

Boredom Takes Toll at Welles Village

By DAVE LAVALLEE
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — On any hot, humid night in Welles Village, the scene is the same. Young persons stroll around the roads, talking, hanging around and sipping on bottles of beer.

This scene is repeated night after night in the village during the warm summer months. The young persons wander around looking for something to do. Very often their search is unsuccessful and white most of the loitering is harmless, the boredom does affect a small number.

That boredom has sometimes led to vandalism, harassment of older people and stealing.

Many of the young persons said that they would not just hang around if they had some constructive things to do.

White many of the youngsters criticize him, Housing Authority Executive Director Bill Willett has been fighting to get some new programs for the teenagers. At the same time, though, he realizes that he has to remain tough on the problems of vandalism, crime, and harassment.

Since his arrival in March 1, 1978, Willett has been working to obtain funds to rehabilitate Welles Village. He has already renovated two units in the village with authority funds. He gets excited when talking about the possibilities to improve the physical nature of the village, but when asked about the youth he becomes disturbed, puzzled and angry.

He has had to deal with break-ins into the community building. He said that up to 50 percent of the village playground equipment has been stolen or broken.

He said there are good kids in Welles Village and that the majority of the vandalism is being committed by a group of eight young persons.

"There are good kids in this village. There are over 300 of them, but out of that group eight are giving us problems. Two or three of them are supplying beer to kids who are underage and I am going to do everything in my power to throw the book at them," Willett said.

"If it looks as though Willett is trying to play the role of policeman and doing nothing else to help the plight of the young persons, that is a false picture.

Last June he sent a letter to Parks and Recreation Department Director J. Baylis Earle asking Earle to improve the recreational opportunities in the village for the teenagers.

In the letter, Willett maintained that there just is not enough recreation for the youngsters and that could be the reasons why they are always getting into trouble.

Willett said he could take the "front" approach and call in the police for everything that goes on in the village.

"What has to happen is more and better social services to be provided."

Willett recommended that lighting basketball courts, or tennis courts be installed in the athletic field adjacent to Griswold Street. He said this would help move them away from the community building and having the young persons in one area would allow the police to keep an easier watch on the teenagers.

"Like I said Baylis, this is only a starting point and perhaps funds for this project are next to impossible, but there could be other areas such as athletic equipment stocked at the rental office for sign use or a CETA worker to run various sports at the field with equipment and so on," Willett said in the letter.

Earle did ask the council to approve a Welles Village park, but it was turned down because of budget considerations. However, Earle has been working on improving the athletic fields and he said a basketball court will be built.

"We are going to upgrade the ballfields on Griswold Street and we are going to put up a playground for the preschool children. We will also be installing a lighted basketball court," Earle said.

Earle said that money has always been a factor in developing better recreational facilities in the area.

The Parks and Recreation Department does run a teen drop-in center during the school year at Naubuc School. While open, young persons can play pool, pinball and just plain chat while adult supervision is present. Earle said this center gets plenty of use in the fall by the Welles Village Youth.

Despite these efforts things have moved slowly in Welles Village. Because of this, the young persons often resort to drinking to kill time.

"There are two or three teenagers who are selling beer to the younger kids in the neighborhood. Then when the younger kids get drunk, they are forced to the dirty work of the older ones because they cannot be prosecuted as adults," Willett said.

Willett said that the only way to stop these problems would be for the tenants to send complaints to the police about these persons.

"Many of the people who are being affected by the young persons are female, single-heads-of-households who are afraid to report the teenagers to the police. They are afraid the young persons will find out and will come back to avenge the report," Willett said.

Willett said that the major way to curb these problems would be to provide more recreational opportunities and that the town is going to have to do something sooner or later.

"What do the kids have to say about the problems in the village? Some believe that Willett is out to get them and really does not care about their problems.

Although many of the young persons lead people to believe that they are not afraid of authority, they probably are. When given the chance they all pretty much agreed that it was the younger kids who cause the trouble. They all said they are tired of taking the blame for things they do not do.

"There are good kids in this village."

to speak out on the problems, most did not want their names revealed. Some jumped at the chance to give their names for publication, but upon further investigation were found to be using false names.

When eight youngsters were questioned about the fire which burned a unit on Wyllys Street on July 7 sources said they received eight different accounts of the incident. Not one matched.

The common complaint from all of them is that there is nothing to do. When asked if they harass older people, they all responded that younger 12 to 15 year-olds take part in that activity. They said the young persons over 16 don't participate in that kind of activity.

This group of 15 kids all said that much of their time is spent drinking in the woods.

"They say that we supply the younger kids with booze, but it's not true. We just do our drinking, throw our bottles away and don't bother anyone," said one 18-year-old.

"We really need information and we could break some of this loitering up," he said.

Hoffman said that despite what everyone says about it being a bunch of outsiders causing the problems, he believes that the problems are being caused by people who live in the village.

He said that the town is not to blame the other guy. What we need to find is a way to deal with subsidized housing. I am not even sure society

Unemployment Rises

HARTFORD (UPI) — Unemployment in Connecticut increased slightly in July due to seasonal layoffs of school employees and manufacturers' vacation shutdowns, state Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro reports.

Peraro said Wednesday unemployment in July was 86,000 or 5.4 percent, an increase from the June total of 85,200 or 5.3 percent.

But the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped from 5.2 percent in June to 5.1 percent in July, compared to the national rate of 5.7 percent, Peraro said.

The commissioner said non-farm wage and salary employment was estimated at 1.4 million persons in July, down about 20,000 from June but still higher than July 1978.

The average weekly wage of factory production workers in Connecticut remained almost unchanged at $266.66 in July, Peraro said.

WHAT'S NEWS

New Course
Beginning in today's Herald is the latest offering in the course by Newspaper critics, entitled "Technology on Trial."

The series will run weekly in The Herald and is a course offered at Manchester Community College.

In conjunction with the course, a public forum is scheduled for Wednesday night at 8 in the main auditorium of the college.

The forum will consist of four panels from the college and the community who will discuss the effects of technology on various aspects of society.

The forum is being presented by Manchester Community College in conjunction with United Technologies Corp. and The Herald.

Approval
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's family has given its blessing to his running for president next year, but his press secretary said Friday that does not mean he will challenge President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

The surprise development spurred the already active draft-Kennedy movement across the nation and was hailed by the senator's backers as the signal they had wanted to renew their efforts.

"The family has said whatever decision he made they would support him," said Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary. "But this is not related to the draft movements. He has not changed his position about running."

Gas Plan
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate conferees began work Friday on a compromise gasoline rationing plan with a warning from a key senator that "the lid can blow off" Middle East oil supplies and overnight cause gas lines worse than before.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, told his fellow negotiators he hoped for quick congressional action because the current gasoline abundance could end suddenly because of "very fragile" security conditions in the Middle East.

The main issue between the two houses in the measure to give President Carter power to ration gasoline is a "trigger" for implementing the plan.

The House insisted on requiring a nationwide fuel shortage of 20 percent to exist for 30 days before the president could impose the plan, which members of the Senate refused to consider.

Diplomacy Urged On Soviet Troops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Friday the presence of Soviet combat troops in Cuba is a "very serious matter," but he urged calm and said the situation should be dealt with diplomatically.

