Saudis To Keep Oil Export High

Balloon Starts Flight

The helium-filled balloon DaVinci Trans-America soars over skies of Oregon with famed Mount Hood in the background. The balloon took off on its cross-country flight early Wednesday after 21 postponements waiting for perfect flying weather. Saudi Arabia has promised to do its share to keep the industrialized West warm during the coming winter months and analysts said the decision should stabilize world oil prices for the remainder of the year.

Saudi Crown Prince Fahd bin Abdul Aziz said his country, the largest exporter of oil to the United States, will maintain its extra oil production levels for three more months in order to help consuming nations through the winter.

President Carter welcomed the Saudi move as "a constructive complement to the efforts of the oil-importing nations to curb consumption and switch to other fuels," but said conservation measures should not be relaxed.

The Wednesday decision means the Saudis will continue producing an estimated 9.5 million barrels per day — 1 million barrels per day above the ceiling set in 1974 in an attempt to conserve its precious natural resource.

"Saudi Arabia has decided to extend its decision to increase its oil production for another three months," said Fahd who chairs the kingdom's supreme petroleum council and is the No. 2 man in the country.

The decision "derives from the kingdom's concern for the interests of friendly countries and in order to settle down the world oil market and provide the consuming nations with enough of their fuel needs to face the coming winter," Fahd told the official Saudi Arabian Press Agency.

U.S. analysts said the move by the Arab nation will keep prices down. "Since the United States is in the midst of a recession and other foreign sources of oil seem to be raising production, the Saudi action means world crude oil prices should remain reasonably stable until the end of the year," said Joseph Tovey, a New York energy specialist.

Saudi Arabia supplies 18 percent of U.S. oil needs and accounts for about one-third of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' total oil production.

Fahd is well known for his pro-American sympathies. He expressed the hope the consuming countries would use this opportunity to take serious steps towards decreasing oil consumption and limiting the wasteful use of energy.

In July, Saudi Arabia raised its oil output by 1 million barrels above its official ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day in a move that eased shortages of both gasoline and home-heating oil in the United States.

"That increase was to last until Oct. 1. One American oil analyst in Jeddah said "the Saudis appear to be trying to strike a delicate balance. They want to give the West enough oil to make the transition to alternative energy sources and conservation without too many serious economic or political dislocations."

Oil analysts said the increased Saudi production has brought world supply and demand back into precarious balance in the aftermath of the Iranian oil cutoff.

Senate Facing Pay Hike Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today faced a decision over how much of a pay raise — if any — members of Congress should receive in a dispute with the House that could delay action on urgently needed legislation.

The Senate scheduled as its first order of business a resolution that would continue funding for dozens of government agencies whose regular appropriations bills for fiscal 1980 are stalled in Congress.

Without it, the money technically will cease flowing to much of the bureaucracy when the new fiscal year begins at midnight Sunday. Actually, the real financial crunch would take another week to be felt.

The leadership hoped the Senate could pass the bill today, leaving Friday for a conference committee to iron out differences between the House and Senate versions.

The scene was set for a major confrontation when the Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday unanimously rejected a 5.5 percent pay increase passed by the House Tuesday.

The Senate panel voted 22-0 to go along with the House in granting the 5.5 percent raise to 22,000 top government workers earning $47,999 or more. But the panel flatly rejected the House-passed raise for congressional members and senators who now earn $57,500.

The salary dispute and the equally thorny issue of federally funded abortions are the two potential roadblocks that could jeopardize a quick compromise on the continuing resolution.

The House-passed measure would prohibit use of federal funds to pay for abortions unless the mother's life is in danger. But the Senate committee, on a 14-13 vote, substituted language in current law that would allow abortions if the mother would suffer "severe and long-lasting" health damage or in cases of promptly reported rape and incest.

Without a Senate vote overturning the committee recommendation, the House and Senate conferees would face the same dispute on abortion funding that has blocked passage of three of the regular appropriations bills — funding the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare; the Defense Department; and the District of Columbia.

The House wrestled with the pay raise issue on several occasions before voting Tuesday to provide members of Congress and 22,000 of the highest-paid federal workers — whose salary was frozen last year — with a pay boost of 5.5 percent in fiscal 1980.

Vitamins Don't Help

BOSTON (UPI) — A new study indicates high doses of vitamin C will not prolong life for terminal cancer patients. But Dr. Linus Pauling — vocal advocate of vitamin C therapy — says the research paper is "poorly written."

Ten grams of vitamin C a day were given to 60 of 123 patients who had received extensive prior treatment with anti-cancer drugs. The other 63 patients in the study were given similarly flavored placebos — sugar pills.

Vitamin C did nothing to prolong the survival of the patients who took it, said Dr. Edward T. Creagan, one of seven doctors conducting the investigation at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

The research, which began in July 1977, was published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Pauling, a two-time Nobel laureate, said the study only verified his prediction that vitamin C will not work in patients who had been treated with cancer drugs.

"I think their paper is rather poorly written. They don't communicate the really significant results," Pauling said in a telephone interview.

Creagan said the Mayo Clinic wanted to test the findings of a study conducted in Scotland by Dr. Ewan Cameron in which a 10-gram dose was said to have substantially improved the life span of cancer victims.

"By a random selection, patients were assigned to either a vitamin C program or to a comparably flavored placebo," Creagan said. "The median survivorship for patients with or without vitamin C was approximately seven weeks."

In the controversial Cameron study, physicians found vitamin C increased the life span of cancer patients an average of 210 days, compared to 50 days in people not given the vitamin. Many researchers have contested the result.

Reached at his Menlo Park, Calif. home, Pauling said it was improper to compare the two studies because the results come from different patient populations.

Pauling said he had been contacted by one of the Mayo researchers, saying they wanted to duplicate Cameron's work as closely as possible.

"I told him that he must be sure that the patients he used had not received chemotherapy," Pauling said.

The drugs damage the body's natural disease prevention system and vitamin C advocates contend this prevents the vitamin from having its anti-cancer effect.

"We had predicted that the effect of vitamin C would be quite small in people who had gotten chemotherapy," Pauling said. "All that the Mayo Clinic study has done is to verify that prediction."

Since the Mayo results indicated there was no benefit from high-dose vitamin C, however, the physicians said they could not recommend it.

Aspirin, Running Called Bad Pair

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A doctor who runs "super marathons" says people risk heat exhaustion, or even death, if they habitually take aspirin and then exercise in hot weather.

Dr. Herbert Fred, a professor of medicine at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston, and one of only six finishers in a 100-mile "super marathon" this May in Honolulu, said Wednesday a dose of two aspirin every four hours caused him to collapse from heat exhaustion near the end of the run.

"Fred, a visiting professor at the University of Utah Medical Center, said he began taking aspirin a week before the race to relieve knee pains, and continued taking it during the 20-hour run.

He said the drug apparently caused an extremely high loss of body fluid through perspiration and urination, and at the same time blocked his desire to drink. "I was actually repulsed by the very thought of drinking fluids," he said.

Fred collapsed 8 miles from the end of the race and had to be "ice packed" before he could resume the run.

EDC Awards Contracts

MANCHESTER — The town Economic Development Commission this morning awarded two contracts and transferred surplus funds from two accounts to contracts where the money is needed.

Gay Giles, town director of public works, and the consulting engineering firm of Fuss and O'Neil recommended, and the commission approved, awarding the contract for the reconstruction of Burnham Street to the lowest bidder.

White Oak Corp. of Plainville will construct the water main from the north part of Calders on Buckland Street towards the north end of Chapel Road, for $693,804.

The commission also approved awarding the contract for landscaping of the Buckland Industrial Park to Milane Nurseries of Cromwell for $16,841.

The landscaping funds were allocated from surplus funds. Town Planner Alan Lamson said, "The town has spent $420,000 less than what was originally budgeted. We took the surplus funds from those contracts dealing with the construction of Chapel Road and placed them in contract 11, which is the landscaping contract."

The EDC will next meet on Oct. 11 at 8:30 a.m. for a tour of the Pemcy site and facilities. Their next meeting for next week was cancelled.

Vance, Gromyko In Vital Talks

NATIONAL SECURITY adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski appeared to rule out U.S. Soviet trade restrictions — on the ground it would amount to the United States "shooting itself in the foot."

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter was asked if Vance had conveyed to Gromyko the feeling in the Senate the SALT II pact was imperiled if the Soviet combat brigade was not dismantled or withdrawn.

Carter said, "We have not found it necessary to transmit to the Soviet Union views that have already been made known by members of the U.S. Senate."

From Gromyko's U.N. remarks, it appeared that they would see each other again today.

U.S. officials said no meeting between Gromyko and President Carter is scheduled, but one could take place this weekend, if Gromyko took the surplus funds from those U.S. demands for a dismantling of the brigade, and dispersal of some of its combat equipment.

The Carter administration has made it increasingly clear, in private and public statements, it is prepared to take unspecified "counter-actions" if the Soviets do not respond to the American demands.

Rita Lloyd and Don Ameche rehearse for "The Jeweler's Shop," an original drama written by Pope John Paul II when he was a young priest in Poland. (UPI photo)

Man for All Seasons
Don Ameche and Rita Lloyd are in rehearsal at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. They're costars in an upcoming NBC-TV special "The Jeweler's Shop" - an original drama written a number of years ago by a young priest in Poland. The young priest is known these days as Pope John Paul II.

The Vatican has granted NBC exclusive American rights to the play which will be broadcast Sunday.

Shell Shock
Richard Roundtree wants no part of "method acting" in his present film. He plays an American sergeant in the Korean War flick "Inchon" - which stars Sir Laurence Olivier as Gen. Douglas MacArthur - being shot on location in South Korea. Stopping over in Bangkok for a brief rest en route to Italy, he said he's glad he's never been in a real war - that "actual combat must have been absolutely frightening."

Said he, "I was even scared doing it for a film." Roundtree missed the Vietnam War draft because he was married and had two children.

Going Ape
Film producer and actor Michael Douglas was sitting quietly in his New York production office Tuesday when a man in a gorilla-suit walked in to sing him a happy birthday.

The "Gorillagram" was a present from his staff, but Douglas - two pet terriers - Max and Eibel - didn't take kindly to the gag. Their angry outburst sent the gorilla sprinting - giving Douglas an object lesson for the film he's making.

He costars with Susan Anspach in "Running." He never did get the rest of his birthday song.

Quote of the Day
Jane Fonda, asked at the Washington Press Club about her 1970 comment that Black Panther Huey Newton was the only man she knew qualified to lead the country: "I've said some pretty off-the-wall things in my life. All I can say about that is I was naive and utterly wrong."

