Travel Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, still an unannounced candidate for re-election, will take the White House show on the road over the next several weeks to build support for his energy program — and his presidency.

Carter, taking advantage of the August congressional recess, plans to embark Friday at St. Paul, Minn., on a week-long Mississippi River journey aboard the Delta Queen for a working vacation with his family.

The colorful trip on the historic paddlewheel, which will make stops in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri before winding up in St. Louis, was expected to draw crowds along the banks. On Saturday, there probably will be a celebration aboard the boat to mark Rosalynn Carter's 52nd birthday.

Carter has made several moves in the last few weeks, purging his Cabinet and reshuffling top aides at the White House and on the Carter-Mondale committee, readying his staff for the expected late-fall announcement of his decision to seek re-election.

But in the meantime, he will take a number of "presidential" trips with twin purposes: to urge the American people to pressure Congress on behalf of his energy package, and to give his popularity polls a shot in the arm.

Beirut Ambush

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Iraqi ambassador to Lebanon, Abdel Hassain Muslem, was wounded today when gunmen raked his car with machinegun fire as he drove up to his embassy on Beirut's seaside highway.

Beirut's state-owned radio said Muslem, his driver and his bodyguard were wounded in the ambush 100 yards from the embassy.

Muslem was shot in the back and legs. "Thank God his injuries are not serious," an embassy official said. "But he is in the hospital."

Beirut Radio said unidentified gunmen fired a rocket-propelled grenade at Muslem's car as it approached the Iraqi Embassy building at 8:30 a.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT). Then they riddled the car with machinegun fire, the radio said.

Viet Attacks

LANG SON, Vietnam (UPI) — Vietnamese border officials admit they were surprised by the size of the Chinese invasion of Vietnam last winter, but say they will be ready for what many view as the inevitable next attack.

Vi Gia Le, a member of the governing council of Lang Son province, 120 miles northeast of Hanoi, said Vietnamese military forces on the border have been strengthened to face a Chinese attack he feels inevitable.

Vietnamese army regulars strolled through town, heavily damaged in the February war, as evidence of the Vietnamese build-up.

But Le refused to show visiting newsmen any of the newly strengthened defenses because of military security.

"The provincial council was not surprised at the Chinese attack," Le said. "But we were surprised at the size of the attack. Next time we won't be surprised."

Most officials who talked to newsmen said they expected another Chinese "lesson," although they would not predict when.

"We are having a temporary peace," Le said, and the flimsy shack and lean-to set up to serve soup, tea and noodles to the armed forces emphasized the fragile nature of peace along the border.

5,000 Die as Dam Bursts

India Toll May Climb

A flood unleashed by a dam break in the west Indian state of Gujarat killed an estimated 1,000 persons and buried a town under more than 14-feet of water, the Press Trust of India reported Sunday. (UPI map)

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — A dam swollen by two days of torrential rains burst open across northwestern India, washing out residents of a town and nearby village and killing as many as 5,000 people, reports from the region said today.

The Indian news agency, reporting from the state capital of Ahmedabad 300 miles north of Bombay, said the town Morvi and a nearby village were engulfed by flood waters "within minutes" after the dam cracked Saturday.

"At least 500 to 1,000 people are feared to have died in Morvi town and a village situated downstream from the Manchu dam," a Gujarat state minister was quoted as saying.

But the Indian Express newspaper put the casualty toll much higher. "Reports from our correspondent and from other nearby centers unofficially put the death toll at 5,000," the Express said.

Twenty Morvi policemen were washed away from their homes and parents spoke of watching their children being carried off by the floods, their cries for help overwhelmed by the noise of the turbulent waters.

Reporters who searched the area Sunday evening said that with 12 feet of water still in Morvi, more than half the houses have collapsed or been severely damaged.

The Press Trust of India, reporting from the Gujarat state capital of Ahmedabad, said the town of Morvi was engulfed by the flood waters "within minutes" after the dam cracked. The surging waters swept over some two-story homes as it rushed through Morvi and flattened the village downstream.

Former Morvi Mayor Mahanad Jewrani told the Indian news agency 60 percent of the homes in the area appeared to have been destroyed.

"Bodies are lying everywhere on both sides of the submerged town and the nearby areas," he said.

Fifty bodies were spotted in one Hindu temple in a densely populated area of Morvi and witnesses said it appeared more victims were trapped in the building.

The agency said 250 bodies had been taken to morgues by Sunday night and many more casualties were expected.

Water behind the dam was 15 feet above normal when it cracked in several places from pressure built up over two days of heavy rainfall, the news agency said.

It said three senior officials in Morvi were washed away by the wall of water that engulfed the town.

Dems Move to Accept State Pacts

By MARK A. DUPUIS

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Democratic-controlled Legislature today moved toward quick acceptance of the first batch of state employee contracts despite charges by some Republicans that the pacts were too expensive.

By a voice vote the House approved the first of the 10 contracts before a special session of the Legislature with a resounding "yes" vote from the Democratic side drowning out the "nays" from the GOP side of the aisle.

"I would agree with everyone here that state employees deserve an increase," said Rep. Philip Robertson, R-Cheshire. "But our major responsibility is to the people of Connecticut." Robertson said an expected downturn in the economy would make the pacts too expensive while the state will face hefty cost increases because of the pacts but less money with which to pay for the hikes.

Rep. Gardner Wright, D-Bristol, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said that a recession may be in the offing and present problems, "but that doesn't mean you can underpay your state employees."

Union leaders also expected quick ratification of the pacts. Jerome Brown, director of District 1199 of the New England Hospital and Health Care Workers Union, waited outside the House for the vote on the pact negotiated by his union, its first-ever agreement with the state. "Our membership ratified it and we expect the governor to have the Legislature ratify it," he said.

Meanwhile, a private watchdog group predicted the cost of the contracts could mean major tax increases for Connecticut residents next year.

The Connecticut Public Expenditures Council said that while Gov. Ella Grasso's administration has indicated surplus funds in this year's budget will cover the higher-than-expected cost of the pacts, no mention has been made of how the state will pay the even-higher costs of pay increases and benefits next year.

Mrs. Grasso's budget chief, Anthony Milano, has said the state expected the contract settlements for the more than 40,000 state employees to cost $18 million more than budgeted.

The CPEC said those costs will escalate to $128 million next year while revenues from the sales and gasoline taxes will be less and the state will have to boost taxes to pay for the contract settlements.

The agreements taken up today covered 18,771 of the state's 44,000 employees including college professors, clerks, social workers, parking lot police and hospital employees.

The contracts retroactive to July 1 are expected to cost $93.7 million in higher pay and fringe benefits over a two-year period. State employee contracts expired June 30 but were extended indefinitely by the Legislature.

The 12 bargaining units representing more than 20,000 remaining state workers have not yet reached contract agreements. Those pacts will be taken up by the Legislature later.

Lawmakers had planned to take up the pacts when they met in special session two weeks ago, however, put off action because none of the agreements had been ratified by the unions.

