Hurricane Rakes Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) - Mighty hurricane David, which left two dead and more than 50,000 homeless on the island of Puerto Rico, was still raking the island today while roaring along a course that could take it into Mexico or the U.S. mainland.

The gales started blowing in San Juan shortly after daybreak, bending palm trees almost double, toppling some light poles and filling the air with debris.

Power failures occurred in many areas and Eastern Airlines cancelled all of its 70 daily flights in and out of Puerto Rico.

Puerto Rico's 3.3 million population, in a near panic, went on a buying spree in advance of the storm, cleaning the shelves of candles, food and other items.

Home and business were shuttered and all schools, banks and government offices were closed.

But forecasters said Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands likely would escape the full fury of the storm's 150 mph winds.

At 6 a.m. the center of the storm, one of the mightiest of the century in the eastern Caribbean, was located at 16.4 north latitude and 65.2 west longitude, or about 150 miles southeast of San Juan. It was moving toward the west northwest at 15 mph and was expected to stay on that course for the next 24 hours.

In Miami, forecaster Gil Clark said it looked like the giant 100-mile wide twister would eventually strike the coast of the United States or Mexico.

"All we can say right now is it is headed in that direction and will be approaching the U.S. or Mexico - we can't say which," he said. "It's headed on a west northwest track and it doesn't look like it's going to change soon."

At its current speed of 15 mph, the nearest hurricane could arrive at the U.S.-Mexican border, nearby 2, 000 miles away, would be early next week.

On the devastated Caribbean island of Dominica, Premier Oliver Sarphine said two persons were killed when the storm hit Wednesday and half the island's population of 100,000 was left homeless.

Sarphine called for international aid in the radio broadcast monitored by police in the British Virgin Islands. See Page Ten

St. Paul, Minn.: The nation will lose "billions of dollars" if the 8-week-old grain handlers' strike in Duluth-Superior ports on Lake Superior runs much longer, two Minnesota officials predicted Wednesday.

Tokyo: The American dollar spurred ahead for the fourth consecutive day in hectic trading in Tokyo today, closing up 0.35 point at 221.70 Japanese yen, despite active intervention by the Bank of Japan.

Houston: Exxon Corp. Wednesday said it will supply a "little less" gasoline in September than August, but Chevron USA said it expects to provide essentially the same amount of gasoline next month and Amoco Oil Co. announced it will increase its September gas deliveries.

Washington: The oil industry said Wednesday petroleum imports and production in this year of gas lines far outstrip 1978 levels, but comparisons are deceptive.

Calgary, Alberta: The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is prepared to initiate action to force the Western industrialized nations to cut back on oil consumption, OPEC secretary-general Rene Ortis said Wednesday.

San Diego: The United States could not use military force to get oil from the Mideast even if the government wanted to do it, Retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of U.S. naval operations, said Wednesday.

Rabbit Attack
WASHINGTON (UPI) - A story has come to light that President Carter was attacked by a rabbit on a trip he took in April to Sapelo Island and Plains, Ga. It seems the president was fishing alone from a boat on a small point when the rabbit swam out of nowhere at him. There are different versions of how the rabbit was dispatched, but all agree Carter won the encounter.

One sage said the rabbit probably was being chased by a predator, or was rabid. Dale Leinbach, an assistant White House press secretary, when queried about the incident early Wednesday, would say only "There are certain stories about the president which must ever remain inside in mystery."

Heart Transplants Improved

BOSTON (UPI) - In the dozen years since the first heart transplant, doctors have made major advances in the science of transplantation - although some major stumbling blocks remain.

Dr. Christian Barnard's historic handwork in 1967 would seem crude by today's standards. The heart transplant procedure has been refined - the surgery is more delicate and the after-surgery follow-up is more effective.

Writing in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Drs. Paul S. Russell and A. Benedict Cosimi say progress has made the procedure more valuable for many doctors.

Heart transplants, they said, "can now be regarded with cautious optimism because of progress in... surgical techniques, improved methods in diagnosis and treatment and more effective protocols to treat post-transplantation complications."

In many cases, the most basic problem with transplanting human organs - tissue rejection - has been overcome with the use of drugs.

The recipient's immune system attacks the donated organ because it perceives proteins on the organ's surface as foreign. Certain treatments can slow or shut down the process without harming the patient's ability to fight disease.

"If appropriate precautions are taken, serious reactions to the foreign protein are surprisingly uncommon," the researchers said.

Organs can be kept alive longer after the donor's death, allowing them to be transported greater distances to where they are needed. But this just partly compensates for the problem of inadequate numbers of donors, the authors said.

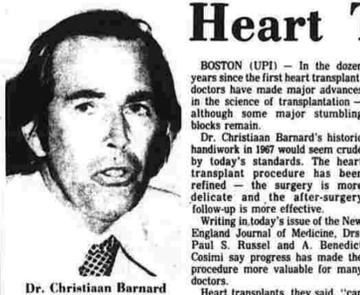

"In heart transplantation... no more than about 10,000 patients (donors) per year are now considered suitable," they said. "This figure could rise to 50,000 or higher if there is major progress in the field."

Russell and Cosimi, transplantation surgeons at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, cautioned that a patient with a donated heart has only a 50 percent chance of living five years after the operation.

Kidneys transplants have been more successful, particularly when the donor and recipient are relatives. The survival rate in lung recipients, however, is the lowest for all major organs to be transplanted.

In fewer than 50 reported cases, the longest survival after a lung transplant has been only 10 months, and the authors said, "it is not very likely that lung transplantation will become commonplace in the near future."

Other organ transplants have proven very effective, they said, including bone and liver, as well as skin grafts for burn victims.

Brief Respite Due from Food Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) - Consumers are expected to get a respite - a temporary reprieve from sharp food price increases as the end of summer nears.

Government economists say only moderate jumps are expected from now through the end of the year, although they stick with their earlier forecast of 11 percent higher prices than in 1978.

Yet, a random survey by UPI in 13 cities shows supermarket prices of 10 staples fluctuating widely - up sharply from a year ago on several items. In only a few instances were retail prices unchanged or up only a few cents.

The best buys were fresh California tree fruits such as peaches, plums and nectarines, thanks to record crops.

But fresh lemons were 50 cents or more apiece in many areas because of weather problems.

A beef industry trade group says retail beef prices are declining, but ground beef was up 50 cents a pound in Kansas City, Mo., and Boston from year-ago prices of 89 cents and $1.29 respectively. It was up 31 cents a pound, to $1.29 in Chicago, famous for its meat-packing plants.

A 1 1/2-pound loaf of white bread cost only 29 cents in a Dallas supermarket, compared with 33 cents a year ago. The stick margarine to spread it with, 38 cents a pound, down 2 cents from last year.

In Los Angeles, only a few miles from the lettuce fields, it had gone from 19 cents a year ago to 59 cents yesterday's formal proceedings, it was clear that the hospital plans to exhaust all avenues of appeal before accepting the $22 million cut.

At the end of a closing statement which became part of the record of the hearing, Edward Kenney, hospital administrator said this, "If rationing of health care is to be imposed on the citizens of Manchester and our service area, it will be only after Manchester Memorial Hospital has exhausted every conceivable administrative and legal remedy."

While almost all of yesterday's testimony concerned specifics of budgeting for services, a brief exchange concerned the legal positions of the hospital and the commission.

