Not Personal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The U.S. Justice Department says it will continue to prosecute the city on police brutality charges even after Mayor Frank Rizzo leaves office in January.

"We bring these cases because we think there's a need," said U.S. Attorney Peter Vaira. "We don't bring them because of personalities. It's not a vindication or attack on anybody."

The civil suit, filed Aug. 13, accuses Rizzo and other high city officials of pursuing "internal administrative policies" which deny the rights of all citizens, primarily blacks and Hispanics, and asked for a court order to halt the alleged practices.

Illegal Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of the thousands of soldiers who passed their entrance tests with illegal coaching help from Army recruiters may be forced to leave the service, a military spokesman says.

So far, the Army has relieved 47 recruiting sergeants and one supervising officer of their duties in a three-month investigation of alleged recruiting fraud in seven states — possibly the largest such probe in Army history.

The investigation began in June after a computer analysis of scores on entrance examinations showed "inconsistencies" indicating the recruits may have gotten illegal coaching. Maj. Jeff Cook, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon, said in a telephone interview Sunday.

Asked if some of the recruits might be forced out of the Army, Cook said: "That remains to be seen at this point in time and we'll deal with that on a case-by-case basis, but we have not taken specific action on this."

Long Swim

BIMINI, Bahamas (UPI) — Diana Nyad, with a firm stroke and aided by good weather, was 5 1/4 miles off the Florida coast today in her quest to become the first person to swim across the swift flowing Gulf Stream from Bimini to Florida.

At 7 a.m. EDT, her support boat radioed she was 5 1/4 miles from shore, due west of Lake Worth, Fla., which put her right in the middle of the Gulf Stream.

Ken Gundersen, her chief aide, said his best guess was that she could reach landfall at Jupiter Inlet north of Palm Beach, but that was only a tentative guess. There was no estimate what time she might be able to break out of the Gulf Stream and reach shore.

"They say she is swimming strongly, and the weather is good," said Lupe Gundersen, a Nyad aide on shore.

PM Resigns

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Charan Singh resigned today rather than face a vote of confidence in Parliament without the support of former premier Indira Gandhi's faction of the Congress Party.

The decision to resign was taken at an urgent meeting of the 23-day-old Cabinet held only hours before Parliament was scheduled to consider the confidence motion.

The latest tabulation showed Singh's minority government commanded only the support of 236 members of the 539-member Lok Sabha (lower house) — 34 votes short of a majority.

Mrs. Gandhi, who though she no longer holds a parliamentary seat controls 73 votes in the lower house, helped Singh topple former Prime Minister Morarji Desai's Janata Party government July 15, leaving India without an effective government for the last month.

Khomeini Blasts Dissidents

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini lashed out today at Kurdish leaders seeking autonomy in western Iran, branding them "charlatans" and "semites" and calling for their arrests.

The emotional attack came a day after Khomeini banned the Kurdish Democratic Party and ordered a general mobilization following four days of fighting that claimed 400 lives.

Responding to Khomeini's condemnation of the KDP as the "devil's party," Moslem militants demonstrated in Tehran and other cities to demand the execution of Kurdish leaders.

Khomeini accused the Kurds of trying to commit "fratricide" on the eve of the opening meeting of the newly-elected constitutional assembly, the consultative body chosen to study Iran's proposed Islamic constitution.

He called on the Kurds to seize their leaders and hand them over to authorities of his Islamic regime.

The strife-torn Kurdish region of western Iran was reported calm today, but massed Iranian troops remained on special alert for a possible counterattack by Kurdish rebels, who were routed in a weekend battle on the Iraqi border.

Tensions were high Sunday after Khomeini issued his general mobilization call for the military, but there were no reports of new clashes.

However, the state-run PARS news agency reported 30 bus passengers traveling from the northwestern Azerbaijan region to Kurdistan in the south were seized as hostages Sunday. Their fate was unknown.

Sheikh Sadeq Khalkhali — the Islamic judge who reportedly sent several commando squads to Mexico in an attempt to have the former Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi killed — left for west Iran "to investigate the situation in Kurdistan created by a number of saboteurs."

Hundreds of thousands of Iranian irregulars, armed with an assortment of weapons, were put on alert Sunday after Khomeini's mobilization order.

Khomeini also ordered all Kurdish political groups dissolved immediately, but it was unclear what action was contemplated against two key Kurdish figures, Sheikh Ezzeddin Hossaini and Abdol Rahman Qassemlou, who Khomeini condemned as "corrupt."

The state radio said several demonstrations took place in several cities urging the two to be executed.

Iran's prosecutor-general also ordered the shutdown of the Peygham-e Imrouze newspaper, which had been outspokenly critical of the government. The move was the latest in a series of newspaper closures ordered by the government and reports indicated another dozen newspapers would be closed soon.

Dennis Ringer, 32, of Rochester, N.Y., left takes careful measurements of the bubble blown by 12-year-old Mary Ann Rehberg, right, as the two participate in the First Annual Guinness World Records Festival, in Rochester Saturday. The festival included stunts at egg-throwing, pipe smoking, leg-stand on one leg, and bubble-gum blowing, among others. (UPI photo)

Carter Says Young Still Under Control

ABOARD THE DELTA QUEEN (UPI) — President Carter says United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young is being pressured by administration critics to speak out before he leaves office, but he is not a "free voice" and will remain under White House control until he steps down.

Shortly after a late afternoon appearance in Prairie Du Chien, Wis., Carter met casually with reporters for nearly an hour around a white wrought-iron table on the sternwheeler riverboat's "Texas Deck."

Carter was dressed in a blue long-sleeved shirt, rolled up at the cuffs, and in gray trousers. Several times during the conversation he got up and waved to people along the bank and in boats who shouted for his attention.

He appeared hesitant to discuss the departure of Young, a long-time friend, who was forced to resign last week because of revelations he violated U.S. policy by holding a talk with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"Of course Andy is under a lot of pressure. I mean influence, to talk as if he were a free voice," the president said. He said Young does not have such freedom because he "is still my ambassador to the U.N., with restraints."

Carter said he had thanked Young for the way the outgoing ambassador had handled his resignation and said he expected Young to be active in his re-election campaign next year.

In regards to a successor to Young, Carter said he had seen signs during his visit in Iowa earlier in the day "encouraging me to appoint Dick Clark," the former Democratic Senator from Iowa who was defeated in 1978.

Asked if he had any candidates in mind, the president replied, "I deliberately am waiting until I get back" from vacation before considering replacements. When asked whether he would look for a black to fill the post of the former civil rights activist, Carter said "not necessarily."

His chat with reporters was his first direct contact with the news media since July 26. Only in frequent-ly has the president engaged in such a conversational format.

After his river boat trip and a rest at Camp David, Carter said, he will go to Atlanta Aug. 30 and on to Florida for two stops the same day. He said he would spend the following three nights at Plains, his hometown in Georgia.

Pot Ingredient Helping Patients

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some patients who have been given the active ingredient in marijuana to help control nausea and vomiting from chemotherapy treatments report positive results, physicians at Georgetown University Hospital report.

Nausea and vomiting are frequent side effects of some of the most effective drugs used in cancer chemotherapy, and response to conventional drugs is "varied and unpredictable," according to John S. MacDonald, associate professor of medicine at the hospital's Vincent T. Lombardi Cancer Research Center.

Some patients even refuse the needed chemotherapy in fear of the side effects.

For the past 10 months, 17 outpatients at the center have been participating in a clinical test of the effectiveness of the marijuana medicine THC — tetrahydrocannabinol — to reduce the often severe effects of chemotherapy.

To be eligible to receive THC, a patient must be suffering from severe nausea and vomiting from cancer chemotherapy, and all other standard remedies must have been tried and failed to control the side effects.

The test is being conducted as a "double-blind" study, in which neither the patient nor the doctor directly involved knows which drug is being administered any particular time.

The patients are then asked to evaluate their responses to the drug. So far, the center reported, only two of the 17 participants have reported adverse reactions to THC, and his first reported no difference.

The remaining 15 patients involved in the study experienced varying degrees of relief from the THC.

MacDonald speculated that the two adverse reactions occurred because of the patients were not psychologically able to tolerate the altered state of perception that occurred with the use of THC.

Envoy Finishes Mideast Shuttle

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — U.S. Middle East envoy Robert Strauss ended four days of delicate shuttle diplomacy between Israel and Egypt without gaining either country's approval of a Washington proposal for a new U.N. Security Council resolution defining Palestinian rights.

Strauss, who departed for Washington today, said both Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat raised "very serious questions and reservations" about the U.S. proposal.

"I shall faithfully report on those reservations from Egypt and from Israel to the president and to the secretary of state," Strauss said after a final two-hour meeting Sunday with Begin.

