

Supermarket Alternatives Offer Shoppers Relief

VIVIAN ALIKO

Picture this: No shopping carts, crowded aisles, long check-out lines, or slow, testy clerks.

A shopper steps up to a display of dummy products, surveys them, decides on the purchase and then picks up cards while continuing to shop.

The cards are fed into a computer by a clerk, and within a brief time, the groceries are brought from a back room, ready to go.

The image is not just an idea on the drawing board. It has been tried. And although it failed, such a radical alternative to traditional grocery store shopping, and other options — all established with an eye toward saving the consumer time and money at a time when food costs are expected to rise by 10 percent this year — may be a forecast of things to come.

The others are computerized home delivery service, personal shopping services, no-frills warehouse-type stores and limited assortment stores.

An observer of the supermarket industry admitted that at this point it seems that warehouse grocery shopping is the alternative that will give the supermarkets the most competition, getting about "10 to 12 percent of the grocery dollar."

The Shopping Machine, believed to be the only such venture in the country, opened in Vallejo, Calif., north of Oakland, last August, amid a host of gimmicks to draw customers.

The company — co-founded by G.S. Bill Sattler, a computer expert, who felt his naive about the grocery business would be a plus — folded last March.

At-home service has tried to be cheaper, and certainly seems more convenient, but it may have a difficult time realizing its goals.

Grocery Wagon, a computerized home delivery service in suburban Bloomington, Minn., opened in 1976, but closed last April. It is, however, believed to have survived longer than any such service.

Customers called in market orders from items listed in a biweekly flyer and delivery was made the next day during a pre-arranged three-hour period. There was a $7 membership fee and $3 delivery charge.

The company's base grew from about 6,000 to 20,000 customers, but according to Glenn Anderson, head of the firm for the year, "Sales never quite developed the way the board, or the investors would have liked, so they thought it would be better to close down."

Describing his typical customer, Anderson said, "By definition, our type of customer is a tremendous busy and organized person. Going to the supermarket is no longer a social experience for them."

A computerized discount grocery store, Ultra-Mart, located in Fairfax, Va., opened in June of last year and continues to operate. Members, limited to 1,500 persons, join by paying $10.

A discount is given to those who pick up their orders and free delivery is offered for orders over $50.

Bishop said computerized home delivery services began in 1971, but that virtually all of the six he has been familiar with, have failed.

Slaw is Right With Hamburger

The keys to a good slaw are crisp vegetables and tangy dressing. A popular combination for a summer slaw includes cabbage, carrots, pineapple chunks, green pepper and a burger sauce. And from around the country some special burgers to go with that slaw — plus tomato-avocado salad, corn-cob and baked beans.

One reason the store can offer the low prices, according to Florida Lo-Lo District Manager, Larry Orrell, is its tight-fisted employment policy, and labor savings realized by such things as having managers do everything from retrieve shopping carts from the parking lot to washing the store's windows.

Orrell said in that way, the Gainesville Lo-Lo store uses 30 to 40 percent less labor than a typical store. Some customers have complained, however, that warehouse stores tend to offer a more limited variety in produce and meats than conventional supermarkets.

Supermarkets include the Warehouse Market in Newington, Conn.; Heartland, Prairie Markets in the Pacific Northwest; and Edwards Warehouse Supermarkets on Long Island.

Health and beauty aid concerns also have kept up no-frills warehouse stores.

A spokesman, who asked not to be identified, admitted warehouses, "represent the more complete price alternative, a more conventional challenge to the supermarket."

Among the limited assortment stores are Jewel-T and Lo-Lo discount stores, owned by A&P, which have bare-bones operations. "We have cut out the frills, said Doug Jamian, manager of the Lo-Lo store that opened in Gainesville, Fla. last November. "We offer no stamps, no piped-in music and no gimmicks."

Coliseum Roof Behind Schedule

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Civic Center Coliseum roof, which collapsed under tons of ice and snow Jan. 18, 1978, won't be repaired until nearly two months after the coliseum's scheduled reopening, builders said today.

James F. Murphy of the George A. Fuller Co. told a City Council committee "the earliest, realistic opening date will be Feb. 25, 1980." The prediction apparently caught many officials — who had been preparing for a January 1980 reopening — by surprise.

The Hartford Whalers, who join the National Hockey League next season, had their first game at their permanent home scheduled Jan. 3. The later date would force them to play most of their initial NHL season away from Hartford.

The team has been playing its games in Springfield, Mass., pending completion of the Civic Center. But a spokesman today said there had been no plans to stay in Springfield beyond January.

Whalers spokesman Barbara Brown said, "We haven't been told anything differently officially yet. As far as this office is concerned, we are still planning to be there on time. We don't know if we would be able to stay in Springfield, we don't have any agreement to stay there (past Jan. 31)."

Coliseum administrators had recently placed an ad in a national entertainment newspaper announcing a January reopening. Murphy told the City Council's Planning and Development Committee the massive reconstruction project was only about 40 percent complete, that the roof was about 80 percent complete and that work was 40 days behind schedule.

"The various delays encountered could have set back 118 days, but through corrective action, creative problem-solving and cooperation among contractors, designers and the city, we have been able to save 70 days," he said. "At this point, the project is 40 days behind. If everything goes smoothly, perhaps we can do even better," Murphy said. He told the committee the Jan. 1 reopening date had been recognized "from the earliest stages of reconstruction" as "an optimistic target, at best."

Carter Tells U.S. 'No Free Lunch' Defends Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defending his tight budget and rejecting the GOP tax of an election-year tax cut, President Carter says the American people know there is "no free lunch" — you can't get something for nothing.