Glimpses
Former President Gerald Ford, an avid skier, has purchased a single-acre mountain home in Vail, Colo., reportedly for $300,000. Frank Sinatra, in Cairo for his hospital benefit concert, played a courtesy call on President Anwar Sadat and Mrs. Jihan Sadat Wednesday.

Unification Church leader Sun Myung Moon and his wife of 19 years became parents of their 11th child Wednesday - a boy, named Hyung Jin, Korean for "fulfillment" - in a CBS-TV Hallmark "Hall of Fame" production of Anthony Lewis' "Gideon's Trumpet."

Uranium Supply Accord Goof for NU, Customers

HARTFORD (UPI) - An out-of-court settlement of a 4-year-old uranium supply dispute may only cost a Pittsburgh firm $2.5 million, but it's worth $80 million to Northeast Utilities and its customers, the utility says.

The reason for the difference was the cost Northeast would pay for the services today and the difference between costs and profit to the supplier, Westinghouse Electric Corp., Northeast spokesman Emmanuel Fede said Wednesday.

"I guess it's just like a farmer who grows heads of cabbage for 2 cents and can sell them for 10 cents," he said, adding that the value to Northeast may also prove to be a surprise to Connecticut utility consumers.

The settlement, announced in Richmond, Va., required Westinghouse to honor a 1975 contract to supply 1.5 million pounds of uranium for Northeast's Millstone III nuclear plant which is under construction in Waterford.

"The less expensive it is for us to put a plant into service the less the ratepayer will be paying for its operation," Fede said. "The lower the operation cost the lower the cost for customers."

The fuel that Westinghouse is supplying us, we're not just getting this for free," he said, "but the total amount of the settlement adds up to about $60 million."

Westinghouse also agreed to pay Northeast $2 million in cash within 30 days and to provide during the next 10 years nuclear steam supply system equipment and services at no charge or with a rebate against the purchase price.

He said the amount of uranium included in the settlement and earlier supplied by the firm amounted to nearly 2 million pounds and was enough to complete initial fueling of the Millstone III plant and some additional refueling.

Richmond U.S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merlino Jr., ruled last year that Westinghouse was liable for damages sought in 17 uranium supply lawsuits filed after the firm failed to deliver uranium at the contract price. He then ordered trials to establish the amount of damages.

Northeast's suit stemmed from Westinghouse's September 1975 notification it would not be able to supply the fuel for the Millstone III plant which at the time was scheduled to be in operation by this year.

The startup date, however, has been put off and Northeast now is looking toward a 1984 or 1985 startup, Fede said.

Northeast owns 65 percent of the plant and is considering selling an additional 10 percent or so to help speed up completion, he said.

"I guess what happened was the price of uranium took off," he said, adding that the price of the fuel at the time was about $10 a pound and was now about four times as much.

He said Northeast made plans to seek alternate suppliers after the Westinghouse decision in 1973 and had lined up adequate supplies for the plant.

"When this started in 1973 there were no clinics doing abortions," Fritch said. "They were all either done in hospitals or hospital clinics. Maybe by 1975 there was one, but the number keeps growing."

The department said 47 percent of the abortions reported in 1978 were done in non-hospital clinics, compared to 40 percent the year before. There was a corresponding drop in the number of hospital abortions which still accounted for 49 percent of the 1978 total.

Connecticut still has no state law governing abortion, Fritch said, with abortion still regulated under administrative regulations as part of the state's Public Health Code.

Legalized abortion was allowed by a 1973 Supreme Court ruling and Fritch said the state adopted regulations on the procedures and reporting of the operation about a year later.

He said the actual number of legal abortions may be higher than the department's figures because some may go unreported, particularly those done in doctor's offices since the procedure "doesn't have the stature of a birth certificate or a death certificate." During 1978, 4 percent of the legal abortions reported to the department were performed in doctors' offices.

The figures also showed that 90 percent of the abortions performed in 1978 were done on state residents. The age breakdown was: under 18-years-old, 30.7 percent; 20 to 24-years-old, 62.3 percent; and over 24-years-old, 6.5 percent.

Fritch, of the department's maternal and child health section, said there were "three or four factors" which could have contributed to the decline but the state had not analyzed the data to make specific determinations.

The figures also showed a continuing trend toward abortions being done in the non-hospital clinics and a steady increase since 1975 in the number of abortions performed during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

The figures also showed a continuing trend toward abortions being done in the non-hospital clinics and a steady increase since 1975 in the number of abortions performed during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

Officials Aren't Sure Why Abortions Decline

HARTFORD (UPI) - State health officials are at a loss to explain why the number of legal abortions reported in Connecticut was down last year for the first time since the state began recording the numbers.

But the Department of Health Services Wednesday had little trouble explaining why fewer abortions are being performed in hospitals - an increase in the number of non-hospital abortion clinics.

"Statistical reasons for the decline are unclear," Hugh Fritch, the statistician who compiled the figures said. "I could sit here and guess, but I really don't know."

The overall number of legal abortions reported to the state in 1978 was 13,741 - most on women in their 20s and 30s - compared to 14,997 in 1977. It was an 8 percent drop, the first since the department began collecting the statistics in 1974.

Fritch, of the department's maternal and child health section, said there were "three or four factors" which could have contributed to the decline but the state had not analyzed the data to make specific determinations.

The figures also showed a continuing trend toward abortions being done in the non-hospital clinics and a steady increase since 1975 in the number of abortions performed during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

"When this started in 1973 there were no clinics doing abortions," Fritch said. "They were all either done in hospitals or hospital clinics. Maybe by 1975 there was one, but the number keeps growing."

The department said 47 percent of the abortions reported in 1978 were done in non-hospital clinics, compared to 40 percent the year before. There was a corresponding drop in the number of hospital abortions which still accounted for 49 percent of the 1978 total.

Connecticut still has no state law governing abortion, Fritch said, with abortion still regulated under administrative regulations as part of the state's Public Health Code.

Legalized abortion was allowed by a 1973 Supreme Court ruling and Fritch said the state adopted regulations on the procedures and reporting of the operation about a year later.

He said the actual number of legal abortions may be higher than the department's figures because some may go unreported, particularly those done in doctor's offices since the procedure "doesn't have the stature of a birth certificate or a death certificate." During 1978, 4 percent of the legal abortions reported to the department were performed in doctors' offices.

The figures also showed that 90 percent of the abortions performed in 1978 were done on state residents. The age breakdown was: under 18-years-old, 30.7 percent; 20 to 24-years-old, 62.3 percent; and over 24-years-old, 6.5 percent.

Police Continue Cyanide Search

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - Police today continued their search for a stolen 9-inch white cylinder containing a deadly cyanide powder similar to the substance used to snuff out life in the gas chamber.

Drivers Wednesday searched the Quinnipiac River seeking the container of the highly toxic calcium cyanide powder and although no trace of it was found, police were hoping it was in the river and not in a child's hands.

"The chances of it harming anybody would be almost nil if it was thrown in the river," New Haven Police Lt. James Gill said, adding, however, that "if a kid found this and ingested or inhaled the contents in an enclosed area, it could be fatal."

Police described the missing container as a 9-inch tall, 10-inch diameter white cylinder with green lettering reading "Cyno Gas Type A Dust." The container was also marked with a red skull and crossbones, police said.

Gill urged anyone who saw the container to call New Haven police, but reminded them not to touch it under any circumstances.

The missing cylinder had been in a pest control company truck which was stolen in Middletown on Monday. The truck was recovered Tuesday in New Haven, but without the container.

The truck, stripped of its doors and engine parts, was found in an area near the Quinnipiac River. In addition to the search by divers Wednesday, police also combed the river's banks for the container.

Gill said several youths had been seen inside the stolen truck before police arrived on the scene and police were hoping the youths had thrown the canister into the river.

Police declined to identify the firm which owned the truck and the powder.

Age Is No Barrier

Senior Citizens Join Class at High School

By LANEY ZUBOFF

Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Frances Cosma and Cecilia Ellis probably never expected to find themselves back in high school but age is no barrier at Manchester High School since the art department now fills vacancies with senior citizens.

Walking by Room 200 at 10:30 a.m. a passer-by can spot the two new "students" who blend right in with 15 other, gazing downward intently, deciding where the next dab of watercolor works best.

Mr. Cosma and Mrs. Ellis are two out of five seniors who take daytime art courses at the high school. The courses open to them are watercolor, enameling, drawing and metal smithing. Most take more than one course.

Why do they do it? "At our age we're not crazy about getting out of class at night," said Mrs. Ellis, who never took art when she was in high school. "We traveled too much," said Mrs. Ellis whose father came from Scotland.

Mr. Cosma, originally from Hartford, graduated from Hartford High

Waterbury (UPI) - Superior Court Judge Walter M. Pickett Jr. has denied a defense request that the jury in Connecticut's largest mass murder trial get an edited version of the trial transcript when it decides the case.

Defense Attorney John R. Williams asked that testimony in Lorne Acquin's trial the court has ordered jurors to disregard the edited transcript.

He requested Wednesday the edited version be given to the jury for its deliberations.

Williams said the case was complex and the jurors should not be required to rely on memory to decide whether Acquin is guilty of killing his foster brother's wife and eight children on July 22, 1977 in Prospect.

DOT Head, State Senator Split on I-86 Expansion

MANCHESTER - The State Transportation Commissioner and a Republican state senator from Canton find themselves on opposite sides of the road from Manchester to Hartford.

Commissioner Arthur B. Powers favors a lane along Interstate 86 which is exclusively for buses and car pools.

But Sen. Russell L. Post Jr., thinks rail service between the two communities is more efficient and urged Gov. Ella Grasso to halt the expansion of I-86 "and the monumental waste of energy tax dollars which will accompany it."

He said the rail service would be a more efficient mode of public transportation. He also said the federal government could support only one of the two projects.

However, Powers said the expanded I-86 will be more efficient because a lane will be reserved for mass transit vehicles or car pools when the work is completed.

Powers released an efficiently study earlier this week which said more persons would use a bus traveling the proposed lane than would ride the train. He said Hartford's Union Station would be in walking distance of only 15 percent of the city's employers while the bus could travel to 60 percent of the firms.

"Though it is true," Powers said, "that if equal numbers of people were to be transported by both rail and bus, rail would be more energy efficient. However, the high occupancy vehicle lane is expected to remove far more autos from the highway, resulting in the largest overall single occupant auto usage reduction."

Post revealed his thoughts earlier in a letter to Gov. Ella Grasso. He said the Department of Transportation was hurrying to finish the first phase of the project from Vernon Circle to Manchester's Slater Street.

Area Police Report

Vernon Charles R. Calver, 35, of Williamatic, was charged Wednesday with fourth-degree larceny on complaint of the Caldor Store at Vernon Circle.

He allegedly tried to receive a refund on items reportedly shoplifted from the store. He was released on a $50 nonreturn bond for appearance in court in Rockville on Oct. 2.

