Big Crime Wave Getting Out of Hand

NEW YORK (UPI) — While Police Commissioner Robert McGuire was telling reporters of his plan to halt New York City's bank robbery spree, two more banks were held up.

McGuire said he will talk with bank officials about what he said was a "sneak" among detectives that banks have reduced their attempts to stop the robberies.

Carter Hoedown To Aid Theater

No question — the Carters do like their country music, and they'll lay a real hoedown on the nation's capital this autumn in a special benefit expected to raise $200,000 for future productions at Ford's Theater.

The Oct. 16 event will mark the first time country music ever has been played in the historic theater, and Dolly Parton, whom President Carter personally plans to introduce — tops the White House-selected marquee.

Also on the bill — Roy Clark, Eddie Rabbit, Loretta Lynn, Johnny Cash and Glen Campbell. It's all part of a month-long tribute to the first family's favorite beat.

His Own Medicine

Los Angeles divorce lawyer Marvin Mitchelson admits he's personally no great shakes as a husband, even though he's been married to his wife — the former Marcella Ferrer — for nearly two decades. But an interview for Cosmopolitan magazine, he says he doesn't think the very thought of divorce.

Says Mitchelson, "I have nothing against marriage or my wife. I just don't put that much into it. I think there should be a compelling reason to get a divorce, but I don't think much about the whole subject. It's just too painful."

And, he adds, "Besides, you know how many lawyers in this town would like to get their hands on that case?"

Run for Your Life

Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas — says in the long run it's going to be good for us. "Tsongas — an avid jogger — puts it this way: 'As we are kicked out of cars and onto our own two feet, more of us will be walking and running for our lives. A better health will be a by-product of walking to the grocery store, or skating to the game or running errands in the neighborhood. Getting out of our cars is better for our bodies and for our heads.'"

He practices what he preaches too. During the weekend he was a finisher in Boston's 7-mile Falmouth Road Race.

Do Si Don't

Ronnie Lake is mightily miffed at the Guinness Book of World Records, but says he'll be right on square dancing despite their snub.
 The 54-year-old Orlando, Fla., maintenance man has been at it for almost 80 days. Says he, "We really didn't plan on setting a record when we started, but when we found out that it was no world record for square dancing, I said, 'Okay, let's set one.'"

But Guinness won't list him — says square dancing isn't worldly enough to be included in its list of herculean endeavors.

VFW Says Visit by Ali Is Insult to Veterans

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state veterans group says Muhammad Ali doesn't deserve the honor of visiting Connecticut's veterans hospital to be presented with the flag he refused to defend more than a decade ago. Word that Ali will visit the state's Rocky Hill veterans home and hospital on Friday reached state Veterans of Foreign Wars officials at their national convention in New Orleans Tuesday, sending them quickly to the phone to make sure their protest was heard back home. "The presentation of an American flag to a man who refused to go and fight for his country is a further insult to the veterans," VFW State Commander E. Richard Michaud said. "This is an injustice to all veterans who went and served their country with dignity and honor in time of war," he added. "Plans call for Ali to be presented with the flag by a veteran who won the nation's highest military honor. Two of the hospital's residents were then to give him a distinguished service award. "Muhammad Ali internationally is and always has been a controversial figure," he said, adding he had received three calls from veterans upset about the matter. "That was just a courtesy thing," Mrs. Grasso's press secretary, Larry DeBour, said Tuesday. "It's a pro-forma type of thing. We're not setting up the visit."

The world heavyweight boxing title was taken from Ali when he cited his Muslim religious beliefs and refused to be drafted. A federal judge gave a sentenced him to 10 years in prison and fined him $10,000. The conviction, however, was later overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court and Ali regained his title in 1970.

Judge Sets Limitations On Picketing Activities

LITCHFIELD (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has ordered striking Torrington Co. employees to limit and control line activities in their 15-week-old dispute with the firm. Litchfield Superior Court Judge Frances Allen issued the company requested injunction Tuesday as negotiators for the company and United Auto Workers Local 1645 resumed negotiations. Both sides agreed to the limits after unrest and arrests on the picket line in the first week of the walkout. The workers voted to strike in early May after negotiations on a new contract broke down. The major unresolved issue in the talks has remained the union's demand for an unlimited cost-of-living adjustment clause in the new pact. In court Monday, the judge viewed videotapes made by the company which firm officials said showed "flagrant violations" of the agreement governing picketing at the plant. Connecticut's largest employer. The agreement limited the number of strikers allowed on the picket lines, barred abusive language and set procedures by which management and salaried employees could cross picket lines to enter the plant. ### Price-Gouging Claimed Laws Sought on Heating Oil

By BRUNO V. RANNIELLO
 HARTFORD — Charging "price-gouging and rigged shortages" by oil companies, a labor-consumer coalition has called for a special legislative session to prevent a heating oil crisis this winter. The coalition also wants the state to require oil companies to allow 30 days credit to small dealers, restore price controls on crude oil and heating oil, establish public control of oil imports and create a public energy corporation to compete with major oil and gas monopolies. Henry Murray, regional education director of the United Automobile Workers of America, said 140,000 citizens represented by the coalition "refuse to resign ourselves to sitting through a cold winter, the way we sat through long gasoline lines this summer." He said it was clear public officials were at a loss on what to do to prepare for the cold in view of inaction at the state and federal levels. "Despite assurances there will be adequate supplies, the facts indicate that the major oil companies are withholding supplies from local dealers," he charged. Murray said Connecticut residents will be paying record prices for oil, amounting to more than the $225 million paid in 1977. "Yet while in the midst of an ever widening crisis which threatens the economic well being of every American, the gigantic oil monopolies grabbed record profits," he said. He said 35,000 UAW workers in Connecticut will join a nationwide campaign to pressure Washington "that we are tired of the energy rip-offs by the oil companies." Robert Garry of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers said the state "has to get off its duff" and challenge the oil companies that have "lied, cheated and blackmailed Congress." He said President Carter "has shown a very crass reaction to the situation and has left it to the people to act."

New Bid For Oil Lower

MANCHESTER — The town and the schools will save about five cents a gallon on No. 2 fuel oil as a result of rejecting the first bids and inviting new ones. The latest bid was opened Friday and T.L.C. Oil Co. of Hartford submitted the low bid of 6.95 cents per gallon above Tuesday's price at New Haven Harbor at the time of purchase. At Friday's posted price, the cost to the town would have been at 70.45 cents per gallon. The price during the heating season is likely to be higher, however. Maurice Pass, director of general services, said the price appears to be about five cents lower than if the town had accepted the first bids. The town rejected their first bid, they were pegged to the highest price for the purchase day at the harbor, a system which could have subjected the town to potentially high prices.

Patient Transfer Due Despite Legal Threat

HARTFORD (UPI) — A top state official says he will not reconsider his decision to transfer mentally retarded patients to two crowded state homes even though an advocacy group has threatened to challenge the move in court. State Department of Mental Retardation Commissioner Gareth Thorne reaffirmed his stand Tuesday after receiving a harsh letter from the Connecticut Association for Retarded Citizens. The advocacy group said it was "deeply disturbed about the trauma and hazard" which would occur if the retarded patients were moved from a Hartford nursing home. Thorne this weekend ordered 74 retarded patients moved from Lorraine Manor nursing home to the Mansfield and Southbury Training Schools, saying he "couldn't wait for a disaster." The patients were originally housed at the state facilities before being moved to the nursing home. "I don't think there's anything anybody can say to change my plans," Thorne said. "I really don't have any alternatives. The facility was coming to an end as far as being able to serve the mentally retarded in a meaningful way."

Travelers Calls Bond On Bolton Subdivision

BOLTON — The bond on the Fiora Farms subdivision has been called by the Travelers Insurance Co. on request of the Board of Selectmen. First Selectman Henry Ryba said, "I don't have the slightest idea what happened why the work didn't get done but this thing is about five or six years old." The subdivision didn't meet all of the town requirements and attempts to bring it up to par have failed. S.J. Longo, senior account analyst at Travelers, said the company's attempt to negotiate with the town failed. He said, "Please understand that under the circumstances, with the total lack of cooperation we have incurred from both our client and her attorney, it has made it difficult, if not impossible, to proceed quickly and efficiently with this whole case." Travelers asked for an itemized list of work that has not been done or that has not been done correctly. Travelers said that as soon as the list is received it will proceed to get the work done. Ryba plans to meet with a representative of the Planning Commission to get the information Travelers requires so the work will get done.

A Boy's Dream

Sand Spreader Cost Just Within Budget

BOLTON — The lone bid for a sand spreader, for the town came in under the price of the amount budgeted for the equipment and the selectmen accepted the bid. R.W. Thompson Co. Inc. of Newington bid $6,324 and the selectmen had budgeted $6,000, Henry Ryba, first selectman said. Ryba also told the board that before the town will recommend acceptance of a new street, Alexis Drive, two things must be done. The storm drain has to be cleaned out and a deeper swale has to be cut at the turnaround, Ryba said. He also said that travel expenses for town employees have been increased from 20 cents to 25 cents per mile as recommended by the Board of Finance. The mileage expense excludes responding to fires. Armand Morin, special constable, was paid $10 to attend a course on boating safety sponsored by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the board approved the transferring of $50 within the park department budget for field flood lights at the football field at Herrick Memorial Park. The board also agreed to apply to the DEP for funds for algae and aquatic weed control at Bolton Lake. The state Legislature appropriated $40,000 for reimbursement to towns to perform the treatment. Bolton Lake was last treated about two years ago. The water from the drinking fountain at Indian Notch Park has been tested and meets the requirements of suitable drinking water, Douglas Cheney, chairman of the Public Building Commission, said. He added that the water might be a little on the hard side and does have a trace of iron in it. In cooperation with a request made by Hartford Mayor George Athanson, Selectman Carl Preuss will coordinate an emergency clothing bank in Bolton. Mayor Athanson has asked towns to collect the clothing which will be distributed to the needy during the fall and winter months when the energy crunch is expected to be very serious. Details of the drive will be announced by Preuss as soon as plans are finalized.