An Israeli report quoted well-placed sources as saying Strauss was "almost stunned" by identical Egyptian and Israeli rejections of any American attempt to tamper with existing U.N. resolutions on the Middle East.

Begin expressed confidence "our American friends will consider the problem again" and "thus the deep friendship between our two countries — the warmth and the cordiality of the tie between the United States and Israel — will continue."

The Palestinian issue has been the center of a widening rift between Israel and the United States over the last month.

Young Claims Begin Stubborn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Outspoken U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young says U.S.-Israeli relations should be redefined, but the difficulty of such a move is increased by the "stubborn and intransigent" government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Young, in a television interview, also described the long-standing U.S. policy of refusing to talk to Palestine Liberation Organization officials as "kind of ridiculous" because it prolongs the problems in the Middle East.

And he told questioners the State Department knew of his controversial meeting with a PLO official a few days after it occurred July 26. The department later disagreed, but indicated it had some indication of a meeting before Aug. 11.

"Here it is four, almost five years later, and we are still in no communication with an organization that seems to have the support of a good part of the Arab world," said Young.

CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program said Young's meeting with Terzi precipitated a storm of protest from Israel and Young's subsequent decision to resign.

State Department officials earlier had said they did not know off the meeting until they questioned Young in response to press queries Aug. 11. But Young said Sunday he has seen a State Department report containing a detailed, and in some cases, almost verbatim account of his meeting with Terzi.

Record Session

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — U.S. ambassador to the U.N. resigned following an unauthorized meeting he had with a PLO official in New York. The meeting was in violation of U.S. policy to avoid contact with the PLO until it recognizes Israel's right to exist. It precipitated a storm of protest from Israel and Young's resignation.

The Israeli Cabinet, backing Begin's rejection of the U.S. proposal, said Sunday, "Israel unequivocally rejects this American proposal which contradicts the commitments of the United States to Israel."

Strauss indicated the United States will veto a resolution proposed by Kuwait if it calls for an independent Palestinian state. But Washington reportedly wants to avoid confronting the Arabs with a veto and proposed a compromise resolution. It would be based on language used in the Camp David accords that recognizes "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and their just requirements" as well as their right to "participate in the determination of their own future."

Strauss offered the Israelis some reassurance before he left. "I leave here with as firm a conviction that I have ever had in my life with respect to the strongest ties and bonds of friendship between the United States and between Israel," he said.

Colson Loses Bid But Gets Laughs

More than 100 neighbors were at a meeting of the Arlington, Va., Board of Supervisors Saturday to hear the fate of Charles Colson's bid to taximize Arlington church so it could become headquarters for Colson's Prisoners' Prisoners' Evangelizing Group for offenders. The board rejected the application by a 4-1 vote and the spectators applauded, even through Colson, a convicted Watergate turned evangelizing Christian, entertained them while they waited for the main attraction. A police officer for appearing nervous, Colson quipped, "The last time I was in a courthouse I got one to three years."

Once Is Plenty

A couple of 19-year-old college kids showed up in Fallbrook, Calif., Saturday at the end of a six-week, 2,900-mile, coast-to-coast bicycle trip with a lot to say about their trip. "It was a challenge to see the country, and it was an inexpensive vacation," said John Duff, who pedaled out of Fort Lee, N.J., July 5 with a friend, David Wilson. But it wasn't all roses, with some especially rough going through the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania and the Blue Ridge Mountains in Virginia. "Six weeks on the road is a long time," Duff said. "I feel good, but I wouldn't do it again."

Some Friends

The great minds have written notes on the nature of friendship — Cicero and Aristotle to name just two — and certainly both would agree that Charles D. Jennings' friends are no friends at all. Just take Saturday night, when Jennings, 23, of Wilmington, Del., was hauled in by police in Newark, Del., on charges of committing 257 burglaries in the area in the last five months. Jennings told police he gave the money he took to friends, but the friends apparently disappeared because Jennings could not post his $2,500 bail.

What Price Love?

It's costing them $138 a month in Social Security benefits, but apparently it's worth it to Charles Lott and Sharlene Sanders to be married. Because of a flaw in the Social Security laws, the Lotts, both blind, will now be collecting a combined $363.44 a month instead of the $502.09 if they were still single. After the wedding, performed Saturday in Belleville, Mich., Lott, 45, said he and his 32-year-old wife could have just lived together, but noted: "If others want to do it, it's their business. I think they're going to have to answer to God for it."

Strange Role

The latest dramatic role of activist actress Venessa Redgrave is that of Fania Fenelon, a Jewish woman who survived Nazi Germany's Auschwitz death camp. Only the real Fania Fenelon isn't so sure the right actress for the part is Miss Redgrave, who is vocally pro-Palestinian. "The problem is she can't be me, even if she wants — even if she understands our suffering and the 6 million people killed," Fania Fenelon said on CBS's "60 Minutes" Sunday. "I can't accept somebody playing me who is in a way 'anti-Semitic.'"

Quote of the Day

Singer Lena Horne, who recently turned 82, on her prospects for collecting Social Security payments soon: "I'm glad I'm getting to the point where I can collect some of it. I had to wait a long time to get here."

Glimpses

Comedian-activist Dick Gregory was able to end week-long hunger strike Saturday at the Gander County Jail in Metter, Ga., when a judge commuted his 20-day sentence for an anti-death penalty rally. Yankee pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who suffers from juvenile diabetes, was honored at New York's Yankee Stadium Sunday by the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation.

Petitions Force Hearing On MHS Football Budget

By LANEY ZUBOFF Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Several concerned residents went door to door to get over 600 signatures resulting in tonight's hearing on the high school football budget which presently cannot support the 124 students showing interest in the sport. According to high school coach Jack Holik, the present budget of $13,838, allows for only 90 players. The hearing is scheduled for 7 o'clock tonight at 45 N. School St. and Holik said he will be there along with many other residents wishing to voice their opinion on what they feel is a necessary budget increase. "We don't want to cut anyone," Holik said Monday. If there has to be a system to decide which students get to be excused, Holik said, "I don't know what we're going to do. We'll take it one step at a time." Holik did say however, "there are several different ways to handle it," mentioning equipment modifications to cut costs as a probable method. In the past, football players have solicited door to door, selling light bulbs, candy and cosmetics to subsidize the program "but the administration wasn't keen on that idea," said Holik. Holik said there are tentative plans to hold a dance, car wash and other activities which will allow the players to contribute their time in other ways. "The issue behind the whole thing," said John Quaglia, Jr., one of about ten organizers, "is how do you choose who can play and who can't." Quaglia said he could accept the fact the board wanted to test the interest in the program "but I can't except cutting interested kids out." "You can't neglect the kids," said Quaglia, who concedes he doesn't fully understand what considerations go into the budget making process. "The kids are a necessary investment and the program warrants more money," he said. Quaglia said the board required 500 signatures before they would schedule the hearing, and he said that because the community is "sports minded" there were even more than the 600 who signed the petition who support a budget increase for the program "but we had a limited amount of time to gather the petitions," said Quaglia. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said Monday he wouldn't speculate on what the board's decision would be. "I can only recommend. The problem is the board's budget has had spectacular price increases in all the items involving petro; transportation, gasoline, fuel oil, heating and others," he said. Quaglia is optimistic about the hearing. "If there's an active interest shown by townspeople the town has always been able to pull it off," he said.

U.S. Espionage Expert Critical of FBI Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An expert acknowledges that U.S. intelligence agencies are unable to detect a spy within their ranks — and probably won't be able to do so without using lie detectors and other surveillance tactics.

Donald Stewart, a former FBI espionage supervisor and Pentagon security investigator who is an expert on counterintelligence, said Sunday: "With all due respect to the FBI — what with the guidelines and restrictions it has to work with today — it couldn't catch a cold." Following last week's arrest of Navy Yeoman Lee Eugene Madson on charges of stealing secret documents, Stewart said, "for many years, we have been unable to detect a spy within our ranks." Madson has pleaded innocent to charges of stealing classified documents from a Pentagon intelligence center and attempting to sell them. Information from a tipster led to the arrest. Last year, William Kampiles, a CIA trainee with only eight months experience, was convicted of selling the Russians a copy of the operations manual for the secret KH-11 spy satellite.

The CIA was unaware of the security breach until a private citizen informed on Kampiles. Under current screening procedures, Stewart said, efforts to check the background of FBI and intelligence service recruits are hampered by the Privacy Act and the possibility that any information collected may have to be made public later under Freedom of Information Act requests. As for lie detector tests, he said, only the code-breaking National Security Agency screens its civilian recruits with the polygraph. But military recruits, who comprise most of the NSA's code breaking and communications monitoring staff, are not polygraphed — nor are military or civilian recruits for the CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency, FBI, the Secret Service or the intelligence branches of the State Department, Army, Navy and Air Force.

