The old times, they say, were the best times. Christmas used to be a celebration of love. Well, Watkins of Manchester can speak from experience. We were here in the old times. We've been celebrating Christmas full of love for 105 years. And we don't think the really important things have changed much.

We used to keep a fire roaring in the big iron stove that heated our store all during the holiday season. And we kept a warm word of greetings for our friends and neighbors in the town. That's how we remember the old times... Smiling faces, the excitement of people picking out gifts for others, and a spirit of good will. The same kind of Christmas we intend to celebrate again this year.

Watkins is still here on Main Street, and we still have a beautiful collection of Desks, Lamps, Oriental Design Rugs, Tables, Bookcases, Clocks, Chairs, Cabinets, Tables, and all kinds of fine furniture for Christmas gifts that make people very, very happy. At Watkins the old times, the best times, are still with us.

Violence Spreads To India

By United Press International
 Saudi troops were reported still hunting Moslem fanatic holdouts in the sacred mosque at Mecca Friday and thousands of Moslems shouting "Go to Hell, Carter" mobbed the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran, encouraged by Ayatollah Khomeini's exhortation to drive the United States from the Islamic world. The mob violence spread to India Friday after erupting in Pakistan, Turkey and Bangladesh earlier this week. An angry Moslem mob stoned the U.S. Consulate in Calcutta and Moslem mobs burned and looted the shops of Hindus who refused to close down in protest against the Americans. Saudi Arabian officials said the bloody four-day siege in Mecca, Islam's holiest city, ended when Saudi troops stormed the fabled mosque and wrested "total control" from the 200 to 500 armed Moslem fanatics who seized it on Tuesday. But travelers returning to Jeddah reported that some of the attackers were still holding out in a second floor corner of the labyrinthine mosque, its minarets pocked by small arms fire and its outer wall damaged by mortar shells in the fierce assault launched Friday morning. U.S. diplomatic sources said they were told by Saudi officials of "isolated pockets of resistance" inside the mosque but said that no hostages were still being held. Khomeini's exhortation for Islam to rise up and expel the "Satanic" United States from the Moslem world added new venom to the daily anti-American protests in front of the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran. In Tehran, thousands of Iranians chanting "Go to Hell, Carter" and blaming the United States for the Mecca attack marched on the occupied U.S. Embassy, where 49 American hostages spent their 20th day in captivity under a threat of death personally issued by Khomeini, Iran's Islamic leader. President Carter responded to Khomeini's threats with his sternest statement on the crisis to date. "The consequences of harm to any single hostage will be extremely grave," Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters at the president's retreat at Camp David, Md. "The President has asked that I tell you that, in his view, the last American hostage is just as important to the United States as the first," Powell said. "Harm to one hostage is as serious as harm to all. It is important that no one have any misapprehension about that fact." In Saudi Arabia, officials said Saudi troops Friday wrested control of the Grand Mosque of Mecca, Islam's holiest shrine, from the armed Moslem fanatics who seized it on Tuesday. They said the gunmen face the maximum penalty for desecrating the mosque which, under Islamic law, is death by beheading. The officials took pains to emphasize the attackers were Saudi Moslem fanatics seeking to have their tribal leader proclaimed the Messiah. But throughout much of the Islamic world, angry Moslems paid more attention to Khomeini's charge that America and Zionism were behind the attack and they took to the streets in mobs to stone and burn American targets and shout anti-American slogans. An angry Moslem mob in Calcutta, India, stoned the U.S. Consulate and tried to storm it but police beat them back with tear gas. Other anti-American mobs burned and looted shops in the city of Hyderabad, forcing authorities in Tehran to evacuate. In Pakistan, American dependents and non-essential diplomatic personnel streamed out of the capital of Islamabad and other major cities in a U.S.-ordered evacuation because of the Islamic world, angry Moslems paid more attention to Khomeini's charge that America and Zionism were behind the attack and they took to the streets in mobs to stone and burn American targets and shout anti-American slogans.

Winter Storms Hit Northwest

By United Press International
 A fierce winter storm that marched out of the Rockies and across the Plains, burying cities, stranding travelers and killing at least 10 people, rained Friday but a new storm brought weekend travel woes to the Pacific Northwest. Bitter cold settled over the snow-swept eastern slopes of the Rockies, with Alamosa, Colo., reporting a record low of 15 below zero Friday. Snow and rain left roads icy or flooded in parts of Oregon. A California man died, apparently of a heart attack, while an ambulance struggled to reach him through a sudden snow storm in the Siskiyou Mountains of southern Oregon Thursday. The man collapsed while trying to put tire chains on his car. The storm blew up suddenly Thursday afternoon and one official called it "the worst I've ever seen in the Siskiyou so quick." Snow persisted Friday. Lakeview, Ore., reported 8 inches on the ground. In the area of Bend, Ore., state police said snow had melted but treacherous black ice was forming on roadways and cars were sliding off roads. Rain soaked Portland, Ore., causing some minor street flooding. Southwestern Minnesota lay buried Friday under a foot of snow in the wake of a storm that kicked up blinding clouds of snow and forced a Great Lakes freighter aground in Lake Superior at Pellet Island. Repair crews worked Friday to free the stricken vessel. Most Minnesota highways - clogged by deep snow Thursday - were reported open Friday but light snow and ice made driving hazardous. In Nebraska, where five deaths were blamed on the snowstorm, people were enjoying a holiday respite from the bad weather. Skies cleared Thursday, giving snow-bound residents time to dig out and to talk about the storm. "Some old-timers are saying it's the worst blizzard since '49," said Tom Brossart, managing editor of the Sidney (Neb.) Telegraph. But Brossart said spirits were high Friday as Sidney began to dig out. "Except for the hard work of digging out, people are really kind of enjoying it," Brossart said.

Holiday Toll Runs Behind

By United Press International
 The Thanksgiving weekend traffic death toll ran well behind the National Safety Council's preholiday estimates Friday, despite snow, ice, rain and fog that complicated holiday travel for much of the country. As the 102-hour holiday period neared its midway point Friday, a United Press International count showed at least 125 people had been killed in traffic accidents. California reported 17 traffic deaths and Tennessee, Texas and Florida each reported 10. The Safety Council had estimated 500 to 600 could be killed and another 22,000 to 26,000 injured in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

Breakthrough Seen in Iran

Editor's Note: Lee Roderick, Washington correspondent for The Evening Herald, has been in Iran with U.S. Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, and was one of the first outsiders to see the remaining hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Roderick's column, "Herald in Washington," appears regularly on the editorial page. His dispatch from Iran follows.

By LEE RODERICK
 TEHRAN - A breakthrough in the dangerous diplomatic standoff between the United States and Iran came late Thursday when Iran's ruling revolutionary council agreed to cooperate with proposals advanced by U.S. Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho. Hansen said he informed the White House of his proposals and expects a response soon. Press secretary Jody Powell told UPI at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., that the White House had no comment on the Hansen mission. (In Washington, the State Department had no immediate comment, but one official told UPI Hansen's "breakthrough" was a variation on a theme which has been around at least 10 days. Basically, the plan calls for Iran to release the hostages if the United States agreed to public discussion of alleged crimes by the shah. The United States has said, however, that it will not discuss any arrangement until the hostages are freed, after which it would be willing to discuss this and other ideas.) Although here unofficially, Hansen is the only U.S. official on the scene who is not under control of Iranian militants who took over the U.S. embassy Nov. 4. Thirteen American hostages since have been released, but 49 others are still being held. The development, for ideas a meeting Thursday evening between Hansen and acting Iranian Foreign Minister Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr. There were two witnesses - Eric Rouleau, chief Middle East correspondent for the French newspaper Le Monde and this reporter. Rouleau acted as interpreter. After the hour-long session, we were the first outsiders allowed to visit any hostages, including the chief of the U.S. mission, Bruce Laingen, political officer Victor Tomseth and security officer Michael Horowitz. The three were at the foreign ministry on business at the time of the embassy takeover and since have been held in "protective custody" at a ministry annex. They appeared tired and nervous, but otherwise in good health. In the Thursday night meeting with Bani-Sadr, considered the strongman of the revolutionary council, Hansen proposed public hearings into Iran's charges against the shah. The congressman went on to say he was "certain that to benefit peace and the hostages, it would not be difficult to get Congress to listen to your side. No solution is in sight today, but this could defuse the situation." Hansen said Iran's complaints against the shah "may be complaints that Americans also have. We could find out if there was a chance to resolve it." He noted charges that the shah stole up to $25 billion, adding that if this was true, it inevitably would have impact on American because of U.S. economic and military aid to Iran. Bani-Sadr responded, "I have listened to your suggestion and I think it is a good idea. I personally would not oppose such an investigation, which would have the merit of opening the eyes of the American people to the behavior of their successive governments and the atrocities that have been committed in Iran." Bani-Sadr said his country has "all the necessary documents for an investigation but I suppose the archives of the American government, and especially the CIA, are even more complete than our files." At another point, he suggested that if Congress does launch an official inquiry, it will "ease up the situation for the hostages." Hansen asked to see the hostages, saying, "I think it would be very beneficial to visit them and reassure the American people about their fate."

Judge Nixes Acquin Retrial

WATERBURY (UPI) - A Superior Court judge has rejected Lorne Acquin's bid for a new trial, sending Connecticut's worst mass murder case on its way to the state Supreme Court, a second time. Acquin's attorney said Friday. Judge Walter Pickett Jr. denied separate defense motions for a new trial in the case and to set aside a jury's guilty verdict on nine murder counts and a first-degree arson charge against Acquin. Defense attorney John R. Williams said Pickett's rulings cleared the way for an appeal to the state Supreme Court, which in a separate defense appeal earlier this year ruled Acquin did not have to submit to a blood test. A 12-member Waterbury Superior Court jury last month convicted Acquin, 29, in the July 22, 1977 slayings of his foster brother's wife and eight children in a suburban Prospect home and then setting the house afire. The jury's verdict came about half an hour after the panel asked to have a re-read testimony concerning Acquin's controversial confession to the crimes. Williams said the judge's denial of the two motions had been expected by the defense and Acquin, a former Maine resident, was confident his conviction will be thrown out on appeal. The defense lawyer charged that Pickett's 25-page memorandum, released to attorneys in the case this week, "made no sense legally or factually" and was "in my opinion was an attempt to justify some of his mistakes."

