Ayatollah's Islam Plan Under Fire

Yuletide Expenses Climbing

By United Press International
Soaring costs for everything from turkeys to stocking stuffings threaten to make Yuletide 1979 seem like the ghost of Christmas past.

Signs of budget-trimming abound. Even Santa Claus will be missing in many places. The Santa usually in the lobby of The Daily News in New York was discontinued this year because of high costs.

In Guildford, England, about 40 miles southwest of London, all three major department stores have decided against having a Santa Claus because of the rising cost of fairy grottos — the British equivalent of Santaland.

It will not be an entirely Scrooge-like holiday. Most families round the world will be cutting back rather than cutting off — downgrading from stuffed turkey to duck, from black caviar to red, from imported whiskey to domestic.

"After all, it's still Christmas," explained one Londoner. The London Times has been carrying readers' letters on how best to word the message that you are sending Christmas cards for the last time because of postage costs, which have reached 21 cents per card.

Even the charities are feeling the pinch. A spokesman for Dr. Barnardo's, one of England's biggest orphanages, said gifts were way down this Christmas, and those people who did feel charitable seemed to be funneling their money to Cambodia appeals.

Few seemed willing to give up the traditional Christmas foods, but many agreed Christmas dinner won't be as sumptuous this year.

In Portugal, where boiled cod traditionally graces the table on Christmas Eve, prices for the delicacy have shot up to $2.18 a pound.

Housewife Maria da Rosa, standing third in a line of 121 anxious shoppers at one of the few specialty shops stocking the fish, complained, "I'll get some for my family, but at this price I can't afford a thick portion. My husband won't be pleased, but what can I do?"

A few countries, like affluent Switzerland — where ski resorts already are heavily booked for the holiday — and West Germany and Austria reported booming sales, but they were in the minority.

In Japan, the global economic gloom has affected drinking tastes, with the most popular whiskey, imported Johnnie Walker Black Label at $27.80 a fifth, being replaced by the domestic Suntory Old Reserve at $12.

In Moscow, where Christmas has been all but abolished as a religious holiday, New Year's is the festive family occasion. "We'll almost certainly have red caviar, but I wouldn't bet on black," said one frugal Moscow housewife.

Christmas celebrants in India will be far more likely to feast on duck, selling well at $1 a pound, than the customary turkey, going for $3 to $4 a pound.

In Denmark, Prime Minister Anker Jorgen's price freeze may make the Christmas tree an endangered species.

GOP Names Board Picks

MANCHESTER — Hoping to establish a precedent, the Republican members of the Board of Directors announced today nominees for several town commission appointments.

"This is a break with the past I've wanted for some time," Carl Zinsser, Republican board member said.

"It will give people a chance to comment on our appointments, before the meeting. Perhaps someone knows something that would change our vote."

Usually, the names were announced and voted on at the board meeting without previous notice.

Zinsser noted, and the press release stated, the hope that the Democrats on the board would also announce appointments prior to the meeting. Appointments to 12 commission, 21 openings are to be made at Tuesday's board meeting.

The Republican appointment list included:

- Building Committee: Donald Kuehl, 74 Mountain Road, Thuenis Werkhoven, 88 Santina Drive, Robert Samuelson, 108 Hemlock St.
- Commission on Aging: Celeste Sheldon, 35 Meadow Lane.
- Human Relations Commission: Frank Livingston, 217 Ralph Road; Wanda Franek, 83 Sunnybrook Drive.
- Library Board: Roger Bagley, 43 Thayer Road.
- Commission on Children and Youth: Mary Sears, 2 Carter St.

Genga Eyes Road Impact

EAST HARTFORD — Democratic Majority Leader Henry J. Genga will ask the Town Council Tuesday to continue a subcommittee studying the impact of Manchester's development on local traffic.

Genga said this morning that he will recommend empowering the chairman to appoint a three-member subcommittee "to study traffic problems generated by the impact of the J.C. Penney Distribution Center, the Buckland Industrial Park and Buckland Commons."

Genga said such a committee was formed last year, but it did not make any significant report to the council. He wanted to continue the subcommittee to keep abreast of any new events.

"We want to keep our eye on that area of town. We want to protect our residents up there," Genga said the closing of Burnham Street by the town of Manchester could have an adverse effect on Burnham Street. He said the council "This is a continuing problem." He

Town Hopes Store Stays

MANCHESTER — Saying the "announcement came out of the blue," to close House and Hale, Town Manager Robert Weiss has asked town leaders to "see if we can get them to change their minds."

Almay Inc. of Boston, owner of the store since 1963, announced closing last Friday, because the store was no longer profitable. The 100-year-old department store is scheduled to close when its lease expires in January.

"I don't know what we can do to help," Weiss said. And I don't know if there is any possibility they might change their minds.

"There has been no conversation with us. But we would like to get together," Clyde Skillen of Almay Inc. said the decision to close the store at 943 Main St. was based on the loss of downtown business to outlying shopping centers.

"We have lost a number of businesses the past 25 years," Weiss said. "But this is a bottom line question."

Weiss said the Downtown Coordinating Committee would be working with the issue.

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Followers of a moderate Moslem leader demonstrated today against Iran's proposed new constitution that confirms Iran's status as an Islamic Republic and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's unchallenged authority as its ruler.

Supporters of Ayatollah Syed Kazem Shariatmadari demonstrated in the northwestern city of Tabriz as counting began in Khomeini's referendum on the constitution and his militant followers held 50 Americans hostage for the 30th day.

Iran has warned the United Nations that a resolution condemning the seizure of the U.S. Embassy could have an "undesirable effect" on the fate of the hostages.

The warning by Foreign Minister Sadeq Otbzadeh came as the U.N. Security Council debated the Iranian crisis for the second day Sunday, with country after country taking the floor to demand Iran free the hostages and come to the U.N. to negotiate its differences with the United States peacefully. The Security Council resumes its debate today.

Voting in the two-day constitutional referendum was scheduled to end tonight, when authorities hoped to release the final figures of total turnout at 20,000 polling stations across the country.

Although Khomeini was expected to win the referendum by a wide majority, firm results of the vote for his Islamic regime were awaited by political experts hoping for a new governing initiative on the embassy statement.

Followers of Shariatmadari demonstrated in Tabriz to protest what they called a blackout of their earlier demonstrations Sunday opposing the new constitution.

The demonstrations were sparked by Shariatmadari's demand for amending a section of the constitution that provides for absolute leadership by Iran's chief Moslem Shiite "faqih" (Islamic jurisprudent).

Shariatmadari said the provision conflicted with other constitutional guarantees of basic freedoms of expression and political activity.

Pars news agency said an undetermined number of people were arrested Sunday while distributing leaflets containing Shariatmadari's protest.

Elsewhere in Iran, voters supporting Ayatollah Khomeini turned out in large numbers for the second day of voting today.

Some voters marked ballots with their own blood, the Islamic clerical newspaper Jomhuri Islami reported.

The referendum did not take place in most Kurdish towns in West Iran because most local political groups boycotted the polling, press reports said.

The council meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the council chambers. As the occupation of the U.S. Embassy dragged into its fifth week still at the center of world attention, Moslem militants sidestepped questions on whether they've scattered Americans to hideouts outside the booby-trapped compound.

A spokesman for the students at the embassy refused to deny or confirm rumors the hostages had been dispersed. "Rest assured, we can't go into those details for your sake," he told UPI by telephone.

The state radio said millions of Iranians went to the polls Sunday and today to vote on the constitution that confirms Iran's status as an Islamic Republic — and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's unchallenged authority as its ruler.

Even the militants occupying the embassy took time out from guarding their hostages to leave the compound in turns and vote.

The official results of the constitutional referendum will not be known until next week but the outcome — a victory for Khomeini's Islamic regime — appeared in no doubt.

Friends And Foes Back U.S.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In a rare display of unity, friends and foes and communists and capitalists lined up behind the United States today in the U.N. Security Council debate on the Iranian crisis.

Though their speeches were often long, pushing the debate into its third day today, the message delivered in a dozen different languages was the same: the hostages held inside the U.S. Embassy in Tehran must be released.

Rarely in the history of the Security Council debates has an issue united such traditional adversaries as China and the Soviet Union, Israel and the Arab nations, the developing and developed world.

Iran boycotted the debate and in Tehran, Foreign Minister Sadeq Otbzadeh warned Sunday warned that passage by the Security Council of a resolution condemning Iran would have an "undesirable effect."

But the 28 countries that have spoken so far were unanimous in their condemnation of the embassy seizure, and their insistence that the principle of diplomatic immunity be upheld.

Many also spoke in favor of giving Iran an opportunity to present its grievances about the human rights violations committed by the shah's former regime — but not before the hostages are released.

Supermarket Shopper You Can Save $1,000 a Year

Editor's Note: The Evening Herald Today starts a five-part series aimed at helping readers beat grocery prices and save money on food bills. It's called "The Supermarket Shopper" and its creator, Martin Sloan, says shoppers can save as much as $1,200 per year on food bills if they follow his advice.

The five-part series kicks off Sloan's twice weekly column, which becomes a regular part of the Herald starting next week.

The first list of money-saving tips appears on page 3.

By MARTIN SLOANE

I can save you 50 percent and more on many of the supermarket items you and your family use every day. It sounds amazing, but it's true. I've developed the most successful system for keeping track of the thousands of manufacturers' refund offers that most shoppers never hear about.

I have the best system for organizing all the cash-off coupons you find in newspapers like this one. My system gives me double discounts that save me 40 percent to 60 percent on products like Pillsbury biscuits, Hawaiian Punch, Wilson Hams and Mellow Roast Coffee.

I also get triple discounts that have actually saved me 80 percent to 90 percent on products such as Kraft Mayonnaise, Ragu Spaghetti Sauce, Soup Starter, Cheerios and Charmin Tissue.

Super-smart shopping is what I call it, and I'm going to help you do it too. How is it all possible?

This year the big manufacturers of food and household products will distribute more than 80 billion cash-off coupons. They will also make more than 7,000 refund offers.

I have the system that will let you find, organize and use these big money-saving discounts. Let's start with refunding.

