

City Light Obscuring Night Sky

RATTLESNAKE MOUNTAIN, Wash. (UPI) — The starry night sky isn't what it used to be in fast-growing southeast Washington — and that's bad news for astronomers at the Rattlesnake Mountain Observatory.

Booming towns in the area are glowing brighter than ever at night, interfering with the observatory's studies of the aurora borealis, or northern lights.

The towns and the observatory used to have a pretty good relationship, so good that several years ago many communities passed "light pollution" ordinances designed to keep night glow at a minimum.

But the energy crisis has those towns thinking about replacing their current street lamps with more efficient lamps that use less electricity but produce light over a wider spectrum.

The old ordinances restricted the towns' lighting to mercury vapor lamps, which throw off a relatively narrow band of light that doesn't interfere much with the telescopes.

But Stokes said the General Electric Co. has embarked on a major marketing campaign to persuade cities and utilities to switch to high-pressure sodium vapor lamps for conservation purposes.

Violence Continues Overseas

Bombs rocked the U.S. Embassy in Thailand Friday and mobs of angry Muslims were beaten back from the embassies in Kuwait and the Philippines in another wave of anti-American violence sparked by the worsening crisis in Iran.

In Moscow, a group of Iranian students also planned to march on the U.S. Embassy but Soviet authorities doubled security around the yellow-stucco compound and "neutralized" the protest, a diplomatic source said.

Three Muslim demonstrators were reportedly injured in the Philippines but there were no American casualties in any of the protests, staged on the 10th day of Moharram, one of the holiest days of the Muslim Shiite calendar.

As the siege at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran dragged into its 27th day, the anti-American sentiment stirred by Iran's Islamic leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini spread to three countries largely untouched by the crisis until now — Thailand, Kuwait and the Philippines.

In Bangkok, between two and four bombs exploded inside the compound of the American Embassy at dusk, breaking the retaining wall of a fish pond but causing no injuries, officials said.

Thai police rushed to the scene and sharpshooters in camouflage uniforms were posted around the compound in a speedy attempt to protect the embassy from further violence.

An American Marine on duty at the time said he heard "about four explosions." But William Lenderking, the embassy press attaché, said he heard only two. "Everything's kind of foggy, but they have investigators here. I heard two loud noises," Lenderking said.

Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chuanman, in a statement released shortly after the incident, indicated the bombs may have been planted by a Thai Muslim separatist group that distributed leaflets around Bangkok last week threatening attacks on U.S. targets.

Officials said leaflets were signed by the Pattani National Liberation Organization and warned of attacks against "Rockefeller, Yankee imperialism and Western powers infiltrating Iran."

In the tiny Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Kuwait, a mob of several thousand chanting Muslims marched on the U.S. Embassy but was driven off by tear gas fired by national guardsmen who rushed to the scene in armored cars.

Witnesses said the protestors were mostly Iranian students and workers demonstrating in support of Iran's demand for the extradition of the shah.

Embassy spokesman Kevin Honan said the demonstration began in the morning and "by noon the crowd had grown to several thousand."

"Kuwaiti security personnel used tear gas when one group came to within 300 yards of the embassy," Honan said, adding that the crowd eventually dispersed.

Riot police in the Philippines used water cannons to break up a mob of about 200 Muslims who tried to turn an anti-American demonstration in Manila into a march on the embassy.

In the pandemonium, three explosions shook the crowd but they were apparently large firecrackers and caused no serious injury, witnesses said.

Police turned on the water cannons and arrested 179 of the demonstrators when they tried to march on the embassy chanting "Return Satan Shah," and "Down with Carter peanut politics," officials said.

Shah Still Expected to Leave

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Friday it still expects Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi to leave America when he is well enough, despite Mexico's sudden decision to bar him from returning to his exile home there.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Mexico gave the United States very little warning before announcing Thursday night that it would no longer welcome the deposed Iranian monarch.

"We had very little lead time," Carter said.

He did not criticize the Mexican government's decision, either outright or subtly, but said Mexican officials had given the United States "very recent confirmation" that the shah would be allowed to return to Mexico when his medical treatment in New York ended.

As for the shah's future, Carter said the administration's policy is unchanged — he is expected to leave the United States when able to travel.

The shah's doctors have said he can go any time now and he had planned to return to Mexico by the weekend.

Stevens said the quick reversal of plans in Mexico City demonstrates the consequences of the world community tolerating Iran while it holds American diplomats hostage.

Stevens said the Mexican decision was "an astounding reaction to fear."

Low-Fuel Engine Planned by P&W

HARTFORD — The Pratt & Whitney Aircraft division of United Technologies Corp. Friday announced it has begun design work on a fuel-saving jet engine for use in passenger planes.

It is planned to have the new engine, the JT1D, in use by the mid-1980's.

Company officials said the engine is designed to be used on 150- to 170-passenger jets for short and medium range routes and on four-engine aircraft for long routes.

The new engine will be most fuel-efficient and is seen as being a factor in keeping costs and prices down in the aircraft and airline industry.

The engine is estimated to have a total cost of about $1 billion and is reported United Technologies has spent about $300 million in preliminary development work.

The engine is also seen as an intensifier of competition between United and its rivals, General Electric Co. and Rolls-Royce Ltd.

According to company spokesmen, the most immediate sales prospect involves use of the engine on the McDonnell Douglas Corp. advanced-technology medium range plane, called the ATMR.

"We are committed, irrespective of the ATMR," Harry Garry, chairman of United Technologies Corp. said. "We're pretty close to $1 a gallon jet fuel and we aren't that far from $2 a gallon fuel. We have to have a fuel-efficient engine, and if we are a little ahead of the air frame guys, so be it."

The ATMR has been offered to airlines by McDonnell Douglas, but production on the aircraft has not yet started.

Citizen Criticizes Secret Sessions

GLASTONBURY — A resident here has said that recent executive sessions held by the Town Council violated the state Freedom of Information Act.

Charles Jackter, of 80 House St., sent a letter to the council outlining his concerns regarding procedures followed during the selection of Town Manager Richard Borden.

Jackter said today that he would like to see the council hold its executive sessions before the regular meetings instead of after, which has been the traditional practice.

"The council has been in the practice of adjourning to executive session after announcing at the public session that it is going to discuss personnel matters," Jackter said in the letter.

Jackter said the council may engage in the practice of having the proceedings of its executive sessions recorded with cassettes or in handwriting.

"Should this be the case, the council is put on notice that such records of the FOI Act are considered public records and can not be withheld from public purview," he said.

Jackter said he is entitled to the minutes of the Sept. 25 executive session of the council.

"I think we used good judgement in exercising confidentiality. We lost one candidate during the interview for town manager because it was announced in the papers," former Town Council Chairman Henry Kinne said.

Kinne said if the selection process were open, the town would not have gotten very good candidates.

"We would have gotten candidates, but they wouldn't have been worth a darn. These men deserved to have their current jobs protected. We did not do anything sneaky," Kinne said.

Current Town Council Chairman Constantine Constantine said most of the executive sessions were limited to their stated topic.

Constantine said the discussion occasionally strayed from the stated topic, but generally town business wasn't decided improperly.

Jackter said the council decided to offer the job to Borden on Sept. 25 and that Borden accepted the offer that night.

According to the minutes of that meeting, Jackter was correct.

"Mr. Borden announced his acceptance via telephone conversation prior to the adjournment of the Sept. 25 meeting. However, the council failed to make public these momentous developments until Friday, Sept. 28," Jackter said.

Jackter said it appears that the council committed an additional violation of the FOI Act, because the votes of any public agency shall be available for public inspection within 48 hours.

The announcement was delayed so that Borden could notify officials in Cheshire of his decision to take the Glastonbury post.

Constantine said he was reviewing the FOI act and that he will probably seek the advice of the town attorney on the matter.

New Program Draws Little Fire

Manchester schools Sponsors of the program, which is designed to increase racial understanding through remedial instruction, guidance, human relations and multi-cultural experiences, are applying for next year's funding.

The town seeks an increase from $97,026 to $135,072 primarily to hire more teachers for the program. The hearing, held by the program's advisory committee, sought public input on the two-month old program.

However, only Geri Harvey, 19 Groves St., commented, first as a private individual and then as representative for a local group.

"Many teachers come from white, homogeneous environments," she said. "They have little training to deal with one child of a different race in a class."

"I'd like to see material placed in the hands of teachers to help them learn how to handle the situation," she said.

"The teacher either has to go and look for the books articles on the subject or they don't know how to find them," she noted.