Alfred E. Gardner, 23, of 28 N. Park St., Rockville, was charged Wednesday night with possession of alcoholic beverage in a town park in violation of a town ordinance.

He is scheduled to appear in court on Oct. 5.

Also arrested in connection with the same incident was Glen L. Bickford, 18, of 523 Taylor St., Vernon. His court date is also Oct. 5.

Kevin Carney, 25, of Interstate Motel, Vernon, was charged Wednesday night with disorderly conduct in connection with the investigation of a disturbance at the motel.

He was released on a $250 nonreturn bond for court on Oct. 2.

EB Warns Workers

GROTON (UPI) - Negotiators for the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics have warned a 2,000-member draftsmen's union that the firm will go to court to seek damages if the union calls a strike next week.

The shipyard negotiators told the Marine Draftsmen Association that a strike would be illegal because the union has not "properly complied with the contractual requirements to terminate the current pact," an EB spokesman said Wednesday.

But union leader E. Roy Colville said the draftsmen were not intimidated by EB's threat.

The MDA raised the possibility of a strike Monday. Negotiations between the union and EB overseen by a federal mediator were to resume today.

MANCHESTER - U.S. Congressman "Toby" Moffett, representative from Connecticut's Sixth Congressional District, will speak at Manchester Community College Oct. 3, on recent developments in energy and the effects on Connecticut.

Moffett will appear at 1:30 p.m. outdoors in the central mall on the Main Campus off Bidwell Street. The program is sponsored by the Manchester Community College Student Program Board and the public is invited to participate. A donation to the Manchester and Hartford Emergency Fuel Banks is suggested.

The MCC appearance is one of three "Energy Updates" to be presented on college campuses by Moffett that day. He will also appear at the University of Hartford in the morning and at the University of Connecticut in Storrs in the evening.

Moffett is chairman of the House Government Operations Subcommittee on the Environment, Energy and Natural Resources.

He also serves on the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, where he is assigned to the influential Energy and Power Subcommittee, as well as the Sub-committee on Oversight and Investigations.

Manchester Below Average in Per-Capita Spending

MANCHESTER - The community spends about $100 less per capita than the average Connecticut town to care for its citizens.

Manchester spent $649 per capita during fiscal 1978-79 to provide townfolk with schools, public works, police protection and general government functions. The largest single source of income for these expenditures was current taxes.

This information was released in an effort to help municipal officials review current 1979-80 budget operations. The Connecticut Public Expenditure Council which produced the report, felt the information would also be an aid when town officials review the requests of municipal departments and agencies for the upcoming 1980-81 budget.

Of the towns in the Manchester area, which include East Hartford, Glastonbury, Vernon, and South Windsor, Manchester spends the least. However, only Vernon collects lower taxes per capita than Manchester collects.

Manchester's per capita current tax collection for 1978-79 fiscal year was $375.11. Vernon collected $369 in current taxes.

It appears that the way Vernon is able to collect lower taxes than Manchester, and still spend more dollars in services, is through collecting much higher service charges. Manchester gains less than 1 percent of the town budget through service charges; Vernon, on the other hand, earns 7.8 percent of town income through service charges.

The largest single expenditure in Manchester was for schools, with $319 per capita spent. A statement in the report showed Manchester spent a larger percentage of funds on general government than any of the other above mentioned towns. Of the total expenditures, 7.7 percent was spent on general government.

The government of Manchester received a larger proportion of its funds from revenue sharing than any of the other towns in the five town area. Manchester received 3.9 percent of its income from revenue sharing. Copies of the report are available upon request to the CPEC, located at 21 Lewis St., Hartford, CT 06103.

Confab To Hear Weiss On What Public Wants

MANCHESTER - Town Manager Robert Weiss will speak at a manager's convention next week concerning the public's expectations of their government officials.

Weiss said some of the topics he expects to address in his speech to the American Society for Public Administration are right to know laws, the effects of Proposition 13, and sunset legislation.

The society will be meeting in Portland, Maine, and Weiss will be addressing the group Thursday. The panel on which he will participate will discuss the changes that have taken place in local government and what predictions can be made about the next 10 years concerning the role of the local public servant.

He said right to know laws have provided concerned citizens with greater accessibility to their local government. The right to know laws have also spawned greater care among officials concerning their own ethical standards.

"In the Town of Manchester, this has led to the formation of the Ethics Commission," said Weiss.

He said sunset legislation will have a great impact during the next 10 years. Sunset legislation involves a review of agencies and activities to be sure the function being performed is no longer useful, the review mandates the end of an agency's existence.

Weiss also intends to speak about the effect Watergate has had on civil servants. "Watergate created a distrust of public officials. It showed the importance of a free press. It opened up the government and made clear the importance of an involved citizenry. In this sense, Watergate was good for our country, the manager said.

Weiss said California's Proposition 13 has had a spinoff effect in Connecticut. He said the public is concerned with the cost of government at federal state and local levels.

"The problem is that while the public wants to spend fewer tax dollars, I do not see any lessening of the public's appetite for services. Social services are hurting because of this attitude. This raises the challenge to local officials to do more with less funding," Weiss said.

Weiss also foresees a reduction in federal aid programs. "The federal government is heavily impeded by inflation. Politics at the federal level make it difficult for elected officials to get brownie points for developing programs involving revenue sharing. Federal officials get more favorable reactions by getting things done in the standard political 'log-rolling' method," said Weiss.

Other topics might be discussed, Weiss said, because the title of his panel discussion is "Responsibility and Liabilities in the '80s - What Does the Future Hold?"

Town GOP Told To Pick Winners

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA Herald Reporter MANCHESTER - Manchester Republicans were advised Wednesday night to select candidates on the basis of their ability to garner votes instead of on the basis of philosophy.

The advice came from Ralph E. Van Norstrand, House minority leader. He spoke at the opening of GOP campaign headquarters at 775 Main St. A standing-room-only crowd attended.

"Too often within the party, members get too hung up on philosophy. I am proaching a little tolerance. If a candidate is extreme on one side or another, the person can't be elected. Do not worry about liberal philosophy, when the candidate gets there (elected) they're Republican," said Van Norstrand speaking extemporaneously.

Van Norstrand said an amendment should be added to consider a finite referendum on the HUD issue with the original plan to make the HUD issue a referendum. This was voted down as the consensus was the original plan to make the HUD issue a referendum.

Republican Town Chairman Richard Weinstein and Vice Chairman Elsie Swenson were named to the steering committee of the 1979 campaign. Also Ted LaBonne, finance chairman; Scott Clendannel, issues chairman; Robert Aikman, campaign steering committee chairman were named and spoke to their concerns.

Red Sox to Go with Zimmer Again

BOSTON (UPI) - Boston Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan says there will be no change in his club next year - but Manager Don Zimmer will be back to lead the team in 1980.

Sullivan ended weeks of speculation Tuesday night by announcing in a roundabout fashion, that Zimmer will return. The move came after a shakeup in the Red Sox coaching staff was announced jointly by Zimmer and Sullivan.

"I think Don is somewhat relieved even though he had said what the organization felt," Sullivan said. "He's not assembling the coaching staff for someone else, never seriously considered firing him."

Zimmer's status was solidified when it was announced that first base coach Johnny Pesky will move to the dugout next season as an assistant. Pitching coach Al Jackson was fired and replaced by ex-Dodger Johnny Podres.

Pesky's spot will be taken by Tommy Harper while Eddie Vezina remains at third base and Walt Hrinak returns to the bullpen. "Every time I talked with Billy, it was all positive," Zimmer said. "Things could have gone the other way, but there was never anything negative. It could've been me; it could've been the whole group of us. As it was, I decided to make this change."

Zimmer said, referring to the change in the pitching coach. "I think change comes after an adverse year. Like the one we had the past two months. It demands it. Don and I have been talking the last two weeks and it was mutually agreed we had to do something with the pitching."

Sullivan said the Red Sox collapse in the second half of the season forces him to find some pitching help. "When you win 99 games and get into a playoff, like we did last year, you don't go and change a lot, you next year," Sullivan said.

"I think I had as good a year this year as last year," Rice said. "I'm not that far behind. I don't feel I'm established at any level. Anything can happen."

Rice's single drove in a run in the Red Sox four-run first Tuesday as Lynn led off with a home run. Fenway Park was a sea of blue as the four-armed starter relief stint by sore-armed Jerry Garvin, who spent most of the year on the disabled list.

"He's still trying to build himself back up," Hartfield said. "His whole future is still on hold. Garvin allowed just one hit and fanned two in his appearance. He was enthused about his performance."

"This was a real confidence booster," the southpaw said. "I wanted to see if I could compete before the season ended. With an (elbow) injury like this, you don't know if you can come back. This helped prove to myself I can make it."

Rice in Select Group

BOSTON (UPI) - Jim Rice likes to let his bat do his talking but Boston Manager Don Zimmer couldn't restrain himself when asked about the 1978 American League Most Valuable Player amassing 200 hits for the third straight year.

"He has played for the last two months with two, not one, but two big fingers. But you would never know it because he never complains. He just keeps playing and says 'I can sweat all winter.' He's been hurt since the All-Star break, but he's never going to bellyache about it. He's not that type," Zimmer said.

Rice's first-inning single gave him 200, and he joined Steve Garvey and Pete Rose as the only two active players to accomplish the feat in three straight seasons. He is the 17th in history, but the first American League to do so since his hitting guru, Boston first-base coach Johnny Pesky, achieved the feat ending in 1947.

"I think I had as good a year this year as last year," Rice said. "I'm not that far behind. I don't feel I'm established at any level. Anything can happen."

Town Educators Move To Discourage Smoking

MANCHESTER - In an advisory letter to superintendents of schools, Education Commissioner Mark R. Sheehy has urged school districts to discontinue those practices which sanction or support smoking among students.

Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools in Manchester, said this morning the Manchester district is moving in that direction with his prohibition of student smoking inside the school buildings. But he said the Board of Education is against a total prohibition at this time because of the enforcement problems.

The administration received the advisory letter earlier this week, Kennedy said, and will be distributed to the nine Board of Education members. "We, of course, have had an active program in attempting to curb smoking among students and staff," said Kennedy. "That was the subject of a report in June. We adopted a policy which has the ultimate goal of elimination of smoking."

Man Held on 17 Counts

MANCHESTER - A 19-year-old man was held on 17 criminal charges today in the Manchester Police Department, said Roger Ericson, of no certain address, was arrested at 4:05 p.m. Wednesday at an Olcott Street rooming house by five detectives. Cleveland said the arrest was the "culmination of a two-month investigation" by the department.

Ericson is charged with six counts of first degree failure to appear, five counts of second degree burglary, one count of second degree criminal attempt, one count of second degree larceny and one count of first degree larceny.