The contracts include a 7 percent pay increase, additional pay raises for those who haven't had increases in two years, improved dental and health insurance benefits, and an additional two days of vacation for employees hired after July 1, 1977

Idaho Firefighters Get Weather Break

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — The army of firefighters battling the vast Morter Creek blaze for three weeks in Idaho's primitive area finally got a break from the weather and is hopeful it can get a handle on the flames by next weekend.

Scattered showers accompanied by cooler temperatures fell on the fire zone Sunday, and more rain was forecast for today. Firemen said they could declare containment of the 100-square-mile blaze by Sunday.

Dick Leicht, a fire boss in the three-pronged attack against the flames in the rugged and roadless central Idaho mountains, said his men estimate the 70-mile plus perimeter would be lined "by early Aug. 19."

"That doesn't mean the fire will be out," he said. "It means we've stopped the fire's spread. But it won't be secure. There's a lot of hot fire inside the perimeter so we'll still have to go in and mop it up."

Leicht declined to predict a control date, "a day on which we can pack up and go home. This is not one of those fires you want to get hasty on."

The Morter Creek fire was the largest burning in the west, having consumed more than 65,000 acres of timber and brush. Some 150,000 acres of Idaho forest and range lands have been blackened this year in one of the worst fire seasons on record.

Leicht said "some 28 to 30 miles" of fire line must still be built before Morter Creek can be contained. But, with good fire fighting weather, his crews hope to build a major portion of the line today along the east and southeast edges of the fire's "head."

As half of inch of rain fell on Morter Creek — a welcome release to the 2,000 firefighters on the line.

The weather had been hot and dry since the start of the blaze.

Two other major central Idaho forest fires — one at Ship Island and the other at East Fork Kennally Creek — were expected to be contained tonight. And officials said the 36,700-acre Gallagher Peak fire on southeastern Idaho grass and timber lands was controlled Sunday night.

Two southern Idaho grass fires, which consumed 14,000 acres during the weekend, also were controlled Sunday. And three weekend fires in Montana were classified as contained and two others controlled.

A burned-out wheel bearing on a railroad freight train kicked off a 3-mile-long grass fire near Libby, Mont., late Saturday. By Sunday night it had expanded to 920 acres in commercial timber. But the Forest Service "was getting a handle on it" and predicted control by Tuesday, a spokesman said.

Forest Service Chief Max Peterson estimated last week the cost of battling the Western blazes could run as high as $6 million. But he declined to estimate the resource and timber loss.

'Jawboning' Fails To Halt Inflation

THUKMUNI, Md. (UPI) — President Carter and his top economic aides have forsworn the practice of "jawboning" to halt inflationary forces.

But the chief executive, returning to the White House today from his 54th weekend at the Camp David presidential retreat, planned to use personal persuasion on food processors in pursuit of a solution to the mystery of why lower prices for farm products are converted to ever-higher prices for food at the grocery store.

Chairman Alfred Kahn of the Council on Wage and Price Stability said last week food price increases have slowed from an 18 percent annual rate during the first quarter of the year to just over 7 percent in the second three months.

But during that second quarter, farm prices actually declined at a 17.3 percent annual rate.

"Consumers have so far not enjoyed the full benefits of those lower prices at the grocery counter," Kahn said. "Food prices at retail have continued to rise because margins have continued to increase. It is time for the American consumers to begin to realize the full benefit of decreased prices at the farm level."

Stadium Falls in Illinois

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — The roof of the Rosemont Horizon Stadium under construction northwest of Chicago collapsed early today, killing at least five workers and trapping and injuring many others inside, authorities said.

A spokesman at Resurrection Hospital in Chicago said hospital officials were told to expect five dead persons. No fire or explosion was reported, authorities said. Fire departments in Chicago and seven suburbs were sending men and equipment to the scene.

At least three persons were taken in wheelchairs to the emergency room at Resurrection Hospital in Chicago, a hospital spokesman said.

"They probably were the first ones who weren't trapped," he said. The injuries "didn't appear to be too serious at the moment." The hospital spokesman said he was "led to believe more than 50 persons were trapped."

Nicholas Kouracos, whose office is within sight of the stadium, could see "many ambulances at the scene." The stadium is less than a half-mile north of O'Hare International Airport.

"They were carting them (the injured) away like crazy," Kouracos said.

Cop Not Ashamed Of Changing Sex

A veteran Bridgeport police officer who has undergone transsexual surgery says she isn't ashamed of her new sex. Mary Collins, 37, said she can't return to her job even though she now is a woman.
Chester Collins, 37, said this weekend she has assumed the name Mary Collins, and will be assisting to clerical job in the central records division in about two weeks.
"I have to expect some flak," Collins said. "This is a medical problem. I am not ashamed of what I have done. I feel I will be capable of serving as a police officer, and I see no reason why I cannot go back on the job," she said.
Collins, a 13-year veteran patrolman, said she talked with Police Superintendent Joseph A. Walsh last week and hopes to return to duty later this month.

Fever

American child star Brooke Shields and members of the Australian film crew shooting "Blue Lagoon" are having a hot time of it - but it's not fun.
Miss Shields, 14, was running a 100-degree fever during the weekend and was sent to a Sydney hospital for a brief stay. Doctors think she may have contracted Dengue fever after being bitten by mosquitoes on film location in Fiji. Some film crew members have been stricken and ordered to bed.
Miss Shields has arrived in Sydney Friday to promote another of her films, "Till," which is about to be released in Australia.

Newest Ford

Former President Gerald R. Ford finally has gotten around to seeing his granddaughter, Ford joined his wife Betty in Pittsburgh during the weekend to visit son Michael - who is on assignment in Pittsburgh while studying for the Presbyterian ministry daughter-in-law Gayle, and only grandchild, Sarah Joyce.
It was the former president's first glimpse of Sarah, born April 22. Sarah's grandfather took a few minutes to talk politics. He said he believes any of the current major Republican presidential candidates could defeat President Carter next year, adding the Carter presidency is "very vulnerable."
Asked whether he'd like to be the nation's chief executive again, Ford said, "I haven't given it that much thought."

Motherly Advice

Lillian Carter, the president's mother, had simple advice for reporters:
"Just listen to Jimmy and do what he says."
Miss Lillian is celebrating her 81st birthday Sunday in the sleepy hamlet of Calicoon, N.Y., told reporters she would be re-elected if she chose to run again. Asked if that meant the president was considering turning down a chance at another term, she answered quickly.
"Well, he hasn't announced yet has he?"
Mrs. Carter then declined to answer any other political questions. She came to the rural Sullivan County community for the ground-breaking of the Holy Cross Church at one invitation of the Rev. Anthony Moore, who knew Mrs. Carter when he was in Plains, Ga. She was greeted by a 16-piece band and hundreds of well-wishers and curiosity seekers at a surprise party in her honor.

Royalty in Columbus

Even at the age of 86, tracking down her "boys" is still very important for Romanians-born Princess Catherine Casella. So far she has contacted 900 of them, all American POWs held in Romania during World War II.
Princess Caradja, who escaped from the Soviet satellite in the '40s, explains organizing the POWs is a "hobby" of hers she started in the 60s. She began after the Pentagon gave her names, but no addresses of the prisoners.
"There were no addresses, but I'm pig-headed, and so far, we've found 900 of the possible 1,400. The boys are getting older, but then so am I."
She came to Columbus, Ohio, during the weekend to contact three men who were prisoners during the war - Bob Dean, Richard Brannon and William T. Schirmer. All were POWs at the same time but did not know one another.