"This is a time for firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration," Carter said, emphasizing the Russian troops do not have weapons "capable of attacking the United States."

"A Soviet combat brigade in Cuba is a very serious matter and this status quo is not acceptable," Carter told reporters in the White House briefing room.

Carter said he was "seriously pursuing this issue with the Soviet Union. This is a sensitive issue that faces our nation and our nation must respond not only with seriousness and strength but with a sense of calm and responsibility . . . not panic."

Administrative sources said the talk was aimed at reassuring the American public the situation is not as critical as the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

MCC Unveils Model Of Permanent Home

By CHARLIE MAYNARD

MANCHESTER — Preliminary plans for Manchester Community College's proposed permanent campus will be submitted to the Board of Trustees of Regional Community Colleges by its Sept. 17 meeting, college officials said Friday.

The educators unveiled an architect's model of the proposed 148,000 square foot building at a mid-morning press conference. The multi-service facility is intended to house classrooms, administrative and faculty offices and a host of community and college-related services.

After a year and a half work by the architect, Acting President Robert Miller said, the preliminary design phase has been completed and submitted to the Public Works Bureau of the state Administrative Services Division.

"The design concepts were what this college agreed upon," Miller said, "and people from around the school made recommendations. It's exciting because much of the major concepts were followed."

Herbert Bandes, Dean of Administrative Affairs, said the Board of Higher Education has approved an $11,500 appropriation for construction of the campus. The request goes to Gov. Ella Grasso for inclusion in the fiscal 1980-81 budget. If it is included, the legislature will have to act on the proposal.

Bandes said $10,000 has been bonded for architect's fees and test borings. The Board of Trustees of the Regional Community Colleges has kicked in $100,000 to defray the architect's costs.

The three-winged megastucture, connected by a central core, will be located next to the parking lot above the present administrative building. Miller said the new building will be an energy-efficient as possible and rely on solar heating panels as part of its fuel source.

The architects are Purcell and Taylor, Inc. of Glastonbury.

The permanent campus will replace the Hartford Road facility and relieve overcrowded conditions at the college. MCC, the largest institution in the community college system, has about 34 gross square feet per student. Once the new campus is constructed, the space allocation increases to 56 gross square feet per student.

"Even with the new building," Miller said, "if you assume enrollment to increase as we expect it to, there is not be flushed with space. There is an extremely low assignment of space per student."

Four Rebels Claim Plane

ROME, Italy (UPI) — Four gunmen claiming to be Kurdish rebels hijacked an Ailalita jetliner over Cyprus Friday and flew it to Rome, where they released most of the 186 persons aboard in exchange for fuel to fly to Cuba.

Airport officials said the hijackers identified themselves as Kurdish nationalists who wanted to go to Cuba to denounce the Iranian regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini before the summit conference of non-aligned nations currently meeting in Havana.

Officials said the hijackers commandeered the Italian DC8 airliner as it flew over Cyprus on route to Rome from Beirut and Tehran, where flight 713 originated.

Denied permission to land in France, they flew to Rome where officials said the hijackers released 140 of the 175 passengers in exchange for 15,000 gallons of fuel.

The women and children began filing off the plane in groups of 20 at 6 p.m. (noon EDT), after airport workers drove a fuel truck up to the side of the green-and-white and red plane.

The hijackers, reportedly armed with submachine guns, commandeered the four-engine jet 30 minutes after take-off from Beirut as it flew over the Mediterranean island of Cyprus and ordered it to Nice, France.

Refused permission to land in Nice, they changed course for Rome, where 80 combat-ready members of Italy's special anti-terrorist brigade immediately surrounded the plane parked at the far end of runway No. 1.

Lawyer Seeks State Probe

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — An attorney representing Mayor Richard J. Blackstone has asked the state Elections Commission to immediately schedule an investigation and a hearing to determine if "false" and "libelous" charges raised against the mayor by Democratic mayoral candidate Gary LeBeau violate fair campaign practice.

Charles N. Sturtevant III filed the complaint Friday with Jeffrey Garfield, general counsel for the Elections Commission.

LeBeau presented the Town Council last Tuesday with an affidavit from a former Housing Authority employee. The affidavit states that Blackstone knew of possible improprieties in the authority two years before he ordered an investigation in 1976.

At least five authority employees were later convicted of missing more than $80,000 in authority funds.

Kenneth LaPorte, the 1973 to 1974 chief of the authority, stated he met with Blackstone in the office to discuss a comment LaPorte made about authority employees "putting money in (their) pocket."

"The public charges made by Mr. LeBeau are false," Sturtevant said. "In particular, the meeting alleged by the LaPorte affidavit never occurred."

Sturtevant said the Housing Authority investigation was not limited in scope, as LeBeau charged, but "rather was intensive, involving local, state and federal law enforcement officials."

Sturtevant also asked Garfield to investigate whether LeBeau's "outrageous statements" violate the Fair Campaign Practices Code.

LeBeau's statements, the attorney said, violate a section of the law dealing with "personal vilification, character defamation, libel, slander and a scurrilous attack on Mayor Blackstone."

LeBeau's charges, he said, constitute "an unfair and intolerable campaign practice."

He said the comments also violate another section because "his charges were made without sound basis in law or fact."

Although he acknowledged that the Fair Campaign Practices Code has not been adopted by the General Assembly, he said Garfield had asked candidates to comply with it and LeBeau's conduct "was so outrageous that an investigation is merited."

He said it would be "a grave injustice" if the commission can take no action.

Garfield could not be reached for comment Friday afternoon.

Sturtevant also sent letters to U.S. Attorney Richard Blumenthal and Chief Assistant State's Attorney Robert Meyers requesting information on the nature and extent of the Housing Authority investigation and the extent of Blackstone's involvement and cooperation in the investigation.

Sturtevant also asked both Blumenthal and Meyers to respond to LeBeau's claim that Blackstone and other local politicians limited state and federal investigations and to the charge of a cover-up.

LeBeau could not be reached for comment Friday.

Eileen Donovan, East Hartford — "No, it's not being used anyway. I get gas any day."

Pat Brennan, East Hartford — "It all depends on how many alternative sources like gasohol and methanol can be developed. Until we have fuel alternatives, the plan is good only as long as the amount of fuel serves the same number of people."
Robin Broderick, East Hartford — "Yes, for a little while until the gas prices go down."

