Question of Control

Memorial Hospital is an institution which has served the community well. The community in turn has supported it well.

Hospitals and Health Care, in two areas, the court and the Freedom of Information Commission.

should cost to run the hospital well, the local trustees or a state-appointed commission?

Unfortunately neither answer is necessarily right. The commission does fulfill a legitimate function in watching over the general health care cost picture and the hospital officials have an obligation to provide the kind of health care the community deserves.

Manchester is fortunate in having a very fine symphony orchestra and chorale, which is unique in many ways, and outstanding in its quality.

To the editor: I read with great interest Professor Rassias' article regarding the disdain Americans show toward foreign languages (Nov. 16).

As a teacher of foreign languages I heartily applaud any effort to bring this attitude and deficiency to light.

Extortion Has Its Limits: An East-West Clash Looms

United States, have tried to hold the price of crude to $18 a barrel. But the Arab militants have learned that the OPEC ceiling price is not immutable.

renewed threats to use oil as a political weapon. The Shia Muslims, who look to Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for spiritual guidance, appear quite willing to sacrifice economic benefits and to hold their oil as a hostage for fanatical political goals.

There is no indication in Washington, meanwhile, that anyone is preparing to counter the oil catastrophe that is building up.

The ingenuity of the thrifty homemaker is under strain these days facing the continuing challenge of planning, buying, preparing and serving nutritious, satisfying and economic meals.

The anti-session envisioned by Civiletti appears to be a logical extension of the anti-bill concept. But many questions remain unanswered.

Health Systems Agency Makes Plans for the Future

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Drug and alcohol abuse, mental health, nutrition and exercise will be investigated by the local health agency in the 1980s.

The Health Systems Agency of North Central Connecticut discussed agenda items for the coming decade at a meeting Tuesday night.

Dr. Turek specifically mentioned the use of alcohol among teen-agers. One commission member said her son, who is in the ninth grade, is being harassed during school hours by other students who are intoxicated.

The fetal alcohol syndrome should be examined, Dr. Turek said. This is the effect of a mother's drinking on her unborn baby.

Smith added he felt the impaired physician should also be a topic. He said it is important to be aware of the effects of doctors taking substances. The potential for abuse exists because physicians can write prescriptions from other programs.

The suggestion was part of a Public Administration Service of Washington study of local governments. The study, which was presented in October, contained 64 suggestions for changes in town government.

The unification was one of three suggestions forwarded by the Advisory Board of Health to the Board of Directors.

Another recommendation forwarded by the board would shift the housing code enforcement from the Health Department to the Building Department.

Kraatz said the shift would also create opportunities to concentrate on other matters such as life style, disaster planning, food handling and disposal of toxic substances.

"I think the money is well-spent," said Ronald Kraatz, assistant health director. "It's a hard-nosed approach. I would move that we get new monies for the position."

"Thank you, Lord, for providing so much more than we need to satisfy our physical needs AND, more than that, a well-balanced spiritual diet free of charge, which guarantees eternal life and spiritual growth as we accept your gifts!"

"Why spend your money on foodstuffs that don't give you strength? Why pay for groceries that don't do you any good? Come! Let the thirty one come - anyone who wants to; let him come and drink of the Water of Life without charge.

I am the Living Bread that came down from heaven. Anyone eating this bread shall live forever." (Isaiah 55:2, Revelation 22:17, John 6:50 Living Bible)

Energy Conservation Aim of Town Project

MANCHESTER - The Town of Manchester has initiated a plan to pay for materials for small energy conservation projects, according to Ms. Diane Wicks, director, Human Services Department.

The program is for persons over age 60 and for low-income families.

Project examples include window insulation and weather stripping.

Labor will be handled by the individuals, the Regional Occupational Training Center or the Elderly Chore Handymen Service through River East HomeMaker-Home Health Aide Service.

There are no income limits for those 60 and over and income limits for those under 60 are the same as for the town's emergency energy loan program.

Persons interested in additional information should call the Human Services Department at 647-3092.

Doctor Heads Drive For Oak Hill School

MANCHESTER - Dr. Eugene M. Davis has been reappointed chairman of the Greater Manchester fund-raising committee for the Oak Hill School in Hartford.