Glances

Oscar Johnson and Effie Lauritsen had a whirlwind romance and were engaged only five days before they got married in Seattle during the weekend. One possible reason for the haste - Oscar is 94 and Effie, 80, Barbara Streisand is designing two California homes, one in arid-ecode, the other Victorian.

So Far, Texas Disaster Not as Bad as Expected

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (UPI) - Scientists, politicians and reporters drawn to the Texas coast by U2 Sunday predictions are still waiting for a black tide to lay waste to an ecological wonderland. But so far, it is just talk.
Early last week, tar balls from a blow-out offshore oil well began washing up on Texas beaches, forcing the Coast Guard to pull floating barriers across the entrances of the Laguna Madre - a 115-mile-long unique wildlife waterway between South Padre Island and the mainland.
Environmentalists fear that if floating pancakes of crude reach fragile spawning areas, the preserve could be destroyed for years. So far, rare Ridley turtles that hatchlings successfully have been airlifted away from the oil.
The Coast Guard said Sunday, however, despite its efforts light particles of oil suspended about 4 feet below the surface had drifted past the booms and into the waterway.
A charter boat captain, Marvin Biggs, said globs of tar had washed up on the western shore of the Laguna Madre at least nine miles inside the containment boom. Biggs said he had seen oil atop the water at least four miles inside one 2-foot-deep boom curtain set up to protect the lagoon.
Since oil from Mexico's Itzac I well, which bubbled out of control June 3 in the Bay of Campeche, approached the Texas coast, the Coast Guard has been monitoring oil patches on the Gulf surface.
The heaviest concentrations were spotted in Sunday's fly over as the oil moved about halfway up Padre Island, about 30 miles off the coast.
"Lots of sheen was seen from the Port Mansfield out to Brownsville about 30 miles offshore with about an 80 to 90 percent sheen cover south and east of the Port Mansfield jetty," he said.
As late as Friday the heaviest concentrations were in to 15 percent.

Beach Inspection

U.S. Senator John Tower, R-Texas, spots a few small tar balls that the beach sweeper had missed during a tour of South Padre Island Sunday. The beach has been kept relatively clean, but officials are concerned about history's largest oil slick that has resumed a northerly movement. (UPI photo)

PLO Won't Compromise On a Separate Homeland

By United Press International
The Palestine Liberation Organization has pledged it will not amend its national charter, which calls for the return of Israel, and will press for a separate sovereign state - a demand specifically rejected by President Carter.
The statement Sunday came after the United States had acknowledged it was trying to work out a compromise U.N. resolution that eliminated the right of Palestinians to participate in determining their own future but not a separate state. The United States has also set PLO recognition of Israel as a precondition for direct talks.
The hard-line PLO statement came at the end of a nine-hour meeting in Damascus Sunday of the 57-member Palestine Central Council, the PLO's main policy-making body.
She came to Columbus, Ohio, during the weekend to contact three men who were prisoners during the war - Bob Dean, Richard Brannon and William T. Schirmer. All were POWs at the same time but did not know one another.

Italy's Crisis Ends, Government Seated

ROME (UPI) - Italy's longest government crisis has ended with both houses of parliament approving a minority coalition government headed by Christian Democrat Francesco Cossiga.
The final confidence vote of 513-118 for Cossiga's government of Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Liberals came Sunday night in the Senate.
Not taking part in the Senate vote were members of the third-ranking Socialist and smaller Republican parties, who abstained in the Chamber of Deputies' vote of confidence Saturday.
The powerful Communist party voted against the government and Cossiga's cabinet would not have survived without the abstentions.
The votes put an end to a government crisis that began Jan. 21 when the Communists withdrew their support from a minority Christian Democratic cabinet headed by former Premier Giulio Andreotti.
They also allowed the nation's August elections, postponed a week because of the marathon political crisis.
Cossiga was the fifth man called on by President Sandro Pertini to form a government following the June 34 parliamentary elections.
He succeeded where the others failed by convincing the Socialists, who hold 62 crucial seats in the Chamber of Deputies, to abstain even though they have no seats in the cabinet.
Fahoum said the council reiterated

Cloak and Dagger Book Tells of Intrigue in Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A new book describing cloak-and-dagger intrigues in the Middle East says there are strong indications the Soviet Union was responsible for the mysterious 1968 disappearance of an Israeli submarine with 64 people aboard.
If so, it says, the Israelis got revenge two years later when eight of their U.S.-supplied Phantom jets shot down five Russian MiG-21s in a dogfight over the Red Sea.
The Israeli victory was due to an intimate knowledge of the MiG-21 gained through study and flights in planes flown to them by defecting pilots, the book said.
The English-language edition of "The Untold History of Israel" by Jacques Derogy and Hesi Carmel is permeated by the intrigue behind the bits and misses of intelligence agencies in Middle East: the American CIA, Soviet KGB, Israeli Mossad, Egyptian and French intelligence, Britain's MI6 and others.
The biggest embarrassment of the Israeli intelligence network, the book says, was the failure to predict the 1973 "Yom Kippur" war.
The book says Prime Minister Menachem Begin, then a member of the Knesset, was one of the few Israelis who doubted intelligence reports that maintained an attack was only a "remote possibility."
"Rab logic is not the same as ours. You can never know why they will suddenly decide to set off war," Begin insisted at Matruh.
They also described the Israeli effort, which began when two Israeli Skyhawk jet fighters were attacked by Soviet-piloted MiGs on July 25, 1978, and the Israelis set a trap.
"Five days later, two (French-made) Mirage jets took off in the direction of the canal, seemingly on a routine reconnaissance mission... Above the Gulf of Zuez, they suddenly banked in the direction of the exact spot where the two Skyhawks had been intercepted... Their pilots sighted 12 MiG-21s rushing headlong at them. At that precise moment, the trap - closed. Eight Phantom jet fighters suddenly nosed into the fray."
Five MiGs were downed, all Israeli planes returned to base. A week later, Russian pilots were withdrawn from the Canal Zone.

Minority Transit Needed

HARTFORD (UPI) - Federal authorities are again telling the state to provide more buses for Hartford minorities who want to work in the suburbs.
The U.S. Department of Transportation charged a year ago that the state-run bus system discriminates against minorities and now says the little has been done to correct the situation.
The agency's new warning came in response to complaints by city officials who have been trying for more than two years to force changes in the way buses are run by the state Department of Transportation.
The federal agency's director of civil rights, Ellen Feingold, last August issued a discrimination finding in connection with the bus service.
"Express bus service from Hartford to suburban job opportunities is poor or non-existent, in contrast to the service available to suburban residents who commute to work in the city," she said in the finding.
In response, the state-owned Connecticut Transit Co. promised to improve city service. But the company has added just two new outbound routes since then.

Minority Women Victims of Rape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Young minority women walking alone at night are the most likely victims of a rapist — often a member of their own race, a federal survey revealed today.

