WHAT'S NEWS

Pay Raises

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday awarded a higher-than-expected 7 percent pay increase to the nation's 3.5 million federal workers and military personnel to help them cope with soaring inflation.

Under the new salary structure, the average federal employee's yearly salary will advance to $18,190, effective Oct. 1, unless Congress moves to make it even higher — an unlikely prospect.

The increase will cost taxpayers $4.14 billion, about $940 million more than under the president's previous plan.

Since January, Carter had steadfastly stuck by his decision to allot a 5.5 percent raise to the 1.4 million civilian workers and 2.1 million members of the armed services.

But the president changed his mind at the last minute and authorized the 7 percent increase on recognizing that "employees are faced with a higher cost of living" than anticipated when he submitted his fiscal 1980 budget to Congress in January.

Labor's Plea

The nation's top labor leaders opened the Labor Day weekend Friday with pleas for a new solidarity among unions' rank-and-file and political officials to work for human rights abroad and economic security at home.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, in his annual Labor Day message, emphasized that American workers would not forget the struggles for human rights abroad as they fought unemployment and inflation at home.

"Workers have an economic self-interest in the promotion and protection of human rights," said the 85-year-old labor leader. "They can only prosper when they are free to fight."

He said the economic self-interest of American workers reinforced a moral commitment to fight human rights violations in other parts of the world.

"American workers cannot compete with foreign workers making 50 cents an hour," he said.

"This year, as American workers and their families return from their summer vacations, they face growing unemployment and inflation, a climate of economic anxiety and uncertainty," Meany said.

Career Diplomat Replacing Young

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President Carter Friday named Donald F. McHenry, a soft-spoken black career diplomat who was the chief negotiator in the ballerina standoff, to replace Andrew Young as U.N. ambassador.

The move got enthusiastic approval from Young himself, other U.N. officials, the State Department and the Senate Democratic leadership.

McHenry, 42, was Young's chief deputy at the United Nations and was little known to the general public until last weekend, when he served as chief U.S. negotiator in the diplomatic fray over Soviet ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

Carter, spending the Labor Day weekend in his hometown, announced McHenry's nomination through deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum.

The president said in a statement that both Young and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance had recommended McHenry for the job.

"His whole life has been committed to ambassadorial and diplomatic service," Carter said. "I had a thorough discussion with him early this week on the major issues that confront the United Nations."

"He's really an expert on the Far East and has acquired the best working knowledge of southern Africa and its problems of anyone," Granum said.

Granum said Carter was impressed with the skill McHenry exhibited last weekend when he convinced the Russians to allow him an interview with Miss Vlasova to make sure she was returning to Moscow voluntarily. The Bolshoi Ballet star left the United States after her husband and fellow star, Alexander Godunov, defected.

Young, who resigned his post two weeks ago after holding an unauthorized meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, said at the United Nations Friday he was "glad to have Don take over."

U.N. Secretary Kurt Waldheim welcomed the appointment also, as did Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd in Washington. "I am sure that his expertise in the art of diplomacy will contribute to good U.S. relations with other U.N. members," Byrd said.

The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Black leaders, most of whom were unhappy at Young's departure, offered no immediate comment on McHenry's nomination. McHenry is not nearly as well known as Young, and does not have his stature in the black community.

McHenry has a reputation for choosing words carefully, in contrast to the outspoken Young, but his style is not stodgy. One tense morning during the Vlasova affair, he was asked what kind of day he expected. "Terrible," he said, grinning.

President Carter has chosen Donald F. McHenry, deputy chief of the United States Mission to the United Nations, to succeed Andrew Young as the chief delegate to the U.N. A formal announcement of the selection is expected later this week. (UPI photo)

Killer Hurricane Hits Islands in Caribbean

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Hurricane David trained its lethal 150 mph winds Friday on Haiti and the Dominican Republic, where millions of poor live in flimsy shacks at the mercy of the elements.

Swirling relentlessly toward the mainland, the huge storm, one of the most powerful on record in the Caribbean, already had claimed 19 lives, injured hundreds and left untold millions of dollars of damage in its wake.

The first frightening gale-force winds hit Santo Domingo about noon, toppling telephone and light poles and sending debris flying through the air.

Waves 25-feet high crashed into Santo Domingo's Malecon beachfront, and 50,000 persons were evacuated from the low-lying banks of the Ozama River. Some of the evacuees left shelters into which they were herded when they discovered there was no food.

David made its first landfall Wednesday on Dominica and Martinique.

"Dominica does not exist any more," one ham radio operator said Friday in a report monitored in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Sixteen of the known dead were on Dominica, and at least 60,000 — more than half the banana island's population — were left homeless.

The Dominican Republic's capital city of Santo Domingo got only a glancing blow from the storm before it aimed its full fury at Barahona Peninsula, which juts out into the Caribbean near the Haitian border.

In Haiti, the poorest nation in the hemisphere with a population of six million, the government and relief organizations worked to avert a tragedy.

Directly in the path of the storm was the city of Jacmel, a town of 65,000, which is linked to the outside world by a single telephone line that snakes its way along a mountain road that is susceptible to mud slides.

Officials felt Jacmel was certain to be isolated and rushed in tents, food, and medical supplies before the storm hit.

Puerto Rico also got just a glancing blow from David, but three persons lost their lives and more than 6,000 were left homeless by the flooding.

At 3 p.m. EDT Friday, the center of hurricane David was located near latitude 17.7 north, longitude 70.0 west, or about 50 miles south of Santo Domingo.

National Hurricane Center Director Neil Frank said satellite pictures show the hurricane has turned north. But added, "We believe this northward motion is temporary and caused by interaction of the hurricane with the mountains of Hispaniola," the island shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

Frank said "the hurricane is expected to resume a general motion toward the west northwest around 10 mph Saturday, even though the movement tonight may be erratic."

Forecasters said the monstrous storm, which has a 300-mile wide cloud canopy, would shoot its 150 mph winds 50 miles inland as it passed directly over the Barahona Peninsula.

A hurricane watch was out for Jamaica to the west and the lower Bahamas to the north. Cuban officials were watching the storm's progress, but had not issued any alerts.

Although the storm was still about 900 miles from the U.S. mainland, Florida residents from Key West to Cape Canaveral began stocking emergency supplies Friday.

Canned goods, batteries, oil lamps and plywood were quickly disappearing from store shelves. Several gas stations in the Florida Keys ran dry of their month's allotment, while Keys officials considered shutting off water to accumulate a reserve supply.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham began drafting summons orders for the National Guard, already on standby alert, if it were needed. City and county officials in South Florida sandbagged public buildings and lowered water levels in canals to make room for heavy rainfall.

Some Insurance Will Cost Less

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — New rates for commercial property owners go into effect today as the result of a survey of the Town Fire Department by the Insurance Service Office of Boston.

According to Fire Chief John Rivosa, there will be a 3 percent decrease in rates for masonry buildings; 5 percent decrease for wood frame buildings, and a 10 percent decrease for fire resistive buildings. All of these rates apply to commercial buildings with sprinkler systems.

The survey was the first of the department since 1958. Rivosa said the town followed most of the report's recommendations and this contributed to its improved classification.

For example, he said, the town built three new fire stations on McKee Street, Weaver Road and Center Street. The scattered locations meant the department was closer to more residences and businesses in town.

The survey is a complicated report, Rivosa said. For example, it determines how much water is needed to put out a fire for a certain structure and how far a station should be located from such a structure.

The ISO is a non-profit organization and an arm of the insurance industry. Officials poured over department records to verify how often the fire apparatus is tested and what preventive methods are adopted.

The fire department's rating improved from a 5 to a 4, which Rivosa said was encouraging, but not the improvement he had hoped for.

Manchester has 1,613 deficiency points, only 113 points away from a class 3 rating. The fire chief said the new water distribution system and the addition of a training officer in the department could bring it to the higher classification.

The survey is free and is requested by a municipality. The town requested it in 1972, but the Buckland fire station controversy and an extended illness to an ISO official delayed the release of the final report until Friday.

House Relocation Could Be Hazard

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — The acting school superintendent has asked the Board of Education to rescind its approval of the release of 17,000 square feet of land near the Hockanum School as a relocation site for the historic Brewer House.

Acting School Superintendent Sam J. Leone said Friday he was not aware the property would be used for commercial purposes when the board voted on Aug. 6 to release the land to the town.

Leone said commercial use may create a hazard for students. Also, he said the use of more than 17,000 square feet would mean less playground space for students. Architects now say 19,500 square feet is needed, he said.

As an alternative site, Leone has recommended a town-owned tract south of the school. The tract now contains two dilapidated basketball courts. The tract has 30,000 square feet.

However, Mayor Richard H. Blackstone said last month the town would like to keep that piece of land open for possible future use by the Fire Department.

Board Chairman Lawrence DelPonte disagreed Friday with Leone's suggestion and said he supports relocation on the Hockanum School grounds.

DelPonte said a commercial use would assure that the building is self-sufficient and is not a burden to the town's tax rolls, as it would be if it were made a monument or historic site.

Also, he said the property is not presently being used for educational purposes.

He said the board could take safety and aesthetic precautions to ensure the house does not interfere with the education at the school.

DelPonte said the town could ask

Meat Industry Price Quotes Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON - It's probably safe to say that 99.44 percent of the millions of Americans who'll be cooking steaks and hamburgers on the backyard grill this holiday weekend have never heard of the Yellow Sheet.

But his obscure trade publication of the meat industry plays an enormous role in determining the price you pay at the supermarket for those steaks and hamburgers.

The total market. By accepting the prices agreed on in this small number of sales, retailers are letting the tail wag the dog - and letting go of the leash in the process.

An investigation last year by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, found that during one 25-day period, the Yellow Sheet's prices were based on just 3.5 percent of the meat carloads shipped nationally.

Opinion

Labor Day's Origin Solemn

Labor Day is Monday. The most common connotation of the holiday is that it is the last vestige of summer, the last time for summer activities before the dawn of autumn and ultimately winter.

It honors the first workers, the farmers, the pioneers and the tradesmen, who came to this country in its infancy and struggled to achieve freedom.