Exhibiting his new fighting style at a nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night, Carter also took on the "oil lobby," warning it will make a "massive struggle" to get the windfall profits tax bill in the Senate.

He ridiculed the suggestion of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., that Democrats might dump him in favor of Sen. Edward Kennedy in 1980, depicting Jackson as a loser — in the last Democratic presidential race.

The president staged his news conference on prime evening time in a new setting — the elegant gold-trimmed East Room of the White House where his predecessors had held forth often in the past.

He wore a dark blue-striped suit and kept his eyes fixed on the cameras — speaking more to the audience than to reporters in the room. "The Republicans are talking about introducing a 'budget of hope,'" rosy enough for a tax cut, Carter said. "I believe the Congress and the American people have enough judgment to know that you can't get something for nothing, that there is no free lunch involved. This is not a time to destroy our budget. It is not a time to avoid responsibilities... we all have to make some sacrifices..."

In an opening statement, Carter said, "I believe the Congress and the American people have enough judgment to know that you can't get something for nothing, that there is no free lunch involved. This is not a time to destroy our budget. It is not a time to avoid responsibilities... we all have to make some sacrifices..."

Group Opposes Plan To Extend Deadline

MANCHESTER — A local civic group has opposed an extension to the deadline for meeting the goals of the town's Affirmative Action Plan.

The Manchester Citizens for Social Responsibility (MCSR) Wednesday evening urged the town and its Human Relations Commission "to make every possible effort to meet its affirmative action goals by 1982."

In May, the commission endorsed shifting its target date for hiring women and minority candidates to 1979. Some members of the board and the commission had felt that the 1982 date would be too early for the town to meet its projected goals.

However, MCSR adopted a motion to support "an aggressive and effective recruitment program (by Manchester) to work toward the inclusion of racial and ethnic minorities and more women in town employment."

The group urged that every vacancy be extensively advertised rather than filling it with a person whose name was on a list from a previous vacancy. It supported testing at the time of the vacancy, although applicants for a previous opening would not need to be retested, but would be included in the pool of job applicants.

On other matters, the group reiterated its support for the use of the old senior center by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches and Crossroads, two human services agencies.

Robert Faucher, MCSR co-chairperson, said the $2,000 gained in taxes if the Linden Street building was sold "is minute" in comparison to the services rendered by the two organizations. "We are opposed to selling the center to obtain funds for the new center," he said. "It's somewhat selfish because other CD projects went down the tube after the vote."

The Board of Directors has appointed a committee to review the possible uses of the building, it is scheduled to make a report to the full board in September. Some citizens have urged the sale of the building and the possible use of the funds for the new senior center, which is being shifted to the old Green School on East Middle Turnpike.

Iran Celebrates Holiday

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iran today began countrywide festivities celebrating the holy month of Ramadan with a near total ban on musical broadcasts.

The state radio broadcast some revolutionary songs early today but devoted the rest of its programs to religious sermons.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini last week ordered all musical broadcasts banned, charging they corrupted Iranian youth.

The state television explained later musical broadcasts would be limited only during the month of Ramadan, indicating a shift from Khomeini's order.

Iranian music broadcasts were cut down to a selection of revolutionary songs after the February revolution. Western pop and rock music has not been heard on Iranian radio since then.

Iranian pop music was also banned because the revolutionaries accused most singers of collaboration with the shah's regime.

While religious circles insist Khomeini's ban includes even traditional Persian music and folk songs, which are still being broadcast, Khomeini's Western-educated aides explain that such music is unaffected.

In other developments, revolutionary courts sentenced to death a woman accused of prostitution and two men found guilty of blowing up a gas pipeline and opposing the Islamic regime, state radio reported today.

The radio did not say if the executions were carried out. A total of 388 people, including six women, have been shot by revolutionary firing squads since the February revolution.

The condemned woman, Khorsid Safari, was found guilty of "spreading prostitution, misleading women, girls and young people."

Cops Guard PLO Leader

NICE, France (UPI) — Police today posted snipers on rooftops and other armed officers around the hospital where PLO leader Yasser Arafat is recovering from a gunshot wound inflicted by unknown assailants.

The burly, mustachioed Mohsen, 45, was in a coma today at the Saint Roch neurological clinic in Nice almost 24 hours after two gunmen, described by his wife as a European and an Arab, fired on him at close range outside his luxury Cannes apartment.

Attending doctors said they would have to keep him alive for at least another day before considering brain surgery to repair the damage caused by a single gunshot wound to the head.

French police surrounded the hospital with plainclothesmen, uniformed officers with automatic weapons, and snipers on nearby rooftops in order to prevent any further attempts.

Source familiar with the Palestinian movement said the Sains group was likely to have been involved in last week's seizure of the Egyptian Embassy in Ankara.

Pope Suffers Love Of Overeager fans

Rock stars aren't the only ones who suffer the love of overeager fans. Pope John Paul II ran into one Wednesday in Vatican City and she almost hauled him out of his jeep. The pontiff was riding through a throng in St. Peter's Square when he saw a nun frantically waving at him. He bent to touch her hand and the adoring sister grabbed his - hanging on even as the jeep moved away. She let go just in time for the pope to regain his balance. Later, a delegation from the 22nd annual European Youth Table Tennis Championships gave him a present - a ping pong ball and paddle.

Bureaurobobile

The head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration came to Dearborn, Mich. Wednesday prepared to prove to automakers that government regulations are good for them. Joan Claybrook - addressing the Automotive News World Congress - said she was the director of Transportation's experimental Research Safety Vehicle - a model designed to protect passengers in a 50-mph barrier crash and get up to 39 miles to the gallon. While television cameras whirred, Ms. Claybrook said safety and economy can be combined, then - to make her point - stepped into the car for a demonstration drive. It stalled.