"We don't even check the fingerprints of people when they enlist in the enlisted ranks of the military services," Stewart said. New and junior employees like Madson and Kampiles often are given routine jobs as "watch officers" in key communications centers, he said, giving them access to the most sensitive of national security matters. "There should be a stipulation that all personnel holding a top secret clearance must, at the direction of the agency, be subject to a periodic polygraph examination," Stewart said.

Eighth District Board To Talk about Sewers

MANCHESTER — The South Windsor-Manchester sewer problem is expected to be discussed at tonight's regularly scheduled meeting of the Eighth Utilities Board of Directors.

The meeting begins at 7 in the Eighth District firehouse. District President Gordon Lassow scheduled an informal meeting Aug. 1 with Public Works Director Jay Giles. However, since so many directors wanted to attend the meeting (and a quorum would have violated the Freedom of Information Act because no public notice was given), Lassow and Giles agreed to discuss the matter in the formal meeting.

The Town of Manchester and the Town of South Windsor have agreed to accept sewage from each other in those areas where it is easier to send sewage to the other town. However, South Windsor officials said the agreement may be scuttled because the Eighth Utilities District is the sewer authority for the Manchester property in contention. They feared the district could prevent the installation of sewer lines in its area. Manchester officials, however, said they can install lines in the area, but cannot provide service where the Eighth District maintains authority.

Grasso's Nuke Support Blamed for Solar Lack

HARTFORD (UPI) — A private institute says Gov. Ella Grasso's support of nuclear power is partly to blame for Connecticut having only a fraction of the solar energy systems called for in presidential energy goals.

The Washington-based Solar Energy Institute Research Institute of North America said Connecticut is expected to have 850 solar systems by the end of the year, while President Carter's energy goals call for 8,200. Connecticut ranked 20th in the nation in solar system installation, behind first-place Hawaii and many of the states in the so-called "Sunbelt," the institute said. The institute, in its annual report released this weekend, said the reasons for Connecticut poor showing were a lack of goals for installation of solar systems and the state's failure to spend money to promote them.

Institute director Luana Moore said the governor was also to blame, because "she's not a leader for solar energy." Ma. Moore said although the Democratic governor was a nuclear power advocate, recent speeches indicated she may be changing her position.

Main Flushing Scheduled

MANCHESTER — The Water Department will be flushing water mains from today through Thursday in the following areas of the water system: Between Center and West Center streets and Hartford Road, from Pine to McKee streets.

There may be discoloration of water and reduced pressure during the flushing. If water appears discolored, the homeowner should try to avoid using it until it clears. This will prevent rust and sediment from being brought into the home's system. If sediment does get into a home's hot water tank, the homeowner should wait until the water clears and then open the faucet at the bottom of the tank to drain the collected material, which will settle at the bottom.

Also, if a load of wash is done during the period of discolored water, the load should be done again after the water clears. Four ounces of cream of tartar should be added to help clean any discoloration of the clothing. If normally takes a couple of hours for the water to clear in a home, it may appear discolored for an extended period, the homeowner should call the Water Department at 647-3115.

Housing Authority, Architect Will Meet

MANCHESTER — The Housing Authority is expected to meet with the architect Wednesday night at its regularly scheduled meeting and discuss the proposed 40-unit elderly complex on Spencer Street.

Hartford architect Dominic Cimino will present preliminary plans for authority review before they are submitted to the state for approval. Authority chairman Pascal Mastrangelo said the preliminary and final stages of the plan must receive state approval before any construction begins.

The authority is seeking $5,000 front money from the town for design fees and other preliminary work. Only after the plans have received final approval, Mastrangelo said, will the town be reimbursed by the state. The state Bonding Commission has allocated $100,000 toward the project while the state has appropriated an $800,000 grant.

Baker Knocks Bureaucracy

HARTFORD (UPI) — Republican presidential hopeful Howard Baker says the federal government has grown "fat and lazy" and is too big for its own good. Baker preached the traditional Republican philosophy of depending less on the federal government and more on the private sector. He said government-induced decline in productivity has contributed to inflation, an unfavorable balance of trade and "economic sluggishness that now threatens the second serious recession in five years. "I believe government that takes $100 to $200 billion out of the economy every year to satisfy its appetite for regulation is a government that has grown too fat and lazy and too big for its own good," said the Senate Republican leader. He spoke at a state GOP seminar Saturday at Trinity College. Baker believes the federal government has been "discouraging, even punishing" growth for a long time, and he has come to our present state of economic distress as a direct result of that misdirected policy. But he didn't lay the blame solely on President Carter, whom he hopes to challenge next year. "Congress is almost as much to blame as the administration for the lack of a national energy program," he said, adding the only way to get out of the energy problem is to increase domestic production. He called for deregulation and decontrol of oil and gas prices, a windfall profits tax and a strong plowback provision to encourage the oil industry to use revenues generated by higher prices for domestic production. Baker said his toughest competition for the GOP nomination was from former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whom he called the "clear-front-runner today." But the Tennessee senator said he did not believe Reagan would still be out front by the time of the national GOP convention next July in Detroit. Baker said he plans to make for as many as 100 miles, simultaneously by land or by air to get to Congress. The Water Pollution Control Authority also lacks the power of condemnation unless it has the approval of the Town Council. ### Attorney Recommends Lease

COVENTRY — Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel will tell the Town Council tonight, that he feels that a charge of $1 a year should be paid the town for the lease of a parcel of town-owned land. The town was asked, by the North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department, to lease the land for the purpose of building a new fire station. Schwebel said in order to make the lease valid the $1 a year must be paid. When the matter was brought up at a recent meeting some council members said they feared there was a danger that the department might, at some time, forget to pay the $1 a year and this would cause problems. Schwebel said in order to avoid such a problem, the town should write in a clause, in the lease, which will require the town to notify the fire department, in advance, that the $1 charge is due to be paid. He said an alternative would be to provide for an automatic deduction from the fire department's budget appropriation each year. The council will decide which method to pursue when it meets tonight at 7:30 in the Town Hall.

Area Police Report

Bolton Richard Andriol, 30, of 307 Cooper Hill St., Manchester, was charged Sunday with second-degree criminal assault in connection with the investigation of an incident at the Three J's Restaurant at Routes 44A and 86. State Police said that Joseph Faulkner of 13 School Road, Andover, was hit on the head, from behind, with a beer bottle during an unprovoked incident at the bar. Police said Faulkner received a head laceration that required eight stitches. He was treated and discharged at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Andriol was taken to the Hartford Correctional Center in lieu of posting a $1,000 bond. He was to be presented in court in Rockville today. Vernon Randall E. Flanders, 25, of 65 High St., Rockville, was charged Friday night with reckless driving, evading responsibility, driving an unregistered motor vehicle and driving without a license. Police said Flanders was arrested on Main Street where he was allegedly driving a motorcycle in a reckless manner and knocked down a 10-year-old pedestrian who suffered minor injuries. Flanders was released on his promise to appear in court in Rockville on Aug. 28. Joan Collar, 47, of 37 Bissell St., East Hartford, was charged Friday with unsafe backing in connection with the investigation of an accident on Kelly Road, police said. Police said the Collar car allegedly collided with a car driven by Robert J. Pugliese, 18, of Hartford Turnpike, Vernon. Ms. Collar has a court date of Sept. 7. Juan Lopez, 23, of 82 Union St., Rockville, was arrested Saturday on a rearrest warrant charging him with breach of the peace, threatening and failure to appear in court. He was released on a $100 bond for court appearance on Aug. 28.

Retarded Patients Told To Leave Nursing Home

HARTFORD (UPI) — Saying he can't "wait for a disaster," state Mental Retardation Commissioner Gareth Thorne has ordered the transfer of 74 mentally retarded patients from the Lorraine Manor nursing home. The patients will be transferred from the private facility in Hartford to the Mansfield and Southbury training schools, Thorne said this week. They had been moved from Southbury to Lorraine Manor in 1977 because of overcrowding. Thorne said the patients were being transferred because of low staff morale at Lorraine Manor and worry that the home may soon be unable to operate because of financial problems. The nursing home has been receiving about $10,000 a day in state and federal funds to care for mentally retarded and psychiatric patients, but faces possible loss of those grants because of alleged serious deficiencies in patient care, staff training, program development and administration. The allegations are being probed by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "I am not going to take any chances. The management can't continue to operate as a facility for the mentally retarded under these circumstances," the commissioner said. "I simply can't wait for a disaster." The mortality rate among mentally retarded patients at Lorraine Manor earlier this year drew sharp criticism to the facility, which Thorne said was "losing money hand over feet." A spokesman for Abraham D. Gosman, Lorraine's owner, said Gosman "may have gotten in over his head" when the home began accepting mentally retarded patients. Gosman had said earlier he wanted the mentally retarded patients removed because they required more attention than the staff of the private nursing facility could give them. Gosman recently brought in a panel of three nationally known consultants on mental retardation to review the situation. They agreed that the patients should be removed and criticized the state for its policy of placing retarded people in nursing homes and large state facilities such as Mansfield and Southbury instead of smaller facilities. Fifteen of the Lorraine Manor patients will be moved to Mansfield and the rest will go to Southbury, Thorne said. The problems at Lorraine and other nursing homes have prompted Gov. Ella Grasso to name a nine-member blue ribbon panel to review the state's nursing home industry. Three Republican lawmakers also have called for a sweeping probe of the industry by the Legislature.

