Fuel Aid

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., brought a gloom and doom picture to Connecticut Friday about the chances of getting massive federal aid approved in time to keep New Englanders warm this winter.

Moffett, who was in Hartford to speak before the Capitol Region Community Council, also said most government officials don't seem to be putting enough emphasis on what he believes is the only way out of the energy shortage — conservation.

One man in the audience asked if people would receive President Carter's $1.4 billion in emergency fuel aid in time for this heating season. The money hinges on Congressional approval of his windfall profits tax on oil companies.

Another person in the audience shouted, "Three years." "If you don't get it detached from that whole windfall profits tax thing," Moffett said, "you could be right."

Ted's Pitch

BOSTON (UPI) — Edward Kennedy told cheering unionists who had just endorsed him Friday that they won't be disappointed when he announces in a few weeks whether he will challenge President Carter in 1980.

Kennedy's strongest statement to date indicating he will run came after the Massachusetts AFL-CIO shouted approval of a resolution endorsing him for president and urging the national AFL-CIO to do the same.

"You'll be hearing my response to that resolution in the next few days and very few weeks and I don't think you'll be disappointed," he said.

Later, with scores of union delegates jumping up on the table tops and shouting, the senator held aloft a "Kennedy in '80" T-shirt he had been presented.

"I was looking for something comfortable to wear around the Senate," Kennedy said.

Prime Raised

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gloom and uncertainty hung over the stock market Friday and the lower prices were a reflection of the condition.

Citibank upped the prime lending rate another quarter point, bringing it to 13 1/2 percent. Most of the country's other banks swung into line.

Alden W. Clausen, president of the Bank of America, told a meeting of financial analysts in Munich the U.S. recession will extend far into the first quarter of 1980.

The dollar fell on most foreign markets as the price of gold edged towards $400 an ounce.

The combination of gloomy news sent the Dow Jones industrial average reeling. The blue-chip indicator slipped 8.88 points to 878.58, and for the week has given up around 15 points, a far cry from its rise of almost 15 points last week.

About 30 persons protested the opening in East Hartford of the new Monty Python movie, "Life of Brian," a film which is a spoof on the life of Christ. Marchers Protest Showing of Film

By CHRIS BLAKE
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD—About 30 persons, some saying the rosary out loud and some carrying signs, marched in front of the Showcase Cinemas marquee off Silver Lane Friday afternoon to protest the premier of the new Monty Python movie, "Life of Brian," a spoof on the life of Christ.

"When people quote the First Amendment, they should quote the First Commandment," said the group's leader and spokeswoman, Mary Ann Pressamarita. Mrs. Pressamarita said the film is anti-Christian, anti-Semitic and blasphemous.

Many of the marchers wore blue berets, a sign of the Roman Catholic Blue Berets, a conservative, activist group. The orderly marchers walked around the marquee before the 2 p.m. showing of the film. They paused periodically to line up along the side of the road and hold up the signs passing motorists on Silver Lane.

Mrs. Pressamarita said she wants other to realize what they are going to see in the movie.

"We can't stop people from going, but we're making them aware of what they're going to see," she said. Mrs. Pressamarita led the gathering in the rosary. Many of the marchers clutched rosary beads as they walked.

She said the group was saying the rosary because the movie mocks the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Although none of the protesters had seen the movie, they based their opposition on a review by the Rev. Roger Fulton of the Neighborhood Church of New York City.

The Rev. Fulton said the film is immoral, anti-Christian, anti-Semitic and blasphemous.

The Rev. Fulton said the movie contains such scenes as one where a healed leper complains that "healing from the Messiah ruined his begging career."

Another scene shows "foolish and greedy merchants" selling crosses and candles along the road to a crucifixion, the review states.

"The sacrilege concerning Messiah's mother seems almost endless," the review said.

The Rev. Fulton said the Jewish people are shown as willing to follow any prophet and the whole culture is depicted as overrun with mentally ill prophets.

The review states the mother of the Messiah (Brian) is a transvestite "in direct violation to the Holy Scriptures."

The Rev. Fulton also said the film "tosses about almost every vile four-letter word known in gutter English."

Stoning is portrayed as a common, popular sport in Bible days, the Rev. Fulton said.

"This is an offense against God," Mrs. Pressamarita said. "The movie is not advertised for what it is."

She said the Monty Python group has made "a lot of funny movies and mocked people before, but they went too far when they mocked Christ."

She said the group had planned to send a member into the theater to see the movie, but the group decided "not to dirty our own minds by seeing it."

She said moviegoers will be "caught up in the laughter, but they don't realize they're practicing blasphemy when they laugh."

Fred Gerardi, manager of the local Showcase, said the movie drew a "typical Friday afternoon matinee crowd." He said the after noon matinees average 20 to 30 persons, but he did not know how many bought tickets for the Monty Python movie.

Gerardi said he hasn't seen the film yet and doesn't know what it is about.

He said the firm's home office signs the contracts for films and the contract dictates the length of a film's run at the cinemas.

He said he didn't know whether the protest march would draw more moviegoers, adding "people who are going to come out are going to come out."

Carter Plans Major Talk On Troops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will address the nation Monday at 9 p.m. EDT on the tense standoff between the United States and Russia over Soviet combat troops in Cuba, the White House announced Friday.

The White House announcement in full said: "The president will address the nation at 9 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 1, on issues connected with the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba."

The situation was grave enough for Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to cancel a long-planned trip to Panama this weekend for ceremonies on the Panama Canal treaties.

But Vance himself said there was not "a crisis," and White House press secretary Jody Powell — Carter's top spokesman — agreed.

Administration sources first said Carter would seek television time for a speech on the troop problem Sunday night. But later, they said the time was changed and noted some Jews would not be able to see the speech on Sunday because of Yom Kippur, the most solemn Hebrew holy day.

The sources said Carter's speech may include a display of top secret intelligence photos and other data supporting the U.S. position that combat troops are in Cuba.

White House attention to the situation escalated after talks between Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko broke off with "inconclusive" results Thursday night.

Within hours, Carter had summoned his top diplomatic and military advisers to the White House and he met with them again Friday morning.

Sources said the president would outline the developments for the public and probably reveal what his response to the situation will be.

Gerardi said he hasn't seen the film yet and doesn't know what it is about.

At issue is what the administration describes as a Soviet combat brigade of up to 3,000 men stationed in Cuba, recently discovered by U.S. intelligence sources. The United States has protested strongly to the Kremlin, but the Russians say the troops have been in Cuba for years and are simply military advisers — not a combat brigade. They have made no move to withdraw them.

Cuban President Fidel Castro — a top Moscow ally — invited American reporters to Havana Friday for what the Cuban mission in Washington said would be a discussion of the troops.

White House press secretary Jody Powell agreed with Vance that there is no crisis despite the inconclusive talks with Gromyko, who returned to the Soviet Union Friday.

Prior to his meetings with Gromyko, Vance held a series of unsuccessful talks in Washington with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, but the State Department said no further sessions are scheduled with him, either.

There were indications that Vance — because of the troops situation — might cancel his scheduled trip to Panama this weekend for Monday ceremonies on the Panama Canal treaties. He already has reversed plans for a Saturday trip to Yale University.

Powell said the White House is evaluating the troop problem in a "very calm and deliberate process that is proceeding in a timely but not hurried fashion — a process we believe will merit and receive the support of the people of this country."

But he indicated Carter may unveil some top secret photographs and other data during his nationally broadcast address to support the points he will make.

Ocean Searched For Navy Woman

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A Navy ship searched calm Pacific seas off the coast of Washington Friday for a 22-year-old enlisted woman who disappeared from a guided missile test ship to become the first woman in Navy history to be listed as "lost at sea."

Fireman Muriel M. MacBride of Ames, Iowa, was last seen aboard the 743-foot USS Norton Sound in pre-dawn hours Thursday as the ship sailed toward a rendezvous with U.S. and Canadian warships taking part in a massive training exercise off the West Coast.