"It makes me yearn for the good old days when the shah would have hung us by the thumbs."

Andrew Tully

Chappaquidick Still an Issue

WASHINGTON - People keep saying the voters don't either hold Chappaquidick against Sen. Ted Kennedy, just look at the polls. And, of course, the polls show Kennedy leading Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination by a virtual country mile.

What followed is the most serious indictment of the young senator. Instead of reporting the accident immediately, he said he went for help to two friends, Joseph Gargan and Paul Markham, who joked him in trying to "see if the passenger was still in the car."

Don Graff

Jimmy's Fantastic Voyage

There's no getting around it - Jimmy Carter has a real problem when it comes to upgrading his image as a leader. As recent events graphically demonstrate.

Meanwhile, back at various ranches, all hell has been breaking loose. Say Andrew Young and you've said enough.

Thoughts

I recently returned from a month in England, and while I was there I made a point of going up to the home of the poet, William Wordsworth at Rydal Mount in the Lake Country of England just south of Scotland.

There I met Wordsworth's great-granddaughter (selling tickets to the house) and that was worth the trip alone. But even more, the beauty of the place, the mountains and lakes and fields - a different type of sight in every direction - forced on me an awareness of the force that was behind all of Wordsworth's poetry, so much of it having to do with nature.

Panel Precaution For Oil Shortage

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - An informal committee composed of town officials, heating oil dealers, and social service agencies is developing long-term plan to cope with the possibility of a shortage of winter home heating supplies and funds.

At this point, Manchester High School is committed to being a shelter and other sites may be developed. The benefit of having a committee including both social agencies and the town is the agencies' expertise in shelter arrangements and the town's access to sites can mesh to provide this service to residents.

These crisis answers are not aimed at providing long-range relief. For more permanent solutions to the home heating oil problem, McCarthy suggests people at all income levels winterize their homes in advance of the cold season.

One means of obtaining money to winterize a home is available through the state. The Department of Economic Development has appropriated $3 million for the energy conservation of individual homes.

Bus Behavior Policy Topic

First Arrival Miss Alaska, 1979: Lila Kathleen Oberg was the first of the 50 state guests to arrive in Atlantic City to begin preparations for the week of pageant activities. The finals will be held on Sept. 8.

EAST HARTFORD - A proposed policy which could lead to suspension from school for students who misbehave on school buses will be voted on Tuesday night by the Board of Education.

DelPonte said the board has a responsibility to ensure safe transportation for all students. The board should punish students who physically destroy the bus or disrupt the driver and disregard the rules, he said.

He has told the board if they suspend students and the students cannot get to school, they are denying students of the right to education. Daly said the policy is not necessary because principals can now suspend students from school for misconduct, including misconduct on buses.

Amazon Film Plan Criticized

BOSTON (UPI) — German filmmaker Werner Herzog, who has already gained a reputation for making movies in exotic locales, is now under criticism in Peru for a planned movie deep in the Amazon jungle about a 19th century rubber baron.

The Boston Globe said today that Herzog is hiring Aguarunas Indians to help him set up camps and appear as extras in the film "Fitzcarraldo." Shooting is tentatively scheduled to begin in January.

Several years ago Herzog traveled to Peru's Amazon region and filmed the movie "Aguirre, Wrath of God," which has gained a cult following in the United States. Against advice of scientists, he also recently took a small film crew to a Caribbean island threatened by a volcano.

There he successfully filmed the steaming volcano, which did not blow up the entire island as feared, and the few natives who decided not to flee against government advice.

This week, the Globe said four Aguarunas Indians made a four-day journey by boat and land to the capital of Lima to petition against Herzog's latest film.

"We want the film company out, but now the ministry of food and agriculture, which oversees the Peruvian law governing native communities, will have to make a decision," said a spokesman for a local Indian council.

Herzog told the newspaper he has a contract to film signed by Indian leaders, and he claimed "agreement was reached in the community, and there was not one vote against it."

The film deals with rubber baron Carlos Fermín Fitzcarraldo, a little-known historical character who established an isthmus by carving out a jungle between two huge Amazon river tributaries.

The script reportedly calls for transportation of a huge boat across land, similar to the feat Fitzcarraldo performed with the help of natives. A letter signed by 14 Aguaruna Indians sent to a Harvard University-based anthropological group, Cultural Survival, said Herzog requested 1,000 men, preferably with long hair, to work as extras in the film.

The letter said "at no time did they request authorization or an agreement with anyone. They only said that they were about to arrive and go to get ready."

David Mayberry-Lewis, chairman of Harvard's anthropology department and president of Cultural Survival, said "we are personally and institutionally outraged."

"The Aguarunas have a sense of themselves, have their own culture and their own land. Someone can't just charge in there and treat them like non-people," a Peruvian government spokesman said a local official will travel to the jungle soon, to determine for sure if the Indians want the film made or not.

Old Safe Deposit Boxes Yield Strange Treasures
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — You never know what will turn up when you open dusty, old safe deposit boxes.

Just ask the bureaucrats in the Rhode Island state treasurer's office, who have unearthed treasures ranging from lingerie to a $3,000 gold piece.

Rhode Island law requires if safe deposit boxes are closed because of unpaid rent, their contents must be turned to the state after five years, so officials can look for the owners. If the owners can't be found, the state gets what's inside.

When State Treasurer Anthony Solomon took office two years ago, he found most banks hadn't turned over the safe deposit boxes in more than half a century. Early this year, he began work on the backlog in hopes of digging up some additional state revenue.

So far, Solomon said, his office has opened thousands of sealed boxes. He estimates a record of three months' work is ahead.

"It's like Christmas," he said Thursday. "You never know what you're going to find inside."

A pair of ladies panties, for example, But there's a "safety factor," Solomon said.

"We're not trying to steal anybody's money," he said. "If you come here in 10 years, 20 years — no limitation — and you can prove it's yours, we'll give you the money plus the interest it's earned since we've had it."

More than 20 years ago, he said, a couple opened a bank account without telling their children. The couple died and the bank account went unclaimed. The state recently advertised the unused account and the heirs turned up.

Their check came to close to $4,000," Solomon said.

Banks are overjoyed to help with the safe deposit boxes, he said.

"This is a mess that has been sitting there for years," Solomon said. "They're dying to get rid of it. It's taking up space."

They're less than joyful about giving up unclaimed bank accounts because it's been free money for them, Solomon said.

"I've ruffled some feathers," he said.

Ranger Unmasking Launches Boycott

SCARBOROUGH, Maine (UPI) — The radio station manager who headed a nationwide campaign against Wrather Corp.'s unmasking of the original Lone Ranger is launching a similar boycott of the company's upcoming movie.

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge Thursday ordered the unmasking of Clayton Moore, 64, who has made the Lone Ranger a living and a personal crusade since playing the character on television from 1949 to 1956.

"We're getting the boycott efforts under way this weekend by pulling together all sorts of groups," Joe Martelle, manager of WCHS radio, said Friday. "The boycott, like the petition drive, will be headquartered here in Maine."

"We're definitely going after the movie, and we might start with 'Lassie' and 'Sgt. Preston of the Yukon' or other Jack Wrather properties to show we're mad as hell," he said. "We've even got a couple Christian groups from Tulsa and Nashville who have contacted us."

"I've been up 18 hours a day taking phone calls from people wanting to help out. I've done 42 radio interviews from Detroit to Council Bluffs," he said.

Martelle is pulling together women's groups, elderly organizations and private individuals outraged at the Wrather Corp.'s court suit to bar Moore from appearing in public as the masked man.

But Martelle, who said he was granted the first interview with Moore following Thursday's court ruling in Los Angeles forbidding him from wearing the Lone Ranger mask, said "as far as I'm concerned, we won!"

"The judge said I have the right to appear as Clayton Moore or wear the Lone Ranger — which I've been doing since 1975 — or to wear other types of masks," Moore said in his interview with Martelle, which he granted after putting off two television networks.

"As a matter of fact, Clayton will appear in New York at a nostalgic convention with a new mask next week," Martelle said.

Gift Alarm Unused, Four Die in Fire
PEABODY, Mass. (UPI) — Fire officials say a smoke alarm remained unused in a closet as the parents of 11 children died with two of their young sons in a three-alarm blaze.

Eight other family members escaped unharmed early Thursday morning, due in part to a barking dog.

Fire Chief Peter C. Pappas said the cause of the fire was apparently careless disposal of a cigarette in a wastepaper basket in the first-floor kitchen.

Authorities said the smoke alarm, a recent gift, was still inside its cardboard box after the fire killed Mrs. Elizabeth L. Davidson, 48, her husband Fred, 53, and sons Charles, 14, and Derek, 8.

"The fire was heavily involved upon our arrival," Pappas said. The blaze was first reported at 12:11 a.m., and firefighters were on the scene two minutes later.

Linda Davidson, 17, said the barking of their Great Dane "Eric" woke her up.

"If we didn't have him we wouldn't be alive," she said. "He started barking that woke me up. Then I heard a crackling noise and woke up my sister Michelle. Then I went into the parlor where my sister Julie was sleeping and woke her."

Dwarf Seeks Post On Boston Police

BOSTON (UPI) — Four-foot-3-inch, 98-pound Burton Gutterman, who wants to be a Boston policeman, says "there's nothing the matter with me. I'm just short."

Gutterman, a 25-year-old dwarf from the city's Brighton section, passed the police physical in May and there is no height requirement for city police officers.

"I've passed everything they've put me through," he said. "I want the job of my choice. I want to help people."

But Police Personnel Director Michael P. Gardner said Gutterman's chances of getting a job are still poor because Civil Service regulations give minorities and disabled veterans first preference in police hiring.

Edwards said he and 37 other members of Congress are asking cigarette companies to voluntarily stop ads that suggest "that life with cigarettes is more fun, sexier and more glamorous."

In a letter to Horace Kornegoy, a former congressman who heads the Tobacco Institute, Edwards said cigarette companies should sign an agreement not to use models in ads, and to limit advertising to "accurate descriptions of your product."