Powers Of Panel In Doubt

COVENTRY — With state statutes requiring that all town Sewer Authorities now be changed to Water Pollution Control Authorities there has been some question as to just what powers the new group has. Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel said that the provisions of a more recent act clear up the possible problem created by the previous act which appeared to be giving the powers of the Sewer Authorities by creating the Water Pollution Control Authorities. Schwebel said that the Public Act 79-391 makes the Sewer Authority, which was created before Oct. 1, 1978 in Coventry, the Water Pollution Control Authority, automatically. "The new Public Act, 70-391 also validates all acts of Sewer Authorities from Oct. 1, 1978 to the effective date of the new act, June 1, 1979," Schwebel said. "The new Public Act, 70-391 also validates all acts of Sewer Authorities from Oct. 1, 1978 to the effective date of the new act, June 1, 1979," Schwebel said.

The Water Pollution Control Authority does not have the power to control septic systems connected with single family homes that are not within an area serviced by sewers. This power is within the jurisdiction of the town's Board of Health and the town sanitarian. The Water Pollution Control Authority also lacks the power of condemnation unless it has the approval of the Town Council. Baker said his toughest competition for the GOP nomination was from former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whom he called the "clear-front-runner today." ### Land Plan On Agenda

COVENTRY — The bridge design and contract work is complete and the contractors have bid on the reconstruction of the Flanders River Bridge and the Town Council will be asked tonight to accept two parcels of road-edge land needed to build the approaches to the new bridge. W. Donald Holmes, town engineer, said negotiations with the present landowners have gone on under the direction of Gregory Padic, town Planner and the Coventry Land Committee. He said that at this point they are ready to offer sums agreed upon for the two parcels and he will ask the council to give him the authority to accept the land on behalf of the town. One parcel is owned by Francis E. Hopkins and the owner will sell it for $325. The other is owned by Louis Ganzler and Doris Ganzler and it is being sold for $150. Both are small parcels just to be used for the bridge approaches. As soon as the council accepts the proposals the town engineer will notify the state Department of Transportation that it may move ahead to accept bids on the project. Bananas are valued in special diets because they're low in sodium, low in fat and have no cholesterol.

German Soap Box Champ Loses Race, Wins Friends

By LANEY ZUBOFF Herald Reporter MANCHESTER — The young German Soap Box Derby champion, Frank Jung Bluth, came to the United States to enter the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio, and, although he didn't win the derby, he did win himself some new Manchester friends. Frank, 14, came over from Landau, West Germany, a town of approximately 70,000 people, with Harold Horn, German director of the Soap Box Derby in Germany and his 16-year-old son, Fred. After winning the German championship where he placed first out of 2,000 entries, Frank represented Germany once again, this time in Akron, Ohio on Aug. 11 and that's where he met Robert Bauer, assistant director of Manchester's Soap Box Derby and Mary Anderson, secretary of Manchester's derby. The three foreigners excepted an invitation to spend time in Manchester before they had to go back to their home country this past Tuesday. Manchester gave the threesome a red carpet welcome with a police escort to Mrs. Assadorian's Hilltop Drive home. The three got a tour of the Manchester police and fire stations and even took the opportunity to shiny down the fire station's pole. Heidi McInerney, a German teacher at Manchester High School, and Mark Wiegler, who teaches German at Fairfield High, were called in as interpreters.

State University Ready For Student Migration

STORRS — The annual migration of students back to colleges and universities across the nation gets underway within the next few weeks and Connecticut is no exception. Thousands of students will make their way to the various campuses around the state which comprise the University of Connecticut, when classes resume on Sept. 3. Among this year's swarm, there will be an estimated 2,540 freshmen entering UConn's class of 1983, bringing the total undergraduate enrollment at Storrs up to 12,000 with approximately the same number of women as men, according to Dr. John Vlandis, UConn director of admissions. More than 60 percent of these freshmen were in the upper fifth of their respective high school classes, he noted. Most of the incoming freshmen already have had a thorough exposure to the UConn through the "Summer Orientation '79" program, which acquainted them with dormitory life and the many academic, health and social services offered in Storrs. On-campus housing in Storrs will be more than 9,000 students who live in dorms and apartments supplied by the university this fall. Of these figures, 4,595 are men and 4,271 are women undergraduates. The other 440 are graduate students, 156 of whom are women. Students who will be studying studio art or art history at the main campus will have the extra advantage this academic year of the new arts building which is projected to open early in the second semester. It will contain an exhibition area, three lecture rooms designed for showing slides, numerous studios and a faculty slide library, states Dr. Richard Thornton, head of the art department. In other parts of the state, at the West Hartford, Stamford, Waterbury, Torrington and Southbury (Avery Point-Groton) branch campuses the enrollment is expected to be stable or slightly lower in some cases than last year's. Most branch campus students are absorbed by the campus at Storrs after their first two years of preliminary study. In fact, about 1,000 of them will enter the Storrs classrooms as "branchers" this September. Enrollment for the fall semester at the university's five professional schools will see a slight increase. UConn's West Hartford-based School of Social Work, where approximately 260 first year students will join the 110 returning students, saw the most significant increase. This change is attributed to the lower-than-expected attrition rate for the in-coming class and not to a change in admissions policies. At the UConn School of Law, also in West Hartford, the total number of students is projected to be 650, including 135 first year day students and 70 first year evening students. Unlike many of the other professional schools, the distribution of men and women here is even. Studying in Farmington this fall will be 90 first year and 388 continuing students attending the UConn School of Medicine, while 48 first year and 147 continuing students will populate the UConn School of Dental Medicine. In addition, UConn in Hartford will enroll approximately 800 students in non-degree programs at its Center for Insurance Education and Research and about 500 more in its Master of Business Administration program, while the one in Stamford will accommodate an additional 500 students. The University of Connecticut was founded in 1881 as the Storrs Agricultural School and was designated a Land-Grant school by the federal government in 1883. At the time it was re-named the Storrs Agricultural College. The name was changed to Connecticut State College in 1933. In 1939 the Legislature passed the necessary legislation to establish it as the University of Connecticut.

Gasoline Warning Issued

COVENTRY - Jeffrey Vannais, the town's fire marshal has expressed concern about people, who because of previous problems with getting gasoline, have become accustomed to storing it around their homes or in their cars.

Vannais said carrying gas in a car is incredibly dangerous and one of the greatest dangers of this is the possible involvement in an accident which could lead to the container breaking open and igniting.

For people who do feel it is necessary to carry extra gas, Vannais said they should make sure they use approved containers, generally metal ones which are sturdy and which have either a screwed or spring-type closure. He also said these containers should be carried in a car any further than necessary.

He said such containers should be left in an area where there is plenty of ventilation and should be kept tightly sealed.

Vannais said those who are contemplating storage of gasoline either above or below ground in any quantity should consult both the building official and the fire marshal and either person can be reached through the building office Monday through Friday.

The fire marshal also issues a word of caution to gas station owners concerning the self-service pumps.

He said such stations should use only an approved nozzle without a latch-open device. And that such stations, during hours they are open, should have attendants or supervisors on duty in separate glass-enclosed areas to constantly observe and supervise all of the dispensing devices. He said such requirements are outlined in state regulations.

He said the attendants are supposed to be knowledgeable in the subject of fire and explosion hazards and procedures to be followed in the event of an emergency.

"They are also supposed to be aware of the location and operation of emergency electrical power cutoffs and have a private and readily available means of communication with the local fire departments.

Stationists must also post "No Smoking" signs with letters not less than four inches high and three-quarters of an inch in width; see that all motors are turned off before the vehicle is fueled; not to use flammable liquid to clean or wash vehicles; and not to fill any container with gas while it is inside a vehicle; not to dispense gas into a portable container other than one constructed specifically for that purpose.

Land Plan On Agenda

COVENTRY - The Town Council will be asked, at its meeting scheduled for Monday night, to decide whether to accept a 3.7 acre parcel of land as open space land.

The Planning and Zoning Commission approved the Briarwood Estates subdivision, which includes the 3.7 acres and said the open space land is adjacent to a well defined and scenic year-round brook.

Town Planner Gregory J. Padick said the site could be used as an unimproved picnic - relaxation area and as a section of a potential hiking trail linking Flanders Road with the town-owned Salvation Army property.