Government and Technology

Editor's Note: This is the 12th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Connections: Technology and Change." In this article, historian A. Hunter Dupree traces the growth of government involvement in technological development.

This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Manchester Community College offers a three-credit course based on the newspaper series. For information, call 646-2137.

A related 10-part television series, "Connections," is being broadcast Sunday evenings this fall by Connecticut Public Television.

By A. Hunter Dupree

Last year the U.S. government spent more than $25 billion on scientific research and technological development.

Slightly less than half this amount was spent on defense research, generally recognized as a legitimate function of all governments. But what about the rest?

Why should the government of a nation that has traditionally been committed to the concept of free enterprise be pouring billions of dollars annually into research and development?

Until the 19th century, government involvement with technology grew very slowly. It then became apparent that modern science through technology could effect rapid and, it was hoped, beneficial — social change.

The crisis of the 20th century, particularly World War II, stimulated an even closer relationship and an even greater interaction between government and technology.

Critics now charge that government is controlling the direction of scientific research and the course of technological development and that this influence is corrupting both.

Proponents, however, argue that even more government involvement is necessary to support the research and development required to maintain our standard of living and to help the poorer nations of the world.

Early Involvement

The connection between government and technology is not necessarily close. Throughout much of history, government has been the special concern of the powerful. Technology, on the other hand, very early became the special concern of craftspeople — often humble origins but with skills that made possible weaving, pottery, metalworking, building of shelter, and all the other processes necessary to provide for human needs.

Since people specialized in certain crafts and then exchanged their products for those of others, questions of the value of weights and measures arose. Thus, more than 2,500 years ago governments became referees in setting the standards of weights and measures.

Also, since money came to be measured by the weight of gold or silver, governments not only made coins but insured their value by imprinting them with official seals and by milling the edges to prevent clipping.

In the same way governments established standard measures of volume for grain and liquids, standard weights, and standard rulers of length. The power of government guaranteed the integrity of these measures used in technology. Governments still perform these functions through their mints and their national bureaus of standards.

Nation State and Technology

In western Europe in the later Middle Ages, technologies arose capable not only of building Gothic cathedrals but also of sustaining cities and of trading with Asia. At the same time, the national governments of France, Spain, Portugal, and England came into existence.

By the end of the 15th century, this combination of technology and nation states made possible the extension of trade and colonialization to the western hemisphere.

The governments of these nations did not create the technology of the sailing ship that made this expansion possible. But they were called upon to provide support to shipmasters and sailors of a kind beyond the resources of private individuals.

This support included the development of mapmaking and the astronomical observations necessary for a reliable worldwide navigation system. By the 17th century, for example, such great institutions as the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, had been founded to develop astronomical charts for navigators.

Governments continue to provide such services as map-making today.

Since traders and colonizers rarely had the time and energy to explore unknown territory, governments gradually took on the function. By the 18th century these expeditions, for example, those sent to the Pacific by the British Admiralty under Captain James Cook, had penetrated to most parts of the globe. Today, governments continue to send out exploring expeditions to Antarctica and even to the moon.

Government Research

During the 19th century, as natural science took on its modern form, the governments of western Europe and the United States realized that they could help their people develop more powerful technology if they provided scientific research which was beyond the means of universities and other private institutions.

Despite some opposition to "impractical" research, governments increasingly concluded that the best way to attack the human scourges of scarcity and disease was to support laboratories for the production of seemingly "useless" knowledge. Hence, through agencies such as the U.S. Department of Agriculture, governments began to shift from a passive to an active attack on human problems by supporting basic scientific research.

World War I and After

The most important shift in the government's relation to science came at the outbreak of World War II. Wartime leaders saw the need to mobilize all the nation's scientific resources that were applicable to weapons and medicine.

Instead of just strengthening government laboratories, they turned to the universities, industry, and private foundations to find the laboratory facilities and the scientists, especially in medicine, electronics, and atomic energy, whose research might mean the difference between victory and defeat.

The network of contracts that they set up carried government money out to the scientists and laboratories, resulting in such discoveries as penicillin, the atomic bomb, and radar.

At the end of World War II, government and science leaders agreed that the system of contracts tying together the universities, industry, and the foundations with government support should become permanent. The government made a definite commitment to maintain America's role as the world's leader in science and technology.

By the mid 1960s some $16 billion of government money was flowing into research and development. Every branch of technology was affected in some way. The National Science Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and much-expanded National Institutes of Health became the dominant research agencies of the U.S. Government.

This new trend stimulated controversy. Opponents claimed that university scientists, in order to receive government grants, were forced to pursue research in specified areas. Others charged that some programs were wasteful; the manned lunar landing program, for example, was criticized as being political and not justifiable on any scientific grounds.

Such criticisms resulted in a new emphasis on research concerned with pressing national needs, that is, projects that would vitally benefit the general public, such as cancer research.

Need for Reassessment

In the past 15 years, a whole new series of issues developed that increased government involvement with technology.

The very success of modern chemistry and physics in industry produced pollutants that themselves became a threat. Scientific, machine based agriculture triggered large migrations of people and transformed the inner districts of large cities. Atomic energy eased the pressure on scarce fossil fuels, but created new safety and waste disposal problems.

Although government regulation of technology to combat the worst abuses of environment dates back to the late 19th century, active research on an unprecedented scale was clearly needed. Congress responded by setting up an Environmental Protection Agency, by changing the Atomic Energy Commission into a Department of Energy and a Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and by creating an Office of Technology Assessment.

But these actions did not silence critics of the burgeoning relation between government and technology. The federal government's encouragement of nuclear power, for example, was seen as a threat to the health and safety of people, and the accident at the nuclear plant at Three Mile Island confirmed these fears. Government policies relating to the environment, consumer products, and worker safety have also been challenged as unresponsive to public needs and wishes.

Such controversies will undoubtedly continue as long as the majority of our citizens are committed to a society characterized by high technology, which only the government can support.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the distributing agency, or the participating newspapers and colleges.

Next Week: Historian Lynn White Jr., emeritus professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, examines the creative process behind technological inventions.

Questions

- Which of the following forms of government aid presently in effect had NOT been established before the 18th century?
  - government control of coinage
  - government supervision of weights and measures
  - government support of navigational aids
  - government support of basic research
- In the past 20 years, government
  - has become less involved with technology, following its expansion in World War II
  - was criticized by some for spending money on the wrong projects
  - withdrew its support of basic research by university scientists
  - has silenced critics through the creation of new regulatory agencies

Thick Fog, Smoke Blamed For 24-Vehicle Accident

WEST HAVEN (UPI) — Motorists and authorities blame a blanket of thick fog and smoke covering the Connecticut Turnpike for a chain reaction accident Friday which involved 24 vehicles and left seven people injured.

State police said the shaken drivers "everybody began hitting anybody else" when the visibility dropped due to the combination of burning fog and smoke spewing out of a car abandoned on Interstate 95.

"It happened so fast. All I know is I felt a couple of crashes and then there was a Volkswagen under my tires," said Bob Foulst of New Haven, driver of a school truck.

"You couldn't see the other accidents with the smoke and fog," said Foulst.

Seven people were taken to area hospitals and three were admitted, with one man in critical condition, officials said.

Many of the motorists who escaped injury said it was "miraculous" more people weren't hurt in the massive pileup, which occurred about a quarter of a mile east of the West Haven toll station.

It was just one big boom, boom, boom. I thought we were dead, it was unbelievable so many people got out of there alive," said Dorothy Vasvary of New Brunswick, N.J.

A Chevron Oil truck carrying 5,000 gallons of gasoline and a Mobil Oil Co. tanker were involved in the crash. However, the Chevron truck's gas tank wasn't struck and the Mobil tanker was empty, averting a possible fire and explosion, police said.

Some diesel fuel did leak from the Mobil truck's "saddle tanks," prompting state police to move motorists from the area and call in firefighters to hose down the highway.

"You weren't safe anymore," said Linda Vasvary, of Edison, N.J.

"I just got down on the seat and put my hands over my head," said John Barone of Milford.

Police said a total of 14 vehicles were extensively damaged in the pileup. Four were totaled. Other vehicles sustained only "fender-bender" damage, police said.

"Evidently it was a chain reaction thing," said Trooper Anthony Frago, the first official on the scene. "There was more than one accident."

Witnesses told police a passing motorist had stopped when he noticed white smoke coming from a tire on the parked car. The man tried to extinguish the fire, but it spread to the inside of the car.

Trooper Paul Samuels said two other motorists reported seeing two men flee from the parked car. A police check of the car's registration did not match and authorities were checking the vehicle's identification number to determine if it had been stolen.

Police shut down the highway from Exit 39 in Milford to the West Haven toll station. Traffic in both directions of the highway was backed up several hours.

Admitted to Saint Raphael's hospital in New Haven were John Doyle, 45, of Bridgeport, listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit; Felicia Ruba, 28, of Milford, in fair condition; and Pasquale Licarelli, 31, of West Haven, still under observation.

Thousands Go Shopping

United Press International

Thousands of people jammed New England shopping centers Friday on the traditional first day of the Christmas shopping season. They enjoyed warmer more springlike than winter as temperatures hovered around 70 degrees in many southern cities.

The mercury climbed to a balmy 72 degrees at Green Airport in Warwick, R.I., at 1 p.m. — equaling a record high for the day as well as the record for the highest temperature ever recorded so late in the autumn season.

The previous record for both states was set Nov. 25, 1931.

The temperature reached 69 degrees at Logan International Airport in Boston at the same hour, but was 8 degrees shy of the record high for the date — also set in 1931.

Mentally Ill Treated By Life in Outdoors

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Thomas Stich believes that persons suffering from mental illness don't have to spend all day in a stuffy institution when they can be out enjoying the White and Green mountains.

Psychological benefits by overcoming a seemingly impossible task, such as a 150-foot rock climb.

Successful completion of the tasks or problems help resolve anxieties, he said.

The innovative program is part of a three-year research project at Dartmouth Medical School trying to prove that life in the great outdoors can be successfully used in the treatment of mental patients.