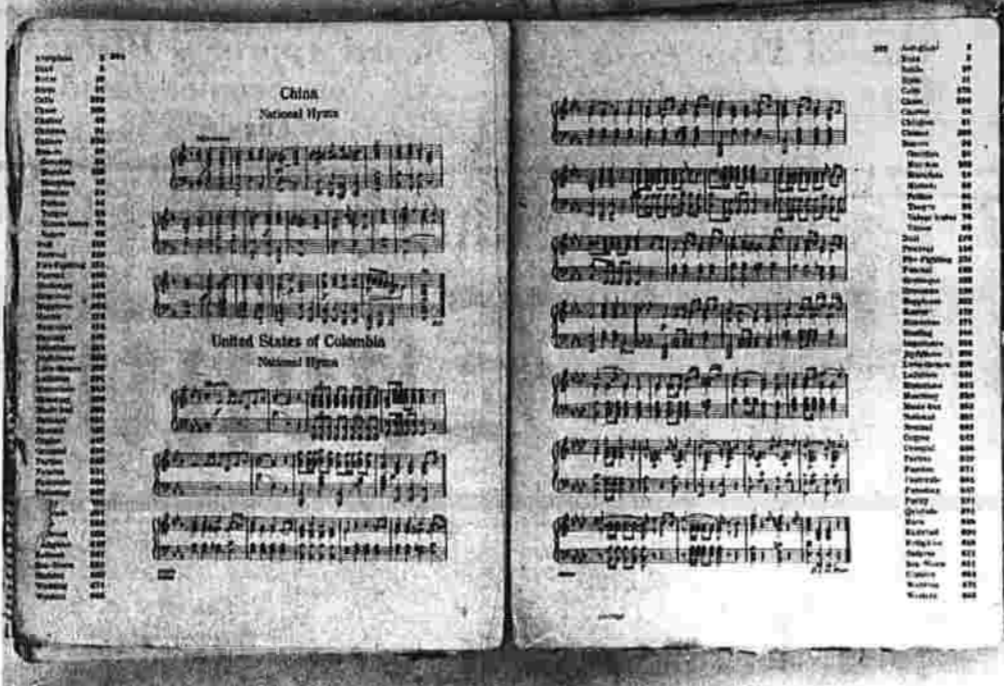

John Dulak, Glastonbury — "No, I feel that during the winter, it probably won't be necessary. If we have long lines next summer, then we should definitely go back to it."

Technology on Trial

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of 15 articles exploring "Connections: Technology and Change."

This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Manchester Community College offers a three-credit course based on the newspaper series. For information, call 646-2137. By JOHN G. BURKE

Smog! Water pollution! Excessive noise! Urban filth! Shoddy products! Lethal food additives! Radioactive wastes! Genetic manipulation! Dehumanization!

These are the results, critics charge, of our blind faith in technological progress. Rebuttalists calling attention to our high standard of living, improved health, longer life spans, better working conditions, and increased educational opportunities do not still the critics' voices. Technology is on trial.

The most ominous assertion is that technology is now completely out of human control. Technology, the prosecution says, has become an independent entity, a thing apart from humans who gave it birth. We have become cogs in a huge system of production and consumption, a machine having no human purpose. Certainly, modern technology gives most of us a means of livelihood, food, shelter, and leisure to watch TV. But the price we pay for these material satisfactions, it is said, is our freedom.

Technology, critics declare, not only shapes and directs every aspect of our lives, but threatens the very existence of the human species. Our increasing love affair with rationality and efficiency—that is, science and engineering—is responsible for creating this technological monstrosity. We are thus caught in a web of our own making.

One possible escape route may be open, declare the anti-technologists, but only if we act quickly and forcefully: Repudiate modern science and high technology. Return to a simpler way of life.

Even if these prophets of doom are exaggerating or are mistaken, there are many signs, such as pollution, which indicate that something has gone wrong. We are constantly surprised by technology's shortcomings. Dangerously defective tires nullify the safety advantages of mandatory seat belts. Cancer-producing food additives are banned, and later their replacements are found to be just as lethal.

Technology resembles the Hydra, the awesome nine-headed beast finally slain by Hercules, which grew two heads from the root of each he struck off.

Will we succeed in overcoming our problems as Hercules did his? Do humans have enough resilience to maintain freedom and choice in spite of burgeoning technology? Assurances and predictions about technology usually are based on several assumptions that are difficult if not impossible to prove. One is that technological change is taking place more rapidly than in the past. Another is that technological change has a much greater social impact than ever before. A third is that scientific research development are exclusively responsible for present technological innovations.

A useful way of assessing our present situation, of judging whether it is indeed unique, is to look at technological development in an historical context and in its relation to contemporary problems. This series of fifteen articles has that goal.

Effects of Technology

Three of the more important effects of technological advance are the increasing complexity of our civilization, the changes in our culture and institutions, and the impact of innovations on work. The complexity of our technological society, indeed, is one of the reasons critics give either for our loss of control or for their charge that the system is manipulated for the benefit of a scientific-technological elite. One frequently cited example is the 1965 New York blackout, which plunged the city into darkness for hours before power was restored, and the cause of which stumped experts for days.

Is complexity a novel feature of modern technology? Similarly, social and institutional changes are apparently occurring with astonishing rapidity. A century ago, for example, any proposal for a U.S. Department of Energy would have appeared ludicrous. But now, as we worry about an energy shortage, it has become a necessity.

Have advancing technologies always had the effect of altering cultures? Has the pace of change quickened? Only when we look to the past do we realize fully how

CONNECTIONS TECHNOLOGY AND CHANGE

Sources of Technological Change

Given these preconditions, however, what stimulates technological progress, and who or which institutions accomplish innovation?

Humanitarian concerns, the spirit of adventure, or the wish to transform idleness to active leisure, have produced some innovations. But the principal agencies of technological innovation are economic activity, science, engineering, war, and government, although some economists would maintain that all of these ultimately can be lumped under economic activity.

The desire to satisfy material needs, individual or social, has always been a major source of innovation. In western cultures, luxuries have become necessities with resulting economic growth. Indeed, some critics blame the "growth ethic" for both environmental deterioration and for the purported decline in the quality of life.

To what extent is this ethic the cause of our difficulties? From small beginnings in the seventeenth century, scientific research activity has now grown to substantial size. On the one hand, the rational and objective approach of scientists provokes criticism; on the other, the discoveries, which give rise to technological innovation, cause worry.

How has science grown? What is its interaction with technology? How do scientists perceive themselves? And, inasmuch as science receives the credit or blame for innovation, what is the engineers' role, and to what extent should their activities cause concern?

War has always encouraged technological innovation, not just in the developing of new weapons, but also in stimulating new industries and methods that have profoundly affected society. Military needs were the chief stimuli for the development of aircraft, space ships, and computers.

Similarly, governments have encouraged innovations through the patent system, agricultural experiment stations, and agencies that aid industry.

To what degree does this activity, both military and civilian, contribute to our present problems? The subjects described above and the questions raised comprise the main body of this series of articles. The final three articles will consider both the past and the future prospect. They will investigate the nature of inventive activity, the relation of technology to ethical principles, and the merits and shortcomings of current attempts to direct the course of technological development for human purposes.

Serious public consideration of these issues and participation in the on-going debates is necessary. For it is only through our collective wisdom that the problems concerning technological advance and its effects can be resolved.

Board Approves Hiring Of New Science Director

By DAVE LAVALLEE

GLASTONBURY — The Board of Education approved the hiring of Kateri D. Tower Thursday night at a special meeting as the new director of science. Superintendent Larry Ashley said Friday.

Mrs. Tower replaces Richard Mihm, who has taken a job in industry according to Associate Superintendent Henry Schoebel. Mihm had been the director of science since 1974.

Mrs. Tower began her first day in the system on Friday by touring all of the schools and meeting most of the administrators.

Mrs. Tower comes to the Franklin Public School System in Massachusetts where she was the director of science for grades kindergarten through 12, since 1977.