"We don't know where she was or what she was doing aboard the ship when she disappeared," said Mark Baker, public affairs officer for the Naval Surface Force Pacific. "She is officially lost at sea."

He said the executive officer, Lt. Cmdr. Randall Myers, is currently interviewing the crew of 21 officers and 376 enlisted personnel as part of the investigation.

There were four women officers and 64 enlisted women in the ship's crew. Only one other Navy vessel in the Pacific Fleet has more women crewmembers. The San Diego-based destroyer tender Samuel Gompers with a complement of four women officers and 89 enlisted women

Glastonbury Picks Borden as Manager

By DAVE LAVALLEE
Herald Reporter

GLASTONBURY — The town culminated a five-month search Friday by hiring Richard S. Borden Jr. as the new town manager. Borden will leave his post as town manager in Cheshire.

Borden succeeds Donald C. Peach, who is now the city manager in Hartford. Peach resigned on May 1 after 19 years of service to the town. He had been the town manager since 1960, when the town switched from the selectmen form of government to the council-town manager form.

Town Council Majority Leader Dale Richter introduced Borden to a gathering of about 40 staff members in the Town Council chambers.

Borden, who has been the manager in Cheshire since 1973, explained his reasons for coming to Glastonbury.

"There were two factors influencing my decisions to take the job here. One was the caliber of the professional staff here and the other was the courtesy and the openness of the people who I have met," Borden said.

"A decision to leave a nice town like Cheshire comes hard, Cheshire is a nice town and I like it," he added. Borden said people have already made him feel very comfortable in the town.

"I want to make sure the energy and momentum stays high in Glastonbury. I am not going to let things fall by the wayside," Borden said.

Borden will begin his full-time duties on Oct. 29 and will be paid a salary of $39,000. Until then, Borden said that he would spend about three days a week in town to get himself acquainted. He said he still has to finish business in Cheshire before he moves on. He announced his move to the Cheshire staff Friday afternoon.

Before moving to the Cheshire post in 1973, he had been the director of administration in Vernon since 1968.

Borden is married and has three children. Borden said he will eventually be moving to Glastonbury.

He has a bachelor of science in accounting from the University of Connecticut and also holds a masters in business administration from the University of Hartford's Graduate School of Business and Public Administration. Borden also holds a masters degree in public administration from the University of New Haven.

"I am just thrilled to be here. I know that I have all of you people to count on," Borden said addressing the staff members.

At the conclusion of the meeting, staff members introduced themselves to Borden and offered congratulations.

Borden said Cheshire is similar to Glastonbury. Cheshire's population is about 21,000 in Glastonbury's is 27,000. Cheshire is a suburb of New Haven and Waterbury. While in Cheshire, Borden has had 120 town employees under him and in Glastonbury there are 200.

"I have several loose ends to clear up in Cheshire before I move on," Borden said.

"There are a lot of similar issues between the two towns," Borden said. "There are problems of growth that have to be dealt with. We have to look at the plan of development, transportation issues, sewers and public water supply."

Richter said the council is very pleased with his choice. The vote was unanimous.

"I guess you can see why we were unanimous," Richter said referring to Borden's credentials.

"I am very pleased with the quickness with which the council moved on this matter," Richter said.

Town Council member Sonny Goggin said the council spent over 40 hours on interviews. There were 78 for the job, according to Town Council Chairman Henry Kinne.

Grasso May Run Again

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella Grasso said Friday she hoped to try to "break precedent" with recent political trends and run for a third term as governor of Connecticut.

The governor also said in a taped interview with the Connecticut Radio Network that she was still behind President Carter, but said she should bow out if it looks like Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has the lead at convention time.

Mrs. Grasso, who was re-elected to a second four-year term in November 1978, said she intended to complete her second term.

"I would hope at that time, that the judgment that will be made will be to break precedent and perhaps join some of the others who tried to be governor for a longer period of time," she said on "Dialogue '79," to be aired Sunday.

The U.S. Constitution prohibits a president from seeking a third term, but there is no such statute covering governors in Connecticut.

Collectors' Corner John Paul Jones Cover Not as Bad as the Rest

By RUSS MacKENDRICK Although this column takes a jaundiced view of such contrived collectibles as philatelic mementoes, this one has a better excuse for being than most of them. It is an offering of the United States Capitol Historical Society with their John Paul Jones medal fitted into an envelope bearing the J.P.J. stamp with a first-day cancellation. The design is supposed to represent a ship with a billowing sail.

The Society, whose guiding lights include Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford and Lady Bird Johnson, was chartered by Congress as a nonprofit organization in 1978. Jones was born in Scotland and was apprenticed on a ship at the age of 13. "What he learned about the sea and seamanship men is still influencing strongly the U.S. Navy, and all the other navies of the world," (From "The First Captain," by G.W. Johnson.)

When he was 21 and returning from Jamaica as a passenger, the captain and first mate died of a tropical fever and Jones brought the ship safely to Scotland. The owners were delighted and Jones became master of a merchant vessel in the West Indies Trade - carrying over sail provisions, butter and cloth and bringing back sugar, rum, "cotton wool," ginger and mahogany planks. He became acquainted with Joseph Hews, chairman of the Marine Committee that established the Continental Navy and selected the officers. Jones was commissioned a first lieutenant and raised the Grand Union flag with his own hands on the armed ship "Alfred" on Dec. 7, 1775. As he wrote later, he considered himself "A free citizen of the World in defense of the Violated rights of Mankind." In 1777 he was put in command of another ship, the "Ranger," which he supplied, among other things, with $100 worth of chickens "destined for the use of the sick on board." He went to France with orders to "proceed with her in the manner you shall judge best for distressing the Enemies of the United States" - and did so with raids off the British coast. In 1779 he well-traveled French frigate, the Serapis, blew up a powder magazine and shredded the mainmast. The British captain finally had it and was escorted to the Richard where he gave his sword to Jones. It was graciously returned and went below for a glass of wine. The Bonhomme Richard went to the bottom a few hours later. The phil-nam cover is available with a bronze medal for $15, with a silver one for $45 and with gold for $100 - shipments to begin in December. Payments may be made to U.S.C.H.S. and mailed to the United States Capitol Historical Society, 200 Maryland Ave., N.E. (Dept. A), Washington, DC 20002.

911 Limited to Manchester

Residents in Bolton, Andover and Vernon were inadvertently sent letters by the Southern New England Telephone Company, telling them that beginning Monday they should use the "911" emergency number for fire, police, fire and ambulance assistance.

The letters were sent in error. The residents of the three towns should have been sent letters informing them not to use the 911 emergency number. The 911 number is manned 24 hours a day by trained professional dispatchers who can handle calls without delay. Residents in Bolton who need the services of the police department should call 643-6604 or 643-7272 and in Vernon call 878-0761.

The correct emergency numbers should be placed on or near the telephone for use when needed. The use of 911 will cause a delay in the response of emergency help and equipment.

Peck Says He'll Pay Part of Signs' Cost

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA Herald Reporter MANCHESTER - Republican Registrar of Voters Frederick Peck said Friday he would contribute from his personal funds money that the Voter Turnout Committee had hoped to receive from the Republican Party.

Peck said the program he will personally support concerns placing 435 signs in municipal buildings and commercial concerns. He said it had nothing to do with billboards.

Peck said he had been working on the Voter Turnout Committee for months and believes very strongly in the project. "I would not have worked on it so long and hard if I did not believe in it," said Peck.

The Voter Turnout Committee, composed of civic and political leaders, has developed a program to overcome voter apathy in the Nov. 6 election. The sign program is one of the efforts in the program. Friday, Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings said the Republican leadership was "pulling out of the sign effort."

Republican Chairman Richard Weinstein responded by saying, "I made it clear from the first or second meeting of the Voter Turnout Committee that I did not believe Republican funds should be invested in the billboard program."

In other charges, Cummings said Weinstein told Communications Coordinator Jay April the Republican candidates would not participate in a series of discussions to be aired on Cable TV's Channel 13.

April, who is also a member of the Voter Turnout Committee, had mentioned his hope to hold one half hour debates between candidates and have candidates field audience questions at the committee meeting in early September.