Cleveland said Ericson was held overnight in Hartford on a $50,000 bond. He said state police and departments from Vernon, East Hampton and Windsor have warrants for his arrest as well.

Ericson is alleged to have stolen motorcycles and to have taken cash and appliances during a series of housebreaks. Most of the items have been recovered.

Bruce Kison Unbeatable in September

NEW YORK (UPI) - Bruce Kison, whose lifetime major league record in seven seasons is only 80-63 and often has difficulty getting batters out from April through August, seems like a reincarnation of Walter Johnson in the heat of the pennant race.

Kison notched another clutch victory for the Pirates Wednesday night when he stopped Montreal, 10-1, on seven hits to boost Pittsburgh's lead in the National League East to 1 1/2 games over the Astros.

Kison's 22nd victory in 28 September decisions during his nine-year career with the Pirates - a fact for which there is no logical explanation.

"If I knew why, I'd apply it in April, May, June and August," said Kison. "I don't have an answer. I enjoy big games. It's fun. It's what baseball is all about."

Kison, who also has never lost a post-season game in four lifetime decisions, struck out four and walked three in posting his third complete game and raising his record to 127-73. He struck out nine in the September opener when he pitched for the Pirates.

Ron Guidry After Two Pitching Marks

NEW YORK (UPI) - A 20-victory season seemingly out of reach, Ron Guidry is still gunning for two important pitching marks as the New York Yankees wrap up their disappointing season.

His performance Wednesday helped Guidry near those goals as he struck out 11 and scattered seven hits in winning his 12th game in his last 13 decisions, a 6-3 Yankees victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The Louisiana left-hander, 18-8, now needs only three strikeouts to reach the 20-K plateau and push his ERA to 2.82 to maintain his American League ERA leadership. It was the seventh time this season and to highlight a seven-run third inning that carried the Phillies to victory. Mets K. Cubs 3. Richie Helmer drove in four runs with a two-run homer in the first and a two-run double to key a four-run fifth inning to spark the Mets over the Cubs.

Dodgers 8, Giants 1. Davey Lopes, Bill Russell and Pedro Guerrero each drove in two runs to lead the Dodgers past the Giants.

Tim McCarver cracked his first homer of the year - a three-run blast to highlight a seven-run third inning that carried the Phillies to victory.

Big E Crowd Not Record

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. - Falling short of expectations and public relations topping last year's million mark by $9,797, The Big E closed its gates with one of the most successful years in its 58-year history.

Nine days of sunshine and three days of rain produced a total of 967,366 fairgoers. "It was undoubtedly the smoothest operation in recent years, due to a superb staff, the cooperation of all of the exhibitors and concessionaires and local and state officials all working together to produce a tremendously successful show," said George Jones, general manager of the exposition.

A slightly different view came from Betsy Sheehan Conklin's Magic Midway Disco Lessons Scheduled. MANCHESTER - Disco dancing for beginners will be taught in a five-week session at the Manchester Recreation Department's teen center on Garden Grove Road. The class will meet from 8 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays beginning Oct. 9.

Business

Rawlins Honored

EAST HARTFORD - The American Medical Association has presented Seldrick J. Rawlins, D.D.S., of Manchester, with an award honoring him for outstanding service to the field of criminal justice medicine. Dr. Rawlins, who has an office at 182 Burnside Ave., East Hartford, served during the past four years as a member of the AMA Advisory Committee to Improve Medical Care and Health Services in Connecticut Institutions.

Business Forums

MANCHESTER - The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce announced the introduction of an attempt to get local business people together on the first Friday of each month. The program is entitled the First Friday Forum and the inaugural session will be held Oct. 5 from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. at the Holiday House, 29 Cottage St.

Takeover Approved

HARTFORD (UPI) - Shareholders of Connecticut BancFederation Inc. have approved a proposed takeover of the holding company by the New Haven-based First Bancorp Inc. The Hartford-based BancFederation owns three banks in Connecticut - Guaranty Bank & Trust Co., New Britain Bank and Trust Co. and Terryville Trust Co. The company's shareholders approved the takeover Tuesday. First Bancorp sought the action so it could expand its operations into Hartford banking market.

Opens Law Office

COVENTRY - Lawrence Bates Jr., formerly of Manchester, has opened a law office in his home at 176 Wall St. Bates was graduated from Manchester High School in 1961 and from Brandeis University in 1970 with a bachelor's degree in political science. He is also a graduate of the University of Connecticut School of Law. Bates is a member of the state and county bar associations and of the Connecticut Trial Lawyers' Association.

Heads S&L League

HARTFORD - Harvey L. Koizim, president of County Federal Savings and Loan Association of Westport, has been elected president of the Savings and Loan League of Connecticut. The league is a $1.6 billion trade organization made up of 38 member savings and loan associations statewide. Koizim, named to the top position during the league's annual convention Sept. 24, emphasized the important role savings and loan associations will continue to play in both the state and national economy. "We are the financial institutions that serve the needs of families and individuals. It is us that people turn to for their mortgages, their savings. It is a personal business. A business that directly serves the people and we must never lose sight of this. Savings and loans finance more homes than all other banking institutions combined. Keeping this in mind, we must continue to explore new and better mortgage instruments. We must look for ways to offset the high cost of buying a home and to insure the continuing availability of home mortgage funds. We must continue our efforts in Washington provide a tax incentive for savers. We must work to emerge as a primary force behind the revitalization of our cities. And, above all, we must continue to provide the people with the personal banking services they rightfully expect from a dedicated savings and loan."

New Vice President

HARTFORD - Bernard Hickey of the Steak Clubs in Manchester was elected a vice president of the Associated Restaurants of Connecticut at the group's recent annual meeting in Hartford. Hickey, who also served as convention chairman, is president of AROC's Hartford and Central Connecticut Guild.

CofC Will Give Awards

VERNON - When the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce has its annual fall dinner Oct. 16, a special feature will be introduced - the presentation of the "Rocky Awards." The program chairman has accepted nominations from the chamber membership. Awards will be given in four categories: Education, community service, community development, and the Golden Triangle Award for outstanding service to the Tri-Town area.

Lappen Marks 87th Year

HARTFORD - Eighty-seven years and four generations later, the Lappens of Lappen's Fireside Center still cater to the needs of today's home-owners by offering old fashioned personal and expert service at their Hartford and Avon locations, as well as at their newest store in Bolton Notch. Of course, much has changed since Israel Lappen gained a reputation in Hartford for selling the best pot belly stoves and fireplace furnishings of the day. This practice was continued by his son Harry who moved the Hartford store from a site adjacent to G. Fox & Co. to its present location on Main Street at the South Green. Today, as in 1892, third generation Seymour and fourth generation Stan are careful about the products they endorse.

Two Named Eagle Scouts

VERNON - Two Vernon youths, both members of Troop 11 Boy Scouts, sponsored by the Talcottville Congregational Church, were raised to the rank of Eagle Scout at ceremonies held at the church Wednesday night. Receiving the awards were Edward M. Thompson, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Thompson and Gary Denmark, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Syriac. Edward started in scouting in Vernon when he joined Cub Scout Pack 221 in 1970. He achieved the Arrow of Light and after graduating from the Cub Pack he remained as Den chief after joining Troop 11 in 1974. He is in the leadership corps and has been a patrol leader in Troop 11. He is active in track at Rockville High School and has been a member of the Junior National Rifle Association for two years. His hobbies are movie making, fishing, and flying with his brother Douglas. He has also worked on the Lake of Isles Scout Reservation staff for the past two summers as ecology and waterfront counselor. Gary, after being a member of Cub Scout Pack 221 for three years, joined Troop 11 in 1973. While a member of Troop 11 he has held the positions of den chief, assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, and junior assistant scoutmaster. He has earned the pro marksmanship award in rifle shooting and first class youthman in archery. He was elected to the Order of the Arrow, a national camping society, in 1978. A 50-mile award was presented to him following a canoe trip down Maine's Moose River. Gary is currently a senior at East Catholic High School where he has been a member of the football team and served two years on the Student Council. His part-time work at the Shady Glen Restaurant and Seara Automotive has financed a trip to Spain and Tangiers in 1978 and a tour of Italy this year where he got to shake the hand of Pope John Paul II. Upon graduating from high school Gary plans to attend a technical school to prepare for the electrical trades. During the ceremonies other scouts were presented with ranks, skill awards, and merit badges.

Group Opposes Rezoning

VERNON - A proposal to change zoning regulations to allow the establishing of group homes, primarily in the Rockville section of town, is being opposed by the Northwest Rockville Neighborhood Association. The group isn't opposing the establishment of group homes but does object to the zone change targeting just the Rockville area. A letter to that effect is being sent to the Planning Commission. The Capitol Region Education Council asked for the change to allow the establishment of group homes for young people who have behavioral problems and who need individual programs in a structured living and educational environment. The proposed changes would be in R-10 and 15 zones and in C-10 and 20 zones which are primarily in the Rockville area. Judy Sessions, facilities coordinator for the Capitol Region Educational Council, explained to members of the association that the proposed changes wouldn't allow ungrouped group homes or half-way houses because of the limited definition of a group home. In the Rockville section now are several group-type homes for adults. These include convalescent homes and a boarding house and care facility for a group of mentally retarded adults. The Town of Vernon wouldn't have any responsibility in supporting such a group home for young people. The towns from which the residents would come would pay the educational and other costs not paid for by families.

John Habernern Heads United Way Campaign

MANCHESTER - John Habernern Jr., of 92 West Vernon, will head this year's United Way drive in Manchester, the agency's president. Mike Lynch, announced Tuesday. Vice-chairman of this year's drive is Noel Belcourt, of 78 Better Circle, Vernon. The drive will be officially launched with a non Kick-Off Luncheon at the Manchester Association for Retarded Citizens, Wednesday, one of the local organizations benefiting from the United Way support. Habernern said. All committee chairpersons, volunteers and canvassers are invited to the kick-off, he said. This year's campaign goal is $96,000, Habernern said, but campaign goals to achieve the United Way challenge goal of $96,551. Last year's drive collected $88,081, Habernern said. "As in past years, all donations collected in Manchester will go toward helping town agencies," Habernern said. "These worthy agencies include: Child and Family Services, Lutz Junior Museum, MARC, Manchester Child Guidance Clinic, Manchester Public Health Nursing and River East Homekeeper Service. Habernern said the United Way drive will be divided among various professional groups, businesses and associations. "Cooperation from our supporters has always been outstanding," Habernern said, "and I'm sure that with the enthusiasm I've seen already, we'll easily meet our challenge goal." A Manchester native, Habernern graduated from Manchester High School with a bachelor's degree in accounting. He is vice president of administration for the Klock Division of Gulf & Western Industries. He is active in the Manchester Rotary Club and is a past member of the Lutz Junior Museum Board of Trustees. He has also served the museum as vice president of finance and vice president of operations. He and his wife, Linda, have two children.