She made the move to Glastonbury after marrying Kevin Tower, who had already been a Glastonbury resident, she said.

"This is going to be a stimulating job. It has plenty of challenge in it and frankly I love working in education," the exuberant Mrs. Tower said.

Before moving to Franklin, Mrs. Tower worked in Mansfield, Mass., and taught science in the public school system there.

She did her undergraduate work at the University of Massachusetts where she earned her degree in botany. She obtained her masters degree in biology at Pennsylvania State University in 1975.

She is a member of the National Science Teachers' Association and a member of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Mrs. Tower said she is excited about the possibilities of her new job.

"In this kind of position, I have a lot of affect on curriculum development as a director. My responsibility will be to make sure that curriculum continuity is maintained throughout the grade levels," she said.

She said that as a director she has some major responsibilities.

"I think all school officials now have to deal with fiscal matters. We also have to deal with accountability. We have to make sure that our students are prepared for their future. As a director, I will be able to oversee those kinds of things," she said.

Mrs. Tower said she will be forced to keep up to date on curriculum changes because of her role as a director. She said she will be responsible for, "the implementation and evaluation of curriculum."

"This position has a lot of responsibility, but it can also have lots of rewards. I took the position because I think there will be a lot of rewards," Mrs. Tower said.

Mrs. Tower said the staff is well prepared and that it seems very interested in providing quality education.

Mrs. Tower said that science is essential with the emphasis of the schools in basics.

"In today's world, which is becoming increasingly technological, complex, young people need a good sound basis in science. These young people are going to have to know how to deal with problems of the environment, energy and health," Mrs. Tower said.

"In order to be an informed citizen, young persons are going to have to understand science," she emphasized.

Teachers Subpoenaed For Court Defiance

SOUTHINGTON, (UPI) — Southington Education Association leaders began receiving subpoenas Friday for defying a Superior Court order to end the strike which has kept most teachers out of school for three days.

Five association officers, including union president Don Demers, were ordered to appear at a court hearing Monday to show why they should not be held in contempt of court.

Attorneys for the association appeared in Hartford Superior Court Friday for preliminary hearings on the subpoenas, and Judge John Daly ordered the school board and

Obituaries

Mrs. Joseph R. Bussiere — Mrs. Annette (Ann) Jasmin Bussiere, 54, of 2776 Boston Turnpike died Friday morning at Rockville General Hospital after being stricken Thursday while at work at the Vernon National Bank, where she was employed as a clerk. She was the wife of Joseph R. Bussiere.

Mrs. Bussiere was born May 10, 1925 in Lowell, Mass., and had lived in the Rockville-Conventry area for the past 24 years.

She is also survived by a son, Richard P. Bussiere of Las Vegas, Nev.; a daughter, Ms. Pierrette Bussiere of Hartford; a brother, Paul G. Jasmin of Merritt Island, Fla.; and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Lessard of Westford, Mass.

The private funeral is Monday at the Ladd Funeral Home, 19 Ellington Ave., Rockville. Burial will be at the convenience of the family.

There are no calling hours. The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

Mildred G. Kempes — Mrs. Mildred Gerhardt Kempes, of Placentia, Calif., formerly of Manchester, died in Anheim, Calif., on Wednesday and services were held Friday.

She was the widow of Frank Kempes and the sister-in-law of Victoria Bliss of Manchester.

Mrs. Kempes was born in Manchester on March 8, 1913 and lived there until moving to California 29 years ago.

MCC Professor To Study in Spain

By BETTY RYDER
Lifestyle Editor

A Manchester professor has left the unpredictable weather of New England for the sunny (he hopes) slopes of Spain where he will work toward his doctorate in journalism. Roland Chirico, an associate professor of English at Manchester Community College, has taken up residence in Marbella-Malaga, Spain, during his sabbatical from the college.

Sporting a beard on his last trip to Spain, Chirico wore this Moroccan garb on the return trans-Atlantic flight.

Cesares, named after its most famous occupant, has a dwindling population of 4,000 people. Only the very old and the very young remain. From this strategic outpost, the Roman conquerors could monitor what are now Gibraltar, Malaga and Cadiz.

A bust of Generalissimo Franco at left, in Marbella's touristy Orange Square is similar to those found in very Spanish Town. Since the dictator's death in 1976, they have been disappearing.

Chirico, who joined the MCC staff in 1967 as director of public relations, is familiar with customs, laws and freedom of the press as it relates to Spain, having visited there previously.

"Spain has a history of nearly 300 years of suppression dating back to the days of the Inquisition. Under Franco, there was complete suppression. Prior to his death in 1976, people were jailed if they were found possessing magazines such as 'Playboy,'" he said.

"Now there are adult book stores; stores where political books may be purchased."

Chirico has made many contacts in Marbella-Malaga who will assist him as an advisor in his doctorate work on the customs, culture and politics of Spain.

"I have also contacted the major news services, such as Associated Press and United Press International in Madrid. So, I should be in good shape compiling my data," he said.

Chirico and his son, Roland, 13, formerly a student at Ellsworth School in South Windsor, will be living in a villa, once part of a 15th century monastery, in Marbella-Malaga.

"It was originally constructed by the Moors in the 15th century. In fact, in 1492, King Frederick and Queen Isabella stayed at the villa, part of which later became a Catholic monastery attached to the church."

"Roland has had one year of Spanish at school, and I am sure a year of study in Spain will help him immensely." To assure that it does, Chirico has engaged a college student, who is a Spanish major to accompany them and help his son with translation.

A graduate of the University of Florida with a bachelor's degree in journalism, Chirico received a master's degree from Boston University, where he was editor of the Boston Faculty weekly publication. He worked as BU's public relations editor for three years.

He later worked on weekly newspapers in Wallingford and Hamden as a photographer, then turned to education — teaching English at Wetherfield High School.

He was the first state organizer of the Connecticut State Federation of Teachers in 1964 and a lobbyist for its union in the General Assembly.

After joining MCC, he compiled the curriculum catalogues and directed its news bureau. In 1971, he returned to teaching speech and journalism at the college.

The versatile educator is also a well-known musician throughout the area. He played trumpet with the MCC Concert Jazz Band, was principal trumpeter in ice shows in Springfield, Mass., and Hartford and New Haven. He also performed at Oakdale, Sturrowton Theatres and at the Busnell Memorial. Still later, he taught music at Hart College of Music, University of Hartford.

Chirico is sure in Spain, now a democracy, many changes will be evident.

"Fifteen years ago, Marbella was a sleepy fishing village — until the jet set found it. Now in Port Jose Banus, luxurious yachts are moored belonging to such notables as Ray Milland, Sean Connery, Deborah Kerr and others.

"For many years, busts of Generalissimo Franco were prominent in every Spanish town. Since his death, they have been disappearing," Chirico said.

Across from the villa where the Chiricos will stay is a fortress built by the Carthaginians who were led by Hamilcar.

"The Spanish do not revere historical monuments — they put them to utilitarian use. Inside is a conglomeration of houses, shacks, schools, hostels and markets built since the Carthaginians were there, 2,000 years ago."

Chirico is looking forward to his year in Spain.