When April approached Weinstein with his proposal, Cummings said, Weinstein told April, "It is a waste of time; it is discriminatory because everybody doesn't have Cable TV, and I don't have Cable TV, and we're too busy."

April could not be reached for comment. Weinstein said, "The Republican Party participated in the Cable TV candidate program in the election two years ago. I can tell you I wasn't impressed. The use of Cable TV, I feel, is not a viable or effective means of campaigning."

In reference to Cummings charge that Weinstein said cable idea was discriminatory, Weinstein said, "I was being factious. I can't believe Cummings would use that."

Regarding Cummings charge that April said Weinstein said the Republicans are too busy to participate in the cable plan, Weinstein said, "We'll speak wherever there is a constituency to attract."

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Connections: Technology and Change." In this article, Joseph C. Gies, author of several books on technology, traces the impact of changing technologies on workers.

This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Manchester Community College offers a three-credit course based on the newspaper series. For information, call 646-2137.

A related 10-part television series, "Connections," produced by the BBC and Time-Life Films, begins Sunday at 8 p.m. on Connecticut Public Television, Channel 24 in Hartford.

Technological innovations — new tools, new machines, new processes — affect not only human society but, directly and immediately, the producing workers. Today, it is possible to envision a society in which technology will liberate workers from much of the physical drudgery and boredom that have marked their lives in the past.

Better tools permit workers to produce more (and better) work; machines replacing tools save their labor and multiply their production; and computer-programmed automated factories turn them into monitoring engineers, employing mental more than physical skills.

Nevertheless, workers typically have not welcomed innovations in production technology — far from it. Nor are they entirely mistaken in their apprehensions about new techniques. Quite apart from their principal fear — that it may bring unemployment — new technology may have unforeseen effects on their working lives and personal destinies.

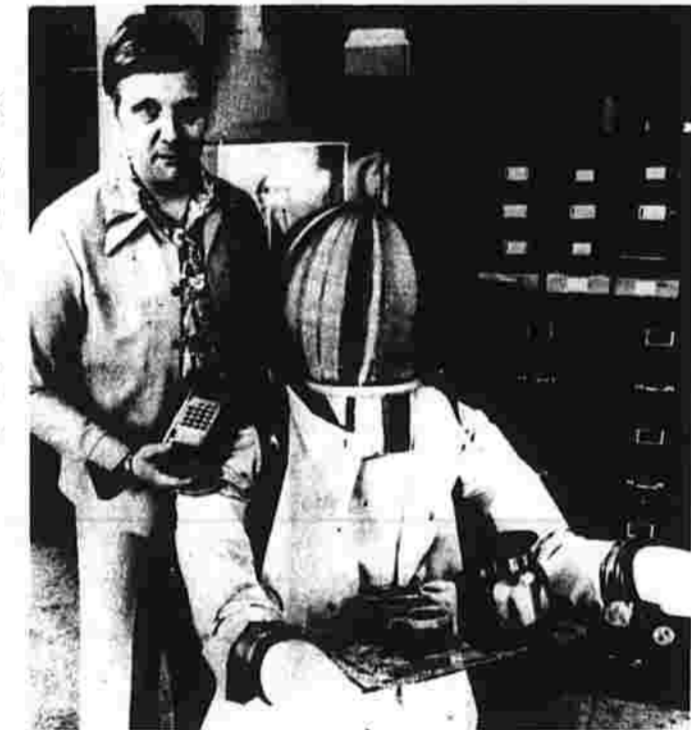

The outstanding historical example of the impact of changing technology on workers' lives is the development of factory mass production. Even while creating the abundance that has transformed the modern world, mass production has had a dehumanizing effect which governments, workers' organizations, enlightened management, and modern social science still seek to mitigate.

Fighting the Factories

The modern factory system has an ancestry going back many centuries. Medieval wool merchants in Flanders and Italy began "putting out" their wool successively to spinners, weavers, fullers, and dyers in what amounted to factories scattered through a town. The system foreshadowed the true factory both in increased volume of production and in the stimulation of class conflict. By no coincidence, history's first strike, in 1245, was by weavers of Douai in Flanders.

The "Commercial Revolution" in which the Flemish wool entrepreneurs participated provided the basis for the later Industrial Revolution centered in 18th-century steam-powered, multiplying productivity but alarming the hand weavers. In the early 19th century, bands of "Luddites," fearing loss of jobs, tried to destroy the new machinery but they were brutally suppressed by government troops.

In France, workers kicked machines to pieces with their heavy wooden shoes, or "sabots" — giving rise to the word "sabotage." Similar worker protests occurred in Germany and were memorialized by Nobel Prize-winner Gerhardt Hauptmann in his drama "The Weavers.

British workers resisted another innovation: work discipline. At his celebrated pottery works in Etruria, England, Josiah Wedgwood, in the latter life of the 18th century, was one of the first to divide his labor force into sequential groups — potters, painters, firers, finishers — achieving both increased production and enhanced quality.

But the new arrangement required that workers conform to the pattern imposed by the flow of production. Previously, as craftsmen, each performing the whole range of function in pottery making, the workers had frequently "kept St. Monday" (taken Monday off), and on other days had sometimes deserted their benches for an ale or a game of handball. Wedgwood posted rules and levied fines, but remained chronically vexed by labor troubles.

Loss of Dignity

As powered machines supplanted skill with semiskill or lack of skill in industry after industry, workers in Britain and elsewhere lost their old sense of creativity and even their old dignity. An observer at a British trades-union congress in 1890 recorded the difference in appearance between the old aristocracy of craft unionists, with their respectable dress, often including top hats and watch chains, and the "new" unionists, the shabby, nondescript factory workers.

In America the industrial revolution at first produced a quite different effect. The wealth of natural resources and severe shortage of labor made the country highly receptive to the textile machinery spirited out of Britain (against ineffective laws forbidding its export) by Samuel Slater, a youthful immigrant of 1789 who became the "Father of American Manufacture." Native mechanics such as David Wilkinson and Paul Moody added Yankee improvements and helped found America's own machine-tool industry, that is, machines to make machines.

It was not surprising, therefore, that the next major production breakthrough, interchangeable parts manufacture, achieved its triumph in America. The concept had originated in France and Britain, where experiments had indicated it promise, but craft-minded European industry held back. In America, Eli Whitney, John Hall, and others developed it in the government-supported arms industry. It soon gravitated to production of iron stoves, sewing machines, and farm implements.

Meanwhile, factory working conditions continue to cry out for improvement, particularly the reduction of heavy labor, noise, and the provision of amenities. "Flexitime," by which workers are allowed to arrange their own schedules within certain limits, has enjoyed success in a number of U.S. and European plants and offices, measured in part by a reduction in absenteeism.

The American System

By the time Henry Ford appeared on the industrial scene about 1900, interchangeable-parts manufacture was known throughout the world as "the American system." From Chicago and Cincinnati meat packing plants, Ford got the inspiration for his assembly line, which brought parts directly to the workers in a continuous flow.

No rules needed posting, no fines were required. The moving line's inexorable pace enslaved the men feeding it, exacting repetitive functions performed with an inhuman consistency. Assembly-line workers were turned into the human machines satirized by Charlie Chaplin in his 1936 film "Modern Times."

Meanwhile, at the turn of the century, a Philadelphia engineer, Frederick W. Taylor, devised a way to increase steel workers' output by minutely analyzing their jobs. By following Taylor's instructions faithfully, a worker could substantially improve his piecework earnings. But "Taylorism" or scientific management, copied and often abused, won a reputation for efficiency at the expense of humanity.

A glimmer of insight into worker psychology came in the 1920s, quite by accident. In studying the effects of improved illumination on worker performance at the Western Electric Company plant at Hawthorne, Ill., Elton Mayo was astonished to find that a control group, under the old lighting, improved its production as much as did an experimental group under better lighting. The "Hawthorne effect" showed that workers respond with better performance to the mere fact of being consulted, asked to cooperate, dealt with as human beings.