Padick said the area is wooded with the steep-banked, rock lined waterway in its northern border. He said it isn't suitable as an active recreation area.

Padick said if the council decides not to accept this parcel, the subdivider must return to the Planning and Zoning Commission to determine an alternative means of preserving "The open space." The most likely alternatives are private ownership, with no development rights, or dedication to a land trust, Padick said.

MACC News: New Ideas Needed to Employ Ex-Cons

By BONNIE M. RUSSELL
Job Bank Coordinator

"We hired a man like that six or seven years ago and it did not work out," said the voice on the phone. "There was a problem and we decided not to do it again." The man was speaking to managers several automobile dealerships in the Hartford area. He was referring to a member of a target group of people who make up a larger class: the hard to employ. The man we spoke of could have been an inner-city youth, handicapped, learning disabled, a Vietnam veteran, economically disadvantaged, and maybe he was one of these. But, above all, he had belonged to another class not covered by affirmative action or E.O.E. He was an ex-offender. He had been convicted of a crime and had spent time in prison for it.

A prison record is a decided drawback when a person is applying for a job. Most employers do not want to take a chance, especially if the applicant has been convicted more than once. On the whole, are ex-offenders poor risks? It is hard to say. Statistics are sketchy and employers are, understandably, more interested in keeping their businesses running smoothly than they are in enrolling in statistical studies. One statistic stands out, however. That is the direct correlation between unemployment and recidivism. More simply, it goes like this: "Joe" breaks the law and goes to jail; when he gets out, he can not find a job. Eventually, he breaks the law again and goes to jail again, and so on. With each conviction his chances of finding a job upon his release lessen.

Rehabilitation programs have had some success both inside prisons and in the community. But let's look at the word: Rehabilitation - to restore to former rank; to put in condition to make one's livelihood before. That's fine for those who have held former rank, or who have made their livelihood before. Many offenders have never been habituated in the first place. In many cases petty

Defense Secretary Brown May Have To Defend Self

WASHINGTON — Congressional approval of the SALT II agreement may well stand or fall on the credibility of Defense Secretary Harold Brown. Now he has discovered a skeleton in Brown's closet that stinks and rattles, raising disturbing doubts about the defense secretary's veracity.

Confidential Pentagon documents show that when Brown was secretary of the Air Force, he and his close associates deliberately misled the American public on a $2 billion cost overrun. They then tried to defuse a congressional investigation of the scandal by doctoring evidence submitted by a Pentagon whistleblower.

But it all began with Brown. Here's the sequence of events as we have been able to reconstruct it:

In mid-1968, Brown's budget director, Duward L. Crow, assured the House Appropriations Committee that "historically no program we have had can compare favorably with the CS."

Then on Nov. 13, Fitzgerald started the Joint Economic Committee — and his Pentagon superiors — by testifying that the Air Force's own figures showed that the C-5A contract was costing Uncle Sam $2 billion more than the original estimate.

That same day, Brown's undersecretary, Townsend Hoopes, called a meeting of top Air Force brass to discuss what to do about "Fitzgerald spilling his guts," according to the minutes of the session. Their decision was phrased this way in the minutes:

"Uphot: Stand fast until we get transcript of Fitzgerald's congressional testimony ... In meantime, prepare bland responses to be in hand."

The first "bland response" appeared six days later in the form of an official Air Force press release. It provided false figures indicating that, while there had indeed been a cost overrun on the C-5A, it amounted to less than $1 billion. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked Congress' financial watchdog, the General Accounting Office, to investigate the C-5A overrun. He suggested that the GAO ask the Air Force for solid evidence to back up its press release. He also asked Fitzgerald for evidence that would support his charges.

Another top level Air Force meeting was held on Dec. 2, at which it was decided to give GAO investigators the figures on what had already been spent, but to withhold projected costs and any information about them "unless Dr. Brown disagrees."

The withheld figures, of course, would have revealed the gargantuan overrun. To complete the cover-up, the Air Force also decided that

"backlog data" used to compile the press release "will not be given to GAO."

On Dec. 9, Fitzgerald's boss, Assistant Air Force Secretary Thomas H. Nielsen, urged Brown in a memo to give GAO the information it wanted. He pointed out that Proxmire had already asked Fitzgerald for the data, and would presumably turn it over to GAO anyway.

But Brown ignored the suggestion and instructed Nielsen to give the GAO investigators only the "information" already in the press release, nothing more. In other words, stand fast with the phony cost figures. At the same time, he assured Proxmire that the Air Force would "cooperate fully" with GAO.

As for the dangerous data Fitzgerald had been asked to submit to Proxmire, Brown's cover-up artists shot it down with an arrogance worthy of the Red Baron. On its way through channels, the bureaucrats simply changed Fitzgerald's correct figures and sent Proxmire the false ones!

Astounded congressional aides informed Fitzgerald of what appeared to be a recanting of his original testimony, and at Fitzgerald's insistence, the Air Force reluctantly forwarded the correct information to the committee.

Thus the truth ultimately came out. But it was no thanks to Harold Brown.

Footnote: A spokesman for Brown insisted there was "no Air Force conspiracy to cover up CS overruns," and said Brown, "did not request Mr. Fitzgerald's correct testimony be doctored." Other participants pleaded loss of memory after more than 10 years, though one former official acknowledged that Fitzgerald's additional testimony was routinely "edited."

Watch on Waste:

In 1972, Congress created the Annual Assay Commission to make sure that U.S. coins contained the proper amount of gold or silver. More than a decade ago, the government stopped putting either gold or silver in coins — but the commission continues to hold its annual luncheon meeting. Solemnly, the commissioners measure the amounts of non-precious metals in U.S. coins, and strike a medal to commemorate their meeting. This useless exercise costs the taxpayers about $30,000 a year. The Navy was overcharged $70,000 for aircraft engines because no one at the Pentagon bothered to keep up with international currency exchange rates. A Canadian subcontractor miscalculated the U.S. Canadian exchange rate on its share of a $60 million contract given to Pratt and Whitney Corp. of West Virginia, resulting in the $770,000 overcharge. The Navy has yet to attempt recovery.

Don Graff Briefly Noted...

That business about clouds and linings may have some application even to clouds of pollution.

A source of environmental concern of late has been the crop-damaging effects of acid rain, which returns to earth chemical particles spewed out by industrial operations and absorbed by the atmospheric moisture.

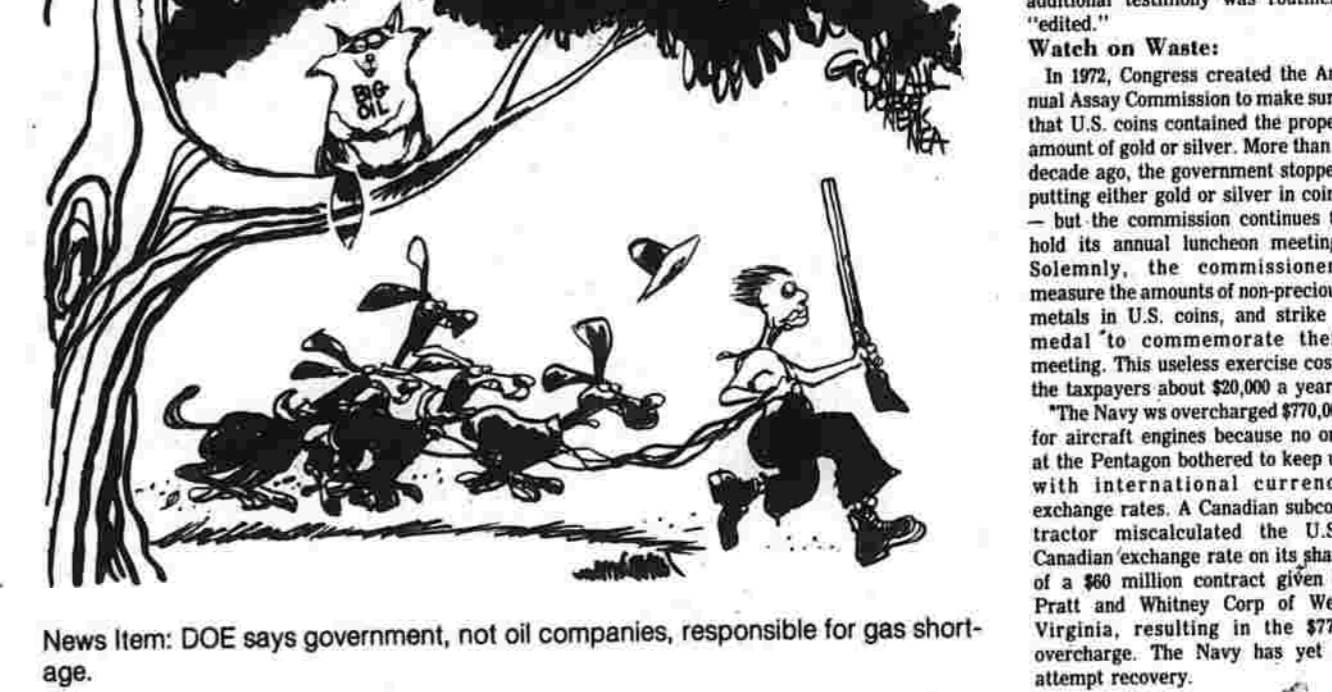

Now comes a report from the Department of Energy's Argonne National Laboratory suggesting that acid rainfall in moderation may be not only tolerable but beneficial to one important cash crop.