A Law Enforcement Assistance Administration study of rape in 26 American cities in 1974 and 1975 found black and other minority women were more than 1.7 times as likely to be raped as white women.

"Rape is highly intra-racial for black and other minority victims; only a small proportion of these women reported that their attacker was white. Rape is also highly intra-racial if the attacker is white: the data contain few instances of white offenders choosing nonwhite women as victims," the study said.

At the same time, the study found white women between the ages of 12 and 19 had a higher incidence of attempted rape than minority women in the same age group.

Black and other minority women were more often involved in attacks in which a weapon was used by the rapist. But white victims reported rape incidents to the police less often, according to the survey, because they felt it was "personal."

The survey found the incidence of rape decreased among older women and those with higher incomes. And rape victims were most often single — never married, divorced or separated.

Women walking alone between 6 p.m. and midnight in open public areas were more likely to face a rape attack, the study said.

"A young woman, alone in an open public area at night, is in a potentially dangerous situation," it said. "Because few rape victimizations involve more than one victim, one suggestion (perhaps unrealistic in many circumstances) is that young women avoid being out at night alone."

The study also found that women who tried to protect themselves by screaming, running away or fighting back, greatly increased their chances of being injured. Rape patterns were surveyed in Atlanta; Baltimore; Boston; Buffalo, N.Y.; Chicago; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Dallas; Denver; Detroit; Houston; Los Angeles; Miami; Milwaukee; Minneapolis; New Orleans; Newark, N.J.; New York; Oakland, Calif.; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; San Diego; San Francisco; St. Louis; Portland, Ore.; and Washington, D.C.

Rail Crews Continue Derailed Cleanup

WESTFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Crews today continued to clean up 25 cars of a 40-car Conrail freight train which derailed while enroute from Albany, N.Y., to New Haven, Conn., damaging about 1,200 feet of track, authorities said.

No injuries were reported as a result of the derailment. Ernest Cross, a Conrail division superintendent, said the broken wheel on one of the cars caused the derailment, one of the largest ever in Westfield, at about 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

The train was carrying paper, lumber, peat moss, fertilizer and canned goods.

Ku Klux Klan Is Halted Before Reaching Capitol

MONTGOMERY Ala. (UPI) — The Ku Klux Klan ended a four-day Selma-to-Montgomery march Sunday, facing a wall of police who hustled 189 Klansmen downtown and booked them for parading without a permit.

The KKK wanted to march to the steps of the state Capitol for a rally to end their "white power march" that retraced the Rev. Martin Luther King's 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights march.

But a force of 270 state troopers, city police and county sheriff's deputies lined the highway, moving in on the Klansmen as Mayor Emory Palmer and Police Chief Charles Swindall blocked their path, Swindall barking over a bullhorn: "You are violating the law. I arrest you for that violation."

Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson, who had predicted thousands would participate in the 50-mile march, said Palmer would regret his action.

"The time is coming when Montgomery is going to suffer the wrath of the Klan," he said.

After he was released on $500 bond pending a Sept. 5 appearance in city court, the head of the Louisiana-based Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan said he still planned to march to the state Capitol, but may not try to restage the demonstration for six months.

"Chief, may I say one word?" he said. "We are marching for our rights — the last in mind created by heavy rains. They marched silently Sunday, red clay spattered on the hoods of their white robes, until they sighted the police and broke into a 'white power' chant.

The Klansmen camped out three nights — the last in mind created by heavy rains. They marched silently Sunday, red clay spattered on the hoods of their white robes, until they sighted the police and broke into a 'white power' chant.

We'd like to make baths a thing of the past.

Those leisurely hours your family spends in the bath could be cutting you a check. Because one big energy gulper in your home is the hot water heater. It alone can account for up to 15% of your home fuel bills.

So if you really want to keep your money from going down the drain, try taking a shower instead of a bath. You'll end up using only about half the hot water you normally use in a tub.

Showers are just one step you can take to cut down on your home fuel bills. There are lots of others.

Like keeping your refrigerator and freezer full, because food remains cold better than air. Not pre-heating your oven. Switching from incandescent to fluorescent lighting when convenient.

Northeast Utilities wants you to learn about even more energy-saving tips, including our Convair, Water Heating program. So write: Ralph Marone, Northeast Utilities, P.O. Box 1953, Hartford, Connecticut 06144.

When it comes to home fuel bills, we don't want you to be the one who gets burned.

Man Charged In Laetrile Treatment

MIDDLETOWN, (UPI) — A California man who told someone she had cancer, and he could cure her with laetrile and megavitamins for $5,750, has been arrested after a month-long investigation.

Harvey E. Howard, 66, was arrested at a Middletown hotel Sunday and charged with attempted first degree larceny and unlicensed practice of medicine, Chief State's attorney Hustin McGuigan said.

Howard, of Costa Mesa, Calif. and Las Vegas, allegedly used a test similar to a pregnancy test to diagnose the woman as having cancer, said Steven Solomon, an assistant state's attorney.

Solomon said Howard was convicted of unlicensed practice of medicine in California in 1973, fined $2,000 and sentenced to four years probation. The prosecutor said there is a warrant for Howard's arrest in California.

The woman, whose name was not released, had cancer many years ago but all evidence showed she was cured of the disease, said Solomon.

The woman said Howard told her she had the disease again, and could be cured in seven to nine months with his treatment program, Solomon said.

He said Howard, who allegedly finds one person to locate recruits for his treatment, arrived in Connecticut Friday and met with eight to 10 people Saturday.

There is evidence Howard had been treating people in California, Nevada and other states, Solomon said.

Part of his alleged treatment is laetrile, an apricot pit derivative banned by the federal government.

Howard was held on $1,000 in Hartford Correctional Center pending his arraignment in Middletown Superior Court today.

Priest's Case Sees Setback

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Defense attorneys for a Catholic priest accused of armed robbery suffered a pair of potentially damaging setbacks in the first week of the trial.

Twice during the first two days of testimony in the trial of the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano, Superior Court Judge Andrew Christie denied defense motions to dismiss testimony linking the 38-year-old priest to a series of holdups in the Wilmington-area last winter.

Doris Clough and Robin Bush testified that Pagano was the one who robbed their stores. Police say the robbers were all committed by a well-dressed man who carried a gun, they have dubbed the "Gentleman Bandit."

The alleged crime spree netted more than $1,000, Pagano is also accused of one count of attempted armed robbery.

UAW Uses New Tactics

DETROIT (UPI) — The economic crisis is playing the biggest role in this year's auto talks, as the automakers and the United Auto Workers Union discard old tactics for new ones the talks have never seen before.

Economic conditions and forecasts have spurred rank-and-file opposition to a strike, perhaps softening the UAW threats. And the mystery and speculation surrounding which firm would be the target should a walkout occur also has been diminished this year.

The UAW has granted strike immunity to financially-ailing Chrysler Corp., giving betters an even chance of guessing whether the target would be Ford Motor Co. or General Motors Corp.

The auto companies are appealing for moderate union demands this year and have taken as their own the government's call for a 7 percent wage hike guideline. In a precedent-setting move, wavering Chrysler has asked for special exemptions for itself.

But perhaps even more unusual is the union's concession to help Chrysler.