Imagine this: After Sunday dinner, a man walks into your kitchen. He pokes around your garbage. He pulls the label off an empty Libby's tomato juice can and hands you 50 cents. He rips the side off a box of Birds Eye frozen vegetables and gives you 75 cents.

He's not done. He takes a Butterball turkey label and hands you two crisp dollar bills. He grins when he pulls out that Sara Lee package and gives you another 75 cents.

Fantastic? Not really, because that's what refunding is all about. You try the product and send the manufacturer a proof of purchase. The manufacturer sends you back a refund.

An experienced refunder can save more than $1,000 a year. I've done it for the last three years. It's easy when you know the secrets. Unfortunately, most shoppers miss out on these savings because the refund forms advertising them quickly disappear from supermarket shelves. Did you hear about the "$4 Worth of Free Groceries" refund from Dow? I got it. You probably also missed the "$3 'It Pays to Be Finicky'" offer from Hunts.

If you have been throwing away the box tops and labels that would have entitled you to these big refunds, weep now. You threw away a handful of dollars.

But don't cry for long. From now on I'm going to help you keep track of terrific refund offers like these. Each month the refund offers in my "Clip 'n File" lists will add up to almost $200 worth of money-in-the-bank opportunities.

So stop fretting about rising food prices. I'm going to help you bring them way down. Super-smart shopping is an adventure and a challenge. You'll enjoy the fun.

Shah in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran, the human ransomed student, is demanding for the lives of 50 American hostages, has entered the nation's largest Air Force hospital amid tight security.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi early Sunday was flown via Air Force VIP jetliner to Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base — chosen, government officials said, for its impeccable security.

Though the shah was admitted to a suite in the hospital, there were unconfirmed reports by KMOL-TV late Sunday he had been moved to a "hospitality" house located on base grounds.

The cancer-stricken deposed monarch, accused by his people of atrocities and the theft of millions of dollars during his 37-year reign, will stay in south Texas for an indefinite "period of recuperation," White House officials said.

Bus Ambushed

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Gunmen ambushed a U.S. Navy bus today in an attack that killed two sailors and wounded eight others, the Navy said.

A Navy spokesman said the Americans were ambushed while riding in a yellow school bus with a confirmed report by KMOL-TV late Sunday he had been moved to a "hospitality" house located on base grounds.

from a white van on the north coast highway in Toa Baja, where the naval facility is located about 25 miles from San Juan.

The attack occurred at 8:40 a.m. Authorities said it attacked escaped.

Libya Violence

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The anti-embassy violence sweeping the Islamic world has spread to Libya, where a mob of pro-Iranian students stormed and sacked the American Embassy, forcing its diplomatic staff to flee.

Libya's official news agency confirmed the embassy was overrun Sunday, but denied a State Department report from Washington that the compound was burned to the ground.

The State Department said the entire embassy staff, including 12 American diplomats, escaped unharmed and had taken "safe refuge" elsewhere in Tripoli.

A spokesman said the staffers managed to destroy all classified material before they fled the embassy.

The spokesman said Libya did nothing to protect the embassy from the mob and that the United States has lodged a protest in "the strongest terms" with the Libyan government.

Recorder Found

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Search teams have found both the "black box" and the voice recorder that may tell why a DC-10 slammed into an Antarctic volcano, killing all 257 people aboard.

Robert Thompson, New Zealand coordinator of the search effort, said the two recorders were found Sunday at the crash site and were flown to the U.S. Antarctic base at McMurdo Sound. They will be taken to the United States for analysis.

Three air accident investigators took advantage of a break in the snowy weather Sunday to lower themselves from a helicopter onto the icy slopes of Mount Erebus, where the Air New Zealand DC-10 crashed last Wednesday. They found the voice recorder after a six-hour search and the "black box" later in the day.

Chemical Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA and U.S. Army apparently collaborated in bacteriological and chemical "open air" tests in the streets and vehicular tunnels of New York City in 1956, says an analysis of secret documents made available today.

The analysis, the result of a four-month study by a Church of Scientists investigative group, shows that U.S. government agencies without warning to the public loosed unknown substances from aerosol devices concealed in suitcases and from the exhaust of a specially modified 1953 Mercury.

The latest findings are contained in a report to be made public Tuesday with copies sent to pertinent congressional intelligence and armed services committees, the Pentagon and the CIA.

Hearst Syndrome Predicted

HARTFORD, (UPI) — A former state prison psychologist believes the prolonged captivity of American hostages in Iran may cause the same psychological changes manifested by newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst.

Dr. Dominic R. Marino said Sunday the 50 hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are probably under the same intense pressure that caused Miss Hearst to become sympathetic toward her captors five years ago.

But it would depend on how severe the conditions are under which they are being held, said Marino, former director of mental health services at Somers state prison.

"If they are being deprived of fundamental experiences — such as sight and movement — it will increase (the) psychological effect," the East Hartford psychologist said.

The hostages at first were reported being treated well, but recent accounts indicate they are kept bound and blindfolded and are unable to bathe or change clothes.

"Even if there is no violence or bodily harm, the extreme pressure from the mobs outside or the awareness of the fact they could be executed, those factors definitely bring about changes."

The life-threatening aspect mobilizes the psychological changes. Because it's a life-threatening situation — (they) absorb what they feel will make them safe," he said.

Iranians have held the hostages since Nov. 4, demanding the deposed Shah of Iran be returned from America to stand trial.

"If released today, they would probably say nice things about their captors and show strong opposition to the shah, even if they were pro-shah or neutral towards the shah before," Marino said.

Psychiatrists have suggested that Miss Hearst identified with her Symbionese Liberation Army captors because of the severe stress of her experience.

Baker Tries Harder

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Howard Baker's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination is one month old, and that is Tennessee candidate says he is in second place and trying harder.

Baker capped off a two-day campaign swing through New Hampshire by greeting shoppers this weekend in New Hampshire's largest mall.

An avid camera bug, Baker at times looked like a tourist, taking pictures of giggling school children and shimmering crystal in window displays.

"We've got a lot of work to do,"

Weicker Says U.S. Being Held Hostage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The threat of an oil cutoff dictates U.S. policy in the Mideast, because Americans have not been willing to sacrifice on consumption, he said.

"They don't think we have the self-discipline," said Weicker. "If they see us impose self-sacrifice on ourselves, then they'll know we mean business."

Weicker, in Columbus to address the Columbus Jewish Federation's Young Men's and Young Women's Division, Saturday said Iranians and Arabs will continue to use Americans as "disorganized blunderers" until we start to conserve petroleum.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Dec. 3, the 337th day of 1979 with 28 to follow.

The moon is full.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Mercury.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American portrait painter Gilbert Stuart was born Dec. 3, 1756.

On this date in history:

In 1818, Illinois was admitted to the Union as the 21st state.

In 1883, Oberlin College in Ohio opened with an enrollment of 29 men and 15 women — the nation's first truly co-educational school.

In 1929, the Ford Motor Co. raised the pay of its employees from $6 to $7 a day despite the collapse of the American stock market.

In 1948, the Whittaker Chambers spy case was made public. It was disclosed that microfilm of secret American documents had been found in a hollow pumpkin on the Maryland farm of the former magazine editor, allegedly for delivery to a communist power.

A thought for the day: British author Jane Austen said, "It is a truth universally acknowledged that a single man in possession of a good fortune must be in want of a wife."

First Estrada, And Now Cassidy

Last week, actor Erik Estrada crushed thousands of young hearts by disclosing he had secretly married his girlfriend, Joyce Miller. But that announcement was pale in comparison to the devastating revelation that teen idol Shaun Cassidy has married model Ann Pennington.

The 21-year-old recited wedding vows with Miss Pennington Saturday afternoon at a double-ring garden ceremony in the yard of Cassidy's home.

About 50 friends and relatives, including Cassidy's mother, actress Shirley Jones, and his brother, David Cassidy, looked on.

A family spokesman said Cassidy and his new bride kept constant company for almost two years and were engaged last month. Their honeymoon plans were not disclosed.

Merry Martin

Mary Martin, 66, is not one to sit around and watch the years go by. "I'm shocked when I realize that I did 'South Pacific' 30 years ago," she says. "Shocked because I still think and feel as if I were 19."

Although she's showing up in a television movie Dec. 7, Miss Martin says she doesn't expect to return to Broadway musicals.

"Today's shows cost at least $2 million which means it would take two or three years to pay off," she says. "And I don't want to spend that much time in a show" — away from her children and grandchildren.

She predicts, however, "romantic musicals will definitely come back."

By Jove, He's Got It

Baron Grade of Elstree is no Eliza Doolittle, trying to cover his origins. In unveiling a new coat of arms to go with his title, the baron made it clear he hadn't forgotten that he began his rise as Lew Grade, theatrical agent.

Because he always booked the biggest stars, the coat of arms has two stars, a mask of comedy and a hand holding a musical instrument, the balalaika.

And because he made most of his deals with a handshake, he adopted the Latin motto "Quod promitto perficio" — "what I promise, I deliver."

Grade is now head of Associated Communications, the most important company in British television.

Keep On Trekkin'

Wherever Shirley Maiewski goes, she wears a "Star Trek Lives" button. But don't call her a fan-club member. Mrs. Maiewski, a University of Massachusetts cashier, heads an international committee of 150 that does nothing but answer questions about Star Trek. "We call it a job," she says. "We donate all our services. Donate our money." About 50,000 queries have come in since the science fiction series started in 1967. "Star Trek was ahead of its time," Mrs. Maiewski says. "It showed us just because someone is different, they're not necessarily wrong to her most-asked question: when is Star Trek coming back?"

Quote of the Day

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Patricia Harris: "I suspect concern over the possible disintegration of the family has been present in every society. I am sure that Adam and Eve first questioned the future of the family when Cain slew Abel."

Tax Breaks Proposed To Stop Plant Closing

HARTFORD, (UPI) — State officials are set to offer tax breaks and financial subsidies this week to persuade U.S. Steel Co. to reverse its decision to close a New Haven plant.

The plant closings would put 14,000 people out of work — 400 of them in New Haven.

State Economic Development Commissioner Edward J. Logue said he and his staff are holding out some hope U.S. Steel will accept the same "attractive" offer that has convinced 87 other manufacturing firms to abandon plans to move out of the state or shut down over the last five years.