"It's important to encourage and expose the teacher to the unusual situation," she said.

Responding to the suggestion, Sharon Rowe, who recently joined the staff of three full-time and three part-time teachers, said materials were being gathered.

"I've started a mini-library in my office and started researching articles," she said. "Hopefully we will be able to have staff and in-service training before Christmas break."

Ms. Rowe works at Illing Junior High, but the program is for all levels.

Harvey then read a statement, from Manchester Citizens for Social Responsibility supporting the program.

After 15 minutes J. Gerald Fitzgibbon, assistant school superintendent declared the meeting closed.

One attendant who remained silent during the meeting, John Tucci, commented afterwards. "I'm just a private citizen who wanted to hear what's going on," Tucci said. "But with the current money squeeze I find this sort of spending inflationary."

Tucci wondered if the program could be successful. "If kids felt pressed into something it will backfire," he said. "It bothers me if kids feel peer pressure. And I find this another instance of government socialization."

But he also commented he felt pressure to remain silent. "In light of the Lupien thing, I didn't want my comments blown out of proportion or misquoted. But I'm not in favor of the program."

In spite of the quiet meeting, Walter Dean, local co-ordinator, was happy citizens came. "Those who had something to say did, those who didn't didn't," Dean said.

Although the program had a late start in hiring teachers and funding the program because HEW funding arrived late, Dean said it was doing well.

"There are a number of behavioral objectives in this program, more involvement in activities is one of them."

"We establish a better communication between students. It's not a healthy atmosphere when there is no communication."

One example of the program's effect can be seen in the school cafeteria, according to Dean.

"For the first time, I see minority and other students sitting together," he said. "I've never noticed it before. But I can't say if it's all the time, I don't go to every lunch period."

Update

Economic Drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's barometer of economic boom and recession plunged in October to its lowest level in two years, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The index of leading indicators fell 0.9 percent to an October level of 138.8, its lowest point since September 1977, when it was an even 138.

"It does not yet tell us whether we are in a recession," cautioned Felix Tamm, the Commerce Department economist in charge of the index. He said one month's figures show little and frequently are revised later.

Tamm said the "underlying trend" of the index in recent months indicates the economy is either standing still or entering a decline, but does not show how deep a recession might be.

No Negotiations

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sadeq Qotbzadeh, declaring "there is no hope for negotiation at this stage," announced Friday Iran would boycott the U.N. Security Council session on the U.S.-Iran crisis.

Qotbzadeh also announced U.S. Chief of Mission and Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laing and two other Americans held in the Foreign Ministry were now "free to leave" because they were "important" than the 50 American hostages seized by Muslim militants occupying the U.S. Embassy.

However, it was uncertain whether the three would leave soon because Qotbzadeh said Iran could not guarantee their safe conduct to the airport.

A spokesman for the militants said he would "neither confirm nor deny" rumors that some of all of the 50 American hostages, in their 27th day of captivity, had been transferred from the booby-trapped embassy compound to a secret detention site.

Godunov Angry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Defector-dancer Alexander Godunov left town in a "deep funk" Thursday after an aide told him he has not agreed to return to Moscow, the Russian star's manager said Friday.

The personal drama of the 38-year-old ballet star took a new turn when sources in the Soviet Union reported that Godunov, 29, had decided to go back to his homeland.

"To my knowledge, and I've stressed the word 'my,' there's no truth to it," said Godunov's New York manager, Edgar Vincent. "My gut reaction is that the whole thing is a fabrication."

Crash findings

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (UPI) — The pilot of an Air New Zealand DC-10 that slammed into the side of an Antarctic volcano apparently had not evasive action to avoid the crash that killed 257 persons, a New Zealand Air Force official said Friday.

The crew members of a Royal New Zealand Air Force Hercules transport that surveyed the crash site on Mount Erebus said the pilot of the DC-10 probably did not see the mountain before flying into it Wednesday in the fourth worst crash in aviation history.

All aboard — crew members and tourists on a 5,000-mile sightseeing trip of the Antarctic — were killed.

"It is fairly clear that the crew took no evasive action as if they had, the plane would have struck at a gentler angle and been forced up the mountain," one airman said.

One crewman viewing the site from the air said it looked as though the DC-10 "struck the mountain in a direct hit, burrowing deeply into the ice."

The wreckage is concentrated in a relatively small spot, signifying the plane slapped straight into the mountain, he said.

Princely Affair

Albert, the 21-year-old prince of Monaco, is reported carrying on a torrid love affair with 30-year-old American actress Cathy Lee Crosby. According to the New York Post, a close friend of Albert's, Jean-Claude Peiret, said "It was love at first sight ... and Cathy was definitely responsive to his attention."

The couple first met at a tennis tournament in Monaco and the young-looking prince has been carrying the torch for Cathy for the past four months.

No relative of the Bing Crosby family, Cathy was the original "Wonder Woman" on TV in 1971 but a disagreement with the studio on how the role should be played left her high and dry. She got typed by producers and for a long time was unable to find anything worthwhile in Hollywood. She continued to study acting and recently has been making films and even has a situation comedy pilot in the works for TV.

66th Birthday

Mary Martin celebrates her 66th birthday today at her home in Palm Springs, Calif., and she does not care who knows it. She says she can still do as many back bends, high kicks and somersaults as she did 50 years ago.

While Mary has been seen on television in the 1970s, it has been nearly 20 years since she performed in a dramatic role on TV. That was in 1960, when she was flying through the air in "Peter Pan."

The talented star, who delighted theater audiences in many hit musicals in the past years, was lured back by the script of "Valentine," in which she co-stars with Jack Albertson. "It's a lovely, endearing and humorous love story," says Mary Martin, "about people in my age bracket." It airs on ABC-TV Dec. 7.

Kellerman Is Back

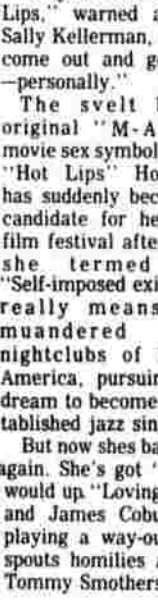

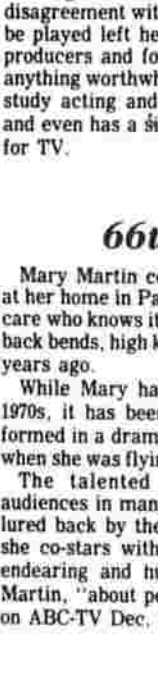

"If you dare to call this 'The Return of Hot Lips,'" warned actress Sally Kellerman, "I will come out and get you personally."

The svelt blond original "M-A-S-H" movie sex symbol's "Hot Lips" Houlihan has suddenly become a candidate for her own film festival after what she termed her "Self-imposed exile." It really means she's wandered the nightclubs of North America, pursuing her dream to become an established jazz singer.

But now she's back in Hollywood, working in films again. She's got "The Foxes" out this month; "Just What I Needed" will be her third marriage; "Adventures of a Wandering Jew," is a modern parable, told with humor, honesty and wisdom ... Lillian Does It Again

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The nation's first mother, Lillian Carter, has done it again. And her latest sleight of tongue — a death wish for Ayatollah Khomeini — Friday reaped apologies, jokes and silence.

Appearing before a men's club in a tiny Concord suburb Thursday night, the 51-year-old mother-of-four spared I'd look for someone to kill him (the Ayatollah).

The remark brought the men to their feet, cheering.

But at Carter headquarters in Concord Friday, the mood was less enthusiastic.

"Well, the Carter ladies are out of the state, and we only had one international incident in Bow," said deputy national director Chris Brown, referring to Thursday's whirlwind campaign swing through New Hampshire by Miss Lillian, her daughter-in-law Rosalynn and her granddaughter-in-law, Judy.

Brown played down the significance of the remark, saying it may have been a "joke."

"It certainly wasn't a deliberate message from the president ... that's the point, I think," he said.

A White House spokesman in Washington added, "Anybody should know that her remark should not be taken seriously."

Gov. Hugh Gallen, Carter's campaign chairman in New Hampshire, was amused by the incident.

"I find that the public ... the people that listen to Lillian Carter enjoy her very much. In the course of a long day, for a woman her age, I can see her saying sometimes many of these things," the governor said with a smile and a laugh.

It was not the first time Miss Lillian had raised eyebrows in New Hampshire. In September, she knocked supporters of Gov. Edward Brown Jr. by telling a political rally she hoped "nothing happens to him."