Seasick in Style

The Benetti shipyard at Viareggio, Italy, launched what may be the flashiest toy afloat Wednesday. It's a five-deck, air-conditioned motor yacht with pool, cinema, helicopter and flyspeed-boats. The 292-foot craft also boasts an underwater remote control camera that delivers the wonders of the deep to those aboard via closed circuit color television. Owner of the floating Taj Mahal is Saudi businessman Adnan Khas shoggi - said to be one of the world's wealthiest men. He has to be. His new yacht is setting him back an estimated $24 million.

Blood Line

One thing was certain. Technicians collecting for the Greater New York Blood Program had no trouble with blood pressure among donors - thanks to Penthouse magazine. One hundred of the publication's employees have pledged blood to the annual summer drive and they were led to the needle Wednesday by Victoria Lynn Johnson, Annelisa di Lorenzo, Corinne Alphen and Cheryl Ritson - all curly short-haired centerfold beauties. Blood type? Oh, positive.

Quote of the Day

Jane Fonda - her Arts Council appointment by California Gov. Jerry Brown shot down by a hostile state Senate: "I have always believed that living in a democracy includes a responsibility to speak up. Regardless of the consequences. To me, this is the essence of patriotism. I intend to continue following the dictates of my conscience as an actress and as a political woman, recognizing that there will always be those who ignore the meaning of democracy, will call this treason."

Glimpses

Charles "Tex" Watson - the former Charles Manson disciple doing life for murder - will marry Kristine Siegel of San Luis Obispo, Calif., whom he met at prison church services where the "born again" Watson serves as associate pastor. Maxine Sullivan was in concert Wednesday at Bronx Community College's Hall of Fame Playhouse in New York. International tennis virtuoso Charles Treger will trade violin for golf club Aug. 8-12 when he plays in the 1979 Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open - sponsored by the Hartford, Conn., Jaycees. Wisconsin Gov. Lee Dreyfus met the Bee Gees Wednesday in Madison and promptly proclaimed "Bee Gee Day" throughout the state. Farrakhan Fawcett-Majors will be in New York next month to promote "Sunburn" - the Paramount feature in which she costars with Charles Grodin and Art Carney.

Boston Police Superintendent Edward Conolly, second right, holds his chest as he is Comnolly was taken to Faulkner Hospital helped to police car after being shot where he is listed in critical condition. Wednesday, Comnolly was shot in the chest Sunday when he tried to serve an arrest warrant to children as hostages. (UPI-Boston Globe Dave Sundstrom who allegedly went on a photo by Bill Curtis)

Top Boston Cop Shot; Attacker Surrenders

BOSTON (UPI) - Boston's third-ranking policeman could easily have left the tough job of pleading with a hostile gunman to a psychiatrist. But Superintendent Edward F. Conolly recognized the man's name cracking over his police radio, thought he might be able to help and sped back to his old neighborhood. There, in a heavily barricaded second-floor tenement, David W. Sundstrom, 37, was holding his wife, four children and his mother hostage and threatening to shoot the first person who came through the door. Comnolly, 59, had talked Sundstrom out of a similar situation a year ago and decided to try again Wednesday. But Sundstrom, a former city janitor who had been fired from his job one day earlier, kept his threat and shot Comnolly once in the chest shortly after he entered the building in the city's Jamaica Plain section. Sundstrom gave himself up four hours later without a struggle. Police said Sundstrom's 75-year-old mother Catherine, his wife Joan and their four children aged 9-13, were all unharmed. Comnolly, a 32-year-veteran of the force, was listed in "fair to good" condition today at Faulkner Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery. Eddie said Sundstrom was allegedly the same man who ran through City Hall Tuesday waving a gun, tossing a cinderblock at a security guard and demanding back pay after he had been dismissed as a custodian at a city office in Jamaica Plain. A police spokesman said Sundstrom also "felt he was being persecuted by communists" and "thought everybody was after him." The incident began about mid-afternoon when police arrived at the three-story apartment building on Washington with a warrant for Sundstrom's arrest on weapon charges. A psychiatrist was summoned to the scene to help talk Sundstrom into surrendering. But Comnolly decided not to wait. He remembered Sundstrom as the same man he had talked into turning over some hand grenades to police last year and thought he could convince him to give up again, police said. "He said he knew the individual and that he was sure he could talk him into giving up," said Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan. "Come on Dave... let's talk," Comnolly said as he walked up to the doorway shortly after 4 p.m. Moments later, a shot rang out and Comnolly staggered from the building clutching his chest saying, "I've been shot. I've been shot." He was helped to a squad car and driven to the hospital, still conscious. "We were standing in front of the locked door (to the apartment) and Eddie was trying to talk him through it," said Lt. Francis Kelly who accompanied Comnolly into the building. "Without warning, Sundstrom 'shot right through the door and hit Eddie in the chest," Kelly said. "Within minutes, the block was surrounded by literally hundreds who were working with Comnolly - now head of all uniformed police - over the years. Eddie's one of us, and he always will be," one patrolman said. Many off-duty officers came in sports clothes, armed only with their small service revolvers. But special SWAT-type teams from Boston and state police arrived with flak jackets, tear gas and high-powered rifles with telescopic sights. They trained their guns on second-floor windows of the gray-shingled tenement lying in the shadow of the overhead subway line. They looked grimly but patiently for the slightest sign of movement from behind the closed venetian blinds. Hours before he gave himself up, Sundstrom fired a few random shots. They whizzed by reporters and photographers who ran for cover. Police did not return fire. They instead tried cautiously to negotiate. "Pick up the telephone, Dave. We just want to talk with you. Please let your family go Dave, we don't want anything to happen to them," an FBI agent said soothingly into a megaphone. Nothing worked until 8 p.m., when Sundstrom finally realized there was no way out. Police were setting up lights, re-checking their tear gas canisters and digging in for a long wait. State Police Colonel Jack O'Donovan got on the megaphone again. He stood with open arms within easy range, about 20 feet directly in front of the apartment. "Dave, please come out. Keep your hands up in the air, and we'll go home," he said. A couple of minutes later, a weary Sundstrom walked down the stairway and onto the front porch. He was immediately surrounded by dozens of detectives who took him away and charged him with assault and attempted murder. During the whole ordeal, police said Sundstrom's only demand was a request for outside police presence, to guarantee his own safety if he gave himself up. Inside the apartment, police found his family uninjured. They also found ammunition, three handguns, five rifles and a sawed-off shotgun. Lt. James Cox, head of the police hostage unit, said "it was an extremely dangerous position we were in. Apparently this fellow had been seeing a doctor, and he had complained he was being persecuted." "He said he felt he was being persecuted by the communists," Cox said. "The doctor told us he (Sundstrom) thought everybody was after him, whether it was real or imaginary. That's why we tried to reduce his fear and anxiety." The day was like the movie "Dog Day Afternoon." Many of the hundreds of neighborhood spectators booed and hissed when the suspect gave himself up. They wanted to see him shoot.