"We've been very successful in keeping companies in urban areas," he said. "We offer a very attractive package."

Logue said Saturday the company had ignored his requests until this week, when officials agreed to attend a meeting next Friday with Stockton, Logue and federal Commerce Department officials.

Logue and Stockton said they were preparing to offer the firm subsidies and tax breaks to rebuild and modernize its New Haven plant, plus government-sponsored job training programs and low-cost loans or grants.

Stockton said a state tax relief program for urban businesses would guarantee U.S. Steel an 80 percent abatement on property taxes for five years, plus a 25 percent reduction in its corporate business tax for 10 years if it were to rebuild or modernize the 75-year-old plant.

The state also would help the company if it wanted to relocate within Connecticut, Stockton said.

He said the tax relief program has saved more than $200 million in revenues and 10,000 jobs which would have been lost by firms moving out of Connecticut.

Logue met last week with 12 union employees of the New Haven plant to discuss ways their employer could be persuaded to stay in New Haven.

U.S. Steel had been ordered by state and federal environmental agencies to stop dumping toxic wastes into the city's sewer system by 1980 and the cost to install equipment to handle the wastes had reached $1.5 million, Logue said.

Feds Charge State With Noncompliance

HARTFORD, (UPI) — A federal agency has charged the state Board of Education with failing to require local school districts to pay for services for handicapped children.

The U.S. Office of Civil Rights has given the state board 90 days to correct the alleged violation of federal law or face loss of federal funds.

State Education Commissioner Mark Shedd said Sunday he believes the state is in compliance with the spirit of the law, but he has ordered an investigation into special education statutes to be sure there is compliance.

Shedd noted the civil rights agency could recommend a cutoff of funds to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, but cannot take action on its own.

Gabriel Simches, head of the state's Bureau of School Services, said under state regulations, school districts must pay for those services considered necessary to help handicapped children reach the same educational level as non-handicapped children.

He said the agency's directive could significantly increase the financial burden on some districts, and the amount would depend on the number of claims filed on behalf of handicapped children.

He said the problem arises in defining what constitutes "related services" to the handicapped under the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1974.

Local school boards must provide medical and psychiatric diagnostic services but not treatment, he said.

The civil rights charge stemmed from a case in Bethel, where a mother charged her handicapped daughter was denied psychiatric services illegally by the school board.

The Bethel board is paying for the girl's education in a private school for children with multiple handicaps.

A Modest Proposal

The taxpayers of Manchester are faced with the prospect of major repairs to Manchester High School. The recent release of a detailed report outlining all the deficiencies in the building presents the prospect of taxpayers digging deep into their inflation-drained pockets to come up with funds to pay the cost of the repairs.

Manchester Evening Herald
Manchester - A City of Village Charm
Founded Oct. 1, 1881
Published by the Manchester Publishing Co., Herald Square, Manchester, Conn. 06040. Telephone (203) 643-2711.

It is obvious the work must be done to prevent the high school building from further deterioration. The question of a replanning town and school officials is where will the money be found. One idea would be to look at the building and real estate holdings of the town with an eye toward sale to taxpayers to help cover costs of other town projects and it creates a new source of tax revenue to help cover the operating costs of the town and schools.

"If a man has enough to live on, and yet when he sees his brother in need shuts up his heart against him, how can it be said that the divine love dwells in him? My children, love must not be a matter of words or talk, it must be genuine, and show itself in action." - 1 John 3:17-18

The Lighter Side Bombshells On Bottom Line

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hell didn't freeze over, the moon didn't turn blue, water didn't run uphill and the cows didn't come home. But the U.S. Postal Service announced last week it was out of the red. That bombshell left many citizens dazed and disoriented. If there was one thing we had come to accept as constant in an ever-changing world, it was the postal deficit.

Do Federal Employees Get More Pay and Benefits?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In mid-1968, federal accountant Raymond Williams was paid $22,666 a year. By January of 1973, without any promotion, he was being paid $34,971 - a raise of $12,726 in four and a half years.

Public and private studies agree that blue collar federal employees are earning an average of 8 percent above their private sector counterparts. "Federal blue-collar wage rates often exceed local prevailing rates, putting the government at a competitive advantage in the labor market," a General Accounting Office study said.

A 7 percent pay raise for civilian employees that went into effect in October will add another $4 billion. According to preliminary fiscal 1979 figures for postal workers, who negotiate their salaries over the bargaining table, average salaries plus benefits are over $22,000 a year.

Award-Winning Card

The price of Christmas cards is up. The average card is running around 60 cents, about a dime more than last year. Metallic foils, satiny finishes and restrained glitter mark the 1979 cards. ## Only Scrooge Objects

Christmas Card Prices Up

By FREDERICK WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — The price of Christmas cards is up about 20 percent over last year but only a Scrooge would object. The average Christmas card, one which would appeal to a discriminating sender, is running around 60 cents, about a dime more than last year, according to industry sources. About the cheapest Christmas card around, bought by the box, is 30 cents, with classy cards bearing engraving, jacquard silk scenes, tapestry and fine reproductions of Old Master madonnas can run up to $3. "Inflation means nothing when it comes to Christmas cards," said George Clark, manager of the Curzart shop in midtown Manhattan which specializes in cards from small companies with reputations for tasteful, artistic Christmas greetings. "People don't want to think of themselves as Scrooges. They don't stop buying cards just because the cost is up, but maybe the more expensive cards are taking the place of small gifts. You'd be surprised at the kind of people who seem to think nothing of plunking down $3 for a card. Office secretaries, for instance." Increased costs of paper and printing are the reason for the inflationary hike in Christmas card prices. Some 30 billion cards will be bought — about the same number as last year — but the sales total will be around $1.2 billion instead of 1978's $1 billion, according to a spokesman for the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. Although there are no revolutionary changes in card design, the U.N.'s Year of the Child obviously inspired a great many designs involving children. Household pets run a close second, and the religious theme has been "born again" in a big way accompanied by quotes from the Bible and messages about sharing and loving. The official Christmas stamp bears Gerard David's madonna and child from the National Gallery in Washington. The elegance of metallic foils, satiny finishes, luminous pearly effects, and restrained glitter is the mark of the 1979 card. The card awarded the Printing Industries of America's annual award for excellence of design bears a Christmas tree formed out of shiny gold, green and red letters spelling "A Very Merry Christmas." Hallmark, which accounts for some 50 percent of Christmas card sales in America, says the trend is inspired by younger buyers "who want to send cards that reflect their attitudes and lifestyles." "The disco-inspired shiny, satiny look is perhaps the most noticeable design trend this year," said George Parker, vice president and creative director of Hallmark. "There is a definite trend toward an upturn kind of elegance, but there's nothing subtle about it. We also think silk-screen prints appeal to younger buyers." Hallmark doesn't stint on cards for the traditional buyer, however. It has introduced a new Christmas Heritage line featuring fine quality color photographs of holiday settings in Colonial Williamsburg, Va., houses accompanied by sentimental messages. Also traditional are the cards of an unusual new line designed and published by a 150-person cooperative community at Turners Falls, Mass., to raise funds for a solar-heated village. It features beautifully designed, old-fashioned representations of Santa and his reindeers, instead of the jogging, golfing, tennis playing, bibulous Santas portrayed in some sportier card lines. The Year of the Child concept can be aided directly by purchasing cards from UNICEF, which offers a wide range of designs by artists around the world for as low as 30 cents. CARE, Inc. will send a holiday card to friends, relatives or business associates saying a contribution (minimum $2) has been made in their name to help destitute people, mostly children overseas.

Region Eyes Plan to Buy Water Power from Canada

By United Press International
Canadian and New England utility officials will form a group soon to study the possibility of the northeast buying power from Canada's $15 billion James Bay project — the largest hydroelectric facility in North America. But even if the task force decides the scheme is feasible, the bulk of the power probably will not be able to flow through transmission lines, Richard said, and it remains unclear where they will run. It is also unclear whether the project will materialize. Officials of the feasibility study being conducted by his firm and the New England Power Pool will take six months to one year to complete. If the idea is deemed worthy, he said, negotiations for supplying power will begin and are expected to take at least two years. Another eight years must be figured in for the construction of transmission lines, Richard said, and it remains unclear where they will run. It is also unclear whether the project will materialize. Officials of

New England regulatory commissions and utility executives who journeyed to Canada recently to see the James Bay project had mixed feelings about the prospect of securing power from Hydro-Quebec. The group never saw James Bay because poor visibility kept the plane from landing. One power company executive, who asked not to be identified, said after the trip he doubts utilities will foot the bill for construction of transmission lines — and it is unlikely the federal government will subsidize the project. "If it happens, fine, but I doubt it," he said. Richard was more optimistic about the potential for selling hydroelectric power to the northeastern United States. "If we decide to go ahead, I think Hydro-Quebec can put something together that is mutually beneficial," he said. For the actual sale to take place, Richard said, three conditions would be required by Canadian power officials: • The Canadian government would have to recover its investment. • Hydro-Quebec would have to sell the power at a price competitive with prices in the United States. • A surplus of power must exist in Canada and a need for power must exist in the United States. But more than one New England utility regulator said power company officials in the region are paying only lip service to the concept of utilizing Canadian hydro power. Many utilities have substantial investments in nuclear plants, he

Rhody Official Sees Reluctance to Join

PROVIDENCE (UPI) — Public Utilities Commissioner Edward F. Burke says he senses "real reluctance" among New England's electric utilities to join efforts to obtain power from the new James Bay hydroelectric project in Quebec. megawatts might be available to New England at first and 8,000 to 10,000 megawatts by the mid-1980s, he said. "There is still reluctance on the part of the New England electric utilities, in my opinion, to meaningfully negotiate for this power," Burke said Sunday. The reluctance, he said, was due to two factors: the hesitation to become dependent upon another nation for energy sources and utilities' concern over whether they could make profits on power they don't generate themselves. "We feel that our function as regulators, and their (utilities') function, should be to bring power at the cheapest price to customers. I would hope we're on the same wavelength," Burke said. For customers, hydropower purchased from Canada should mean stabilization of prices and a check on the inflation spiral," Burke said. Gov. Joseph Garrahy, chairman of the New England Governors Conference and Regional Commission, has been discussing the possibilities with Quebec, Premier Rene Levesque. Levesque earlier this year said Quebec might be able to sell 25 percent of the James Bay power output from April through October. Burke said New England isn't the only area knocking on Levesque's door, and hopes cooperation — rather than competition — can be arranged with New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Charges for power Quebec now sells to New York and Vermont now runs 20 percent below the world oil market price. At that rate, Burke said, purchase of 6,000 megawatts a year would save New England $200 million in annual power costs. Construction of new power lines could be paid off with several years' savings, he said. "We're regulatory only," Downey said. "We don't buy or sell power." Vermont Public Service Board Chairman Richard Saudek, meanwhile, is a strong advocate of states entering the power bargaining arena. "As a matter of fact, that is already starting," he said. "In general, the public utilities commissions are getting more involved in planning."