The announcement was made by Robert I. Kaplan, chairman of the State Gifts Committee of the Connecticut Institute for the Blind. This will be Dr. Davis' 25th year as area chairman.

The campaign is under way in Greater Manchester and six other sections of the state and will continue through Jan. 7.

Funds raised will benefit the 175 persons currently enrolled at the Oak Hill School.

Other area residents serving on the committee include Eugene W. Skidnowski, treasurer; Louis Apter, Mrs. Leo Charendoff, Edgar H. Clarke; Miss Gertrude DeLoe, Dr. A. Elmer Diskan, Thomas F. Ferguson, Harold W. Garry, Warren E. Howland, Mrs. Jacob F. Miller, Robert McCann, John D. Philbin, Joseph L. Swenson Sr., William B. Thornton and Neal A. Tyler.

Parents and pupils are asked to cooperate by refraining from planning schools during periods of inclement weather. All notices of school closings during winter storms will be announced on the radio stations, when deemed necessary.

Parents of kindergarten children, who attend afternoon sessions, are asked to use their own discretion concerning sending the children to school during stormy days or approaching storm conditions.

When another participant demanded to know what the Carter administration was doing to support Jewish dissidents in the Soviet Union, he was informed that specific information would have to be collected.

After the officials, off-the-record session, one Jewish leader confided disgustedly, "Some of the people came all the way from the West Coast to hear this junk."

for themselves when they don't need the drug. This can lead to doctors being addicted or intoxicated on controlled substances.

One commission member, Alex Manhan of Glastonbury, said he was tired of all the talking and would like to pursue the issues in a more constructive manner. A member for four years, Manhan said, "Rather than all this rhetoric, how do you tangibly pursue these matters?"

He said without doing things like having experts talk to the group about the issues, or attempting to work with the state to resolve the problem, all the group was doing was "listening to our own voices."

Cops Identify Woman's Body

BETHANY (UPI) — State police have identified a young woman whose body was found a week ago in the Bethany woods as a New Haven resident.

Troopers said Wednesday the Chief State Medical Examiner's office identified Veronica Ann Demits, 22, through dental charts. The woman's skeletal remains and burned clothing were found Nov. 17.

William Parker Jr., 29, of New Haven, is being held in lieu of $100,000 bond on a charge of murdering the woman. Parker, who also faces a variety of weapons counts, was charged in the slaying four days after the body was discovered.

Medical examiners said the woman had been shot in the head.

Devine Suggests OTB Expansion

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's legal gambling boss thinks the state could make more money from betting parlor budgets under their legislative wing.

Supporters of the idea told the Legislative Management Committee the gaming agency is one of only a few state departments that has autonomy over a portion of its budget. They said some legislative oversight is needed.

Sen. Clifton Leonhardt, D-Avon, co-chairman of the Legislature's Public Safety Committee that deals with legalized gambling bills, said the suggested change was not because any money is being mis-handled.

"No one is alleging there's impropriety in expenditures," he said. "But the power of the Legislature is its control of purse strings. It's a question of who's in charge here."

Devine said his agency needs control of that portion of its budget because legalized gambling operations are different than other department workings.

Devine met with legislative leaders to discuss a proposal to put the gaming division's $25 million in-

Parker Plans Bill on Condos

HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Antonia Parker, R-Glastonbury, said she will introduce a bill to prohibit any person who is receiving state assistance from being evicted if their apartment is converted into a condominium.

Mrs. Parker, who said she will propose the measure in the 1980 session of the Legislature, said people receiving assistance who can't afford to buy their apartments also can't afford to move.

"This should provide needed protection for welfare families in Connecticut and at the same time protect the state from increased costs resulting from the displacement of those persons who would otherwise be evicted from their building being converted to condominium units," she said Wednesday.

Legislators Mull Funds for Staff

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative committee has been set up to look into a proposal to give Connecticut's 187 lawmakers a total of $800,000 for additional staff help.

The committee was formed Wednesday to look into requests to give the 36 senators $15,000 and the 151 House members $4,000 to hire personal staff.