Trim Fat, Amtrak Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The House has sent a message to Amtrak: trim off a little fat, buy more passenger equipment, and get your act together. The Senate is likely to send some form of the same message when it takes up the Amtrak authorization bill, possible as early as next week. A $2.7 billion three-year Amtrak authorization bill passed the House, 397-18, Wednesday with more money than the administration asked, but not enough to save the entire system. About 20 percent of Amtrak's 27,000-mile system apparently will be cut, instead of the 43 percent demanded by former Transportation Secretary Brock Adams. The administration has indicated it can live with the House bill. The routes most likely to go, unless there is a major change in the Senate, are Chicago-Miami, New York-Kansas City, Chicago-Seattle (via southern Montana), Chicago-Houston, and Boston-Catletsburg, Ky. Exact route cuts will not be known for weeks because Congress will merely set standards and criteria for Amtrak, with Amtrak making the final decision. Those criteria have been drawn in many cases to fit certain specific trains, however. During two days of debate, numerous members complained about Amtrak's service. Many stories were told of late and dirty trains as well as poorly maintained equipment.

Protest by Parents Expected Over Changes in School Buses

By CHARLIE MAYNARD Herald Reporter MANCHESTER - The Board of Education will send the message out on the proposed bus route changes and let the chips fall where they may. Two members of the board's transportation committee, Peter Crombie and Robert Heavises, met with Assistant Superintendent Wilson Deskin and Mason Thrall of the Manchester Bus Service Inc. Wednesday afternoon to examine the recommended changes. "No matter what you do, you're going to get flak (on it)," said Heavises. The administration had proposed the mileage might be increased, Thrall said they'd have to cut down on idling time. Each time a bus idles and then accelerates, he said, it reduces fuel efficiency. If the proposed changes go through intact, Deskin said, the school district could save between 75 and 100 miles daily. Nearly 300 more students will be walking to school this fall, most of them high schoolers. State guidelines and board policy say such a student can walk two miles to school. The recommended changes are too numerous to list here. Stops are eliminated and students will be directed to walk farther to a bus stop or just walk to school. Deakin promised correspondence to the home of each affected student. Crombie said there will be an appeals process in writing about two weeks after school opens when the educators have had a chance to review the changes.

Fair Parade Out, Some Dissatisfied

SOUTH WINDSOR - Plans for the annual Wapping Fair are well under way, however some local residents and town officials have said they are "disappointed and displeased" with plans for the elimination of the traditional Wapping Fair parade. The parade has traditionally opened Saturday's fair festivities and has been well attended by local residents. Although floats, which have for many years been a popular item in the brief but colorful parade, have been few in recent years. Exhibits will be held only on Saturday from noon to 7 p.m., this year, according to a spokesman for the fair committee. Persons wishing a booth for the exhibits may contact Gordon Gibson, 644-1866 to make arrangements. Tickets Available SOUTH WINDSOR - Tickets for the "Wizard of Oz," sponsored by the South Windsor Youth Services Bureau, are now available from cast members or by calling 644-9075. The show will be presented Aug. 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. at Timothy Edwards School. Senior Citizens will be guests of the department on Thursday Aug. 2 at the 1:30 p.m. showing.

Police To Seek Input by Public

VERNON - A new concept in police community relations has been initiated by Chief Herman Fritz. Chief Fritz said that a starting point in this new concept is the two persons, Georgia Cole and Michael Tomches, will familiarize themselves with residents and merchants in the Rockville area. He said they have been instructed to personally meet and communicate with the public in this area and offer themselves as representatives of the police department to answer any questions or accept any suggestions the residents may wish to make. Chief Fritz said that the two persons hired are knowledgeable of the many resources offered by the Vernon Police and will be ready to offer assistance in gaining the benefits of these resources. He said as time progresses their responsibilities will be increased to a point where the functions they are expected to perform will regulate police officers of handling nonemergency-type incidents. Although the two CETA workers are not sworn police officers, Chief Fritz expressed the hope that the public will accept their presence as the additional eyes and ears of the department in the Rockville area where there appears to be such dire need. Members of the Village Street Neighborhood Association and several of the merchants, have asked for added protection in the Rockville area because of the higher crime rate there. At budget time the police budget approved didn't provide for the hiring of extra officers. Added to that is the mandate from the town to cut back on the use of energy thus making it necessary to cut down on police patrols to some extent.