Gallen reminded reporters that when Miss Lillian landed in Manchester on Thursday, she opened her trip by saying she had come "back to pick up the pieces."

"So I assume that the next time that she is here she will be doing the same thing," Gallen said.

Campaign workers for the two other Democratic candidates in the presidential election, Sen. Edward Brooke and Sen. John Chafee, were also amused by Lillian's remark.

But the mother of another candidate, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., had a few observations.

"I don't think it's relevant what a candidate's mother thinks about this or that," said Bernice Lane Brown in Manchester to campaign for her son. "She's not running for president. Her son is."

But Mrs. Brown was about to let the opportunity go to waste.

"Let me just say I can see where the president's brother Billy gets his genes and Jerry gets his genes from me and his fiscal frugality."

Bills Prepared On Nurse Homes

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Department of Health Services is preparing legislation to make sure the people who administer Connecticut's nursing homes have some minimum qualifications for the job.

Health Services Commissioner Dr. Douglas Lloyd said Friday he also wants changes in the law so fewer inspections are required for good nursing homes, freeing up inspectors to keep tabs on the ones with problems.

A one-man grand jury, a governor's blue ribbon panel and a legislative committee have been investigating nursing home problems since complaints about the care of mentally retarded patients at Lorraine Manor in Hartford.

Lloyd said a person now hired to be administrator or medical director of a nursing home doesn't have to know anything about the industry or proper patient care.

"Very often, an administrator is just a paper entity and the real controller is an absentee owner," Lloyd said in an interview before addressing a meeting of the Connecticut Public Health Association.

The principal owner of the Meadows Convalescent Center in Manchester lives in Springfield, Mass. Deputy Health Services Commissioner Dennis Kerrigan has said the state is investigating at least three deaths at the home.

Lloyd said he will go to the Legislature with his request first, but that the changes might be made in health regulations.

Another area where the department will be looking for statutory changes is in the number of inspections required at each home. Presently, each home has to be

Measure Bans Rent Bias

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The city's Housing Coalition said Friday it had drafted a measure that would prohibit landlords from refusing to rent to couples or single parents with children.

The coalition, an organization of 25 community groups, said it will urge the city's Board of Alders to adopt the measure in January.

The coalition said landlords "are finding it easier to exclude children" because of the high demand for rental housing in the city.

Tests Being Conducted To Gauge Waste Effect

MANCHESTER — Although two chemical dumps at the North End are no longer dumping trichloroethane into the ground, the State Department of Environmental Protection and one of the firms still are testing regularly to determine what effect residue from the chemicals has on a well on Progress Drive.

The first area Dean Machine Co. and Lydall, Inc. Stanley Davis, secretary-treasurer of Dean, said today his firm has dug up an old leaching field, refilled it, and is building a new structure near it.

He said the chemical is now returned to its manufacturer for recycling when it becomes unusable.

A spokesman for Lydall, Inc. said the practice of dumping the chemical has been stopped and Lydall as well as the DEP is conducting tests to monitor the effect of old dumping may have on the well, which supplies 500,000 gallons of water a day to homes and businesses in the Forest Park section.

In August the DEP found traces of the chemical slightly above the acceptable level. In October the town found the traces within acceptable levels.

The Lydall spokesman said the firm is cooperating fully with the DEP.

The town plans to begin a program to monitor chemical levels generally as soon as the Health Department is relieved of some of its responsibilities, giving it time to conduct the program, according to Ronald Kraatz, assistant director of health.

Kraatz said after the Health Department's housing code inspection responsibilities are turned over to the Building Department, the Health Department could begin a monitoring program.

The Public Administration Service report, which the board of directors commissioned in an effort to im-

Raise Suggested In Drinking Age

HARTFORD (UPI) — limited access highways running back and forth across state lines has been shown to be totally inadequate.

R-Stratford, saying alcohol is related to more and more teen-age highway deaths, urged Friday that the legal drinking age be and within Connecticut towns themselves.

Gunter said statistics compiled by the Department of Motor Vehicles showed the number of teen-age highway deaths related to alcohol has been increasing dramatically.

In 1977, he said, the number of 17-year-olds killed in traffic accidents where alcohol was involved increased by more than 200 percent, Gunter said. The increase was almost 400 percent among 20-year-olds.

"I'm not saying that raising the drinking age would be the panacea for all our problems, but it would get it out of the schools," he said.

The legal drinking age in Connecticut is 18. Gov. Ella Grasso last year vetoed a bill that would have allowed 18-year-olds to drink in bars, but would have required a parent to be present.

Gunter said many of those opposed to raising the drinking age were the same legislators who voted for the bill that was vetoed, knowing it probably would run into constitutional problems.

"That bill last year was stupid. I supported it, but I didn't like it," he said.

He said Mrs. Grasso's main argument is that contiguous states, specifically New York, haven't changed their legal drinking age so Connecticut teenagers would be driving across state lines for their booze.

"The argument that teenagers are killed on

The Mystery of Inventiveness

Editor's Note: This is the 12th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Connections: Technology and Change." In this article, historian Lynn White Jr. examines how inventions come about.

This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Manchester Community College offers a three-credit course based on the newspaper series. For information, call 646-2137.

A related 10-part television series, "Connections," is being broadcast Sunday evenings this fall by Connecticut Public Television.

How the minds of inventors work is a puzzling problem. Why people invent what they do, when they do, remains a mystery.

Indeed, there may be no such single thing as "the innovative process." A study of a number of different inventions shows that a variety of factors enters into technological creativity. Most inventions, however, result from systematic attempts to solve specific problems.

Take the horseshoe The world should be full of monuments to the unknown genius who first nailed iron shoes to the feet of a horse.

For nearly 3,000 years after its domestication, the horse was used in warfare and sport, but only for fairly light hauling — for example, of chariots. One difficulty arose because the yoke-harness was transferred from oxen, to which it was well adapted, to horses, on which it was very inefficient for reasons of anatomy.

At last, about A.D. 900, a new harness, consisting of a rigid horse collar connected to the wagon by traces, appeared in Europe, perhaps having come from Central Asia. Without adding cost, it increased the pulling capacity of a team of horses by four or five times.

But another problem had to be solved before the new harness could become really effective. In most regions like northern Europe, the hoofs of horses are much more fragile than those of oxen. They break easily and wear down quickly with hard usage.

Our inventor, doubtless a blacksmith who lived in northern Europe during the late ninth century, was probably familiar with the iron sandals that ancient veterinarians wired to broken hoofs to help their healing. But he also knew that these often worked loose and chafed the horse's feet.

He had a sudden, breakthrough idea: to reduce wear and breakage, he would "nail" iron shoes to the hoofs. It was a bold, even foolhardy, notion. Horses were valuable, and to lame one deliberately would certainly have been a crime in his society. But he hammered on those shoes and they worked.

About A.D. 900 nailed horseshoes began to spread swiftly on the plains from the Atlantic into central Siberia. The importance of horses in the medieval and early modern development of agriculture, transport, and early industrialization is indicated by the fact that even today, when horses are used mainly for sport, the standard measure for the work-capacity of any engine — electrical, internal combustion, or other — is called "horsepower."

Our debt to that anonymous blacksmith is immense. Clearly, he had thought his problem through before he drove those nails.