Program Above Average

VERNON - The Town of Vernon school system has a better than average Title I program, Diana Whitelaw, consultant for the state, told school officials. She noted that only certified teachers are hired and that local officials are working very hard to improve attendance at parent advisory meetings. "Active coordination between Title I reading and mathematics and the basic school program is an important factor in the success of the program," she said. The Title I program is supplementary and cannot replace local programs in reading and mathematics. Dr. Albert Kerkin, assistant superintendent of schools, said. Ms. Whitelaw noted that in Vernon this supplemental nature has been properly emphasized and, in order to ensure success of the program, only certified teachers have been employed. This past school year a new procedure was developed. A modified Planning and Placement Team (a team of staff members and administrators) screened students for eligibility to ensure the proper total coordination of a student's program. A Parent Advisory Council exists and all parents are urged to become involved in it to learn more about the Title I programs. Any parent wanting more information should contact Ronald Kozuch, Title I director for the school system, at 875-8471.

Cross Burning Charged

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) - A federal prosecutor says he decided to seek federal charges against a young man accused of burning a cross on a Ridgefield family's front lawn as a deterrent and to protect "important" civil rights. A federal grand jury Wednesday returned the indictment charging

Airline May End Flights

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - A commuter airline says it will be forced to cancel all daily flights between New Haven and Philadelphia next month because of reduced aviation fuel allocations. Ransome Airlines, operator of four daily round-trip flights between Tweed-New Haven Airport and Philadelphia International Airport, said Mobil Oil Corp. had reduced its allocation for the line. J. Dawson Ransome, the airline's president, said Wednesday the commuter line had planned to add a fifth flight early next month. But he said, instead, Ransome will abandon all of its New Haven flights on Oct. 3. He said he will notify Allegheny Airlines to cease accepting reservations for the flights after that date. Allegheny Airlines provides reservations and ticketing services; Ransome owns and operates the airplanes which display both marquee. Ransome began operating the Philadelphia flights in April, when Allegheny Airlines abandoned service to New Haven. Mobil, sole supplier of aviation fuel to New Haven, had granted Ransome a temporary allocation of 10,000 gallons a month in addition to the permanent monthly allocation of 6,000 gallons Allegheny had been receiving. But Ransome said "negotiations to extend the temporary allocation or to make it permanent ended unsuccessfully last week. Mobil wants to sell the 10,000 gallons we have been using elsewhere." He said the airline found it too costly to either buy from other sources or to truck the fuel in from remote depots and build new storage facilities at the airport. "We cannot afford either choice if the flights reasonable," he said. "People often believe that if their palms itched they would receive money."

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren
She Won't Stand For Seat-Savers

DEAR ABBY: The practice of "saving seats" needs more guidelines much like the guidelines for tipping. I recently attended a graduation exercise where two people arrived early and "saved" 20 seats in the front row for the rest of the family who arrived one minute before the activities started!

DEAR SEATS: Your suggestion makes a lot of sense. But I dread has to start somewhere. I'm willing. How about you? Reader!

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a very affectionate man. I'm not complaining. I'm lucky, but I think there's a time and place for everything. My problem is that Henry will pinch me on the behind, and make a grab for me in front of the kids, and it makes me very uncomfortable.

DEAR ABBY: You told AMERICA FIRST, who objected to our taking in the boat people: "Unless you are a direct descendant of the American Indian, you wouldn't be here if your forebears hadn't sought refuge from another country."

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine who lives in Hollywood says there is a colleague called "Ginger" that is going over big out there, and - are you ready for this - it smells like "swamp ballplayers!"

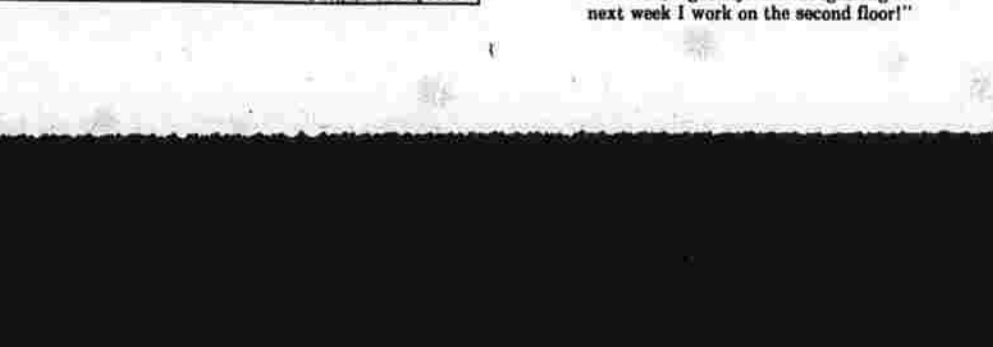

DEAR ABBY: I did, and there is!

Who asked the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped 20-cent, self-addressed envelope, please.

AGUIRRE (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This should be a very rewarding day, yet there's a strong possibility that you might do something uncharacteristic today, or tomorrow, or the day after tomorrow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be wise today to avoid making business with friends. Personal relationships may be strained today, or tomorrow, or the day after tomorrow.

LEONARD (May 21-June 20) Keep your optimism within realistic bounds today, or you may find yourself into believing something better than reality.

State Sees Compromise With Vernon on Water

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — State officials feel something can be worked out with the Town of Vernon so an additional well can be dug for the Vernon Water Co. The officials met Wednesday with Mayor Frank McCoy and other town officials.

The meeting was called by the mayor to discuss problems with water from wells of the private Campbell Water Co. and wells in the Atwood Trailer Park on Route 30.

Opening the meeting, McCoy said that though the problem with the wells is complex he feels that it could be solved quite simply.

"We are not here to access liability or blame but is generally felt that the state had some liability although its never been admitted by state officials."

The problem stems from the discovery several years ago that the trailer park wells and the well servicing the Campbell Water Co. were polluted with salt, making the water unfit to drink.

The town feels that the salt pollution was caused by a seepage of highway salt stored at the state garage and some other gasoline pollution, from a reportedly state-owned service station.

The state Department of Health has ordered the town to clean the water in the Campbell well and the town had considered hooking those customers into the town-owned Vernon Water Co.

The problem with that solution is that the Vernon Water Co. couldn't handle more customers unless another well is dug and that would be too expensive.

The state Department of Transportation has asked the town to allow it to tie into the Vernon company to service the garage it plans on Campbell Avenue. The state said it would install the line and would want to put in a holding tank to get pressure at peak hours.

Tuesday, McCoy asked state officials if they would be willing to pay part of the cost of installing a new well. They seemed to agree that that would be all right but made it known that they feel the town and the users should also pay a fair share.

The Department of Health has also asked the town to absorb the trailer park uses into the Vernon Water Co. and the mayor said he wrote to that department suggesting that the problem could be solved by a mutual effort to sink a new well and to tie-in the mobile homes. Campbell company customers and the new state garage. He said he told Douglas Lloyd, health commissioner, that the town would be willing to pay one-third of the cost of the well.

The mayor said he researched two public acts, designed to help towns in such cases, to see if the town would quality for funds. Richard Woodhull of the Department of Health Services said Tuesday he thinks the town can get funding for the planning stage of the project and that Steve Campbell, owner of the Campbell Water Co., could obtain a construction loan, but not actual funding.

If the town should take over the Campbell Water Co. then the planning funds could be used to improve that too, but Campbell isn't sure just what he wants to do. He said it didn't seem fair to have someone come in and take over his assets.

Leonard Szczesny, town engineer, said he estimates that the cost of installing the well would run about $40,000.

McCoy asked Edward Stankewicz of the rights-of-way division of DOT if he had a cost estimate for the line and holding tank.

Stankewicz said he didn't have one yet and added that the federal highway officials have to be consulted before any agreement is made.

McCoy said he would need permission of the Town Council before he goes ahead with any plans and he said he will recommend to the council that the town pay one-third of the cost and also ask the council to allow him to seek sources of funding.

He told Stankewicz that the town would expect from the state about the same amount the state would have paid if it carried out its proposal.

FFA Unit Cites at RHS

VERNON — The Rockville High School chapter of the Future Farmers of America has earned the governor's citation in the "Building Our American Communities Program." The chapter qualifies for a gold emblem at the National FFA convention in November.

The governor's citation was presented at a meeting Monday in Hartford where Joseph Belanger of Vernon, deputy energy commissioner, was the featured speaker.

Karen Post was the chairman of the Rockville project and Ronald Carle was the chapter advisor.

During the 1978-79 school year all of the 150 members of the local chapter were involved in the total project. A total of seven major projects were undertaken by the chapter. In November there was a food drive with each member donating items of food to prepare Thanksgiving baskets for 10 needy families in nine towns in the Vernon area which are served by the Regional Vocational Agriculture Center at Rockville High.

Each basket contained $75 to $100-worth of food with a turkey included.

In December the chapter conducted a toy drive and collected 1,000 toys which were given to the fire departments in the towns for distribution at Christmas time.

In January another food drive was conducted, this time to donate to the Pantry Shelf food bank. And in April the chapter participated in the Spring Festival at the high school and put on 17 demonstrations and exhibits showing how agriculture is so much a part of everyone's lives.

In May the chapter worked with the Town of Vernon and Donald Berger, recreation director, in cleaning, plowing, harrowing, and preparing four acres of community gardens.

In June, the Building Our American Communities Committee has a speaker, at the monthly meeting, on recycling of tires and from that a tire recycling project is being planned for this coming year.

Also attending the citation dinner this week was Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, Dr. Robert Linstone, assistant superintendent, and Brian McCartney, principal of the high school.

Vernon Burglaries

VERNON — The Vernon Police Department investigated four burglary reports during the week of Sept. 14-20 with the estimated value of goods taken, $700.

Breaks were reported into private homes on Park West Drive and Village Street and an apartment on Regan Road plus a business on Union Street.

Bolton School Dance

BOLTON — Bolton High School Class of 1982 will have a dance Friday from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. at the high school. The dance will feature the Southbound Band which plays the music of Boston, Kiss, Led Zepplin and others. Refreshments will be offered for sale. Proceeds will benefit the class and will be used for class expenses.

Insulation reaps dividends in warm and cool climates

All American homeowners—whether they live in Maine or Texas—know what a big chunk fuel bills grab from their household budgets.

Costs, however, are only part of the problem. Many of our nation's leading energy experts say residential fuel supplies are sharply waning and could be dangerously depleted by 1985.