"Reverse the growing practice of painting life with cigarettes as beautiful and acceptable," Edwards said.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., told reporters. "We want to eliminate people entirely from their ads."

"The minute you get models into them, you get into this glamor bag, you know," he added, holding up a full-color photograph of a glamorous woman smoking.

Commission On Ethics Kept Busy

HARTFORD (UPI) — Keeping politics clean and policing those who influence legislators is a burdensome job these days for the State Ethics Commission.

The commission is faced with handling a record number of lobbyist applications with a slim staff of three full-time employees. In the meantime, it tries to fill the role of watchdog, investigator, record keeper and sometimes mediator.

The brunt of the workload — keeping tabs on lobbyists — has grown, and so has the other job of hearing complaints and trying to settle political squabbles.

Keith Lakey, the commission's director, has worked for the U.S. Customs Service, thinks police are just giving him "a hard time" because of his height.

For example, he said police are questioning his hometown claiming his driver's license shows he lives in suburban Framingham, not Boston, where he is registered to live.

Gutterman insisted he is just giving him "a hard time" because of his height.

"Put it this way. If I was what they wanted, they wouldn't be putting me through all this," he said.

But Police Personnel Director Michael P. Gardner said Gutterman's chances of getting a job are still poor because Civil Service regulations give minorities and disabled veterans first preference in police hiring.

Plea Entered

HARTFORD (UPI) — A 31-year-old jail alai player from Florida pleaded innocent Friday to charges of rigging and conspiring to rig games at the Milford Jai Alai front.

Kirby Prater, of North Miami Beach, Fla., was released on $1,000 bond pending a hearing in Milford Superior Court Oct. 23. Prater turned himself in to state police at Troop H Friday morning, a state police spokesman said.

The Superior Court arrest warrant was obtained by Chief State's Attorney Austin McGuigan and alleged that Prater rigged games and conspired to rig games at the Milford front between May and November 1977.

The arrest is the fifth stemming from a grand jury probe of jai alai operations in Connecticut.

Gift Alarm Unused, Four Die in Fire

PEABODY, Mass. (UPI) — Fire officials say a smoke alarm remained unused in a closet as the parents of 11 children died with two of their young sons in a three-alarm blaze.

Eight other family members escaped unharmed early Thursday morning, due in part to a barking dog.

Fire Chief Peter C. Pappas said the cause of the fire was apparently careless disposal of a cigarette in a wastepaper basket in the first-floor kitchen.

Authorities said the smoke alarm, a recent gift, was still inside its cardboard box after the fire killed Mrs. Elizabeth L. Davidson, 48, her husband Fred, 53, and sons Charles, 14, and Derek, 8.

"The fire was heavily involved upon our arrival," Pappas said. The blaze was first reported at 12:11 a.m., and firefighters were on the scene two minutes later.

Linda Davidson, 17, said the barking of their Great Dane "Eric" woke her up.

"If we didn't have him we wouldn't be alive," she said. "He started barking that woke me up. Then I heard a crackling noise and woke up my sister Michelle. Then I went into the parlor where my sister Julie was sleeping and woke her."

Mrs. Davidson was a lifelong resident of Peabody. She grew up in a house two doors from the fire. One firefighter who responded to the blaze was her brother, Joseph Sullivan, a Salem deputy fire chief.

U.S. Judge Won't Block Retarded Patient Move

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal judge Friday rejected a request by a state office to temporarily block the transfer of three mentally retarded patients from a Hartford nursing home to state facilities.

U.S. District Court Judge M. Joseph Blumenfeld refused to issue a temporary injunction requested by the state Office of Protection and Advocacy, which wanted to block the transfer of three of the 74 patients from a Hartford nursing home to state facilities.

Two patients were moved earlier in the week and the three affected by the judge's ruling were expected to be moved Friday.

Officials at the Protection and Advocacy office said they will return to court Tuesday in an attempt to temporarily block the transfer of the home's remaining 69 retarded patients.

Commissioner Douglas Lloyd of the state Department of Health Services had planned to seek the decertification of Lorraine Manor Friday. But a spokesman said Lloyd is holding off until the court action is settled.

Protection and Advocacy officials said conditions at the nursing home were not ideal, but they were concerned that the move would be detrimental to the patients. They said they want to block the move even though no long term alternative has been developed.

"Don't simply assume that just because they're moving means there is some upgrading," said Thomas Clark, chairman of the advocacy board. "We think these people deserve to have someone take another look at it."

"At the present time I'm not sure they have the facilities or staff," he said.

Executive Director Elliot J. Doherty said his office had met with Thorne earlier, arguing him to reconsider the move.

"The court, in my judgment, is only a last resort," Doherty said. "That's why we waited so long. This is the first time we've done it."

Deputy Commissioner of Mental Retardation Marilyn Gravin said the department was making the best decision.

"We have heard from the state advocacy office for many, many months and we have tried to address some of their concerns," she said.

U.S. Warns Soviets On Moves in Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department publicly warned the Soviet Union Friday the United States opposes the newly confirmed stationing of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

A State Department spokesman confirmed for the first time U.S. intelligence has determined the Soviets have moved a brigade group of 2,000-3,000 men with artillery and armor into Cuba.

The spokesman emphatically repeated an earlier statement by President Carter: "It is the policy of the United States to oppose any effort by the Soviet Union to establish military bases in this hemisphere."

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called in the Soviet acting ambassador, Vladimir Vasov, on Wednesday to express similar U.S. concern.

Conservative senators said Carter should delay Senate action on ratification of the SALT II treaty until the Soviets withdraw the troops.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said, "We intend to pursue the matter... we are actively pressing the issue."

He said Soviet troops do not constitute a military threat to either the U.S. mainland or the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay. He refused to speculate on the Soviet motives.

Carter emphasized repeatedly the timing of his announcement on Soviet troops in Cuba had no relation to the current summit of non-aligned nations in Havana, which he described as "an important event we hope contribute constructively world peace and a better life for people throughout the world."

Together with an estimated 1,500

2,000 military advisors, the new unit would bring the total of Soviet uniformed personnel in Cuba to as many as 5,000. In addition, there are an estimated 6,000 to 8,000 civilian Soviet technicians and advisors in Cuba.

It was disclosed earlier the Soviets had established a "brigade command structure" of headquarters and support personnel.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., warned in July the Soviets were intent on building up their military strength in Cuba.

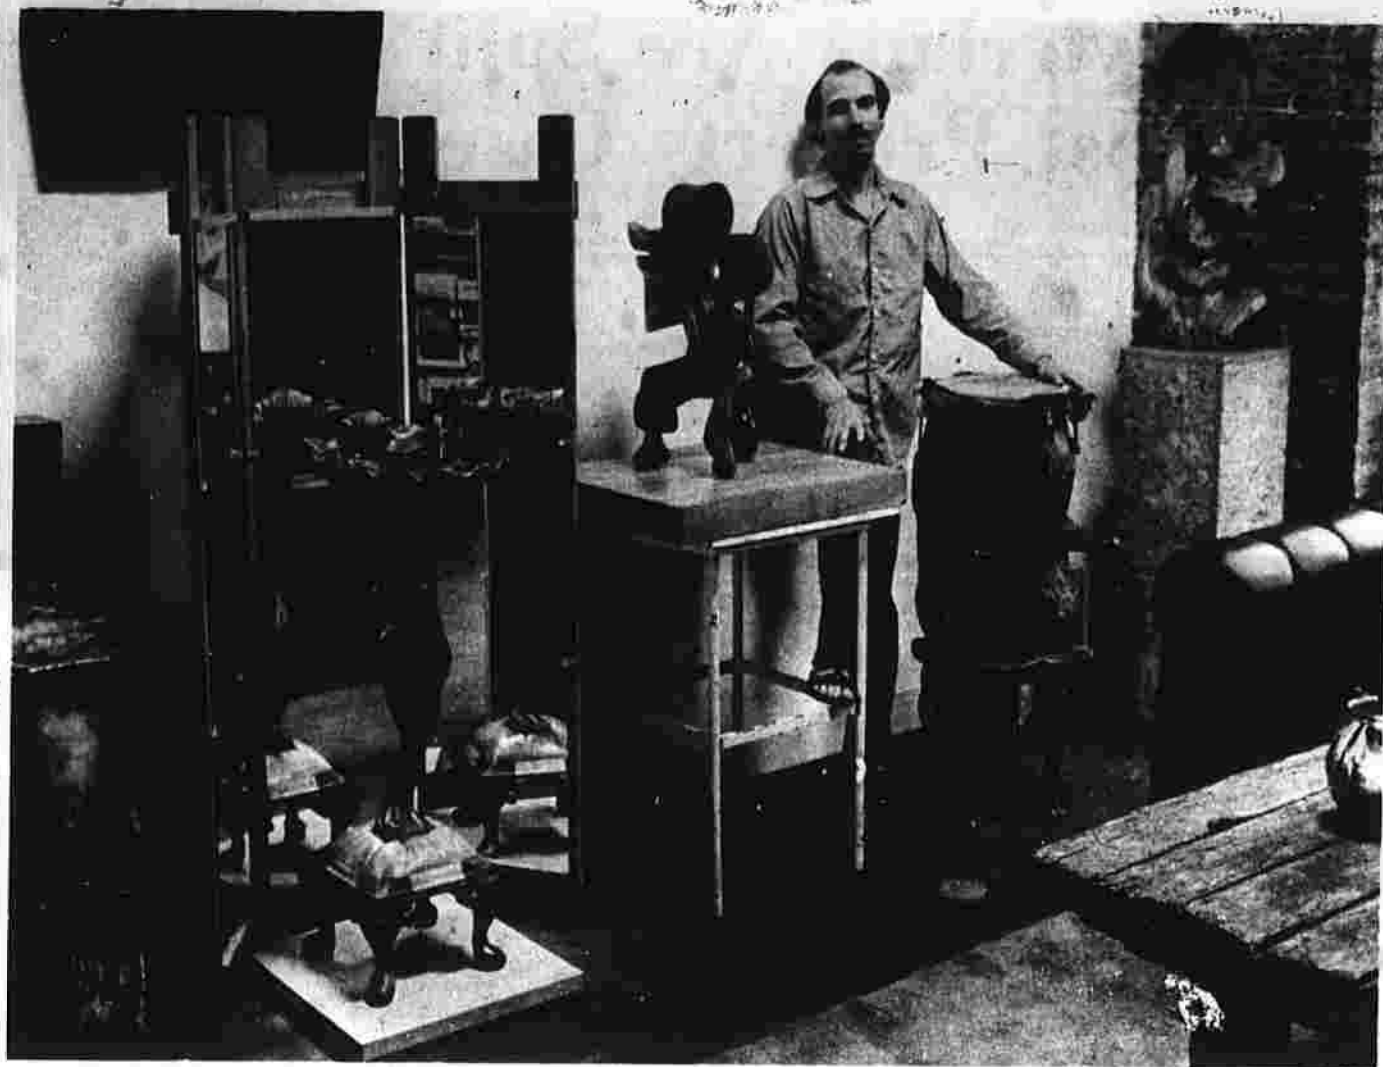

In early August Vance wrote Stone saying there was no indication of any Soviet violation of the 1962 Soviet-American agreement, ending the Cuban missile crisis, nor any significant increase in Soviet military troops.