It's all part of Outward Bound — a worldwide program which uses survival techniques to help individuals go beyond what they believe are their psychological and physical limits.

Stich said he has received very favorable responses in the 10 months the program has been in existence.

Like the New Hampshire man being treated for depression at the mental health center because he was very deeply in debt.

The man joined the cadre of rock climbers, his spirits soared, and Stich received a $50 check in the mail.

"It had been sent by the man's wife who said the experience was the best thing that ever happened to her husband," Stich said.

The Outward Bound program was developed in pre-World War II Germany, but the Dartmouth research project marks the first effort to thoroughly document its use and benefits in the field of mental health.

The project is a joint effort by Hanover's Outward Bound program and Dartmouth Hitchcock Mental Health Center and is being funded with an $80,000 grant from a private foundation.

Stich has led more than 100 patients from age 13 to 70 since the program began 10 months ago. The coed groups range in size from two to a dozen, and come from the mental health center and Veterans Administration Hospital in White River Junction, Vt.

Stich uses rappelling, cliff climbing, canoeing, backpacking and cross country skiing to instill in his patients the goals of leadership, completing a task, improving self-esteem and working with a group.

"It is satisfying to be part of an experience where people can do that and to see their satisfaction when they accomplish something they thought was out of the question at the outset."

A former Outward Bound instructor, Stich comes to Dartmouth from New Mexico where he worked in a wilderness rehabilitation program for the criminally insane. Before that he worked in corrections and in education.

Stich who recently started working with alcoholics in the veterans hospital, is training interns to help him in his work and gets requests weekly from mental health professionals who want to be trained in the technique.

One of his goals is to set up an institute to train professionals from all over the country in the "action oriented approach."

Carter Sets Maine Trip

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI) — President Carter is due to arrive in Maine Dec. 5 when he makes the Pine Tree State — called "Kennedy's backyard" by a Carter supporter — his first stop after announcing his candidacy the night before.

The New England office for Carter's reelection campaign announced details Friday of the president's planned visit to Maine — where Gov. Joseph E. Brennan last month became the first governor to endorse a presidential bid by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Carter will fly from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington to the Brunswick Naval Air Station, arriving at 10:30 a.m.

He will proceed here — Maine's most heavily Democratic city — by helicopter for a 10:45 a.m. reception hosted by Carter supporters Rodney S. Quinn, Maine's secretary of state, and House Speaker John L. Martin, D-Eagle Lake.

The exact location for the reception will be arranged next week, said Ellis Woodward, press spokesman for Carter's New England campaign. He said they are looking for a hall that can house 600 to 1,000 persons.

BOSTON (UPI) — There are no Grand Canyons in New England to save from the spread of condominiums and shopping centers.

But how about a quaking bog, a glacial lake, red-bellied turtles or a salt marsh?

Those are just four of the region's more subtle natural wonders preserved in recent years by the Nature Conservancy — a non-profit group which buys up threatened land to be kept forever wild.

The quaking bog is Black Pond, a 78-acre habitat for uncommon plants in Norwell, Mass., a growing suburb just a few miles from Boston.

The glacial lake is part of the Burt Forests in northern Vermont, one of the conservancy's largest purchases including 15 square miles of lakes, sheer cliffs, forest and waterfalls.

The salt marsh is on Prudence Island in Rhode Island's Narragansett Bay, a home for thousands of shellfish and shore birds in a fragile area increasingly threatened by air and water pollution.

The conservancy has also helped preserve a freshwater pond in Plymouth, Mass., which assures continuation of the endangered red-bellied turtle. Naturalists believe less than 200 of the turtles are left in the world, and most of them live in Plymouth.

Since its inception in 1950, the little-known conservancy has preserved about a million acres of land throughout the United States. Its members see money come from strange bedfellows — small individual donations, prestigious foundations, and some of the nation's biggest corporations such as IBM, ITT and General Motors.

Some of the conservancy's oldest chapters thrive in Maine. Connecticut and Vermont, and New England holds 20 percent of all conservancy preserves nationwide. There are 60,000 members in the region.

Top priority for the conservancy, exemplified by the red-bellied turtle pond, is the purchase of "habitats which are now on federal endangered lists," said Bradford C. Northrup, eastern regional director.

Tips on land are given mainly through volunteers, many of them natural scientists. "They are the eyes and ears of the conservancy," it gives us a multiplying effect," he said.

One of the conservancy's most dramatic purchases is 469 acres of mountain land lying in the shadow of the White Mountain Presidential range in New Hampshire.

Crawford Path is believed to be the oldest continuously used hiking trail in the United States. It begins in a notch and slowly climbs to Mt. Washington — at 6,288 feet the highest peak in the northeast.

The acreage now protected surrounds Crawford House, in past decades a big attraction for vacationing presidents, foreign dignitaries and rich Yankees.

Several years ago the hotel went out of business, and the land surrounding it was ripe for commercial development. But the conservancy joined with the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests to help save it.

The three groups raised the needed money to buy the parcel, then turned it over to the U.S. Forest Service for supervision.

Two lakes on the land form headwaters of the Saco and Ammonoosuc Rivers, two of New England's longest waterways which eventually flow into the Atlantic.

Their sources now remain forever wild.

Another example of the conservancy's resourcefulness can be seen in Vinalhaven, a small island off the rocky Maine coast known for its lobster industry, friendly villagers and picturesque harbor.

Accessible only by ferry from the mainland, it allows no overnight camping and much of its most scenic land is privately owned.

There are few things more discouraging to an outdoors enthusiast than to hike down a wooded path toward the sea, only to run across a sign within earshot of the waves warning "Private land — no trespassing."

This often happens at an end of Vinalhaven. At the other end, 45 acres of fields, marsh and moorland was bought up by residents and given to the conservancy. It is kept in its present state as a recreational preserve.

Thanks to the Vinalhaven purchase, dozens of species of fragrant wildflowers, ivies, berries and mosses now practically choke the narrow grassy paths which lead a visitor to the ocean.

Anyone who walks there would agree — it's one of the most beautiful spots in New England.

Heavy fog covers New York City Friday, encircling lower Manhattan's twin towers of the World Trade Center. The thick fog reduced visibility to zero in many places, causing police to close a 26-mile stretch of the New Jersey Turnpike and hampering travel on one of the year's heaviest traffic days. # Schools Asked to Make Expulsion Rule Changes

VERNON—Mark R. Shedd, state commissioner of education, has informed the Vernon school officials that there are changes that have been made in the student suspension/expulsion law and he is asking all school districts to amend their policies to conform with the state law.

Shedd said that the existing law permits the removal, suspension and expulsion of students. Public Act 79-236 permits "in school suspension" from regular classroom activities if the suspension doesn't exceed five consecutive days; if it doesn't extend beyond the school year, and if it isn't imposed more than 15 times a year or total more than 50 days in one school year, whichever is fewer.

Dr. Shedd said school boards may authorize school administrators to impose in school suspension only in cases where a pupil's conduct endangers persons or property or seriously disrupts the educational process. And in-school suspension may not be imposed on a student without an informal hearing by the principal of the school which the student attends.

The amendment allows evidence of past disciplinary problems to be heard under the following circumstances: By a principal when deciding on the length of the suspension; or by a local or regional Board of Education when deciding on the length of an expulsion and on the alternative educational opportunity to be offered.

According to the amendment, an expulsion period may not extend beyond 180 consecutive school days, but it may extend into the next school year.

Another amendment provides that at a meeting of three or more board members, a student may be expelled if a majority of the three members sitting at the hearing, vote to expel provided that no less than three affirmative votes to expel are cast.

Social Action Group To Assess its Role

MANCHESTER—Manchester Citizens for Social Responsibility, will meet Wednesday to evaluate their past and future role in town government.

Robert Faucher, co-chairperson of the group, said Friday the organization is most known for the wrong thing. He said many people believe the group led the fight to keep Manchester in the federal Community Development Act grant program.

The group is composed in part of people who had been in an organization called JOIN, which was a pro-HUD group. But other members have joined the current organization and this organization has never taken a stand on HUD grants, Faucher said.

Residents in April voted for a two-year moratorium on participation in the program. The Board of Directors voted to withdraw from the program and the town is now in a legal battle involving some low income residents and the U.S. Justice Department.

Faucher said the organization is sure the federal funds issue will arise again. He said the group is concerned about fair housing, and expressed concern that some conservative residents may oppose spending federal funds in the Cheney National Historic District if any low-cost housing developed in that area.

Town officials are preparing plans for the revitalization of the historic district.

Faucher said the group is concerned about the town's affirmative action plan, and the distribution of education, health and human services in town.

He said a second purpose is to promote active and informed citizen participation in town government. To do that, members of the group monitor town committee meetings.

MANCHESTER—John Jasoc, who has been a lecturer in economics at Manchester Community College, has left that position to accept a similar post at the University of Hartford.

Jasoc lives in East Haddam.

Accident Made Campaign Painful

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—Since it was the weekend, the family had slept late. Waking to a bright fall day, the father decided to take the family out to breakfast. As the kids piled out of the car and the wife relaxed at the thought of not doing dishes, Dad twisted his back getting out of the car and slipped a disk.

That unlucky twist of the back not only ruined a family outing, but it also made the campaign season a nightmare for newly elected Democratic Town Director Jim McCavanagh. "I was in excruciating pain. For one week I never left the bed, just stared at the ceiling. But realizing I had a campaign to run, I forced myself to go out and meet the people," McCavanagh said Wednesday.

The six footer, who weighs well into the 200 pound range, said he tried to keep the extent of the pain he was enduring low key because, "I didn't want people to think I was crazy for running."

He said at the Concerned Citizens for Manchester's Development Meet the Candidates forum, the pain was making everything, "woozy before my eyes. Nate Agostinelli, the moderator, had told me before the event started that if I was in pain to get up and he'd excuse me to the audience. But I just couldn't get up. I would've made too much of a spectacle."

McCavanagh said the whole campaign was a series of very similar circumstances. He said once he attended a political function and was embarrassed because his shoelaces weren't tied. He said he just couldn't bend down to put on socks, shoes, or anything below the waist.