Gaiamo May Face Fight From Within His Party

HARTFORD (UPI) - Rep. Robert Gaiamo, D-Conn., who has represented the 3rd District for two decades, may be challenged from within his own party if he's still in the House after the next election.

Farricelli said he was preparing to run for his party's 1980 Congressional nomination if Gaiamo didn't, but wouldn't say whether he would take on Gaiamo in a primary if he was still around two years later.

The co-chairman of the Legislature's Planning and Development Committee said he had no "major philosophical differences" with Gaiamo. "I agree with what Bob's doing," he said.

Farricelli, who said earlier this year that he wanted to run next year if Gaiamo didn't, said that was due to speculation that Gaiamo will seek the seat being vacated by veteran Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Legislative sources say state Rep. Joseph Farricelli, D-Branford, is preparing to challenge Gaiamo in 1980 if the 11-term congressman who chairs the powerful House Budget Committee hasn't stepped down by then.

They said Farricelli - ranked this year among the most conservative Democratic lawmakers by the Connecticut Conservative Union - had come away with a "noncommittal" stance as to whether Lieberman would seek to oust Gaiamo, or was instead waiting to run for governor should Democratic Gov. Ella Grasso step aside in 1982.

Republicans in 1978 targeted Gaiamo as one of the more vulnerable Democratic incumbents around the state, and reportedly pumped additional money to his GOP challenger, John Puciano, who lost to the congressman by more than 30,000 votes.

Bozzuto said he was running "on behalf of the Connecticut citizens who want to get government out of our lives, who want more of their hard-earned money left in their pockets and who want the decisions to be made by the people elected to office, not by thousands of unelected bureaucrats who are accountable to no one."

The four-term lawmaker admitted he faced an uphill battle against low statewide voter recognition and a better than 32 Democratic lead in voter registrations. He vowed to go after votes from both parties and the state's more than 500,000 unaffiliated voters.

Bozzuto, 49, faces a possible challenge for the GOP nomination from former Sen. James Buckley, I-N.Y., who has said the is considering running for the Republican nod from Connecticut next year.

Bozzuto notified his earlier statement that Buckley would not run for the nomination, when asked Saturday if he believed a recent petition with 400 names asking Buckley to run had changed the situation.

"He has to make his own decision," Bozzuto said of Buckley, whose family estate is in the northwestern Connecticut town of Sharon.

"The people of Connecticut need a person from Connecticut, who knows the state, who cares for them and who will continue to be one of them," Bozzuto said in an apparent reference to Buckley and his New York background.

Central Committee member, called for grass roots organizing Saturday in announcing her candidacy for the chairman's post.

"We must involve town committees in the process of party organization and we must help town committees build the effective organization that will put qualified Republicans into office," she said.

Irwin said he has had "many calls" encouraging him to take a job with former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign.

Irwin, who pulled out of the chairmanship race just before the Republican State Central Committee voted, praised that move.

"Connecticut Republicans owe Gov. Reagan a great deal for this one," Irwin said. "I know Fred Biemel well. His next move will be to dredge up some Biemel loyalist to keep his seat warm in the event Reagan loses."

"It will be a terrible tragedy for Republicanism in Connecticut if we don't take advantage of this opportunity to seek out a person of high moral standards, exceptional intellectual capabilities, and unquestioned recognition and respect," he added.

Former state Agriculture Commissioner Fenton P. Futterer also has announced his candidacy for the chairman's post.

Biemel fired Futterer from his job as manager of the party's office headquarters in Hartford, after he notified state central committee members he was running for chairman before Biemel publicly announced his resignation.

Bozzuto Has Uphill Race In Campaign for Senate

HARTFORD (UPI) - Senate Minority Leader Richard Bozzuto, R-Waterbury, admits he's in an uphill fight as the first proclaimed candidate for Connecticut's 1980 U.S. Senate race.

Bozzuto sees low voter recognition and a Democratic lead in registration among the major challenges, along with a concern the two party system "is rapidly deteriorating."

He outlined a traditional conservative Republican campaign platform - criticizing big government and taxes - in announcing his candidacy Saturday at a Capitol news conference.

Bozzuto said he was running "on behalf of the Connecticut citizens who want to get government out of our lives, who want more of their hard-earned money left in their pockets and who want the decisions to be made by the people elected to office, not by thousands of unelected bureaucrats who are accountable to no one."

Marlow Authors Book

Jean Marlow, daughter of George Marlow of 51 Blue Ridge Drive, Manchester, has recent had her book "The Great Women" published by A&W Publishers in New York City.

"The Great Women" encompasses the lives of 60 women, dating from the 15th century, who were born into diverse cultural traditions, and who have distinguished themselves in many different types of activity. The only common denominator shared by all is their sex, which confronted them with the same challenges and obstacles that women have faced and still face.

Dr. Marlow has selected only one woman in each field — one scientist, one humanist, one political leader, etc. All of the biographies are of real women, there are no legends or myths.

Among the better known women featured are Marie Currie, Joan of Arc, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Golda Meir, Amelia Earhart and Dorothea Dix. But, there are others, equally great and no less notable such as Catherine Breshkovsky, known as the mother of the Russian Revolution; Elizabeth Kenny, who pioneered the only effective method of curing the crippling consequences of polio; Anna Von Schurman, 17th century artist and scholar, who was in her time hailed as the wonder of the age, and many more.

The 353-page book depicting the inspiring stories of some of history's greatest women is easy to read and follows the life story of each woman noting her struggles and accomplishments.

Dr. Marlow, a native of Manchester, earned a bachelor's degree in creative writing and French at Sarah Lawrence College, and a master's degree and doctor of philosophy degree in English and American literature at Harvard University. She studied at the Sorbonne and the Institute des Sciences Politiques in Paris. She has published short fiction, as well as business and technical articles.

Proceeds of "The Great Women," which is available at Marlow's Department Store, 867 Main St., Manchester will benefit the Mary Cheney Library in Manchester.

Armed Man Robs Station

MANCHESTER - For the second time in two days, Manchester police reported an armed robbery at the Manchester Green service station, 484 East Middle Turnpike.

Police said an unknown suspect, armed with a short-barreled revolver and apparently matching the suspect's description from the Thursday night robbery, held up the 19-year-old gas station attendant Saturday at 7:20 p.m.

The attendant and a 14-year-old friend from Manchester were at the station when the suspect appeared, police said. He ordered the youth into the station's bay area, police said, and then directed the attendant to place the money from the cash register into a brown paper bag.

Police said the suspect was wearing a black ski mask with circles around the eyes and mouth, a black turtle neck sweater, black double knit pants, navy blue track shoes with white stripes, and white gloves. Police said the description closely matched the one from Thursday night.

The suspect was last seen running across East Center Street into a field west of the VFW building. No vehicle was seen, police said, although the investigating officer discovered a tire tracks from the field. The incident is under investigation.

Manchester Police Report - employee said both were under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Eagles Claim Playoff Berth

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Philadelphia Eagles Sunday became the first NFL team to claim a playoff berth, crushing the Detroit Lions 44-7 on two touchdown passes from Ron Jaworski to Harold Carmichael. Philadelphia, 10-4, best record in the NFL, reached the 10-victory plateau for the first time since 1961.

The Eagles scored 24 second-quarter points, then coasted to victory to remain one game ahead of Dallas and Washington atop the NFC East. Philadelphia plays host to Dallas Saturday in a first-place battle.

"I've been waiting for them to do this all year," Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil said of the Eagles' highest point total and largest margin of victory since 1967.

Detroit Coach Monte Clark called it "a good feeling. They're the best team we've played all year, a real good football team that's going to go."

Wilbert Montgomery, who topped the 100-yard mark for the seventh time this season, began the second quarter onslaught with a 1-yard scoring run. Jaworski, who completed 14 of 23 passes for 233 yards in three quarters, then found Carmichael with scoring passes of 20 and 24 yards and rookie Tom Franklin kicked his first three field goals, a 35-yarder.

That made it 24-0. Franklin then kicked field goals of 30 and 42 yards. Billy Campbell returned a kickoff 92 yards and Larry Barnes ran over from the 1 for the other Philadelphia touchdowns.

The Eagles' defense held Detroit to 180 total yards and five first downs. Joe Reed, yards in place of starting quarterback Jeff Krome, accounted for Detroit's only score of the day on a 34-yard pass to Fred Scott.

It was also a good day for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw "rediscovered" All-Pro receiver Lynn Swann - and the Cincinnati Bengals rediscovered the real Steelers. Swann had been the Steelers' star receiver since he was Pittsburgh's first-round draft choice in 1974, but this year teammate John Stallworth pushed his injured teammate out of the spotlight by catching twice as many passes as New England's first 13 games of the season.

"I really thought about throwing to Swann today," Bradshaw said. "I know these receivers well enough to know when they're down. Today, I wanted to get the ball to him."

Bradshaw, who had his third 300-yard passing game of the season, connected with Swann on five passes for 192 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Steelers to a 37-17 victory over the Bengals. Cincinnati pulled off the year's biggest upset seven weeks ago when the Steelers committed nine turnovers in a 34-10 loss to Cincinnati.

The victory gave the Steelers, 11-3, sole possession of first place in the AFC Central and virtually guaranteed them of an eighth straight playoff berth.