When a commission staff member asked why the hospital did not ask for further budget authorization when it became apparent that it would exceed its budget, Paul Knag, hospital attorney, said the hospital is obliged to come to the commission when it wants to increase its charges, which was not the case.

He indicated that is the interpretation of the hospital industry that when charges are to be reduced, the hospital does not need to seek commission approval, for instance.

Earlier Knag had raised objections to the including in the hearing record of some documents the commission See Page Ten

As demand increases for poultry as an alternative to red meat, prices often rise. But chicken prices were down in six cities and unchanged in two more. The cheapest whole broiler-fryers reported were 39 and 44 cents a pound respectively in Dallas and Denver, compared with 47 and 53 cents in those cities a year earlier. The highest, 84 cents a pound in Seattle, up 9 cents from a year ago.

On a national basis, the USDA reported sharply lower prices for seasonal fresh vegetables. But New York City's weekly market basket report said rising prices for every food category were led by fresh fruits and vegetables, meat and fish.

The Almanac

By United Press International Today is Thursday, Aug. 30, the 242nd day of 1979 with 123 to follow. The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo. American actors Fred MacMurray and Raymond Massey were born on Aug. 30 - MacMurray in 1908 and Massey in 1896. On this day in history: In 30 B.C. Cleopatra committed suicide by allowing an asp to bite her. In 1780, Revolutionary Army Gen. Benedict Arnold betrayed his young country when he promised secretly to surrender the American fort at West Point to the British army. A British spy subsequently was hanged but Arnold escaped. In 1830, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad abandoned the horse-powered locomotive for steam. In 1882, the Union Army commanded by Maj. Gen. John Pope was defeated by Confederate troops in the second Battle of Bull Run. A thought for the day: American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "Music is the universal language of mankind - poetry their universal pastime and delight."

Tut's Translator In Show Business

Explorer George Michanowsky, who translated the mysterious star-linked title emblazoned on King Tut's cartouche half a century after the Egyptian boy-king's tomb was discovered, is in show business now. Toronto's McLaughlin Planetarium will produce a show next month featuring his book, "The Once and Future Star" - now out in an updated Harper & Row paperback. Michanowsky's co-star - Omar Sharif, will narrate. But Michanowsky isn't through. He says when he unraveled the mystery of the Tut cartouche he found another clue - one he hopes it will lead to the much older, long-sought tomb of the ancient sage Imhotep - Egypt's first pyramid-builder, circa 3000 B.C.

Chicken Big

Col. Harland Sanders - he of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame - turns 89 next month and the birthday bash he's throwing for his home town will be anything but a small, intimate affair. The colonel expects more than 10,000 at the Sept. 8 party in Louisville, Ky. - not to mention country-western star Barbara Mandrell, who'll sing "Happy Birthday." The colonel isn't about to retire - says, "a man will rust out quicker than he'll wear out and I'm not about to rust out by sitting around." And what do you feed 10,000 guests? Fried chicken, of course.

Autry Rides Again

He was one of the last of the white hats - singing movie cowboys who sang and kissed their horses instead of their leading ladies. Gene Autry long since has turned to other endeavors - he's a millionaire and principal owner of the California Angels baseball team now - but he'll be back on the screen Oct. 12 in a guest appearance on television's "Hee Haw." He'll appear with the Stetler Brothers who have a special song for the occasion - one titled "Mr. Autry." Autry, who turns 72 Sept. 29, wrote and recorded a couple of his own - "That Silver Haired Daddy of Mine" and "Back in the Saddle Again."

Junker Junkede

Vincent Luigi Napoli is under arrest in Cupertino, Calif. - all because he didn't like where his neighbor planted an olive tree. Postal inspectors say Napoli has been dropping Douglas Carothers Jr. for a year with unsolicited junk mail - packages, books, fliers and of course, bills. Phone calls too - day and night - from all over the nation from salesmen following up "leads." The bewildered Carothers was about to give up and move when his wife happened into a store that makes rubber stamps and learned Napoli had purchased one with her husband's name and address. That led to Napoli and, Carothers hopes, a break at last at the mail box.

Glimpses

Gene Kelly has been signed to star with Olivia Newton-John in an original musical fantasy titled "Xanadu" - Filming is under way in Chicago on "The Blues Brothers," starring John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd, with James Brown, Cab Calloway, Ray Charles and Aretha Franklin ... Joel Grey, Robert Klein, Melissa Manchester and Ben Vereen will perform Oct. 7 when Marvin Hamlisch receives the Israel Cultural Award at an Israel Band tribute in New York ... Vincente Minnelli will be in New York Tuesday for the opening of daughter Liza's 10-day Carnegie Hall concert.

It was a stormy night off Cape Hatteras, N.C., in the notorious "graveyard of the Atlantic" and the Union Navy's prized ironclad gunship, the USS Monitor, was wallowing helplessly in heavy seas. The USS Rhode Island, background, lost the USS Monitor while towing on December 31, 1862. (UPI photo)

Monitor Wreck Fragile

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The wreck of the Civil War ironclad USS Monitor is too fragile to be raised and may be left intact on the ocean bottom near Cape Hatteras, N.C., for sightseers to view from observation submarines in the future. The archaeological expedition to the Monitor has revealed that after more than 117 years under water, the famed ironclad is in extremely fragile condition. "We will not risk shattering the remains of this ship in such an effort. The archaeological expedition to the Monitor has revealed that after more than 117 years under water, the famed ironclad is in extremely fragile condition." Much of the upside-down hull has collapsed inward, probably from the force of depth charges mistakenly dropped by Navy anti-submarine forces during World War II. Frank said many of the ship's iron frames are weak and its iron plating has deteriorated. The thick oak timbers that supported the iron armor also are in bad shape, such as its steam engines and the round gun turret that helped revolutionize naval warfare. "There appears to be no possibility that the Monitor could be raised in its entirety," Frank said. "We will not risk shattering the remains of this ship in such an effort. The archaeological expedition to the Monitor has revealed that after more than 117 years under water, the famed ironclad is in extremely fragile condition." Undersecretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges Jr. said leaving the Monitor intact for future observation would be the most economical solution. The Monitor and its Confederate counterpart, the iron-plated Merrimack (formally re-named the Virginia), fought to a draw in a historic, four-hour battle in Hampton Roads, Va., on March 9, 1862. The Merrimack was later scuttled and while the Monitor was being towed to join an attack on Wilmington, N.C., it sank in stormy seas off Cape Hatteras.