Panel Eyes Housing Plan

SOUTH WINDSOR — A proposal which will bring 80 units of elderly housing to Main Street will come before the Housing Authority once again this week. The Housing Authority has scheduled a special meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m., 50 Elm St., to consider the proposal following a delay in action last week. At a meeting, attended by some 65 persons, the Authority voted 3-2 to ask Town Attorney Richard Rittenband whether the panel, which is a public agency, has jurisdiction over privately financed housing and whether a recent change in zoning regulations, which would permit the construction on the proposed land, is valid. Most of the persons attending last week's meeting spoke in opposition to the units which would be built on 10.9 acres of land at 1099 Main Street near the South Windsor Convalescent Home. Daniel Cavanaugh, a Main Street resident and a local attorney, joined more than 23 others who spoke in opposition to the development. Cavanaugh told the panel that no other town in Connecticut has housing for the elderly as a profit-making operation and South Windsor should not seek to set such a precedent. Many people questioned the location of the proposed housing which, they contend, would occupy valuable farmland. Some expressed concern that, if enough elderly residents who would be able to pay the rent were not housed in the units they would turn into "another apartment house." Residents felt that an apartment house in the Old Main Street neighborhood would alter the character of the neighborhood which they felt should be protected. The Main Street area is the town's historic district, with many old restored homes dating back to the early 1700's. If the project is approved by the Housing Authority it must then go before the Planning and Zoning Commission for approval of a site plan. If the site plan is approved by the PZC, the developer Francis Roman, must then go back to the Housing Authority for approval before construction can begin. Her court answer date is Sept. 7. Sophie A. Krajewski, 54, of 26 Windermere Avenue, Rockville, was charged Tuesday with shoplifting in connection with a complaint made by the K-Mart store at Vernon Circle. Her court date is Aug. 28.

Suspect Eludes City Police

HARTFORD (UPI) — The cops thought they had their man — a murder and robbery suspect considered armed and extremely dangerous. But not until after police had evacuated about 45 people from a city townhouse early Tuesday, fired several tear gas and smoke shells and charged into the building did they realize the suspect had already made his getaway. Deputy Police Chief Donald Chafin said Wilson Lee Sumbry, 25, of no certain address, was wanted in connection with a slaying in Columbus, Ga., and a suspect in several robberies in Hartford. Police sealed off the Woodland Drive area after they realized the suspect had already made his getaway. Chafin said, adding Hartford police had alerted authorities throughout the area the suspect was still on the loose. Police said they recovered a holster, several rounds of large-caliber ammunition and narcotics paraphernalia from the townhouse. "He (Sumbry) should be considered armed and extremely dangerous," Chafin said.

Vernon Police

Barbara Szejnka, 26, of 272 South St., Vernon, was charged Tuesday night with third-degree assault. She allegedly assaulted another woman. She was released on her promise to appear in court in Rockville on Aug. 28. Justice Chanter, 40, of Laurel Street, South Windsor, was charged Tuesday night with failure to drive right. She was involved in a one-car accident on Windersville Road. Police said her car struck several guard rails, went off the roadway and ended up with the rear portion of the car in the Hockanum River. No injuries were reported. Her court answer date is Sept. 7.

Tri-Town Radio Granted License

VERNON — The Tri-Town area may have its own radio station early next year if a group of Massachusetts businessmen go through with their plans. The three men have obtained a license to operate a radio station in the Tri-Town area of Vernon, Tolland and Ellington under the name of Tolland County Broadcasting Inc. The company was formed about three years ago. This is the first group to file intentions of starting a local station. Several years ago a local group had obtained permission of the Federal Communications Commission to establish a station but plans were never carried out. At that time the tower was to be erected in an area off West Street. The three men now making plans are Edward Perry, Thomas Shuit, and Bruce Blanchard. All are now involved in radio and television work. The proposed station will be a 1,000 watt one under the call letters WRTT. It will transmit to a 25-mile radius and be in operation from dawn to dark. Plans are to focus on local area news and personalized features. The developers will have until the end of next year to establish the station.

Bud Willard and Putnam: Story of a Flim Flam

By JAMES V. HEALION

PUTNAM (UPI) — Electronics magnate Charles B.T. Willard demanded to know if the factory roll would accommodate a landing pad for his helicopter. It wouldn't be ordered the roll reinforced with a let's-get-on-with-it flair that marked him as a bold, decisive corporate executive ready to roll with a 600-member work force.

His grasp of alternatives has always been boundless. And money was clearly no object to Willard, who knew the rigors of an austere boyhood growing up in Whitinsville, Mass., near Worcester.

Willard's self-imposed mission this summer was to revitalize the economy of Putnam, a rural mill town near the Rhode Island border, by starting up B.T.A. Corp., to make electronic components. A former mayor introduced him.

He was off to a smooth start with his skillful handling of labor-management relations, always a sensitive area when corporate newcomers arrive on a local scene.

"Call me 'Bud,'" he told his employees. That was the way Bud Willard sometimes did things. Low key, but deep down a seize-the-moment type of fellow. He was aware of his civic responsibilities, too. He arranged a meeting with the trustees at Amhurst College in Woodstock to discuss his donating $300,000.

He advocated a kind of profit sharing, too, unveiling it locally in an informal exchange with an employee. "You like that car?" he asked. "You like the color?" The employee said he did. "I'll buy you one," Willard said.

Like many shrewd executives, Willard sometimes kept things to himself. His was a hard mind to read, Steve Dolan, B.T.A.'s general manager, recalled after a flight to California.

"It didn't make any sense to me. We just drove around looking at buildings," Dolan said.

Willard likes to drive — the feeling of speed, the wild rush burying the needle bringings when the speedometer rockets past 55 miles per hour. He leased two cars and a van for B.T.A. from Putnam dealer Lou Cormier.

His personal station wagon was getting a tune-up and new ball joints at Dan Rovero's Amoco station and Willard felt the mechanic didn't understand the corporate world one bit.

lodge at the Hingham jail. The DA's office said it was okay for Bud to drive himself to court from Hingham because there was no transportation for him. Bud never did make it to court.

Willard was last seen in Lake George, N.Y., where Police Sgt. Ed Litwa said he left the Fort William Hotel owing $300, "and in this state, that's grand larceny."

Willard left Connecticut before the roof

fell in — no helicopter ever landed on it — and they still talk about Bud Willard in Putnam. "He liked to put on a big show. He lived in world of fantasy," said Putnam Police Chief Omer Kentile.

MANCHESTER — Winners of the first annual Bicycle Safety Program have been announced in three separate age categories.

The contest to test young bicyclists' riding skills was last Saturday at the Manchester Parkade. It was jointly sponsored by the Manchester Police Department, the Parkade Merchants Association and Station WINF.

The three age categories were junior (7 to 9), intermediate (10 to 12) and senior (13 to 15).

The first-place finishers in each division won a bicycle. Second through fifth place finishers in the intermediate and senior categories won a tire pump, cable lock, reflector kit and bike light, respectively.

Kurt Thoresen of 66 Patriot Lane was the first-place finisher in the junior division. The next three spots went to Henry Minor, 94 St. John St., Timmy Almond, 85 Kent Drive, and Jason Culbertson, 26 Goodwin St.

NAACP Blames Economy For Ku Klux Klan Drive

HARTFORD (UPI) — The head of the Connecticut NAACP says the Ku Klux Klan has taken advantage of economic woes to launch a stepped-up drive to woo young whites hard-hit by the times to join its cause.

"I think these are people who are more open to conversations and a group which is highly unemployed," NAACP Executive Director Ben Andrews said Tuesday, adding the drive was apparently aimed at whites in their teens and early 20s.

"They have nothing to do, have trouble getting a job and might feel they're not getting a job because of affirmative action or because they think minorities are in the way, taking the jobs."

"If that's happened, they might be more willing to listen and believe they're taking over," Andrews said.

He said a six-month "Klan Watch" investigation by the state NAACP turned up evidence of KKK activity in Enfield, Westport, Southport, Ansonia and East Hartford.

"They (the Klan) are apparently attaching themselves to certain economic trends of today. Unemployment and recession breed this type of environment. People have less compassion and are less willing to think about others because of their own plight."

"They're more receptive to anti-philosophies. Blacks and minorities are easy and visible targets under such circumstances," he said.

Andrews said Klan flyers and calling cards had turned up on shopping mall bulletin boards and at factories.

"I think, judging by all indications, there is an effort by the Ku Klux Klan to recruit new members in Connecticut and it appears to be geared to people 25 years old and down as young as teen-agers," Andrews said in an interview.

"There is obviously an increased effort taking place," he said.

He said the KKK appeared to be attempting a national resurgence and "Connecticut is part of that. We've had quite a few calls from people telling us they were approached in a bar or at a social gathering, especially young people."

Andrews said the NAACP, which began the "Klan watch" in February, has to be careful because many racial incidents have been attributed to the Klan when there was actually no KKK involvement.