Further experiments explored the relationship between man and machine and the worker subculture, virtually creating a new sociology. Human-factors engineering, an

Automation

The most recent stage in mass production, automation, came immediately following World War II (though machines basic to factory automation go back to the Waltham Company in the 1880s). Workers' resistance in some industries, such as railroading and printing, has brought considerable conflict. Yet overall, automation's impact on employment so far has proved limited.

Meanwhile, factory working conditions continue to cry out for improvement, particularly the reduction of heavy labor, noise, and the provision of amenities. "Flexitime," by which workers are allowed to arrange their own schedules within certain limits, has enjoyed success in a number of U.S. and European plants and offices, measured in part by a reduction in absenteeism.

"Job enrichment," aimed at combatting "anomie" — the boredom of repetitive work — has also had some success, though in its more radical forms, such as non-assemblyline production of automobiles in Italy and Sweden, the outcome is not yet clear. Essentially, the recent experiments have been attempts to exploit the principles discovered by Elton Mayo by providing greater scope for personal achievement and recognition for the workers.

In recent decades as in times past, however, such consumer efforts have been less significant in altering the worker's relation to work than the largescale and usually unpredictable changes imposed by the general direction of technology and economics. These include the shift toward the service industries and high-technology clerical jobs, and from fabrication to processing industries, such as chemicals, plastics, and synthetics, in which automation flourishes.

These changes and the rapid strides made by industrial robots, which perform mechanically some of the functions previously performed by humans, give cause for hope that in the not too distant future physical drudgery and anomie may both be eliminated.

Questions

According to Gies, the modern factory system (a) was welcomed by workers wherever it was introduced because it made their work easier. (b) gave workers a new sense of dignity in their jobs (c) was made more efficient by the work of Taylor in the late 18th century. (d) had its origins in the medieval wool industry in Flanders.

The "Hawthorne Effect" described by Elton Mayo suggests that (a) scientific management improves worker morale (b) better worker performance results from the mere fact of workers being consulted (c) machinery should be designed for worker comfort as well as for efficiency (d) higher production is one consequence of improved factory lighting.

Foliage Best in North

WELLESLEY, Mass. (UPI) — Northern New England offers the best fall foliage viewing this weekend, with the northeastern sections of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine the top color spots, the A.L.A. Auto and Travel Club said Thursday.

Although the Canadian border country of New Hampshire is still colorful, the colors are not as bright as those to be seen through Dixville Notch, Franconia Notch and near Berlin — where fall color may arrive as early as this weekend.

Also well established and approaching peak is the foliage color around Lancaster and Littleton, N.H., with good viewing further south into the White Mountain National Forest. Foliage color through the rest of New Hampshire is between the beginning stage and well established.

The best foliage viewing in Vermont will be found in the northeastern quarter of the state, where full color is expected this weekend, and good viewing routes include 111 and 114 near such towns as Newport and Burke.

Central Vermont will also offer good viewing opportunities this weekend, when nearly full color is expected, and can be best seen in the Mt. Mansfield-Stowe area. As for the rest of the state, mid-stage viewing can be enjoyed through the higher elevations of southern Vermont.

Maine's foliage color is expected to be at peak this weekend throughout the north and northwestern parts of the state, where prime viewing areas include Baxter State Park, and the Moosehead Lake and Rangeley Lake regions. Among the suggested viewing routes are 6 and 15 between Jackman and Greenville, and 16 and 27 near Rangeley.

Motorists should not have any difficulty finding gas stations open on weekends in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. It is still advisable to avoid waiting until too late in the day to purchase gas, since many stations continue to close by 5 or 6 p.m. on the average.

Director Offers Plan To Solve Leaf Woes

By Lauren Davis Shea
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Democratic Director John FitzPatrick said Friday he will introduce what he considers a suitable compromise to the town's leaf collection woes at Tuesday's Board of Directors meeting.

FitzPatrick proposed using five vacuum machines in a four-week time span to gather the leaves before the snow arrives. The program will cost $87,450, he said.

The Board of Directors eliminated the collection last May because it was done before half of the leaves were off the trees or after the snow machine.

That problem would be corrected, he said, because the company that supplies the vacuum had agreed to supply the rakers as well.

"We don't be paying for idle equipment," he said.

FitzPatrick said part of the reason he developed the proposal was because the firm which collects trash in town gave an oral bid of $50,000 to collect the leaves as well.

"For an extra $35,000," he said, "we might as well save the taxpayers the cost and inconvenience of putting leaves in plastic bags," he said.

Fellow Democrat Joseph Sweeney gave his support to the proposal.

"I enthusiastically support this proposal because it is efficient and cost effective," he said. "It eliminates the waste of prior systems. It is newer and better than any leaf pick-up system we've had before."

Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano related Republican charges he had been inconsistent on the leaf pickup issue.

The Democratic director said he voted against the vacuum leaf program last May because he hoped a more effective method would be developed. He said the new proposal can resolve the problem.

Frederick F. Wajcs Jr., superintendent of highways and sanitation, said Thursday it would cost the town $85,450 to reinstate the leaf collection.

However, he said the town could save $16,000 if his department could have 10 additional workers to work a full day. Other men would be needed as well to replace the workers who call in sick or go home sick. If not, he said, the production drops and the town will be paying contractors while they cannot work.

Wajcs said the town should negotiate the price and waive the bid requirements if the collection were to begin by Oct. 22.

Man Held In Art Theft

HARTFORD (UPI) — A suspicious art dealer's tip and beat patrolman's memory of a police flyer from California have led to the arrest of a Willimantic man and recovery of about $20,000 worth of stolen art treasures.

David E. Smith, 27, of Willimantic, was arraigned Friday in Hartford Superior Court on charges of first-degree larceny by possession after his arrest at the gallery where he had asked the owner to sell a ceramic platter by Pablo Picasso valued at $5,000, police said.

Hartford Police said they recovered two $8,000 lithographs by Jean Dubuffet and posters and other works of art by Eva Hess, Alexander Calder, Marc Chagall and David Schorr at Smith's Willimantic apartment on Thursday.

The 14 pieces were among 27 artworks valued at $10,000 which were stolen from a mansion in West Los Angeles, Calif., on July 17, police said. Smith lived in the estate's guest house, police said.

Hartford police said California authorities have indicated they will seek to extradite Smith to face burglary charges in that state.

Mrs. Paul Urann of the Wiley Gallery, a Hartford art dealer for the past 37 years, said Smith left the Picasso ceramic at the shop last week and asked the dealer to sell it for him.

Mrs. Urann said she recognized the piece as an art treasure, became suspicious and notified Officer Earl Hotchkiss, a foot patrolman whose beat includes her gallery.

Hotchkiss said he thought the platter, depicting a goat's head, looked like the photograph of a plate he saw earlier this month on a flyer from police in West Los Angeles.

He notified the Hartford Police Lt. Nathaniel Davis of the crimes against property division, who sent a detective to check the piece and then confiscate it.

Police placed the gallery under surveillance and arrested Smith when he returned.

UConn Plans A Day Of Mass Reflection

STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — The University of Connecticut, rocked by allegations of racism and the serious injury of a student during the opening weeks of the term, Friday said it will pause a day next week to reflect on campus violence.

School spokesman Walt McGowan said the university will use an as yet unspecified day as an official "Day of Metanoia" to focus attention on the problems of violence and the threat of violence on campus. The days traditionally are held at UConn to focus campus attention on a topic of urgent interest.

He said classes will continue during the day, but faculty members will be encouraged to involve their classes "in some way."

Several racial incidents have been reported on the campus this term, including the alleged harassment of two black women students in a dormitory and the scrawling of racial epithets and the initials KKK on campus.

McGowan said those will be included in the day of reflection because the university administration views verbal assaults as one form of violence.

He said students had also expressed deep concern about the serious injury of a 27-year-old woman graduate student on a campus jogging trail Wednesday afternoon.

State police said the woman, a regular jogger on the path, was found semiconscious suffering a severe head injury. Troopers said the woman, whose name they refused to release, was possibly assaulted but that there was a chance she was injured in a fall.