However, the administration ordered a new national intelligence estimate, completed within the last week.

It confirmed the presence of the organized Soviet combat forces. Carter said the 1962 agreement deals with offensive weapons systems, such as missiles or submarines.

House Move Is Uncertain

any developers who buy the land to use the house only for professional offices and the board should ask that parking spaces be placed in the southeast portion of the plot, far away from the school building.

Also, he said the board could ask that a walk way with a decorative hedge 'buffer' be built so students could walk safely from Main Street to the school.

He said preserving the house on the Hockanum land is a "marvelous thought." It could even be used for educational purposes to show future generations how past people lived, he said.

There is a problem with moving the house to the alternative site south of the school land, he said, because it would require the demolition of the house to cross a small causeway over a brook.

He said the architects "have reservations" about carrying the 35-ton house across the bridge because the bridge may not support the weight.

The request to re-zone the land from residential to business is on the Sept. 12 agenda of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Man Jailed In Murder

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Edward Fabby's mother screamed "They're liars, they're liars" before a judge Friday sentenced her 19-year-old son to life in prison for the rape and murder of a young girl.

Fabby, a Westport gardener, made no sound when Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hall gave him the maximum 25-year-to-life sentence for the June 13, 1978, rape and strangulation of Kari Jo Spurkland of Westport.

Immediately before the judge told the slim, red-headed Fabby to stand for sentencing, his mother, Barbara, stood up, shouted "They're liars, they're liars" — and then ran from the courtroom.

Mrs. Fabby, who was weeping, was followed out of the room by several members of her family. Her daughter, Diane, remained at her seat and broke into tears when her brother was sentenced.

Fabby was convicted of the murder July 20 by an eight-man, four-woman Superior Court jury after four days of deliberations. The panel rejected alternate verdicts of manslaughter or innocent by reason of insanity.

The defendant had been described during the trial as an epileptic who was beaten by his father as a child and suffered black outs.

His lawyer, Richard Melan Sr., had asked that he be sent to the Witing Forensic Institute.

Blackstone Calls Talks On Hurricane Planning

EAST HARTFORD — Mayor Richard H. Blackstone has called for a meeting Tuesday, Sept. 4, with other town and school officials to discuss the town's emergency plan in preparation for Hurricane David, which is wreaking havoc in the Caribbean.

"Hurricane David, in my judgment, perhaps offers a greater threat than any other hurricane that has been around for the past 10 years," Blackstone said.

He said officials should get together and go over the town's emergency program regarding equipment, facilities and other matters in anticipation of a potential emergency.

The mayor has asked the following officials to attend: Fire Chief Michael Fitzgerald, Police Chief Clarence A. Drumm, Parks and Recreation Director Fred N. Balet, Public Works Director Arthur J. Mulligan, Acting School Superintendent Sam J. Leone, Health Department Director John Gallivan, Personnel Director G. William Min, Director of Finance Richard C. Harvey, Director of Inspections and Permits Frank Barone, and Town Clerk John J. Barry.

Blackstone said the town has always been prepared and ready for immediate action to protect its citizens.

He added he does not contemplate any problems with a hurricane between Friday and Tuesday.

But, media reports indicate the hurricane will be approaching the Northeast, he said.

Design Change Delays Buckland Construction

MANCHESTER — Construction for the original tenant at the west end of the Buckland Industrial Park has been delayed due to changes which must be made in the blueprints.

Robert Nadeau, secretary-treasurer of Holts Inc., a firm which repairs precision instruments, said today he had hoped to receive the building permit by this time.

Building is delayed while Holts' architects revamp the blueprints to conform with building code regulations.

Nadeau said he expects the minor blueprint changes to be completed by the end of the weekend, and the building permit to be issued very soon thereafter.

In related Buckland Industrial Park news, Alan Lamson, Planning & Zoning Department Director, said "One, maybe two new tenants" will be locating in the development.

Conceivably, action will begin next month on Elcott Manufacturers and, at a later date, Hartford Distributors. Lamson said the Development Commission has approved Elcott Manufacturers' application while the matter of Hartford Distributors is on the agenda for the next commission meeting.

House Tour Set Sept. 8

By BETTY RYDER Lifestyle Editor

The Manchester Arts Council will be offering area residents an opportunity to walk back into history when it opens the doors to eight homes in the Cheney Historic District, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the MAC House Tour will include visits to the Cheney mansions, as well as other distinctive homes in the historic district.

The Cheney mansions occupy about 70 acres along Hartford Road. Dating from 1785 to 1911, they rest in a little-altered park-like setting and most continue to serve as private residences.

In addition to the tour, several noted sculptors including David Hayes of Coventry, Roger DiTarando of East Hartford, Daniel Riccio of Glastonbury, and Donald Newth and Molly Barnstein, both of West Hartford, will display some of their artwork at the various homes.

Original paintings done by members of the Cheney family, on loan from the Mary Cheney Library Savings Bank of Manchester, and Roger Olcott's collection will be on display.

Art and photography submitted in conjunction with the recent Manchester Community College Relay Races will be displayed at the South Methodist Church home.

Also, at the South Methodist Church home, a mini lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Cost of the lunch is included in the ticket purchase price for the Home Tour.

Throughout the day, there will be musical performances in each of the homes on the tour provided by members of the Manchester Symphony Orchestra, Gilbert & Sullivan of Manchester, and the Little Theatre of Manchester.

Well-known songstress, Iga Paaps will perform, as will pianists Mary Blisch, David Fletcher and Bernie Karlin. Pierre Marteney will play the harpsichord.

Floral arrangements are being prepared by the Manchester Garden Club, the Perennial Planters and the Manchester Art Association.

Homes included in the tour are: South United Methodist Home, 20 Hartford Road; F. B. Setzler, 21 Hartford Road; Cheney Homestead, 106 Hartford Road; William E. Belfiore, 40 Forest St.; Joseph M. Danyliw, 43 Forest St.; Atty. Wesley C. Gryk, 50 Forest St.; Matthew M. Moriarty, 75 Forest St.; and Dr. John H. Malone, 84 Prospect St.

Parking space will be available at South Methodist, 20 Hartford Road; Multi Circuits, 130 Hartford Road; Manchester Community College, Prospect St.; and Bennett Junior High School, 1146 Main St.

The Home Tour, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., will begin at 20 Hartford Road. A brochure will be presented to ticketholders at the beginning of the tour.

Tickets are available from the Savings Bank of Manchester and all Manchester branches and Harrison's Stations on Main St. For further information call Suzy Wichman at 643-7961 or Jerry Upenicks, 649-3469.

Anyone joining the Manchester Arts Council on the day of the home tour will be presented with a sketch of Cheney Hall done by Beatrix Akmentin, who was with Arts Encounter.

This 2½-story red brick, gable-roofed, H-shaped, Neo-Colonial mansion is the residence of the Wesley C. Gryk family. Attributed to Charles Adams Platt, it is a large dwelling with an approximately 45-foot-square central block and two slightly dissimilar wings. It was the home of Philip Cheney. (Ofiara photo)

Built in 1880 as the home of Miss Mary Chapman, this dwelling at 75 Forest St., is the home of the Matthew M. Moriarty family. Originally, a wood frame structure, it was remodeled in the English Tudor-style during the 1960s after Miss Chapman's death. There is a total of 12 rooms and four baths and three large chimneys which allow for four fireplaces. (Ofiara photo)

The South Methodist House at 20 Hartford Road, formerly the Frank Cheney Jr. home, was also designed by Charles Adams Platt and finished about 1900. This 2½-story, red brick dwelling sits on a stone foundation and has a hip-roofed central block adorned by massive red brick chimneys and simple banded dormers. Owned by the South Methodist Church it is used for both residential and assembly purposes. (Ofiara photo)

Presbyterians Are Split On Lost Property Case

By DAVID ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., losers in a key U.S. Supreme Court church property case, say they are not going to panic over the court's decision.

But officials of the PCUS' sister denomination, the United Presbyterian Church in the USA, are considering calling an unprecedented special General Assembly to amend their constitution to head off similar decisions which might affect them.

And if church lawyers, referees, denominations, especially those with large, well organized and potentially dissident minorities, are carefully studying the Supreme Court decision to see what, if any, action they might need to take.

An issue is a Supreme Court ruling handed down in July in which the PCUS in a 4-4 ruling, said the Georgia state courts may decide which faction of a divided PCUS congregation may lay claim to disputed property rights.

The court did not decide between the two factions but sent the case back to the Georgia courts to decide whether the property of Vineville Presbyterian Church of Macon, Ga., should go to a dissident majority of the congregation who have left the PCUS or whether a congregation seeking to withdraw from the denomination.

While all this may seem on the surface to be essentially a matter of property ownership, Little said, "a deeper significance is involved. The matter before us is what kind of church we think we are."

"A fundamental principle of our denomination is that congregations are not isolated entities unto themselves, but represent and are a part of the larger church," Little said. "How property is to be used is significant to the unity of the whole church, both programmatically and symbolically."