Insulate and save

By insulating your home, you can help ease the nation's energy shortage and save on your fuel bills. Insulation can help lower both heating and cooling costs, so it's as good an investment in warmer climates as it is in the colder regions of the country.

But how much insulation do you need?

Check your costs

Johns-Manville, a leading manufacturer of thermal insulations, points out that insulation requirements vary widely throughout the United States.

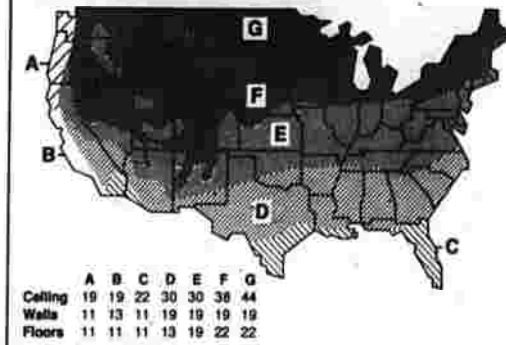

Heating and cooling costs, particularly, have an effect on the amount of insulation you'll need to keep fuel bills in check. Researching these costs and figuring in other important factors, J-M has developed insulation recommendations for the entire country (see map).

No matter where you live, says J-M, most of your home's heat is lost through the attic. Insulating an attic with fiber glass batts or blankets is an easy job for most homeowners.

Marked for installation

These products come in widths to fit standard spaces between attic joists, and the insulation's "R" value is stamped right on the package. (The higher the insulation's "R" value, the greater its resistance to heat flow, and the greater the insulation's power.) Next, insulate the walls. Proper insulation can reduce heat transfer through the walls.

JOHNS-MANVILLE'S REVISED R VALUE HOME INSULATION RECOMMENDATIONS

THIS MAP IS DESIGNED to help you find out how much insulation you will need to control heating and cooling costs. Locate the region in which you live to determine the "R" values Johns-Manville recommends for ceiling, wall and floor insulations.

In existing homes with finished walls, hire a professional contractor to insulate wall cavities.

A third major source of heat loss is floors over unheated areas such as crawl spaces, garages and basements. In many cases, this too can be a do-it-yourself project.

Fuel-saving tips

When that's done, J-M offers these fuel-saving tips:

- Caulk the openings around door and window frames and siding, along the bottom edge of the siding where it laps the foundation wall, around the water faucet plates and other penetrations of the outside walls, etc.
- Weatherstrip windows and doors to stop drafts and heat leaks.
- Install storm windows and doors.
- Insulate duct pipes which run exposed through attic, garage or other spaces not heated or cooled.
- Have heating and cooling equipment serviced once a year.
- Set back thermostats at bedtime and when the house is unoccupied. New clock thermostats on the market do the job automatically.

• Shut off unused rooms and close heating vents to those areas.

• When it's cold outside, draw the drapes over sliding glass doors and picture windows. If windows face the sun, leave them uncovered until the sun goes down.

• Shade the home with trees which lose their leaves in the winter to let the sun back in.

• Buy an air conditioning unit with a high Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER). When it's in use, keep all windows and doors closed.

• Concentrate lighting on working and reading areas. Buy fluorescent bulbs instead of incandescent ones; they're two to three times as efficient and they last longer.

THREE-D COMES TO ASPHALT SHINGLES with these wood-look Independence shingles from CertainTeed. Random, double layers and woodtone colors convey the warmth and charm of less durable wood shakes, while the extra heavy construction assures a long and healthy life for the roof. This shingle carries a 25-year limited warranty.

Quick tips on how to save your energy dollars

- One dollar spent on the furnace can save $50 a year.
- Educated apartment dwellers can force landlords to eliminate excessive utility costs hidden in the rent.

- A hot water drip from the bathroom faucet can fill a cup in 10 minutes and waste 3,260 gallons of water per year.

- To heat that water, it took 27 gallons of oil, 1,017 kilowatt hours of electricity or 3,484 cubic feet of natural gas.

- All down the drain, and you paid for it and wasted it.

- An air conditioner placed in a sunny window decreases its efficiency, as do dirty filters which should be checked once a month.

- How often have you checked your utility bill against your meter? Computers do make mistakes.

- Ceramic cookware allows you to reduce oven settings by plugs on all appliances that will use energy in your absence, such as TVs.

The idea of the "instant-on" in televisions is a misnomer. There is no instant on; the television is always on, wasting energy and money.

- Most tires are under-inflated by four to six pounds. Increasing the pressure to the maximum listed on the side of tire will save you up to $100 per year.

- All the cracks in an average house, taken together, would equal a hole in the wall the size of a basketball.

- Proper caulking and insulation can save you $200 per year in heating costs and more than $50 per year in air conditioning costs.

- A 75¢ device called a shower flow resistor can reduce 25% because it retains heat especially well.

- A bath uses three times as much water as a shower.

- When leaving the house for an extended period, pull the

Insulate attic and keep cool

Word association tells a lot about the way we think. Ask a homeowner about "insulation," for example, and nine times out of ten the reply is "winter."

But, according to experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute, this only goes to show the widespread misunderstanding of the total value of insulation.

"The purpose of insulating materials is to restrict the flow of heat," explains Joseph Kimpfen, of the CertainTeed Insulation Group. "Naturally, insulation helps to keep the home warm in the winter by cutting down on heat loss. But it is also effective in keeping the hot summer air out of air-conditioned homes."

Traditionally, most insulation is sold in early autumn as homeowners brace themselves for Old Man Winter. But since so many persons purchase at the same time, shortages sometimes develop.

By buying early and installing insulation during the more comfortable weather, homeowners could avoid the rush and at the same time benefit from lower electricity bills for air-conditioning.

CertainTeed's Kimpfen cites other reasons to purchase early. "Inflation affects insulation products just as it does every other product. If production costs increase, the homeowner might well pay more for the same product. Furthermore, the early buyer might even find an occasional insulation sale."

Yet even though added insulation can lower fuel and electricity bills all year long, the homeowner shouldn't rush out to buy without understanding some basic facts about insulating. Kimpfen offers this advice:

"The first thing to know is that the greatest source of savings for most homeowners comes with insulating the attic. If, in measuring the thickness of insulation with a ruler you find less than six inches, you should consider adding to it. In most areas of the country, twelve inches of fiber glass insulation is desirable and provides an excellent return on your investment."

For more information on insulating your home, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Special effects on your roof

What do you think of when you hear the term special effects? Movies? Television? Why not your home?

Most people think of films like Star Wars and King Kong, or a TV series like Battlestar Galactica, or even magicians like Houdini.

But your home can also be a star of special effects without the need of mirrors or a Hollywood film crew.

You just have to learn the tricks of the trade—the roofing trade that is.

If, for example, you have a small house on a very large lot, which looks out of place, it can appear much larger with a light colored roof, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute.

Conversely, a large home on a small lot can be scaled down with a dark colored roof.

Coloring your roof is based on the same principle as light colored clothing for thin people, and dark colored apparel for those who are overweight.

In addition to color, you can give your roof almost any look you want, and it won't take the parting of the Red Sea to complete the job.

If you want to break up the flat appearance of your roof, textured shingles, such as CertainTeed's Glasstex, will do the job by casting a pattern of small shadows. The deep, simulated wood graining of this shingle will add depth, distinction and visual interest to your roof, for a very special effect.

In addition, they carry a 20 to 25 year limited warranty, which makes the shingles economical when comparing the value over the life of your roof, and the money saved is a special effect we can all use.

For more free information on roofing products, write the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

WISE ADVICE

A well-equipped shop may have a metal-working vise mounted at the left side of the workbench and a woodworking vise at the right.

But the most commonly used is the utility vise, a lighter duty version of the machinist's vise. It usually has pipe jaws located below the flat jaw facings and comes in jaw widths from three to five inches.

A consumer guide to roofing

If you found a fiddler on your roof, would you be embarrassed to have him fiddle around up there because of the roof's poor condition?

And when it starts to rain, are you afraid to look at your ceiling, fearing that it will resemble a wet sponge?

If the answer to either of these questions is yes—don't despair. It's easy to keep the roof over your head in "top" shape as long as you know what to look for and when, according to roofing experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute.

In addition, spotting problems with your roof and knowing what to do about them can save a great deal of time and money.

Soggy viewing

For example, did you know that TV antennas can be a major cause for leaks?—so that while you're watching Gene Kelly singing in the rain—you may be in it as well.

Unless properly anchored to the roof, antennas can cause leaks at anchor points. If, for instance, the antenna is anchored directly to a vent, without guy wires, there will be quite a bit of vibration from the wind. And this vibration will loosen the caulking and cause leaks.

Free Booklet

On the whole, or rather, on the roof, it's a good idea to know the basics about the roof on your palace—to keep the rain out and the heat in—and the fast facts that you need are explained in a new free booklet from the CertainTeed Home Institute.

The booklet, entitled "A Consumer Guide to Roofing," discusses the basics in brief and understandable form, and can be obtained free of charge, by writing to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Whether you own your own home, or are thinking of buying one at some time in the future, you should be familiar with facts like:

- what to do about worn spots.
- how to replace loose or missing nails.
- what kind of shingles are available, and the advantages of each.
- when to inspect your roof.
- what to do if you decide to re-roof.
- and many other helpful hints.

Foil the fends

This way, when the "Roof Ghouls" try to get your roof—the sun beating down, the wind blowing furiously, the antenna shaking back and forth—you won't have to be afraid to look up to see what's happening to your ceiling.

And, when Santa arrives with all those reindeer, you'll be able to entertain them and the fiddler in style.

Can you put your house in the laundry?

What do you do when your siding gets dirty? Hire a professional to paint it? Paint it yourself? Why paint at all?

If you use the popular new siding product, solid vinyl siding, painting becomes a thing of the past, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute.

Because the color on solid vinyl siding is molded clear through the product, it never needs to be painted.

When it gets dirty, all you have to do is wash it with soap and water and an ordinary long-handled car washing brush.

In addition, solid vinyl siding resists dents, won't show scratches and is particularly durable—so much so that companies like the CertainTeed Corporation offer a 40-year pro-rated warranty on their product.

Yet, the virtual freedom from maintenance is not the best advantage of the material—its beauty is. Vinyl siding, offered in both 8" panels and in a double-4" style, gives your home a rich and elegant appearance that will be the envy of the neighborhood.

Solid vinyl siding is also available in a number of popular decorator colors, sure to please every taste—except the man who used to paint your house.

Winterize your home before Jack Frost does

Since Jack Frost will soon be giving his usual "icy" stare to many parts of the country, it's time to "winterize" your home before he does, to save valuable energy and money.

Here are 10 easy projects, recommended by the CertainTeed Home Institute, on how to fight the inflationary spiral by making sure that your home won't leak out energy-expensive heat:

- Check the heating system—Make sure your heater is in good working order, since you have to produce heat before you can save it.