Mrs. McCavanagh, who is a nurse, believed her husband should have been in the hospital. "At times, she was very upset with me. She felt there is a point where loyalty to myself outweighed loyalty to the people," McCavanagh said. He added he never considered dropping out of the race.

Three doctors, including a chiropractor and a neurosurgeon, looked at McCavanagh. His last doctor, who specialized on bones and muscles, took one look and said, "Jim, you should've been in the hospital a long time ago."

McCavanagh said he told the doctor, "Please make it possible for me to get sworn in. Well over 6,000 people voted for me and I don't want to let them down at this point."

McCavanagh entered the hospital Nov. 14 and was in until Nov. 20. He spent time in traction. On Nov. 18, the date the Honorable Jay Rubinow was to administer the oath of office to the Board of Directors, McCavanagh was released from the hospital on a pass, so he could attend the ceremonies.

Also at that ceremony, the election of board officers took place. If McCavanagh had not been in attendance, the 5-4 Democratic board would have been reduced to an even 4-4. It was the extra Democratic vote that elected Stephen Cassano, who placed fourth in the vote tally, to the deputy mayor slot over Republican Carl Zinsner. Zinsner placed second in the vote tally.

It was also the tiebreaking Democratic vote that gave McCavanagh the board's secretary position. McCavanagh placed fifth in the vote tally, while Republican William Diana placed third.

Due to the partisan nature of the officer's election some expressed concern about McCavanagh's reason for attending the organizational meeting of the board. A Herald editorial dated Nov. 20 said, "We hope his presence was dedication and not an act of party loyalty showing the Democrats needed his vote. We give him the benefit of the doubt and congratulate him on his dedication to public service."

McCavanagh said Wednesday, "I guess I give the editorial the benefit of the doubt for writing such a statement. I did hear lots of comments that the editorial was unjustified, and it really upset me."

McCavanagh said the Democratic party leaders in town had been "sympathetic to my problem, but of course they were running their own campaigns. It was my own problem.

The group would like to develop modified programs of athletics, arts and crafts and such for those who can't participate in the regular programs due to their disabilities. The group also said it would like to establish a social center where it could meet on a regular basis. Those who would like to join the task force but will be unable to attend the Dec. 4 meeting should write to the Manchester Exceptional Child PTA, P.O. Box 1324, Manchester, or call 649-0338.

MANCHESTER—The Manchester Exceptional Child PTA will meet Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Buckley School 250 Vernon St. The topic of discussion will be "Recreation and Socialization for Exceptional Children."

The PTA is making plans to establish a task force to be made up of interested community organizations, town agencies, school officials, and parents who would like to see all exceptional children and young adults have an opportunity to be assimilated into existing town recreation and athletic activities,

Wood at Landfill

MANCHESTER—Public Works Director Jay J. Giles said Wednesday wood that contractors are dumping into a sanitary landfill "junk stuff" though it could be usable, "but we haven't got the manpower or equipment to set aside the wood for use," he said.

At the Tuesday night Board of Directors meeting, director Carl Zinsner raised the question of possible use of the wood being dumped at the landfill.

Merle Oberon Dies of Stroke
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Merle Oberon, a glamorous beauty who was one of Hollywood's brightest movie stars in the 1930s and 1940s, died Friday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center from the effects of a stroke. She was 81.

Miss Oberon suffered the stroke at her Malibu Beach home late Thursday night and was rushed to the hospital where she had heart surgery a year ago.

She was in a coma when she arrived and never regained consciousness, according to Larry Baum, associate hospital administrator.

She died at 3 p.m. Her fourth husband, actor Robert Forster and other members of her family were in the hospital at the time, Baum said.

Miss Oberon first got a foothold on the ladder to movie stardom in England playing opposite Charles Laughton as one of the many wives of King Henry VIII.

In November 1978 at the same hospital, Miss Oberon underwent successful heart surgery during which an aortic valve was replaced.

Miss Oberon, who was born Estelle Merle O'Brien Thompson, was perhaps best remembered for her tragic role opposite Sir Olivier in "Wuthering Heights" in 1939.

Her dark beauty, slanting eyes and rosebud mouth brought her international fame and she was a symbol of fashionable elegance.

Miss Oberon was born on the island of Tasmania where her mother was visiting a relative and she lived in Calcutta, India, until she was 16 when she moved to England.

She performed bit roles in English films for two years, then met producer Alexander Korda who signed her to a contract, groomed her for exotic roles and eventually married her.

The petite — five feet, two inch — beauty starred in "Wedding Rehearsal" and three other films before she got her first big break in "The Private Lives of Henry VIII."

Elm City Man Held in Death
NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Superior Court Judge Philip E. Mancini Jr. Friday continued until Dec. 4 the case of a New Haven man charged in the death of an unidentified woman whose skeletal remains were found in Bethany.

Bond for William Parker Jr., 29, who was arrested Wednesday on a Superior Court warrant, remained at $100,000.

In lieu of posting bond, Parker was returned to the Bridgeport Correctional Center, where he had been charged with murder while awaiting a court hearing on a variety of weapons charges.

Superior Court Judge Frank Kenney Jr., who signed the arrest warrant for Parker, had set bail at $100,000.

The skeleton of the young woman was discovered Nov. 17 in a wooded area off Wooding Hill Road in Bethany after information was received by New Haven police.

A preliminary report from the office of the Chief Medical Examiner indicated the presence of bullet wounds in the skeleton.

Book on Coin History Has Its Own History

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Dave Bowers, whose "Adventures with Rare Coins" took the 1979 Book of the Year Award of the Numismatic Literary Guild, has now come out with a comprehensive history of our coinage from the earliest colonial to modern times. It is an immense volume of nearly 600 pages, profusely illustrated.

The book has an interesting history of its own. The title page states that it was written by Q. David Bowers for Johns Hopkins University. Although commercially it would have to sell for about $75, it is being offered for $30 through Nov. 30, and for $30 thereafter. The reason the university is the angel for the publication is that it is based on its Garrett Collection of United States coins that is to be auctioned in four sessions by the Bowers & Ruddy Galleries.

Thomas Harrison Garrett, whose family managed the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad, ran across an old New Jersey copper cent when he was a student at Princeton around 1865. He got the rare coin bug and eventually formed one of the finest collections ever assembled.

His sons, Robert Garrett and John Work Garrett, made many additions and by the time it became the property of Johns Hopkins University, it was almost beyond belief.

The trustees of the university became jittery and stashed it all in a bank vault. Later, realizing that the assets could be better used in other areas, they decided to sell it down the river. It is stated that the book was authorized "so that the numismatic importance of the Garrett coins could be preserved."

A clue to this numismatic importance can be seen by looking at page 32 of the Red Book. It shows the silver Nova Constellation pattern coins — the very first pattern for the coinage of the United States and the basis of our decimal system. We see four coins, each stated to be unique. The first sale of the Garrett Collection on Nov. 28-29 offers every one of them!

These are mentioned in the book's preface, along with a Brasher doubloon and a few other incredible, and then there is something that strikes very near home: "The 1737-1739 copper coinage of Dr. Samuel Higney of Granby, Connecticut, is the finest such group ever formed and includes... the only known specimen of

Fahey Urges OK on Link

EAST HARTFORD — State Sen. Marcella Fahey, D-East Hartford, Friday urged the Capitol Region Council of Governments to endorse the Interstate 84-connector right of way and said she is confident the project will be completed on schedule.

In a letter to Ann Street, who chairs the regional council, Sen. Fahey said the connector is one of her top priorities because of its great impact on East Hartford and Manchester.

She said she has continued assurances from Donato Alibelli, division administrator of the Federal Highway Administration, and Commissioner Arthur Powers of the Connecticut Department of Transportation that all procedures are correct and design is on schedule.

Sen. Fahey said she is confident the council will endorse the right of way.

She added, "Of course, I feel we should look into all forms of transit including mass transit using commuter buses, commuter vans and light rail on the rail line between Hartford, East Hartford and Manchester."

"I do not believe," she said, "that one form of transit precludes the others and thus my resolve that the connector be completed as soon as possible."

She said, "My continued contact with federal and state officials convinces me it will be."

Addressing a group of Pakistani officers visiting Iran, Khomeini called on the Islamic world to "unite and revolt together and expel this corrupt, anti-Islamic and anti-Israeli government (the United States) from history."

Responding to his exhortations, an estimated 6,000 Iranians marched on the U.S. Embassy, shouting "Go to Hell, Carter."

In Washington, State Department officials said efforts to free the hostages by peaceful means were still continuing and that there was "some encouragement" from the fact that diplomatic channels were still open.

They did not elaborate but two would-be mediators were in Tehran on unofficial missions — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, and Sean McBride, former head of Amnesty International and the only person to hold both the Lenin and Nobel peace prizes.

Hansen said he had a "very productive conversation" with acting Iranian Foreign Minister Abdel Basset Sadr, adding that he and Iranian authorities had agreed on a plan to hold a public discussion of crimes allegedly committed by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, whose extradition is being demanded by Iran in return for releasing the hostages.

But the State Department, maintaining the position Washington has taken since the start of the crisis Nov. 4, said there could be no negotiation with Iran unless the hostages were freed first.

Employees Credited In Van Theft Bust

MANCHESTER — Quick action by two young employees of Marlow's Department Store is being credited for the apprehension of an East Hartford man accused of stealing the store's truck Friday afternoon. The truck later was demolished and burned.

Marlow lauded his employees for having the nerve and caring enough about their employer and their jobs to get involved in the 45-minute chase.

"You hear a lot about problems with young people in school and with crime, but I think these two young people deserve a lot of credit," he said.

Marlow said the loss of his truck, which had recently been reconditioned, will create problems for his business, especially during the busy holiday season.

He added he is grateful nobody was injured in the incident.

Town Man Charged After Early Crash

MANCHESTER — A pre-dawn Friday accident in which a car swerved out of control, struck down a wall of a Cottage Street building and landed debris on the car hood and street, drew charges of reckless driving and evading responsibility for a Manchester man.

James L. Sheldon Jr., 29, of 173 Spruce St. is accused of hitting the building, then fleeing the scene. He was apprehended after witnesses said they saw the car leave the scene and after he allegedly went through a stop light at Main and Birch streets.