State Troopers Help in Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — State troopers have joined the city's undermanned police force on street patrol, hoping to halt a soaring homicide rate that has a going rebirth to the "murder capital" title the South's major city has sought to oust.

With today's signing of an executive order by Gov. George Busbee, the Georgia State Patrol will be able to assist in routine traffic duty and Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents will work with city narcotics detectives.

A limited number of state troopers began familiarization patrols of high crime areas Sunday night.

"These patrols are to familiarize themselves with downtown streets, but — more than anything else — to create a presence, to be seen," a Patrol spokesman said Sunday night.

Busbee offered the assistance to Mayor Maynard Jackson Thursday after a front page Wall Street Journal article described downtown Atlanta as a "war zone."

The governor said the entire state depends on Atlanta as its business hub and competing cities would circulate the Journal article among corporate offices and convention groups to discourage relocation to Atlanta.

Busbee said the city's crime

MIDDLETOWN, (UPI) — A California man who told someone she had cancer, and he could cure her with laetrile and megavitamins for $5,750, has been arrested after a month-long investigation.

Harvey E. Howard, 66, was arrested at a Middletown hotel Sunday and charged with attempted first degree larceny and unlicensed practice of medicine, Chief State's attorney Hustin McGuigan said.

Howard, of Costa Mesa, Calif. and Las Vegas, allegedly used a test similar to a pregnancy test to diagnose the woman as having cancer, said Steven Solomon, an assistant state's attorney.

Solomon said Howard was convicted of unlicensed practice of medicine in California in 1973, fined $2,000 and sentenced to four years probation. The prosecutor said there is a warrant for Howard's arrest in California.

The woman, whose name was not released, had cancer many years ago but all evidence showed she was cured of the disease, said Solomon.

The woman said Howard told her she had the disease again, and could be cured in seven to nine months with his treatment program, Solomon said.

He said Howard, who allegedly finds one person to locate recruits for his treatment, arrived in Connecticut Friday and met with eight to 10 people Saturday.

There is evidence Howard had been treating people in California, Nevada and other states, Solomon said.

Part of his alleged treatment is laetrile, an apricot pit derivative banned by the federal government.

Howard was held on $1,000 in Hartford Correctional Center pending his arraignment in Middletown Superior Court today.

Moslem Militants Rampaging in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Several thousand Moslem militants armed with clubs and knives stormed and seized the headquarters of a Marxist guerrilla group today in the second consecutive day of political violence in Tehran.

The militants overpowered and disarmed members of the Fedayan Khalq guerrilla group at their headquarters in central Tehran after a brief scuffle.

Several persons were taken away by ambulance to be treated for knife wounds and other injuries.

The seizure of the Fedayan headquarters followed clashes at Tehran University Sunday in which 300 persons were injured, some critically, when Moslem rightists attacked demonstrators protesting press censorship.

In today's attack on the Fedayan headquarters, several thousand militants blockaded roads and turned away traffic from the central Tehran area. Then they marched into the guerrilla headquarters and disarmed an unspecified number of the Fedayan.

Thousands of leftists and moderates, who gathered at Tehran University Sunday to protest against the closure of the Ayedgen newspaper, clashed with a smaller crowd of rightists armed with knives, rocks and bottles.

The rightists infiltrated the march from the university campus to Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's office shouting, "Down with communism." They were answered with cries of "death to fascism" and "death to reaction."

Iranian newspapers today said 300 people were treated for cuts, broken limbs and bruises. The Bamdad newspaper said some of the injured were in critical condition.

The mobs were broken up by revolutionary guards with tear gas and shots into the air.

Several hours before the clashes erupted, a new press law went into effect

Feds Sue Philadelphia Over Police Brutality

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The U.S. Justice Department has decided to file a police brutality suit against Philadelphia, sources say.

The unprecedented civil suit was expected to charge Philadelphia's police department with systematically condoning brutality and other civil rights abuses by not punishing offending officers, sources said Sunday night.

Justice Department spokesman Terrence Adamson confirmed that a request for an injunction will be filed in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia, culminating eight months of study.

"Papers will be filed in Philadelphia tomorrow morning," Adamson told UPI.

Many observers consider the police brutality problem in Philadelphia the worst of any city in the country.

Sources said Attorney General Griffin Bell personally approved the lawsuit that will attempt to force changes in the practices and procedures of Philadelphia's police department and other agencies.

In Philadelphia, Deputy Mayor Tony Zecca quoted Mayor Frank Rizzo as saying of the suit, "We welcome it."

Rizzo declined comment for himself, other than to call the suit "indiscreet."

Rizzo was not available for direct comment.

A number of violent incidents last summer, including shootings of individuals by police officers, provoked Bell's personal interest in the problem.

Bell met with citizens' groups from Philadelphia and later with a delegation of police officers from the city. Bell instructed Peter Vaira, U.S. attorney for Philadelphia, to assess the problem and make recommendations.

Meeting Planned On Fainir Strike

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) - Union and management negotiators in the 133-day Fainir Bearing Co. strike are being called to Washington.

Wayne L. Horvitz, head of the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, today was expected to call negotiators to Washington for a meeting Thursday, a spokesman for Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said.

The strike affects about 3,500 employees at the company's New Britain and Newington facilities.

Moffett had urged Horvitz two weeks ago to intervene in the strike. But he later asked the federal agency to defer a decision when state Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro announced he would personally involve himself in the negotiations.

A bargaining session in Peraro's office last Thursday failed to move the two sides closer to an agreement, prompting Peraro to withdraw. Moffett then renewed his plea to Horvitz.

About 3,300 Fainir production workers walked off their factory jobs April 23 after rejecting company contract offers. Two days later, 187 Fainir tradesmen joined the strike.

State Jail Pact In Fact-Finding

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) - State Department of Correction workers have voted to turn their contract dispute over to a fact-finding commission.

Union leaders told the rank and file before the vote Sunday that they have reached an impasse with the state over a new contract and further talks would prove fruitless.

"We've squeezed every ounce of blood from the state we can," said Dominick Badolati, executive director of Council 4, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

But some members answered with a call for a strike.

"A fact-finder isn't going to do a thing for us except stall for time. I don't want to walk a picket line in the middle of the winter, so we might as well go on strike now," one union member said.

The prison guards held an illegal 3-day walkout in 1977 before ratifying a contract they had previously rejected.

Others at the meeting at Central Connecticut State College warned a strike would be "crushed" by the state, and union workers would lose more than they would gain.

Kennedy, 27, was taken to Sweeney Spore Hospital in Plymouth Saturday where he was treated for an ankle injury and released.

Escapes Holds Four Hostages

GARDINER, N.Y. (UPI) - Police early today surrounded a private home in Gardiner and negotiated with a convicted rapist and robber who was holding four people hostage.

The convict, Richard Gantz, 28, of New York City, escaped over the weekend from the maximum-security Downstate Correctional Facility in Fishkill.

While they would not release the hostages' identities, Ulster County sheriffs deputies said the house was occupied by Gantz and "three males and one female."

Deputies said Gantz, 28, was armed with a shotgun, which he obtained at the house on rural Phillips Bridge Road in Gardiner.