During two years of experiments at the laboratory, plots of soybeans treated with simulated acid rain of the strength of household vinegar not only survived but registered improved yields.

The finding, although still tentative and subject to continuing research, is regarded as of special significance to the shaping of a national energy program. Coal, seen as the primary replacement for imported oil, is also a primary source of the sulfur dioxide emissions that contribute to acid rain.

It's some consolation to know that the earth below will still be fruitful if, as the price of energy independence, we must smoke up our spacious skies.

But somehow the prospect of coast-to-coast soybeans doesn't quite raise the spirits as did those old-time amber waves of grain.

News Item: DOE says government, not oil companies, responsible for gas shortage.

Lee Roderick Hoover Dam Still A Wonder

BOULDER CITY, Nev. — A nationally prominent environmentalist is being shown Hoover Dam by Bill Williams, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation's public information officer here for the past 34 years.

"Isn't it magnificent?" asked Williams. "If you really want to know," replied the environmentalist, "it's a damn ugly mess. God didn't intend for us to change the Colorado River by building that dam."

That enlightened reply is as on a par with one reported space pioneer Werner Von Braun. A woman wrote him to say, "I don't know why we have to go to the moon. Why can't we just stay here on earth and watch television, like the good Lord intended us to?"

The nay-sayers against progress have always been with us. They scoffed at the Wright Brothers ("If God had intended us to fly he would have given us wings"), and before them at such visionaries as Thomas Edison and Henry Ford. Probably the inventor of the wheel also took abuse.

Today the United States is not in an enviable position. The growing recession will cost millions of Americans their jobs before it runs its course.

Rainfall in the Southwest varies

Inflation is out of control. The energy picture remains bleak for the foreseeable future. And, worst of all, the confidence of our people that these problems can be turned around in reasonable order is badly lacking.

In current travels through several western states I have found the blame for the nation's malaise most often aimed at President Carter and Congress. No doubt their lack of leadership is an important part of the problem.

Among the real movers and shakers out here, however, — those whose jobs most directly impact the quality of life for their fellow citizens — a more specific root cause of our problems is frequently cited: The body of laws and court decisions in recent years that have allowed those with the narrowest view of society to dictate public policy and stop the nation from doing what it must do to prepare for the future we must all live in.

Take Hoover Dam, for example, an "ugly mess" in the eye of the conservationist, yet one of this country's modern civil engineering wonders to the American Society of Civil Engineers. Located a few miles from this model city built to house its workers nearly 50 years ago, the gigantic concrete dam and its attendant structures changed the future of the American Southwest.

Washington Window Health Package Still Opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Will the administration's health package have a better chance to clear Congress now that Joseph Califano has departed as secretary of health, education and welfare?

Probably not.

Patricia Harris, who has just assumed command of the nation's largest agency, will become the administration's chief legislative lobbyist for such things as the hospital cost containment bill and national health insurance.

Can she make a difference? The answer again is, probably not.

Based on Mrs. Harris' comments as she takes over from Califano, she had to pass judgement on the bill. One, the Labor and Human Resources panel, passed it. The other, the Finance Committee, killed it — not exactly a clear show of support.

The proposal seeks to put a cap on the annual increase in hospital costs. The administration first proposed a 9.7 percent ceiling, then raised it a bit, and now it sits around 11.6 percent. As inflation continues and the calendar marches on into fall, the ceiling may go even higher.

The bill would also carry standby hospital controls for the mandatory controls for the hospitals that refuse or are unable to keep their costs within that ceiling. The Ways and Means Committee watered that idea down considerably when it decided a one-hour veto could thwart any presidential move to impose those mandatory controls.

The question, then, is what difference can Pat Harris make? The answer is, probably very little.

Her appointment on, more accurately, Califano's ouster, could even hurt the administration's proposals. If Califano was anything, he was well-connected on Capitol Hill. He is, after all, a Washington veteran — unlike his former boss.

No one really believes that if

Cavanaugh Makes Most of Chance to Perform

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The exhibition football game was designed for lesser known to show their grit and for regulars to ease into the rigors of a NFL schedule. Enter quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, his job with the New England Patriots secured, but his playing status equally certain. He is that of a benchwarmer. All he wants to do is play — and he showed every Sunday why.

Cavanaugh fired three fourth-quarter touchdowns passes in a 3-22 span to rally the Patriots to a 35-14 win over the Oakland Raiders. The second-year quarterback from Pitt. No. 3 on the New England depth chart, hit on seven of eight passes for 79 yards and the three TDs to raise the Pats' record to 2-1. "I felt comfortable out there," said Cavanaugh, who took over for No. 1 quarterback Steve Grogan in the second half. "We always seemed to have good field goal position and that was a big plus. And we were executing. When we execute like that, we can be awesome."

Wheeler Did Job In Starting Role

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — He was the man under the looking glass, not just getting the usual press from the coaching staff but also a closer-than-normal eyeful from the 46,000 fans at Schaefer Stadium.

While the stadium crowd longed for the return of All-Pro tackle Leon Gray "It was a Gray day when Leon got traded away" one sign read. Wheeler tried to do his job. "I saw the sign, but I couldn't let it bother me," said Wheeler, who took over the starting job at left tackle for the New England Patriots after Gray was traded to Houston for the Oilers' first and sixth round draft picks next year.

Orantes Leading Entry

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Two-time winner and defending champion Manuel Orantes leads a field of 64 entrants in the U.S. Professional Tennis Championship that opens today at Longwood Cricket Club.

Clay court specialists dominate the field for this year's week-long competition, the 16th to be held at Longwood in suburban Brookline. Orantes' countryman, Jose Higueras of Spain, ranked No. 10 in the world, and Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina, ranked 13th internationally, are among the other top entrants. Clerc, seeded 12th in 1978, is seeded second this year.

Attracting top tennis names has been a problem for Longwood in the last few years. Absent from this year's competition will be 1973 Longwood champ Jimmy Connors, Bjorn Borg, Guillermo Vilas, Ilie Nastase, Raul Ramirez and 1978

The Hartford Road Dairy Queen softball team captured second place in the 1979 New England Regional Slo-Pitch Softball tournament last weekend in Warwick, R.I.

With the second place finish, Dairy Queen earns the right to compete in the National Tournament in Nashville, Tenn. Aug. 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3.

The defending champions, Redwood Salon, again won the New England title via a 7-3 victory over Dairy Queen in the finals.

Dairy Queen won its opener against New Hampshire State champions 5-3 with a come from behind rally. D.Q. was losing 3-1 when it scored a run in the fourth and three in the sixth for the victory Friday night.

Saturday, the Queens, went into the Raiders' bracket with a 4-2 loss to the Raiders. Queens won the game in the bottom of the first, getting the lead on a double by Cini and Birsby who stroked a two-run triple.

"I was spotted, I just wasn't relaxed. I thought I did a pretty good job that. I feel now like I'm part of the line," Wheeler said.

There was much animosity surrounding the trade of the popular Gray, putting Wheeler in an uncomfortable position. All-Pro guard John Hannah went so far as to say the Patriots could forget about the Super Bowl with Gray gone.

Quarterback Steve Grogan said the Patriots ran many early plays over Wheeler's side to get the tackle acclimated.

Virgin Tops Field In Falmouth Race

FALMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — Craig Virgin of Lebanon, III, bested a record field of more than 5,000 entrants, including Boston Marathon winner Bill Rodgers and 1972 Olympic Marathon champ Frank Shorter, Sunday to win the seventh annual Falmouth Road Race on Cape Cod.

Virgin, 27, the American record holder at 10,000 meters, shattered Rodgers' 33:21 record for the 7.1-mile course with a time of 32:19.

He set a blistering pace for five miles before pulling away from Rodgers of Boulder, Colo.

"I was always aware of Rodgers," said Virgin, a third place finisher last year. "It's his course and he's so tough on the roads. But I felt good before the race, rested in stead of weary like last year."

Runners from Boulder took four of the first six places. Lindsay was second with a time of 32:27. Jon Sinclair was fourth at 32:36, three-time Falmouth winner Shorter was fifth at 32:42 and a string Rojas checked in sixth at 32:44.