Pac Sees Problems In Shopping Malls

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sprawling shopping centers may be convenient to consumers, but Connecticut's environmental chief believes they cause lots of natural and economic problems.

Environmental Protection Commissioner Stanley Pac said regional shopping centers have resulted in the "scarring of the environment and economic degradation."

Testifying before the state Council on Environmental Quality Wednesday, Pac said, "I think we can all safely say that the proliferation of shopping malls has not provided concomitant benefits."

He added, however, there is little which state and regional officials can do to prevent construction of more large indoor malls.

State Rep. Janet Polinsky, D-Waterford, said legislators are not likely to give the state the power to restrict malls. Mrs. Polinsky represents the district where a one-million-square-foot shopping center is planned.

"This is a capitalistic country. This is a home-rule state, and decision should be on the local level," she told the council.

C. Francis Driscoll, New London city manager, is opposed to the connector. He would like to see the "dangerously close" to a well New London plans to buy to augment its water supply, he said.

Driscoll said the mall would also draw business away from the downtown district.

The DEP only has some say on malls if they are located on or near inland wetlands, Pac said.

The state Traffic Commission can influence development of such malls, transportation traffic manager James Rice told the council, but the commission has never blocked a mall construction because of traffic congestion, Rice said.

The council is an administrative arm of the DEP with only advisory powers.

Other Primaries Worry 'Father'

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The father of New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary law is worried the state could lose its grip on first place and also the national limelight.

As speaker of the house in 1949, Concord attorney Richard Upton did the research and authored the legislation which created New Hampshire's showcase primary.

Upton said he had two things in mind when drafting the law, the state's voters and its national influence.

"I wanted to make the presidential primary more meaningful and more interesting to the voters of each party so we could get better participation," he said.

The Manchester Symphony Orchestra, soon to observe its 20th anniversary, will open its 1979-80 concert season on Sunday, Dec. 2 at Manchester High School Auditorium.

The orchestra, previously called the Manchester Civic Orchestra, was the brainchild of John Gruber, former columnist for The Herald and a former piano soloist with the Boston Symphony, who, back in the summer of 1960 issued a call to area residents to polish up their instruments and turn out to help form a civic orchestra.

The call was heeded and some 60 musicians turned out to perform in the orchestra which through the years has had rave reviews. In 1966, Mrs. Robert Johns and three of their children, Michael, Stephen, and Bobbie; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Embser and their children, Linda and Donald; and Dr. and Mrs. Francis Helrick.

Membership in the orchestra is comprised of people from all walks of life including teachers, a pediatrician, a psychiatrist, a bartender, machinist, computer programmer, preacher, etc. It is an orchestra of the people and for the people.

Members of the Orchestra and Choral come from 27 area towns and one from Massachusetts. Under Dr. Heller's direction, orchestra presidents have been Pierre Marteney, Peter Thorne, Dana Howes and Dr. Francis Helrick. Currently, Betty Brown is president of the orchestra and choral and Barbara Dickie is orchestra manager. Mrs. Dickie's husband, George, is ticket manager and house manager.

Commenting on the success of the MSO, Mrs. Dickie said, "This is their love, music is their outlet." "We have 80 members and many more on call. People appreciated having the opportunity to play. We have a waiting list for all wind instruments."

"Manchester should be very proud to be home base for such a fine orchestra and choral," Mrs. Brown said.

Many of the talented musicians who joined MSO have gone on to finer things. Among them, Alan Pease, who was guest soloist playing a Haydn Trumpet Concerto, and who later went on to play in the Harvard-Redcliffe Orchestra and brass ensemble. He also managed the Harvard Symphony.

Church World Service Needs Contribution

By CLIFF SIMPSON

That's a lot of money, but that is what Church World Service is asking for right now. Paul F. McCleary, executive director, has issued a strong and urgent appeal to the churches for Cambodian relief. Other cries for need of help are on every hand - e.g. The United Methodist Church seeking $2,000,000 and the Church of the Brethren for $100,000. Already CWS has sent $25,000 worth of mosquito netting through UNICEF as well as an airlift to Phnom Penh carrying 30 tons of food and 10 tons of medical supplies. By sea they have sent 1200 tons of food and other supplies. It is estimated that 2,500,000 are suffering from starvation within the next six months. It is estimated that 80 percent of the children are suffering from malnutrition, that there is virtual absence of social infrastructure (lack of transportation, communication, and educational systems), and added to all these there are only 55 doctors for the whole country. If you can give, please do. You can share through your church, send your help direct to Church World Service, 475 Riverside Drive, NYC 10027, or if you wish, I will forward all contributions from the office will help explain the philosophy.

"CWC to act as umbrella agency with other U.S. voluntary agencies, using North American personnel. While other international agencies (World Council of Churches, UNICEF, OXFAM), are concentrating on emergency food and medical relief, CWS is providing a longer term program of relief and development that will focus on supplementary nutritional needs and public health."

Please give - the need is overwhelming.

Coincident? Or, Design? Sometimes in church bulletin a missing word or one in the wrong place can change the entire meaning of the announcement. Similarly in the order of worship the juxtaposition of a phrase may be a double meaning as in the note I came across just the other day. Right after the choir had finished its anthem, the minister announced as his text, "Now when the uproar had ceased." The story goes that the singers bided their time and when the sermon ended they rose and rendered in melodious fashion another anthem that began, "Now it is high time to awake out of sleep."

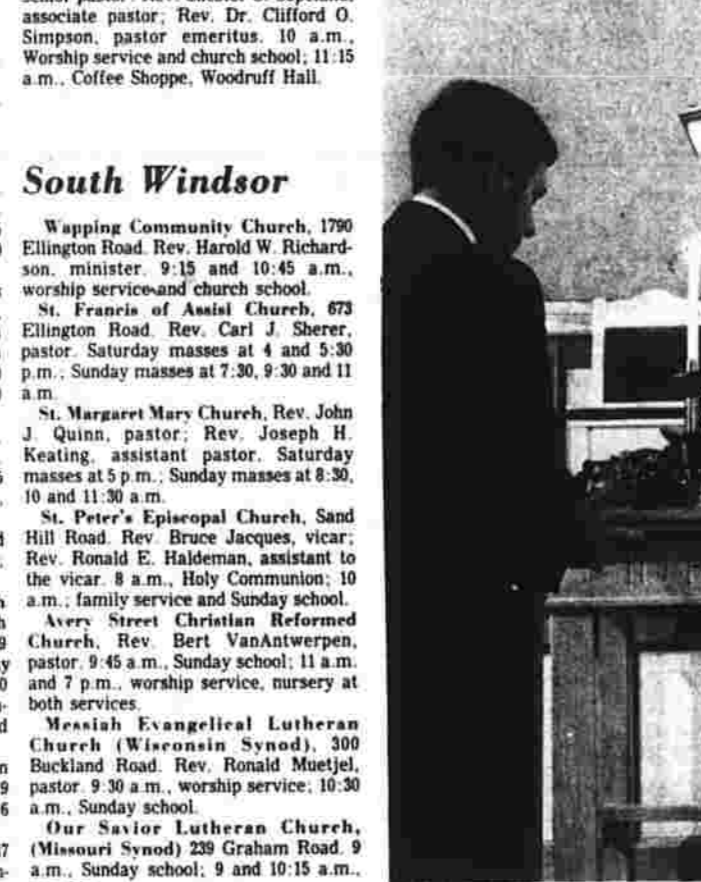

I Learned A Lesson Some years ago I was visiting very close friends in Switzerland. One evening we talked together looking out over the lovely lake on which to be sure the church of the conversion a man's name came up. I knew him well - as well as his faults. For a laugh I was about to share one of his weaknesses. Fortunately for me the hostess casually mentioned that he had been their guest just last week. I quickly clamped my mouth shut and resolved not to yield to that temptation again. Perhaps this true incident out of a man's diary can further clarify the matter.

"Daddy, Don't See The Blots" "On reaching home one evening, tired and somewhat dispirited, my little girl brought her copybook which she had just completed. It was her first, and the young face reddened with a beautiful and honest flush, for she knew as she turned over the pages some little word of praise and cheer would reward her hard attempt.

The pages were very neatly written, and I told her that a pleasure it was to see how careful she had been. Presently we came to one on which were two small blots. As she turned the page the little hand laid upon my face with an artlessness that was beautiful, she said, "Papa don't see the blots!" Of course I did not see them ...

Typical Scene

Does This Make You Churchier? You recall Bishop James Pike who was interested in many aspects of the Christian faith as well as the ecumenical movement. In an interview with Betty Medsger, he offered his gem:

"I was meeting with a group of men and said to them, 'I've got an idea.' The Presbyterian said, 'Just a minute. Is it sophisticated?' The Baptist said, 'Is it moral?' The Methodist said, 'Is it non-alcoholic?' The Disciples of Christ said, 'Is it Scriptural?' The Lutheran said, 'Is it evangelical?' The Quaker said, 'Is it quiet?' The Catholic said, 'Is it authoritative?' The Episcopalian said, 'Is it archaic?' Jesus said, 'Forget it.'"

Two Quotations Kim Hubbard asks: "Why doesn't the fellow who says, 'I'm no speechmaker,' let it go at that instead of giving a demonstration?" "When you prevent me from doing anything I want to do, that is persecution; but when I prevent you from doing anything you want to do, that is law, order and morals."

White brows to the sky? Shall I take away pity, that knits heart to heart, Will you lose all your heroes that lift from the fire? Shall I take away love, that redeems with a price, And smiles at its loss? Can we spare from your lives that was beautiful, she said, "Papa don't see the blots!" Of course I did not see them ...