- Check the windows and doors—Besides improper insulation, no other single factor can leak as much heat as poorly installed windows and doors. Check to make sure there are no chilly leaks, and if there are, weatherstrip, or caulk them immediately. Keep in mind that both caulking and weatherstripping fall under the new tax credit for energy saving items.

- Install storm windows—These can really help keep your home shut tight. If you can afford only a few, install them where your home faces into the wind.

- Use window shades properly—Take full advantage of nature's heating system. Open the shades during the day to let in as much warmth as possible; then, when the sun goes down, close the shades to retain the captured heat.

- Check the fireplace—When not in use, be sure to close the flue or damper. When the fireplace is in use, consider using a glass-fronted screen to prevent heat loss.

- Insulate the attic—Most heat loss occurs through the attic. If you have less than six inches of fiber glass insulation, you are underinsulated even in the South, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute; and, if you live in the North, you need as much as 12 inches of insulation. Remember that you can receive a 15% tax credit on all the insulation you buy, up to a maximum of $2,000.

- Look for heat seeps—

Check the attic closely to make sure that there are no bare or underinsulated spots, which can act as tunnels for escaping heat.

- Check "invisible" areas—If your attic is partially floored, lift up a board or two to see if the area is properly insulated.

- Inspect the walls—Here, too, substantial heat can be lost. Turn off your electricity at its source, remove the cover plates from several electrical outlets and carefully peek inside with a flashlight. If there is no insulation, contact a contractor to add some, as it's difficult to insert insulation yourself in the wall cavity.

- Check unheated areas—Cold can penetrate your living area from unheated places like the garage or basement ceiling. Fiber glass insulation batts or blankets can be secured on walls and ceilings with a wire mesh or chicken wire to keep the heat in.

- For more information on how to save your energy and money with proper home insulation, write for free material from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Save time, money and aggravation on home

Today's fastest growing home siding material, and with good reason, is solid vinyl siding. Not only is it handsome and durable, but it also saves time, aggravation and money for the homeowner, no small miracle during these times of skyrocketing inflation.

Unlike wood siding, which is prone to peel, scratch, blister and flake, new solid vinyl siding never needs to be painted. The color is molded clear through the material, so that once it's installed, there's no need for sanding, scraping and painting which consume all too much time and hard-earned dollars.

How much money can be saved? If you use a contractor, a two-coat exterior paint job for the average house will cost approximately $1,200 to $1,500; and contractors recommend repainting at least once every five years.

Over 40 years, which is the period that the CertainTeed Corporation warrants its solid vinyl siding, it could cost $12,000 to maintain a fresh look for your house—more for a larger home. Inflation will undoubtedly escalate these costs in the future, so the figure will become even more frightening.

Using aluminum siding will cut costs somewhat, because the metal doesn't need to be painted as much as wood. However, the color is painted only on the surface of the aluminum, so the paint will fade over a period of time and will give a washed-out look unless repainted, causing additional expense. And, using aluminum will not solve the problem of scratches showing up.

Solid vinyl siding, on the other hand, is a one-time permanent improvement. The solid vinyl will never need to be painted. It will also resist dents and won't show scratches, which can be a great help to families with children.

In addition, if the solid vinyl siding gets dirty from little or even big hands, you can simply wash it clean with the garden hose for that fresh look.

And the "decorator effects" that are possible with this revolutionary new product are also something special. Vinyl siding comes in both 8" panels for a classic clapboard appearance and in a double-4" style which is especially appropriate on colonial homes. Both panel types are available in woodgrained textures.

Solid vinyl siding is also available in a wide range of attractive colors. CertainTeed, for example, features such exotic shades as sage green, harvest gold, desert brown, sky blue, slate blue, pebble gray, autumn yellow, heritage cream and colonial white. The colors will continue to look bright and fresh year after year.

Solid vinyl siding will also maintain its high quality over many years. How many years? The CertainTeed Corporation feels so strongly about their product that they offer a 40-year pro-rated warranty against manufacturing defects on their vinyl siding. And, if you sell your house, the CertainTeed warranty is transferable to the new owner, a valuable selling point.

But most homeowners are more concerned about the siding benefits they'll realize today than they are about resale value. More and more of them are concluding that the savings of time, aggravation and money which come with solid vinyl siding are reason enough to install it now.

For free information on this modern, easy-care product for your home's exterior, write to the CertainTeed Corporation, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Closets and drawers take on a particularly nice odor when treated to sachets.

Hang brightly printed cotton bags stuffed with lavender or rose petals among your clothes and enjoy summer in winter.

A pomander ball, traditionally made from an orange studded with cloves and wrapped with ribbon, adds an "old English" accent.

Attic insulation: how much makes $ense?

You don't have to be a financial wizard to realize that energy is becoming more expensive every month. And, with OPEC promising continual oil price increases in the future, every bit of energy that can be saved can help the family bank account.

In order to save as much energy as possible, your home should be insulated to achieve the greatest thermal efficiency and the best return on your investments.

But, exactly how much insulation is enough? How much will provide maximum energy savings, and as a result, maximum money savings in lower fuel bills?

These are the questions most often asked by homeowners. And, to answer these inquiries, experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute have created the accompanying map and charts which can help you discover, at a quick glance, the exact amount of insulation recommended for your geographic area.

To determine the optimum insulation recommendations for homes in your section of the country, simply check the map to find the zone in which you are located.

Then, refer to the corresponding charts to determine the R-values (resistance to heat flow) recommended for ceilings, floors and sidewalls in your zone. Remember, when discussing insulation, the most important thing to consider is R-values and not inches.

Proper amounts of insulation can help save energy and money during the cold months and the air-conditioning season as well, because insulation retards the flow of heat out of your home in winter, and it will retard the flow of heat into your home in the hot months.

The accompanying figures represent the CertainTeed Home Institute's recommendations for achieving optimum thermal performance and reduced fuel usage in your home. They are based on an averaging of current and projected estimated fuel prices over a 15-year period.

Current minimum insulation standards, developed by both government and private sector agencies, provided the basis for the development of these optimum insulation recommendations.

For more information on how to save energy and money with proper insulation, write for the free booklet, "How, Where and Why to Insulate Your Attic," from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Magnetic Field

Each sunspot's enormously powerful magnetic field pours out streams of electrified particles that can cause radio signals to bounce crazily about the globe. During one peak, London television viewers were startled to hear a New York taxi dispatcher ordering a driver to proceed posthaste to Flatbush Avenue.

And that awareness is widespread throughout the world, from heads of state to heads of households—especially the latter.

Insulation changes and stays the same

The French have a famous phrase, "The more things change, the more they remain the same." Frenchmen must have had insulation in mind!

Insulation is an item that has always been important in saving energy, but the recent consciousness of our decreasing energy resources has placed an even greater value on it.

Whether you have been the head of a household for a while or are contemplating becoming one, saving energy plays a prime role in your household expenses.

Thus, when buying a home, whether it be new or old, protecting that investment is paramount, and insulation is one way of helping to safeguard your purchase.

Thanks to recent governmental standards, most new homes are being insulated to acceptable minimum levels, and future standards may require even higher levels of this energy-saving product. But older homes, for the most part, are under-insulated.

If the home you're thinking of buying, or are already living in, is older than 10 years, it is almost surely deficient in insulation by today's standards, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute.

The most important area to check for proper insulation is the attic. Since heat rises, valuable energy may be escaping through your roof, and insulation can help keep this heat in your home.

The minimum amount of insulation the attic should have is six inches, but that's only if you live in the warmer parts of the country. In the colder north central and northeast areas, requirements can be as high as 19 inches of fiber glass insulation.

But, the important fact about insulation, advises the CertainTeed Home Institute, is not inches, but R-values. The "R" indicates resistance to heat flow—the higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation.

R-11, R-19, R-22, R-30 and R-38 may sound like a rigged bingo game, but knowing what each means could save hundreds of dollars in annual utility bills.

The type of insulation you install is also important, to make sure you get your money's worth. If, for example, you use CertainTeed's fiber glass, you can be sure that the product will maintain its R-value over many years, and this non-combustible product will not rot or support vermin.

It's important, also, to keep in mind that insulation standards change over the years. In the Sun Belt, for instance, insulation had previously been considered unnecessary.

Today, however, insulation is considered important in order to keep the outside heat from leaking into your home and reducing the effectiveness of your air-conditioning.

In addition, as energy becomes more and more expensive, higher levels of insulation are called for. In the early '70s before the Arab Oil Embargo, insulation with an R-value of only R-19 was all that was recommended in most north central and northeast states.

Today's standards, however, with OPEC raising oil prices constantly, call for R-values as high as R-44 in the same areas. Unfortunately, in the case of energy economics, the French seem to be wrong. Escalating energy prices are one change that will never again remain the same.

And, since insulation needs will also change, consult your local energy officials for proper amounts in your area, or send for the free booklet, "How to Insulate for Maximum Economic Return," from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

ADVICE ON CHOOSING REPLACEMENT WINDOWS

Replacement windows which save energy and reduce maintenance are described in two new booklets from the Aluminum Window Information Bureau.

The booklets illustrate various styles of replacement windows and explain how they save fuel year round, add value to a home and reduce maintenance by eliminating the need for frequent painting.

DON'T FOOL YOUR THERMOSTAT!

Don't position a lamp in close proximity to a thermostat. The heat from the lamp built raises the temperature in the air, causing the thermostat to "think" the room is warmer than it is.

In winter, the heat will not go on properly and, in summer, the air conditioning will be working overtime.

Are you a cat in a hot tin house?

If you've ever touched metal that was left out in the sun, you know how hot it can get.

And, if you've ever brushed up against a metal surface on a very cold day, you know it can be a chilling experience.

The same effect is caused when you use metal siding on your home—the outside runs hot and cold.

In order to avoid these hot and cold flashes on your siding material, which can lead to many related problems, the CertainTeed Home Institute recommends using a product that is not subject to such temperature extremes—solid vinyl siding.

Solid vinyl siding's beauty is unaffected by the weather because it does not conduct heat or cold. And, this new product has other advantages as well.

For homeowners who are allergic to paint, or at least think they are, there's no better alternative than solid vinyl siding. The color of the product is molded clear through the material, so repainting is never needed.

In addition, the material resists dents and scratches—a problem which persists in metal siding, keeping the home owners who use that product even hotter than their siding gets on a scorching day.

Solid vinyl siding will also last and last and last. In fact, the product is so durable that the CertainTeed Corporation offers purchasers of its siding a 40-year pro-rated warranty—long enough to last through a multitude of hot and cold spells.

Learn to conserve water at home

Home water conservation can save a lot more than H₂O. It can also be a profitable experience.