Officials of the southern-based PCUS, facing court property battles with dissidents from three congregations seeking to leave and the Vineville decision would have little impact on the 2.9 million-member church.

The Synod's constitution already spells out that church property belongs to the local congregation.

Under traditional Court rulings, including the 1871 Watson precedent, the civil courts should be directed to accept the Presbytery's finding. But the new court ruling indicates the state court's can use other principles, presumably including that of the use of majority rule.

The Episcopal Church, like the Presbyterians a hierarchical church, and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, a congregational denomination both targets of dissident movements in recent years — are also taking a long look at the Vineville case.

Lawyers for the Missouri Synod, however, said the Vineville decision would have little impact on the 2.9 million-member church.

Medical Examiners Fight To Keep Their Sensitivity

WATERVILLE, Maine (UPI) — They work with death daily. Violent, senseless death. Death which assaults the senses and emotions.

Medical examiners say they must fight to preserve their sensitivity and compassion from the ravages of their regularly facing the "horror" of our society.

Joseph C. Rupp, chief medical examiner for Nueces County, Texas, recently said members of his profession must strike a fine balance between preserving their sensitivity and guarding against being emotionally overwhelmed.

"You know you should not become emotionally involved, but it's impossible to totally check your emotions. You have to protect yourself. Personally, I do not deal with names, just using numbers gives me some type of protection," he said after a seminar on forensic science.

The doctors intently listened to technical presentations on the Jonestown, Guyana, massacre and the 747 airline crash at Tenerife in the Canary Islands, unfolding as slides showed the unspeakable grisly aftermath.

But the doctors eagerly discussed how their work might help society recognize its problems, like alcohol and drug abuse, and possibly help spark a solution.

During discussions of handling mass disasters and individual deaths, doctors such as Philadelphia Chief Medical Examiner Marvin E. Aronson, repeatedly stressed the need "to be humane and compassionate to the victim's family."

Baden said one of the greatest problems in running a large operation like New York's — where as many as 200 bodies may be examined in a week — is keeping the large staff responsive to individual tragedy.

Wings of Morning Communication with God Can Be Quick and Simple

By CLIFF SIMPSON

Father." AS the poet writes: "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, Uttered or expressed, The motion of a hidden fire That yearns in the breast."

A Very Personal Note

God responds to us perhaps not always as we desire (recall Jesus in the Garden and Paul's "Thorn in the flesh") and we need to remember that "No" is as much an answer as "Yes." Sometimes God takes the initiative and comes to us as He did last summer. Not too long ago was the anniversary of Betty's death. On it I shared this experience with my three children. Now I wonder if perhaps it should reach a wider circle. At any rate I hope you will understand the spirit in which I communicate God's communication with me.

"Betty had put up a gallant fight for many months against cancer. One afternoon in the University of Connecticut, I was reading in Farmington I was reading to her. After a while she became drowsy and said, 'Thank you. I think I'll try to get some rest.' I was relieved, I was letting with my back to the window facing the door.

Without any warning Jesus appeared in the upper right hand corner near the ceiling. I doubt if any camera or any tape could have captured the audio or the video. Very slowly and very clearly he said to me, 'I will take care of her, and then almost as an afterthought he added, 'And I'll take care of you too.'

"I'm sure you can realize how thankful I am for this experience."

Take Your Cross

There is a misunderstanding about what it means to "bear your cross." Frequently I hear someone speak of "his cross" in referring to a broken leg or a fire or an auto accident. Just recently in the Wall Street Journal appeared this quotation in the humor column:

"Our Crosses to Bear"

To a lot of Americans, sacrifice is doing without caffeine in the coffee, lead in the gas and sugar in the soft drinks." Gil Stern

I am well aware that this is supposed to be funny, but down beneath it there is an error in assuming that "what happens to you" is bearing the cross. To the contrary, it is what you "TAKE." Recall the words of Jesus, "And he called the multitude with his disciples, and said to them, 'If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and TAKE (Mark 8:34)

When trouble threatened, she helped me through. Now she is a mother, a child at her knee.

To hold, To release, To let free — A baby to cuddle, a toddler to guide, Love grown woman walks by my side.

Love now together through all the years; Her joy was my joy, her tears were my tears.

Often I faltered, watching her grow; When to hold fast? When to let go? And God, who entrusted this child to my care, Guided, corrected, answering my prayer.

My hold was loosened; my child was now free To be the PERSON God meant her to be.

As I released her, the bond of love grew.

Theological Dissent And Pope John Paul

By DAVID ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

When John Paul II addresses the U.S. Roman Catholic hierarchy, probably in Chicago during a special session of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, one point he is likely to underscore is doctrinal discipline.

Doctrinal discipline, or lack of it, has been a growing concern among leaders of the U.S. church and there are indications that the Vatican, under John Paul II, is equally concerned.

The most recent dramatic case of theologians departing from the conventional teaching of the church involves the two year old but still controversial study, "Human Sexuality, New Directions in American Catholic Thought" commissioned by the prestigious Catholic Theological Society.

Early in August of this year, the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, noting its "duty to intervene by calling attention to the errors" and by inviting the authors to correct these errors' blasted the report as replete with "erroneous conclusions" that were potentially harmful "on the correct foundation of the Christian consciences of so many people."

The study sought to develop "pastoral guidelines" in a number of areas involving human sexuality and suggested that in some circumstances such

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
By Eugene Brewer

People are motivated to become involved in that which meets a need. Only when they see that the gospel fills a void in their lives will they be persuaded to obey it.

The Bible confirms what common sense tells us, namely, that none is perfect, all have sinned, and all need a savior. It is the Bible that provides the way to a life of peace and joy, and it is the Bible that provides the way to a life of purpose and meaning.

This provision has been provided in Christ. It is faith in this promise that should arouse in you a felt need. To the degree that you grasp this need, your faith in the divine provision is faulty. If you see your lost state and truly believe salvation is in Christ, you will respond to it.

Joe's World

By JOE GARMAN

Are You Gonna Fish or Gab?

Have a story to pass on. I was learning to fish in Pike County, Pa. one of the local men, who we shall call Phil, was renowned locally for the vast numbers of pan fish and large fish, that he would come up with. He was also the local poacher. Nothing fended or prohibited was safe from him.

His main adversary was the local game warden, who, with a good part of Pike County to cover, seemed to spend most of his time trying to apprehend Phil. Our game warden's name was Mac, and he was tough, but fair.

Over the years, their running dog took on the greatest game of chess, checkers, and hare and hounds ever played. Mac always seemed to arrive 15 minutes, or even five minutes after Phil had left the "scene of the crime," and he could never catch him with the "goods."

Or if Mac, ran into Phil some where along the line, with his fish bag full, he would make Phil unload his catch; and measure each fish for legal limit, trying to catch him up on that. Since there was no limit at the time, on the amount of pan fish one could keep, Mac spent half his time gnawing his teeth, because Phil's catches were always enormous.

Now that I've set the scene, let me tell you the story. I came home from the service in 1945, and the summer of 46 went back to the farm to do a little fishing. The first day back, two of my old friends filled me in on what had been going on, and their biggest excitement was about Phil and Mac.

Seems that Phil called a truce, and invited Mac to go fishing in his secret spot up on the mountain... Mac, not believing what he heard, accepted and met Phil at the appointed time and place, ready to watch this super fisherman at work.

They rowed out to a part of the lake, where Phil triangulated his spot, dropped anchor, and told Mac "This is it, start fishing."

While Mac was getting his line rigged with bait, he was astonished to see Phil, very calmly reach into a small canvas bag, and pull out an oblong metal object. His astonishment, turned first to consternation, then anger, when he saw Phil pull the pin on a hand grenade, let the handle

Seven years later, I was sitting in a fish camp in Northern Maine, gnawing his teeth, because Phil's catches were always enormous. The bartender, who was also a friend, and overheard them telling me the tale, interjected with "Joe...that's gospel... This whole town of 600 people are howling over it."

I just don't believe your story. I just don't believe it. I said to these friends of mine. The bartender, who was also a friend, and overheard them telling me the tale, interjected with "Joe...that's gospel... This whole town of 600 people are howling over it."

Arizona Seeks Answers In '79 Gridiron Opener

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arizona Wildcats, in their second year in the Pac-10, kick off the 1979 college football season Saturday night in a non-conference game against Colorado State which may clarify its dark-horse status in the conference.

Coach Tony Mason's team finished seventh in his second Pac 10 season last year but their future may indicate a different story this year as the Wildcats lead the series between the teams 10-11 dating back to 1926.

Slidaway Oliver, with 866 yards last year, and Larry Heater, who gained 793 yards, pace the Wildcats' running game against Colorado State. Line of Larry Jones and Alvin Lewis (89). The game may depend on how well quarterback Jim Krohn, who missed the last half of 1978 with an arm injury, can combat CSU's 3-4 defense.

Odds-makers rank Arizona as much as 20-point favorites against CSU, which is often placed in the bottom of the WAC this year in many preseason polls.

College Football. "We fully expect our good people from last year to be even better," says Mason. "And I'm much more confident going into this season than any of the last two. We know much more about our own football team, and we have more good players."

CSU seventh-year coach Sark Arslanian says pre-season practice injuries have cut deeply into the team's depth and still to be decided is the starting quarterback job being contested by seniors Keith Lee and Steve Fairchild.

Arslanian says both the offensive and defensive lines are still question marks. "We have some talent but we have to mold them together. They are a very inexperienced group," he says.

In another 70 game Saturday, New Mexico takes on Louisiana Tech. New Mexico is one of four WAC teams to get an early start into the season this weekend. The Lobos have watched WYU capture three straight conference titles but are given an even better shot this year as they locally, it was announced Friday by the NFL. The eight games are Atlanta at New Orleans, Cincinnati at Denver, Cleveland at St. Louis, Green Bay at Chicago, Houston at Washington and San Diego at Seattle on Sunday and the Monday night TV game between Pittsburgh and New England.

An NFL spokesman said eight were the most "advance sellouts" on the opening weekend card since 1973 when there were 10. The 1979 openings are the earliest in the league's history because each team's schedule has been beefed up to 16 games this year.

