.

"In the United States alone we expect to see groups of large-scale windmills in operation in five to 10 years," he said.

The firm would not reveal the exact cost of the contract to develop a windmill capable of generating power for 1,000 homes.

But a company spokesman said the award by the Swedish National Board for Energy Source Development was expected to prove the feasibility of harnessing the wind at or below nuclear, coal or oil-produced energy.

Hamilton will design the rotor for the highly sophisticated wind turbine system, manufacture its two 125-foot fiberglass blades and perform a computerized analysis of the entire system.

The Swedish firm Kartstromsavet AS will design the 260-foot tower, foundation and assembly. It will also build the system near the city of Malmo on the southern coast of Sweden.

The three-megawatt system is scheduled to go into operation by the end of 1981. It will operate in winds ranging from 10 to 20 mph and will be able to withstand hurricane-force gales of 125 mph.

Cal Beggs, program manager of the Hamilton project, said the machine was one of the first high technology machines to be developed and should combine with machines being developed by the U.S. government to "give confidence to the capability of wind to generate power."

He said Hamilton's participation in the program marked a stronger stand on wind power than the company had taken previously.

"We are gaining confidence that this is a viable means of generating energy competitively. We believe very hard, you can cut back on two other sources."

Swedish officials hope to eventually erect groups of the machines called farms, throughout the country. Beggs said the first farm was planned for 1983-1985 and was intended to supply power to an average of 10,000 homes a year.

"It's obvious some days the wind doesn't blow and on some it blows very hard," Beggs said. "When it doesn't blow, you have to depend on another energy source. But when it blows very hard, you can cut back on two other sources."

There are many sites around the world where the potential of the wind is excellent for power generation. I would say throughout the remainder of this century there's going to be a growing use of it as we expect — to be an economic source of power," he said.

Beggs said he expected the trend to be established and sizable quantities of windmills to be put up by 1990.

The windmill being developed for Sweden is twice as large as a U.S. prototype windmill now being tested on Block Island, R.I., and at two other locations.

Carlson Named P&WA Chief

HARTFORD (UPI) — Robert J. Carlson Thursday was appointed president of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group and group vice president of power for the parent United Technologies Corp.

UTC officials said the corporate reorganization was a result of the corporation's recent merger with Carrier Corp., air conditioner manufacturer of Syracuse, N.Y. They said a realignment was needed to include Carrier in UTC-existing corporate structure.

Carlson replaces Bruce N. Torelli as president of Pratt & Whitney. A statement issued by UTC said Torelli, a 33-year employee of the corporation, "has made a personal decision to take early retirement."

Carlson, 49, had been senior vice president of Deere & Co., heading the farm and industrial machinery firm's North American Farm Equipment and Consumer Products Division.

He had been with the Moline, Ill., company since 1960 and had headed the division since 1971. Carlson also had served on the board of directors of Deere & Co.

UTC President Harry J. Gray also announced changes in the corporation's divisional set-up, saying both the Power Systems Division of Farmington and the Chemical Systems Division of Sunnyside, Calif., will now report to Carlson.

"The placing of all our propulsion and industrial and fuel cell power activities within a single group is a logical step to take at this time," Gray said.

"The recent acquisition of Carrier required that we reorganize our existing corporate structure in order to achieve the most effective operating efficiencies and the proper management balance," he said.

"During his career with Pratt, Torelli had filled several key management and engineering posts. He holds 16 patents and was responsible for the development of many Pratt & Whitney jet engines.

At one time he served as project engineer for the company's J-75 turbojet engine program. The commercial version of that engine played a key role in the development of commercial jet transportation.

Under his direction, Pratt & Whitney had doubled its business since 1971.

Firm Posts Reward For Fire Conviction

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Covenant Insurance Co. has posted a $25,000 reward for information leading to arrests and convictions in a $1 million fire that destroyed a West Hartford shopping complex earlier this year.

Investigators by West Hartford police and fire officials and the insurance company showed the fire had been set with a flammable liquid and originated in four different parts of the Sedgwick Market.

Covenant said it provided much of the insurance for the complex at 501 Main Street and Sedgwick Road. Damage to the complex was estimated at $1 million, the firm said.

Information concerning the reward is being handled by the firm's attorney, John Tenor of the Hartford firm of Robinson, Robinson and Cole.

Scientists Find Method To Test Effect of Ads

DANBURY (UPI) — Scientists here have concluded that doesn't have developed a new way to test the popularity of corn flakes, commercials and TV shows.

And in the field of mass advertising, millions of dollars can be made or saved depending on whether somebody takes a moment to look at a magazine cover, or an advertiser can junk a dud commercial before it's put on the air.

Stanley Weinstein says it all boils down to money. It's up to his research firm to help advertisers pick their winners and losers.

The author, a New York University professor whose Neuro Communication Research Laboratories, Inc. looks like a backyard workshop, specializes in testing advertising by measuring brain waves.

"It's a little like '1984,'" Weinstein said. "It may enhance our intelligence, on the other hand, people think 'My God, what harm can be done?'"

"But my philosophy is, there isn't a thing as a person who doesn't have a potential for evil. Look at the match."

The new technique began when the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency contacted Weinstein at the New York Medical College about measuring response to newspaper advertising. They talked, called in a psychologist and began experimenting.

A resulting paper, published by research team leader Dr. Herbert Krugman in 1976, described a way of measuring and evaluating a person's response to media and other external stimuli by attaching electrodes to the head and recording brain-wave patterns.

Weinstein has since used the method to test products ranging from pilot television shows to a new soup.

His firm gets volunteers through advertisements and lists of clubs and groups. Often, the client will want the researchers to select a "target" group, such as housewives, executives or people in a certain income bracket.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 62, in good health and still a better man than most men in their 40s. I'm well-to-do and can retire with a passion if I work for a big airline. I work for a girl a good home and travel.

I am very fond of a young lady, 22. She's very pretty and well built and would probably marry me if I made her an offer. She is not a virgin. She lived with another man for a year but he left her.

Here's the twist: I just met another lady. She's the kind most men dream about but never meet. She's 19 and a virgin. She doesn't drink, smoke or run around. She's my dancing instructor and she thinks a lot of me, but her contract states that she can't date any of her students. She's very honest and refuses to see me outside of dancing class because she doesn't want to get fired.

I want to be a woman who tells fortunes with cards and she told me I should keep trying for the virgin.

I am a Capricorn and the virgin is a Gemini. What do you think?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR ABBY: I'm no fortune teller, but if the virgin thought as much of you as you think of her, she would give you her job for free. But as long as she refuses to see you outside of a future with her is not the cards.

Win at bridge

dummy. Played two rounds of trump to make sure trump were out, cashed his three high diamonds in order to discard one heart and one club from dummy and went over to dummy with a trump.

Now our hero stopped to think. Finally, he tossed a coin saying, "Heads I lead a heart." It came heads; he led a heart. Down one!

"Even coins can't be trusted," he moaned.

Of course, the hand had been a cinch assuming one suit would work. He should discard two hearts on the long diamonds. Then he would lose just one heart and still be able to try the club finesse.