Internal Combustion Engine

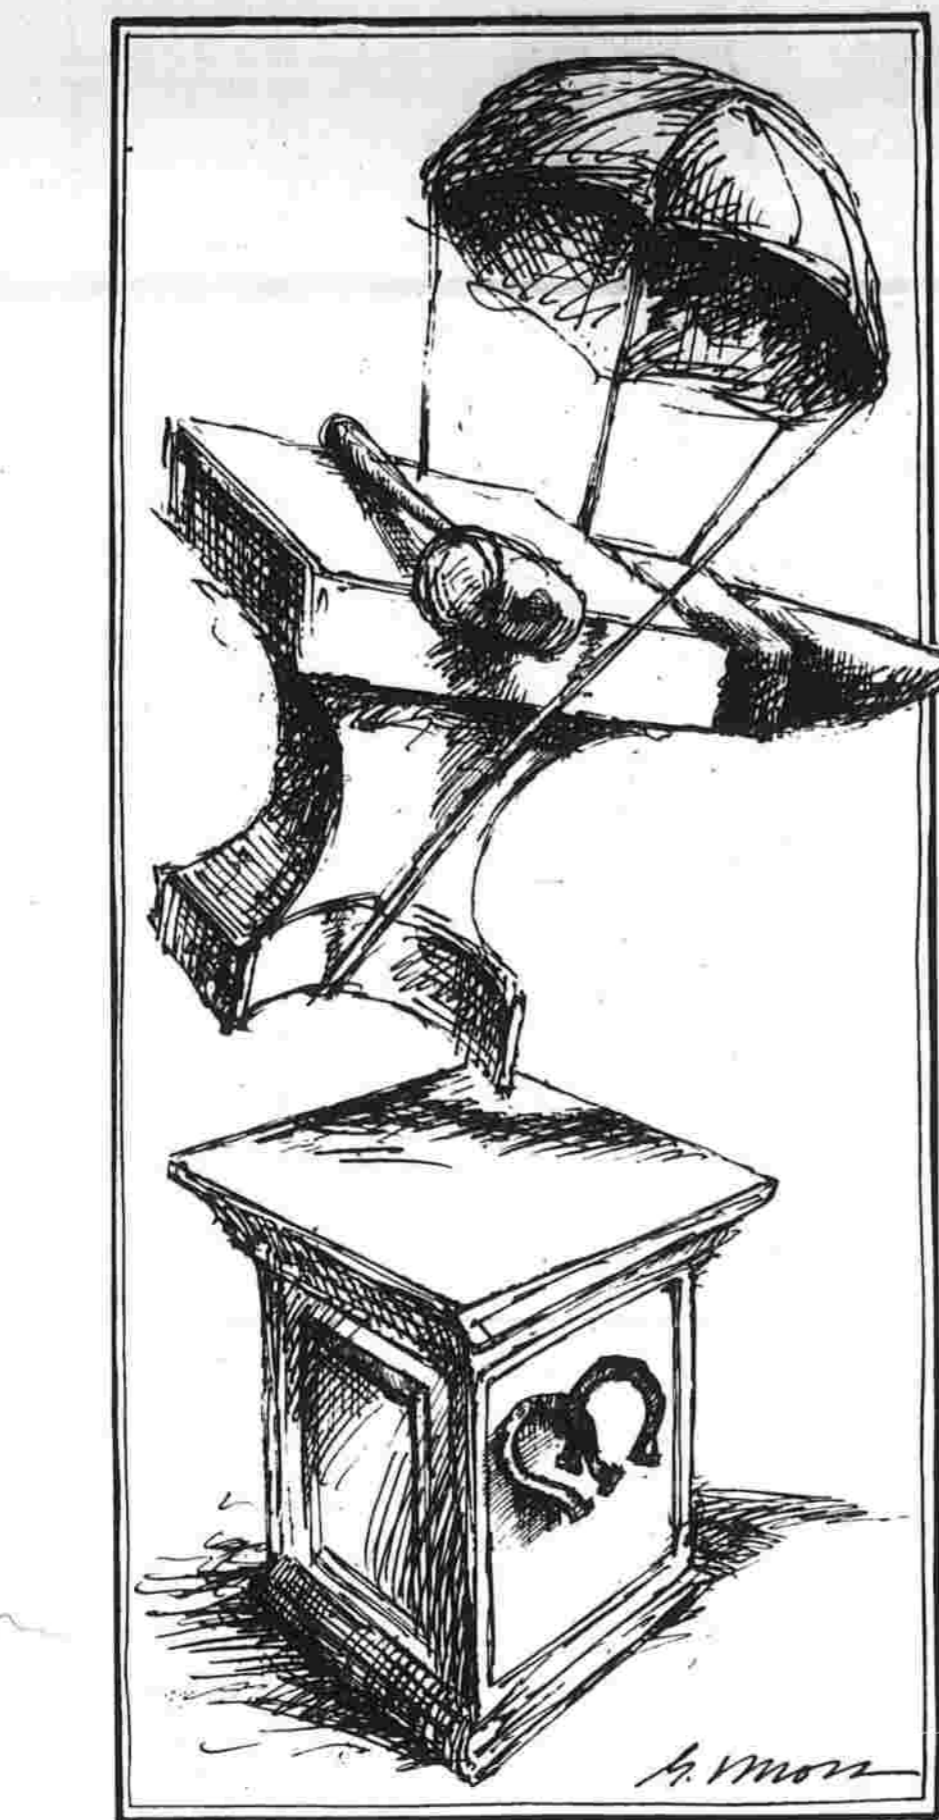

There are times, however, when too much awareness of past experience can handicap inventors. The development of the internal combustion engine — which evolved from the cannon — offers an example.

The formula for gunpowder reached Europe from China by 1260. But in both East and West, gunpowder was used not in guns but simply in rockets, "Roman" candles, and firecrackers, although often for military ends. The cannon was invented in Europe, more than half a century later. It appears at Florence in 1326, and we have a picture of one in England in 1327. The first known Chinese cannon is dated 1332; the idea was probably taken to China by an Italian merchant, for many of them were trading there at that time.

The cannon is a one-cylinder internal combustion engine. Leonardo da Vinci (1452-1519) was the first engineer to glimpse its non-military potential; he tried to substitute a piston for the ball, but failed. Several inventors in the 17th and 18th centuries followed Leonardo's intuition, but without success. The trouble was that all of them were too keenly aware of the cannon as the source of their ideas, so they kept trying to use gunpowder as their fuel.

Not until the 19th century did engineers conclude that powder was too clumsy to run a continuously operating engine. They then turned for their power to the lighter distillates of petroleum — like kerosene or gasoline — that first had been produced by medieval Byzantine and Islamic alchemists for chemical warfare.

In inventing, knowing too much may be as great an obstacle as knowing too little because it may hinder spontaneity.

The Crankshaft

Concern for human safety has often been a motive for invention — as in the case of the crankshaft.

Many of our internal combustion engines today depend on crankshafts for conversion and transmission of motion. Indeed, modern machine design is inconceivable without the crankshaft. It was invented shortly before 1335 by Guido da Vigevano, a famous medic who was then in Paris as personal physician to the queen of France.

Guido was interested in reducing casualties among soldiers pushing siege towers toward enemy walls. If the men could move a tower from inside it rather than from the outside, they would be better protected from enemy fire. So he drew two diagrams of rolling towers, each equipped with a double or compound crank in the center of each of its two axles. He was so pleased with this notion that he also sketched a submarine propelled by paddle-wheels turned from inside by man-operated crankshafts.

Engineers in the French royal service were clearly interested. They developed Guido's device for the theatrical machinery of the great pageants of the court at Paris. In the 15th century, crankshafts became part of the accepted engineering repertory of Europe.

The Parachute

There is one early instance when we can almost look into the inventor's mind at the moment when he produced an invention of much significance for our own century: the parachute.

In London there is the sketchbook of an anonymous engineer, probably of Siena in Tuscany, that dates from the late 1470s and early 1480s. At one point, he seems to be worrying about a friend imprisoned in a tower. Is there any way for the captive to jump and still survive? We see a drawing of a man dropping from a considerable height, his fall braked by two large, fluttering cloth streamers attached to his belt. In his mouth is a sponge to protect his jaws from the shock of landing. He looks terrified — and should be.

The next pages of the manuscript are filled with military engines and the like. But our engineer-sketcher is worried about that man jumping. The streamers won't decelerate his fall enough. Something more effective is needed. So, after 21 pages, our jumper reappears. The sponge is now strapped around his head so that if he cries out in fright he will not lose it. The streamers have been replaced by a conical parachute, the world's first.

A very few years later, Leonardo da Vinci sketched a pyramidal parachute. About 1615 a Hungarian bishop published a book on new engineering devices that contained the first printed picture of a parachute.

Thereafter, every European engineer knew the theoretical possibility of parachutes; but there were no actual situations in which one was needed.

Only after the Montgolfier brothers of France started ballooning in 1783 did the parachute find a function — to allow descent from a gas-filled balloon. The first human jump with one was made that same year. Our anonymous Siennese engineer had created the idea of a device that remained dormant, although known, for 300 years before it was used.

In our own time, in every major army, parachute troops are the spearhead of swift infantry attack, and without parachutes the manned exploration of space might well have proved infeasible.

In pure science, great discovery, especially if it has technological overtones, occasionally comes by accident or happy chance to researchers. Famous examples are Hans Christian Orsted's observation in 1819 of the relation between magnetism and electricity, William H. Perkin's discovery of aniline dyes in 1856, and Alexander Fleming's of penicillin in 1928.

In engineering, such luck is curiously rare. Inventors seem to have to work for everything they invent.

For them, fairy godmothers are in short supply.