The woman remained unconscious and was being treated at Hartford Hospital, where she had been listed in guarded condition, McGowan said Friday she was considered "very grave."

Mary Messina, student editor of the Connecticut Daily Campus, said students were "concerned. I think there's a lot of fear going around on campus, some people have mentioned they're afraid to leave their rooms."

She said the paper had received several letters from people upset about the racism and the woman's injury and that it was a good idea to take a day out to talk about the fears.

"Those are the two main things that are upsetting people. They're upset that these racial incidents are occurring at an educational institution and that the assault did occur during the daytime."

"A few people have mentioned that it might turn into just a day of partying, but I think people definitely are concerned and I think it will be positive to have a day to raise awareness. By setting aside one special day you recognize the issue and acknowledge that it does exist."

McGowan said racism will be included in the day of reflection on violence because "we consider that violence, too. If there are racial epithets that's prohibited by the laws and by-laws of the code of student conduct. Any such verbal assault is prohibited as well as physical assault."

University President John DiBiaggio earlier this week warned the school would not tolerate racism.

"Let me state plainly that racial insult is intolerable, abhorrent behavior which is absolutely prohibited," he said. "I pledge to you that every institutional sanction will be invoked upon persons found guilty of an act or epithet of racial insult."

Handicapped Must Have Permits for Auto Spots

HEBRON — A new law regulating parking spaces for handicapped persons takes effect Monday, according to John A. Doyle, executive director of the Connecticut Easter Seal Society.

All persons who use these spaces must have special parking permits, properly displayed on their vehicles, or the special "HP" license plate. Applications for the parking permit are available from the Department of Motor Vehicles for persons who obtain medical certification.

Under the new law, police can ticket any unauthorized vehicle parked in the designated spaces and impose a fine on the driver. Police cannot ticket on private parking lots unless called to do so by a representative of the owner or renter of the property.

Eligibility for the permit is restricted to medical certification confirming an applicant's ability to walk is impaired.

The permit is available to handicapped drivers or passengers and is transferable to any vehicle. The "HP" plates are not transferable and are available to handicapped drivers or the registered owner of the vehicle.

New York Recital Set Oct. 14

Mezzo Soprano Aiming High

By BETTY RYDER
Lifestyle Editor

When pretty mezzo soprano Iga Zenta Paupa walks onto the stage at the Cami Recital Hall in New York City on Oct. 14, she will be a few steps closer to her ultimate goal — the Metropolitan Opera.

The 26-year-old Manchester native, will performing in a vocal recital including works of Handel, Brahms, Chausson, Duparc, Verdi and Kalnins.

While the Met would be the ultimate, Iga says she has to be realistic. "Very few people make it as a soloist at the Met. I would be happy singing professionally and finding my own level of perfection. I guess I have a small town attitude. I'm just as happy singing for five people as I am for 5,000 as long as by doing it, it adds something to their lives. Music is people," she said.

Well-known in music circles throughout the area, Iga has performed as soloist at weddings, birthdays, as a folk singer, and in various aspects of musical entertainment.

"My dad was my first teacher. He raised me on music and I started piano lessons at six. He had opera training in Germany and taught me basic vocal techniques while I was still in junior high school. During junior high school, Iga took lessons from Darlene Gayles. Following her graduation from Manchester High School in 1971, she made money as church soloist which she used to help pay her tuition to Hart College of Music where she received a bachelor's degree in opera in 1978.

Later, Iga went on to work as a certified home health aide for River East for two years, then as a governess, and is currently a sales clerk at Parkade Health Food Shop in Manchester. "Vocal lessons cost money," she said.

She has an extensive musical background, having performed with the Connecticut Opera Company, Hart College Opera, and Community Opera.

She appeared as a soloist in the world orchestral premiere of "Daugava" by Bruno Skulte at Lincoln Center in New York City in 1977 and toured in Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts, and Toronto, Canada, from 1977 to 1978.

Last summer, she was soloist for the world premiere of "Karavira Driesmas" by Aldonis Kalnins in New York, and also toured in New York and Pennsylvania and attended the International Song Festival in Sweden.

Closer to home, Iga was soloist with the Hartford Symphony in Bach's St. John Passion at the Bushnell Memorial in Hartford in 1977.

She has appeared in summer theatre in "Carnegie" "Carouse" and "Fiddler on the Roof" and has participated in choral singing at South Congregational Church, Center Congregational Church and St. Joseph's Cathedral, all in Hartford, and as chorister and soloist at South Church Choral Society in New Britain.

Iga has also performed in Latvian art song recitals and sacred recitals throughout New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

No newcomer to folk music, Iga has performed as a singer and guitarist in sacred folk trio, and as singer, arranger and guitarist in a family Latvian folk song trio with her father, Vilis, and her brother, Talvaldis.

"My brother also graduated from Hart College with a degree in opera in 1977. He and I hope to do a dual recital soon, sort of a brother and sister act," she said smiling.

A young lady with a fine sense of humor, Iga said, "My father and brother and I practice at home, and my mother gives us moral support. She also buys earplugs for the neighbors."

Iga's ambitions will no doubt pay off one day. "My coaches say I have a dark and heavy voice which won't really mature until I'm in my early thirties. So, I have a few years to go to get to my level of perfection."

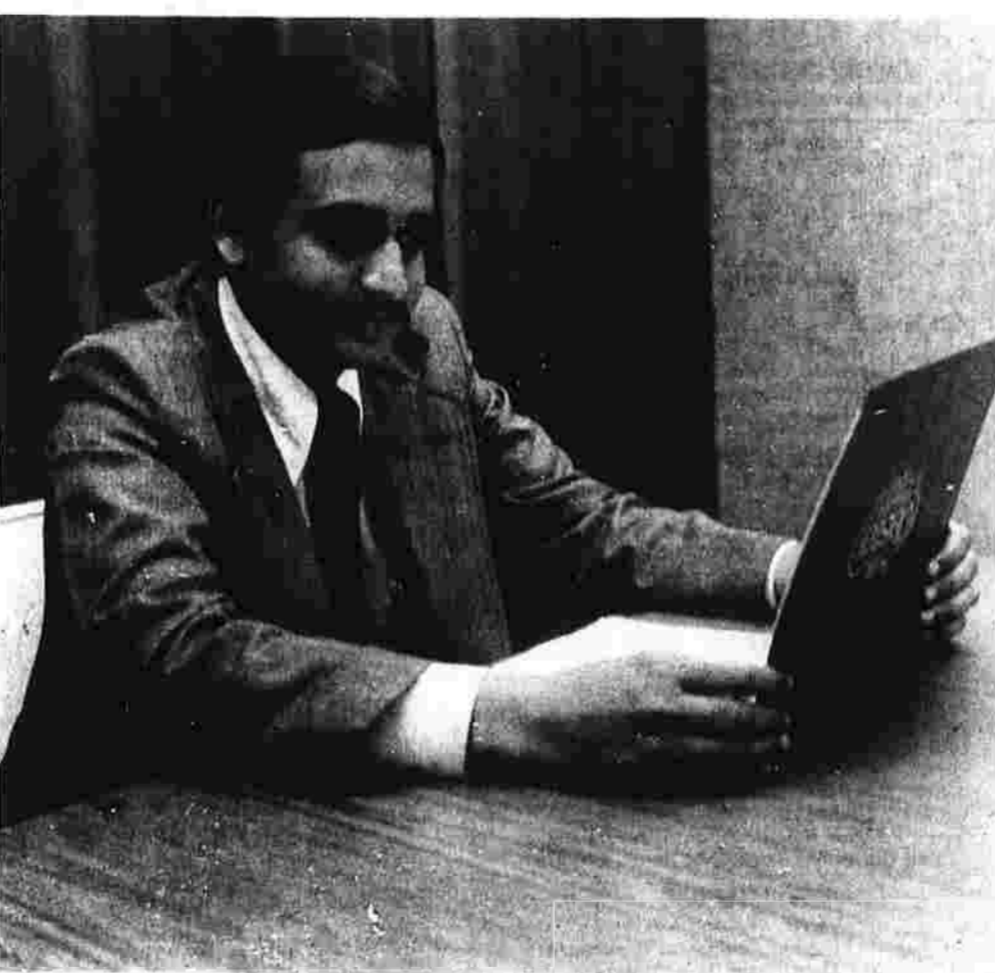

Her Oct. 14 recital in New York City begins at 8:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

Iga is quite excited about the fact that she will be presenting the same recital in early December at Millard Auditorium, Hart College of Music, in West Hartford, at a date to be announced, and will all have an opportunity to hear her.