"The people are very friendly. Isolated hamlets without roads to and from them are common and the inhabitants were eager to please when we trekked through en route to Roman ruins nearby," he said.

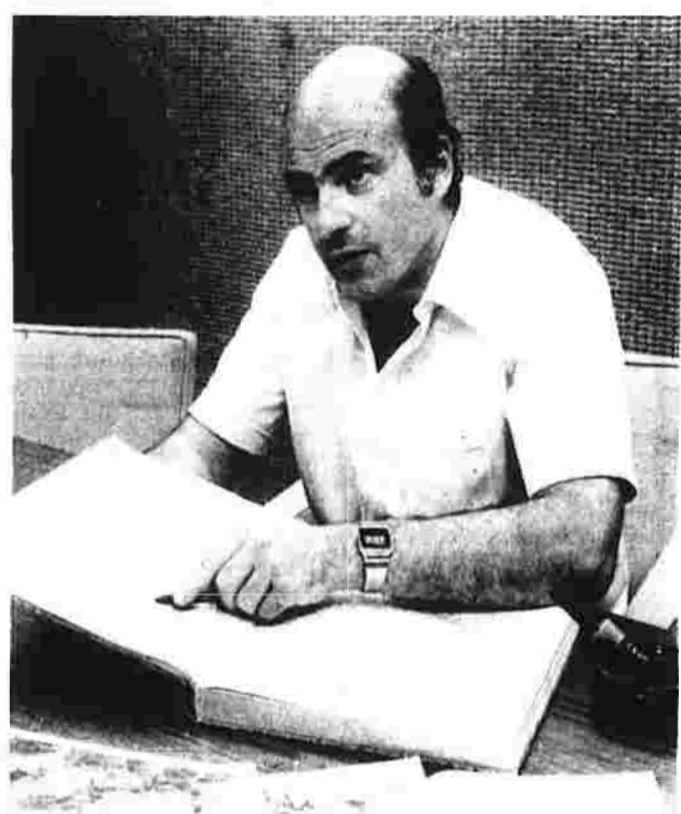

The Chiricos will be back next summer. In the meantime, he has promised to send back stories (even a few recipes) of events as they unfold during his sabbatical.

People/Places

The famed Alcazar in Seville, built for the Moorish rulers, is a plush tourist attraction.

Roland Chirico, associate professor of English at Manchester Community College, points to map of Spain and the town of Marbella-Malaga, where he will be staying for the academic year. On sabbatical from MCC, he will work toward a doctorate in journalism. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Their villa, once part of a 15th century monastery, could be left unlocked indefinitely without fear of theft or vandalism, but under the new democracy, Chirico says, that, too, is changing. The bared bricks in the archway at left, are evidence that the structure was originally constructed by the Moors no later than the 15th century.

Hospital Dedication Set

VERNON - Formal dedication ceremonies for the new Belding Wing of Rockville General Hospital will be Tuesday at 2 p.m., rain or shine. The dedication is the highlight of a schedule of events which have taken place over the summer marking the opening of the new building. Donald B. Caldwell, president of the hospital's Board of Trustees will be master of ceremonies for the program. Mayor Frank J. McCoy, vice chief of the hospital's medical staff and Susan W. Shuey, president of the hospital auxiliary. An exhibit by the Vernon Historical Society, "Community Health Care: Past and Present" will be located in the hospital lobby for the dedication. The display traces the history of medicine in Rockville from the days of home remedies and "horse and buggy" doctors, through the various stages in the growth and development of a modern community hospital, down to the present hospital. Another feature of the dedication will be an outdoor display of "American History in Flags." Rabbi Marshall Press will deliver the invocation and Donald Day, More than 200 flags, the collection of

Wings of Morning The Paratroops of Fall

By CLIFF SIMPSON
I'm holding in my hand a maple leaf that has already fallen before the onslaught of a threatening winter and a bright approaching fall. Fastened to a bright red stem it has a hole in it from the red and yellow colors vie with each other for attention. It is a thing of beauty with its scalloped edges that reach in and out. As the chill fingers slide down over the mountains setting for their very own at first the maples and then the oaks. Autumn does not approach like a mighty army with drums beating and gables blowing so that everyone is well aware of what is going on. Rather the sneak attack is like a series of paratroopers floating down here and there claiming with a dab of red of a splash of yellow that this is now our territory. Just recently, I have noticed goldenrod that stands as high as I

Attend A House of Worship This Week

Make Every Day Count
What would you do if you knew you only had short time to live? It would surely change the way you live, wouldn't it? First, there would be a re-ordering of your priorities. Things that seemed so important before would cease to matter and other things would become very important indeed. Reconciling differences with those you love, setting your spiritual house in order, these are the things that would make first when life is short, why do we delay doing them when a lifetime stretches before us? Make every day count - It is later that you think.

any good either." Perhaps, it will not be amiss to add a word about all of us going back to church after our vacations with a reminder that we should remember those recent Sundays missed when we failed to put any offering in the plate. It was Mark Twain, I believe, that added to the Biblical quote "The Lord loves a cheerful giver" and He will also accept it from a grouch. "Shucks, Sunday School again," Willie grumbled. "I bet Pop never went to Sunday School when he was a kid." "Oh, yes, he did. He went regularly," his mother answered. "O.K.," agreed Willie very reluctantly, "but I bet it won't do me

Church To Install Associate Pastor

MANCHESTER - The Rev. Chester C. Copeland will be installed as associate pastor of Center Congregational Church in Manchester Sunday during the 10 a.m. service of worship. The new associate pastor received a call to serve a Center Congregational Church March 25 while he was working on his doctor of ministry degree at Boston University. He was ordained Oct. 27, 1974 by the Windham Association of the United Church of Christ. He received a bachelor's degree from Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., in 1968, a master of divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary, New York City, in 1974, and a master's degree in sacred theology from Yale Divinity School in 1975. He also has done graduate work at Hartford Seminary and Mansfield College, Oxford, England. He served as associate pastor of the First Congregational Church of Willimantic from 1974 until accepting his present post at Center Church.