The views expressed in Courses by Newspaper are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the distributing agency, or the participating newspapers and colleges.

Next Week: Philosopher Bertram Morris, emeritus professor of the University of Colorado, discusses the ethical dilemmas posed by technology.

New Logo

This new logo of the Vernon Arts Commission was designed by Mrs. Hilkka Guglielmi of 88 Indian Trail, a first grade teacher at Vernon Elementary School. The commission conducted a contest inviting residents to submit designs for a logo. More than 30 entries were considered. Mrs. Guglielmi was presented with a $100 savings bond by Mayor Marie Herbst. The flames of the torch form the letters VAC. The theme of the winning entry was, "Don't let the arts die — keep the flame glowing and the fame growing."

Carol Sing Set By Hebron Panel

HEBRON — The Recreation Commission will conduct a Community Christmas Carol sing Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. in front of the First Congregational Church.

The town Christmas tree, which will be decorated by members of the Hebron Volunteer Fire Department will be lighted for the first time during the carol sing.

The commission is also making plans to show two films, "Escape to Witch Mountain," and "Pluto's Christmas Tree," Dec. 19 at the town's two elementary schools.

John Marco, chairman of the men's basketball program said both leagues still have openings for members. The age 18-25 group meets Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. at Rhain High School and those over age 25 meet Thursdays at 7 p.m. at Hebron Elementary School. Coed Jolleyball is played Tuesdays at 7 p.m. at Gilead Hill School.

John Reagan spoke to Recreation Commission members about the commission's continued sponsorship of the Youth Basketball Program and members of the commission voted to continue the sponsorship.

Reagan said he would like to obtain use of the Hebron Elementary School auditorium for a program on Saturdays. At this time the basketball program is conducted Mondays, Fridays, and Saturdays at Gilead Hill School.

Meeting Slated On Land Needs

HEBRON — The Recreation Commission will hold a special meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the home of commission member Dale Bland to outline what the commission feels are the land needs for recreational purposes.

The Recreation Commission and the Conservation Commission met Thursday night and Todd Cook of the state Office of Policy and Management was unable to speak, as planned.

Cynthia G. Wilson, chairman of the Conservation Commission, said the essence of the report filed by Cook, was that the 34 to 35 acres of land being given the town by the developers of the Joshua Farms subdivision could be used for hiking trails and nature walks, but could have minimal potential for any other uses. In a subsequent review of several other parcels of land, Mrs. Wilson said that land is sought for conservation purposes, recreation use, and for a site for housing for the elderly.

Both commissions discussed several tracts of land which they identified by letters to avoid revealing the location of the owners of the land. However, during an emergency meeting called by the Conservation Commission, the group voted to recommend to the Board of Selectmen that the town pursue the acquisition of a parcel of land identified only as Parcel A.

Meanwhile, the Recreation Commission, hopes to determine if that same parcel will meet its needs for ball fields. The matter will be discussed Monday.

The commission will also review a plan for ballfields, originally laid out by Harry Megson for the Leary property on Wall street and will try to determine if Parcel A would provide areas for a comparable number of fields.

Fahey Invited to Speak

HARTFORD — State Sen. Marcella Fahey has been invited to be a guest speaker at a "Women in Public Services" seminar being held at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., today.

Mrs. Fahey, a Democrat who represents East Hartford and much of Manchester, is the vice-chairman of the Connecticut General Assembly's Appropriations Committee.

The seminar is intended to provide the Harvard University community with an opportunity to learn first-hand of the experiences women are having in public service today.

Mrs. Fahey will be joined by other elected state and federal officials, lobbyists and foreign consulate representatives.

Ladies Society To Meet

MANCHESTER — The Ladies Aid Society of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

The Rev. Charles W. Kuhl will lead a discussion. Members are asked to bring their favorite cookies and bring them to exchange for cookies made by other members. A copy of the cookie recipe should also be brought. Mite boxes will be collected. Hostesses will be Mrs. Linda Reynolds, Mrs. Dorothy Ruebin, Mrs. Bertha Schneider, and Mrs. Marion Schneider.

Suggestions for Gift Shopping

By Tom Jay
Got any collectors on your gift list this holiday season? Puzzled about what gift they might appreciate? Here are a few suggestions for your gift shopping.

For the stamp collector, one center where inexpensive gifts can be purchased is your local post office. There you may purchase a packet containing 30 stamps issued in 1979 at a cost of $5.25. Just ask the clerk for the 1979 Mint Set and you are sure to please your favorite philatelist, even if he gets several of them.

Some post offices have Mint Sets for the years back to 1975. The 1975 and 1976 sets cost $3.50 each, the 1977 set $4.00, and the 1978 set $4.50. The effect of inflation in the philatelic world is obvious. These sets provide an easy way for the novice collector to complete their collection or to start a youngster in the joys of collecting stamps.

Also available at all area post offices is the sixth edition of Stamps and Stories, a paperback book selling for $3.50 which illustrates in color all U.S. stamps since 1847 together with background material on many of their subjects, useful by both collectors and non-collectors as reference material for school projects in English history, social studies, geography, science, and other subjects.

A paperback book might also be the perfect gift for the comic book collector. Reprints of many of the classic comic heroes adventures have recently been published in paperback form. For $1.95 you can give reprints of Spiderman 1-5, material that would cost over $1,000 in the original editions.

Every collector of comic books or paperback books could use polyethylene bags in which to store his treasures. These come in packages of 100 and sell for $3.50-$4.00 at local comic emporiums on Purnell place in Manchester (Sam's) and Burnside Avenue in East Hartford (The Bookie).

All we could come up with as a suggestion for the coin collector is a copy of the latest catalog, a gift that any collector might appreciate for his particular field.

Finally, an unusual gift for the sports fan, collector of sports memorabilia, or the philatelist is a set of seven envelopes cancelled on each day of the 1979 World Series. Packaged in a special souvenir folder bearing the emblems of the Pirates and the Orioles, these seven embossed stamped envelopes bearing Pittsburgh and Baltimore cancellations of different designs may still be available at $1.76 a set from "World Series Cancellations" Pittsburgh, Pa., 15219, or Baltimore, Md., 21253 or see your local cover dealer.

A Sign of the Times
Observed over a dealer's table at MANPHIL was a sign which read "We do not buy, sell, or trade Iranian stamps."

First Sunday Stamp Bourse
East Hartford's Ramada Inn will be a place for Christmas shopping tomorrow from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. when Gerry Gerath sponsors his monthly stamp bourse.

The Postal Service will be there (until about 1:30 anyway) as will stamp dealers from all over New England to fill your collecting needs.

Unusual Gift
An unusual philatelic gift for the sports fan is a set of seven envelopes canceled on each day of the 1979 World Series. They're available from "World Series Cancellations," Pittsburgh, Pa., and Baltimore, Md.

Shah Is Refugee: Baker

MERRIMACK, N.H. (UPI) — Republican presidential hopeful Sen. Howard Baker, on a New Hampshire campaign swing, said Friday the deposed Shah of Iran is a "refugee" and should be allowed to remain in this country as long as he wants.

"I believe President Carter made the right decision when he permitted the shah to come to this country for medical treatment," Baker told about 100 persons at a Rotary Club luncheon.

"He (Carter) was right in the decision to let him in and I support him. I support him if he decides to let him stay," Baker added.

The Tennessee Republican also pointed out this country has "a tradition of receiving refugees in this nation and he (the Shah) is a refugee." Commenting on the decision by American authorities not to renew the shah's visa, Baker said that presents a "new problem."

But the Republican presidential hopeful was miffed at the Iranian students who have threatened to hold spy trials for the American hostages if the shah is not returned to Tehran.

"I am not prepared to urge that another country can decide who may reside on American soil," he said.

Baker promised to support Carter's handling of the situation and "whatever reasonable means" the president has to use to win the release of the 50 American hostages.

But on other issues, Baker was less kind to Carter.

"I've got better relations with the Democratic Congress than he does," Baker added.

He said those relations would allow him to overhaul much of the federal bureaucracy.

In another vein, Baker said that he supports more emphasis on the private sector to solve the nation's economic and energy needs.

"We're overtaxed and overregulated," Baker said.

Pope Returns to Vatican With Historic Document

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, exhausted from three days of tense, light security in Turkey, returned Friday carrying a historic agreement with Greek Orthodox Patriarch Dimitrios I to try to bridge the 925-year-old schism between their churches.

"This voyage was a witness to my firm desire to go forward on the road leading to the full unity of all Christians," John Paul said when his papal 727 jet touched down at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci airport Friday night.