News for Senior Citizens

By WALLY FORTIN Hl everyone! Sure hope you're enjoying this super holiday and now that Thanksgiving is over I guess it's back to diet time again. At least for one day it was fun to let it all hang out and really chow up. Because of the long holiday, we decided to have just one column and felt it best to go into Saturday. This way we can include the menu and schedule for the coming week in the regular time slot. This past Monday morning we started signing up for our 13 day Florida trip scheduled for February 21st. At this writing we still have about 20 seats left and if you're interested in enjoying a neat bus ride, where you just sit back and take in all the sights while leaving the driving to a professional, it's really a fun way to go and if you're interested, just call our office for more details. The happenings here at the center starts with last Friday afternoon's setback games. We had 60 players and the winners were: Miss Reuther, 140; Helena Cavella, 124; Kelly Ellsworth, 123; Marjorie Reed, 122; Arvid Peterson, 122; Mike Desimone, 121; Ruth Howell, 119; Beatrice Mader, 117; Bert Jorgensen, 117; Clara Hemmingsway, 115; Floyd Post, 114; Fernice Martin, 113; Ivette Houghtaling, 112; Martin Bakstan, 111. Then on Monday we were told that Bob Daggart is now a patient in the Manchester Memorial Hospital. Also the Paul Schuetz is recuperating at the Green Lodge. Sue Schaeffer is now home taking it easy after a recent operation on her arm. If you would like to send your mail, please address it to 275 School Street.

In the afternoon it was pinocle games and we had the following winners: Felix Jesania 786; Archie Houghtaling, 786; George Last, 767; Ed Hildie, 764; Betty Jesania, 753; John Kline, 761; Bess Noonan, 693; Sam Schors, 634; Robina Carroll, 626; Neppo Knockwurst, 626. With this a short week and all there isn't too much to write about. We're still "sweating" out the results of the meeting in Hartford regarding our application for funds to hopefully complete the Green School renovations. The meeting was supposed to be held this past Wednesday and by the time you read this, you may already know the results. Somewhere down the line, I'm sure that the new Board of Directors are giving our center some serious thought and I'm also sure they will find some way to see that it will be completed because they certainly are not going to let a building, already worth $200,000 into it, just sit idle for too long. So you folks who are naturally concerned, and eager to get in all I can say is have faith in the directors! I'm sure things will happen for the best and soon. Next Thursday after our delicious veal parmigiana dinner we will play bingo. By the way, our big show has been in the hospital and will be making its run starting again Monday morning.

Here are the bowling results for this past Tuesday at the Parkade Lanes: Class A men high single, Al Christensen, 215; Andy Lorenzen, 215; High triple, Edna Christensen, 440. Class B men single and triple, Tom Cloe, 163 and 411; Class B women single and triple, Viola Wenzel, 148 and 308.

We'd like to congratulate one of our members, Bill Rice who recently received a very nice honor at the Summer Up Volunteer for the State for his endless work in our local convalescent home. Bill does a lot of volunteer work for us as well and we are very happy to see him being recognized for his efforts. Here is some good news for you folks, especially if you missed out on our Holiday Fair. Some of our ladies have volunteered to open up the center from 10

Democrats Fill Posts, GOP Prepares To Do So

MANCHESTER - Democratic appointments to town commissions and committees were made at Tuesday night's Board of Director's meeting, while Republican appointments will be made at the board's next regular meeting. Mayor Stephen Penny said he made a unilateral decision to skip the board's recess due to the rapid pace agenda items were being acted upon. Republican Carl Zinsser said while he had no objection to finishing the board's business in one evening, he wished the GOP had been told, because they would've had their appointments prepared. Zinsser said he had expected the appointments would have been made at the Planning and Zoning Commission. Edward Hachadorian, an alternate on the Zoning Board of Appeals, was appointed to fill a regular spot on the board. Francis Marfo, Jr. was appointed to fill the alternate spot Hachadorian vacated. Frank Pisch Jr. was appointed to the Commission on Children and Youth. Betty Sadloski was appointed to the Board of Tax Review. Mildred Schaffer was appointed to the Commission on Aging. ## MSO Season Opens Dec. 2

Also, Philip Ruder, concert master during the 1983-84 season, went on to recitals in Lincoln Center and Carnegie Hall and was concert master of the Dallas Symphony. Robert Goodberg, a young East Hartford flutist when he was guest artist in 1984, is now a faculty member of the University of Wisconsin. Considered one of the outstanding flutists in the country, he performs around the country in the University's Woodwind Arts Quartet.

Cyrus Stevens, violinist, of Manchester, joined the orchestra in 1977, when he won the Manchester Civic Orchestra Concert Audition. He later became concert master of the New England Conservatory Ragtime Ensemble, with whom he toured Europe. He is currently studying for an advanced degree at Princeton University.

The orchestra's efforts to give young musicians performing experience continues and Kurt Nikkanen, violinist, who will appear in the opening concert Dec. 2 is a fine example.

Kurt entered the orchestra's competition for string players. The winner was to play a string concerto with the MSO in concert, and to win a $100 prize. Kurt, then 11 years old, won.

Now 13, Kurt is a native of West Hartford and has studied violin since he was three. He is studying music at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City where he studies violin with Dorothy Delay. He has also studied piano and has been a composition student of Dr. Avram David and Joyce Malcol in Boston. He first received critical attention in January 1977, when he won the Manchester Civic Orchestra Concert Audition. Subsequent awards included Alfred Neuberger Prize, Bertha Plasse Prize, Mozart Festival Competition Level I, and others.

He has appeared with orchestras such as the New Britain Symphony, Central Massachusetts, New Jersey Chamber Symphony and Pueblo Symphony. In the past year, he has expanded his career to include appearances with major orchestras in major concert halls. He was asked to fill in for violinist Isaac Stern by conductor Arthur Winograd at a Hartford Symphony rehearsal, and subsequently engaged for numerous Hartford Symphony concerts.

He made his debut with the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall, Boston in June 1977. His Carnegie Hall debut was Dec. 16, 1978 with the Young Symphony Orchestra of New York. Kurt is co-concert master of the orchestra.

Joining Kurt at the Dec. 2 concert will be Susan Brooks, who has performed extensively in recital, oratorio and opera throughout the Northeast. Her operatic credits include performances with the Eastman Opera Theater, Connecticut Opera Association, the Hartt Summer Repertory Company, Hartt Opera Theatre and the New Lyric Theatre.

Formerly on the voice faculties of Villa Maria College, Hartt School of Music, Mercyhurst College and Northwestern Connecticut College, Ms. Brooks is now singing professionally and maintains a private voice studio.

Tickets for Manchester Symphony Orchestra's concerts are available by subscription or individually at Beller's Music Store, Main Street, Manchester, or at the MHS auditorium door for $3, students and seniors, $1.

On March 30, the orchestra will present its 30th Anniversary Concert featuring Rachmaninoff's 2nd Piano Concerto with Joseph Villa, pianist.

On May 4, the Choral Concert at South United Methodist Church will feature guest soloist performing Schubert's "Mass in G" and Vivaldi's "Magnificat."

Then on June 6 and 7, at the Manchester Armory, the Greater Manchester Summer Pops Orchestra, sponsored by Manchester Community College, which is composed of many Manchester Symphony Orchestra members, will present a Pops Concert, with Peter Harvey, tenor.

To insure yourself of seats to all four events, subscribe to the Manchester Symphony Orchestra and Choral. For more information call Betty Brown at 644-5419.

Red Sox, Lockwood Agree to Terms

BOSTON (UPI) — Skip Lockwood, the free agent relief pitcher from the New York Mets, has agreed to terms with the Boston Red Sox and hopes to sign with the American League team "within a week."

The signing is contingent on Lockwood passing a physical examination to test his troubled right arm. But Lockwood said Friday in a telephone interview from his Greenwich, Conn., home that he is ready to play for Boston and will gladly undertake any exam they wish.

"I'd be a fraud and a liar if I took the money and my arm wasn't okay. I will submit to whatever tests they want. I welcome it. It would be wrong not to do it," Lockwood said.

"I came to a verbal agreement with (Red Sox General Manager) Haywood Sullivan Wednesday night. I hope to have the whole thing over within a week," he said.

The 33-year-old Norwood, Mass., native said he preferred to have the Red Sox make the formal announcement of his signing. The Quincy Patriot Ledger earlier Friday reported that Lockwood had agreed to terms.

"I'd like to let the Red Sox make the announcement. There are a few more things to be worked out. But I'm very optimistic. I'm convinced I'm going to be in Boston and it will be a great thrill pitching for such a team," he said.

Lockwood was chosen by 10 teams in the recent free agent draft. The Patriot Ledger reported he would be receiving about $150,000 a year over four years.

"That's about half right," Lockwood said, referring to the money. "But it was never an economic thing. We are very, very happy to be going to Boston. It's something I looked forward to all my life. I'll have my family and my wife's family and a lot of close friends. That's important."

Lockwood's addition to the Red Sox pitching staff assumes great importance given the arm troubles of Bill Campbell. Should Campbell not be able to pitch effectively in 1980, and the Red Sox aren't counting on him, Lockwood would provide the right-hander out of the bullpen.

"The arm is fine," he said. "I haven't thrown, but that's part of my therapy. It seems more flexible than it ever has been. I've been doing my exercises and it's really nothing that rest couldn't cure. I don't anticipate any problems, other than the stickiness from sitting out the winter," he said.

Lockwood was signed out of Catholic Memorial High School in West Roxbury by the Kansas City Athletics in 1964 as a third baseman. He played in the Kansas City system until 1968 when he was taken by the Seattle pilots in the expansion draft.

He turned into a pitcher with the Pilots and was a starting pitcher for four years after the franchise was moved to Milwaukee in 1970.

In 1974 he was traded to the California Angels and became a relief pitcher, and was traded to the New York Mets the following year. Lockwood won 10 games and saved 19 in 1976 for the Mets and the following year saved 20 games.

This past year he was 2-5 with 9 saves in 27 games with an earned run average of 1.50 before arm trouble shelved him for the last two months of the season.

Florida State Finishes Unbeaten

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Mark Lyles ran for touchdowns of 20 and three yards Friday to break a 10-10 tie in the fourth quarter and power fifth-ranked Florida State to 27-16 victory over winless Florida for the Orange Bowl-bound Seminoles first undefeated season since 1950.

FSU led at the half 10-0 on the strength of a 21-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jimmy Jordan to wide receiver Hardis Johnson and a 42-yard field goal by Daves Cappelen. But Florida came roaring back in the third quarter with a 39-yard field goal by Brian Clark and a 3-yard touchdown run by tailback Carl Proxeau.