A state police spokesman said the house was surrounded by about "20 to 25" state police and corrections officers, including "upper-echelon troop personnel."

New Boards' Status Aired by Selectmen

HEBRON - The status of three committees, which were approved during a special town meeting on July 30, was discussed by the Board of Selectmen at the board's meeting Thursday night.

The special meeting approved the setting up of an Historic District Study Committee, Water Pollution Control Authority, and a Town Office Building Addition Study Committee.

Of the three, only the Historical District Study Committee has scheduled an organizational meeting on Aug. 22 at 8 p.m. at the Town Office Building. The members of the committee are: Len Wooten, Craig Rowley, Alice Osburn, Edward Foote and Frederick J. Wythe.

The Water Pollution Control Authority, which has one member, Selectman James J. Burt. Representatives from the Planning and Zoning Commission, as well as the Conservation Commission, are expected to be appointed during September meetings.

Burt said that David Marwick, who chaired the sewer authority when it was an appointed study committee, and Mrs. Frost T. Krist, who served as secretary, have indicated an interest in serving on the permanent committee.

At this time the Board of Selectmen is seeking names from residents to fill the four appointments of members-at-large. Any resident interested should contact First Selectman Aaron Reid at the Town Office Building as soon as possible.

The Town Office Building Addition Study Committee is expected to meet after Cynthia G. Wilson, a member of the Board of Selectmen, returns from vacation.

Sewer Meeting Tuesday

VERNON - The Town Council will conduct a public hearing and special town meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Memorial Building on a request for an appropriation of $1.5 million for extension of sewer lines to various areas of town.

A previous ordinance which was passed appropriated $5 million and that amount was insufficient to pay the costs of the proposed sewer line extensions.

The town anticipates it will receive grants in the amount of at least $1.5 million for the project.

The project includes the extension of lines to Hartford Turnpike (Route 30), Vernon Avenue, Evergreen Drive,

Connors, Evert Lloyd Not Far Behind Best

Rushing the Net

Daniel Confident Of First Victory

JERICHO, N.Y. (UPI) — Beth Daniel was all set to record her first official LPGA victory Sunday and, although the weather thwarted that attempt, she's even more confident going into today's rain-delayed final round.

LPGA

"I felt like I was going to win. In a way I feel like this is my tournament," said the 22-year-old rookie, after a steady rain forced cancellation of Sunday's play, wiping out the four-stroke lead she had forged over veteran Judy Rankin and Donna Caponi Young.

"It was just one of those days where everything just felt great. I was hitting the ball well, stroking every putt well and had a great feel for the greens," said Daniel, who has been struggling with a confidence problem since joining the tour in January. "Of course, I'm disappointed that the round was called but the course was getting pretty unplayable."

"I may be putting a jinx on myself, but I really feel like I'm ready to win."

Only 15 women managed to complete 18 holes Sunday as play was halted once for 30 minutes in the morning and again for 45 minutes in the afternoon before officials announced that the round would be made up today.

After three rounds, Daniel, who triumphed in the world Ladies tournament in Japan last April but has yet to fulfill great expectations with INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Wimbledon champions Bjorn Borg and Martina Navratilova may be the top tennis players in the world, but Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd aren't far behind.

Although the two American stars have been on top since the early 1970s, they don't play to step down soon.

Connors, Belleville, Ill., repeated as U.S. Open Clay Court champion—his fourth crown—Sunday, defeating Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4. And Evert made it 10 victories in 32 meetings with Australia's Evonne Cawley Saturday night, 6-4, 6-3, for her fifth women's title.

"I'll be back next year and the year after," said Evert, whose patented, razor-like salvos from the baseline carried her to her 26th straight victory in this championship.

Connors said simply, "As long as it's a U.S. title, I'll play for it." The $275,000 tournament in the new Indianapolis Sports Center has been designated as one of the International Tennis Federation's 10 top competitions and officials said it will continue to grow, possibly being expanded to two weeks soon to rival Wimbledon and the U.S. Open at Flushing Meadows, N.Y.

Connors, who collected $25,000, allowed Vilas just the fifth game on a service break in the first set, but the Argentinean clay court stylist turned the tables on Connors by dominating the second set.

"They were all even through the first eight games of the final set when Connors broke service, allowing Vilas just one point, and he held his own service to close out the match in 2 hours, 17 minutes."

"I kept the pressure on him," said Connors. "I served well and I played an all around game. I was more patient. I had to let my game to beat him."

Vilas, in the finals for the first time, complained he couldn't get enough first serves early in the match.

"In the second set I just played better, but I was kind of lost in the court because he was hitting well."

Gottfried's combie singles and doubles earnings for the tournament totaled $14,662.

Given a bit more time to rest, the pair then returned to score a 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 win over second-seeds Tim and Tom Gullikson, the identical tennis twins.

In that match, Lutz-Gottfried were down 5-3 in the final set with Tim Gullikson serving at 40-15.

But they saved those two match points and went on to capture the 12-point tie-breaker, 7-1.

Gottfried Swings For Pair of Titles

DUBLIN, Ohio (UPI) — They may not call him an iron man, but Brian Gottfried is playing in the $75,000 men's Grand Prix Tennis Classic Sunday at Nutfield in a performance of high standard.

The second-seeded Gottfried rolled over the top-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami in 67 minutes, 6-3, 6-0 for the singles title, but returned later to lose the doubles with Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif.

But before reaching the doubles final, and with only a half an hour's rest following his singles victory, Gottfried returned to the court with Lutz to defeat Australians Colin Landis and Kachel in the semifinals 7-5, 7-6.

Seahawks Serving Notice

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Seattle Seahawks are serving notice on the rest of the National Football League that last year's 9-7 record was no fluke.

In their first game before a national television audience, the Seahawks put together a convincing 27-17 win Sunday over last year's Super Bowl loser, the Dallas Cowboys. The victory, coupled with last week's triumph over Minnesota, now gives the Seahawks two victories over two 1978 playoff teams.

Seahawks' Coach Jack Patera has been closely monitoring the team's running game and Sunday, he liked what he saw.

Led by Sherman Smith's touchdown dashes of 19 and 41 yards, the Seahawks outruled Dallas, 19-6.

"We wondered how good the running game would be — it's hard to tell in training camp," said Patera.

The Cowboys played without running backs Tony Dorsett and Scott Laidlaw and punter Danny White, all out with injuries.

In other preseason games, Los Angeles beat the New England Patriots, 16-3, and the New York Jets defeated Houston, 26-14.

In Saturday's games, Chicago defeated New Orleans, 13-6. Detroit punted Buffalo, 34-13. Pittsburgh edged the New York Giants, 19-3. Miami shaded Tampa Bay, 13-7. Cleveland clobbered Baltimore, 24-3. Cincinnati beat Green Bay, 20-5. San Diego blanked Minnesota, 19-0. Oakland topped San Francisco, 41-10. Denver got past Washington, 13-6. Rams 15, Patriots 3.

Pat Haden and Vince Ferragamo each threw one touchdown pass to lead Los Angeles over New England in a game played in a driving rainstorm. The victory was costly to the Rams, however, who lost running back Anthony Davis when he suffered a broken rib midway through the first period.