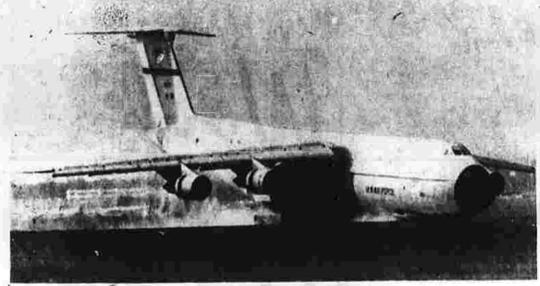

Amtrak Sorry for Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Amtrak President Alan Boyd is "sorry" in some cases that cutting some $100 million of Amtrak routes will cause inconvenience, but says the reductions were ordered by Congress. The Amtrak board of directors Wednesday voted to discontinue five passenger trains by Oct. 1, including the Boston-Cattlettsburg, Ky., "Hilltopper." The "Montrealer," which runs from Washington through Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont to Montreal, and the New York-Boston-Chicago "Lake Shore Limited," were allowed to keep running, at least temporarily. One new Amtrak route - Los Angeles-Ogden, Utah - will provide train service to the potentially high-volume Las Vegas market. The country's gambling capital now has no train service. The slash in the nation's passenger train system is the first general cut-back in Amtrak service since the system was formed eight years ago in hope of saving the trains. The cuts, which will eliminate 4,687 route miles, leave the system with about 22,000 miles of track. Amtrak said. The four other Amtrak trains to be eliminated are: • The Chicago-Florida "Floridian." • The Chicago-Seattle "North Coast Hiawatha." • The Chicago-Houston "Lone Star." • The New York-Kansas City "National Limited." The board said the New York-Boston-Chicago "Lake Shore Limited" will be allowed to continue until "superior or equivalent service can be provided." The Montrealer will submit to annual inspections to determine if it runs economically.

Waste Network Proposed

BOSTON (UPI) - The New England Regional Commission is considering a consultants' report which calls for construction of a multimillion dollar regional hazardous waste disposal system. The report, put together by the Arthur D. Little Co., recommended construction of five regional facilities to store or dispose of some 300 million gallons of toxic chemical wastes produced in New England each year. The projected construction cost is between $130 million and $170 million. "Recent incidents in every New England state testify to the fact that chemical wastes are not being disposed of properly," said the report. Besides cutting down on illegal dumping of such wastes, the network would also significantly reduce disposal costs, the report said. England firms have been paying up to $5 per 55-gallon container of waste. The facilities could reduce that to about $2 per container, the report said.

Vacancy on DPUC Filled

HARTFORD (UPI) - Peter G. Boucher, who is considered a consumer advocate, Sept. 2 will take over the Division of Public Utility Control set formerly held by Paul Weiner. Gov. Ella Grasso appointed Boucher, 34, to the $35,000 a year job Wednesday, filling out the five-member board which has undergone drastic changes in the past year. His appointment is subject to approval by the Legislature in February. At one time, Boucher and state consumer counsel Barry Zitzer worked together as corporation counselors for the City of Hartford. A spokesman for the consumer counsel said Zitzer, who is on vacation, "was very pleased" with the expected appointment. Boucher, a Hartford resident, got his law degree at the University of Connecticut in 1972, worked for the City of Hartford four years, and has been counsel to the Division of Insurance since 1976. During DPUC hearings on a Northeast Utilities record rate hike request, Boucher was chosen as special counsel to the Office of Policy and Management. Mrs. Grasso said Boucher's appointment "brings to the field of public utilities regulation seven years of legal experience at the state and local levels, as well as a strong commitment to public service and the concerns of consumers."

Hearings Rescheduled

HARTFORD (UPI) - Pre-trial hearings for three high-ranking New Britain officials facing charges of municipal corruption have been rescheduled for Sept. 5. Police Chief Thomas J. Ormsby, Fire Chief Raymond A. Galati and former Civil Service Commission Chairman Fred Haddad were scheduled to be in Hartford Superior Court for a pre-trial hearing Wednesday. Judge John D. Brennan, who signed arrest warrants for the three men and five other officials in New Britain, was scheduled to preside at the hearings. But he is on vacation. A spokesman at the court clerk's office said attorneys for the three men have filed motions, but he declined to discuss them. Brennan has ordered the grand jury files sealed. The three men were arrested Aug. 2 by state police after an investigation by a one-man grand jury of alleged municipal corruption in New Britain involving the alleged sale of promotions and jobs and misuse of city property. The emergency telephone numbers are Highway, 647-3233; Refuse, 647-3248, and Water and Sanitary Sewer, 647-3111.

Gas Supplies Adequate

In different states, up to 90 percent of the gas stations could be open Saturday and no fewer than 30 percent Monday anywhere in New England, Klein said. State energy official C.J. Waskowicz said the supply situation looks good and he doesn't expect any fuel problems this weekend. He also said September allocations will be available to dealers Saturday. The gasoline crunch earlier this summer took its economic toll on the tourist industry, especially in Southeastern Connecticut. "We've just had factors working against us," said Tony Davenport of the state Department of Commerce, referring to the gas shortage and bad weekend weather. "Things are getting back to normal," he said. Mary Jane Cassidy of the New England Tourist Information Center in Mystic said business has begun to level out and if the weather is good "we expect to have a bang-up weekend."

School Board Meets Today

COVENTRY - The Board of Education will meet today at 7:30 in Room 17 of Coventry High School. The bus routes will officially be approved along with the bus drivers and a list of substitute teachers. Committee chairmen will give reports on negotiations with cafeteria workers, custodians and secretaries and also on the progress of building needs. The board will be asked to review a list of various topics which will be reviewed during the year. The board has already approved a list of eight new teachers, six on the secondary level and two for the elementary schools.

Town Offices Set Closing

MANCHESTER - The Municipal Building will be closed Monday in observance of Labor Day. The emergency telephone numbers are Highway, 647-3233; Refuse, 647-3248, and Water and Sanitary Sewer, 647-3111. LEAVING DAVID HARRIGAN as the only DPUC holder.

U.S. Program Funds Area School Murals

HEBRON — Tim Carr, 17, of Columbia, has been working this summer at the Hebron Elementary School painting murals on the walls.

Carr is working as a part-time employee under the Windham Area Community Action Program, a federally funded program.

He is also working under another special federally funded program which accepts students age 14 and older. The primary goal of this program is to teach job responsibility as well as to develop a value system for the young people on the job market.

Carr will attend Windham High School this fall, as a senior, and he hopes to be able to continue in the field of art along the project lines.

Strip Search Ban Proposed

HARTFORD (UPI) — Saying "all it does is degrade people," — the co-chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee has called for a ban on strip searches of suspects arrested for traffic, regulatory or minor offenses.

Rep. Richard Tulisano, D-Rocky Hill, said Wednesday two cases prompted his concern about local police policy calling for strip searches of anyone placed in a cell no matter what the offense.

"Someone stopped for a traffic ticket should be subjected to a strip search. All it does is degrade people, and that's not what the law is supposed to do," said Tulisano.

"It can start with a traffic violation, then somebody starts an argument with the cops, then they book you, strip search you and put you in a cell."

Tulisano said he would ask the committee to draft legislation to prohibit police from strip searching anyone arrested for a misdemeanor.

The legislation would require that a strip search, if warranted, be conducted by persons of the same sex, out of view of others not involved in the case and only with the approval of a supervising police official.

Also, no search of body cavities would be allowed without a search warrant and under proper sanitary conditions, said Tulisano.

The bill would not apply to persons being placed in jail by court order and would allow strip searches in arrests involving possession of drugs or a weapon "or reasonable belief that the individual is concealing a weapon or drugs."

Tulisano said he became concerned when two cases involving strip searches — one "in the Hartford area" and one in Bristol — were brought to his attention. Both cases involved traffic violations, he said.

Tulisano said he was told by the chief state's attorney's office that it was not aware of any questionable strip search practices in the state.

But a Bristol police spokesman said suspects are strip-searched "if there's probably cause to believe they have prohibited substances or weapons hidden on their persons."

"Believe me, we've found them," he said. He added, however, he didn't know of any instances where a female suspect was strip-searched.