In the meanwhile, we wish her much success. May her audience hear beautiful music, and Iga hear nothing but "Bravo."

Tansukh Raj Dharwal of Bombay, India, finds little to whet his appetite as he looks over a menu. A vegetarian, he found few

Visitor from India Vegetarian Foods Limited

By BETTY RYDER

Dining out is fun, but it's not much fun when you can't find anything you can eat.

When Tansukh Raj Dharwal of Bombay, India, came to our area recently, he had a problem; he couldn't find a place with food he could eat.

Oh, he found fast-food outlets, steak and seafood establishments, and even gourmet restaurants serving international cuisine. But, he still couldn't eat. Tansukh, along with more than half of the 900,000,000 people in his native India, is a vegetarian.

A marketing manager with Filfab (India) Corporation in Bombay, Tansukh was visiting Industries, Inc., facilities in South Windsor.

When that company's public relations man took him out to dinner one night and realized he was a vegetarian, the problems began.

"I looked at the menu and was surprised to see there were no vegetarian dishes. It was a very nice restaurant, but the selection, for me, was poor," Tansukh said.

"Usually, when I'm in a new area, I look for a restaurant which serves Indian cuisine, wheat or grain dishes, or just plain vegetables. I ended up eating plain pasta," he said good-naturedly.

A day later, he tried another restaurant and that too had very little choice. The luncheon menu while ample for non-vegetarians, was limited for Tansukh.

Reading the menu, his eyes lit up when he read "vegetable of the day," but his hopes soon dimmed when the waitress informed him it was only available at dinner.

So, he settled for fruit salad on a lettuce leaf and a side order of french fries.

Tansukh has consumed only vegetables for all of his 30 years.

American vegetable comparison for ladyfingers) and they are stir fried in oil," he said.

During this, his first visit to the United States, he visited Austin, Texas, Washington, D.C., and New York City before coming to Connecticut.

"I didn't get a chance to see much of Texas," he said. "I enjoyed Washington and found an Indian restaurant there."

As for New York, he wasn't too impressed. "It's big and busy, just like Bombay."

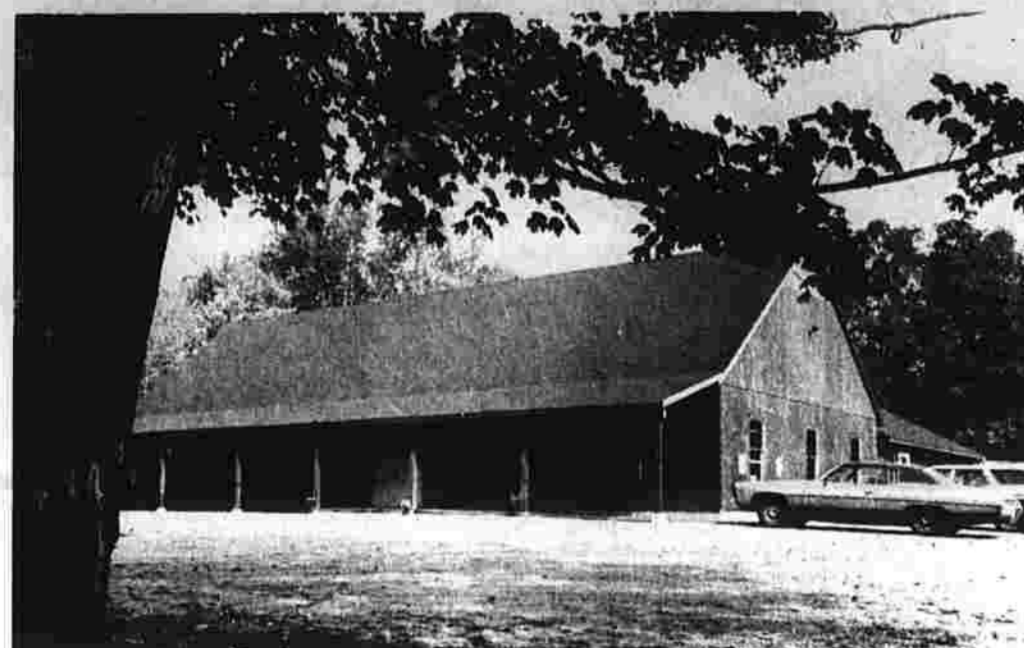

The day before Tansukh was to leave for home, we did locate a few restaurants serving his particular brand of food. Namely, Bombay Garden, Picnic Restaurant and the Garden of Eating, all in Hartford.

Perhaps, when he returns, we can direct him to one of them so he can enjoy the foods of his native India.

and friends of the congregation. In 1975 the Coventry church became a "particular church of the Reformed Presbyterian Church Evangelical Synod, by virtue of being accepted into that denomination by its Northeast Presbytery," church officials said.

The first service in the new building was held on May 20. Members of the congregation contributed time and resources to see that the building project was brought to completion under the direction of Bill Briggs.

Although work still remains to be done on the new Presbyterian Church of Coventry, services are being held there and the building will be officially dedicated Sunday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend the open house. Does Nature Tell Us Anything About Heaven?

By CLIFF SIMPSON

When I was a student at Union Theological Seminary in New York City preparing for the ministry, the other professor who stood out above all others in my opinion was Dr. John Baillie. He was a keen student of life as well as theology and felt they both were on and the same thing. He confessed one day to his class that he felt unable to defend the Christian faith against all the arguments of other professors in the New York City area and especially at Columbia, which is close to U.S. He then added that one professor with whom he felt the least secure was Dr. Ashley Montagu. He recommended his book for reading on an occasional assigned one. I have searched my library for it and I do not recall its name, but remember other titles.

"What is deepest in nature is highest in heaven." He argued that what we find in the animal world (the mother dying to protect its young) reveals the principle of sacrifice of one life for another — and that this helps us to understand Christ sacrificing his life for our salvation. I was reminded of this lecture that look place almost a half century ago when I was recently reading in International Wildlife about why animals do what they do. (p.19) and the answer to the question, "Why do crocodiles 'eat' their young?" Actually, they do not. It looks that way as the picture reveals, but she catches the young ones, gently guides them into a "milk pouch" where they nestle cozy, with others, some of which had entered of their own accord. When all 20 eggs have hatched, she sets out for the beach where she releases her progeny into the water. She treats them with TLC. The article concludes: "But during the earliest, blunpest stages of life, when they need help they go it — gently and with endless patience. After all, what are mothers for?" (p.23)

I think that this attempt to infer from "mother-love" in the animal kingdom that heaven is so-and-so does not stand up. Why just logically should not heaven be like "nature red in tooth and claw"? Long ago Kant in his three "Antinomies" showed that we could not "prove" God by Q.E.D. Similarly Pascal in his "Pensees" claims that we can not decide whether there is a God or not by reason. Interestingly enough this chapter is called "The Wager." We will arrive at certainly only by a leap of faith. Donald Hankey called this "betting on God." William James calls it the "as if" philosophy. We live "as if" there were a God, and we find him. More recently Helmut Thielicke makes the same point in "How To Believe Again." (p.19) The Christian declares that God came in Jesus Christ and wages all his ships on that — both life and life eternal.

A reader offers: I am always grateful for the comments both verbal and written from the readers of "Wings of Morning." You are encouraging — and thank you very much. One reader from East Hartford, who wishes to remain unnamed, offered these words from Emily Dickenson: "Life is not conclusion. A sequel stands beyond. It is inevitable as music. Be positive as sound." Thanks.