This voyage, at the same time, contributes to the coming together of men in respect to their deep and essential humanity," the pontiff said.

Before his plane departed Izmir airport, the pope thanked Turkish officials for helping him "to carry out my stay under good conditions."

The day's activities included an unscheduled scare when a jittery soldier accidentally fired his rifle during an outdoor mass at the sanctuary of the Virgin Mary in Ephesus.

Seeing John Paul off at Izmir military airport were 300 honor guards soldiers with fixed bayonets at the ready and 15 Turkish government and religious leaders. No other civilians were permitted on the airfield.

The journey and long meetings with Greek Orthodox Patriarch Dimitrios I took a heavy toll on his 59-year-old pontiff as well as on his retinue.

In an unprecedented move, the pontiff attended a eucharistic mass celebrated by Dimitrios I. But he could hardly keep his eyes open during the two-and-a-half hour ceremony.

Repeatedly, John Paul sat absolutely still with his eyes closed for several minutes fighting sleep. Several bishops in the papal retinue went into a corner of the church, and nodded off on a pew.

The pope, making his historic appeal for unity between the world's 739 million Catholic and 200 million Orthodox Christians, called for increased "theological dialogue" in a joint statement issued with Dimitrios.

During his three-day visit to Turkey, the pope was protected by the most massive security precautions the country had ever seen. There were even policemen armed with submachine guns in the church during the mass.

The pope, making his historic appeal for unity between the world's 739 million Catholic and 200 million Orthodox Christians, called for increased "theological dialogue" in a joint statement issued with Dimitrios.

Obituary

Chester G. Kosak

MANCHESTER — Chester G. Kosak, 65, of 312 Main St., died Friday at his home. He was born in Manchester, June 8, 1914, and had been a life-long resident of the town.

Prior to his retirement in 1977, he was employed in the purchasing and payroll departments of Manchester Notes.

He was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II. He was a member of Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, Manchester and a member and past officer of the Army & Navy Club.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Ann (Waskalevici) Kosak, he leaves three sons, Gerry J. Kosak, Manchester; John E. Kosak, Bronville, N.Y.; and Chester P. Kosak, North Kingstown, R.I.; three brothers, Frank Kosak, Manchester and Edward and Edwin Kosak, both of the East Hartford; three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be Monday morning at 8:15 from the John F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 W. Center St., followed by a mass of Christian Burial in St. James Church.

Burial will be in St. Bridget's Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made in his name to the American Cancer Society, 310 Collins St., Hartford.

Re-election Notice To be on Low Key

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter probably will drop plans to attend gala parties around America next week and will make only a low key announcement of his plans to seek re-election, White House aides said Friday.

"He's not going barnstorming while Iran holds 50 American hostages," one aide said, adding that even the Tuesday re-election announcement itself will be made without any "cheering crowds."

"It's not going to be a ballyhoo situation," he said.

Since the hostage crisis began Nov. 4, Carter has not left Washington, except for a trip to the presidential retreat at Camp David, where he has easily kept in close touch with events.

The president indicated during his news conference Wednesday night he is likely to stay close to Washington until the crisis ends and said he thinks about the hostages constantly.

Members to Meet

MANCHESTER — Members of Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, will meet at the KofC Home, Main St., Sunday night at 7 to go to the John F. Tierney Funeral Home to pay respects to deceased member Chester Kosak.

Decision Seen on Post

BOLTON — As of Tuesday, the town may have its first administrative assistant. The Board of Selectmen will decide whether or not to hire Alan Bergren of East Hartford for the position when it meets Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Community Hall.

Bergren is being recommended by the administrative assistant selection committee.

He previously served as assistant administrator to former East Hartford Mayor Richard Blackstone.

The town has been searching for an administrative assistant since July. The position was created to alleviate some of the duties of the first selectman and the Board of Selectmen.

There are funds in the current budget allocated for the position.

PTA Sets Program

EAST HARTFORD — The Burnside School PTA will sponsor the "Nutcracker Shoppe" Dec. 5 where the school's students can purchase handmade crafts and gifts for Christmas giving.

All items were donated to the shoppe by friends of Burnside School and PTA supporters.

Students and adults will have an opportunity to purchase gifts during school hours. Although this is a fundraising event, the PTA is primarily interested in giving the children of Burnside School an opportunity to purchase special Christmas gifts at a reasonable price.

Driver Injured

GLASTONBURY — Shirley S. Beisel, of 48 Ox Yoke Drive, Weathersfield was treated and released at Hartford Hospital Friday after her car collided with a truck on the southbound lane of Main Street.

No one else was injured in the crash, which occurred at 2:30 p.m. Paul Mallia, the driver of the Jason Soda Systems truck, struck Mrs. Beisel as she tried to enter the left southbound lane of Main Street.

Mrs. Beisel was leaving the Sage Allen Parking lot when a driver allowed her to enter the right lane. She then proceeded into the left lane, where she collided with the truck.

Refusal Distresses Shah

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ailing shah of Iran is "quite distressed" that Mexico no longer will give him refuge and has asked Washington for help in leaving the United States to find a new home in exile, a spokesman for the deposed monarch said Friday.

However, the spokesman would not say where the shah intends to go, now that the Mexican government effectively has barred him from returning to his home there.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi remained at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center in Manhattan Friday, where he has been recovering from radiation treatments for lymphatic cancer and gall bladder surgery.

Doctors have said the 60-year-old shah is fit to travel, but spokesmen for the shah said his departure would be delayed in the wake of Mexico's decision not to renew his visitor's visa once it expires on Dec. 8.

"He will not leave today. That is certain," said Tim Desmond, one of the shah's spokesmen.

Robert Armao, the shah's chief spokesman in New York, issued a statement Friday afternoon, "a couple" of other Desmond said.

Residents, Firms Participate Festival of Trees

By BETTY RYDER Family Editor

Manchester area residents are once again joining other Greater Hartford communities to participate in the 1979 Festival of Trees at the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford.

The Festival, sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Atheneum, opened Nov. 30 and continues through Sunday, Dec. 9.

Last year, more than 17,000 people from all over Connecticut and some out-of-state visitors, too, attended the exhibit. More than $50,000 was raised to benefit the museum.

The event is made possible by the donation of beautifully decorated trees and wreaths by businesses, cultural and social organizations, institutions, churches, schools, garden clubs, private citizens and others, which are on exhibit and are for sale.

The theme of this year's Festival is "A Dickens Look" and it will feature tall lamp posts decked with holly and huge red bows.

Mrs. Samuel G. Smith of Manchester is the co-chairperson for the overall planning and execution of the 1979 Festival. She and her committee includes Mrs. Raymond J. Vitelli, second vice president of the Women's Committee and Mrs.

Robert H. Smith, both of Manchester; and Mrs. John S. Mason and Mrs. Lester Baum, both of Rockville, have been busy preparing many of the outstanding decorations.

Among those in the area who have donated some of the fanciful trees are the Savings Bank of Manchester, the Manchester Structural Steel Co., Mrs. Jack Hunter, Mrs. Leslie Belcher, Mrs. Samuel Smith, and Dale Graves students at Iling Junior High School.

A new feature this year will be the Museum Shop, recently opened to the public, which will have for sale an exquisite collection of Christmas ornaments and handmade articles for gift-giving. In keeping with the spirit of Christmas, there will be a group of musicians performing each day in the galleries between noon and 2 p.m.

The Festival will be open museum hours: Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Thursday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Special hours on Friday, Dec. 7 are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and will include entertainment, wine and cheese served at 7 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults; $1.50 for senior citizens and students; and 50 cents for children under 12.

Sports Hall of Fame

One subject that has been kicked around for a number of years may become a reality shortly, a Manchester Sports Hall of Fame.

Just how far the move will get off the ground remains to be seen, but Steve Cassano has come forth and expressed an interest in forming a committee to delve into such a project.

If the idea is to honor Manchester natives or long-time Manchester residents who have made a name for themselves or starred in sports the list would have to include the following:

Herman Bronkie, Tom Kelley, Moe Morhardt and Tony Lupien who all made it all the way to the major leagues in baseball. Bronkie having the honor of being the first.

Jerry Fay and Dave Hayes played in the National Football League.

Most Famous

Joe McCluskey brought more fame to Manchester than any other individual winning 23 national championships, being named to a dozen All-America track teams and twice being a member of the United States Olympic squad.

Pete Close was another native who gained a berth in the Olympics as a track star while Charlie Robbins copied 11 national long-distance titles during his biggest years as a runner.