Tulisano said a nationwide survey showed the practice of strip searching persons, mostly women for misdemeanors, had increased. He added that once hearings on his proposal start "we'll find it happens more often than not."

Such activity in Chicago led to successful efforts by the American Civil Liberties Union to have legislation approved outlawing such practices.

Tulisano said suits against police for similar offenses have been filed in California and Texas.

Courthouse Escapee Recaptured

VERNON — An Ellington man, who escaped from custody at the Tolland County Superior Court house about 1 p.m. Wednesday, was captured without incident about 2 1/2 hours later in a field in East Windsor.

Leo Wilkinson, 24, was ordered by the judge to undergo psychiatric testing and immediately after he dashed from the courtroom and fled in his car.

Wilkinson allegedly tried to run down a state trooper who reportedly was in plain clothes, and the trooper shot at and hit a tire on Wilkinson's car.

Police said Wilkinson then drove to his mother's home in Ellington, picked up his 18-month old daughter and drove to East Windsor where he had to stop when his car became disabled due to the punctured tire.

Police said they tracked him down by following the gouges left by the flattened tire. They said Wilkinson was arrested without incident and the baby was unharmed. She was returned to her grandparents.

Wilkinson was originally charged with threatening and breach of peace in connection with an incident in which he allegedly threatened a passing bicyclist with a metal pipe and was involved in a subsequent scuffle with state police.

Police said Wilkinson had been free on bond when he appeared at the court hearing voluntarily. Following his capture he was also charged with escape from custody and reckless endangerment and was ordered to Norwich again for psychiatric testing.

Adult Education Program Slated at Cheney Tech

MANCHESTER — The fall semester of the Adult Education Program at Howell Cheney Technical School will begin the week of September 24, 1979. Vocational courses will be offered to all individuals who want to learn new skills and to those who wish to up-date of advance specific skills.

Basic and advanced courses will be offered in the following trades: Automotive, carpentry, electrical and industrial electronics. Related classes in blueprint reading are available for the machine trades.

The basic courses are designed to introduce the individual to a particular skilled trade. They prepare the student for the advanced courses which follow and also provide a general background in subject areas which may help individuals in their present employment.

The advanced courses provide the student with the opportunity to further their education in skilled trades. These courses are a continuation of the basic courses and also provide the opportunity to those individuals who wish to up-date their present skills.

Registration for all courses will take place at the school on September 11th and 12th from 7:00 to 8:00 PM. Each course is thirty six hours in duration and are in session from 8:30 to 9:30 PM one evening each week. All courses are tuition free to Connecticut residents. Students are required to purchase textbooks and supplies when needed. Further details may be obtained by calling the school (649-5396) between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 PM. Brochures may be picked up at the school anytime during the school day.

Shorthand Class Set on Cable TV

MANCHESTER — Manchester Community College, in cooperation with Greater Hartford Cable TV (Channel 13), is offering a college course in the Century 21 shorthand system.

The three-credit course will begin on September 10 and include one-hour televised sessions on Mondays and Fridays for twelve weeks. Each one-hour session will be shown in its entirety at 9 a.m., 12 noon, 6 p.m., and 9 p.m. to accommodate a variety of individual scheduling needs and to permit those taking the course to view the sessions several times, if they wish.

There will also be a number of testing periods and students will be required to come to Manchester Community College for examinations. Mrs. Pat Burns, for many years a shorthand teacher at MCC, is the course instructor who will give and grade examinations and be available to assist students.

The cost of the course is $40.00 and each student will be required to purchase test materials. Students who pass this television course are eligible to take the next most advanced shorthand course to be offered at MCC during the spring semester, 1980.

The course is intended for those who need shorthand as a regular part of their jobs, as well as for students, housewives, professional people, and anyone who would like to learn a quick and easy way to take notes.

Persons interested in further details and registration information should call Manchester Community College Community Services Division, 646-2137.

New Sidewalks Priority For Safety of Students

MANCHESTER — A safety improvement which the Board of Education considered as essential for students now walking to Hilling Junior High has received top priority from the town and the public works department.

An allocation for the construction of nearly 750 feet of sidewalk on the north side of Green Road will be introduced at next Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Directors. The administration has recommended a $15,000 appropriation from the Capital Improvement Reserve Fund to finance the construction along Green Road between Woodbridge Street and Wesley Road.

During a meeting of the school board's transportation committee last week, with the students' safety, particularly during the winter months, when the committee recommended to eliminate the bus run to Hilling Junior High School from the Ambassador Drive area.

Although voting to drop this route, the board agreed to review the area at its Nov. 12 meeting to see if sufficient improvements were made and the area is safe for the Board of Directors. The chairman said he was concerned about the safety of students.

LeBeau Working To Achieve One More 'Dream'

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Staff Writer

EAST HARTFORD — During his campaign for mayor, Synergy School Head Teacher Gary D. LeBeau has been called many things.

He has been described as a dreamer, an idealist, a troublemaker, a radical, a naive person and even by his harshest critics as a flake.

LeBeau, 32, will admit only to being an idealist with a dream. His dream is to be an active, energetic, aggressive mayor.

He hopes to take a step toward making the dream a reality on Sept. 11 when he faces off against Mayor Richard H. Blackstone and Deputy Mayor George A. Dagon in a Democratic primary.

LeBeau said there are many differences between himself and both Blackstone and Dagon. He has dubbed the present town administration the "Blackstone-Dagon administration," because he believes Dagon would offer little change from Blackstone.

Foreseeable problems are not met with by the current administration until they exist," he said. "What we seem to have is a government by avoidance."

LeBeau is convinced the town needs new leadership and a fresh approach.

LeBeau is aware others have called him a dreamer. "I don't think I'm a dreamer. I have a dream, but I've proven in the past that I can make dreams a reality," he said.

Synergy School was one of his dreams. LeBeau, with the help of another staffer, initiated the Synergy School in the fall of 1973.

The goal of the school was to provide an alternative environment for students who were not working to their capacities and who needed more support and structure in their education, he said.

He started with another staffer in the Penney High School parking lot with 30 students. The program has expanded to include six staffers and 85 students.

"The important thing about Synergy is that it is an alternative school with alternative courses and an alternative structure," he said.

A lot of other alternative schools failed in the '70s, he said, because their programs took a negative approach toward students.

"Kids need structure," he said. "They should know there's a method and what they have to do to get out. It takes attendance and hard work. Those values are tremendously important."

LeBeau said it is "incredibly rewarding to see so many of my former students doing well."

The program, he recalls, truly started from scratch. LeBeau was given $3,000 and told "Do what you can do" by the school administration.

School officials told LeBeau to study other alternative schools, he said. "I didn't have to. I knew what I had to do."

Gary D. LeBeau

The alternative high school moved into the Woodland building in 1977 and was renamed the "Synergy School." (The name means "working together," he said.)

Subject areas at the school include social studies, English, mathematics and science. At the outset of the program, staffers volunteered to teach at three-quarters time, losing a fourth of their pay, so they could maintain a steady level of enrollment, he said.

LeBeau said he hopes someday to see all alternative programs combined and located in one building. The school administration is reviewing a proposal for an alternative middle school program.

LeBeau has made other dreams — besides Synergy — come true.

He got jobs for over 100 youths, working as a private citizen and as a member of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group.

As a member of Action East in 1975, he wrote a proposal for a new program called the "Right on Reading Program."