Rev. Lehmann To Preach At Installation Service

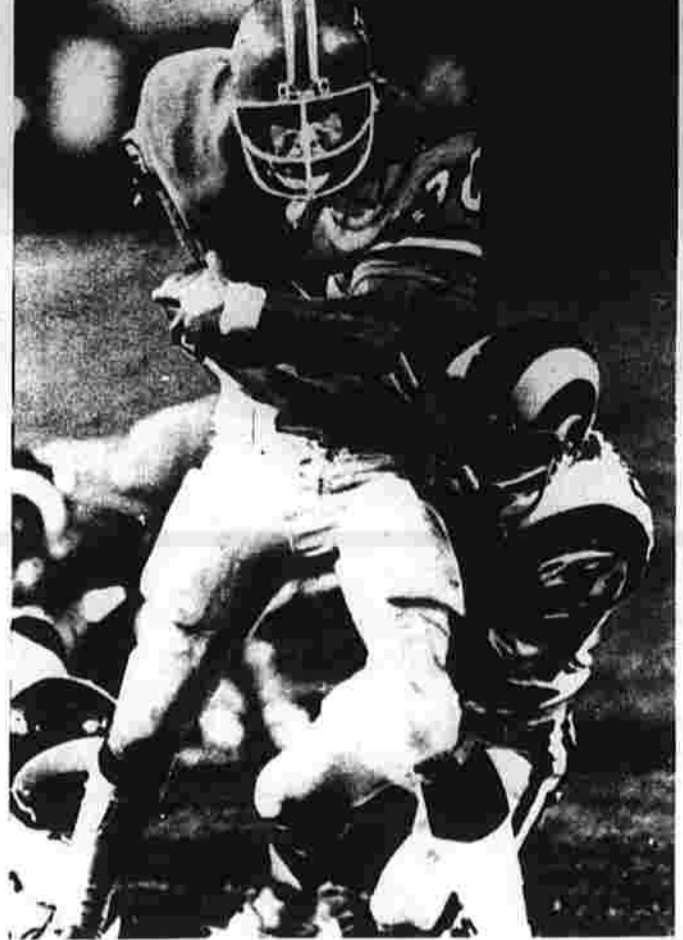

MANCHESTER - The Rev. Dr. Paul L. Lehmann, emeritus professor of systematic theology at Union Theological Seminary, will deliver the sermon Sunday at the 10 a.m. service of worship and the installation of the Rev. Chester C. Copeland, as associate pastor of Center Congregational Church. A friend and former professor of the Rev. Mr. Copeland, by Lehmann was ordained by the Evangelical and Reformed Church, now the United Church of Christ. A graduate of Ohio University, he has pastored several Evangelical and Reformed churches. Before assuming his post as the Charles A. Briggs Professor of Systematic Theology in 1983 at Union Theological Seminary, his alma mater, he taught at Elmhurst College in Illinois, Eden Theological Seminary in Missouri, and the Center for Theological Studies at Princeton University. A respected writer, editor and lecturer, both in this country and abroad, Dr. Lehmann is a former president of the American Theological Society and the recipient of honorary degrees from Harvard University and Turbingen University in West Germany. Others participating in the service of installation will be Dr. Paul L. Holmer, professor of philosophical theology at Yale Divinity School, and Rev. Charles Swallow, chairman of the church's diaconate; and the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Walter Grzyk, director of music at Center Church. After the service of worship and installation, there will be a reception at the Rev. Mr. Copeland in the narthex of the church, under the auspices of the church's hospitality committee.

Chris Too Good For Billie Jean

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even in victory, Chris Evert Lloyd was as surprised and disappointed as the beaten Billie Jean King was woefully bad and totally out of character.

"Mentally, she was passing the match over to me," Evert said with a touch of wonder in her voice Friday after a shockingly easy 6-1, 6-0 victory over King. "Not physically, but mentally she gave up. I think she knew she was beaten."

"Billie didn't push me at all, so it was really difficult to tell how I was playing. It was a disappointing match."

King remained silent after the match, going immediately to the trainer's room for treatment of a neck problem, which one witness said involved a pinched nerve.

McEnroe and Fleming feel they should have been expected from a classic confrontation between King, the Grand Old Lady of Tennis, and the young upstart who is reigning queen.

Jets' Todd Faces Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Richard Todd makes his first start at quarterback Sunday when he leads the New York Jets into Shea Stadium in a game with the AFC East rival New England Patriots.

Todd, who lost his job to Matt Robinson, watched from the bench last week as the Jets dropped a 25-2 overtime decision to Cleveland. But Robinson, who played the game with an injured thumb, threw a crucial overtime interception which led to the Jets' defeat.

New England will be without running back Horace Ivory, who is out at least four weeks with a twisted knee and ankle suffered in the Patriots' 13 overtime loss to Pittsburgh.

"New England is a good football team, a legitimate Super Bowl contender," said Jets' Coach Walt Michaels, whose team was embarrassed 55-21 in their last visit to Shea Stadium.

"They jump all around on defense and try to get you in a bind. I take a sack or two if we can catch them and get an easy touchdown."

Todd's counterpart will be the much maligned Steve Grogan, who hit on just 11 of 33 passes in the Pittsburgh game. Patriots coach Ron Erhardt has vowed to stick with Grogan, who has a tendency to play with a big game after a poor performance.

Today's Sport Parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The three strikes for Reggie Jackson, and according to all the rules of baseball, as well as George Steinbrenner's rules, he's out.

With two more years to go on his contract, plus an option year, Jackson would like nothing more than to be traded by the Yankees.

He has told Steinbrenner that more than once and told it to him bluntly. All things being equal, he'll get his wish this winter, and if he had to pick the club which has the best chance of getting him I'd say it would be the California Angels.

As recently as 10 days before, they had pretty much agreed among themselves that the club's nosebleed this year was entirely Allobelli's fault and they would give him another chance next year.

But then the Giants simply fell apart completely by dropping nine out of 11, Larie made up his mind to make a change.

They called Bristol after midnight to tell him they were letting Allobelli be played Sunday.

Bristol listened as Larie and Richardson told him they wanted him to go to the Yankees.

"You mean on an interim basis?" he asked them.

"Yes," they said. And right there was where they got their surprise.

"That wasn't my thinking," Bristol said to them.

"I like working for the Giants," he went on. "Nobody knows their personnel better than I do. Nobody, I know the things that have to be done and I'd like to keep working for the Giants, but if you're thinking of me in any terms of an interim manager, that could hurt my chances of getting a regular manager's job for next year with some other club."

Lurie and Richardson didn't expect that kind of response. They told Bristol they got up to him and that was where the matter was left for the time being.

"I'm not overly worried about being an interim manager," Bristol assured his two bosses. "The last time a man made me interim manager (Bill Devitt of the Reds in 1966) it turned out to be a good experience. I'll be five or six, 10. Now where do you ever hear confidence like that these days?"

NEW YORK (UPI) — It seems like only yesterday that America stayed up late to watch the sixth game of the 1975 World Series, and suddenly there was Carlton Fisk, dancing down the first base line and coaxing his game-winning home run into the left field foulpole.

In days not very long ago, it was not uncommon for Fisk to seem to dance as he played baseball with grace and a youthful ease.

A talented catcher for the Boston Red Sox, Fisk won the Rookie of the Year Award in the American League in 1972. He was named to the All-Star team in 1972, '73, and '74. He hit 26 home runs in 1972 and added 11 in just 52 games in 1974.

The October spotlight went well with his handsome face, and he seemed to have long career ahead of him, a career that would consist of hitting home runs over the wall in Fenway Park while New England fans cheered their boy from Raymond, N.H., via his birthplace in Bellows Falls, Vt.

So far this season, it hasn't turned out that way. In fact, a persistent pain in his right elbow has brought Fisk to the crossroads at the age of 31.

"It hurts when I throw, and it hurts when I swing and miss," he said on a recent visit to Yankee Stadium. "It feels better than it did but it still doesn't feel like it should."

When Fisk discusses pain, he knows his profession. Even in a profession where hurts come as frequently as splinters to a carpenter, Fisk has experienced more than his share.

A ball struck him during spring training in 1974, injuring his groin and knocking him out of 19 games. In June of that year he collided with Leon Lee of Cleveland and was out for the season. In 1975 he missed 43 games after breaking his arm in spring training.