Leo Kaitavack was the only Silk Tuner product to play major league basketball, with Red Auerback's Washington Caps in the old Basketball Association of America.

Pat Bolduc helped one Raybestos men's team win the world fast pitch softball championship.

Pete Wigren, Will Clarke and Tom Kelly produced many fine teams and athletes while coaching track, basketball, football and baseball at

King of Courts

Walter "Ty" Holland was king of the courts in tennis for a decade, beating all comers.

Wally Fortin guided Manchester American Legion baseball teams to numerous state and national titles.

Gene Johnson produced 10 championship Twilight League baseball teams under sponsorship of Moriarty Bros. Matt Moriarty, more than any one man, provided financial assistance to local teams for nearly 40 years.

The list could go on and on. Readers are invited to submit their choice, or choices, and reasons. These will be turned over to a selection committee, to be named.

Have a nice weekend.

Bills Await Broncos

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Denver Broncos are well trained for the frigid temperatures they will encounter Sunday in Buffalo's Rich Stadium. They may not be ready for the team waiting inside.

The Bills, an AFC East doormat the past three seasons with a 10-3 record, have reeled off a three-game winning streak and a victory over the Broncos Sunday would keep them in contention for the division title. Buffalo, 7-6, is one victory away from tying New England for second place, one game behind first-place Miami.

Buffalo beat New England in overtime last week and it took a few minutes for the game's significance to sink in to the Bills' leader, quarterback Joe Ferguson.

"I was just numb when I walked off the field Sunday," said Ferguson, who continues his No. 1 rating among AFC players. "It wasn't until I reached the dressing room that it really hit me. When you beat a team as good as the Patriots, it's really the biggest moment of the season. Heck, it's the biggest moment of the last four years."

The Broncos, 9-4, are embroiled in their own divisional battle. Denver, which finishes with three road games, trails San Diego by a game in the AFC West and wants to remain close until its season-ending Monday night confrontation with the Chargers. Denver dropped a 14-10 decision to Oakland last week, but the Broncos finally got their running game established — grinding out a season-best 215 rushing yards.

Buffalo, looking for its longest winning streak since 1975, went 64 yards in the final 1:19 of regulation last week to tie New England. Ferguson's 11-yard TD pass to Lon Piccone with 11 seconds left, then won it in overtime on Nick Mike-Mayer's 29-yard field goal.

Jerry Butler, the sensational rookie wide receiver who is averaging 19 yards per reception, caught a 24-yard pass to set up Piccone's game-tying touchdown. Butler, who had missed the three previous games with a shoulder injury, also set up the winning field goal with a 51-yard catch.

"If I had that play to do all over again, I don't think I could play any better," said Patriots rookie defensive back Rick Sanford, who was victimized on Butler's 51-yard reception. "Butler's just a great receiver. I had my hands on the ball and was pulling at it. But great receivers make catches like that."

An outstanding quarterback helps.

Ferguson, always erratic in the past, has blossomed this season and the Bills' winning streak coincides with Coach Chuck Knox's decision to let him call his own plays. Ferguson's No. 1 rating is based in large part on his whopping 8.71 yards gained per pass attempt. Butler's complement at wide receiver, veteran Frank Lewis, is averaging 21.6 yards per reception.

In other games Sunday, Chicago is at Tampa Bay, Baltimore at the New York Jets, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, Houston at Cleveland, Seattle at Kansas City, Detroit at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Washington, Minnesota at Los Angeles, the New York Giants at Dallas, San Francisco at St. Louis and Atlanta at San Diego.

Oakland is at New Orleans Monday night.

A Tampa Bay victory over Chicago would clinch the NFC Central title for the fourth-year Buccaneers. The Bears, 7-6, had their four-game winning streak snapped convincingly by Jerry Butler.

Tampa Bay virtually end their playoff hopes.

Tampa Bay's Ricky Bell went over the top in the game, but he was in a loss to Minnesota and the powerful fullback heads the NFC's No. 1 running game. The Buccaneers lead the NFL in pass defense and have allowed the fewest points in the league.

Two Starters With Eaglettes

How quickly the new personnel blend in with the old will determine what kind of season it will be in 1979-80 for the East Catholic girls' basketball team.

The Eaglettes, who top off a 17-game slate Tuesday afternoon at Hartford Public at 3:15, were 16-6 a year ago. They secured runner-up honors in the Hartford County Conference and reached the Class I quarterfinals. That was accomplished with a veteran cast, three of whom graduated.

"This year we're not so veteran," pointed out eight-year East Coach Donna Ridel. "We have a lot of new people. It will take time for them to get the experience and for them to mesh together as a unit."

Captains, 5-foot-10 senior Sue Dailey and 5-foot-8 junior Monica Murphy, are returning starters. Dailey averaged 10.3 points per game as a junior while Murphy was the club's leading scorer at 17.4 clip. The latter, however, sprained an ankle in practice and is presently hobbling around on crutches. She may miss the first week of the season.

"She's questionable. We can't afford to have her (Murphy) out too long. Without Monica the rebounding and the HCC picks. South is defending camp."

"The big question mark is how quickly the new people fit in." Schedule: Dec 4 Hartford Public 3:15, 7 South Windsor H 3 p.m., 10 Northwest Catholic H, 18 St. Paul A, 20 South Catholic H, 28 Manchester H, 28 Farmington A, Jan 3 Mercy H, 4 Hartford Public H, 14 Aquinas A, 15 Mercy A 3:30 p.m., 22 Newton A, 24 St. Paul H, 28 Toiland A, 31 Northwest Catholic A, Feb 7 Aquinas H, 9 South Catholic A, 14-16 HCC Playoffs. Games not noted 8 p.m.

Karen Laclier, a 5-foot-6 senior and Kathy Skehan, a 5-foot-6 junior, have locked up the two backcourt slots. The forward position opposite Murphy is currently being vamped for by 5-foot-4 junior Fiona Campbell, 5-foot-5 junior Felicia Farr and 5-foot-5 sophomore Pam Cunningham.

Five-foot-7 junior Kelly Walsh, 5-foot-6 sophomore Denise White and 5-foot-4 junior Chris Harvey round out the variety roster. Jayvees will also see variety action "if by our big people."

Auburn, on probation, is ineligible for a post-season bowl but can wind up sending 5-6 Georgia to New Orleans, where Alabama beat Penn State 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl last year. And with James Brooks and Joe Cribbs, the only two 1,000-yard performers ever to play for the same Southeastern Conference team, the Tigers do have more than a passing chance.

In other games Saturday, No. 20 Michigan State plays host to No. 11 Pittsburgh. Army meets Navy at Philadelphia. Tennessee entertains Vanderbilt. Holy Cross plays host to Boston College and Florida visits Miami (Fla.).

Record-Setting Season Enjoyed by Tribe Kickers

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

It was a memorable, record-setting season for Manchester High soccer—one which came to a close with a storybook finish.

Most of it has been said before. The Indians, after a very slow beginning, came on strong to wind up 18-4 and with the state Class LL championship for themselves—and for retiring 33-year Coach Dick Danielson.

Several school records were established by the 79 squad, including three-time 100 percent goal goals, most goals scored—67, most goals allowed—27, most goals by both teams in a single game—12 in an 4-4 win over Windham, most goals in a single game by an individual—5 by Jeff Lombardo vs. Windham, most goals single season—30 by Lombardo, most goals career—41 by Lombardo.

Also, most three or more goals in a game career—6 by Lombardo including three times in 79, once against leading the team in scoring—3 by Lombardo, tying him with Ron Conyers (1965-67), and most goals single game team—9 against Norwalk.

Educator Indicted in Arson Case

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Edward T. Costa, a high-ranking state education official, was indicted Friday on arson and larceny charges stemming from a 1978 fire that destroyed records and did $50,000 damage to state office.

State Education Commissioner Thomas E. Schmidt, saying he was "deeply saddened" by the incident, said the consultant Virginia M.C. deMota, one of Costa's subordinates, was indicted on charges of attempted larceny and petty larceny stemming from the fire investigation. She was not accused of involvement in the fire.

Schmidt, saying he was "deeply saddened" by the incident, said the consultant Virginia M.C. deMota, one of Costa's subordinates, was indicted on charges of attempted larceny and petty larceny stemming from the fire investigation. She was not accused of involvement in the fire.

The grand jury began hearing evidence last year into the July 21 blaze. The state fire marshal's office was involved in at least two places in the 80-year-old Roger Williams building, which housed education offices and the Family Court.