He also wrote the proposal for a recreation program for the Hockanum Village area through the Comprehensive Youth and Work Experience Program (CYWEP).

The answer was: "We can't because we don't want to build expectations that the town can't keep up next year."

"What we saw were needs. We saw that people could really use these types of programs and we responded to those needs," he said.

He said the town missed an opportunity to address vital needs for low-income and other groups when its applications for $1.5 million federal community development funds were rejected by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The funds could have financed projects like refurbishing housing and rebuilding those houses which violate the town's housing codes, he said.

"Some of our housing stock is becoming old and, if it's going to last, we need to refurbish it," he said.

"You can't sit a kid down and tell him he has to watch a certain movie on a certain night," he said.

"Everything I have talked about is community oriented," he said. "The future of this country, the future of East Hartford and ourselves lies in looking closer to home to find satisfaction in our lives."

An inflationary economy and spiraling gas prices will discourage travel and spending on leisure activities, LeBeau predicts. Residents will look closer to home for activities, he said.

Can LeBeau pull off this vision of a neighborhood-oriented town hall which will organize the citizens and seek their input into programming and policies?

"It's a matter of leadership," he said. "You need someone with energy, like me, and activist department heads who share by philosophy."

Patrols are now made by assigning officers to high crime areas. The town is divided into two sectors and patrol beats are flexible and change with changing crime patterns.

Le Beau favors patrols on a neighborhood basis. The same officer would cover a designated beat under LeBeau's system.

A vital cog in any crime and change with more community centers and a recreation philosophy which allows youths and others to have a say in programming.

LeBeau said the town has also failed in not coming up with a redevelopment plan for Main Street's central business district.

"The administration has turned its back on the area," he said. "It's not so much that I have a plan, but I will actively participate in the process to start a plan for the area."

LeBeau also envisions the town becoming a mass transit district, thus opening the door for federal funds to finance an intra-town bus system.

He also advocates cooperative arrangements with large companies in town to bus residents and out-of-towners to work and take traffic off the street during peak hours.

As a citizen activist, one of LeBeau's greatest concerns has been the police patrol policy.

Patrols are now made by assigning officers to high crime areas. The town is divided into two sectors and patrol beats are flexible and change with changing crime patterns.

Le Beau favors patrols on a neighborhood basis. The same officer would cover a designated beat under LeBeau's system.

A vital cog in any crime and change with more community centers and a recreation philosophy which allows youths and others to have a say in programming.

LeBeau's political involvement goes back to his undergraduate days at the University of Massachusetts. During his years at UMass, he was involved in the student senate and served as a university administrative intern. He was elected president of his class one year.

He entered the military in 1969 and was honorably discharged in 1971. A year later, he helped to found one of the first alternative schools in the country in Worcester, Mass.

He worked at the Worcester Alternative School through 1973, the same year he earned his masters of education degree in urban educational administration at UMass.

He came to East Hartford in 1973 and helped to found Synergy.

He helped to form Action East Inc. in 1975. The group successfully petitioned to the Town Council for the establishment of the Human Rights Commission.

Since 1977, he has served as treasurer of the East Hartford Citizen Action Group, a position he gave up when he announced his candidacy for mayor.

He was born and grew up in western Massachusetts, one of three children of second generation parents of Italian and French Canadian ancestry. He attended public schools in East Hampton, Mass. He was graduated from high school in 1965.

He is a bachelor and lives at 35 Bliss St. He said he doesn't mind being called an idealist.

"Since when has being an idealist been a negative term?"

An idealist is a person who looks with optimism toward the future and hopes to have positive things happen for the community," he said.

"All of my proposals obviously cannot be implemented in two years and I know that," he said.

"That's why I hope I'm elected for four to six years.

"There has not been idealistic leadership from Town Hall," he said.

Pope John Paul II holds a child aloft during his weekly outdoor general audience at the Vatican Wednesday. The Vatican announced that the pontiff will visit six cities in the U.S. in early October, but will not stop in Ulster during his visit to Ireland because of the recent upsurge of violence. The pope will visit Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, and Des Moines, Iowa, in that order. (UPI photo)

MCC Educators Told Of Double Commitment

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Community colleges have a commitment to the individual learner and the community, a Vermont educator told the Manchester Community College professional staff Wednesday afternoon.

Peter Smith of Burlington, Vt., a founder and past president of the Community College of Vermont (CCV), said "the adult learner is a different breed of cat" and that community colleges can educate them "better than other institutions."

Smith, a graduate of Princeton and Harvard, administered a program which offered education to adults in 25 Vermont towns and has spent most of his professional career in non-traditional education.

"I'm not in love with academic tradition," he declared. "The responsibility to the community and to the individual learner is more important. Community colleges do this better than other institutions."

Smith said higher education in general must embrace the adult learner because he represents a new clientele. Declining enrollments and the end to the postwar baby boom meant fewer 18 to 22-year-olds will be attending four-year institutions.

UConn Dorms Overbooked

STORRS (UPI) — The University of Connecticut is overbooked for the fall semester and about 100 students will have to wait awhile before they can hang their hats in a dormitory room.

John Vlandis, UConn admissions director, said Wednesday the school expected 2,300 full-time freshmen to enroll at the main campus but 2,400 have already registered for the fall term.

The approximately 100 students have been notified they will be housed temporarily in dormitory study halls or the overnight guest quarters at the sprawling Storrs campus, officials said.

Vlandis said a similar situation occurred in 1974, when about 300 extra students enrolled and the school put three students in rooms meant for two.

He said due to the controversy over "ripping" that year UConn decided to place the students either in study halls furnished with residential furniture or the overnight guest quarters in Whitney Hall.

Sumner Cohen, UConn's director of residential life, said he was confident all the students would be transferred to regular rooms sometime during second semester.

Cohen also said Wednesday UConn has agreed to stop students from using the basements in 38 dormitories because the basements only have one exit.

Housing Developer Has 15 Days to Appeal

SOUTH WINDSOR — Francis Ronan, a local developer, has 15 days to decide whether he will file a court appeal on a decision of the South Windsor Housing Authority to reject Ronan's request to build an 80-unit housing complex for the elderly.

In a 3-1 vote the authority turned down the proposal which would allow the housing units to be rented to the elderly for $340 to $380 a month. The authority feared that the project "could go bankrupt" and force the town to take over.

The proposed development was planned for Old Main Street, the town's historic district, and would have been located near the South Windsor Convalescent Home.

Bert Lance: Laid-back and Waiting

WASHINGTON — There is quiet despair inside the White House over the political backfires that are exploding in President Carter's face. Not the least cause for dismay is the approaching trial of Bert Lance by the voters of the present re-election campaign. The shrapnel from the trial could ride Carter, who borrowed heavily from Lance's bank and then brought him to the White House to manage the federal budget. Yet by outward appearances, both men are unperturbed by the turn of event. The president seems to possess an inner mechanism that detaches him from the clicking and calculating amid the turmoil around him. Anyone but Jimmy Carter, facing the odds against his re-election, might anticipate defeat, Lance told us. "But Jimmy Carter just will not be defeated," said his friend. "He is the most determined man I have ever met in my whole life."