Elsewhere in the NFL, it was Cleveland 14, Houston 7, Washington 38, Green Bay 21, Chicago 14, Tampa Bay 0, Denver 19, Buffalo 16, Atlanta 28, San Diego 26, Los Angeles 27, Cincinnati 14, Kansas City 28, New York Jets 30, Baltimore 17, St. Louis 13, San Francisco 10, and Kansas City 37, Seattle 21.

Oakland is at New Orleans Monday night and Miami Sunday. New England's 29-24 Thursday night to take a one-game lead over the Patriots in the AFC East.

Browns 14, Oilers 7. Mike Pruitt caught a 42-yard TD pass from Brian Sipe and plunged 1 yard for another score as Cleveland beat Houston to remain in contention for a wild-card playoff berth. Earl Campbell rushed for 108 yards for the Oilers.

Redskins 3R, Packers 21. Joe Theismann passed for four touchdowns and matched a career high with 21 completions to lead Washington over Green Bay and keep the Redskins' NFC East title chances alive.

Horns 14, Buccaneers 0. Walter Payton plunged 1 yard for a TD and Mike Phipps tossed a 13-yard scoring pass to Dave Williams, giving Chicago an upset victory over the Bucs' NFC Central Division lead over the Bears to one game.

Horns 19, Buffalo 16. Jim Turner kicked a 23-yard field goal as the final gun sounded to lift Denver to victory. The Broncos defense forced seven turnovers in snapping the Bills' three-game winning streak. Denver, 10-4, regained a share of first place in the AFC West with San Diego.

Falcons 28, Chargers 26. Steve Bartkowski threw a 6-yard TD pass to Wallace Francis with 21 seconds left to rally Atlanta to an upset of heavily-favored San Diego. Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts led Joe Namath's 1967 record of six games in a season with 300 or more yards passing.

Rams 27, Vikings 21. Nolan Cromwell swept 5 yards around left end for a touchdown on a fake field goal attempt 6:53 into overtime to give Los Angeles its victory. Cardinals 13, 49ers 10.

Otis Anderson scored on a 6-yard run with 2:33 left to become the first player in NFL history with eight 100-yard games during his rookie season as St. Louis rallied past San Francisco. Chiefs 37, Seahawks 21.

Ted McKnight scored on TD runs of 5 and 3 yards and Jan Stenerud kicked field goals of 27, 31 and 22 to lift Kansas City past Seattle and snap the Seahawks' three-game winning streak.

Trade Talks Intriguing Part of Baseball Meeting

TORONTO (UPI) - Anyone who has never been to the winter baseball meetings usually is curious about them. How do those people attending spend their time and, specifically, what do they talk about?

Outside of the players themselves, most everyone who has anything at all to do with the operation of either major or minor-league baseball shows up at these annual conventions, and that takes in the commissioner, the league presidents, club owners, general managers, field managers and farm directors, as well as the public relations and promotions men.

A full schedule of meetings is held each day of the week-long get-together, but the most intriguing part of these sessions by far are the trade talks conducted by the officials and managers of the various clubs.

The vast majority of these talks take place in the lobby of the hotel, which serves as headquarters for the meetings or behind closed doors in the rooms the baseball people occupy.

Now and then, a trade is agreed upon and made, but more often than not, the talks wind up being exactly what they are - just talk. In that sense, these conventions aren't too unlike the ones the Democrats and Republicans hold every four years.

A good example of what these trade talks are like is the latest one - Detroit Tigers and New York Mets have had here in connection with Craig Swan and Jason Thompson.

Swan is the Mets' No. 1 pitcher. He won 14 games with a last-place club this year and at 29, he's just coming into his own. The only reason the Mets are even considering a trade for him is because he's demanding more money, much more, to keep pitching for them, and he becomes a free agent at the end of the 1980 season.

That means if they can't get anything from him before that, he's free to walk away and they wind up with nothing in return.

He called a time out "to rest the defense" and promptly sent the entire 30 seconds signing autographs and shaking hands.

Cherry was told, "We were in a hotel lobby in Los the only scoring game on a 2-yard run Angeles and he's at the bar," by New York's Billy Taylor, which recalled Colorado center Will Pate. "And he says, 'I've never seen you on opening drive and on a 1-yard run with your coach? No coach does that. The Cowboys had used up much of the But, then there's no coach like (final period) on a 95-yard march. Grapes. It's nice to have a friend as your coach.'"

Cherry had been openly apprehensive about his debut in Boston. He was the fans' react, he wondered. The Bruins, after all, were still winning while the Rockies, as usual were losing.

But when he appeared behind the Greater Hartford at MCC, 8 was tossed from the first balcony at Manchester vs. Simsbury at South Windsor Arena, 8:40.

Cowboys Top Game

IRVING, Texas (UPI) - Tom Landry recognized something Sunday - that he hadn't seen in quite a while - the Dallas Cowboys.

During the second half we had our best overall performance of the year," the somewhat relieved Cowboys coach said. "There were some satisfying things out there. Our Pincusers, and I saw the dog mistake minutes left and they went out and did something about it."

"Wait a minute," he said, "put in more productive than year." Dallas has one of those big Doberman satisfying things out there. Our Pincusers, and I saw the dog mistake minutes left and they went out and did something about it."

"If Youngblood's dog did that to dominate the second half against the Willie Mays, you do think he won the final two games, however, the Cowboys will capture the division crown."

Philadelphia, which decimated Detroit 44-7 Sunday, has already won the NFC East title. Dallas has one of those big Doberman satisfying things out there. Our Pincusers, and I saw the dog mistake minutes left and they went out and did something about it."

UCorn Went to Aces

By LEN AUSTER

When in trouble go to your ace.
When UConn needed a lift Saturday night against Yale, it went to its two aces, sophomores Coryn Thompson and Mike McKay. And the pair responded with six points apiece down the stretch in leading the Huskies to a struggling 83-76 victory over the clever Ivy Leaguers before a bulging at the seams crowd of 4,660 at the Field House.

It was the 1979-80 opener for both cage squads. The Huskies, defending ECAC Division I champs, host New Hampshire Tuesday night at 8 o'clock while the Bulldogs return home for their debut at Payne Whitney Gym against Fordham.

McKay, 6-foot-5 forward out of Harding High in Bridgeport, had a game-high 27 points on 13 of 18 from the field. Maybe more importantly he displayed more diversity to his always lethal offensive game dishing out seven assists.

"Michael played an unbelievable game," lauded Husky Coach Dom Perno. "He was much more under control. He exemplified himself well in every phase of the game. Yes, I do think this has to be Mike's best all-around game." Thompson contributed 21 points (9 for 13 from the field), a team-high 8 rebounds, 4 assists and his overall fine play.

"It came down to McKay sticking some key hoops and Corry doing what he can do," viewed Yale Coach Ray Carazo.

The cerebral Ivy Leaguers, working their pattern extremely well, shot a 37-34 halftime lead on 15 of 26 shooting from the field and led 51-45, with 15 minutes remaining.

"We have to stop people, make them work harder for their points," Perno reviewed the opener.

Yale managed only a Tim Daelemann field goal, sandwiched between six turnovers, in the next three minutes enabling UConn to draw even at 53-53.

"We had a couple of turnovers and didn't score. That broke the momentum," Carazo cited that stretch.

The Huskies took the lead for good at 61-59 with 9:06 remaining on a 20-foot jumper from the top of the key by Bob Dolin. But Yale refused to wilt and trailed by a single digit, 70-69, with 3:28 to play.

There, Thompson and McKay took charge with 6 points apiece, four by McKay on staffs. Yale, on the other hand, went cold at the wrong time misfiring five consecutive times down the stretch.

"They (Yale) are a good club. We played smart when we had to," Perno voiced. "I thought we moved the ball well tonight. When you run you will look scattery," he answered

Three of Four Goals Achieved by Runners

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

Three out of four goals were met by the Manchester High girls' cross country team in 1979 — all directly accomplished in one race.

Fourth-year Coach Phil Blanchette's aims were to 1) beat Concord in a dual meet, 2) win the CCLL title, 3) go undefeated, and 4) win the state Class LL championship.

The former trio was all but locked up in the opening dual meet, a 24-35 win over Concord.

"I knew if we beat Concord we would go undefeated and win the CCLL," acknowledges Blanchette, who led his third-place team to a 14-0 regular season mark and its first-ever league crown.

The Silk Towners secured third place in the LL meet and a surprising fifth in the state open, competing in the latter with a less than usual complement because of injuries.

Manchester loses six seniors — Lenne Wright, Pat Adams, Chris Cheney, Lauren Woodhouse, Bette Sheldon and Andrea Blish — to graduation. Adams for the first time in three varsity campaigns was able to shrug off injuries and made it all the way through Sheldon, a first-year performer, however, was sidelined for the state competition after she ran extremely well in the regular season.

The future for Blanchette and his squad looks extremely bright. "Each year we've had a team stronger than the past and I feel next year we'll be even better," he forecasts.

Top returnees are juniors Sue Caouette and Karen Scott, co-captains elect for 1980, and classmates Jeanine Murphy and Kim Scott. "Murphy didn't have a good year because she had an inner ear problem," Blanchette reports. "I'm hoping she returns to form."

or four years, and that includes Concord. I feel I have a strong junior high program supporting me in 1980.

Maura Walrath and Maureen Lacey from Benet and Donna Carrier from Hing are the top junior high prospects while Beth White, Kim Costello and Beth Allen, all from Benet, also will add depth.

"This year we rested people and next year we'll be able to rest people even more," Blanchette stated.

It's a year away but several coaches have expressed the sentiment that the '80 CCLL title will be recaptured by Manchester and the Class LL Meet will be between the Indians and Greenwich, which ran away with this year's title, states the always optimistic Tribe leader.

"But there are a lot of ifs. If we can stay healthy and if I can get them all out although I don't see any problems," Blanchette tempered.

The Indian coach hopes to see improvement next year "although it's hard to improve on an unbeaten year. As far as state competition I hope we improve there."

"One goal I set when I took over was to make Manchester respected around the state. I feel we have. I'm very satisfied in that."

Hall of Fame Candidates

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Oscar Robertson, Jerry West, Willis Reed and Jerry Lucas, four former stars in the college and pro basketball ranks, head a list of 24 candidates for election to Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

The latest list disclosed Sunday includes 11 players, six coaches, including two women, three referees and four contributors.