After FSU had gone ahead with 12:31 to go on Lyles' first score and added an 18-yard field goal by Bill Capece, the Gators started the Seminoles with a 25-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Larry Ochab to tight end Chris Faulkner. The two-point conversion failed, however, and FSU then led the game with Lyles' second TD, capping a 48-yard drive with less than three minutes to play.

The victory before 38,283 fans at Florida Field and a national television audience was the third straight over their intrastate rivals and sent the Gators one step closer to their first winless season since 1946. Florida winds up next week against Miami.

Except for the 75-yard drive which ended with the Seminoles' first touchdown with only 11 seconds remaining before the half, FSU had trouble sustaining its drives and had to settle for two field goals.

After Lyles' 20-yard touchdown to start the fourth quarter, Capece booted an 18-yard field goal following the interception of an Ochab pass by defensive tackle Walter Carter on Florida's 10 yard line.

Florida State's Wally Woodham started the game for the Seminoles at quarterback, but was replaced by Jordan, who found his range late in the second quarter by connecting on passes of 13, 11, 12 and 9 yards.

Most of the first half was a defensive battle with the first-up Gators, wearing new orange jerseys for the first time, shutting down the Seminoles offense when it counted.

Florida's Ochab completed 22 of 54 passes for 270 yards, but had five passes intercepted — three in the first half that thwarted Florida drives.

Best Local Finish Credited to Gates

By EARL YOST

Best performances in Thursday's 43rd Five Mile Road Race in Manchester by local runners were turned in by Steve Gates, Ed Lemieux and Tim DeValve.

The veteran Gates, who shows no superstition and prefers to wear No. 13 on his jersey in competition, placed 12th in the field of nearly 4,000. This was the best placement by a home town runner since Bob Vinton was fourth in 1969.

"I wanted to run strong," Gates said after turning in a 23:41 time. The former Manchester High standout later starred at Eastern Connecticut

State College and now competes with the Hartford Track Club.

Gates' showing marked the sixth time that he was the first Manchester man to finish. He missed the 1970 run while in England. He's employed at Aetna Life Insurance Company in Hartford.

Lemieux, outstanding Manchester High runner a year ago, now a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, placed 22nd. Last year he was 36th and timed in 24:25 and had a time of 24:12 Thursday.

"My goal was to make the top 20," he said. "I would have liked to finish under 24 minutes."

I feel that each year I am improving and if I continue to work hard each year I'll be closer to the top."

Lemieux is the eighth man on the Penn squad, an indication the Ivy Leagueurs have a top-notch team.

Tim DeValve, who led Manchester High to the State Class LL Championship this fall, was the first schoolboy to finish.

He covered the course in 24:19. No placements were made available following the first 25 runners.

One youngster who did well was 14-year-old Gary Gates. The younger brother of Steve Gates, the ninth grader was timed in 26:20. Gates completed an outstanding record-shattering year in junior high competition as a member of the Illinois team and is a name to remember.

Reserve QB Paces Houston Comeback

HOUSTON (UPI) — Reserve junior quarterback Terry Elston ignited a sluggish offense with a 77-yard third quarter scoring drive and a 72-yard fourth quarter touchdown run Friday, pushing ninth-ranked Houston to a 14-10 victory over Texas Tech and preserving the Cougars' hopes for a trip to the Cotton Bowl.

For the Cougars to return to the Cotton Bowl for the third time in four years, the team must win its final game against Rice — and hope Texas loses or ties one of its final two games. If Texas falters, the Cougars would represent the Southwest Conference in the Arkansas Invitational in a first place tie.

If Houston, Texas and Arkansas win their remaining games, Arkansas will go to Dallas on New Year's Day, Texas will go to the Sugar Bowl and Houston will go to the Sun Bowl.

Houston trailed 10-0 with less than a minute to go in the third quarter as a 19-yard field goal by Tech's Bill Adams and a 61-yard scoring sprint by Haidar Abdullah James Hadnot, Elston replaced senior Delrick Brown and sparked the Cougar rally. He marched Houston 77 yards near the end of the third period and running back Terold Clark covered the final 14 yards to score for Houston with 44 seconds to go in the quarter.

The next time Houston got the ball, Elston kept the ball on an option play for 72 yards to put the Cougars ahead. The Cougars' comeback spoiled Hadnot's 199-yard performance, capping the best back-to-back rushing seasons in Southwest Conference history.

Hadnot entered the game with 1-123 yards and a 117-yard average in 10 games. The converted tight end matched that total in the first half and his third quarter scoring sprint was his first touchdown in 266 carries this year.

Hadnot finished the season with 1-371 on the ground.

The rally also spoiled a sparkling performance by Tech freshman quarterback Mark James, who replaced starter Jim Hart in the second quarter and took the Raiders on their only touchdown drive of the day.

Elston finished the game with 102 yards on 19 carries and completed four of nine passes for 51 yards. Clark added 167 yards on 30 carries for the Cougars attack and Tech leaders on the conference entering the game. Houston amassed 410 yards to Tech's 307.

The victory gave Houston a 9-1 record for the year and a 6-1 conference record. Tech finished at 3-6-2 and 2-5-1 in SWC play.

College Football Roundup

Nebraska, Sooners Clash in Key Tilt

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paced by Mark Lyles' touchdown runs of 20 and three yards, fifth-ranked Florida State completed its first perfect regular season since 1950 Friday by whipping state rival Florida, 27-16.

Despite the victory, however, the Seminoles will have to play a lot better in the Orange Bowl against the Big Eight Conference champion if they hope to survive the New Year with their perfect record intact.

Eighth-ranked Arkansas finishes the season against Southern Methodist Saturday and can clinch a tie for the SWC title with a victory. Sixth-ranked Texas meets 16th-ranked Baylor.

For the 12th straight year, the second-ranked Cornhuskers of Nebraska will be playing in a post-season bowl, but it's up to No. 10 Oklahoma to determine which one.

The winner of the Nebraska-Oklahoma clash will go to the Orange Bowl and the loser to the Cotton Bowl. Nebraska is determined that it will represent the Big Eight in Miami this season by avenging its 31-24 defeat at the hands of the Sooners in last year's Orange Bowl. However, in 1975, Nebraska was also 10-0 when it traveled to Norman, Okla. And the Sooners beat Nebraska 35-10.

In other games Saturday, No. 4 Southern California hosts UCLA. No. 10 Brigham Young visits San Diego State. No. 13 Clemson visits South Carolina and No. 17 Tulane plays host to No. 18 Louisiana State.

A victory by USC will send the Trojans to the Rose Bowl against Ohio State while the winner of the BYU-San Diego State will play in the Holiday Bowl.

After USC defeated Washington, 24-17, at Seattle on Nov. 10 it appeared as if the Trojans were definite for the Rose Bowl. But last week Pac-10 officials forced Arizona State to forfeit its victories, including a win over Washington. Which means that if UCLA upsets the Trojans, Washington and its 6-1 conference record will go to the Rose Bowl.

Hospital Stay

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers Coach Jack McKinney, who sustained severe head injuries, facial damage and a fractured arm in his elbow two weeks ago in a bicycle accident, will remain at Little Company of Mary Hospital for at least another week before undergoing surgery at another hospital, officials said Thursday.

Officials said earlier in the week he would be transferred to Centinela Medical Center in Inglewood "in the next few days" to prepare for the surgery. But doctors decided to postpone the operations until the end of November.

Finishing Scene During Five Mile Race Thursday

MISL To Kickoff Season Saturday

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Major Indoor Soccer League, a curious offspring of outdoor soccer and indoor hockey, begins its second season Saturday.

The defending champion New York Arrows meet the Philadelphia Fever in the season opener. The MISL, which has expanded from six to 10 teams, will be split into two divisions of five teams each. The Atlantic Division is comprised of teams from Buffalo, Hartford, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh while the Central Division has Cleveland, Detroit, Houston, St. Louis and Wichita.

The new clubs are Wichita, which becomes the first professional major-league team in the state of Kansas. Buffalo, Hartford, Detroit and St. Louis while the Cincinnati franchise dropped out.

Last year, the Houston Summit finished with the best record at 18-6 in the 24-game schedule but was eliminated in the playoffs by Philadelphia. New York and Cincinnati tied for second and the Arrows defeated Cincinnati to advance to the finals against the Fever. New York captured the best-of-three series in two straight matches.

The MISL will go head to head with an indoor league sponsored by the rival North American Soccer League, which opened its season Friday. Many of the players on MISL rosters are on loan from NASL clubs. However, the MISL says it is not out to compete directly with the NASL. Detroit is the only city that will have indoor teams in the NASL and MISL.

Kupchak Reinstated

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Washington Bullets activated forward Mitch Kupchak. He will be eligible to play on a two-game road trip to San Antonio and Houston. Kupchak has not played since the second game of last season's Eastern Conference championship series between the Bullets and the Spurs. He underwent back surgery for a herniated disc on June 29. To make room for him, the Bullets traded first-year forward Steve Malovic to San Diego for a 1982 draft pick and future considerations.

Out Two Weeks

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Washington Capitals defenseman Pete Scamurra, who was hurt in the Caps' 3-3 tie Tuesday night with Colorado, has strained knee ligaments and will be out of action for two or three weeks, the NHL club announced. The Caps also said Thursday defenseman Yvon Labre, also injured Tuesday, has a small tear in his knee cartilage but doctors plan to wait until the swelling goes down before they decide whether he can play.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fortunately for the Pittsburgh Steelers, a little bit of history will be on their side when they face the Cleveland Browns Sunday in an AFC matchup that may be a key factor in determining the divisional title.

Simply put, the Browns have never won a game in Three Rivers Stadium. Ever.

And despite the Steelers' embarrassing 23-7 loss to San Diego last week, few are willing to intimate the Steelers are slipping — even if they are a half-game out of first place in the AFC Central division, courtesy of Dallas' 30-24 Thanksgiving Day loss to first-place Houston.

"You don't have to be very smart to figure out that Pittsburgh is the most dominant team in the NFL," said Cleveland coach Sam Rutigliano, whose Browns were defeated by the Steelers 31-35 in Cleveland earlier this year and trail the Steelers by a game.