The embattled Bert appears to be equally unbowed — even cordially defiant — over his criminal indictment. We sought him out to solicit his comments, having written some of the stories that led to his indictment. He was unreachably when the stories went to press. But our associate Clark Mollenhoff finally found Lance in his lair at Eagle's Nest, his country estate, in a wooded area not far from Calhoun, Ga. Lance filled his floor chair, appearing even more massive than his actual dimensions. He is a handsome man, in a bull-necked, barrel-chested way, with a bluff, breezy manner. Above all, he was affable. He had told none of the engaging, contrived cordiality that characterized his public days in the White House. He told us he is proud of his past, confident of the future and secure in his family. By his lights, he will be acquitted of bank fraud charges; Jimmy Carter will rebound in the polls; and God is still in his heaven. When Lance was questioned about the Justice Department's prize witness against — a former friend and business associate named Billy Lee Campbell — who now claims he was the fall guy and took the rap to protect Lance. A share of the $250,000 that Campbell embezzled, he now swears, wound up in Lance's pocket. Lance replied that, on the contrary, he was the one who reported Campbell's embezzlement to the Justice Department in July 1975. Lance called Campbell a "malicious liar" and accused the prosecutors of holding back witnesses from the grand jury. These witnesses, Lance contended, could have testified that Campbell had told them Lance was not implicated in the embezzlement. But if big Bert is outraged over the "unfair tactics" of the prosecutors, he does not blame his buddies Jimmy Carter and Griffin Bell who controlled the Justice Department. They could not interfere with the prosecutors, said Lance, because of "prejudicial news stories and columns." The national press made it too hot for them to do anything "except stay way out of it," he said. Lance's defense strategy became clear from his remarks. He will seek to discredit the Justice Department's witnesses, concentrating on

Libyan List: Libyan strongman Muammar Qaddafi, who has supplied arms and sanctuary to terrorists from Belfast to Beirut, is quietly trying to buy American-made equipment that can be used to military use. Qaddafi's shopping list includes Boeing 747 transport planes, executive jets, heavy trucks, flatbeds, ambulance helicopters, cropdusters and jeeps. What does the desert dictator plan to do with the American equipment if he gets it? Intelligence sources told our associate Les Whitehead that Qaddafi intends to use some of the goods as part of his own "foreign aid" program, shipping them to other African nations unfriendly to the United States. Thus we would be helping indirectly to keep hostile regimes in power. Some sources suspect we've already done just that. They believe — though Libya denies it — that the troops Qaddafi sent to Uganda in an unsuccessful eleventh-hour attempt to save Idi Amin's crumbling dictatorship were transported in planes originally provided by the United States. Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., got wind of Qaddafi's proposed shopping spree and enlisted the aid of Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the Government Affairs Committee. The senators got the State Department to provide a detailed list of the goods Qaddafi wants to buy. At a backroom meeting a few weeks ago between key congressional staffers and officials of the State and Commerce Departments, it was decided that sale of military useful material to Libya would be drastically restricted. From now on, State won't grant licenses for sales to Libya without consulting the senators on an item-by-item basis. There is, unfortunately, nothing the United States can do to keep the Qaddafi from buying arms from other countries. But at least the hardword "not" be stamped "Made in U.S.A."

Sometimes, probably in the very near future, we can expect to read stories of how United States Navy ships and Air Force planes have been operating a few yards beyond the three miles this country considers the right and proper territorial limit of all coastal nations. It is entirely possible that we will also read how some lunatic like Libya's Col. Kaddafi blew one of the ships to pieces with a missile. Such likelihoods were raised last Friday by the revelation that the Carter administration has ordered the Navy and the Air Force to show the three-mile limit which we and 21 other nations recognize and 111 other coastal states do not. Most of the other countries which border on the oceans have established 12 miles as their rightful limit, while a handful of others claim 200 miles. We cannot see what this adventure in jingoism can hope to achieve. The administration claims that the United States is enforcing its belief that three miles — established a couple of centuries ago because that was the effective maximum range of a cannon ball — must apply everywhere in the world. But as far as we can see, all this will do is roll the waters and jeopardize the Law of the Sea Conference, which is trying to establish a worldwide limit. One thing that comes to mind is domestic politics — that President Carter may be determined to show a segment of the voting public that the United States is really a tiger, and forget what they've heard about a pussy-cat. Maybe — but going about it in this fashion is exceedingly and unnecessarily dangerous. In fact, it's scary. Cape Cod Times Hyannis, Mass.

Another View of the Palestinians

WASHINGTON — No one was happier than this writer to see our bombing U.N. Ambassador, Andy Young, sacked at last. He may represent a majority of balky sentiment in this country, but American diplomacy must reflect the best interests of the nation as a whole. That said, however, it is highly unfortunate that Young lost his job for talking to the Palestinian Liberation Organization. Why? Because, like it or not, the PLO is the only valid bargaining representative of the Palestinians, and it is impossible to conceive of a lasting peace in the Middle East without resolution of the Palestinian issue. This was underscored the other day in the United Nations when the U.S. thinks in part to Young, narrowly averted a stinging embarrassment by being forced to veto a pro-Palestinian resolution sponsored by the Arabs. The Palestinian issue also has been the principal barrier to keeping the U.S.-sponsored peace accord between Egypt and Israel from blossoming into tangible fruit. One problem for the United States is perception. Mention the Palestinians to the average American and he will likely conjure up the image of a bearded, wild-eyed terrorist, ala PLO leader Yasser Arafat. That simplistic notion in unfortunate. Just who are the Palestinians? They are the approximately 3.5 million former residents, or descendants of residents, of land taken over by Israel in the war of 1948 following the abortive U.N. partition of Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states. Many live in the West Bank of Gaza Strip under Israeli military occupation. Others are scattered in various Arab countries and abroad. Palestinians have the highest levels of academic achievement and literacy in the Arab world and often are the professional backbone of the countries in which they live. But they are the one thing most of them have in common: Is The Dream — of someday returning either to the homes they or their fathers once had in what is now Israel, or to a new homeland created through world pressure on Israel. It seems inconceivable that the Palestinians will ever live again in their former homes. But the idea of a homeland or entity set aside for them on Israel's borders, in which Palestinians could practice the same kind of self-determination for which Israelis died in 1948, has wide appeal in most of the world. The biggest hurdle to such a solution, however, is not Israel itself, but Israel's benefactor — the United States. For reasons of history and politics, the U.S. has given Israel the right to checkmate American policy in the Middle East. An example of the checkmate came in September 1975 when Secretary of State Henry Kissinger formally pledged that the U.S. wouldn't recognize or even talk to the PLO until it publicly supported Israel's right to exist. Although that pledge has been bent or broken on several occasions, it remains basically intact. Many knowledgeable Americans are in a dilemma over what U.S. Middle East policy should be. They see the morality in the Palestinian cause, yet are also committed by tradition and morality to the preservation of Israel. If there was ever a time for Israel to back away from its intransigence, now would seem to be that time. The widening gulf between Jews and

Burglar Surprises Sleeper

MANCHESTER — Police said a 27-year-old woman in a West Middle Turnpike apartment awoke early this morning to find an unknown man in her bedroom.

The victim screamed, police said, and the man fled the apartment with a pocketbook containing between $5 and $10. The woman, who lives in a second floor apartment, described the man to police as being 6-foot tall with a medium build.

Police said the suspect propped open the front door with a vase to ensure a quick getaway.

The burglary took place about a half-hour after a nearby tenant reported hearing voices and scraping on his screen door.