Christmas is Coming: Although with many others I have often berated the merchants who start out around Labor Day to drum up their business for the Holidays, but now I'm not so sure. Perhaps my earlier feelings were simply jealousy that the Christian Church didn't start earlier, usually waiting to the first Sunday in Advent. At any rate this summer I succumbed even before Labor Day. The shops in Hangeley, Maine where I spent the past summer, very early in August began putting pressure on the "summer people" — and I did some Christmas shopping. I am sure that this will save some frantic last minute shopping along about December. But let us once again "the race belongs to the first," let me offer this prayer from Robert Louis Stevenson: "O God our loving Father, help us rightly to remember the birth of Jesus, that we may share in the song of the angels, the gladness of the shepherds, and the worship of the wise men. Close the door of hate and open the door of love all over the world. Deliver us from evil by the blessing that Christ brings and teach us to be merry with clear hearts. May the Christmas morning make us happy to be thy children and the Christmas evening bring us to our beds with grateful thoughts, forgiving and forgiven, for Jesus' sake. Amen." Have a relaxed Christmas season!

A Concerned Person: A senior deacon one time was desperate need of a specialist for a particular and peculiar malady. When he asked about an appointment, the secretary told him that the first one she could give him could be in three weeks. "Three weeks!" he ejaculated, "I could be dead by then!" "Oh," calmly replied the secretary, "well, you know in that case you can always cancel the appointment." Friendship: The older I get, I'm pressing seventy-four) the more I cherish the friends I have. How precious they are! "Friendship does not spring up and grow great and become perfect all at once, but requires time and nourishment of thoughts." Dante: "The only way to have a friend is to be one." Ralph Waldo Emerson

When the devastating tornado struck Wichita Falls, Texas a few months ago, leaving destruction and tragedy in its wake, an interfaith agency was hastily formed by the city churches. Financial appeals to denominational boards were made.

The Churches of Christ in this city, while making no outside appeals, were deluged by money and supplies from sister congregations across the nation. Over a million dollars in aid was distributed, and a quinquennial fund-raising campaign that provided by the denominational boards combined.

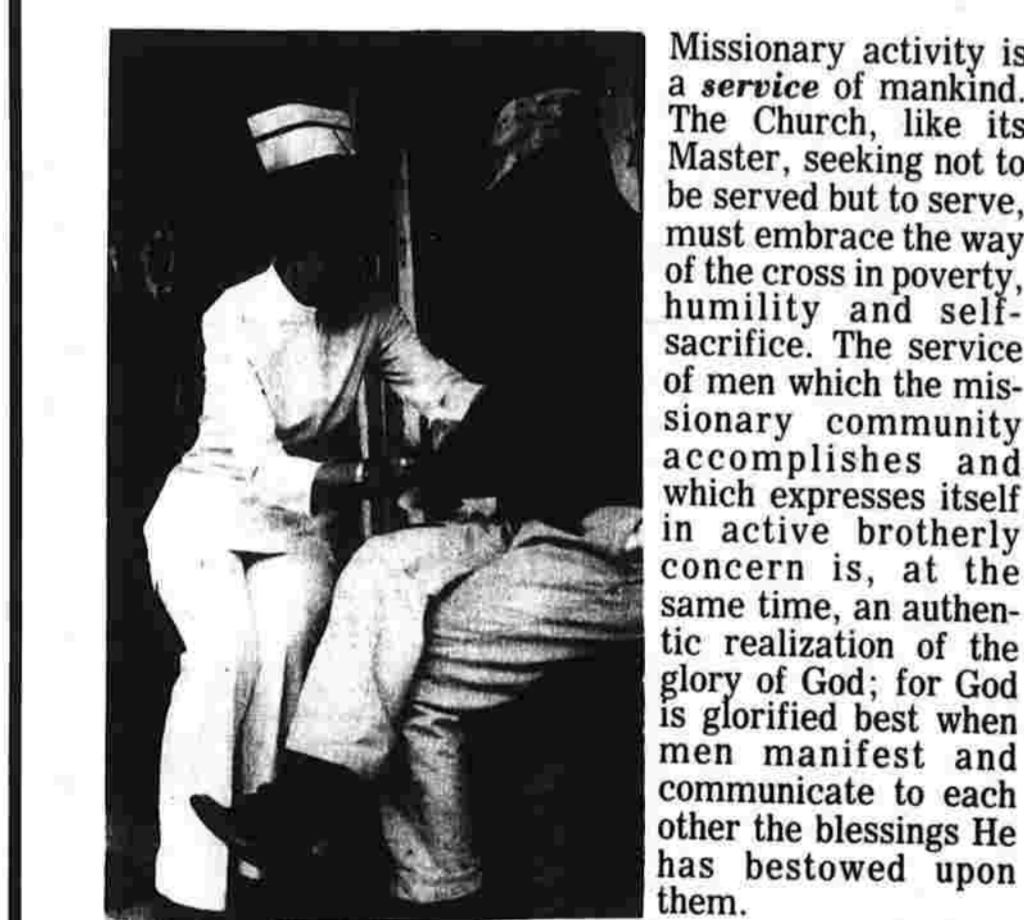

This is not said to boast, but to illustrate the advantage of God's simple plan of local church autonomy. No hierarchy, board, or headquarters was needed to produce this outpouring of love generosity. The New Testament describes no earthly ecclesiastical unit larger than the local congregation. Cooperation depends upon a centralizing organization, but upon a common father.

Homemaker Aides Lacking Personnel

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - The Riverast Homemaker Home Health Aide Services Inc. like other similar services in the state, has a problem with getting enough staff members to keep up with the increasing number of clients.

Mrs. Hyalie Hurwitz, executive director of the service, emphasized that the problem is not unique. She said it is a problem experienced by the whole industry, in Connecticut anyway.

Mrs. Hurwitz said she recently attended a meeting of the State Association of Homemakers and Home Health Aide Services and the State Nursing Association and they discussed the problem of where to find the staff to meet the exploding home health care situation.

She said that the tendency now is to focus on institutionalized care to home care and to reduce hospital stays. The focus was with the advent of the change in insurance coverage which now pays for home health care.

Mrs. Hurwitz said that traditionally the homemaker home aide isn't the best paid profession. She said it has largely been on an hourly pay rate and for the most part there is no guarantee as far as continuing work.

She said the agency is willing to hire women for any limited number of hours they want to work. Staff members who receive many fringe benefits. They are paid for their travel time, plus mileage, accrued sick pay, are allowed vacations.

She said that the psych rewards of this kind of work can't be diminished either. She said she feels that as far as Riverast goes they could probably handle one-third more cases and one-third more hours of service, if the agency had the staff in good health.

Right now she has 28 staff members and she would like to expand to 35 to 37 to really adequately meet the needs of the 10 towns the agency serves.

Besides Manchester, it serves Vernon, Bolton, South Windsor, Stafford Springs, Ellington, Somers and has limited service in East Hartford and East Windsor.

Riverast is also one of few employers which doesn't require that a person is trained in order to be hired. However, training, according to standards set by the state Department of Health, is required but it is done at agency expense if the applicant has the proper temperament and is in good health.

One of the requirements is that a person must have her own car and a driver's license. Once fully trained, the staff member would primarily care for patients in their home at the same level of a nurse aide in a hospital setting.

Mrs. Hurwitz said that because the agency focuses on care in the home it also provides such services as light housekeeping chores, doing light laundry, preparing meals, child care, and essential shopping.

She said this means that going to a convalescent home is more of a threat for the elderly if there are not enough home care services to take care of them. She said that nonprofit agencies, such as Riverast, and the commercial services, are all competing in the same job market.

Mrs. Hurwitz said that traditionally the homemaker home aide isn't the best paid profession. She said it has largely been on an hourly pay rate and for the most part there is no guarantee as far as continuing work.

Adventure heads NBC season

By Reine Grossman

NBC continues its head-to-head fight with CBS for second place with new faces and new adventure and science fiction series. Here is a day-by-day preview of fall highlights.