Elections will be conducted through mid-December and the results will be announced February. The electees will be enshrined April 28.

Robertson, West, Reed, Lucas and Dave DeBusschere all became eligible for induction after the nation's five-year time period following retirement. Other players nominated were Hal Greer, Tom Heinsohn, Sam Jones, Slater Martin, Vern Mikkelsen and Max Zaslofsky.

In the coaches' category, which requires a minimum of 25 years of service, the nominees are Jack Friel (Washington State), Jack Gardner (Kansas State and Utah), Ed Jerker (Connecticut), Bertha Teague (Baylor High School, Ada, Okla.) Margaret Wade (Delta State), and Stan Watts (Brigham Young).

Referee candidates, who also must be retired five years, are Sid Borgia, J. Dallas Shirley and Lloyd Leitch. Nominated as contributors were former NBA Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy, Dan Bussone (who introduced the 24-second clock), Al Duer (former executive secretary of the NAIA), and Clifford Fagan (former NBA rules committee secretary).

Player-of-Year To USC's White

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Southern California's Charles White, the second leading rusher in college history, has been chosen Walter Camp Football Foundation player of the year.

The 21-year-old senior was named Saturday to receive the award Feb. 2 at the 18th annual Walter Camp awards dinner at Yale University.

White was the leading ground gainer in college football this season, averaging 180.3 yards per game. He surpassed the 170.9 record set by O.J. Simpson of the University of Southern California in 1968.

The 5-foot-11, 185-pound rusher from San Fernando, Calif., collected 100 or more yards a game 30 times, including his best — a 261-yard effort against Notre Dame this season.

His 18 touchdowns placed him third among leading scorers in the nation this season, with a 10.6 point per game average.

White, who received the highest amount of votes ever in the Camp sections, has one more game to play as a Trojan, against undefeated Ohio State in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Camp was the first football coach at Yale, and guided the team 45 years until his death in 1925.

First Place Winners

Once again the Robison brothers of Manchester, 10-year-old Michael and 13-year-old Ron, have scored first in cycling competition. Mike Robison won the New England Hill Climb for 1979 on a 100CC Kawasaki in a record-breaking performance in Lebanon, N.H. Not to be outdone by his younger brother, Ron was No. 1 in points in the 125 CC Class on a Yamaha. Both boys won $50 savings bonds. The boys' father and sister, Jill, each gained sixth placements in their classes. (Herald Photo by Adams)

Celts Below Par Bowing to Kings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The words Dave Cowens used sounded all too familiar. They were words from last season, when he coached the Boston Celtics to a dismal 29-53 finish. They weren't words heard in the Boston locker room much this year.

"We embarrassed ourselves," said Cowens after the Celtics were beaten, 94-88, Sunday night by the Kansas City Kings.

The Celtics turned the ball over 28 times, managed to shoot only 41.4 percent from the field and failed to score a single point over a 7 1/2 minute span in the second half.

The Celtics humiliation was complete when M.L. Carr was ejected midway through the final quarter after decking Kings' Scott Wedman with a forearm to the face. Wedman was not hurt.

The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for the Celtics but they still sport the best record in the league (16-5), which prompted Cowens to add something he couldn't say last year. "It was our worst game, but it was just one game."

Super rookie Larry Bird was held to a season-low one field goal and two free throws by Wedman.

Wedman did a job on Bird, said Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

Strong Late Rally Nets MCC Victory

Four points in the final 26 seconds drew Manchester Community College even and the Cougars won in overtime, downing Norwalk Community College, 87-82, Saturday evening in Norwalk.

The victory snapped MCC's three-game losing streak and was its first in the 1979-80 season. Norwalk was capped off its season with the outing.

Norwalk led, 78-74, with 26 seconds to go in regulation. But Scott Burns drew the Cougars close with a rebound hoop and Joe Grodovitch set it off overtime with a 10-foot jumper at the buzzer.

In the extra session, John Dixon's field goal proved to be the game-winner for MCC with a pair of free throws by Grodovitch and Peter Murphy clinching the verdict.

John Sheehan had a game-high 27 points for the Cougars with D.J. Frederick adding 17 markers and 18 rebounds. Grodovitch chipped in 16 tallies. Murphy had seven 11. Dennis Woodson had a team-high 21 markers for Norwalk.

Manchester (87) Shealey 11-5-27, Burns 10-2, Frederick 8-5-17, Murphy 4-6-14, Dixon 5-1-11, Grodovitch 6-4-13, Totals 33-21-87.

Flyers' Unbeaten Streak Still Alive

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Philadelphia Flyers' unbeaten streak is still alive — but just barely.

The Detroit Red Wings staged a third-period rally Sunday night and came back to tie the Flyers 4-4, and Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn is not happy about that, although his team's skunk has reached 21, making the Flyers the first team in NHL history to have only one loss after the first 22 games.

"We played pretty well but gave up two goals late in the game," Quinn said, "and you can't be satisfied with that and I'm sure not a man in this locker room is satisfied. We weathered this game but we were not hitting on all cylinders."

Billie Huber and Dan LaPraetn scored goals 3:33 apart in the third period to bring Detroit into the tie. Huber, a defenseman, sped a 60-foot slapshot from the right point past goalie Pete Peeters at 13:30 to bring Detroit within 4-3. At 16:52, LaPraetn brushed by two Flyers in front of the net and sent in the puck to tie the game.

In other major bowls, unbeaten and fifth-rated Florida State takes on Big Eight champion and No. 4 Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, second-ranked Southern Cal meets unbeaten No. 3 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, No. 12 Purdue plays Tennessee in the Bluebonnet Bowl, 17th-rated Clemson meets No. 18 Baylor in the Peach Bowl, No. 16 South Carolina plays Missouri in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Down in Alabama Saturday, in what they call the "Iron Bowl," Alabama had trouble with Auburn before the Crimson Tide rallied for a 25-18 victory over its intra-state rival to earn its trip to the Sugar Bowl.

"I'm just thankful we came back. I had the feeling we could," said quarterback Steadman Shealy, whose running brought the Crimson Tide its triumph and a shot at Arkansas.

The Tigers, 15-point underdogs, stormed into a surprise lead of 18-17 with 11:39 left in the game on an 11-yard pass from Charlie Trotman to Mark Robbins. Shealy's running then sparked an 82-yard winning drive.

It was Alabama's fourth perfect season in nine years and gave the Tide the Southeastern Conference championship.

Randy McMillan scored three TDs to lead 11th-ranked Pittsburgh to a 29-14 victory over cross-state rival and 20th-ranked Penn State. Pitt, 10-1, will take on Arizona in the Fiesta Bowl and the Nutcracker Bowl, 7-4, meet 14th-rated Tulane in the Liberty

Quebec Topped Vanouvers

Quebec topped Vancouver 1-0, Colorado dominated Buffalo 5-3, Buffalo blanked Washington 3-0, and the New York Islanders beat Winnipeg 4-0.

Goalkeeper Billy Smith chalked up New York's first shutout in NHL history. The Islanders, who won only one game in their six-match road trip, Smith faced 33 shots and wasn't tested much by the weak Jets, who lost their fourth game in the last season. The Islanders' winning goal came at 3:16 of the opening period on the power play.

Nordiques 3, Canucks 1. Serge Bernier scored his seventh goal of the season in the tie, fifth straight and eighth in his last nine games, and gave the Sabres the lead in the Adams Division, two cover goalie Curt Ridley. The goal swept the season series with the Capitals, winning four games by a combined score of 19-7.

White Expects Heisman As Top College Gridder

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern Cal's Charles White has been playing for the Heisman Trophy all year. On Monday, he expects his reward.

White is the favorite for the 1979 Heisman, awarded to the nation's outstanding college football player. He is expected to become the seventh straight running back to win the honor when the announcement is made 1 p.m. EST today at the Downtown Athletic Club.

White's main competition for the 45th Heisman is last year's winner, Oklahoma tailback Billy Sims, and Brigham Young's record-setting quarterback, Marc Wilson. Other contenders include Ohio State's sophomore quarterback, Art Schlichter, and Vagas Ferguson, Notre Dame's all-time leading rusher.

White, following in the tradition of the Trojans' long line of brilliant tailbacks, capped a remarkable final season Nov. 24 by running for 194 yards and four touchdowns in leading the Trojans to a 49-14 rout of UCLA that clinched the Pac-10 title and a Rose Bowl berth.

"I deserve the Heisman," White said after the UCLA game. "I've been playing for it all year long. I'd rather win the national championship — that means more than the Heisman — but I'd love to bring everything home."

White Expects Heisman As Top College Gridder

Sims won the Heisman as a junior last year after leading the nation in rushing and the Sonners tailback finished the regular season magnificently, running for 282 yards against Missouri before shattering Nebraska's defense for 247 yards in Oklahoma's 17-14 triumph Nov. 24. That Oklahoma victory clinched the Big Eight championship and gave the Sooners an Orange Bowl berth.

Sims, who led the nation with 22 touchdowns, boosted his 1979 rushing total to 1,966 yards. He finished with a career average of 7.69 yards per carry — an NCAA record for backs with 500 rushing attempts or more.

Wilson, a 6-foot-5 senior and a pure pocket passer, capitalized on Brigham Young's rare national television exposure against San Diego State on Nov. 24 — firing four TD passes and running for another to key a 63-14 rout that lifted Brigham Young to the WAC title and a date with Indiana in the Holiday Bowl Dec. 21. Wilson set an NCAA career record for passing yards in a season with 3,720 and threw for 29 TDs in his senior year as the Cougars led the nation in total and scoring offense.

Schlichter led the Buckeyes to an 11-0 regular season and a Rose Bowl berth against White's Trojans. The sophomore threw for 13 TDs and 1,519 yards and was intercepted only five times.

Ferguson capped his Notre Dame career with a 177-yard, three-touchdown effort against Miami of Florida. Ferguson, Notre Dame's all-time leading career rusher, gained 1,437 yards in his senior season and scored 17 touchdowns.

Houston Coach Got Help From Friend Across State

NEW YORK (UPI) — Houston Coach Bill Yeoman knew what his team had to do Saturday. He also knew the Cougars needed some help from a friend across the state.