The tenant told police his sister, who was sleeping in the living room, heard the noises and yelled, "Get out of here."

According to police, the victim said two persons, described as only six feet tall, ran from the door. There was no other description.

Police said they searched cars and bushes in the area for an hour and a half, but did not locate the suspects.

3-Car Crash Injures Two

MANCHESTER — Two persons received minor injuries after a three-car accident on Broad Street Wednesday evening, police said.

According to police, a vehicle operated by Clinton M. Keeney, 63, of 95 Keeney St. was traveling north on Broad Street. Keeney told police he saw another car, which was driven by Kenneth Burkamp, 42, of 75 Laurel St., coming south but in the northbound lane.

Police said Keeney swerved and tipped, but could not avoid the Burkamp vehicle.

The operator of a third vehicle, 19-year-old Denise A. LeDoux, of 34 Avon Drive, East Hartford, told police she saw the Keeney vehicle stop in the center of the road.

When she swung to the right, police said, the Burkamp vehicle hit the Keeney car and then bounced head-on into her car.

Burkamp told police he remembered nothing and might have blacked out because he has a diabetes problem.

Both Burkamp and LeDoux were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital. All three vehicles had to be towed away. Police also said six feet of fencing at St. James Cemetery was pushed back when one of the vehicles hit it.

MEG Opposes Report Of State Fact-Finder

MANCHESTER — The Municipal Employees Group will oppose a state fact-finder's report and take its grievances to the Board of Directors next week.

The board scheduled a 7 p.m. meeting with the union, administration and the fact-finder to take place before its regularly scheduled meeting next Tuesday.

In a report issued Aug. 16, the fact-finder, Hartford attorney M. Jackson Webber, supported the union's request for a two-year contract containing annual six percent wage increases. However, he rejected a change in the way provisions for union members have strongly supported.

The 85-member union has been without a contract since July 1978.

Pat Dugala, a Cemetery Department clerk and member of the union, told the directors, "All we are asking for is equal benefits to those we work besides each day."

She said the town was once willing to give back the sick time in exchange for lower wages, but she said the six percent increase was below the cost of living.

Under existing contract provisions, employees who retire after June 1981 may get paid for half the unused sick days they had accumulated during their career. The town allows 15 days per year.

However, the union would like to return to the provisions which allow reimbursement for as many as 106 sick days.

Area Police Report

Vernon — Peter Guertel, 18, and Peter Lemire, 17, both of Hartford, were charged early this morning with third-degree criminal trespassing and tampering with a motor vehicle.

Police said the two were apprehended at Tolland Volkswagon on Talcottville Road. They are scheduled to appear in court in Rockville on Sept. 11.

Pauline Langust, 35, of 14 Hillcrest Drive, Vernon, was charged Wednesday night with criminal mischief in connection with the investigation of a disturbance at her home.

She was released on her promise to appear in court on Sept. 4.

Paul W. Boy, 20, of 23 Sunnyside Drive, Vernon, was charged early this morning with two counts of reckless driving and driving on a revoked license. Police said he allegedly drove another car on the road on Route 83 and was chased but got away. Shortly after he was spotted again and another cruiser chased him again on Route 30 but the chase was called off and Boy was apprehended later, police said.

He is to appear in court on Sept. 11.

however, was that the increases were due to more patients than anticipated requiring more sophisticated treatment than anticipated.

One example was the addition of three oncologists to the staff and the resultant added sophistication of treatment. In some cases, it was said, the cost of drugs for one day for some cancer patients reaches $200.

An inter-island freighter also was missing between St. Kitts and Nevis and several barges were seen adrift.

On Martinique 30 persons were injured and 1,000 left homeless, French officials in Paris reported. In addition to St. Martinique's radio stations was destroyed, 80 percent of the island's banana fields leveled, 40 percent of the island's electrical lines were knocked out and 40 to 50 percent of its telephone lines.

On Guadeloupe, 13 people were reported injured and 70 percent of the island's banana fields were leveled. French officials said the most serious damage on Guadeloupe was in the Basse Terre region and on the nearby isles of Sainte and Marie Galante.

Vote To Deny Sewer Request

MANCHESTER — Voters of the Eighth Utilities District are expected to rebuff the town's request to sewer Buckland Commons in a special meeting next Wednesday at 7:30 in the Whittier Memorial Library.

Various members of the district's Board of Directors, said the meeting promised to be a short one and would be "only a matter of formally denying the town" the right to sewer the area.

The directors have already urged the voters to reject the town's application as the sewer authority in the Buckland Commons area.

The town officially asked the district last May for an answer, but the directors appointed a committee to study the matter before any vote was taken. Joseph Tripp, a recently-elected director, was chairman of the committee.

Police Arrest Man In Sexual Assault

MANCHESTER — Police charged 35-year-old Leo P. Labbe, address unknown, with criminal attempt to commit third-degree sexual assault this morning.

Police said the suspect was arrested in connection with an attempted sexual assault of a 12-year-old girl behind a Main Street business June 20. He was also charged with risk of injury to a minor, police said.

Labbe was presented in East Hartford Superior Court this morning, police said, in lieu of a $5,000 bond.

State Increases Funds For MCC Construction

MANCHESTER — The Board of Higher Education has increased the funding for construction at Manchester Community College from $5 million to $11 million. Acting President Robert Miller told the MCC professional staff Wednesday.

Miller said the move secures the "long range stability of Manchester Community College" and allows officials to move into the second phase of planning its permanent campus.

Miller said the staff at the Board of Higher Education hoped off the money to plan a building of less than $6,000 square feet. However, the BHE rejected its own staff's proposals and hiked the funding to $11 million. Miller said the college will construct the 150,000 square foot building.

Thoughts ApLENTY

By Len Auster

There are a few things going up the ladder which sets the good athlete apart from one better. The steps, as Baylock noted include concentration and consistency. And then "hard work. There are no shortcuts."

"You have to stick with it, hang in there. You have to work and suffer before you glow. But once you glow you gain respect and go on from there."

His address was well-received by members of the Post 102 nine which won the Zone Eight title this summer, their parents, and members of the Legion baseball committee.

Baylock recently returned from his tenure as coach of the Falmouth entry in the collegiate Cape Cod League. Falmouth started out 6-9 and finished 19-23, two points out of the fourth and final playoff spot. Hyannis, with former Manchester High starman Bruce Ballard one of its hurlers, won the crown.

Steps For Success

Likable Andy Baylock, new head baseball coach at the University of Connecticut, was guest speaker at Tuesday evening's Manchester American Legion Baseball Banquet.

He termed baseball, all sports, good because of the "interaction of human beings."

There is more than natural talent needed for an athlete to succeed, Baylock remarked. "He has to have good work habits," he stated. "Anything you earn you have to work for."

Bits and Pieces

Ginny Lind has resigned as Manchester High girls' basketball coach. She submitted her resignation earlier this month. Her four-year record was 25-51. Her 1976-77 club qualified for the state tournament.

While the scholastic football teams continue their workouts, the question remains — will there be officials to officiate the games this fall? The money dispute, which has dwindled to a $2 difference, has not been settled.

Three of the five gridiron coaches in the Hartford County Conference will be new. The rookie coaches are Jude Kelly at East Catholic, Don Brewer at Northwest Catholic and Jeff Castlene at St. Paul. The holdovers are Larry McHugh at Xavier and Len Corto at South Catholic. A coach needs the horses to be successful but, how quickly and wisely the new coaches use their available personnel could be telling.