Fiske Elected Board Head

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter VERNON - John Fiske, a Republican, was elected chairman of the Permanent Municipal Building Committee Wednesday night replacing Eugene Pinto, a Democrat. With two new members also joining the board Wednesday night it brought the makeup to six Republicans and two Democrats and one unaffiliated. Voting for chairman and vice chairman was by paper ballot on suggestion of Pinto after his name and that of Fiske were placed in nomination for the chairmanship. The vote was 5-4 in favor of Fiske. The names of John J. Giuletta, Franklin Sykes and Donald Gaudin were placed in nomination for the office of vice chairman and Giuletta and Sykes were the unaffiliated voters. Gaudin was re-elected as secretary to the committee. Fiske, who lives on Watton Road, has been on the committee since March. He lives in Vernon for nine years, works at Pratt and Whitney and said this is the first town board on which he has served. Other members of the committee are Tom Freesty, Robert Anderson and Walter Pinney, Republicans; and Joseph D'Agata, Democrat. Giuletta and Pinney are the new members.

Town To Sue Trash Firm

SOUTH WINDSOR - The Town Council has authorized Town Attorney Richard Rittenband to go ahead with a $120,000 lawsuit against E. P. Hayes, the town's former trash collector. Hayes was fired as the town's first municipal garbage collector following months of complaints from residents that the service was erratic and trash was not picked up properly. There were also complaints that the trucks were traveling at high rates of speed on local roads. The suit against Hayes will be filed in Hartford Superior Court and will demand $119,771. The figure represents the difference between what the town would have paid Hayes under the terms of the contract and what they now must pay the new trash hauler, Trash-Away of New Britain. Hayes' contract with the town was terminated on May 30, 1979. It also includes $64,103 for the 1979-80 fiscal year and $62,663 for the 1980-81 fiscal year, according to Rittenband. Rittenband said he would not be surprised if Hayes countersued because the town has withheld $17,000 it owes the trash company, but said he feels the town is justified in filing the suit. The problems with Hayes Company came following more than 400 complaints when the contract was in operation only 13 weeks, according to local officials. Although Mayor Calfy and Young told residents they thought the service would improve after the meeting and "citizens would be very pleased" problems continued and schedules for pickup were not kept, leaving South Windsor streets littered with trash.

Club Marks 20th Year By Hosting Convention

The Twins Mothers Club of Greater Hartford which is observing its 20th birthday this year, is hosting the 19th annual convention of the National Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs, now through Saturday at the Sheraton-Hartford Hotel. Mrs. Brian Taylor, who has been a member of the local club for three years, said it currently has 80 active members. She is serving as chairman of the banquet and installation of officers ceremonies on Saturday night.

The mother two other children, Debbie, 10, and Barbara, 12, Mrs. Taylor said. "One of our biggest club projects is the exchanging of clothing and equipment with other mothers of twins. We exchange such items as cribs, highchairs, carriages, etc. It works out well, and mothers get together to discuss some of the problems involved in raising twins. "We also have mothers of triplets and one mother of quadruplets. The club is not just for mothers of twins, but mothers of multiple births." "Mrs. Wheeler has been a member of the club for four years. She also has two other children, Chuck and Brendan," she said. Attending the four-day convention in Hartford are approximately 400 members representing more than 200 clubs throughout the country. The convention includes business meetings, speakers and workshops on the various aspects of twin developments and multiple births.

Gas Lack Limits Visits To Oil Industry Museum

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — The gasoline shortage is keeping visitors away from Drake's oil well — the birthplace of the petroleum industry 120 years ago. "We've had less people because they don't have the gas to get here," bemoaned Vance Packard, son of the widely known author and an archeologist by training, who administers the historic site. Last year, 35,000 tourists paid admittance to the museum about 15 miles north of Oil City in northwest Pennsylvania. Packard estimates a 25 percent drop this summer. Col. Edwin L. Drake was looking for oil mainly for lighting and heating when he drilled into the sands along Oil Creek in August 1859. He came up with America's first commercially successful well, dug for the now-defunct Seneca Oil Co. Gasoline, an oil byproduct, was considered by businessmen of the day to be a waste product and a hazardous one at that, because of its explosive nature. But the popularity of the automobile after the turn of the 20th century changed all that. In honor of Drake's work, a replica of his well and engine house was reconstructed at the original site in 1945. The museum — the second largest run by Pennsylvania — was added later. "It's a little awesome to think that in the 120 years since then we've developed to almost total dependence on hydrocarbons," Packard said. The administrator, who took over his post in early July, plans to get the museum's steam generator going again and open up a few demonstration wells on a nearby lease. But to conserve energy, the air conditioning at the museum remains turned off. Asked if tourists realize the importance of Drake's success, he said, "If we're doing our job, they do when they leave." The 7,000 residents in Titusville have not escaped the gasoline crunch, but its impact has not been as severe as in major Eastern cities. "We've had gas lines and we had the panic," said Mayor Bob Rhoades. "It's definitely cut down on the use of the automobile." Rhoades, a drivers' education teacher in the summer, said he has noticed his students have not been talking about family vacations. "I know families that have trailers that haven't moved them this year." Most of the oil drawn from area leases are paraffin-based and are refined into greases and lubrication, Rhoades said. Oil drilled in Oklahoma and other areas is refined into gasoline. Rhoades said he expects foreign oil problems and President Carter's emphasis on domestic production to mean more pumping in the Titusville area. "We have a problem. OPEC has us at their command. We have to look away. But what the repercussions will be, what the results will be, I don't know," he said. "It's really hit home."