Changes in lifestyle can contribute greatly to a water conservation program. Coupled with home improvements and the use of new energy saving devices, savings can be measured in gallons as well as dollars and cents.

Helpful booklet

To establish or enhance home conservation efforts, the National Association of Plumbing, Heating, Cooling Contractors and Bradley Corporation have published a 12-page brochure of helpful suggestions for homeowners.

Entitled "Let's Make An Energy Check All Around the Home," the brochure is divided into sections with water and energy conservation tips for the plumbing, heating and air conditioning systems.

The brochure encourages homeowners to be conservation-conscious in their daily lives. Practical though often overlooked suggestions include:

- Lowered water heater settings—especially on days when hot water isn't needed often.
- Full loads only for the dishwasher and washing machines.
- A container of cold water stored in the refrigerator. This keeps a cold water supply on hand and avoids wastefully running the water while it gets cold.

• Soaking of dishes during the day in the kitchen sink, enabling the use of shorter washing cycles.

Water saving equipment currently available through plumbing contractors is also listed in the brochure.

This includes low capacity toilets which consume fewer gallons per flush; hot water dispensers which provide instant hot water and eliminate the need for running faucets to get the right temperature; faucet and showerhead devices to restrict water flow; water heater sizes to match family needs and insulation kits for water heaters.

Collectively these items can make a major difference in the average amount of water and energy consumed in the home.

New, advanced product saves time and money

Everyone everywhere wants to avoid unpleasant chores that cost money and time, so why waste these precious commodities on the outside of your home when you don't have to?

How would you like a siding material that is virtually maintenance free, resists dents, won't show scratches, never needs painting, and can be cleaned of dirt and grime with just soap and water?

What is this miracle material? It's new solid vinyl siding from CertainTeed which has used advanced technology to perfect this time-saving product.

The color of this solid vinyl, for example, goes clear through the material. In contrast to other types of siding, which are simply painted on the surface or color-coated, solid vinyl will not peel, blister or show scratches. Homeowners can thus spend their time on recreation rather than maintenance and repainting their homes.

But color isn't the only technological improvement in this solid vinyl siding. It is also extremely resistant to dents. Sports-minded families with young children or teenagers can open up the backyard ballfield without fear of all those little nicks and scratches.

Solid vinyl's innate durability is advantageous in other ways, as well. Termites, rot and corrosion are effectively thwarted by this new product, and it is unlikely that homeowners who install CertainTeed's solid vinyl will ever have to spend a week-end replacing damaged siding. The company is so sure of their product that they back it up with a 40-year pro-rated warranty against manufacturing defects.

In addition to its durability, the new solid vinyl siding is as good looking and fashionable as it is tough. It's available in a host of popular decorator colors to please every taste, and the color you choose will stay as bright as the day you bought it. You'll never have to paint the siding again.

So, the next time you pass the golf course on your way to the paint store, think of the time you'd save with solid vinyl siding. It's truly the siding of the eighties.

For more information on this new product, write to CertainTeed Vinyl Building Products Division, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

BATTS IN THE ATTIC AREN'T ALWAYS A NUISANCE. In the case of fiber glass insulation batts, they can be a life-saver, or at least an energy-and-money-saver. This homeowner is installing a double layer of six-inch fiber glass batts to bring his attic insulation up to a level of R-38 (12 inches); this is the recommended R-value of colder areas of the country according to the CertainTeed Home Institute. When he's done, he can sit in the comfort of a warm home knowing that he'll be saving heat and money for as long as he lives there.

Stop leaks . . .

Door and window seals are vital energy savers

The cracks in an average house equal a hole half the size of a card table! You can lose a lot of heat through a hole that size!

Many things create cracks around doors, windows and other openings: wood shrinks, putty cracks, foundations settle, seals wear, doors warp.

The end result is usually a little crack here, a crack there.

Federal government figures say that as much as 55% of the normal heating load on your HINGED, or casement, windows are found in many homes. Because of their construction, they require specially designed foam weatherstrips. Schlegel's Hinged Window Sealing Kit has 18 feet of soft rubber sealing head with self-adhesive back.

house comes from 'air infiltration.'

That's heat lost through open doors and other leaks. Some 15% to 30% of the load is heat lost through cracks around closed doors and windows.

And, of course, it works both ways: wasted heat in winter is the same as lost cooling in summer when you have air conditioning.

The most cost-effective way to cut loss of heating and cooling energy around doors and windows is to caulk and install professional weatherstrips.

Homeowners, for the first time, can obtain professional weatherstrips from the nation's largest producer, Schlegel Corp. of Rochester, N.Y.

Schlegel has two weatherstrips to do the job: 'Polyflex' door seals and Hinged Window Sealing Kits. Each comes with self-adhesive backing for easy mounting.

Weatherstrips for doors: Polyflex brand is a plastic strip that fits between door and jamb. Old metal weatherstripping need not be removed.

When the door is closed, it presses against the strip, creating a tight seal that is invisible when the door is closed.

Polyflex weatherstrips will last for many years without shrinking, cracking, fading or rotting.

Hinged Window Kit

Hinged Window Sealing Kits contain 18 feet of extruded soft rubber sealing head, also with self-adhesive mounting.

This rubber head is designed to fit around hinged windows, such as French windows or casement windows. Cellular windows are often hinged, as are balcony windows.

Installation takes only minutes, and the only tool needed is a pair of scissors. The seal can be applied either to the window or the frame.

Simply cut to size, peel back the protective paper from the adhesive and press the strip into place.

Tax credits
Now that President Carter's energy bill has passed, consumers can obtain income tax credits for installing weatherstrips and other energy-saving measures.

Caulking or weatherstripping materials qualify for tax credits when used for exterior doors and windows.

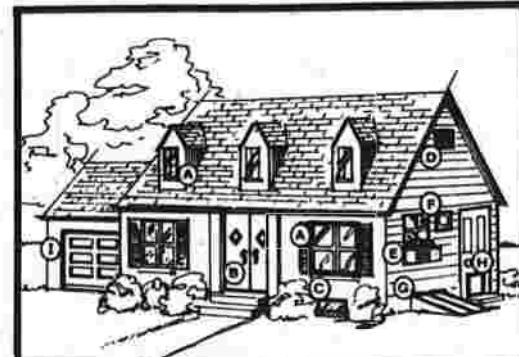

The material costs alone qualify, not labor charges if you hire someone to put it in.

The important thing about these tax credits is that they are subtracted from your bottom line.

And you can also cut your heating bill from 15% to 30%!

Use the right caulk to . . .

Conserve energy and save heat!

If you're like most homeowners caught in the inflationary crunch, you're probably looking for inexpensive ways to save on heating bills during the cold weather ahead.

Caulking around windows, doorways, wood junctions and masonry blocks is the perfect way to weatherproof and seal openings against air leakage and cold drafts during the winter months," notes Murray Stenberg, chemical research and development manager at Red Devil, Inc.

"A number of 'all-purpose' caulks on the market today may appear to do the same job despite substantial price differences."

To help the do-it-yourselfer choose the right sealant, Red Devil has developed a list of caulks that can be dispensed from a caulking gun along with their price categories and primary features.

Oil-based caulk: Generally priced below a dollar, oil-based caulk is less affected by water than latex and acrylic caulks but will not last as long and must be replaced every few years.

It adheres well to most surfaces, particularly metal, and can be painted. Requires solvent for cleanup. Can be used in cold weather.

Latex Caulk: Generally priced at $1.50, latex caulk adheres well to most surfaces, including fiberglass. It is a long-lasting sealant but should not be applied below 40° F, nor used under ground level or in direct, continuous contact with water.

It comes in colors to match popular house paints, particularly woodtone and redwood, and can be painted over. Easy water cleanup.

Butyl Caulk: Generally priced around $2, butyl is good for use in most areas including those that are damp and wet. It is good for cold weather applications and is more durable than oil-based caulk.

It has excellent adhesive qualities, particularly on glass and metal. Butyl can be painted and requires a solvent cleanup.

Acrylic Caulk with Silicone: Generally priced at $3, acrylic caulk with silicone is the newest caulk on the market. It is highly resistant to cracking and is unaffected by sunlight.

Silicone in the caulk rises to the surface on application and forms a waterproof finish. Like all acrylic and latex-based caulks, it should not be used in direct contact with water.

The caulk adheres well to glass, wood, concrete, plaster, drywall, brick, plastics, ceramic and metal. Requires water for cleanup and can be painted.

Silicone: Generally priced at $6, silicone caulk has all the features of acrylic with silicone

Hotel Blaze

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — A fire swept a Vienna hotel before dawn today, killing 27 people and critically injuring 10 others. Four American tourists were reported missing.

Officials said 32 Americans from the Bath, Maine, area were staying at the Hotel am Augarten and police said four of them could not be accounted for.

Police and firemen counted 2 dead and said 10 were hospitalized in critical condition, some suffering smoke inhalation.

Gold Surges

LONDON (UPI) — Gold surged on European bullion markets today to open at a new record high for London and Zurich, reaching near the $400 an ounce mark reached briefly in New York and Hong Kong this week.

The dollar edged above its 10-month lows on most European money markets, but dealers said demand for the U.S. currency still was weak.

At the morning fixing in London gold dropped back 50 cents $397.00 an ounce.

Gold opened in London at a new high for that market of $397.50 an ounce, up from $395.50 a Thursday's close. In Zurich gold peaked at a new high for that market of $397.00, $1.50 above Thursday's close of $395.50.

Special Mass

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul I celebrates a special anniversary mass today for his predecessor, John Paul I, who died of a heart attack Sept. 26, 1978, just 34 days after his election to the throne of Peter.

Less than 24 hours after celebrating the mass, the John Paul II will fly to Dublin on the first leg of a 9,000-mile journey to nine cities, three in Ireland and six in the United States.

Will Negotiate

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In a taped interview aired on Israeli television, Israeli Foreign Minister Dayan said Israel would negotiate with the PLO if it ceases being a military organization and becomes "a political movement," a development he said would be "revolutionary." Specifically, he said, the PLO must "be ready in principle that the 1 million Palestinian refugees living in Jordan since the 1948 Middle East war regard Jordan as their permanent place of residence."

However, at the U.N. Thursday he gave a clear, "no" to diplomatic efforts to bring his government and the PLO together at the negotiating table.

'Cattle Show'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican Women, begins today and the 10 men entered in their important beauty contest — some call it a "cattle show" — are running for the GOP presidential nomination. Ronald Reagan is the acknowledged front-runner and goes on stage last, at Saturday's concluding luncheon.

Former Treasury Secretary John Connally has the next best spot at today's luncheon, with Sen. Howard Baker and George Bush appearing tonight. The only candidate not represented is Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who announced too late to get on the program.