But he said his group had still found "an increased amount of materials being distributed by the Ku Klux Klan, usually a small flyer or a business card with the Klan insignia on one side and philosophy on the back."

Andrews said he talked to U.S. Attorney Richard Wilmeth about Klan activity shortly after the NAACP's watch began.

He said his group will continue to monitor KKK action in Connecticut.

"I don't think there's too much more we can do right now except wait and cooperate with the U.S. Attorney's office when we have specific incidents," Andrews said.

The Palestinian Plot

The plot is thickening in the Mideast and the surprise is not that it is happening, but that it has taken so long to happen. The Palestinians have always had it in their power to shake severely if not knock the props completely out from under Israeli policy. All it would take would be a public commitment to reality, an acceptance of the fact of Israel and a willingness to live with it.

It has long appeared obvious that this would be the most effective weapon the Palestinians could employ against the Israelis because it would be the most effective means of diluting Western support. Israel's friends might not defect immediately and en masse, but it would be immensely more difficult for Jerusalem to keep them in line behind its hard-line rejection of anything resembling a Palestinian state.

Obviously, that is, to everyone other than the Palestinians and their more vehement Arab sponsors, they have preferred rhetoric to reality, threatening to push the Israelis into the sea and in the very process by maintaining Western sympathy for a beleaguered people, guaranteeing that it would not happen.

Now there are suggestions that the Palestinians may be ready to use the weapon. They come from several quarters. From Vienna, where Yasir Arafat met with Austria's Bruno Kreisky and West Germany's Willy Brandt, both very big men on the international circuit and apparently favorably impressed with what they heard. From the United Nations, where an Arab-sponsored representative of Mideast policy is under consideration. And from Washington, where reports of indirect contacts with Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization have been confirmed, sort of.

Thoughts

A stranger once ventured into a group of worshippers, and, as they noticed that his clothes were different, and nobody really knew him, one of them suggested that "down the road always is another group of worshippers, perhaps you'll find God better there." The stranger was absent the next week or three weeks, but nobody really missed him. He did reappear one day, however.

He spoke to the group. "I indeed found God better as I worshipped with the group down the road, because they befriended me and welcomed me. And now I come to you to say that I hold no hard feelings against you. I want you to know that God welcomes even the stranger as one of His own." Rev. David B. Stacy Concordia Lutheran Church

Sewer Stench Plagues Residents

To the editor: The date was Aug. 14, 1979 - A board of directors meeting I attended. After reading the article in The Herald as reported by Lacey Zedoff on Aug. 15, I had some doubt as to whether we attended the same meeting.

Driver Re-education Needed

To the editor: Due to the ever-rising gas prices, the use of alternative forms of transportation has been steadily increasing in Manchester. Bicycles and mopeds have begun to surface as representatives of a significant, growing segment of non-automotive vehicles lining area roadways. This is a fact that drivers of cars should no longer choose to ignore.

Abandoned Arms Worries U.S.

WASHINGTON - President Nixon's solution to the Vietnam war was to replace American soldiers with quantities of modern weaponry, which would in theory enable the South Vietnamese to defend themselves without U.S. troops. In practice, of course, the theory failed miserably. And when our puppets in Saigon collapsed, some $5 billion worth of U.S. armaments fell into the hands of the North Vietnamese victors, leaving them with one of the largest arsenals in the world.

Moynihan and Young: Contrasting Views

By ROBERT SHEPARD WASHINGTON (UPI) - The 15 Americans who have served as ambassadors to the United Nations varied widely in their view of that world body and perhaps none differed more than Andrew Young and his immediate predecessor, Daniel Moynihan. Their sharply contrasting attitudes were outlined earlier this year when both Young and Moynihan testified before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Young had a detailed report, that no doubt took considerable time to research, now that report should be of considerable value considering the fact that Mr. Young has had about one month of experience, if all of the time he spends at the plant was calculated for his time as manager. As a taxpayer, I directed a serious question to Mr. Giles in the newspaper was in fact, as stated by Mr. Giles, only a letter-type, two page report.

Only an impact does occur, there will be only one casualty, and chances are, it will not be the driver. Therefore, it is the cyclist who is expected to avoid cars and accidents. He is treated as a trespasser on another's domain. There is no way that cyclists can compete in traffic. The only way a successful relationship between cars and bicycles can exist is if the drivers of both recognize and respect the right of the other to occupy a space on the road.

Items Sought For Tag Sale To Help Shell

MANCHESTER - People who have been enjoying concerts at the Bicentennial Band Shell now have an opportunity to ensure funds will be available for next season's events by donating items they no longer need for a tag sale Oct. 13.

Only an impact does occur, there will be only one casualty, and chances are, it will not be the driver. Therefore, it is the cyclist who is expected to avoid cars and accidents. He is treated as a trespasser on another's domain. There is no way that cyclists can compete in traffic. The only way a successful relationship between cars and bicycles can exist is if the drivers of both recognize and respect the right of the other to occupy a space on the road.

Comer Has Number Of Oriole Batters

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver saw it coming — what he saw was Texas Ranger pitcher Steve Comer. "We don't have a guy in our lineup who has been able to hit him all year," Weaver said Tuesday after Comer, with relief help from Jim Kenerly, baffled Baltimore once again as the Rangers edged the Orioles 2-1. Comer went 7-3 in three innings allowing five hits and six runs, striking out three. He is 3-0 against the Orioles this year and in his two-year career has allowed only two earned runs in the 33 innings against Baltimore.

Koosman Credits Defense For 16th Win over RSox

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Pitcher Jerry Koosman of the Minnesota Twins was more than willing to share credit with the defense for his 16th victory of the season. "I was a beneficiary of a lot of good plays and that was very fortunate for me," said Koosman, 16-10, after stopping the Boston Red Sox 7-2 Tuesday night on a five-hitter. "(Third baseman John) Castino made some great plays when I was in deep trouble and (leftfielder) Bombo Rivera made a couple of good catches. "I started out with a spotty curveball for the first half of the game and then I lost it completely, and didn't find it again until the last inning. Other than that was my happiest moment." Koosman, whose infield produced four double plays, said he welcomed the opportunity to pitch in cool weather. "I don't like it anymore than 75 degrees at the hottest," he said. "Pitchers like it cool and hitters like it hot. I've been an early and late season pitcher. In the middle of the season when it's hot, I have struggled."

Manager Don Zimmer of the Red Sox hailed Koosman's performance. "The man knows how to pitch," Zimmer said. "He pitched outside and inside and set up the hitters. He the unlikely roles of heroes, Yankees Manager Billy Martin redted a "four-mouthed fan" for putting them there. "He (the fan) has been all over Lou (Piniella) and he used to be all over me," said Martin. "But he did us a favor and fired us up. He got everybody mad on the bench. I ought to send him a bottle of champagne." Splittorff might be a more likely recipient for the champagne because of the pitches that hit Bobby Murcer and Chris Chambliss, which sparked the Yankee rally. "I thought that throwing an inside pitch was a good idea," said Splittorff. "I was starting to get tired and was just trying to get good fastballs with some movement on them. They both got away from me." Rich Gossage picked up the win to even his record at 2-2 after Tommy John allowed both Royal runs. Kansas City used a single and stolen base by Willie Wilson and a single by Amos Otis to score in the first and moved in front with three consecutive seventh-inning singles which scored Frank White. The first Yankee run came in the sixth when Willie Randolph singled, took second on Al Cowens' throwing error, stole third and scored on Piniella's groundout.

Vintage Yankees in Latest Victory

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — To Fred Stanley, it was vintage New York Yankees. "We never give up," he said. "That was indicated in the World Series last year when we were down 2-0 and won it."

Stanley and the Yankees didn't give up Tuesday night either, scoring five runs in the ninth inning to beat Kansas City 6-2 for their second straight victory over the Royals. Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff, 12-13, helped the Yankees cause by favoring two batters in the inning, setting up Roy White's two-run single up the middle that gave New York a 3-2 lead. Stanley followed with a three-run homer down the leftfield line to put the game away. "I was just looking for a pitch over the plate," White said. "In that situation, you don't want to swing at a bad pitch. White said his game-winning hit was even more gratifying because he did not consider himself a good hitter in Kansas City. Stanley isn't a home run hitter—in Kansas City, New York or any other city. But he certainly is enjoying his second home of the year. "I was just trying to make contact," he said. "I hit it pretty good but I didn't know if it would stay fair. This ballpark is a little too big for me."

Seaver On Winning Skein

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hector Cruz plays for Cincinnati. Jose Cruz plays for Houston. Cincinnati and Houston are battling for first place in the National League West. Postpone the bicentennial love until October. "If we win the division title," Hector said Tuesday night after singling in a run to give Cincinnati a 3-2 victory over Montreal. "I'll buy Jose tickets for the playoffs... anything he wants."

Seaver On Winning Skein

For the time being, however, gifts must wait. The victory, Tom Seaver's 10th straight, enabled the Reds to pull within 1½ games of first place Houston. In other NL games, San Francisco downed Pittsburgh, 6-1. Atlanta nipped Philadelphia 5-4. Los Angeles defeated Chicago, 4-2. New York blanked Houston, 5-0.