Connors Advances In Tennis Tourney. NEW YORK (UPI) — Defending champion Jimmy Connors, after desperately fighting from behind in the first two sets, was handed a second round victory in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Friday when Vijay Amritraj defeated...

Connors was leading 7-6, 7-5 when he was set back by a nervous tremor in his right thumb which prevented him from holding his racket.

Amritraj raced to a 6-3 lead in the opening set tiebreaker, giving him three set points, but Connors rallied to take the next five points.

Amritraj took charge for a 5-2 advantage before Connors won the next four games.

Just Too Enthusiastic. NEW YORK (UPI) — I'm Marvin Davis, sitting back in Denver with all that money burning a hole in my pocket, more anxious than ever to buy a big league baseball club and I pick up the paper one day and see here I'm knocking myself out to get into a business that may fine me $100,000 just for being too enthusiastic.

Without question, Kuhn had to chastise Kroc in some manner for his impropriety, unintentional as it was, but he didn't have to drop the piano on him from the top floor.

It is true that the best way to really get to know a man is to work for him, Ray Kroc can't possibly get a better witness as to the general makeup of his character than Peter Bavasi, who is the president and chief executive officer of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Two AFC coaches, Cincinnati's Homer Rice and Don Coryell at San Diego, will be entering their first NFL head coaching job, spent in 1974, got me last week and made up my mind to sell them. It wasn't simply a matter of the $100,000 he was going to have to shell out.

Following a brief period of depression, Kroc changed his mind. He decided to hold on to the Padres, because he loves baseball so much and still wishes to be a part of it.

Good Advertisement. Personally, I'm glad Kroc changed his mind about getting out. I've been around him, heard his views and seen the way he operates and I believe he's a good advertisement for baseball. He deals and speaks honestly and what better characteristics can any man have?

The way I see it, Bowie Kuhn came down too heavily on 78-year-old Ray Kroc. How much more of a lesson does it serve to Ray Kroc if the fine is $100,000 instead of, say, $50,000 or even $25,000? Either one of those lesser sums, I think, make the same point.

Manchester will have two representatives in National Softball competition. This weekend in Nashville, Tenn., the Hartford Road Dairy Queen entry will carry the colors of Connecticut in the Women's ASA National Slow Pitch Tournament.

Next week, Reed Construction, New England fast pitch champions, will trek to Stockton, Calif., to carry the Connecticut banner in the Men's National Fast Pitch Tournament.

Net Champions Crowned In Neipsic Junior Play. Champions were crowned in the Junior Division play at the Neipsic Tennis Club under the supervision of Tom Casalino.

Results: 14 and under singles: Brad Easterbrook, ed. Karl Byclave, 6-3, 6-4, 14 and under doubles: Andrea Dalton and Sarah Forstrom, ed. Steve Hayer and Bob Lammey, 7-5, 6-3, 18 and under doubles: Craig Easterbrook and Dave Shinn, ed. Brad Easterbrook and Karl Byclave, 6-3, 6-3.

Mixed doubles - Dave Shinn - Alicia Quinby, ed. Jamie Roser - Daniela Duke, 7-5, 6-7, 6-4, 18 and under division, finalists were Dave Shinn and Jim Roser. Match was postponed.

Runner-up laurels were garnered by M. Buday with a 168 score.

Junior Champs Named at MCC. Winners in the annual Junior Division at the Manchester Country Club were announced yesterday by Len Horvath.

Ken Forzley edged Chris Fields and Chris Hickey in the 36-hole golf test with a medal score of 77-78-155. Fields and Hickey each posted a 157 total.

Net winner in the 15-17 age bracket was Pete Phelon with 136. Jeff Fields was next at 142. In the 14 and under group, Ken Heaney posted a 136 total to edge Dave Boggini. The latter finished with 137.

New Coaches Set For NFL Openers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The two new coaches in the American Football Conference are striving to maintain their team's respectability; the two National Football Conference rookie coaches must establish it.

Ron Erhardt, New England's offensive coordinator last year, takes control of the AFC East champion Patriots, inheriting the talent — and turmoil — left over from the Chuck Fairbanks administration.

In Oakland, receivers coach Tom Flores replaces the popular John Madden and will try to revive pro football's winning team over the past 16 years. The Raiders, in their 20th season, come off a disappointing 9-7 record which shut them out of postseason play for the first time since 1971.

Ray Perkins has already received several rude New York welcomes as he begins his first season coaching the Giants — who haven't qualified for the playoffs since 1983 — and rookie coach Bill Walsh may need an earthquake to jolt the San Francisco 49ers, 2-14, back to contending status.

Keeping Bait Cool and Alive

Having trouble keeping live bait from overheating and dying during the hot summer months? If so, here are some tips from Mercury Outdoor Products, fishing department which will insure a supply of fresh, lively bait when you arrive at the lake, and later as the day becomes warmer.

Minnows are the most difficult bait to keep alive, especially if you must transport them some distance to where you will fish. Some ice cubes and a plastic bag will work wonders.

Crystals can be kept alive by placing a tray or two of ice cubes in the bottom of a bucket, then covering the tray with a layer of grass. Dump the bait onto the grass and keep the bucket out of the sun.

Minnows are easiest to keep alive, and the easiest to mistreat and destroy. Put them in a can with some dirt and mulch, and place the can overnight in your home refrigerator.

When you go fishing, you'll probably bring along an ice chest for cold drinks. Simply tie a plastic bag around the warm can leaving a short loop of string. Hook this outside the ice chest and let the can hang inside, suspended above the ice and cold bricks. Crickets and grasshoppers can be kept alive the same way, plus the slow movements and makes them easier to put on a hook.

A handful of ice and a little ingenuity will solve most of your bait problems during hot weather.

Writing School Teaches Doctors

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The teacher is an Alameda grandmother. The lesson is penmanship. The students — as frustrated readers of their prescriptions can appreciate — are doctors.

Some of the doctors at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center first questioned the "dignity" of taking lessons in a subject their children were learning in grammar school, says Virginia Miller, the teacher.

"So I upgraded the program for them. I used technical medical terminology in a simple manual. One exercise was filling out prescriptions," Kaiser recruited Mrs. Miller in response to new regulations of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals requiring that all medical records "shall be legible and readable by the majority of the professional staff."

A college instructor in business office procedure and a grandmother, Mrs. Miller says her own handwriting isn't so great either, but she knows how to improve it for others.

She grouped the 26 letters of the alphabet according to five basic strokes and came up with a simple writing exercise manual.

When a story on the pilot project, which began last fall, appeared in a medical magazine, Mrs. Miller was "deluged with phone calls and letters. Some doctors wrote me from as far away as Newfoundland and Nova Scotia."

Doctors have no other group of professionals, she maintains. It's just that they do more writing.

"A lawyer has his briefs typed. But a doctor's report, under the law, has to be handwritten and signed. His prescriptions have to be handwritten."

John Lawler, 79, rows down the Connecticut River every summer, going in stages from the Enfield Dam to Galilee, R.I. This photo was taken near Cobalt outside Middletown. (UPI photo)

Jim Healion's Notebook

One Day a Hero, The Next a Bum

By JAMES V. HEALION

NOANK (UPI) — The man in the carpeted rowboat was a somewhat curious sight that far out in Long Island Sound. The people aboard a passing excursion vessel were, in a word, speechless.

He wore a robin's egg blue roll-up rain hat, khaki trousers, polo shirt, and a pencil-thin moustache of the kind favored by fast-talking reporters and matinee idols a half century ago.

The excursion boat skipper slowed down. The passengers whispered excitedly, trying to make sense out of the spectacle bobbing in the blue water.

The man then stood up in the rowboat, sounded a little Harpo Marx-like horn, then he cupped his hands and shouted, "Which way to China?"

The passengers and crew applauded. The skipper replied through a bullhorn, "That-a-way!" The man in the boat doffed his hat, made a sweeping bow, and went on his merry way.

He was John Lawler, a robust heart of 79, a retired stock salesman from Manchester, Conn., who for the past 10 summers has rowed the 100 miles or so from the dam at Enfield, Conn., all the way to Galilee, R.I. He has been what's fondly called a "hot ticket" all his life.

An adventurous teen-ager, he learned to fly unofficially in 1919 as a crew chief in the 3rd Aero Squadron.

He sat behind the pilot and peppered him with questions all through a 44-day flight from San Francisco, touching down in Honolulu, Vladivostok, Nagasaki and Manila. Eventually he took over the controls.

At 42, he was the oldest enlisted paratrooper in World War II. He became a jumpmaster with the rank of staff sergeant, and still carries the silver wings of the paratrooper for good luck.

It was long before the war, however, that he made his first jump. On "a nice day in May" in 1927, he told his boss he was going to "visit a client." But he drove his Model T coupe instead to Brainard Field in Hartford where he had some pals and where he kept a 1918 rotary engine Avro, a 120-horsepower French airplane he bought for $110 at an auction.

"I'm all dressed up, a fedora, suit, cordovan shoes, a shirt and tie," he recalls now. "I was watching Ray Aherm, a wingwalker, plane-changer, and a parachutist with Gates Flying Circus. He had just jumped.

"So I'm standing there like a gawk and these guys are elbowing each other — laughing and pointing at me ... Then one of them says, 'Hey, John, come on. Take off your suit. You're next!'"

They didn't have to talk him into it. "I just went up and jumped. When I landed, I was a mess. My shirt was all grass-stained and when I went back to the office, the boss asked me what happened. I told him I just jumped out of an airplane. He said one word. It wasn't nice. The next day, I was a professional parachutist."

Soon, Lawler was dropping into cities all over New England. At an American Legion air meet in 1936, he beat the world's champion spot lander. "It was a single chute, a seat pack, no reserve, one shot — if it didn't open, too bad.

"I hit the middle of the circle and got first prize, $60. The next day, a Sunday, I changed pilots and landed in the middle of the Connecticut River. One day I was a hero, the next day I was a bum."