Oddly, he rebounded in 1977 to enjoy his best year. He played 151 games, including 151 behind the plate, an exceptionally high total. He hit 315 with 26 home runs and 102 RBIs. All that success, however, just made it more frustrating when injury stalked him again in 1978.

Young Quarterbacks Noted in NFC Camps

NEW YORK — The 1979 season marks a significant transition for NFC teams and their futures at the important quarterback position.

Known in recent years as the conference of older quarterbacks — as compared to the American Conference — NFC teams are now having their offenses directed mostly by a corps of young quarterbacks, several of whom where high draft selections.

As an example, five seasons ago, NFC rosters included 13 quarterbacks who had thrown 1,000-or-more passes, compared to 11 in the AFC.

By 1974, Southern California's Minnesota; Tommy Kramer (1st Rd., 1977); Rice; New Orleans; Archie Manning (1st Rd., 1971); Dallas; Tom Flores (1st Rd., 1971); New York Giants; Joe Pisarcik (free agent, 1977); New Mexico State; Philadelphia; Ron Jaworski (1st Rd., 1979); Morehead State; St. Louis; Steve Pritchard (1st Rd., 1977); Missouri; and San Francisco; Joe Montana (3rd Rd., 1979); Notre Dame.

The first game they were let to run the club. Cedric Tallis, the Yankees' vice president, was present at the June 19 meeting and he insists "in no way" was Steinbrenner's remark to Tallis intended as a racial slur.

Here's Tallis' version of what took place: "I called George that day to tell him we were letting Allobelli be played Sunday."

Bristol listened as Larie and Richardson told him they wanted him to go to the Yankees.

"You mean on an interim basis?" he asked them.

"Yes," they said. And right there was where they got their surprise.

"That wasn't my thinking," Bristol said to them.

In days not very long ago, it was not uncommon for Fisk to seem to dance as he played baseball with grace and a youthful ease.

A talented catcher for the Boston Red Sox, Fisk won the Rookie of the Year Award in the American League in 1972. He was named to the All-Star team in 1972, '73, and '74. He hit 26 home runs in 1972 and added 11 in just 52 games in 1974.

The October spotlight went well with his handsome face, and he seemed to have long career ahead of him, a career that would consist of hitting home runs over the wall in Fenway Park while New England fans cheered their boy from Raymond, N.H., via his birthplace in Bellows Falls, Vt.

So far this season, it hasn't turned out that way. In fact, a persistent pain in his right elbow has brought Fisk to the crossroads at the age of 31.

"It hurts when I throw, and it hurts when I swing and miss," he said on a recent visit to Yankee Stadium. "It feels better than it did but it still doesn't feel like it should."

When Fisk discusses pain, he knows his profession. Even in a profession where hurts come as frequently as splinters to a carpenter, Fisk has experienced more than his share.

A ball struck him during spring training in 1974, injuring his groin and knocking him out of 19 games. In June of that year he collided with Leon Lee of Cleveland and was out for the season. In 1975 he missed 43 games after breaking his arm in spring training.

Three Golfers Deadlocked In Pleasant Valley Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Ed Sabo, Terry Diel and David Thore, three relatively obscure members of the PGA tour, carded 5-under par 68-8 Friday to share the first round lead of the rain-delayed $250,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

Sabo, looking for his first major win in his 5-year career, birdied four of his first seven holes on route to a 68. Diel, who is replacing a reigning queen, and even though Evert managed to save her second game, the 35-year-old New Yorker won the tournament by a stroke.

Old Folks Exciting

Old Folks, Fred Stolle and Roy Emerson, provided most of the excitement in Thursday's U.S. Open tennis play at the National Tennis Center at Flushing Meadows in New York.

The natives of Australia, now residing in the USA where the money is much better and more available, came into a whisker — or to be precise, a double fault — or turning in one of the biggest men's doubles upsets in recent years.

The crowd was solidly behind Stolle and Emerson, who were the better about Eddie Dibbs retiring the first set and trailing 2-1 against John McEnroe.

The team of Stolle and Emerson could very well be some one that will represent Australia against the United States in the 1980 Aetna World Cup at the Hartford Civic Center.

Coliseum in March. Competition in the final Aetna tennis promotion will feature Stolle and Emerson with the Aussies, along with Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and John Newcombe.

Smith and Lutz prevailed by scores of 7-5, 3-6, 7-5 to force an overtime crowd in the grandstand area in semifinal action. The two teams requested and were granted to play their match in the smaller seating capacity rather than in the spacious stadium.

Swirling winds and bright sunshine were cited as the players' reasons for asking for the switch, much to the dismay of thousands who traveled to the morning elements to take in the day's schedule in the wake of tropical storm David.

Stolle and Emerson both reached back into their bag of tricks and all around savvy to give the Americans a far more competition than they expected.

It wasn't a case of Stolle and Emerson, a pair of 40-year-olds, running out of gas, rather more effective serves by the Americans, especially Smith.

Not once during their match did either Stolle or Emerson take a rest, fearing no doubt, the possibility their bones getting stiff.

It should be interesting in March to watch the "Old Folks" competing again, just as they did 11 years ago when Aetna sponsored its first World Cup.

On the other hand, Smith and Lutz took full advantage of the rests while sitting relaxed and toweling off their

Big 10 Matchup Tops Slate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Purdue's Boilermakers, a surprise last year, will try to live up to their No. 8 rating Saturday when they meet Wisconsin in a Big-10 matchup.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that if a mother is a tramp, her kids have all kinds of respect for her, but if she's a good Christian mother they couldn't care less. I've seen it often. In my case, we have a daughter in college who attended summer school. All the years she was growing up, her father was "too busy" to attend a PTA meeting or any of her school activities. He was in her grade school only once, never in her junior high, and in her senior high school (field house) one - for her graduation.

On the other hand, I've done all the things a "good mother" should do. I attended PTA, was a Browline leader, Raditor, nose with good grill, etc. XXIII got tank, etc. Cash offer. 742-6200.

DEAR ABBY: I am puzzled over a common social dilemma that many single women face. Last weekend at a party I met a guy who was nice to talk to, but not to go out with. Later in the evening he asked if I'd like to go out with him some time. Then he asked for my phone number. I wasn't particularly interested in seeing him again but was a loss for a gracious way of declining. What would you have done? By the way, I have a steady boyfriend and am not interested in dating others, but I thought it presumptuous to mention my boyfriend since I was asked only for a date - not a lifetime commitment.

DEAR SINGLE: I would have told him that I had a steady boyfriend, but if he'd give me HIS number I'd like to go with one of my uncommitted girlfriends. If S. One girl's leftovers could be another girl's banquet!