Longwood Upset Sprung by Cahill

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Unseeded Mike Cahill of Memphis, ranked 118th in the international computer rankings, upset second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina, 6-3, 7-5 Tuesday as first round play continued in the 52nd annual $175,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Longwood Cricket Club. The upset was the third of the day. Unseeded Pavel Slozil of Czechoslovakia had a surprisingly easy 6-2, 6-1 decision over No. 4 seed Balazs Taroczy of Hungary 6-2, 6-1. Slozil now advances to the third round. Earlier in the day, unseeded J. Lapidus, a 20-year-old amateur who will be a junior at Princeton University this fall, upset 14th seed Kim Warwick of Australia, 6-2, 7-5. Playing an aggressive serve-and-volley game, Cahill broke Clerc's serve in the eighth game to take an early 5-3 lead, holding his serve to win the set. Continuing his attack, Cahill broke Clerc again in the 11th game and held serve to take the second set and the match. The win brought Cahill's career head-to-head record against Clerc to 1-2. Clerc beat Cahill three weeks ago in North Conway, N.H., and in last year's U.S. Open. A 27-year-old right-hander who turned pro in 1974, Cahill has been on a tear for the past week, winning the doubles title and finishing runnerup to Jimmy Connors in singles last week in Stowe, Vt. # Is the NFL Draft Really Illegal?

JUST ASK

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff:

The next big upheaval in sports is going to come when some kid pita the guts to challenge the legality (most) of the college player draft and dissolve that move of variety talent, which has become ridiculous, in practice anyway. The way teams to their draft picks around, it's no longer an equalizer for pro football.

Q. I noticed that Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox is not playing catcher any other position there. Is he injured or just sitting on the bench, or what? David Taylor, Langhorne, Pa.

Fisk has had a serious shoulder injury all spring, actually a cover from last season. He was put on the disabled list. The injury not only stripped him of his throwing ability but affected his batting swing as well. The Red Sox are trying to push rookie Gary Alenson as his replacement, but the young catcher had a slow start, offensively and defensively.

Q. I would like to know what the largest collection of baseball cards is and what their worth is. Also, how long have they been making baseball cards? - Eddie Rickerts, Madison, Wis.

There's no way of gauging the biggest collection, but the most famous collection of cards belonged to the late Jeffery Burdick, who wrote "The American Card Catalog." After his death in 1960, his collection (which went beyond baseball cards) was given to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. My article of card collections, Bill Madden of the New York Daily News, tells me Burdick's collection was worth more than half a million dollars and included those two rare 1910 cards put out by Piedmont Cigarettes of Hones Wagon and Eddie Plank.

The Wagner card sold for $4,700. The oldest card in existence is supposed to be an 1880 portrait of the Cincinnati Red Stockings. It belongs to Harry Harper of Livingston, N.J.

Q. I am a 28-year-old outstanding female basketball player with a very fine high school career. I played basketball in college and now I am looking for a college team to play for. I am interested in trying out for the women's professional teams in the United States. What you also need me information on the 1980 Olympic basketball tryouts? - Eddie Christie, Rock Falls, Ill.

On women's pro ball, write to the Women's Professional Basketball League, 5150 East Main St., Columbus, Ohio 43223 (although the league office will be moved to Los Angeles or Chicago). This past season, there were teams in eight cities, including Chicago (nearest you), and next winter 14 franchises are projected. On the amateur level, tryouts for the national team will represent the United States in the Pan American Games were recently concluded in Knoxville, Tenn., and the team is presently competing in an international tournament in South Korea. Tryouts for the women's Olympic team will be held later in March, 1980, but to qualify in the Olympic Games, that squad will have to qualify in competition at Varna, Bulgaria, in May 1980.

Q. Could you please get me autographs of the whole Dallas Cowboy football team? Also, what happened to # former Dallas Cowboy Calvin Hill, and to Duane Thomas?

—Charlie Cram, Logan, Utah.

I am not in the autograph-collecting business as will have to pass on that one. Calvin Hill left the Cowboys after 1974 to play in the World Football League, then signed with the Washington Redskins in late August 1976. After minimal success for two seasons, he was picked up last year by the Cleveland Browns from retirement and made some contributions of yards rushing and as a pass receiver. The 32-year-old Yale grad is rumored to be quitting again. Thomas, also, is going to try to comeback with the Green Bay Packers after being out of the NFL since 1974.

Q. Could you please give me the most valuable players in the 11 All-Star baseball games for the last decade? —Brad Ellis, Aberdeen, Wash.

I can give you the names of the players who were named to the 11 All-Star baseball games for the last decade, but I can't give you the names of the players who were named to the 11 All-Star baseball games for the last decade. I can give you the names of the players who were named to the 11 All-Star baseball games for the last decade.

Q. How would you go about trying out for a major league baseball team? Would you have to be asked first, or is there something you can do and try out? — Larry Coops, Brockville, Ontario, Canada.

It is not to be asked, but that's only for drafters or prime prospects. Most major league clubs hold tryouts at various times during the year. Scouts will write the general manager of the club nearest you, or the one you're interested in joining.

Q. One of the most feared of baseball clichés is that of "defensive catcher." You see it. There are so many "defensive catchers" that it's almost a cliché. Is there a catcher who is not a "defensive catcher"? — Jim Russell, Boulder Creek, Calif.

Semantics, I think. I don't think that Mark Buehrler of Baltimore is still a helluva defensive shortstop and elite Valente of Montreal is likewise as a defensive outfielder. As you say, no position in the field needs to be defined as defensive; it automatically is.

Q. Do you think Tampa Bay will make it to the playoffs this year, and do you think they will make it to the Super Bowl any time within the next five years? — Flint Hilly, Deland, Fla.

Hey, I thought this was baseball season. But to answer the question, the expansion Buccaneers, after three years, have shown definite progress towards becoming a winner. And they're not just that, but they're also a contender in the power of shifting — Minnesota is on the decline, while none of the other teams has emerged as a serious contender. Yet they don't have sufficient offensive firepower to become a playoff contender in '79, as the learning process during the year. I think Tampa Bay will make it. I'm confident though that John McKay can continue them. Super Bowl threat in five years.

Q. I would like to get the famous triple play, the unassisted one. Which teams played it? Also, I would like to get the address of the Yankee Clipper. Joe DiMaggio, — Art Goro, Aurora, Minn.

I assume you're referring to the unassisted triple play pulled off by second baseman Bill Wambagans (Wambay) for short of the Cleveland Indians against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1920 World Series. Joe DiMaggio was in Detroit in 1927, then in San Francisco in 1928, then in New York in 1929. He was in Detroit in 1927, then in San Francisco in 1928, then in New York in 1929. He was in Detroit in 1927, then in San Francisco in 1928, then in New York in 1929.

Q. What has happened to "The Bird" this year? I have heard something about an injury, but nothing official. — Dan Patrick, Detroit, Mich.

It's official all right. "The Bird" Fredrick missed almost all of last season with an ailing right shoulder. The bird wing handicapped him in all spring, although he was put back on the active list. He has pitched sporadically for the Detroit Tigers. He's still a tremendous drawing card for more than $2.00 turned out for his first start — but his future is in doubt.

Parting shot: Pro basketball is going to lose me, and a lot of others, unless it goes to the 30-second time limit and allows some modified form of foul call. I'm still in favor of raising the baskets to make the big guys work for their shots.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

She Lives in Fear Of Neighbor Hoods

DEAR ABBY: I live in a rough neighborhood. In the past year I've had my purse snatched six times. I put up a light the last time and was hit over the head and had to go to the hospital for 12 stitches in my head. I also received 11 indecent propositions. I can't figure it out because I'm 47, overweight and just an ordinary-looking housewife. I hardly ever wear makeup, and I dress up only for church on Sundays.

Three women in my neighborhood have been raped in the past month and I'm scared that I may be next. I am thinking of carrying a butcher knife in my purse for protection.

Will you please contact an expert and find out if I can be put in jail for trying to protect my purse, my honor and my life?

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am one of six, and we've always been a very close family. We're all married now, and have families of our own.

Seven years ago our mother died. Dad died five years later. We all contributed equally to the upkeep of their graves, but I haven't been to the cemetery since we put up Dad's headstone. I've headed out toward the cemetery many times, but a terrible depression comes over me and I turn back.

My brothers and sisters go often. They say it makes them feel good. Well, what if I'm an oddball but it tears me apart to look at their graves, so I don't go. I was a good son, so I do not have any guilt about not visiting my parents when they were living, but do feel guilty when someone in the family asks me if I've been to the cemetery to visit the folks lately?

Should I force myself to go for appearances' sake?

Win at bridge

South squandered a king under his opponent's ace to lose the trick. South was reasonably certain that East had five or six spades. If he had six spades, it was important for South to talk him over, South was vulnerable with the ace of spades and then giving his partner a ruff. The ruff would be the setting trick as declarer would still lose the ace and win a trump.

South tried to obscure the suit by switching to the spade king at trick one. Who could blame poor East for switching to the spade king? The club switch allowed declarer to discard his spade deuce on the second club honor and easily make his four heart contract. Declarer only lost one spade trick and the ace and king of trump.

South made the key sacrifice play quickly, which helped his success. His drop in the king secured the most natural play in the world.

The present structure is a steel column with steel floor beams, and a steel grid which has been overlaid with asphalt.

A Manchester police department spokesman said today that his department had made no arrests for the thefts. However, he said West Hartford police have a warrant out for a man who allegedly stole one of the Manchester statues. He will be charged with larceny by possession.

CCAG Executive Director Marc Caplan, who heads the organization founded by consumer advocates Ralph Nader, called the thefts "childish, senseless and stupid."