But he still kept jumping out of planes. It wasn't until he was in his 70s that his wife, Mary, brought him down to earth once and for all. But he wouldn't stay still, so he took up cruising down the river. He does it in stages.

News for Senior Citizens

By WALLY FORTIN

Hello everybody. I guess the first bit of news is to tell you that we are planning a foliage trip for Thursday, October 11th and will be signing up for it on Monday, September 10th. The complete package of $14.00 includes site-seeing through four states, a nice lunch at the Country Kitchen with a choice of baked breast of chicken or stuffed filet of sole. We'll also stop in New Hampshire. Registration starts right around 8 a.m.

Well, Labor Day is here and naturally it means a long week-end and just about the last chance for vacation.

We will be going to Rockingham Park in Salem, N.H. this Thursday morning and will leave the center here at 8:30 a.m. and remember we'll be stopping for some goodies before we go into the track. Please be here at the center around 8 a.m. so we can start loading the bus.

If you haven't picked up your flyer about the Bermuda trip you better do so, the first of the week, because they will be taking away the cabins we had holding for us to give to others. Also, you folks who have signed up are reminded that the final payment is on or before September 15th.

September is here and that means that we will be starting up all our programs once again. Either cut this part out or jot the information down for further reference.

On Monday, September 17th, we start our regular meals program with our good friends, Julie Patulak and Helen Winters back with us.

On Tuesday morning, the 18th, we hope to start a Square Dance class for either beginners or advanced or both, however we are asking you to call in if you're interested in going square dancing because unless we get enough names, we may have to cancel this program. So call our office at least by the 7th.

Also on Tuesday, we will definitely have our oil painting class and Kay Hendrickson will be back with us. This will be a morning class.

In the afternoon we will start our popular exercise class with our good friend Cleo Livingstone back with us. This class will also meet again on Friday mornings.

On Wednesday morning we'll have our crewel embroidery class going and Rosemary Cornelius will again be in charge.

Our Friendship Circle will get really started again in the morning and in the afternoon it will be our craft class. Thursdays will again be our fun day with a hot meal served by the students and also entertainment.

On Fridays we'll start a new ceramics class starting at 9:30 a.m. on Friday morning, the 21st.

Speaking of our fall programs, here's a note for you bowling enthusiasts. An organizational meeting will be held this Tuesday, Sept. 4th at 1 p.m. at the Parkade Lanes. This league itself, is scheduled to begin the following Tuesday, Sept. 11th at 1 p.m.

Well, we had some excitement around the center when our hard working Joe and wife, Janice came up with their first child, a baby girl, Heather Marie.

Then we ran into some very bad luck on Wednesday. Kay Nettleon was headed for the Green school when she turned her ankle and down she went. One look by husband Russ showed it was really bad and so she was hustled off to the emergency room. Later it was found that she broke two bones in her ankle and was hospitalized. Kay will be in a cast for quite a while and will remain at her home, at 21 Conway Road to recuperate.

Some of the action here at the center starts with our Wednesday morning pinocle games. The winners were: Paul Scheutz, 628; Robert Schubert, 581; Helen Silver, 576; Rene Maire, 563; John Phillips, 550; Ann Thompson, 550; Ernestine Donnelly, 550.

In the afternoon it was Bridge games and the lucky prize winners were: Tom Regan, 5,110; Jack Owen, 5,070; Mable Loomis, 4,810; Mary Sargeant, 4,240.

Don't forget that we will be closed this coming Monday, Labor Day, so our action will start on Tuesday. Meals will be served on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Monday: Holiday, Closed.
Tuesday: Hot dog on roll, beans, fruit, beverage.
Wednesday: Vegetable soup, grilled ham, cheese and tomato sandwich, fruit, beverage.
Thursday: No lunch
Friday: Minestrone soup, egg salad sandwich, cukes and tomato, pudding, beverage.

Schedule for Week:
Tuesday: 9 a.m. bus for shopping. Noontime lunch served. 1 p.m. return from shopping.
Wednesday: 9 a.m. health clinic by appointment; 10 a.m. pinocle games and friendship circle. Noontime lunch served. 12:45 bridge games. 1 p.m. craft class; bus pickup at 8:15 a.m. return trips at 12:30 and 3 p.m.
Thursday: 8:30 a.m. bus leaves for Rockingham. 10 a.m. open outdoor shuffleboard games. No lunch and no bus today.
Friday: 10 a.m. kitchen social games. Noontime lunch served. 1 p.m. setback games. Bus pickup at 8:15 a.m. Return trips at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m.

'More stars than ... in the heavens'

Do it big, do it right, and give it class: is the MGM motif remembered by Debbie Reynolds, who appears in "That's Entertainment," to be rebroadcast as a special movie presentation Saturday, Sept. 1, on CBS.

Miss Reynolds and 10 other major stars narrate this celebration of the golden age of movie musicals, featuring scenes from MGM's priceless library of lavish films. Her co-hosts are Fred Astaire, Bing Crosby, Gene Kelly, Peter Lawford, Liza Minnelli, Donald O'Connor, Mickey Rooney, Frank Sinatra, James Stewart and Elizabeth Taylor.

It was a golden age of musicals, and MGM was right out there in front," recalls Miss Reynolds, who quickly moved from high school baton twirler to international star under the studio's paternal eye.

Looking back, as she introduces sparkling moments from the movies that made Hollywood a household word, Miss Reynolds says: "MGM was a land of giants, and I was a small fry. There was more star power at MGM than at virtually every other studio in town combined."

Her selected songs which appear in "That's Entertainment" include "Singin' in the Rain" and "Aba Daba Honeymoon."

The classic Fred Astaire style is featured in "Broadway Melody of 1940," as he effortlessly whirls lovely Eleanor Powell through "Begin the Beguine," and in "The Barkleys of Broadway," in which he partners with Ginger Rogers in "They Can't Take That Away From Me" and engages in a unique dance with dozens of empty ballet slippers which "dance" along behind him.

Astaire is also seen dancing with Gene Kelly, Joan Crawford, Jack Buchanan, Cyd Charisse and even a hat rack, in the "Sunday Jumps" sequence from "Royal Wedding," a film which contains a mind-boggling sequence in which he dances up a wall and across a ceiling.

Gene Kelly, responsible for creating unmatched choreography in the cinema, dances with an umbrella in the beloved "Singin' in the Rain." He also dances with Donald O'Connor, Frank Sinatra, the Nicholas Brothers, Jules Munshin and Jerry the Mouse, and is partnered with Leslie Caron in the ballet finale to "An American in Paris."

Production numbers include the exuberant Michael Kidd-choreographed barn dance from "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers"; Dennis Morgan, Virginia Bruce and the spectacularly clad Ziegfeld showgirls in an interpretation of "A Pretty Girl Like a Melody" from "The Great Ziegfeld," and a campus-full of students led by June Allyson and Peter Lawford in "Varsity Drag," from the movie "Good News."

Esther Williams is spotlighted in her unique swimming production numbers from "Pagan Love Song," "Bathing Beauty" and "Million Dollar Mermaid."

MGM's boast was that it had "more stars than there are in the heavens." The spectacular parade of musical talent in "That's Entertainment" proves it was no brag - just fact.

BEST BET

Network television begins broadcasting college and professional football this week.

Kicking off the gridiron season

CBS, NBC and ABC will kickoff regular football season coverage this week. On Sunday, Sept. 2, CBS' "NFL Today" premieres for the 1979-80 season. ABC will follow suit on Monday, Sept. 3, with "Monday Night Football," and on Saturday, Sept. 8, with the first telecast of "College Football '79." NBC will begin coverage of American Football Conference games on Sept. 2. A record number of 110 National Football League games, including two pre-season contests, plus Super Bowl XIV, will be broadcast by CBS Sports during the 1979 season - the 24th consecutive season NFL games have been broadcast on CBS.

Of the 103 regular season games, 89 are National Conference games and 23 are inter-conference between the National and American Conferences.

The live coverage begins Sunday, Sept. 2, when five games will be broadcast regionally: Atlanta at New Orleans, Dallas at St. Louis, Green Bay at Chicago, New York Giants at Philadelphia, San Francisco at Minnesota.

Doubleheaders will be presented on eight Sundays: Sept. 16 and 23, Oct. 7, 14 and 28, Nov. 4, and Dec. 2 and 16. One of the highlight games is a rematch of last year's Super Bowl contestants, the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys, which most of the country will see on Oct. 28.

Other coast-to-coast games are on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 22, and Saturday, Dec. 8 and 15.

The five post-season games will be broadcast nationally, starting with a first-round playoff game on Sunday, Dec. 23. The winner enters the NFC Playoffs, scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 29, and Sunday, Dec. 30, as the Wild Card Team. The NFC Championship game will be played Sunday, Jan. 6, and two weeks later, Sunday, Jan. 20, Super Bowl XIV will be played in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

Each NFL game will be preceded by "The NFL Today," a pre-game, haltime and post-game program originating from NFL Control in New York.

The Emmy Award-winning "NFL Today" broadcasting team of Brent Musburger, Irv Cross, Jayne Kennedy, Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder and Jack Whitaker (who additionally won an Emmy for "Sports Personality of the Year") will be on hand to provide an in-depth look at the games.

ABC's "Monday Night Football" will cover the Pittsburgh Steelers-New England Patriots face-off on Monday, Sept. 3. Then on Saturday, Sept. 8, "College Football '79" features Alabama vs. Georgia Tech. from Grant Field in Atlanta, Ga.

NBC coverage of major-league football coincides with the CBS schedule. Starting on Sunday, Sept. 2, with a national double-header, NBC will follow the American Football Conference contests up through the December playoffs.

The rate for most major crimes in the U.S. declined in recent years. Some of the decrease may be due to the efforts of a San Francisco jewelry store: it has a tarantula and a sign noting "this area is patrolled by a tarantula."

Pearls were once thought to be raindrops swallowed by oysters.

Duke's life

The Duke, an original three-hour dramatic film biography of John Wayne will be produced with the full cooperation of the Wayne family for ABC. The film will be produced by Batjac Productions, Inc., of which Michael Wayne is president. According to Michael Wayne, the film will deal honestly with his father's life. It will show his strengths and weaknesses: John Wayne the star, the father, the husband, the friend.