Monday "Little House on the Prairie" returns for its sixth season with two new notables, Dean Butler portraying Almanzo Wilder, Laura Ingalls' boyfriend, and Lucy Lee Flippin, Wilder's sister, Eliza Jane, the new town school teacher.

Tuesday will feature new series, "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," starring Claude Akins as a madcap southern sheriff who is known to wink at the law if it leads to his advantage. Akins first introduced the sheriff last season on "BJ and the Bear."

Co-starring as Lobo's two deputies are Mills Watson as Perkins, the hilarious clod who always says the wrong thing at the worst time, and Brian Kerwin as Hawkins, the college-educated deputy whose strict ethical code inspires the conniving Lobo.

Wednesday highlights new series, "From Here to Eternity: The War Years," drawn from the best-selling novel by James Jones and its miniseries last season. Starring William Devane, Barbara Hershey, Roy Thinnes, Don Johnson and Rocky Echevarria, it is about Army life in Hawaii.

While Devane and Thinnes return in their miniseries roles as the crusty Sgt. Milt Warden and the social-climbing Major Holmes, Barbara Hershey, as Holmes's sexually promiscuous wife, Karen, Don Johnson and Rocky Echevarria as Jefferson Davis Prewitt and Pfc. Ignacio Carmona, are cast newcomers.

The locale is Honolulu, six months following the Japanese attack on December 7, 1941. The city is under martial law, a situation unique in American history; it is against this backdrop that the continuing wartime saga is set.

Also on Wednesday, "Hello Larry" returns with new cast member Ruth Brown as Leona, a neighbor and schoolteacher, who advises divorced father, Larry who has custody of his two daughters.

Thursday features new science-fiction series, "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," starring Gil Gerard. Buck Rogers, an astronaut in the 20th century is frozen in suspended animation while exploring deep space. When he returns to Earth and is revived, 500 years have passed, and it is the 25th century.

Buck Rogers's adventures precede "Star Wars" by 50 years. The daring space hero was "born" January 7, 1929, when the comic strip made its first appearance in American newspapers.

Also on Thursday, good news for Kate Mulgrew (Kate Mulgrew) who emerges as her own person, not as an extension of a legendary detective. Mulgrew will continue to portray an inquisitive reporter on a small weekly newspaper. There will be more jeopardy, suspense and drama and no mention of the colorful lieutenant with the ruffled raincoat.

Friday boasts two new shows. "Eischied," about New York City's fiercely independent chief of detectives and "Shirley," about a widowed mother and her four children.

"Eischied" stars Joe Don Baker (of "Walking Tall" fame). The hard-hitting police drama, which stresses authenticity and well-rounded characters, is based on contemporary problems. It is a spin-off of NBC's miniseries, "To Kill A Cop."

"Shirley," a one-hour comedy-drama, stars Shirley Jones who has moved her four children from New York City to the shores of California's beautiful Lake Tahoe. There she and her family adjust to their new life, and "Shirley's" new role as sole-provider.

Saturday features secret agent, Thomas Remington Sloane III (Robert Conrad) in a James Bond-like series, "A Man Called Sloane." Stylish, cosmopolitan and effective, Sloane reports directly to the President of the United States. He employs a wealth of gadgets to dispatch the lethal enemies of organizations such as Kartel.

NBC fall line-up highlights liberal mix of new adventure, dramatic shows.

TV DIALOGUE

NBC Sports' baseball commentator Joe Garagiola (pictured) and Tony Kubek will team up to provide commentary when NBC Sports presents weekly exclusive live coverage of the American and National League Championship Series, Tuesday - Sunday, Oct. 2-7.

LUCKY BREAK? -- I know everyone knows about Erik Estrada's accident by now, but I never really got the straight story on what his injuries were. One minute he was near death, it seemed, the next he was going to be back in the series. What's the story? -- Maria Tagnacci, Gulfport, Miss.

The difference between being near death and being back on a series is often simply an accurate diagnosis. In the motorcycle accident Estrada suffered several broken ribs, a broken collar bone and punctured lungs. The X-rays indicated severe internal bleeding in the chest cavity, which the doctors feared was the result of damage to his aorta. If it was, his life definitely was being threatened by the condition and major surgery would be needed. If not, and the bleeding was the result of damage to smaller blood vessels, he would not be in as critical a condition. His condition was complicated by the collapsed lung. But, the good news turned out to be that his aorta was not damaged, and heart surgery was not needed. The producers have decided not to use the footage that showed the accident, but will be shooting bedside as soon as the doctors feel Estrada is up for it. Not being a physician, I'm not sure if this information is 100 percent accurate, but that's the gist of it.

MILER -- A few months ago I and my family saw an excellent TV movie starring Peter Strauss ("Rich Man, Poor Man") as a convict who was trying to get into the Olympics. Can you refresh my memory with the name of the movie and tell me whether or not it will be on television again? -- Mrs. Eileen Greshner, Bridgeport, Conn.

The movie was "The Jericho Mile," and considering the excellent reviews it garnered from critics and the excellent ratings it received, I would bet on the fact that it will be repeated sometime.

MRS. KINTE -- Could you please tell me who played the part of Kunta Kinte's wife on "Roots"? My husband and I have a standing bet. I say it was Kitty Lester, he says it was Diahann Carroll. I can't wait to win. -- Barbara Manchester, Wrentham, Mass.

You may have to wait a long time. The head publicist at ABC for the show says the role of Belle was played by Madge Sinclair.

PCB Danger

ATLANTA (UPI) -- Despite a nationwide ban on the manufacture and distribution of the suspected cancer causing chemical PCB, federal health experts warn that at least 10 Western states may be massively exposed to PCB contamination.

The Atlanta-based national Center for Disease Control, which currently is studying data from two surveys to determine the level of human exposure to PCBs caused by a leak in an electric transformer in a Billings, Mont., meat-packing plant, made the announcement in its weekly morbidity report.

Citing the health dangers of the chemical, CDC officials noted a federal law in 1976 ordered the manufacture and distribution of the chemical to cease within 2 1/2 years and banned all non-enclosed use of PCBs.

A New Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Today it's Happy New Year to the government -- and Happy Birthday to President Carter.

Here are some of the changes the 1980 fiscal year will bring:

- The United States officially begins turning over the Panama Canal to Panama.
- All federal employees making less than $48,000 a year except blue-collar workers receive a 7 percent pay raise.
- But federal employees in Washington, except those working on Capitol Hill, must start paying for auto parking in federal lots.
- A new military recruitment plan calling for a goal of 173,000 servicemen and women takes effect.
- And President Carter is 55 today.

Trains' Fate

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The fate of three long-distance passenger trains is in the hands of the courts today, but two others died on schedule as part of the first major cutback since Amtrak took over the trains in 1971.

Amtrak planned to ask a federal judge in Wichita, Kan., today to reconsider his order to keep the Lone Star, the Floridian and the North Coast Hiawatha rolling temporarily.

Five Amtrak routes were scheduled to end Sunday, but only two of them did. No attempt was made to save the Hilltopper, which operates between Boston and Catlettsburg, Ky.; and late Sunday Chief Justice Warren Burger overruled an appeals court and told Amtrak it could kill the National Limited between New York and Kansas City, Mo.

The National Limited pulled out of New York's Penn Station at 4:55 p.m. EDT Sunday with 75 passengers aboard for its final run.

Quits Race

MANCHESTER -- Verna Hublard, Republican member of the Board of Education for the past four years, is removing herself from the race this year, since her husband has been offered a job in the Boston area. The Republicans are nominating Pamela Edwards of 15 Horace St. to replace Hublard on the ticket.

Elsie Swensson, vice-chairman of the Republican Town Committee said today, "Verna did a very nice job. We feel badly that she is leaving us but we have a new candidate whom we have had interest in before. Pamela Edwards has agreed to do it."

Swensson said Edwards had worked on the Walter Joyner election committee and she is also a member of the Republican Town Committee.

Swensson said there is no problem, but the situation has never come up before and she has to call the State Central Committee to find out the rules for handling a change in candidates.