Quorum Was Possible For Directors' Meeting

MANCHESTER - Had there been a Board of Directors meeting Tuesday night six members of the nine-member board would have been able to attend; the three Republicans and four of the six Democrats.

Democrats Stephen Penny, Thomas Comors, John FitzPatrick and Joseph Swenson would have been in attendance but would not have represented a Democratic majority on decision making, with five members necessary to control the predominantly Democratic board.

Betty Inagliata and Steven Cassano are on vacation.

Elise Swenson, vice chairman of the Republican Town Committee, said she would check on the possibility the meeting was not held because of a lack of Democratic control.

Ed Cummings, Democratic party chairman, said the board's chairman Stephen Penny, had expected Comors to be absent and "with two known absences and a possible third he thought it sensible to defer the meeting to next week."

The notice postponing the meeting said there was the possibility there would be a lack of a quorum. A quorum for the board is five.

House Fire Cause Never Was Found

MANCHESTER - The cause of the July 14 fire which gutted a vacant house at 49 Edwards Street has not been determined, Fire Marshal Ted Lingard said today, and will probably remain unknown.

At Monday night's Eighth Utilities District meeting, Lingard said the fire started in the center of the house and could have been started by an "electrical" malfunction or by "malicious mischief."

Eighth District firefighters battled the blaze for over three hours because it had considerable headway before the department arrived.

Lingard said neighbors detected something burning after midnight, but did not see any smoke. The fire department was notified until 2:30 a.m.

Statue Thieves Erred When They Left Notes

MANCHESTER - A reputed member of the "Blackneck Liberation Army" says the group may have made a mistake by leaving notes when it stole lawn statues it felt were racially derogatory.

The unidentified member Tuesday said the culprits were five workers from the Connecticut Citizens Action Group (CCAG), who had canvassed homes and kept addresses of those which had the statues.

However, the member said "freelancers" took more statues after the first thefts drew widespread publicity. The thefts occurred in several greater Hartford towns, including six reported thefts in Manchester.

A Manchester police department spokesman said today that his department had made no arrests for the thefts. However, he said West Hartford police have a warrant out for a man who allegedly stole one of the Manchester statues. He will be charged with larceny by possession.

CCAG Executive Director Marc Caplan, who heads the organization founded by consumer advocates Ralph Nader, called the thefts "childish, senseless and stupid."

Bridge Dedication Planned Thursday

MANCHESTER - A ribbon cutting ceremony to dedicate the newly reconstructed Park Street Bridge will take place tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. at the bridge.

Walter Senkow, the town engineer will give a history of the bridge. He also will make remarks by Mayor Stephen T. Penny, and General Manager Robert B. Weiss.

The Park Street Bridge, prior to 1941, was owned by the Cheney Brothers and was a wood bridge sup- ported by existing stone abutments at each end. Plans for a steel bridge were prepared in 1941 and the struc- ture was built sometime shortly thereafter.

The present structure is a steel column with steel floor beams, and a steel grid which has been overlaid with asphalt.

A Manchester police department spokesman said today that his department had made no arrests for the thefts. However, he said West Hartford police have a warrant out for a man who allegedly stole one of the Manchester statues. He will be charged with larceny by possession.

CCAG Executive Director Marc Caplan, who heads the organization founded by consumer advocates Ralph Nader, called the thefts "childish, senseless and stupid."

Rezoning Sought On Knollwood Road

MANCHESTER - A locally based development firm has applied to the Planning and Zoning Commission for the Manchester rezoning. He will be charged with larceny by possession.

CCAG Executive Director Marc Caplan, who heads the organization founded by consumer advocates Ralph Nader, called the thefts "childish, senseless and stupid."

Tests, Tests, and More Tests Forecast in Schools

PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Tests, tests, and more tests are the forecast in schools because:

- Taxpayers need proof of diligence under the schoolhouse roof.
- Parents want certification of offspring's progress in the classroom.
- Schoolboards demand evidence teachers perform at professional levels.
- Lawmakers seek reliable records of progress in education supported by public funds.
- Besides, pupils like to know how they're doing.

And principals, college deans and professors know it's good business to see how learning on their turf compares with what goes on in classrooms across the state and nation.

The multi-demands for proof of progress in the $140 billion education establishment feeds the $250 million standardized testing industry in the United States.

Even though testing programs are being criticized by various groups, the criticism isn't expected to slow down testing in a significant way in the new school year.

except in New York state. Before the year's out, students from pre-kindergarten to graduate school will be subjected to a grand total of 200 million standardized tests. That comes out to better than three tests for each of 59.5 million persons on the academic trail.

Among those calling for changes in testing procedures are Ralph Nader, the National Education Association, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Persons, and the National PTA.

The NEA, a teachers' group, claims all standardized tests should be dumped except those that:

- Diagnose learning needs.
- Prescribe instructional activities.
- Measure student progress in the curriculum content utilizing tests prepared or selected by the classroom teachers.

A new law in New York State, while it threatens to set college-admission testing on its ear, disturbing the quiet at the 400-acre rural headquarters of Education Testing Service in Princeton, N.J.

The law says after some tests are taken, correct answers must be made public; the same for the questions; and the individuals are entitled to see their own test results and scores.

If that is enforced, and there's no reason to believe it won't be, the Scholastic Aptitude Test and others used for admission to college and professional schools will need to be revised each year.

Besides ETS, other major powers in the standardized testing industry include IBM, Westinghouse, Harcourt

Brace & Jovanovich; Houghton-Mifflin; and the California Test Bureau.

"If a government agency had ETS's power, there would be all kinds of outrage, protests and marches," Ralph Nader, the consumer crusader said at "Project DE-TEST's" first conference in the spring.

DE-TEST, an acronym standing for De-normalizing the Established Standardized Tests, is a project of the Center for the Study of Education and Politics with headquarters at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn. John Weiss is director.

The testing industry, Nader describes as "regulators of the human mind." He maintains the testing industry decides who has "aptitude" and "intelligence," decides who has access to educational and professional opportunities.

At the conference, Nader also called for an inquiry into the privacy of files the testing corporations have on more than 50 million Americans.

DE-TEST sponsors include John Holt, education critic and author of "Why Children Fail" and other books; Hannah Levin of Rutgers Law School; Henry Levin, Professor of Education at Stanford University in California; Wayne O'Neal, Professor of Linguistics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Garland Allen, Professor of Biology, Washington University; Shepard Bliss, Director, Education for Action; Radcliffe College; Luis Fuentes, Professor of Education at UMass-Amherst; and Richard Ohmann, Professor of English, Wesleyan University.

In "Testing Digest," published by DE-TEST, the project's goals are reported to be to inform the public of various claims the group makes, namely:

- That all norm-referenced, multiple-choice standardized tests are severely limited.
- That standardized tests often function to legitimize and perpetuate class, race and sex discrimination.
- That over-reliance on standardized test scores has forced educators to increasingly alter their curriculum to conform to the limited content of what says, "to coordinate the efforts of those students, parents, educators and scientists who are actively engaged in seeking and implementing quality methods of test score should have the right to understand the test's items, his/her for employed, $12 for in-answers to those items, situations, $2 a single copy, and the wanted answers to those items, as well as all bimonthly during the of the test manufacturer's school year. The address: validity and reliability Box RRR, Wesleyan Station, Middletown, Conn.

The publication "Testing Digest" is designed, it is $4 for students, $8 for the test manufacturer's school year. The address: validity and reliability Box RRR, Wesleyan Station, Middletown, Conn.

Curriculum Revisions Will Begin in Vernon

VERNON - When the Vernon public schools reopen on Sept. 5 for the 1979-80 school year they will do so with some revisions to the curriculum.

For the past several years the kindergarten students have been divided into three levels and through recommendations made by a Curriculum Study Committee, this has been changed to heterogeneous grouping.

The committee said that many of the kindergarten children are given the first group experience in socialization with other children, in kindergarten.

Besides the routine kindergarten program, also to be included in this year is a program in mathematics which is designed to allow each child to progress at his or her own rate as nearly as the classroom situation allows. An activity approach will be used for these classes.

Also to be included in the kindergarten curriculum is a program on science to help the children understand a few basic scientific facts and to pique their curiosity to learn more.

Through a program on social studies the educators hope to help the young children to incorporate a deeper understanding of patriotism and a love of country within their being.

High School Changes
The Rockville High School graduating class that graduates next June will be the first to be required to have 18 credits to graduate. Up to this past June only 16 credits were required. Those who graduate the following June will be required to have 18 1/2 credits.

Starting with this school year all high school students will be required to take a program in mathematics which is designed to allow each child to progress at his or her own rate as nearly as the classroom situation allows. An activity approach will be used for these classes.

Also to be included in the kindergarten curriculum is a program on science to help the children understand a few basic scientific facts and to pique their curiosity to learn more.

for elective, a total of 18 credits.

To enter Grade 10 a student will be required to have three and one-half credits; Grade 11, seven credits; and Grade 12, 12 credits.

Another change at the high school will be the addition of a General Math II course. The existing general math course is being renamed, General Math I.

Emphasis in this course will be placed on job entry skills, sports and consumer items used by the teenager. The committee said that testing had indicated that many students lack computational skills and an ability to apply math and the course will give students who would be unsuccessful in an alternative course.

Besides ETS, other major powers in the standardized testing industry include IBM, Westinghouse, Harcourt

Brace & Jovanovich; Houghton-Mifflin; and the California Test Bureau.

"If a government agency had ETS's power, there would be all kinds of outrage, protests and marches," Ralph Nader, the consumer crusader said at "Project DE-TEST's" first conference in the spring.