Both Rojas and Virgin broke Rodgers' old marks at every checkpoint, including 4:30 for the first mile and 9:08 for two miles.

Ellison Goodall, of Wellesley, Mass., shattered the women's course record as she crossed the line in 38:15, 26 seconds faster than Kim Merritt's 1975 record. Merritt of Racine, Wis. finished fourth Sunday at 39:13.

Goodall took the lead from second place finisher Cathie Toomey of Minneapolis, Minn., halfway through the course and was never really challenged.

"I felt good all the way and after I passed Toomey and (Patti) Lyons, I knew I could win," said Goodall.

Cahill Falls to Connors

STOWE, Vt. (UPI) — Mike Cahill's string of upsets ended Sunday, not because of his own play, but because he ran into a tennis juggernaut named Jimmy Connors.

Connor barely broke a sweat in pulverizing Cahill 6-0, 6-0 in only 40 minutes to win the $75,000 Grand Prix tournament. The top-seeded Connors has won the tournament both years of its existence.

Renner Gains First PGA Win

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Jack Renner kept saying negative things about his chances to win the $400,000 Westchester Classic, but when he came down the stretch needing a birdie on the 72nd hole to sew up the victory, he was absolutely positive.

"I put my tee shot in the only possible place I would consider going for the green in two and my next shot was just the one I wanted to play," said the lanky 23-year-old Renner, who had stated before Sunday's final round that he had no expectations whatsoever of winning.

"I felt very good and when I came up to that 10-foot putt, I felt the tournament was mine. It was a tough putt, but I felt good."

"I sent it to the middle and said a prayer. But I knew I was going to make it and when I went in, it was an exhilarating feeling I've been waiting for all my life."

Peter Osterlitz, also looking for his first tour win, fired a sizzling 63 — one shot off the course record — to emerge from the pack, yielding rookie Scott Simpson at 6-under 273 for third place while second-round leader Tom Kite finished a stroke further back.

Renner, who joined the tour two years ago, arrived here in a daze after posting his best finish this year — runner-up to Jerry McGee in the rain — at the Greater Hartford Open Tuesday. The thin six-footer, who said he didn't even think about winning the tournament until the 15th hole Sunday, continued his protestations even after he won.

"I never gave him a chance to get in it," said Connors, who won $12,750. "I was on the offensive all day."

The unseeded Cahill had upset second-seeded Tim Gunnison, third-seeded Eliot Teltscher and fifth-seeded Tom Gullickson enroute to the finals. But he was the first to admit it.

"The one good thing about the match is that no matter how well I played, he would have beaten me. He was unbelievable," said Cahill, who earned $6,375. "I wasn't nervous. It was just that he was on and I was off."

Connors won the first eight games of the match, which was delayed about two hours by rain. After Cahill held serve to capture his only game, the third game of the second set, Connors ran out the last four.

"I don't believe he was intimidated. He played too many good matches against too many good players to have that problem," said Connors, who had never played Cahill prior to the finals.

Connors dominated the week-long tournament with the same ease as he dispatched Cahill. He did not drop a set all week and lost his service just once.

"I'm not surprised at all to win a golf tournament. I'm just surprised it was this week," said Renner, who sports a cap similar to the one worn by Ben Hogan. "I guess I just had the momentum of last week into contention and then I shot. But I'm thrilled to death. I've wanted to be a professional golfer since I was 3 and I hope this is just a step."

With sister Jane on the LPGA tour a 20-year-old brother, Jim, just turning 30, the entire Renner family seems dedicated to golf.

"I think my parents are going to be as excited as I am because it's been a real family effort and I don't mean that in a corny way," said Renner, who reciprocated by working harder on his game than most of the other tour youngsters.

NEW YORK JETS. Wait Michaels brought too-nomadic, tough attitude to Jets, and their .500 record in '78 was one of surprises of year. He may be youngest team in football, so naturally they're looking for more rebuilding. Wait has to make some hard personnel decisions, most importantly at quarterback. There are also couple of soft spots on defense. Another 8-7 would be OK.

OFFENSE Richard Todd is supposed to reclaim passing job, but Matt Robinson, who filled in last year, has something to say about that. Don't discount young Pat Leahy either. Free-agent son decides starter. Fine outside targets in Wesley Walker, already all-pro, Derrick Gathney... OFFENSE Gambro on drafting unknown Phil Simms of Morehead State as QB of future has slim chance of payoff in '79. He's raw, tentative. So chances are he'll have to go with Joe Pisarcik again at QB. Instant coup of offense was drafting wide receiver. Tight ends are just mediocre, and running backs very ordinary. Doug Kotar, Dan Doornink will probably carry load. There's no depth on offensive line at tackles with two huge youngsters, Chris Ward and Marvin Powell. Randy Haasmussen starts 13th season as guard. Place-kicking is reliably handled by Pat Leahy. Rating: C-

DEFENSE Drafting of Marty Lyons, Mark Gastineau dictated switch back to 4-3 defense. They could well be starting ends. Lyons is already playing. He's a defensive tackle. He's a defensive tackle. Scott's World

Hamilton Now Mature

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - For 20 years George Hamilton has epitomized the glossy, sun-tanned Hollywood leading man slipping exotic drinks beside a swimming pool surrounded by bikini-clad maidens. It's not a bad fantasy for the country's beer-drinking bowlers. It was also Hamilton's notion of what a movie star was supposed to be. The slick-haired, slender Hamilton starred in more than a score of movies almost always playing less-than-sympathetic characters, contributing to his off-screen reputation as an immaculate 8x-10 glossy. The combination of his rules and lifestyles were misleading. Hamilton was also an astute businessman and not unaware of his polished, inselny image. It amused and dismayed him all at the same time. "I came to Hollywood 22 years ago wanting to be a movie star but not knowing how," he said the other day. "I was only 18 and a serious young actor when I got my first leading role in 'Crime and Punishment, U.S.A.' I thought I was on my way, waiting for the Hollywood magic to take over. "But nothing happened for a whole year except a 'Run-In-In' picture. MGM signed me to a seven-year contract and I wound up in formula pictures like 'Where The Boys Are,' 'Looking for Love' and 'All the Fine Young Cannibals.'

Off-camera, Hamilton led a byronic life. He is a 39-room mansion, one of Beverly Hills' storied estates. He hosted exotic parties attended by Hollywood's elite. His name was seldom out of the gossip columns. He dated Lynda Bird Johnson, President Lyndon B. Johnson's eldest daughter. Johnson scoffed at George and what he stood for, which didn't help his serious acting aspirations. "My career had crystallized as a contract player who had become an independent," Hamilton said. "I was connected with (Warren) Beatty and (Robert) Redford for parts. They were getting the good ones. I wasn't. "So I stepped out of movies to do a TV series, 'The Survivors.' I thought I would catapult me to a new career. Instead, it was a $12 million flop. "I made a million dollars but my careerrose-dived." Hamilton decided to back off. He married and moved to Palm Springs to rear his family. But his wife, Alana, wanted a career and he returned to Hollywood. He took movie roles for the money and ran. He toured in Neil Simon comedies, hoping it would turn his career around. He did occasional films, as a playboy in "Once Is Not Enough," and a villain in "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing." George also starred in "Evel

Adult Summer Camp Has Great Response

SOUTHREMOUNT, Mass. (UPI) - Kids' Are your parents becoming unmanageable as summer drags on? Don't fret, you can get them out of your hair by sending them to camp. At Camp Carefree - which bills itself as "the adult summer camp" - grown-ups get to revert back to their childhood, pretending they are bananas and oranges, tossing raw eggs at each other, running wheel barrel races and making ashtrays. Camp director Sharon Klayman, former head of the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics, said she got the idea for Camp Carefree last fall when a friend approached her about starting a crafts camp. Shari wanted a camp more like the ones she "loved" when she was a child. So she and her daughter and camp co-director Stacie Teele, 19, an actress from New York City, designed a camp for adults. The program includes volleyball, tennis, softball, yoga, acting, art, hiking and swimming. Last spring, advertisements for the camp were placed in publications including the New Republic, the Village Voice, the Washingtonian, and Boston's Real Paper. The response has been tremendous, the

A 14-year-old girl from Connecticut wrote, "My parents would not work with it as themselves, but I think they need to get away from us. My brother and I light at the time. In July, 21 eager campers - who in real life are in fields ranging from psychiatric nursing to microbiology - arrived for the camp's first session at a 320-acre estate in the Berkshires. It costs $250 per person. "Write or call your kids tonight to tell them you arrived in one piece. Lie if necessary." The Camp Carefree Gazette advises new arrivals. "All the people in my office thought this was a nudist camp," said Bea Borre, 38, a mother of four and a banker from Wilmette, Ill. "I just told my husband that I wanted to get away," she said. "It's just a bunch of people getting together and playing games. But I don't think he's going to believe me." Lack of Interest Cancels Festival

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) - The Newport Folk Festival, which once drew thousands of music lovers, has been canceled for lack of interest. Planner Frank J. Russo, who billed the folk concert as "a revival of a great tradition," said he had to cancel because of poor ticket sales. "I think the folk era is nearly dead," Russo said. "They don't have the time to sing about any more." Russo said with 15,000 tickets available and only three weeks left until the event, only 780 seats were sold. He said he spent about $10,000 on advertisements in several major newspapers and on radio spots. The festival had been planned for Aug. 31-Sept. 2.