Fulgham Finesse Stops Cardinals

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Fulgham has faced the Giants twice this season. The first time he shut them out on two hits and Wednesday he pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-1 victory over them.

Still, San Francisco's Willie McCovey reacted the way an opposing manager once did while witnessing a great play by Willie Mays.

"I'd like to see him do it again," he said.

"In the National League," said McCovey, who has hit 520 career homers, "we are used to pitchers coming at you on 2-1 and 3-1 counts. This kid doesn't."

He pitched more like American League pitchers, so I have to wonder how long he can get away with it.

"I'm not taking anything away from him, but I look back over the years and pitchers like him have never made it over the long haul."

The Cardinals naturally disagree.

"He impresses you, that's what he does," said St. Louis Coach Red Schoendienst. "You don't see too many young pitchers as smart as him. I think he has a great future."

Rexy Valhalla, 6, Johnny Bench's two-run homer capped a four-run fifth and Rick Auerbach delivered the winning run with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly to power Cincinnati to its eighth straight victory.

Espino 3, Astros 3.

Phil Gairner cracked a three-run homer and Larry Parrish added a solo shot to lead the Expos.

Phil Gairner doubled home two runs to highlight a four-run eighth to spark the Pirates.

Road Race Committee Looks to Field of 4,000

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

"I feel right now, we are ready to run the race tomorrow," a confident Jim Balcome reported this week in regards to the 1979 Thanksgiving morning Five Mile Road Race in Manchester.

Balcome, a participant in other years, is serving as race director for the 38th running Nov. 22.

"It will be the first class race and a showcase for Manchester," the director said in his report to members of the sponsoring Natmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon race committee. The Cedars have sponsored the last 27 runs.

Since assuming the post as top man in the organizing of Connecticut's biggest road race, Balcome has been a man on the go, hop-scooting from one race to another gathering information to insure another successful promotion in October.

"Right now, I am planning a race for 4,000 runners. If over 4,000 show up, we'll work something out," he added with confidence.

Last year there nearly 2,900 entries and as many starters — both record totals.

One of the features this year will be the upgrading of the prizes, track wear and track equipment will be offered, and an expanded number of both males and females.

Runners may qualify in seven categories for awards:

1. First 25 finishers.
2. Top three male and female in 18-35 age bracket.
3. Top three male and female in 40-50 age bracket.
4. Top three male and female in 51-64 age bracket.
5. First finishers 65 or over.
6. Top-three male and female scholastic finisher.
7. First local scholastic finisher.

Balcome said there would be 51 prizes offered.

Entry blanks will be printed and distributed in late September.

Four different colors will be used to determine open, masters, scholastic and female entrants.

The course will be marked at all mile points and times will be given at each station as the runners pass.

A water station, another first, will be located at the Natmeg Forest on Porter Street.

A Hooper counter will be made available which can record as many

Murray Amazed at Spree Of Homers in Minnesota

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Eddie Murray, first baseman for the Baltimore Orioles, was amazed.

"I haven't gotten too many hits or home runs in this ballpark," he said Wednesday after the Orioles swept a double-header from the Minnesota Twins at Met Stadium 4-0 and 7-4. "In fact these are my first home runs ever at the Met."

Murray had three homers and collected seven RBI in the second game.

"I feel like the ball real good here and I just don't understand why I haven't done better in the past in this park," said Murray. "I might have hit one more home run in the first game when I hit the long double to center field, but the wind blew off the ball. In the second game I was able to take advantage of that wind, batting both right handed and left handed."

Murray cracked a 404-foot homer with two men aboard in the fifth inning of the nightcap. Benny Ayala doubled and Ken Singleton followed with a walk before Murray hit his 100th career home run.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the third when Rich Dauer singled and went to second on third baseman John Castino's error. Rick Dempsey sacrificed Dauer to third and he scored on Al Bumby's sacrifice fly, handing Roger Erickson his eighth loss in nine decisions.

Mets Rally Falls Short

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves put the finishing touches on a three-game sweep over the New York Mets Wednesday to hold off a desperate rally in the ninth inning.

Joey McLaughlin, who recorded a save Tuesday's victory, induced Ed Kranepool to pop up with the tying run on base to help Atlanta post a 5-1 triumph over the Mets, who dropped their seventh straight game.

"McLaughlin now has two saves in two straight games," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "I still rate Gene Garber as our number one relief pitcher, but maybe Joey is a good luck charm."

Cox, who has won 20 games in 1979, said that saw Guidry give up three hits and three unearned runs and Willie Randolph commit an error and miscue a ground ball that might have been a double play.

"It's hard to pitch when you give them six outs," Guidry said later, and he admitted his unfamiliarity with the catchers contributed to his troubles.

"I am having problems working with the new catchers," he said. "They just don't know the individual pitcher's strengths and weaknesses. I only use two pitchers and when I shake off a sign all the hitters know I am coming with a slider next."

Texas opened the scoring on a bases-loaded groundout by Buddy Bell and John Ellis followed with a two-out, two-run double. A solo home run by Bell in the seventh inning gave Texas its fourth run.

After Scott set the scoring pattern in the second with his homer, Bucky Dent followed with a triple off the left-field wall and scored the go-ahead run on a grounder by Fred Stanley. A single by Brad Golden and Randolph's run-scoring double closed out the inning.

Oscar Gamble's bases-loaded, pinch-hit single in the fifth produced New York's sixth run and Gulden added an RBI single in the eighth. Gossage recorded the final two outs to pick up his 12th save.

Hebner, booed by New York fans for lackadaisical play on Murphy's infield hit starting the sixth, and on the spot after striking out in the ninth, walked away from newspapers when asked what was wrong.

"I have nothing to say," insisted Hebner. "What do you want me to say?"

CofC Announces Anti-Crime Plan

MANCHESTER - The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday that plans are progressing toward the implementation of Tel-Alert, a new business crime prevention program to be instituted in the Manchester-Bolton area.

The program, scheduled to be in use by the end of September, will allow businesses in the area to receive information regarding bad check passers, counterfeit bill passers, con artists, and shoplifters within minutes of their identification.

Basically a telephone chain system, Tel-Alert participants will be involved in a pre-arranged network that allows information to be passed to a large number of businesses in a short time.

We are pleased at the high level of cooperation exhibited by our Chamber of Commerce members. Their participation is another example of their concern for the community and their willingness to take the extra step to serve their customers.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with Lenny for 25 years. When we fell in love we couldn't marry because he had an invalid father to care for and I had a sick mother.

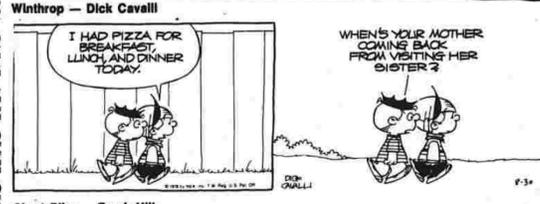

DEAR NEW: I'm sorry Lenny refuses to marry you unless he can handle your money, say goodbye. There are worse things than being lonely. Like being lonely and broke!

DEAR ABBY: A girlfriend and I have a difference of opinion concerning playing. I'll call her Jean.

DEAR S.C.: You're right. Jean was wrong. But I think you should have explained to the management.