DE-TEST, an acronym standing for De-normalizing the Established Standardized Tests, is a project of the Center for the Study of Education and Politics with headquarters at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn. John Weiss is director.

The testing industry, Nader describes as "regulators of the human mind." He maintains the testing industry decides who has "aptitude" and "intelligence," decides who has access to educational and professional opportunities.

At the conference, Nader also called for an inquiry into the privacy of files the testing corporations have on more than 50 million Americans.

DE-TEST sponsors include John Holt, education critic and author of "Why Children Fail" and other books; Hannah Levin of Rutgers Law School; Henry Levin, Professor of Education at Stanford University in California; Wayne O'Neal, Professor of Linguistics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Garland Allen, Professor of Biology, Washington University; Shepard Bliss, Director, Education for Action; Radcliffe College; Luis Fuentes, Professor of Education at UMass-Amherst; and Richard Ohmann, Professor of English, Wesleyan University.

Keeney School Principal Will Teach Grad Course

MANCHESTER - Charles Sentio, principal at the Keeney Street School, will teach a course this fall on "The Culturally Different Youth."

A former assistant superintendent in Hartford, Sentio became principal of the Keeney Street School last year.

Sentio, who will teach the course on Wednesday at 4:30 p.m., says the class is for teachers who work with black and Hispanic youths. He said the course will emphasize instructional methods which have been effective in teaching youths with cultural backgrounds that are different from the instructors.

Sentio said he taught a similar course at the University of Hartford eight years ago. The school's fall semester includes philosophical and cultural aspects of modern education, group interaction, exceptional children and school finance.

Surgeon General's RX: More Health Promotion

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Some Johnny and Janies in U.S. schools munch junk food, drive too fast, drink booze, test narcotics, become mothers and fathers before graduation or marriage, get venereal disease, rough up teachers - and even kill themselves.

Many also sit too much, eat too much, grow fat and predispose themselves to heart ailments and strokes in adulthood.

In public health circles, all events like those listed above are called "self-destructive habits."

Which gives rise to the question: "Why aren't schools warning kids that the payoff for self-destructive behavior is a shorter, disease-riddled life?"

More valuable would be trying - within limits.

But a lot of school bosses are saying they don't have money for health promotion on the scale really necessary to make an impact.

Others say no one really asked them to get into this part of health in a big way.

Now Dr. Julius B. Richmond, Assistant Secretary for Health, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, wants the nation's schools to do more to help students control destructive habits.

Say health promoters: adjustments during the year and is familiar with legislation concerning transportation and reimbursement agreements.

The curriculum committee attends curriculum council meetings, advises the board of curriculum developments and test recommendations.

The planning and community relations committee will provide follow-up data as requested by the board in connection with the future planning for the Bolton School system.

The buildings and grounds committee will provide advice to the board on construction and maintenance projects.

that the primary functions of the committees are to provide advice to the board concerning actions to be taken and to work with the administration to develop plans.

The function of the personnel committee is to review situations concerning administration, staff and negotiations. The budget committee review budget requests and advise the administration during budget preparations and also recommends and advises on items affecting the status of the current budget.

The policy committee will review and advise the administration drafting of policies with such planning that policies tend to guide the curriculum, and the school's scholarship fund.

Ialadrea will teach Grade 4. He earned his associate in science degree from Southern Central Community College and a bachelor of science degree from Eastern Connecticut State College and completed graduate studies at Southern Connecticut State College.

Ms. Cull, who will teach Grade 5, earned her bachelor of science degree at Eastern Connecticut State College.

Hunt will teach Grade 6. He earned an associate in arts degree at Northern Virginia Community College, a bachelor of science degree at Eastern Connecticut State College and has started work on his master's degree in language arts.

Committee Assignments Set

BOLTON - Committee assignments for Board of Education members for the coming school year, have been approved. Members serve on several committees.

Also: John Marinos, budget and buildings and grounds; Michael Parsons, buildings and grounds, personnel, planning, and community relations; Barbara Smith, transportation, curriculum, and the school's scholarship fund.

The job of the transportation committee is to advise the administration during bus route scheduling and bus contract negotiations. It reviews adjustments during the year and is familiar with legislation concerning transportation and reimbursement agreements.

The curriculum committee attends curriculum council meetings, advises the board of curriculum developments and test recommendations.

The planning and community relations committee will provide follow-up data as requested by the board in connection with the future planning for the Bolton School system.

The board will also: Appoint a new member to the board; act on an agreement to participate in a child nutrition program and designate agents; establish school hours and substitute teacher pay rates; establish milk and lunch rates; and take action on a plan for educational evaluation for remedial assistance.

The board will also hear committee reports, review the summer maintenance programs, review the meetings scheduled for the opening of schools, discuss the policy on free and reduced price meals and milk; and review some curriculum items.

FOUR DELECTABLE DESSERTS TO MAKE AHEAD---

People/Food

Festive Ending to a Great Party!

Summer time is party time. Whether you're celebrating a special event—wedding, anniversary, graduation—or entertaining just for the fun of it, you'll want your food to be as special as the occasion.

Whatever the main course, here's a quartet of tempting grand finale desserts that are sure to win applause. As a matter of fact, they're a party all by themselves! Each is easy to make using a classic combination of flavors, cocoa and almonds. These natural, wholesome ingredients are perfect partners for a variety of reasons.

Both cocoa and almonds are easy to work with and come ready to use. Measure cocoa directly from the can and mix—no pre-melting necessary. Four almonds into a measuring cup as called for; they come in many convenient forms so you don't have to spend time chopping.

Both cocoa and almonds combine well with other foods and are very versatile. For example, almonds can frequently be substituted for other nuts in a recipe. And 8 ounces of cocoa go as far as 8 ounces of baking chocolate.

Most important, both rate high marks for flavor and complement each other, crunchy bits of almond contrasting with the smooth richness of chocolate. Because cocoa is a very concentrated kind of chocolate, everything you make will be extra-chocolatey.

DEVILISH DIVINITY is heavenly chocolate fudge, with creamy smooth consistency and the delightful bonus of chunky chopped almonds. (Cocoa turns very dark when blended with liquids, giving the candy a rich deep-chocolate color.)

SUPER-RICH CHOCOLATE ALMOND ICE CREAM has unbeatable homemade goodness, without the work that usually goes into making homemade ice cream. Use an ice cream freezer if you have one, but all you really need is a refrigerator freezer. (Double the batch, so you'll have a supply on hand for unexpected guests, and for the kids' cocoa.)

RAINBOW BAKED ALASKA is a showpiece, but takes surprisingly little time and effort to put together. Start with a light, moist cocoa sponge cake batter. Finish with a shower of sliced natural almonds on the melt-in-the-mouth marshmallow meringue.

Note: To substitute cocoa for baking chocolate in virtually any recipe, here's the simple conversion formula:
 3 level tablespoons of unsweetened cocoa + 1 level tablespoon of shortening (solid or liquid) = 1 square (1 ounce) of baking chocolate.

FESTIVE COCO ALMOND TORTE blends toasted slivered almonds and the sophisticated taste of almond liqueur in its filling. Use remaining almonds to decorate the crown.

FREE Recipe Booklet: A 49-page booklet, Crazy About Almonds and Chocolate, contains fascinating facts about almonds and chocolate plus more than 100 delectable recipes with color illustrations. For a free copy, send a postcard with your name and address to:

SUPER RICH CHOCOLATE ALMOND ICE CREAM

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup water
- 1/3 cup Hershey's Cocoa
- 1 can (14 ounces) sweetened condensed milk
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 2 cups light cream**
- 1 cup chopped natural almonds, toasted**

Sprinkle gelatin onto 1/2 cup water in saucepan; allow to soften a few minutes. Heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; thoroughly blend in cocoa. Add remaining ingredients except almonds; blend well. Pour into 13x9-inch baking pan; freeze to a firm mush (about 2 hours). Spoon into chilled, large mixer bowl; beat until smooth. Fold in almonds; cover with foil and freeze until firm. About 1-1/2 quarts.

Electric or hand turned ice cream freezer method: Combine chocolate mixture in ice cream freezer container. Proceed according to manufacturer's instructions.

Note: For 3 quart ice cream freezer double the preceding recipe.
 **To toast almonds, spread in an ungreased pan and heat over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, just until the almonds start to color. They will continue to color slightly after you take them off the heat.

FESTIVE COCO-ALMOND TORTE

- 1/4 cup water
- 4 eggs, separated
- 3/4 cup Hershey's Cocoa
- 3/4 - 1 cup sugar (1 cup for sweeter palate)
- 1/3 cup almond-flavored liqueur
- 2 cups whipping cream
- 1 cup slivered almonds, toasted
- 2 packages (3 ounces each) lady fingers, split
- Almond Cream (recipe below)

Sprinkle gelatin onto water in large saucepan; allow to soften a few minutes. Add milk. Slightly beat egg yolks; stir into gelatin mixture with cocoa and sugar. Stir over medium heat about 10 minutes or until mixture coats a spoon. Do not boil. Remove from heat; mix in liqueur. Pour into bowl; chill about 1 hour or until mixture is consistency of raw egg whites. Meanwhile, whip cream until stiff. Reserve 1 cup; chill. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold whites into chocolate mixture. Fold larger portion of cream into chocolate mixture; chill until mixture mounds.