One of the spots where the fire broke out was in Costa's office. Costa, who was treated for smoke inhalation, later said he was making coffee in the hallway when he smelled smoke. He said all records of federal programs were destroyed.

"It's a nightmare," he said at the time.

Costa, recently named to serve on a national bilingual education council, was cited for his work by the president of Portugal.

A deputy commissioner since 1974, he is director of the office that handles

Famed Clown's Grandson Suspect in Beating Deaths

MERIDEN (UPI) — Famed circus clown Emmett Kelly's grandson, Paul A. Kelly, a suspect in two California beating deaths, was guilty of a bludgeoning attack in Ocean-side and arrested this week in Connecticut two years ago. UPI learned Friday.

The younger Kelly, 22, who pleaded innocent Thursday in an Ocean-side, Calif., court to the California murder charges, served a year in jail for the July 1977 attack on a security guard at the Oakland Musical Theater in Wallingford.

Kelly was arrested July 21, 1977 after the early morning attack on Brian Crawford, then 21, of Meriden, who worked at the theater as a security guard.

Kelly, then 19, was charged with two counts of first-degree assault for the attack with a hammer which sent Crawford to Meriden-Wallingford Hospital for more than a dozen stitches to the scalp.

Kelly was arrested this week in Ocean-side and charged with the Nov. 15 bludgeoning death of the Rev. Henry B. Kuisenga, 66, a retired Presbyterian minister, and the similar Nov. 4 slaying of Brent D. Bailey, 22, a Los Angeles animal dealer.

Bailey was found dead in his car on a San Diego, Calif., street while Kuisenga's body was found in a beachside cottage in Ocean-side, 40 miles north of San Diego.

Both men were found nude with their heads crushed. A California coroner said Friday the injuries were caused by a blunt object, but did not specifically identify it.

Lloyd Rapped for Travel Expenses

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Republican legislator called on the governor Friday to "straighten out" the Department of Health Services, saying the number of out-of-state trips by Commissioner Dr. Douglas Lloyd were "scandalous."

Rep. Virginia Connolly, R-Simsbury, released a 56-page catalogue of Lloyd's travels from June 1978 until mid-December of this year. She said he was out of state 139 days and charged up $14,933.69 in travel expenses.

"Based on his travels, it might have been more appropriate if he had been appointed Transportation Commissioner instead," Mrs. Connolly said.

Grasso in a letter whether she condoned Lloyd's out-of-state trips, and if she didn't, to "take appropriate steps to bring his travels under control and to straighten out the Department of Health Services."

Lloyd said many of his trips were intended to generate federal funding for his program. You don't get former Gov. Thomas Meskill in 1973, he said the level of federal funding of the agency's budget had increased from 20 to 50 percent.

One of the trips listed in the travel reports with the comptroller's office was a two-day stay on Martha's Vineyard off the Massachusetts coast. Lloyd did not file for expenses for that trip.

"That was a requested trip that was taken on vacation time," he said. Lloyd said he, Dr. John Lewis, who heads up the department's preventative disease division and members of Lewis' staff spent the time at Lewis' home there.

"We wanted to look to how we were going to try to move into more activities in health promotion," Lloyd said. He said they were originally going to file for expenses, but decided to do it on their own time.

Another trip was to Scottsdale, Ariz., Nov. 1, 1978. In Nov. 4, 1978, the annual meeting of the Clinical Scholars Program — one which Mrs. Connolly singled out as being unnecessary.

"It's a professional meeting for me," Lloyd said. "I attend every year. I'm an alumnus of the department's health promotion activities and I try and make every year."

He said Mrs. Connolly should have approached him before going public.

"This is surprising to me because Representative Connolly has spoken well of our activities in the past and it seems like political posturing because she released a press release before talking to me," Lloyd said.

Prisons in the United States

By CLIFF SIMPSON

It is rather shocking to hear under the United Nations auspices, a recent tour studied prison conditions in our country.

We read of the treatment in other countries and assume our own is much more humane. Seven internationally prominent jurists (one from Sweden, another from India, and a third from Nigeria) found "cruel and unusual" punishment of politically active prisoners that violated the U.N. standard minimum rules for treatment of prisoners. In a report printed in "Keeping You Posted" appeared these words:

"They were especially critical of behavior modification units, prolonged solitary confinement and long term segregation in control units. These punishments were found to be common in such federal penitentiaries as those at Marion Co., IL, and Angola State, LA."

This tour covered thirteen states and was sponsored by The United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice and thirty-five other national groups.

And Still the Heart

Now from the world the dream of God is gone,
And men in darkness move and are afraid,
These blaming heaven for the evil done,
And those each other for the part they played.
And all their woes on God are strictly laid,
For being absent from these earthly hills,
Who set the trees to be the noonday shade,
And placed the stars in beauty on the hills.

Turn not away, or cry that all is lost;

It is not so, His voice is in the light
As once it was when Egypt's mighty host
Rode to the sea and vanished in the night.

For still the heart, by love and pity wrung,
Finds the same God as when the world was young.

— Robert Nathan

Don't Expect Too Much From the Season

It is pathetic the faith that some put in the holiday season to solve their problems. "I know that Mother and Dad will be reconciled if they can only stay together through Christmas." "It will be easier for Mother and me to talk our disagreements out as trim the tree," so states a teenager. "Grandmother will like me a lot better when I give her her present. It is really more than I can afford." And so the hopes rise with the approaching "season to be jolly."

Neither the season nor elaborate gifts will change relationships unless there are changes from sarcasm, harshness, indifference, temper tantrums and all other characteristics that grate and jar to love, tenderness, listening, thoughtfulness, praise and all other characteristics that heal and help. Christ came to change the hearts of men — that's what Christmide is all about. Trust the God who came in Jesus — not the season.

The Chuckle

Rufus Jones of well-known Quaker fame once told this story:
"A short-statured young blacksmith in a small Maine town fell in love with a tall local girl but he was so short that he was too bashful to tell her. One day she came to the smithy to call for a teakettle that he had fixed for her and she thanked him so nicely that he suddenly found courage to ask her to marry him. She consented and he got up on the anvil and put his arms around her and sealed it with a kiss. Then they took a walk out through the fields together and after some time he asked, 'How about another kiss?' She said no they had already had one and with that the young blacksmith said, 'Well, if they ain't going to be any more kissin' I'm not going to carry this anvil any further!' — from a lecture by Douglas Steere

Churches Lead in Refugee Crisis

In a recent issue of Vista appeared this summary: "The United States religious community remained the one institution unbending in its commitment to the refugees. Since World War II, religious groups have resettled roughly three-fourths of all refugees brought to this country. Church World Service, the international relief arm of the National Council of the Churches of Christ Division of Overseas Ministries, has been responsible for 30,000 of those, including nearly 15 percent of all refugees from Indochina. At present CWS is resettling between 1,000 and 2,000 every month."

(Because I am a Protestant nearly all my news about work done here and abroad stresses what we are doing. I am well aware that other denominations are doing great relief work and if anyone has these facts that would show what other religious institutions are doing, I will be pleased to share it with readers of this column — providing it is not too long.

A Reader Contributes this comment from Martin Luther

"All who call on God in true faith, earnestly from the heart, will certainly be heard, and will receive what they have asked and desired, although not in the hour or in the measure, of the very thing which they ask; yet they will obtain something greater and more glorious than they had dared to ask."

For a Blessed Christmas

Tomorrow is the First Sunday in Advent. If you attend your church every Sunday from now to Christmas, and if you respond to the worship order in faith and acceptance, you will be blessed and so will your family — and thus, indeed, you will experience a blessed Christmas Day and season.

A final word from Robert Louis Stevenson: "If thy morals make thee dreary, depend upon it they are wrong."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS BY Eugene Brewer

Now an insurance company is writing liability coverage for clergymen to protect them against charges of counseling malpractice. The same week I read this in a news magazine, I read in the paper of a minister being sued.

I'm aware that clergymen often give very bad advice, but since the price usually is right I never thought of their being subjected to lawsuits. However, when I consider the erroneous teaching coming from the pulpits of the land I am impressed with their responsibility for misleading the lost. "Be not many of you teachers... knowing that we shall receive heavier judgment." Jas. 3:1. Indeed, such as preach a perverted gospel have a charge leveled against them that no insurance company can protect against. They stand under the anathema of God, Gal. 1:8, 9. It is a fearful thing to mislead humble souls who are seeking God!