"What you have to remember is that San Diego may have the best defensive line in the league. When you have guys like that you're rushing the passer, you can have anyone at the corners and they'd be able to cover," Lynn Swann and (John) Stallworth.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, however, was grim when referring to the Steelers' loss, which dropped the team to 8-3.

"Some good had better come out of it or it makes it worse. It makes it clear to everybody — I don't think anyone can miss the point — that we have to win from here on out," said Noll.

Rutigliano's Browns, who have taken over from the Steelers as the AFC's top offense (368.4), are driving toward a playoff spot with an 8-4 mark. But after their meeting earlier this season, in which the Steelers jumped to a 27-10 lead, Rutigliano isn't predicting anything defensive changes, quipped the coach. "We're giving our middle linebacker a hand with the Oilers with three games remaining. Pittsburgh travels to Houston on Monday night, Dec. 10, and also must face Cincinnati and Buffalo. Houston's other games are against Cleveland and Philadelphia.

A victory by Cleveland, winless in nine trips to Three Rivers Stadium, would tie the Browns for second with Pittsburgh and open the way for a game at first place at home next week against Houston.

In the other Thanksgiving Day game, Detroit shut out Chicago 20-0 to drop the Bears 2 1/2 games out of first place in the NFC Central.

Efforts Appreciated
Mr. Len Auster
Manchester Evening Herald
10 Brainard Place
Manchester, Connecticut

Dear Mr. Auster:
On behalf of all those who follow Manchester High School athletics, and especially the school administration, I wish to thank you for the splendid treatment given to our soccer team's championship. I cite for special merit your efforts of November 19.

Your "Thoughts ApLENTY" column of that date captured especially well the wonderful emotions between the players and their coach (Dick Danielson). Equally impressive in our minds and equally appreciated was the positive way you handled the football team's effort Saturday against Windham. It is a great support to the school's sports program and the young athletes when the press handles these matters in a positive, encouraging manner. We commend you for this method of presentation and hope that this letter in some small way expresses our thanks. Sincerely,
Dr. James P. Kennedy
Superintendent of Schools
P.S. We would also be greatly indebted to Fred Adams for his splendid pictures of the soccer game on page 24. Well done, Fred.

Double Embarrassment

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Walter Payton's sore left shoulder will have the next 10 days to heal, his running mate takes a little longer to recover. The stellar Chicago Bears' running back suffered double embarrassment Thursday against the Detroit Lions when he gained just 64 yards in 18 rushes in a 20-0 defeat — and also lost his pants in the middle of the game.

"I tackled him and he kind of skinned his rump in the process," said defensive end Bubba Baker of Detroit. "His pants ripped right off and showed the bruise. Now we know why they call him Sweetness." A group of Bears huddled protectively around Payton while he slipped into some new pants and later he returned to the game.

Other interesting engagements include Houston vs. Texas Tech, Notre Dame vs. Miami of Florida (in faraway Tokyo, Japan), and Brigham Young vs. San Diego State, a showdown for the Western Athletic Conference title.

Prepare for Season

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Kentucky Derby and Preckness winner Spectacular Bid will be flown to Santa Anita the first week of December to prepare for his 4-year-old racing season, trainer Bud Delp said Thursday.

Contract rider Ronnie Franklin, who lost the mount on Bid to Willie Shoemaker following a loss in the Belmont Stakes, will accompany Delp to Santa Anita.

Unusual Report

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins' weekly injury report Thursday was rather unusual. It listed defensive coordinator Bill Arnsparger as "doubtful" for Sunday's game against the Baltimore Colts at Baltimore.

Girls Swim Team May Hit Decline

Six seniors graduated from the '78 squad. Ten members of the 1979 Manchester High girls' swimming team graduate. "I lose 10 out of 25," states Indian Coach Dave Frost, "and it's going to be kind of devastating."

Close to Signing

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Free-agent pitcher John Curtis, who posted a 10-9 record with San Francisco last season, is "very close to agreement" with the San Diego Padres, agent Jerry Kapstein said Thursday. Kapstein, who will be meeting with Padres' president Ballard Smith Sunday in San Diego to try and work out several details, said no contract has yet been signed but the parties were "very close to a five-year agreement."

East Catholic's Co-HCC Championship Football Squad

Hoople Likes Nebraska over Oklahoma

By Major Ames B. Hoople
Fertile Prognosticator
Equal friends, traditional rivalries abound on this week's college football schedule. It's topped by the Nebraska-Oklahoma renewal, marking the 60th anniversary. Among other pairings guaranteed to get the old gridiron riled up are Southern California-UCLA (the 49th), Pittsburgh-Penn State (79th), and Florida State-Florida (21st).

Some more with ancient beginnings: Oregon-Oregon State (for the 83rd time), Arizona State-Arizona (58th), Tennessee-Kentucky (75th). Also, it's Texas-Baylor (98th), Arkansas-SMU (53th), and Texas A&M-TCU (75th).

Major Hooples 1979 Football Forecast

Major Hooples 1979 Football Forecast
The Oregon Ducks will outpace the Oregon State Beavers, 45-27. It will be Arizona State 24-20 over Arizona and Tennessee 18-15 over Kentucky.

In a SWC quarter, we make 'em Texas 17-12 over Baylor; Arkansas 26-17 over SMU; Texas A&M 27-13 over TCU.

Note: Duke, tumbled from the Top Twenty by rugged Tennessee, will close on the upswing, knocking off the Miami Hurricanes 31-18 in the 100,000-seat Tokyo Stadium. Brigham Young's Marc Wilson and his supporting cast will wrap up one of their most successful seasons with a 42-22 thumping of San Diego State.

Down South we look for Mississippi State to take intrastate for Mississippi, 16-13, and for South Carolina to slip past Clemson, 28-21. Louisiana State will give coach Charley McClendon a fitting going-away present by defeating a fine Florida eleven, 22-21. McClendon is retiring after 18 successful years as LSU's head man.

New go on with my forecast. In other headline contexts, (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISES ASSN.)

Eastern Connecticut Conference Football Champions

Going Nowhere Fast

2,714 Paid At Grid Tilt

Paid crowd for Thursday's Turkey Day football game between Manchester High and East Catholic at Memorial Field was 2,714, according to figures supplied by Ted Martin, school faculty manager.

There were a total of 188 freebies, and with others, an audience of over 3,000 witnessed the fourth annual Thanksgiving Day morning clash between the two local elevens.

This was the either the second or third largest crowd to take in the series with last year's audience approaching 5,000 the largest. The '76 contest also drew around 3,000 fans while the '77 game attracted 2,500.

The 1975 tilt, played on opening day, drew a throng of 2,700, only 2,100 paid.

MVP on Defense

Manchester High's Mark Patapachuk was cited as the top defensive player in Thursday's annual Turkey Day football clash against East Catholic at Memorial Field. Patapachuk's 29-yard interception return set up the Indians' go-ahead score and he was also in on a number of tackles in Manchester's upset 33-13 win.

Joe's World

By JOE GARMAN
Fly Tiers Bonanza

Fly tiers are collectors. Fly tiers are animal watchers, bird watchers, fur coat watchers, hat watchers, and chicken watchers. Fly tiers look forward to the months of October and November the way normal people look forward to Christmas. Fly tiers are slightly weird, and this includes your friendly columnist.

You might well ask, why a column on flies and fly tying in November? This is the hunting season, and most people think we pick up our materials by going hunting for them, and some of the fraternity do just that. However, for most of the "group" this is almost like Christmas, with us on the receiving end.

Before I go into the ways and wherefores of this bonanza time of the year for us, let me back up a little for the uninformed, and tell you why fly tiers are watchers and collectors. All of those neat buggy looking trout flies, and all those beautiful looking salmon and streamer flies, are made up of combinations of fur, feathers, tinsel, wool, floss, and exotic materials, all tied to the hook according to prescribed pattern.

The acquisition of an awful lot of these materials is strictly a commercial transaction. They are bought from fly tying suppliers, who have built a large and lucrative industry, all over the globe. These people offer for sale, all of the materials that go into making up most fly fishermen's needs.

It can get to be quite expensive, when you see the price of a pair of brown turkey quills going for $1.50 per pair. If you can find them, in today's world, most turkey farms raise only white birds. Therefore brown quills are at a premium.

Therein lies the reason we are watchers, collectors, and are generally on the lookout to pick up what we need, as inexpensively as possible. Back in the days when ladies wore hats, and so many of them were adorned with all kinds of exotic feathers, it was not unusual for some of us to follow a female down the street... not to make a pass... but find out whether we could get first "dibs" on the hat, when the lady tired of wearing her chapeau. The same with fur coats or fur scarves.

Optimists say it takes all kinds to make up a party; pessimists say merely, "mixed nuts."

When you were 20, the new year was full of promise; after 40, you've given up seeing them fulfilled.

The best thing about icy winter weather is that it keeps the motorcycle-aiming population indoors.

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ruhollah Khomeini today called all Iranians to acquire training so that the Islamic revolution can confront "the world's satanic power — the United States — with an army of 20 million." "If there is neglect, you will be destroyed," the leader told a group of young revolutionary guards who met at his headquarters in Qom Saturday. Khomeini's comment came after Secretary General Kurt Waldheim called an urgent meeting of the Security Council to discuss the Cuban missile crisis in Iran, which Waldheim called "the most serious threat to peace." No time for a meeting was scheduled, but closed-door consultations were set for today. It was the first time in the secretary general's tenure that he invoked his authority to call an urgent meeting, a privilege usually reserved for member countries of the Security Council. Khomeini said Iran's 20 million youths must all be trained in guns. Iran "must have an army of 20 million," he said. "The biggest satanic power — the United States," he said. The 79-year-old leader said Moslem students holding a 10-day strike at the besieged U.S. Embassy for the day charged that the United States was the "biggest satanic power."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Jimmy Carter backs an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council to discuss the Iranian crisis, but is particularly optimistic that the release of the 49 American hostages will be achieved. U.N. Secretary General Waldheim, on his own initiative, decided to seek an urgent meeting of the Security Council to discuss the crisis he says is a threat to the peace and stability of the entire world. Administration officials said an overwhelming majority of the Security Council favors a resolution demanding the release of the hostages.