While ninth-ranked Houston was doing its job with a 5-0 victory over Rice, Texas A&M did the Cougars — and seventh-ranked Arkansas — a favor by dumping No. 6 Texas 13-7, changing the Southwest Conference's bowl representation entirely.

As things have worked out, Houston — not Arkansas — will be going to the Cotton Bowl to face No. 8 Nebraska on New Year's Day. And it will be Texas — not Houston — going to the Sun Bowl to play Washington Dec. 22.

Realistically, Yeoman thought Texas was going to win. "I said Yeoman, who will bring his team to the Cotton Bowl for the third time in the four years the Cougars have been competing in the SWC. But the Aggies play very hard in College Station. We know."

Since Houston and Arkansas finished in a tie for the conference title, Houston goes to the Cotton Bowl because of its three-point victory over the Razorbacks in Fayetteville earlier this year. Texas was knocked out of a share of the league title because of its upset loss Saturday. "The whole state is pretty excited," admitted Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz, whose team finished the regular season with a 10-1 record and the co-championship of the SWC with Houston.

"Even my wife called to let me know that Texas had been upset by the Aggies. I need a physical if I'm not excited about playing the top team in the country."

Down in Alabama Saturday, in what they call the "Iron Bowl," Alabama had trouble with Auburn before the Crimson Tide rallied for a 25-18 victory over its intra-state rival to earn its trip to the Sugar Bowl.

'Hot Stove League' Burning In Icy and Snowy Toronto

TORONTO (UPI) — There's a festive yuletide spirit surrounding the winter baseball meetings this year, and it could turn out to be an early Christmas for the likes of Gaylord Perry, Bob Knepper, Gene Garber and, yes, even Marvin Davis.

Four inches of snow and frigid temperatures greeted the more than 1,500 arrivals to the convention who came over the weekend, and the major-league executives showed up with long shopping lists for the "swap shop."

The cold weather has helped start the "Hot Stove League" burning, and the 41-year-old Perry's name is high on the list of several clubs in preliminary trade talks. The Texas Rangers and the Cleveland Indians have expressed interest in the San Diego Padres' right-hander, and it is believed the two-time Cy Young Award-winner will be wearing a new uniform after the week-long meetings end.

Perry will certainly not return to San Diego next season. His days with the club were numbered after he jumped the team on Sept. 4, and he did not return for the remainder of the season. He would like to return to Texas and play for his close friend, owner Brad Corbett, and since there is still plenty of life left in his aging arm, the Rangers would love to have him.

If Perry returns to Texas, for whom he pitched 2 1/2 seasons, the Rangers would most likely have the hottest telephone line at the meetings. They have four quality left-handers — Kravec, Steve Trout, Rich Wortham and Ross Baumgarten — and if they have to, they're willing to part with any of them for quality.

Sometimes during the week the owners also will give an updated report on the negotiations with the Players Association. The basic agreement expires at the end of the year and collective bargaining has been going on since Nov. 14.

The most important item on today's agenda is the draft of minor-league players who have previously played in the major leagues. Last year, seven players taken in the draft made it to the majors and helped block has been cleared by the agreement.

Probably Ken Kravec — most likely by the deal.

The Boston Red Sox are on the verge of landing Knepper and catcher Marc Hill from the San Francisco Giants for slugging third baseman Butch Hobson, and several teams have expressed interest in Garber, a top reliever for Atlanta two seasons ago who is coming off a 6-16 season.

The White Sox will probably have the most meetings with the A's out of Oakland very badly, it is likely the owners will figure out a way to persuade Finley to sell the team if he tries to renege.

Three games were played as the Manchester Deane Grammar School Basketball League opened its season Saturday at East Catholic St. James edged St. Bridget in the opener, 29-20. John Missetwitz had 18 points for the winners while Mark Holmes netted 8 for the losers. Our Lady of Peace overwhelmed St. Rose, 29-10. Jim Taylor poured in 8 markers for O.L.P. Mike Gagnon 6 for St. Rose. Assumption shipped St. Joseph's, 35-19. Chris Bowman had 15 points for the winners while Kevin Dugowicz had 9 for St. Joe's.

Top Freshman
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Marshall running back Ron Leary, a walk-on for the Thundering Herd who finished 15th nationally in rushing and second in the Southern Conference, was named Monday as the league's freshman of the year.

The 5-foot-10, 180-pound running back from Lexington, Ky., easily won the award over Western Carolina running back Leonard Williams. Leary, a non-scholarship player, won a starting spot this fall and rushed for 1,162 yards becoming one of only 12 NCAA Division I freshmen to break the 1,000-yard mark for a season.

Multi-Year Contract
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — John Paul Kelly, the Los Angeles Kings' third-round selection in the 1978 NHL re-entry draft, has signed a multi-year contract with the club.

Kelly was under suspension until Dec. 1 for his part in a brawl during a Western Junior League game earlier this year in Canada. The suspension was handed down by a British Columbia judge and an appeal by the Kings was dismissed.

Two-Way Performer
Two-way performer with the Kingswood varsity football team this season was John McNary of Manchester. The 6-2, 250-pounder was an offensive tackle and a defensive guard. McNary was a letter winner for three years with the prep school squad.

Kings in Romp
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Charlie Simmer, Steve Jensen and Butch Goring scored two goals each and Ron Garber scored his first shutout as a King, pacing Los Angeles to a 7-0 rout of the Chicago Black Hawks over the weekend.

Marcel Dionne, the NHL's top scorer and assist leader, added three assists Saturday night to run his season point total to 51 in 24 games. Leary, who had three shutouts two years ago with Boston, stopped 23 shots as the Kings solidified their hold on second place in the Norris Division, improving their record to 11-8-5.

Hockey Picture At MHS Bright
Improved ice time for practice and a good group of youngsters has suddenly made the picture for the Manchester High ice hockey team a lot brighter.

The Indian pucksters, 238-1-1 year ago, swung into the 1979-80 season Wednesday evening against Simsbury High at the South Windsor Arena at 8:50. They began with hopes of qualifying for the state tournament.

"We hope to make the tournament," voices assistant Coach Clyde Miller. "There should definitely be marked improvement this year. We have some practice time now, three hours a week. Last year we only had 12 hours of practice all season."

"We're giving them time of the ice and this is the first time in four years (head coach) Dennis Doyle has been able to run his program."

The Manchester icemen will open with either senior John Mumford (alternate captain) or sophomore Bob Carlson donning the pads between the pipes. The early edge goes to Mumford.

The first defensive pairing lists senior Rich Bidwell (captain) and junior Mike Schenberger with the second set of defenseman sophomores Leon Botting and Billy Schiff.

"Our defense is coming along really well," Miller states. "Botting can add more than the basic three or four choices to the Belam and Sanyo bulge fix selections into its program."

Too Many Systems
And although the video cassette recorders (VCRs) in the stores are "Beta" or "VHS," a little research turns up other half-inch tape formats that once promised to do the same job but are already extinct, such as the Sony's "Good Time Machine." Even more confounding, there are rumors of as many as five other VCR formats, either cheaper or more talented, on the horizon.

The problem? In this format war, standardization may never come about. Neither system is likely to disappear and although VHS owners outnumber Beta owners three to one at last count, with more than a million units sold, the one-fourth minority consists of a whopping 500,000 Beta fans.

Sony, who started the whole home VCR sweepstakes with "Betamax," says they'll continue to churn out Beta designs, along with Sanyo, Sears, Zenith and Toshiba. Everyone else, including RCA, JVC, Panasonic, Magnavox, Hitachi and Quasar, is committed to VHS — not most manufactured by the Japanese electronics giant, Matsushita.

There are 18 companies making at least 50 different models of VCRs.

Problem for Buyer
For the prospective buyer, the trick is to determine what each system does, how well it does it, and for how much money.

First, both formats use half-inch tape packaged in cassettes, but Beta cassettes don't fit VHS machines and VHS tapes don't fit Beta machines. Beta's "Omega wrap" tape path is particularly resistant to twisting. VHS cassettes have an "M-wrap" design — simpler than Beta, but more stressful to the tape. And when starting a VHS tape, it is impossible to stop it at exactly the same point as 20 minutes of play. Even so, RCA kept its marketing muscle behind the 8-minute 45.

Then came "Stereo." There's a strong battle now being waged for slots on the No. 2 line. Sophomores Brian Gullo and George Zdanis are vying for the center slot while junior Kurt Wagner and sophomores Martin Hasebeck and Craig Carlson are contending for wingman posts. Sophomores Dave Doyle and Skip Carpenter will also see action on the wing.

"The second and third lines are not settled yet. There's a big battle and we have some good material," Miller remarks.

Remember the '45' record player? It's still around, but it's a shelf with the Edsel, but for people deciding which video cassette recorder to buy, the memory is indelible.

Compact and economical, in 1948 the 45 was touted as the brave new home entertainment system by the folks who developed it at RCA. After all, transferring the strains of Glenn Miller from those hefty 78's to a featherweight fine-groove vinylite player was revolutionary enough to serve up a special groove.

The 12-inch, long playing disc made its debut the same year. Like the 45, the idea was to decrease the revolutions and increase the playing time — but Columbia's version spun at 33 1/3 rpm's. With a smaller spindle and a larger disc, it bore little resemblance to the 45.

The two gimmicks marked the dawn of high fidelity. Consumers went wild over the quality and longer playing time. But, because neither company wanted to back down and agree on one speed, both machines were rushed into the marketplace.

The battle began.

In 1950, a gaggle of high fidelity players incorporating all three speeds were on the market, although audiophiles were beginning to agree that Columbia's choice of rpm's gave the best sound reproduction, as well as 20 minutes of play. Even so, RCA kept its marketing muscle behind the 8-minute 45.

Home Video Situation Befuddles Consumers
By SYDNEY SHAW
United Press International
Remember the '45' record player? It's still around, but it's a shelf with the Edsel, but for people deciding which video cassette recorder to buy, the memory is indelible.

Compact and economical, in 1948 the 45 was touted as the brave new home entertainment system by the folks who developed it at RCA. After all, transferring the strains of Glenn Miller from those hefty 78's to a featherweight fine-groove vinylite player was revolutionary enough to serve up a special groove.