The Patriots, who saw their eight-game exhibition win streak snapped, could manage only a second-period field goal by David Posey.

Games Reset

Rain washed out the weekend's list of sports events. The Manchester-Middletown state American Legion Baseball Tournament clash has been rescheduled tonight at 8 o'clock at Middletown's Palmer Field, weather permitting.

The Twilight League playoff clash between Moriarty Bros. and Society for Savings was called and has been rescheduled tonight at 5:30 at St. Thomas Seminary. It's the opening in a best two-of-three series.

Dismissed Hayes Honored in Ohio

KINGS NILLS, Ohio (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old Bill Hauenstein saw nothing improper in honoring former Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes as an outstanding builder of character.

"Coach Hayes is the best," said Hauenstein of Barberton, Ohio, displaying a color poster of Hayes with "Woody" prominently penned in the corner.

"I think his record speaks for itself," chimed in his dad, Lloyd. Putting Hayes' history of temperamental on-field outbursts aside, the Hauensteins joined the Ohio Jaycees and others Sunday to honor Hayes for his "outstanding contribution to character building in America" at the College Football Hall of Fame. About 200 people attended.

Little public disagreement accompanied the announcement that Hayes, fired last December for slugging a Clemson player during the Gator Bowl, would be honored as a builder of character. Paul Ritter, a Hall of Fame spokesman, said he received "a few" calls from upset fans, which captured the Candlelight League playoff championship with the victory.

Craig Pepin and Alan Noske each had two hits and Jim Grimes belted a three-run homer for Zipers.

Leonard Impressive in Win

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Undefeated Sugar Ray Leonard pounded away at the chest and head of Pete Ranzany for four rounds before the referee finally stopped the fight.

The staggering Ranzany had had enough and with the knockout, he surrendered the North American Boxing Federation welterweight crown Sunday before a nationwide television audience.

Referee Joey Curtis halted the fight at 2:41 of the fourth round and Leonard, 147, of Palmer Park, Md., continued his surge to the world-wide welterweight title. Ranzany, 147, of Sacramento, Calif., was battered into a daze before staggering to his feet following a stunning blow from Leonard.

Scott's World

Bing's Daughter Here

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — She is the late Bing Crosby's only daughter, a fact which Mary Crosby — she's dropped her middle name, Frances — will live with all the days of her life.

Mary Crosby

Mary bears a faint physical resemblance to her parents. She's an exuberant, animated girl, determined to establish herself as an actress in her own right. She's off to a good start with a regular role in the popular CBS dramatic series, "Dallas," after a couple of years in small roles on episodic TV and one film series, "Brothers and Sisters."

Mary has hazel eyes, long brown hair and a trim figure. She's the wife of music publisher Ed Lettmer, who also is a singer and composer. She nibbled at a salad the other day in the MGM commissary during a lunch break in production and chattered about her role as Kristin Shepard.

University of Texas, mother's alma mater, for a year and a half. I was in the drama department but all I gained from that was a Texas accent. "To learn acting you have to go where it's taught all the time and not mixed with academic subjects. So I studied two years at the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco. That's where I really trained and prepared."

"I didn't want to come to Hollywood only as Bing Crosby's daughter. An unknown can flop and recover because nobody remembers. But if you have a famous name they never seem to forget the flops."

Modern Music

Erich Kunzel, who has been in the forefront of the symphony orchestra's "pops movement" for 15 years, said he believes the use of sophisticated visual effects; lasers, strobes and video screen projections eventually could create a revolution in the presentation of live concerts. (UPI photo)

Bazaar Set For Tonight

VERNON — The 21st annual outdoor bazaar, sponsored by the societies of St. Joseph Church, will open tonight at 6 p.m. and continue through Saturday night. The bazaar will be held on the church grounds at West and Union streets, Rockville. On Saturday there will be a children's matinee starting at 1 p.m. and in the evening the bazaar will end with the awarding of four grand prizes with the top prize being a 1980 automobile.

Vermont State Symphony Trying to Go Full Time

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — The Vermont Symphony Orchestra, the nation's oldest state symphony, at 45 is still a part-time operation struggling to go full time. Incorporated in 1934 and designated the state symphony in 1959, it has long been noted as a fine regional orchestra.

"We don't intend to compete with the Boston symphony," said music director Efraim Guigui. But he said, "There is a need and a demand in the state of Vermont for a permanent orchestra that would be busy every day of year, playing symphony concerts together with a ballet or opera."

"We are aiming for that, though I have learned in New England things move slow. "I've learned here that music is being spelled M-O-N-E-Y," he said. "Because we don't provide a living (for musicians), there is constant turnover from year to year."

"Each player receives roughly $1,500 annually. "We are able to bring excellent musicians to this area who are attracted by the beauty of the state and our music making."

"But then they don't stay because they have to make a living. Yet those musicians would stay in Vermont for half the salaries they would get in another state."

"The conductor told of an 'excellent cell player' who would have stayed here for half of that, but he had to go. Guigui and Joel Gratwick, the orchestra's executive director, went without pay during their first six months of work for the symphony. They now take home only half as much as others in their line of work."

"It's really been a struggle but we're getting there," Gratwick said. "We are still working well below the level paid to most because we really believe in it."

Roller Skating Craze Bonanza for Rentals

By JAMES V. HEALON

HARTFORD (UPI) — Jack Schwartz coasts all the way to the bank these days because he is in the roller skate business. And for him it's just a weekend hobby. He's cashing in on a craze that swept east in 1976 from the boardwalk at Venice, Calif., and has taken over the sidewalks of New York and almost every other piece of pavement in America.

Schwartz rents skates at $3 hourly from a van in Bushnell Park for the new outdoor trade and says he does a brisk business. He has similar outlets at the Boston Esplanade, Savin Rock in West Haven, Hull, Mass., and one in New York's Central Park. Sunday, once a day of rest, is his big day, he says.

"If the roller skating phenomenon is hard to get a handle on, then some of his rental transactions boggle the mind. One young man wanted to rent some skates from Schwartz, but didn't have a driver's license to put up as security. He asked a friend to lend him his license."

"Supposing The Man stop me, I'm not giving up my license for any skates. If The Man stop me, what am I going to do, man?" the friend said. "Pardon?" says Schwartz, 28, University of Connecticut, Class of 1970, holder of a master's degree in business administration, former member of the U.S. Men's Olympic ski team, now a salesman for U.S. Surgical Supply in Stamford.

Schwartz turns from a reporter and says, "You want to go driving, you mean?" "He want to go driving," the customer says. "I want to go roller skating, right? See, I don't have a driver's license."

"Do you have a $20 deposit and a credit card?" "Twenty dollars, a credit card?" "Nobody says you ain't coming back," one of two boys helping Schwartz says quickly.

The customer looks at his friend and says, as if there were a telephone in the van, "They stop you, you know, you just call here."

"Man, I'm not giving up my license for no skates. Buy a pair" At Schwartz's prices, $4 and up, they are not cheap, nor are they inexpensive anyplace else either. A $300 price tag is not uncommon. The customer rolls up his sleeve and says, "My name's Chuckie. Look at this tattoo. It says 'Chuckie, right?' I ain't got a driver's license, but that's who I am. What do you say?"