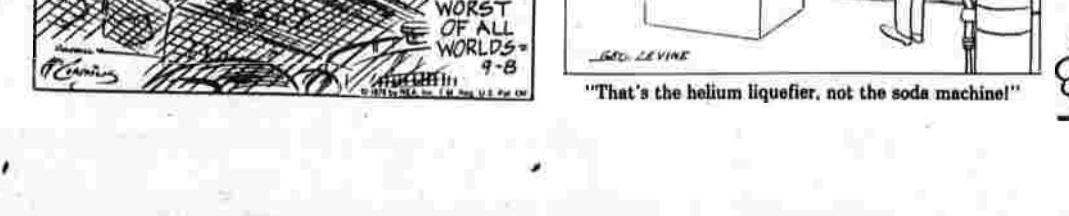

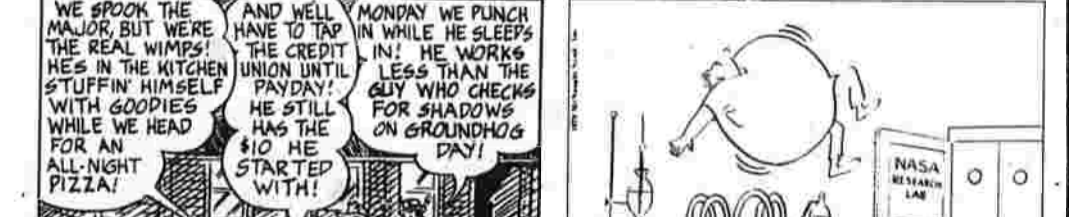

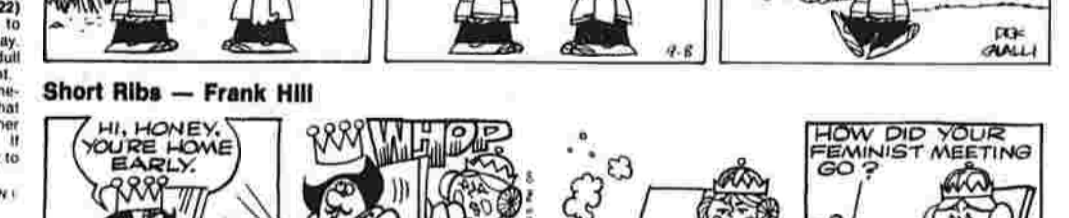

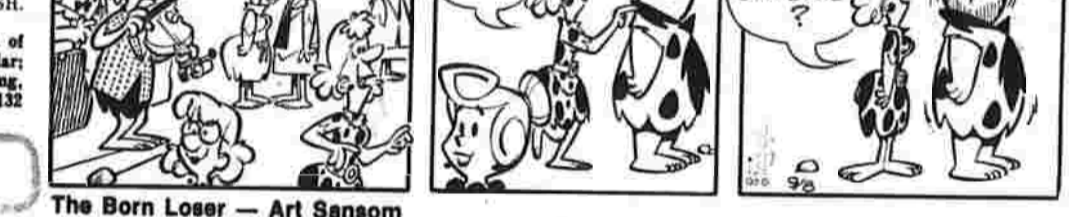

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who was discouraged because she was to be 37 when she finished high school amused me. My mother was born in 1890. She went only as far as the eighth grade because there was no high school where she lived. In 1944 she enrolled in a special high school program for adults, and got her diploma in 1945. In 1952 she graduated from the University of Washington.

DEAR ABBY: I was reading an article about the making of 16th century Chinese pottery. It was published in "Folklore," a British magazine. So what is that 34-year-old lady complaining about? EDMOND WELT, TACOMA, WASH.

MINIT-MAN PRINTING NOW TWO LOCATIONS

Low Cost Printing Is Only MINITS away at Your MINIT-MAN Printing

We started our business in 1970 as the first quick print and copy center in Manchester. Because of our specialized high speed equipment, we are able to print with our photo ready platemaker in just a matter of minutes. We also have a valuable new 3-M Bond Copier which makes beautiful copies on bond paper. We can also do flyers, letters, business cards, index cards, envelopes, postcards, stag tickets, rubber stamps and engraved name plates and pins of all sizes within a reasonable time, at very economical prices. We are open 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, Saturdays 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Our facilities also include punching, padding, stitching, cutting, collating and folding. We are located in Downtown Manchester at 811 Main Street; in the new Manchester Mall, for any information, please phone 646-1777; and 423 Center Street, Manchester. (Shown in the above photo, left to right, is: Mary Farnham - Printer, Thomas F. Barry - Owner, and Linda Thatcher - Secretary.)

Chillers

PBS is presenting a chiller festival, "Hitchcock: The Early Years" is a collection of suspense master Alfred Hitchcock's 1930 films airing on Tuesday nights through September.

On Tuesday, Sept. 11, look for "The Man Who Knew Too Much," a spy thriller that involves an assassination plot, two kidnappings and Peter Lorre in his English-speaking debut. On the 18th, "Sabotage" stars Sylvia Sydney and Oscar Homolka in a tale of anarchy. The festival concludes on the 25th with "The Young and the Innocent," an account of a young man falsely accused of murder.

Alfred Hitchcock

Science series

Michael Ambrosino, creator of "NOVA," the most successful science series on television, is producing the first American series on anthropology and archaeology for broadcast on PBS next March.

The 13-week program, "The ODYSSEY," will feature a few of the fascinating stories about people living throughout the world today and people who preceded us hundreds and even thousands of years ago. The series will journey to the edge of the Arctic Circle and the jungles of Indonesia, the 12,900 foot peaks of the Peruvian Andes and a sunken Spanish galleon off the coast of Ireland.

Mending

Erik Estrada, star of NBC's "CHiPs," is recuperating at home following his Aug. 6 motorcycle accident. The length of his recuperation is unknown, but because of skillful juggling of scenes already completed for the series, Estrada will appear in every episode during the new season.

Reference to the unfortunate crash will be made in an episode entitled "The Return of the Supercycle," as a stunt man re-creates the accident and establishes Ponch's temporary disability. The actual footage of Erik's real accident will not be used.

TV DIALOGUE

UNCLE TIM -- Can you tell me what, if any, the relationship is between Timothy Van Patten of "The White Shadow" and Vincent Van Patten -- Dick Van Patten's son. -- Molly Grayson, Victoria, B.C., Canada.

The family it seems does not stick to the same network. Tim is Vincent's uncle, despite their age similarities. NICKED -- I saw Nick Mancuso in the movie about the capture of Adolph Eichmann on ABC, and I recently saw him in the movies in "Nightwing." I thought he was the best thing about an otherwise yucko movie. Can you tell me when he'll be on television again? -- Lea Reese, Tampa, Fla.

The Canadian-born actor will be co-starring in "Scruples" this season, starring Barry Bostwick and Lindsay Wagner. It concerns a Beverly Hills boutique. DUKE IT OUT -- I know Robert Conrad is doing "A Man Called Sloane" for NBC, but what happened to "The Duke"? That was a great show. -- Fred Bristol, Denton, Texas.

What happened is NBC told Conrad he could do either, but they were pushing very hard for "Sloane" and in the end Conrad agreed it would be a more successful format. It's the biggest-budgeted show on the air this season.

LEGGY STUFF -- What was the TV show in which Mary Tyler Moore was only seen from the legs down? It was a cop show, but I can't remember what it was. Please help. -- D.S. Morgan, Highland Park, N.J.

It's hard to believe, but it was 20 years ago that MTM dangled her legs before the cameras on "Richard Diamond, Private Eye." David Janssen played Diamond. Later in the season Moore left the show and was replaced by Roxanne Brooks, also seen only from the waist down.