Zone Change Request Goes Before Commission

VERNON — The Zoning Commission will have a special meeting Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Senior Citizen Center, Park Place. The meeting will conduct a public hearing on the request of Betsy Kristofak for a zone change of property on Hartford Turnpike from Industrial to planned residential development. Also to be heard will be the request of Dwelling Development Corporation for a plan of development for land on Hartford Turnpike. The meeting will also hear proposed changes to the town's zoning laws to permit building municipal buildings in all but three of the town's designated zones. If the zone change is approved for Dwelling Development Corp. of West Hartford, it will allow construction of an apartment complex on 14 acres of land. The land consists of 25 acres but the remaining portion is already suitably zoned for the apartment complex. The complex would consist of low and moderate income apartments with one, two and three bedrooms if the developer receives approval for funding from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the rent subsidy money. Under the proposal, low and moderate income families would pay up to 25 percent of their total income on rent and utilities. A request of the Capitol Regional Education Council to build rehabilitative group homes in a residential area, which was scheduled to be heard at the last meeting of the commission, was postponed, is not listed on the agenda for the Aug. 2 meeting. The request would require an amendment to the zoning regulations which now set seven persons as the maximum limit for occupancy in a single family home. The proposal calls for establishing a group home to house eight to 10 children plus two professionally trained adults.

Road Paving Schedule set

VERNON — Ronald Hine, director of public works, has set a schedule for paving projects for the next three weeks, depending on the weather. Hine said that road alignment and leveling courses with bituminous concrete have been in progress for the past week. Starting Monday, all of the roads from the Bolton Lakes area, including Hatch Hill Road, will either be armor coated or treated with oil and sand. Hine said. Residents are reminded that travel over any roads that have either been oiled or armor coated should not be done at speeds exceeding 10 miles per hour for the first three to four days after they have been treated. The Public Works Department will post all road warnings of the oiling or paving. Hine said the town can't be responsible for oil that might get on vehicles if excessive speed is used. Once the road surfaces have had a chance to set, the public works employees will go back and sweep up any excess sand and some. Depending on the weather conditions other roads to be oiled starting Aug. 13 will be: Valley Falls, Wildwood, Brandy Hill, Reservoir, Bread & Milk, Grier, Anchorage, Foxcroft and Sycamore. Roads that will be permanently paved with bituminous concrete will probably be started about Aug. 20 and will be listed at a later date, Hine said. He said there is a weight lifting course for those age 9 and older. It will start July 31 and run for eight sessions on Tuesdays and Fridays from 11 a.m. to noon at Center Court on Route 83. The charge for this is $14 for YMCA members and $18 for non-members. Introduction to racquetball classes for those 13 and older, will be conducted Mondays and Thursdays from 9 to 10:30 a.m. starting Aug. 6 and running for six sessions. The cost is $12 for members and $15 for non-members. It will also be at Center Court. There will also be an adult class in introduction to racquetball. This will start Aug. 9 and be on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. for three weeks or six sessions. The cost is $20 for members and $25 for non-members. Tennis classes for teens and adults will be conducted on a private court in Ellington starting Aug. 7 and running for six sessions, 6 to 7 p.m., or 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The cost is $12 for members and $15 for non-members. For more information call the YMCA office at Vernon Circle, 872-7329.

Rockville Festival Slated for Sept. 29

VERNON — The Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce is making plans for its second annual Rockville Festival scheduled for Sept. 29 on the green in downtown Rockville. As with last year's event, the Vernon Police Department will conduct a bicycle auction to open the festivities. Local craftsmen and civic organizations will have displays on the green starting at 10 a.m. and the Rockville merchants are planning to have sidewalk sales that day. There will also be a variety of entertainment scheduled throughout the event. Local craftsmen and organizations wishing to participate or wanting further information should call the chamber office, 872-6587.

Showers To Be Shorter

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — University of Massachusetts-Amherst students will have to take shorter showers and endure colder rooms and less lights this winter. UMass Spokesman Art Clifford said Tuesday the $7.2 million utility budget the state Legislature appropriated for the upcoming academic year is not enough to keep pace with rising oil prices. About two-thirds of the school's 18,000 undergraduates live on campus. "We are going to have to monitor things with supreme precision," he said. "It's our best estimate right now that we're going to make it through the winter — with extreme conservation measures." "Students will have to take shorter showers. There will have to be strict adherence to keeping thermostats in the 60's. We're going to have to make sure we don't have any excess illumination. We may have to shorten hours in some buildings. We may have to curtail trips by the faculty," Clifford said.

Interim Jobs Not New to MCC Head

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

Robert E. Miller

MANCHESTER — Robert E. Miller has been through the interim president route before. Late in the 1970, the Regional Board of Trustees asked him to serve as acting president of South Central Community College in New Haven when its chief executive was suspended. Last month, he was tapped to head Manchester Community College while a search committee finds a successor to Ronald H. Denison. "It seems like I've spent all my life doing this," the affable and articulate educator said in an interview Wednesday morning. "I'm sure of a roving ambassador without portfolio."

But as the acting president of the state's largest community college, Miller has no intentions of being a caretaker official and simply wait for the new president to take over.

"No, this doesn't mean I'm simply holding the line," he said. "I was hired to serve as a full-fledged president in the same way I would serve as a permanent president. This is not a holding operation. We are making decisions."