A deal was struck, and what it showed was that almost everybody from ghetto kids to grandpas are on skates these days. Roller skating's popularity outdoors as well as in the nation's 1,575 roller rinks, rollidiums, roller ranches, rollerdomes and so on appears to be similar to Liberae's. It took the entertainer 26 years to become a personal appearance man, he once said in an interview.

"A lot of people think that it was a sport 10, 20, 30 years ago or whenever they were kids and it just died out. And now it's a fad," says Arthur L. "Bud" Eversmann Jr., vice president of Sports International, Inc. "The only thing new about it is that those people are rediscovering roller skating as an alternative to jogging, bicycling or just as a new thing. It won't surprise me if in a few years it's around curves and the skates were able to turn while still in contact with the ground."

America wasn't receptive to Plimpton's idea and he took it to Europe where it became a rage with the upper crust. American couples-only ballad. Some have organized through the Deceptives. And roller skating was part of the Pan-Am games in Puerto Rico this year — and might be included in the 1984 Olympics, a promise that would mean even millions more for the industry in a spinoff bonanza.

Eversmann's firm was started 10 months ago to serve the market in the Boston-New York corridor. Eversmann expects to gross $2 million the first year, and $3 million to $4 million the second. He was a regional manager in Columbus, Ohio, for a company that ran a string of rinks, he prefers to call them "skating centers," but lapses occasionally. His associate is Karl Wall, the company president, whom he knew from Fort Wayne, Ind., where for the last nine years Wall ran his family's skate supply business.

His company is in the market's catbird seat because it operates a number of rinks, and it has a flooring subsidiary. These are the cushions for the distribution enterprise which caters mainly to the 6-to-15 age group. When the current fad ends, they will still be there. Just the fact change.

"We're into the outdoor market. Those people are getting into roller skating as an alternative to jogging, bicycling or just as a new thing. It won't surprise me if in a few years it's around curves and the skates were able to turn while still in contact with the ground."

skating inscriptions and a black youngster asked how much. He was told "$4 for colored and $3 for white." The kid laughed as he said, "Don't you have that backwards, bro?"

M. M. "Red" Shattuck, a St. Louis fixture in roller skating for 40 years, says the reason roller skating is popular now is that it has come out of the closet. "You can conceal the best thing in the world behind a wall, behind a locked door. "You might know that a skating rink, but you don't know what the hell goes on in there. But when people are out on the sidewalk skating, suddenly it becomes a fad and all of a sudden people go into the rink and try it," he said.

"I find it an alternative to jogging," said Dave Stasse, 35, a project engineer at the Hartford Civic Center. "I don't particularly care to run. This seems to be more fun than jogging."

Stasse skated in his native Brooklyn, N.Y. He first rented then bought skates from Schwartz. "I skate as often as I can, evenings, weekends... whenever I have some free time," he said.

"You can conceal the best thing in the world behind a wall, behind a locked door. "You might know that a skating rink, but you don't know what the hell goes on in there. But when people are out on the sidewalk skating, suddenly it becomes a fad and all of a sudden people go into the rink and try it," he said.

He was selling T-shirts with skating inscriptions and a black youngster asked how much. He was told "$4 for colored and $3 for white." The kid laughed as he said, "Don't you have that backwards, bro?"

M. M. "Red" Shattuck, a St. Louis fixture in roller skating for 40 years, says the reason roller skating is popular now is that it has come out of the closet. "You can conceal the best thing in the world behind a wall, behind a locked door. "You might know that a skating rink, but you don't know what the hell goes on in there. But when people are out on the sidewalk skating, suddenly it becomes a fad and all of a sudden people go into the rink and try it," he said.

Cape Cod Train Begins

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — For all who know what the traffic is like getting to Cape Cod on a hot summer day, it is some welcome news. The first passenger train in 16 years rolled from Hyannis to New York this weekend and Massachusetts Gov. Edward J. King says he thinks it will be a smashing success considering the energy crunch.

The last Cape Cod to New York run was made in 1963. Two years before that the New Haven Railroad had eliminated its Cape Cod to Boston passenger service. It has been predicted that full passenger service will be restored next summer with Boston service back by 1982.

Gov. King Saturday was aboard the first demonstration trip of the revived rail service. He said he hopes the service will be restored sooner than predicted. "I don't see why we can't speed up the projected date for passenger service to Boston," he told the group of residents gathered to make a trial run between Barnstable Village and Hyannis.

"I'll be talking to Transportation Secretary Barry Locke and METRA Chairman Robert Foster about moving up that date," he said. King led a group of federal, state and local officials aboard a sleek, 85-ton diesel-powered Budd Co. car for the brief ride.

The SPV-2000 vehicle is the newest railroad car in the country and is the type scheduled to be used when service is restored on both Boston and New York lines. This week the Budd train is scheduled to make daily demonstration runs between Buzzards Bay and Hyannis.

Scientists Trying To Save Condors

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — breeding, however, because they adapt quickly and more successfully to an environment. Bormann said. Older birds will be tagged, equipped with radio "beeping" devices and released for further population studies. The San Diego Zoo plans to use its Wild Animal Park, a scheduled 1,800-acre enclosure northwest of San Diego, for the breeding attempt.

The 200's condors will be kept in a part of the park closed to the public, and zoo spokesman Jeff Joett said there are plans to install a closed-circuit television system so park visitors can view the birds without disturbing them.

While most biologists feel the captive mating program is necessary, they are only cautiously optimistic about the outcome. "It's a definitely a last-ditch effort," Bormann said. "There's no guarantee it will work, but it's the only chance we've got."

Even if the program is successful, it will be 30 years before California condors bred in captivity will be returned to their native habitat, Bormann said. Officials with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Audubon Society met with California's Department of Fish and Game endangered species office this week to plan the program.

Under the current proposal, about 10 birds — five pairs — will be captured, perhaps as early as next year, for breeding. The first four are to go to the San Diego Zoo and others will be sent to zoos in Los Angeles and Santa Cruz. The only captive California condor, a male named Topa Topa, is at the Los Angeles Zoo and officials hope to catch a mate for it. The birds will not be harmed during the capturing process, biologists said. Most of the traps being considered would use meat as bait with some kind of triggering device for a net.

Northern Ireland Notes Ten Years of Violence

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) - Hard-line Protestants and Catholics marked a decade of bloodshed in Ulster this weekend just as it began - with sporadic violence and parades signaling both sides' determination to continue the struggle.

Protestants in the province. It was the same anniversary march in 1969 that set off the full-scale riots in the Catholic Bogside quarter and led to the dispatch of the British troops.

What began in the 1960s as a civil rights crusade to improve the lot of the province's Roman Catholic minority escalated into a civil war that has defied solution.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) - Nicaragua's new provisional government freed 268 former soldiers of ousted dictator Anastasio Somoza's national guard Sunday, the first act of mass clemency since the government assumed power nearly a month ago.

The soldiers had been held as prisoners in the Morero fall in Tipitapa, 12 miles north of the capital. "We will give liberty to thousands more," Minister of the Interior Commander Tomas Borge told the soldiers upon their release.