It would cost an extra $200,000 for an entire fiscal year, which would mean a budget deficit for Legislative Management of $800,000 to cover January to July 1980.

"We still have a Legislature that belongs to an age that has gone by," said Sen. Clifton Leonhardt, D-Avon, a prime mover behind the proposal. "Right now we don't have a proper balance between the executive and legislative branches."

Leonhardt also said people hired to assist legislative committees should be full-time and should be compensated with the same benefits afforded other state employees to ensure that the Legislature has professional help.

Senate President Joseph Faulio, D-Hartford, said no one disagrees that legislators need more money to do a better job. But he said he's reluctant to go with a deficiency in the Legislature's budget.

He and Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, agreed to allow a committee to study the proposal but Sen. William Cury Jr., D-Farmington said the leaders were avoiding the issue.

Sen. Marcella Fahey, D-East Hartford, said the Legislature was the third branch of government "but we treat ourselves as a fifth-rate operation."

The Legislative Management Committee already has taken steps to try to reduce expenses to cover a projected deficit of $126 million in this year's $6.6 billion budget.

Lieberman said in the face of spending cuts ordered by Gov. Ella Grasso, "people would have a right to scream" if the Legislature approved more money for its own use.

Conservation Urged

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., has called for a mandatory conservation program to reduce national consumption of petroleum products by at least 5 percent. Weicker has offered an amendment to the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Tax Act which would require states to establish their own plans for meeting the conservation goal. The situation in Iran has made the American people fully aware of the need to reduce dependence on foreign oil," he said Wednesday. "Americans are ready and willing to accept the sacrifices."

Groppo Favors Carter

HARTFORD (UPI) — House Majority Leader John Groppo, D-Windst., has announced he's supporting President Carter for re-election in 1980. "This is a tough time for any president. The people want tax cuts and balanced budgets and at the same time want spending for their favorite programs increased," Groppo said Wednesday. "President Carter has done a good and fair job of balancing those two competing needs." Other top state Democrats who have endorsed Carter are Gov. Ella Grasso, Senate President Joseph Paulino, D-Hartford, and Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven.

Housing Authority Policy Aids Elderly Resident

MANCHESTER — An elderly woman who was unable to leave her one-room apartment on weekends or weeknights now lives at Mayfair elderly housing, the Housing Authority reported at Wednesday night's meeting. Nellie McQueen, 83, lived above a downtown store. Because arthritis made stair climbing impossible, Miss McQueen could leave by elevator only when the store was open. Her case, brought before the authority in September, was resolved through a new policy which gives preferential treatment to Manchester elderly and handicapped. "There was a vacancy, and under the new setup we could do things," said Dennis Phelan, executive director. "She received the room she wanted by the Community Room." Phelan reported the apartment waiting list is two years long, 256 names, but there is room for the elderly and handicapped under Section 8 guidelines requesting one-bedroom units. These guidelines, for low-income and elderly residents, require tenants to pay 25 percent of their adjusted gross income for rent with the federal government subsidizing the rest. Phelan also reported that by week's end a cost estimate on installing gas heat in the new Spencer Street project will be ready. "Gas costs more to install than electricity," said Phelan. "But it's less expensive to operate, and it's the tenant paying bills we're concerned with." The 40-unit project proposed two years ago, is expected to cost almost $1 million with electric heat. The MHA will request additional funds from the Board of Directors for a gas heat installation. Besides this estimate, the MHA has hired an engineer to investigate costs of converting all the projects to gas heat. Another engineer from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development is also working on conversion possibilities. Manchester has been asked, by HUD, along with others among the 80 Connecticut housing authorities to conduct this research. Currently, some projects use a double heating system. Oil is the primary energy source, but when the temperature drops sufficiently, gas is used. About 100 units at Westhill use oil, another 100 use the combination. Although the MHA expects this report in about a month, Phelan estimated conversion would not start this year. The authority is not just dealing with cost, he noted, but also how to convert the systems. For Mayfair, which doesn't have a basement, conversion from electricity to gas would not be feasible, according to Phelan. But Bluefield and Westhills could be converted from oil to gas. In other business, it was reported construction of an office and conference room addition to the MHA building has started. The contractor, Orlando Annulli and Sons, of Manchester expects to complete the addition in about 180 days.