And those major decisions include the ever-constant budget problems and the construction of the new student center to replace the one destroyed by the April 7 fire. Miller said the staff vacancies will go unfilled because there isn't adequate funding. As the president of Quinnabug Community College, he's played that tune before. "Living with a tight budget is not new to me," he said. "The community college system has never been in a position of having adequate funds to do the kinds of things they want to do. They are dramatically underfunded."

His immediate plans are to get legislative approval of the funding for the permanent campus and to have the student center constructed by Nov. 1 and in operation. As a member of the community college system, Miller has been interested in the Board of Higher Education's proposals on reorganizing the state's public higher education. After attending a meeting of that board on Tuesday, Miller said he was encouraged by some of the proposals.

"I am pleased that the Board of Higher Education voted to support the two-board concept," he said. "I personally believe that a board for two-year colleges will allow for the identity of the two-year education and an important element and will provide advocacy for the two-year colleges. There is much about the present plan that needs restructuring and further consideration. There hasn't been enough time for reaction on part of the constituent units or a well-developed rationale for some of the proposed changes."

Under the proposals, a board governing two-year institutions and one governing the four-year institutions would be established. The BHE has until Sept. 1 to come up with a comprehensive plan for the General Assembly. Since taking the MCC reins July 2, Miller has had a chance to see up close an institution he had admired from a distance. He said he's impressed with the broad scope of services MCC offers and with its "extremely well-qualified staff."

However, Miller has no intentions of becoming the college's permanent president, at least for the time being.

When he was asked to take the interim position, Miller said he made no commitment to become the full-time president. And, he added, if he does want the post, that decision will come later.

The 48-year-old acting president resides in Brooklyn, Conn., with his wife and five children. He is a fan of the Red Sox, an admirer of Thomas Jefferson and a keeper of two bee hives. Miller received all three degrees from the University of Connecticut and was president of Quinnabug Community College in Danielson since its inception in 1971.

State Board Approves Hospital Study Fund

MANCHESTER — The state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care has approved a $250,000 expenditure for a study of a proposed expansion of Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The hospital's request for the money met with approval from the commission's review panel, but not without recommendations that the hospital revise its planning committee to show more community representation.

However, the commission has recommended that the hospital add more community members to its present 23-member planning committee, which is made up of hospital staff, physicians who work at the hospital, trustees and the consulting architect who is a member of Frid, Ferguson, Mahaffey and Perry of Hartford.

The hospital is proposing an approximate $12 million expansion program estimated to take about four years to complete. The plan calls for new quarters for its obstetric and pediatric services, a reduction in the total number of beds in the 303-bed facility, a new psychiatric health care facility, conversion of a 50-bed facility to administrative offices, and demolition of the main entrance building built in 1919.

The $250,000 for the study will cover the architectural and engineering fees, as well as the cost for studying analysis financing methods, parking analysis and energy conservation.

Assistant Director Paul Moss said that if everything goes as it's supposed to go, construction could begin during the summer of 1980. However, after the planning study, there must be a certificate of need application that must be considered by both the Health Systems Agency of North Central Connecticut and the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care. This, and possible revisions in plans, could delay the estimated projected starting time for construction.

Congress, Bankers Laud Selection of Volcker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's nomination of New York banker Paul Volcker to head the Federal Reserve System has been greeted with a chorus of praise from both banking and congressional leaders.

Volcker is a widely respected economist likely to stress firm anti-inflation policies as chairman of the Fed.

His nomination was announced Wednesday along with the naming of retired Time Inc. editor Hedy D'Amico to be a senior White House adviser.

Volcker will fill the unexpired portion of departing Chairman G. William Miller's 14-year Federal Reserve term, which runs until Jan. 31, 1982.

Miller, the new Treasury secretary-designate, said Volcker's appointment "guarantees continuity in the conduct of the nation's monetary policy and provides a recognized leadership that is required if we are to assure a sound dollar internationally."

Similar opinions were expressed by outgoing Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, banking executives and the chairman of the House and Senate Banking Committees, Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Volcker, 51, has been chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank since 1975 and previously was a vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank, an undersecretary of the Treasury in the Nixon years and a deputy Treasury undersecretary in the Johnson administration.

The White House quoted Carter as saying Volcker "enjoys an outstanding international reputation" and will support "my determination to vigorously pursue the battle against inflation at home and to insure the strength and stability of the dollar abroad."

Planes Strafe Stand

LISBON, Portugal (UPI)

Two air force jets swooped low in a demonstration of a strafing attack with live ammunition Wednesday and nearly shot up a reviewing stand containing Portugal's top general.

The two Fiat G-91 jet fighters missed their targets by several hundred yards and peppered the ground only 30 feet from the reviewing stand, wounding two military cadets.

Standing on the platform were Defense Minister Lt. Col. Jose Loureiro dos Santos, Armed Forces Vice Chief of Staff Gen. Alvaro Magalhães, Army Chief Gen. Pedro Cardoso and three members of the Revolutionary Council, Capt. Antonio Marques Junior, Col. Jorge Ribeiro Cardoso and Commander Manuel Martins Gouveia.

The military men stood their ground but civilian guests dived for cover.

Several guests said the pilots of the two planes may have mistaken military maps spread on the ground in front of the reviewing stand for their target.

Job Payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Labor Department spokesman says unemployment insurance benefits, which cost the government almost $2 billion in 1978-79, now are "down to about $9.7 billion."

President Carter said in his news conference Wednesday night the amount of money spent on unemployment compensation has been cut by 55 percent during his administration.

He acknowledged that the country is headed for a recession, but said inflation should be the primary concern.

Music Curbed

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The chief of national Iranian radio and television announced his network will restrict music broadcasts to revolutionary songs and marches during the Muslim month of Ramadan starting Friday.