Cartoonist Says Comics Aren't Funny Anymore

OGUNQUIT, Maine (UPI) - The cartoonist who drew the comic strip "The Captain and the Kids" for nearly 30 years before giving it up this spring says the funnies "just aren't that funny anymore." Artist John Dirks, 61, who inherited the strip from his father Rudolph, has turned his artistic talents away from paper to the metal sculptures which are now on exhibit at the PS Galleries in this seaside town where he has summured "every year since I was born." "The funnies just aren't that funny anymore," Dirks said in an interview. "As a whole they're working under a lot of social restrictions, and have gotten much more serious. You can't hurt anybody's feelings or step on anybody's toes. "When my father started back in the 1950s the strips were four inches deep and ran all the way across the page. Now there are six strips in the same size space, which really limits the artist's ability put in detail. That's why the funniest ones now like Beetle Bailey and Peanuts are the simplest. "Television can put everything in, like the wrinkles on the sleeves," he said. "But what TV cannot put in is the marvelously naive funny bone of the people who made the comics great. What TV

N-Plant in Philippines Center of Controversy

MORONG, Philippines (UPI) - It was just a quiet fishing town before work started on the nuclear power plant. Now the fish have disappeared and the still-unfinished project is the center of a national controversy. The fish moved away two years ago when workers began construction on the plant. 18-year-old villager Teodora Santos said. "Fishermen now have to go farther out to sea to find fish." Westinghouse Electric is building the $1.1 billion plant for the Philippine government in the economically backward town of Morong on the World War II battleground of the Bataan Peninsula, 19 miles from the Subic Bay Navy Base and U.S. 7th Fleet repair yard. Last month, President Ferdinand Marcos suspended work on the plant because of his fear of a repetition of the Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa. He threatened to scrap the project altogether unless assured by

Westinghouse that the plant will not imperil Morong's 10,000 fishermen and farmers and other nearby towns. A three-member panel was appointed to determine whether adequate safeguards have been taken to avoid a repeat of the Three Mile Island accident. Westinghouse officials say there is only a "remote possibility" of such an accident and hope to resume construction shortly. But fears over the Morong plant do not stem from the Harrisburg accident alone. The plant, now 20 percent completed, also lies between two dormant volcanoes only 12 miles from an earthquake fault. Despite Westinghouse assurances that the plant can withstand an earthquake measuring 7.8 on the Richter scale and survive the impact of a combat plane or a jumbo jetliner, fears of an accident from human error remain. "We don't believe in our Filipino experts," said Morong town councilman Juan Mendoza. "We're not

Racial Scuffle

Members of the Ku Klux Klan scuffled with members of a group calling itself The Committee Against Racism outside a Klan meeting in Castro Valley, Calif., Sunday. According to a witness, the melee started when about 30 members of the anti-racism group approached and began shouting epithets and tossing rocks and cans at KKK security guards stationed outside the meeting hall. The members of the anti-racism group departed before sheriff's deputies arrived. One person was injured. (UPI photo)

Classes in salesmanship and calligraphy will be among the courses offered Tuesday. Wednesday's offerings will include courses in letter-crafts, Christmas workshop, and intermediate integral yoga. Thursday night's schedule includes courses in consumer law, holiday wreaths and embroidery combo. Further details on these courses can be found in the Adult Evening School brochures at local banks, libraries, high school and the Municipal Building. There is one more new course which is not listed in the brochure. The course is entitled "Organization Plus." This is a six-week course designed to help individuals interested in learning how to become organizers. Topics include organizing drawers and closets, grocery shopping, main parties, vacations and budget planning. Saving time and money will be stressed. The registration blank located on the back page of the brochure can be used to sign up for this course. An in-person registration will be conducted Tuesday Sept. 11 in the high school cafeteria from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Since some courses fill up quickly, interested persons should try to register early to guarantee getting into a course of their choice. Also by registering by mail individuals can avoid the long lines usually associated with the in-person registration. Mail registrations will be accepted from today until Sept. 6. Checks should be made payable to Manchester Adult Evening School. Laboratory fees should not be sent in at this time. These fees will be collected by the individual instructors the first week of class in September. Fees are not refundable except when classes do not materialize due to insufficient enrollment. Fees do not include the cost of books or materials. Persons will only be notified if their class is cancelled or filled, otherwise they should assume that they are enrolled in their class choice. Please make out checks for correct amounts otherwise there will be a delay in registration until you are contacted about the error. Also specify the day and time of the course you select.

State Loans Bring Work

HARTFORD (UPI) - State commerce officials say 700 jobs will be created or retained through the latest round of loans granted to Connecticut industries for new equipment, plants or building additions. The loans were approved by the Connecticut Development Authority and will provide $10.4 million to 15 firms. John J. Carson, deputy commissioner of the Department of Economic Development, said. The largest loans were $2.5 million each to Alan J. Gerald Inc., which will build and equip an addition at its North Haven handgun manufacturing plant, and to Kupier Corp. of Danford to build a plant in Westbrook where electrical components will be manufactured. Eleven of the firms will use the loan money to build new plants or purchase and equip existing buildings.

Business

Anchormen Hired

HARTFORD (UPI) - WFSB-TV has hired two award-winning anchormen to replace Pat Sheehan, who was dismissed by the station last month. The top anchor spot will be taken by Don Lark, currently the weekend anchorman and reporter on WXYZ-TV in Detroit. Lark has won awards from the Detroit Press Club and the Associated Press, WFSB news director Richard Ables said Tuesday. Bill O'Reilly, a weekend anchorman and investigative reporter for KMGH-TV in Denver will also come to the Hartford station. O'Reilly won an Emmy for his spot news coverage of a San Francisco-to-Denver skyjacking in March.

CNG Income Rises

HARTFORD - Connecticut Natural Gas Corp. has reported higher net income for the second quarter and 12-month periods which ended June 30. During the three-month period, the company reported earnings of $1.1 million, representing 54 cents a common share after a common share anti-deduction of preferred dividends. The figure compared with $813,000 for the second quarter of 1978. For the 12-month period which ended June 30, the firm said net income totaled $4.13 million, compared to $2.58 million for the 12-month period ending June 30, 1978.

Conventry Will Oil Its Roads

CONVENTRY - Starting today and continuing through August, the highway department will conduct a road oiling program in town.

Roads being oiled today include: Armstrong, Snake Hill and Flinders between South Hill and High Street.

Other groups of roads will be oiled on subsequent days according to the following schedule:

Nathan Hale Drive Parker, Bridge Road, Union Drive, Judd Road and Pines Road; Barnsbee Road, Cynthia Lane, Sam Green Road, and Seagraves Road.

Also, Three miles of South Street between Wrights Mill Road and Dunns Road; Brewer Street, Broad Way, and North River 31 and 32; Riley Mountain Road and Jones Crossing, Hop River Road and Lancaster Road.

These roads were chosen for oiling because of their deteriorating condition, Roger Bellard, street superintendent said.

Some Water Has Sodium

VERNON - The Health Department is warning residents that water softeners are causing high concentrations of sodium in some water supplies.

Charles Vassilopoulos, the town's environmental health officer, said residents must obtain a plumbing permit before they install a water softening device on home faucets.

He said that the state health code prohibits the discharge of water softener waste into septic systems. The cumulative effect of sodium buildup in septic tanks can adversely affect people's health, especially those on low-salt diets, Vassilopoulos said.

Additional information about sodium contamination and water softeners may be obtained from the town health department, Memorial Building, 14 Park Place, or the state Department of Health in Hartford.

Schools Have Code Problem

HARTFORD (UPI) - More than 100 violations of building codes governing health, fire safety and access for the handicapped have been found in at least 20 public schools in Connecticut, state education officials say.

The figures were in reports compiled by an inspection team paving the way for building corrections to be financed with $15 million state reimbursements over the next years.

The sum doesn't include state General Fund money designated for certain "priority" projects which incorporated code violation corrections into larger projects.

State school inspector Robert F. Langer said violations included crumbling materials used in floors, walls and ceilings, deficient exit ways or lack of them, and stairwells without doors to separated them from occupied areas.

Langer, who only looks at schools he is called on to inspect, said many times they violations occur when local school authorities make changes in buildings without consulting fire marshals or building officials.