GLASS Facts & Fancies

Did you know that for centuries even ordinary glass windows were restricted to churches and castles? From 1697 to 1851, Englishmen were taxed for each window they had in their homes over the allotted six.

Baryshnikov in triple dance bill

A triple dance bill will be presented on Great Performances' "Dance in America" this week. On Wednesday, Sept. 5, The Dance Theater of Harlem presents their special American dance and London's Royal Ballet offers Sir Frederick Ashton's exquisite adaptation of Ivan Turgenev's classic Russian play, "A Month in the Country." Then on Thursday, Sept. 6, Mikhail Baryshnikov will star in "Choreography by Balanchine, Part 3."

Mikhail Baryshnikov is on his toes when "Dance in America" presents "Choreography by Balanchine, Part 3," Thursday, Sept. 6, on PBS.

Directed by Arthur Mitchell and Karel Shook, the Dance Theater offers a diverse selection of material ranging from Rufus Thomas' earthy and contemporary "Do the Breakdown" and "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother" to the Pas de Deux from George Balanchine's "Bugaku," a courtly stylized work representing the music and dance of a Japanese household. The hour-long presentation will also include documentary sequences showing the company in rehearsal and participating in their annual Harlem street fair.

"A Month in the Country" features the music of Frederic Chopin and was filmed at The Royal Opera House at Covent Gardens with Lynn Seymour and Anthony Dowell dancing the leading roles for London's Royal Ballet. In a recent interview, ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov reflected upon the most difficult decision he's ever had to make: whether or not to leave his native Russia. It was, he says, the "politics of dance" that finally tipped the scales in favor of leaving his homeland. Quite simply, Baryshnikov knew that staying in the USSR meant he would never have the opportunity to work with his idol -- and fellow Russian emigre -- George Balanchine. And working with this famed choreographer was the young Russian dancer's dream.

Audiences will be treated to the historic rebroadcast of the very first time the two balletic geniuses shared their work with television cameras, on Thursday, Sept. 6, on Great Performances' "Dance in America." "Choreography by Balanchine, Part 3" is made possible by grants from EXXON, the National endowment for the Arts, and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Great Performances is presented for public television by WNET/THIRTEEN, New York.

Baryshnikov dances the lead role in the classic Balanchine ballet, "Prodigal Son." This television production marked the first time Baryshnikov joined the New York City Ballet in a performance of this landmark work. The ballet, with a lush score by Prokofiev, also features principal ballerina Karin von Aroltingen as "The Siren."

Another of Balanchine's masterworks, "Chaconne," is also featured in the telecast. Whereas "Prodigal Son" debuted in 1929, "Chaconne," with a score by C.W. Gluck, is only three years old. Suzanne Farrell, the youngest person ever to join the New York City Ballet, and Danish star Peter Martins, also a principal with the company, dance "Chaconne," in the roles originally created for them. Under Balanchine's watchful eye, the two have been heralded as ballet partners whose unity and compatibility are second to none.

The Chicago International Film Festival recently awarded "Choreography by Balanchine, Part 3" their prestigious Silver Plaque.

The saxophone got its name from Antoine Joseph Sax, who worked in his father's 19th century musical instrument shop and invented several brass instruments.

END OF QUEST -- I know Tim Matheson got a lot of attention for Animal House, but I remember him in a TV western a couple of years ago. Can you help me with the name? -- Mary Baudine, Spencer, N.C.

The Quest" was an NBC series that lasted three months. It was shot down for low ratings and a too-violent approach. Kurt Russell played Matheson's brother in the show, which had them searching for their long-lost sister.

JOKING JUDY -- You answered a question recently where a reader mentioned Julie Harris as being in a detective show. Well, it got me to thinking. Didn't she star in a TV comedy once? -- Yvette Lumley, Glassboro, N.J.

Thicker Than Water" was a comedy, but few people thought it was funny. Harris played her usual staid spinster in the 1973 summer replacement show. Richard Long played her swinging brother.

NO PAIR -- Can you tell me if James Garner and Peggy Ann Garner, who starred in A Tree Grows in Brooklyn, are brother and sister? How old is each? Also, did she win an Oscar for that role? She was marvelous. -- Lydia Pinker, Long Prairie, N.M.

James Garner's real name is Baumgartner, and he and Peggy Ann Garner are not related, although their age difference -- he's 51, she 48 -- is not great. Ms. Garner was named outstanding child actress by the Academy for that 1944 film.

TALL TINA -- Can you tell me how old that tall beauty Tina Louise is? Also, what movies did she appear in before Gilligan's Island? -- Lou Rizzo, New Haven, Conn.

The statuesque redhead is 45, believe it or not. Some of her early pictures include God's Little Acre, Day

Armored Command" and For Those Who Think Young."

CALLING MALDEN -- Can you tell me what Karl Malden's real name is? -- Mitch Leffron, Muncie, Ind.

Before he became stage-struck, Karl was known to kith and kin as Miladen Sekulovich.

TO THE POINT -- What was the name of the charming cartoon that was shown on TV about five years ago and had music by Harry Nilsson? Also, who was the narrator? -- Missy Bishop, Warehouse Point, Conn.

I think you mean The Point," about a boy who was banished for having a round head when everyone else's was pointy. Dustin Hoffman did the voice-over for that 1971 TV movie.

TV AFFAIR -- Who played Sharon in Sharon: Portrait of a Mistress"? -- L.M., Biloxi, Miss.

She probably wishes she hadn't, but Trish Van Devere played the gal who slept around with married men in that one.

MIXED PAIRS -- My mother says James Farentino is married to Mary Ann Mobley, but I disagree. Who are they married to? -- Lisa Elbacher, Lubbock, Texas.

Tell your mother it's an interesting match, but not the right one. Farentino is married to another attractive brunette, Michele Lee, while Mobley is married to another handsome actor, Gary Collins.

MEMORIES -- Does anyone remember Gigi Perreau? -- Thom Baxter, Lakeland, Fla.

I do! Known to trivia mavens as Ghislaine Perreault-Saussino, she was great in Has Anybody Seen My Gal? Come to think of it, though, has anybody seen Gigi Perreau? --

State Briefs

PORTLAND (UPI) — A series of thunderstorms swept through Connecticut Monday, leaving 1,343 electric customers in Portland without power for more than five hours, Northeast Utilities said.

A Northeast spokesman said 2,091 customers in East Haddam were in the dark for about 75 minutes, and there were power outages at 314 homes in Griswold and 137 in Glastonbury.

Fuel Subsidy

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso says she is pleased with the federal government's extension to Oct. 31 of a program subsidizing oil companies which import home heating oil and diesel fuel.

Mrs. Grasso said the extension would assure the oil companies will beat the goal of 230-240 million barrels of heating oil available for the winter heating season.

The program was to have ended Friday.

The U.S. Department of energy also informed Mrs. Grasso as of Aug. 24, the national primary stock level of home heating oil was 189.7 million barrels, just 2.8 million off last year's supply at that time.

Holiday Deaths

BOSTON (UPI) — Police in the six New England states reported at last 37 accidental deaths over the long holiday weekend, including 34 traffic deaths and three drownings.

Massachusetts reported the highest number of holiday deaths with a total of 13; Maine and Vermont reported seven deaths; Rhode Island had five; New Hampshire reported three; and there were two reported in Connecticut.

Drownings were reported in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont.

Vermont's fatality total, with six traffic deaths and one drowning, was upped by a single car accident Monday night that killed four people and injured two others.

First Birth

JACKPOT, Nev. (UPI) — The first birth in Jackpot since the casino town was founded in 1954 took place Monday — on Labor Day. A justice of the peace delivered a healthy 4-pound baby girl.

Gary and Blanche Lemons of Wellsville, Nev., were hurriedly traveling to the nearest hospital in Twin Falls, Idaho, when the 34-year-old woman went into labor.

They pulled into a gas station in Jackpot, population 1,000. Trouble is, Jackpot has no medical clinic, hospital or even doctor.

The gas station attendant frantically called Justice Jay Snyder, who rushed to the scene and delivered the infant.

The mother and child were then transported via one of Jackpot's two ambulances to the Magic Valley Hospital in Twin Falls.

Humorous Art

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) — Oscar-winning actor Art Carney hasn't lost his sense of humor during his stay at a Connecticut hospital.

Carney left his hospital bed Monday to make a surprise appearance on the Connecticut segment of the Jerry Lewis telethon for muscular dystrophy at the University of Hartford.

He donated a plastic bag stuffed with donations from staff and fellow patients at Middlesex Memorial Hospital in Middletown, where he has been since Aug. 23.

"They wanted to give me a head transplant. I said no," Carney joked, and then headed back to the hospital.

Equine entry

The $300,000 Marlboro Cup Invitational Handicap, with such expected entries as 1978 Triple Crown winner Affirmed and 1979 Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Spectacular Bid, is shaping up as the race to determine the 1979 Horse of the Year in thoroughbred racing. It will air on NBC's SportsWorld on Saturday, Sept. 8.

The Marlboro Cup is run over a distance of nine furlongs (one and one-eighth miles) at Belmont Park in New York. Affirmed became the first horse to win over $2 million when he won the Hollywood Gold Cup on June 24.

Muppet guests

John Denver, top pop and movie superstar, Crystal Gayle, the first lady of country music, Shields & Yarnell, the celebrated mime team, and Dyan Cannon, internationally famed actress-singer-dancer, are among the guest stars of the all-new season of The Muppet Show.

They join Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Fozzie, Gonzo, the Swedish Chef and assorted Muppets for another season of mirth and merriment starting this fall.

Dyan Cannon

Vidal-Lear

Best-selling author Gore Vidal will write an original six-hour mini-series based on the personal life of President Abraham Lincoln. Norman Lear will be executive producer of the drama.

NBC intends to focus on the personal side of Lincoln's life and dramatize his relationship with his wife and children during a tumultuous period in which the nation was at war with itself. Vidal's trilogy -- Burr, "1876" and Washington, D.C." -- all deal with U.S. history in novel form.