Line bottom and sides of 9-inch springform pan with lady fingers. Fold 3/4 cup of almonds into chocolate mixture; pour into prepared pan. Swirl top; chill 4 to 6 hours until firm. Remove side of pan; place torte on serving plate. Garnish with Almond Cream and remaining almonds. About 10 servings.

Almond Cream: Mix reserved whipped cream with 2 teaspoons powdered sugar and 1 tablespoon almond-flavored liqueur.

DEVILISH DIVINITY

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup Hershey's Cocoa
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3/4 cup coarsely chopped almonds

Melt shortening in small saucepan; add cocoa and stir until smooth. Set aside over warm water.

Combine sugar, corn syrup, water and salt in a 2-quart saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves and mixture boils. Continue cooking, without stirring, to 240° F. (firm ball stage). Then begin beating egg whites in large mixer bowl until stiff peaks form.

When syrup reaches 200° F. (hard ball stage) or until a small amount of syrup dropped into very cold water forms a hard ball) remove from heat. Immediately pour syrup in a thin stream into egg whites, beating at high speed on mixer. Add vanilla and beat until candy begins to hold its shape. Quickly blend in cocoa mixture; stir in almonds. Drop from tip of a spoon onto waxed paper-covered baking sheet. Cool thoroughly. Store in an airtight container. About 3-1/2 dozen candies.

RAINBOW BAKED ALASKA

- 3 eggs, separated
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/3 cup Hershey's Cocoa
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup water
- Ice Cream Filling (recipe below)
- Marshmallow Meringue (recipe below)
- 1/2 cup sliced natural almonds

Create and line bottom of 9-inch round cake pan with waxed paper. Beat egg whites until foamy in large mixer bowl; gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar. Beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside. Beat egg yolks in small mixer on high speed 2 minutes. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar and vanilla; continue beating 2 additional minutes. Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder, baking soda and salt in small bowl; add alternately with water on low speed beating just until batter is smooth. Gradually add chocolate mixture to beaten egg whites, gently folding until mixture is well blended. Pour batter into prepared pan.

Bake at 350° for 15 to 20 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely; wrap and freeze. Prepare Ice Cream Filling.

Remove cake from freezer; place cake layer on baking sheet or wooden board covered with aluminum foil. Remove ice cream from mold and invert onto cake, leaving 1-inch edge. Remove foil. Place in freezer while preparing Marshmallow Meringue. Remove from freezer and spread meringue very thickly over entire top. The Alaska may be baked at 450° for 3 to 5 minutes or until meringue is lightly browned and served immediately. Or, cover with cake cover, place in freezer up to 24 hours and bake just before serving time. After baking, cut into slices. Serve immediately. 12 servings. Cover and freeze any leftovers; serve within several days.

Ice Cream Filling: Soften 1 quart pistachio ice cream. Line a 1-1/2-quart mold or bowl with aluminum foil. Place mold in bowl of ice. Line mold with layer of pistachio ice cream, coating the sides and bottom evenly up to the edges of the mold, leaving a hollow space in the center. Fill space with 1 pint raspberry sherbet. Cover with plastic wrap; freeze until very firm.

Marshmallow Meringue: Beat 6 egg whites (at room temperature) with 1/8 teaspoon salt in large mixer bowl until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1-3/4 cups (7-ounce jar) marshmallow creme, beating until stiff peaks hold.

Variation: Bake cake in 9-inch square cake pan according to directions in preceding recipe. For ice cream filling: unsifted 1/2-gallon ice cream onto cutting board; cut in half; place one-half on cake layer. Firm cake to fit leaving 1-inch edge. Prepare meringue; sprinkle with almonds and bake according to preceding recipe.

Dispelling Misconceptions About Diabetes

DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) - When 7-year-old Barb was diagnosed as being diabetic, her parents and teachers were briefed on what had to be done, and her classmates were told what her doctor thought they needed to know.

But the next day, nobody would play with her. The problem, said Lynne Kipnis, was that no one had thought to mention that "You Can't Catch Diabetes From a Friend."

That's the title of a children's book written by Ms. Kipnis of St. Louis and Susan Adler of Baltimore, former classmates at Washington University. The isolationism Barb experienced led directly to the book.

"I told her parents it would be good if she had some kind of booklet to take back to school to explain what diabetes is," Ms. Kipnis said in an interview at the department of psychology at St. Louis Children's Hospital.

"The parents thought that was great, and I was really proud of myself. Then they came back the next week and said there weren't any books like that."

The book is about Karen, Danny, Colleen and Robert, four diabetic children, and how their lives and their families are affected by their illness. "Twice a day Karen has to inject herself with insulin. Danny has to be careful about the foods he gets when he swaps lunches at school, and he asks for an apple instead of a cookie."

Colleen tests her urine daily and is afraid if the tests don't come out just right, Robert works so hard cutting lawns on a hot day he has an insulin reaction and has to have a quick dose of sugar.

When tomatoes hang heavy on your garden during this summer, feel reassured that you won't have to see them pop up over and over again in BLT's, tossed salads or casserole and main dish sauces. This vegetable's versatility is here for the taking, you may just need a creative suggestion to start your thinking in the right direction.

For instance, Cheesy Tomato Bake, is an easy, simple side dish featuring tomatoes sliced with a sprinkle of crumbled cooked bacon, grated Cheddar cheese and snipped chives. The sliced tomatoes are layered inside an oven cooking bag for either microwave or conventional oven preparation.

With oven bag cooking, particularly in a microwave oven, little if any additional liquid is needed for vegetable cooking insuring better retention of color and texture. The tomatoes' natural moisture concentrates around the food for even heating and helps keep full nutritional value. Flavor is better, too, even enhanced because the cooking liquids are not drained off as in conventional range top preparation.

Cheesy Tomato Bake: 4 medium tomatoes, 3 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled, 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese, 1 tablespoon snipped chives.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Place regular size (10" x 15") Brownin-Bag in 12x2x4-inch baking dish. Remove stem and blossom end from tomatoes; slice 1/2-inch thick. Layer tomatoes in bag. Evenly sprinkle tomatoes with bacon, cheese and chives. Close bag with tie provided; make 6 half-inch slits in top. Cook 10 to 15 minutes or until tomatoes are warm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Microwave Oven: Follow directions above except close bag with nylon tie, rubber band, string or ranch strip cut from open end of bag. Micro-cook on high power setting, 3 to 4 minutes, turning dish once. Let stand 2 minutes before serving.

Newest Craze

Like When We Were Kids— Outdoor Sidewalk Roller Skating

JACK V. FOX
LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Are you ready, America, for the latest craze out of Southern California? Roller skating.

Not your discos and rinks. Outdoor, sidewalk roller skating. Like when we were kids.

Of course, it isn't your basic scabbie knee, clamp skate, leather strap, key around the neck, metal wheels, spine-jarring, racket-creating, stubby cement roller skating.

A good pair of shoeskates now costs around $90 although you can get them for as low as $45 and go as high as $500. There are the accessories. Knee pads. Elbow pads. Wrist bands. A few helmets but not many because they create a "negative image."

Then there is the optional equipment. Transition rackets implanted in head sets that look like giant car mufflers or airline pilots' earphones so you can skate to music. For the more eclectic, cassette decks strapped to the back so you can play tapes and not be annoyed by commercials.

The wheels are made of a plastic called urethane so skating is almost noiseless. The ball bearings are ground to the precision of the wheels of the racing cars in the Indianapolis 500.

The age bracket has changed, too. The 11-year-olds have been elbowed out of the way — by price among other things — by a set that runs principally 20 and over and employs skating as a sort of mobile courting rite.

Pot smoking on skates is considered a deplorable tradition. For the more serious, although beer can skating sometimes seems almost de rigueur. Some young mothers are seen skating with baby carriages. There are, of course, the hot rods doing intricate turns and twists but they are outnumbered by the stumblers and lurchers.

One thing has not changed. There is a lot of falling down. The roller skate phenomenon is swelling geographically. There are reports that the natives of Central Park in New York City are adopting the custom. From Honolulu comes the word that the wahines are renting skates in Waikiki and cruising nearby deserted sidewalks between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m. And San Francisco in Golden Gate Park they congregate off the streets on weekends and the roller skaters go undulating along the gentle rises. One correspondent said the picturesque scene of skaters in bright costumes reminded him of a French impressionist painting of gay in the original sense of the word young people cavorting in springtime on the boulevards of Paris.

built a bicycle path along most of the 20 miles except for a detour around Marina Del Rey. Bicycle rental shops prospered. For years the scene has been an idyllic out of the turn of the century with certain costume aberrations.

Now the skate rental shops have moved in. For $1.90 an hour you can rent a pair of skates. For $4 you can keep them all day. The deposit is either your driver's license or $50.

Rosenberg is the owner of an outfit called "Cheap Skates." (Get it?) It sells and rents roller skates including one outlet in Venice. Rosenberg lives on the second floor of an apartment facing the Pacific Ocean in Venice.

Here is his story: "Five years ago I was a student at Santa Monica City College. I was working in odd jobs including a plumbing salesman and in a clothing store. I played football and basketball. I used to roller skate as a kid and decided to take it up again. For one thing I didn't have much money and it was hard to find a place to park at the school for a car."

"I tried to find a pair of roller skates and the stores just didn't have them, at least not in my size. It took me three months to find a pair. I started skating and my friends joined me and I thought it was great. It was as much fun as when I was a kid."

"So I got this idea — why not try to bring back roller skating? I only had $1,500 and I couldn't afford to rent a place in Venice so I got a van and backed it up on the beach and started renting the skates. I'll never forget the day. It was June 15, 1976."