Kaman Builds Windmills

BLOOMFIELD (UPI) — An aerospace firm says windmills could be whirling into commercial production by next year, and two prototype 64-foot blades are starting up. Kaman Aerospace Corp. expects to be producing windmills by mid-1980, but a company official said Wednesday it could be some time before they're generating electricity across the United States. Bruce Goodale, who directs Kaman's marketing of the windmills, says their widespread use isn't likely until costs of other energy sources make wind power an economical alternative. "Once in commercial production, windmills could cost between $500-600 a kilowatt," he said. The current price is two to three times higher. "New England is one of the areas in the country where the wind is good and the cost of energy is high," he said. The Kaman windmill stands 74 feet off the ground. Its blades are capable of generating 40 kilowatts of electricity — enough for 12-15 homes, Goodale said. The test windmill was tied into the plant itself to provide power for the firm. Kaman is one of two Connecticut companies working on development of windmills. United Technologies Corporation researchers are working on smaller windmills for homes and small businesses, and UTC's Hamilton Standard division is developing windmills to generate power for electric utilities under a Swedish government contract. Goodale said the main problem with windmills was storage capacity for electricity generated but not immediately used. On smaller systems, Goodale said storage could be handled by "a bank of batteries."

Bolton Taxpayers To Get New Assessment Notices

BOLTON - Revised assessment notices will be mailed to all property owners next week. The notices will reflect an increase in property assessments for two reasons.

The first reason for the increase is that the assessment will represent 70 percent of the appraised value of the property.

The 70 percent assessment ratio is required by state law and will be uniform throughout the state by 1980. In the past a 65 percent assessment ratio was used.

The second reason is market values are and have been increasing since the 1969 assessment. The revaluation is being done by United Appraisal Co. of East Hartford. The firm was awarded a $38,000 contract to do the job.

Calvin Hutchinson, assessor, is responsible for the revaluation and is charged with making a diligent effort to review all the work that is being done, as it is being done. The purpose of the revaluation is to bring all property up to its current true and actual value.

The revaluation process included the preparation of local cost data, the evaluation of market sales, the inspection of properties, the pricing and field review of properties and the establishment of final value based on market value.

Improved properties in town will show an increase from two and a half to five times more than their current assessment. Unimproved properties will increase from five to twelve times more than their current assessment.

Hutchinson said all property assessed since 1969 has been assessed at the 1969 rates.

Robert Parsons of United Appraisal said, "We were hired to achieve the market value of all property and the assessment is based on the market value."

Parsons said when property owners receive their new assessment

they should divide the assessment by 7 to see what their property is worth on the market.

Although the amount of a person's taxes cannot be determined at this time, everyone involved in the revaluation agreed the Grand List would be higher and the mill rate would be lower.

The mill rate for the fiscal year 1980-1981 will be set in May and taxes on the new assessments will be due July 1, 1980.

All property owners will receive an explanatory notice of the revaluation with their new assessment.

Students Test Pollution

BOLTON - Students in the academically gifted program at Bolton Center School are currently working with sophisticated medical equipment testing the effects of air pollution and tobacco on the body.

The equipment tests changes in heart rate, hand tremor, and skin temperature.

The biomonitoring classroom program is being sponsored by the Connecticut Christmas Seal/Lung Association, in more than 60 Connecticut schools.

The program runs for one week during which students and teachers use equipment loaned by the association. The course is the second of its kind in the country.

Thomas Diczek, project explorer teacher, said the program was initially developed by the New Hampshire Lung Association. He said the program being conducted in Bolton enables students to witness the dramatic changes exposure to air pollutants has on the human body.

Among the experiments in the course is the testing of hand tension, heart rate and skin temperature before and after smoking.

Saleyne Sivik, school nurse, said, "In most cases smoking immediately increases the heart beat rate, increases hand tremor and lowers skin temperature at the extremities, such as in the fingers, as a result of immediate constriction of the blood vessels."

Mrs. Sivik said, "While adult smoking has been decreasing over recent years, smoking among young people, especially young women, has increased at an alarming rate." She said it is this concern which prompted the lung association to make the course available to the schools.