Ayatollah Khomeini Monday called for the elimination of music broadcasts because he considered music a narcotic drug and "treacherous."

The Kayhan newspaper Tuesday quoted the broadcast executive as saying music broadcasts were to be banned beginning Monday, but the order was postponed until today.

Radio Iran Tuesday broadcast pieces of Western classical music, Persian folk songs and military marches.

Canoe Pirates

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (UPI) — Canoeists using the Illinois River in the Cherokee County area are being warned to watch out for pirates.

Local businessmen and Oklahoma rangers are concerned about the bandits, who are pirating the inland waterway. There were similar incidents three years ago.

Archie Peyton, operator of the largest of several canoe rental businesses along the Illinois River, says he is warning his patrons to beware of men lurking along the river's edge.

He says the pirates scurry along the river bank, scuttle a canoe and then dive for belongings lost in the river's depths.

Priest Maternity?

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — The controller of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Spokane thinks it's "silly" that he and other priests have to pay for maternity coverage.

Because of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the 46 priests of the sprawling eastern Washington diocese are now required to pay 30 cents a month for maternity coverage as part of their group health plan.

"It is silly to be paying for benefits that we will never collect," said the Rev. Theodor DeJong. "We are paying something for nothing."

Jack Anderson USAF's Lockheed C-5A: 'Great Plane Robbery'

WASHINGTON - In what some Pentagon insiders are calling "The Great Plane Robbery," the Air Force has been cadging millions of dollars a year from congress to keep its controversial C-5A transport planes from falling apart in mid-air.

The price tag for the C-5A was already staggering before the wing-correction drain began. The original cost estimate was $28 million per plane, but the delivery price actually proved to be $65 million.

Other problems with the Air Force's C-5A's cracking wings from falling off in flight. The total cost of the wing correction program could eventually reach the same figure as the original cost overrun - $2 billion.

Letter from Cairo 'You American? You know Jimmy Carter'

By CATHERINE ZELLER. CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - "You American?" the taxi driver asked. It seemed an innocent question. In all my wandering in the Middle East, I have never encountered such genuine enthusiasm for Americans as in Egypt.

Yet after four weeks of handshaking, cheek-kissing and head-patting, anonymity seemed appealing. "No, no, I'm Yemeni." It was the cab driver in Texas-accented Arabic. "Where from? New York, California, Las Vegas?"

There are ways other than closing pre-trial hearings to insure a fair trial. The site of the trial can be changed if an emotional issue is involved. Prospective jurors can be questioned, as they are now, to determine what prejudices or preconceptions they have.

Pre-trial hearings are the heart of the judicial system. To close them to the public eye is to do irreparable harm to the system. To have such harm done through a 5-4 Supreme Court vote is extremely regrettable.

Thoughts We must be prepared to meet God. It is appointed unto men once to die. Death is an enemy. It's no friend.

Glastonbury To Bury Smelly Sewer Sludge

By DAVID LAVALLEE Herald Reporter - GLASTONBURY - As a short-term solution, the town is buying a piece of sewage sludge at the Town Landfill in South Glastonbury to eliminate odors given off at the landfill, Robert Pryby, director of Public Works told members of the council Tuesday night.

"It would be practical because we have much of the equipment there already. We have the laboratory space to do the testing," Pryby said.

The Town of Manchester is having a similar problem at the site where its sewer sludge has been dumped. Residents from the downwind side of the landfill have complained about the odor.

Pryby said the present method of burying the sludge is only a temporary solution. In order to solve the problem, Pryby said the town is going to have to spend around $120,000 in capital investments to solve the problem of disposing of the sludge.

"The problem we are facing is that we do not have the proper bulking agent to mix with the sludge at the landfill," Pryby said.

Thoughts ApLenTy

By Len Auster - BOSTON (UPI) - Oakland's Manager Jim Marshall has had to reach deep and far this year to find ways to cope with the never-ending series of defeats.

And Wednesday night was no exception, as his hapless ballclub continued its skidding ways by dropping a 14-1 decision to the Boston Red Sox.

"Up until tonight, Jim Rice hadn't really hurt us. And I'm sure my pitchers were envious of Mike Torrez giving up all those hits and still winning the game," Marshall said.

There wasn't much more he could say. His club has lost five straight, nine of its last 10, and 21 of its last 24 road games. The A's are 7-35 since June 1.

Rice should remember he is being paid to play baseball so he should promote it - and not expect to be reimbursed a second time.

By these antics his public image is being tarnished. He better wake up before it's too late. A call to former Cowboy Duane Thomas might help.

A's Marshall 'Has Seen Worse'

BOSTON (UPI) - Oakland's Manager Jim Marshall has had to reach deep and far this year to find ways to cope with the never-ending series of defeats.

And Wednesday night was no exception, as his hapless ballclub continued its skidding ways by dropping a 14-1 decision to the Boston Red Sox.

"Up until tonight, Jim Rice hadn't really hurt us. And I'm sure my pitchers were envious of Mike Torrez giving up all those hits and still winning the game," Marshall said.

Pitching Matchup Fails to Produce

NEW YORK (UPI) - It was to be a matchup of two of the American League's premier pitchers - California flame-thrower Nolan Ryan against the Yankees' bionic-armed Tom Seaver.

But after the second inning of Wednesday night's 9-5 Angels' triumph, both pitchers were gone - Ryan departed in the second inning with "something in my elbow popping" and John was rocked for two runs on five hits in two innings plus.

That left the door open for rookie Ralph Brantley, who pitched to two runs on five hits in two innings plus. Dave Raveering drove in two runs on five hits in two innings plus.