"At first we had very poor business. I would skate around the sidewalk and I got a couple of friends to skate around. Kinds like shills. Some of our first customers were the winners. They tried it a few times and went back to the bottle."

"There were a bunch of looky-loos at first and then they began trying it and the next thing you know there were more customers than we had skates. At that time there were about 15 bicycle rental shops and only my skate shop."

"I tried to find a pair of roller skates and the stores just didn't have them, at least not in my size. It took me three months to find a pair. I started skating and my friends joined me and I thought it was great. It was as much fun as when I was a kid."

There is a pedestrian walkway which is open to the skaters. The bike path is supposed to be exclusive to the cyclists. But its concrete surface is so smooth that it seems like ice skating — so enticing that Venice has turned into a megalomaniac of cyclists.

Chicken Fricassee, a favorite "stew" made served on noodles. But now, as then, it's hearty by Colonial cooks, gets a modern twist when nourishing dish for family or guests.

Easy Chicken Dishes

Chicken Fricassee

1 large broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving parts
 1/2 cup flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground peppercorns
 2 tablespoons mace
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/3 cup vegetable oil
 1 large onion, sliced
 1 can (2-1/2) mushroom caps
 3 cups hot water
 2 chicken bouillon cubes
 2 tablespoons catsup
 1/2 cup sour cream
 1 cup white wine
 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
 Wash chicken parts. Mix flour, salt, pepper, mace and nutmeg. Roll parts in mixture while oil heats in large skillet over high heat. Brown all parts a very dark brown on all sides, about 15 minutes.

Add onions and mushrooms and cook until soft. Then add water and bouillon cubes; turn heat to low. Simmer 1 to 4 hours. When ready to serve, skim off excess fat. Mix catsup, sour cream, wine and mustard in small bowl. Add a little of liquid from pan. Stir into remainder of gravy. Serve hot on flat noodles, boiled.
 Makes six servings.
 **If slow cooker is used, first brown chicken in skillet and change to electric cooker; set for 7 to 8 hours on low or 4 to 5 hours on high. Add sour cream mixture to pot last 30 minutes of cooking time.

Easy Chicken Gumbo

1 broiler-fryer chicken, whole or in parts
 4 cups water
 1 stalk celery
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes
 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped okra or 8 ounce fresh okra, sliced
 1/2 cup celery, chopped
 1/2 cup onion, chopped
 1/2 cup cabbage, chopped
 In large kettle, place chicken with water, celery, stalk, salt and pepper and cook 45-50 minutes or until done. Remove chicken and celery from kettle. Remove chicken from bones and chop; discard celery. To the broth in kettle add tomatoes, okra and cook over medium low heat for 15 minutes. Add cabbage and cook 5 minutes more. Add chopped chicken and bring to boil. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.
 NOTE: If preparing chicken ahead of time, leave in broth and store until soup is made.

Beans: High in Protein, Low in Cost

Bean dishes are high-protein hedges against inflation. A puree of great Northern beans and combine with vegetables with flavor brightened by white wine makes a different dish for a family dinner or a party buffet. Prepare it ahead and reheat when ready to serve.
 Chilled bean salads also make for ready-when-you-are-eating. Prepare one ahead that includes crunchy zucchini and celery. The salad will keep well in the refrigerator for several days.

Remove bay leaf. Puree vegetables in food processor or put through food mill until smooth. Puree beans and combine with vegetables. Cook bacon until crisp. Drain and crumble, reserving drippings. Blend 1 tablespoon bacon drippings and reserved wine into beans.
 Bake, covered, at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Or microwave at high setting for 2 minutes. Stir before serving. Sprinkle with crumbled bacon. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat, cover and let stand 1 hour.
 Simmer beans, covered, 55 to 60 minutes or until tender. Add 2 teaspoons salt during last 15 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 6 cups cooked beans.
 Savorly Bean Salad
 3 cups cooked Western dry great Northern Beans
 1/2 cup sliced celery
 1 cup sliced green onion
 1 medium zucchini, cut into 1-inch sticks
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 1 cup bottled Italian dressing
 Combine cooked beans with celery, green onion, zucchini, parsley and dressing. Refrigerate several hours.
 When ready to serve, toss again. Garnish with tomato slices. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHICKEN RAVIOLI CASSEROLE

1/4 cup cooking oil
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 boiler-fryer chickens, cut into serving parts
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
 2 cans (16 oz.) Chef Boy-Ar-dee Mini Ravioli in Tomato and Meat Sauce
 1 cup table cream
 dash hot pepper sauce
 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas
 2 tablespoons toasted almonds
 Combine cooking oil and butter, heat in large skillet. Drain chicken parts. Remove browned parts to warm platter. Sauté onion and pepper in remaining fat. Add Mini Ravioli, table cream, hot pepper sauce, and frozen peas; simmer for 5 minutes. Place layer of chicken on bottom of baking dish. Pour Mini Ravioli mixture over. Arrange remaining chicken on top; cover. Bake for 40 minutes in 350° oven. Garnish with toasted almonds. Serves 6.

Consumer Report

Interstate trucking regulations that have discouraged most consumers from taking the ICC to court. Technically, you can lodge a complaint with the ICC - 13,054 complaints were filed against moving companies in 1977 alone - but the agency rarely effects a settlement.
 "The ICC will log a complaint and, perhaps, call the carrier on the shipper's behalf," said Consumers Union lawyer Sharon Nelson in testimony before a Senate committee in June. However, she added, since most consumers fail to get relief from the ICC, they have only one recourse: the courts.
 The Carter administration would like to see regulation that "would get a lot of consumer complaints out of the courts and provide a means of effective redress for consumers," says Charles Cadwell, an attorney for the administration's Office of Consumer Affairs, which also favors price deregulation.
 A draft of the administration's proposed regulation calls for an end to ICC regulation of interstate trucking, leaving the ICC mainly responsible for handling consumer complaints.
 The proposal also calls for a study to determine whether the complaint process should be given over to the Federal Trade Commission, which the administration believes has more effectively enforced consumer laws.
 Lately, the pressure from consumer groups and politicians seems to have had some direct effect on the ICC. The agency recently demanded a total of more than $4.5 million in penalties from 45 moving companies, including the nation's 19 largest firms.
 They're charged with more than 9,000 violations ranging from deliberate padding of bills to overbooking, in which customers promised shipment by a certain date discover that their delivery because the carrier has no room to carry their freight.

Advice on Coping with Fast-rising Food Prices

above 70 degrees F. This is the recommended storage climate for food in cans or other tightly covered rigid containers made from metal, glass or plastic. If cutbacks resulting from the energy shortage curtail air conditioning this summer, low temperature storage could become impossible.
 The following suggestions for storing frequently used food products is from the extension services:
 - Transfer boxed or bagged foods to tightly covered rigid containers. This allows you to check them first for the presence of insects that can develop in sealed bags or boxes of flour and other cereal products mishandled at a warehouse or retail store.
 - Date package or can labels or storage containers before you put the groceries away, and always use the oldest first.
 - Parboiled white rice and flavored rice keep well for up to two years under ideal conditions but unflavored rice mixes, no more than six months, and brown rice, no more than two months. Seasonings in the mixes can lose flavor and/or attract insects. The natural fat content in the outer layer of brown rice can develop an off-flavor.
 - For longer storage, dried vegetables keep well for as long as a year but they tend to dry out even longer cooking is necessary.
 - Unflavored dried potatoes have a recommended storage time of six to 12 months, but flavored mixes only keep about six months.
 - Unopened canned foods should keep well up to a year in a cool, dry spot.
 - Fats and oil need protection from light and air. Otherwise, they oxidize like wine, turn rancid and develop off flavors.
 - Partly filled bottles should be decanted into small ones that can be filled to the top for long storage.
 - Whole flour should keep well for about 6 to 8 months at cool room temperature but whole wheat and other whole grain flours should be refrigerated to keep their fat content from developing off flavors.
 - Don't store any food on a high shelf. Even in a cool room, heat rises and groceries kept there may be well above the temperatures at counter level or below.

Herbed Baked Halibut

Hungry for a different meal at the end of a busy day but too tired to spend much time in the kitchen? The simple solution is to bake fish steaks. Halibut, for example, makes a tasty entrée and is available year-round in your fish market or the fish section of your supermarket.
 Other firm-flesh fish bake well, too. The secret is to test the fish for doneness; fish, when done, will flake when pricked with a toothpick or fork. Do not overcook until the fish is dry and tastes like cardboard.
 If fish is frozen, thaw it in the refrigerator or in cold water wrapped in a plastic bag.
 These herbed fish steaks baked in half-and-half or milk will be fat free from dry.
 Serve them with boiled potatoes or your favorite frozen green vegetable or zucchini. The green and red of the vegetables make an attractive plate. Remember, we eat with our eyes, too.
Herbed Baked Halibut
 2 pounds halibut steak or other firm-flesh fish
 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
 1/4 cup onion flakes
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon marjoram leaves
 1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves
 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
 1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 1/2 cup half-and-half or milk
 lemon or lime wedges
 Arrange fish in a shallow baking pan. Combine butter with onion flakes, salt, marjoram and thyme leaves, garlic powder and white pepper. Mix well.
 Dribble over fish. Sprinkle with paprika. Pour half-and-half over all.
 Cover and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Baste once with cream mixture. Serve with lemon or lime wedges and boiled potatoes, if desired. Makes 6 portions.