The 12-inch, long playing disc made its debut the same year. Like the 45, the idea was to decrease the revolutions and increase the playing time — but Columbia's version spun at 33 1/3 rpm's. With a smaller spindle and a larger disc, it bore little resemblance to the 45.

The two gimmicks marked the dawn of high fidelity. Consumers went wild over the quality and longer playing time. But, because neither company wanted to back down and agree on one speed, both machines were rushed into the marketplace.

The battle began.

In 1950, a gaggle of high fidelity players incorporating all three speeds were on the market, although audiophiles were beginning to agree that Columbia's choice of rpm's gave the best sound reproduction, as well as 20 minutes of play. Even so, RCA

Personal Bankruptcies Increase in Recession

NEW YORK (UPI) — Personal bankruptcies have increased 15 to 20 percent since January in some metropolitan areas and there are ominous signs this trend could escalate as the nation goes into a deeper recession.

Gail Koff, partner in Jacoby & Meyers, a New York law firm, says lack of an adequate financial cushion is the most common single reason for personal bankruptcies.

"The rainy day philosophy just doesn't apply any more," she said. "Whether their incomes are $10,000 or $50,000, people just don't have the resources to cope with any significant drop in income."

The National Consumer Finance Association says unusually high medical bills, loss of employment and marital problems are the greatest causes for consumer bankruptcies.

Theodore Meth, a partner in the New Jersey law firm, Theodore Sager Meth, blames higher fuel prices for what he said was a sharp increase in bankruptcies in New Jersey.

"People were just making it and the higher prices for gasoline and heating fuel took them over the edge," Meth said.

Comptroller of the Currency John Heitman recently warned banks to toughen their consumer credit policies, noting that some excesses may have developed in the overextension of credit, particularly in credit-card debt.

"That's an understatement. Credit card and installment debt rose a record $4.45 billion in September, $2 billion more than the August increase. At the end of September consumers owed a total of $30.9 billion according to statistics from the Federal Reserve."

Heitman and other federal regulators are concerned that Americans are taking on more debt than they can handle, especially in a slowing economy when job layoffs are an increasing possibility.

The sign of potential trouble is the dramatic slowing in September of the pace at which old debts were repaid. Americans paid off $2.19 billion, down from $2.14 billion in August.

"People are not making repayments in an orderly way," Meth said. "Ask any dentist — most will tell you they have a bundle of bills like they never had before, not even in 1974."

Although the credit figures were compiled before the Fed's tough new credit policy went into effect in October, there are indications the "inflation psychology" might not have been dampened.

Meth said Americans still are buying because of their perception that inflation will continue to escalate. "They're making a judgment — I better get it now before I can't afford it," Meth said.

New bankruptcy laws that went into effect Oct. 1 make it easier for individuals and businesses to "take that route."

However, even though bankruptcy court is not the stigma it used to be, it is described as "trauma at best," by most lawyers who deal with such cases.

"People do not file for bankruptcy because there is a new law," said Walter R. Kurth, vice president of NCFIA. "They use it to protect their home and their livelihood during an extreme personal or financial situation."

Meth said an overwhelming majority of the people who are forced into bankruptcy "don't want to stick their creditors," but there's still a stigma in bankruptcy and because of this there are many Americans who should file and don't.

Meth thinks the most significant portion of the new law is the liberalization of Chapter 13, under which an individual (or small business) can declare bankruptcy while he reorganizes his affairs to repay part or all of his debts.

"Under the old law — the wage earners plan — judges didn't regard Chapter 13 as worthwhile and lawyers considered it a lot of bother for little money," Meth said.

"Now Chapter 13 is going to be used because it's much more favorable," he said. "Creditors should approve, because no matter what they get — 50 cents on the dollar, say — it's more than they would get in a straight bankruptcy."

If an individual or small business wants to file under Chapter 13, his lawyer or accountant or other representative totals his net worth and recommends what he can comfortably pay his creditors.

"Nine times out of 10, if I tell a client he can pay 50 cents on the dollar he will ask if he can't pay 75 cents," Meth said.

Planner Still Unsure On Need for Truck

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — Town Planner George Russell said he isn't totally convinced a new and larger rescue truck, for the Rockville Fire Department, is warranted, "in light of consolidation."

The request for the new truck was made by Fire Chief Donald Maguda, supported by members of the Rockville Fire Department Rescue Squad.

By approval of a charter change, last month, the town's two fire departments were consolidated and Maguda is acting chief of the department.

Referring to the larger rescue truck that the former Vernon Department had, Russell said, "It appears to me running two, fully equipped heavy rescue vehicles is unnecessary." He said he feels one heavy and one light rescue truck, in one department, would better serve the town.

Maguda made his request in connection with a proposed application for Community Development Funds and he asked the amount not exceed $40,000.

Maguda said he and squad members don't agree with Russell that two heavy duty rescue vehicles aren't needed because of consolidation.

He said under standards set by the state Office of Emergency Medical Service, there is very little difference between heavy duty and light duty rescue vehicles. He said the main difference is that the heavy duty vehicle is required to carry the jaws of life tool or its equal.

Maguda said neither of the existing trucks was built for the jobs they are performing. He said rescue work has become a very important service and it has become the fire departments duty. He said the truck he wishes to replace is a 1967 with 12,000 miles on it.

He said in the last two years it has responded to 427 calls while the rescue vehicle in District II (rural Vernon) has responded to more than 1,000 calls for the same period.

Russell said while not recommending funding for the rescue vehicle he will recommend funding in the amount of $20,000 for the completion of the renovation of Engine 111. The money would allow installation of a new pump with increased capacity and an enclosed cab. The vehicle in question is housed at the Piton Firehouse on Prospect St., Rockville.

Two requests for fund use, submitted by Ronald Hines, director of Public Works, are not eligible under the regulations of the grant application.

Russell said the grant has as its target area, the Rockville section of town and any equipment bought with grant money must be housed in Rockville.

Hine asked for $10,000 for a new UHF repeater and repeater-type base station with an antenna to use for both of them. Hine said the equipment would be located on Fox Hill where the existing equipment is now. He said the equipment would be used more in the Rockville section than in the Vernon section, adding that the existing base station and a remote base station at the public works office are 20 years old and completely worn out.

The second request made by Hine was for $90,000 to raise a granite wall, install new sidewalks, and raise the curbs on a section of High Street.

The third request made by Hine was for $10,000 for a new UHF repeater and repeater-type base station with an antenna to use for both of them. Hine said the equipment would be located on Fox Hill where the existing equipment is now. He said the equipment would be used more in the Rockville section than in the Vernon section, adding that the existing base station and a remote base station at the public works office are 20 years old and completely worn out.

Iran Crisis Changes President's Campaign

HARTFORD (UPI) — President Carter's decision to remain in Washington during the Iran crisis has forced a change in his Connecticut fund-raising campaign for re-election.

Vice President Walter Mondale was to represent the President at a Hartford reception and dinner Friday, three days after Carter is to announce he will seek re-election.

But Mondale will instead fill in for Carter at a fund-raiser in Atlanta, Ga., since the President has canceled political trips outside of Washington while he deals with the hostage situation in Iran.

Robert S. Strauss, national chairman of the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee, said Sunday that Treasury Secretary G. William Miller will stand in for Mondale at the Hartford dinner that will be hosted by Gov. Ella Grasso, who is also serving as state chairman for the Carter-Mondale campaign committee.

VERNON — The International Brotherhood of Police Officers, Local 483, has filed a complaint with Captain John E. Bundy of the Vernon Police Department concerning what the union terms a "dangerous situation" at the police station.

David M. Shapera, shop steward in the letter to Bundy, said the police booking room and cell corridor are not visually monitored. He said when an officer brings in a person for processing the entire procedure is not observed by anyone other than the individual. "Anything that happens in this area goes unobserved," he said.

He called attention to the fact that Officer William Yez suffered a broken nose recently while booking someone and that

Change of Center Name Agreed to by Council

SOUTH WINDSOR — The Town Council has unanimously agreed the former Wapping Elementary School, now used in part as a community center, be referred to as South Windsor Community Center.

The resolution resulted from a request from Kenneth Dunbar, president of Wapping Community Church. Dunbar had asked that some change be made because of confusion developing over the use of the name "Wapping Community Center."

The Wapping Community Church utilized a building referred to as Wapping Community Center, and many residents were unsure of which building was Interestingly, our newest source of energy won't come from the Mideast. It will come from the Bantam Hydroelectric Station, built in 1905.

It is now being reactivated as part of our restoration program that includes two more hydro plants: Dwight Station at Chicopee, Massachusetts, and Turners Falls No. 1 at Turners Falls, Mass. Water-powered generating plants such as these are a pollution-free, constantly renewable source of energy.

These three revitalized facilities, plus a new hydro plant at Hadley Falls, Mass., will soon generate over 22,000 kilowatts of electricity cleanly, reliably, and economically. Their output will replace 124,000 barrels of oil annually, worth $3.2 million at today's prices. Oil that you won't have to pay for.

At Northeast Utilities, we are continually searching for new and better ways of assuring your energy future through technologies like solar power and laser fusion. But with the price of oil constantly rising, part of the solution today must be in increased hydro power.

That's why, in our determination to provide you with sufficient, reliable, affordable electricity, we have looked to our past to help meet your energy future. For at Northeast Utilities, looking back is just one more way we're moving ahead.

Appeals Board Formed

HEBRON — The Board of Selectmen, at a meeting Thursday, appointed the town's first Municipal Board of Appeals. The appeals board will be the agency to which anyone complains if not satisfied with decisions of the town's building official.

Those appointed to the new board were: Craig Rowley, four-year term; David Sawyer, five-year term; Harry Megson, three years; Basil Bocynsky, two years; and Carl Reichel, one-year.

The town adopted the state building code in March 1970 but never established the appeals board which is required by state law. Up until this time there had never been an appeal filed on any decision of the building inspector.

Recently Mary H. and John U. London filed an appeal against a stop order issued by the building official on Oct. 25. First selectman Raymond Burt said it is his understanding that state building officials were available until now to deal with any local dispute.

However, Burt said that David Paine, the town's building official, issued the stop work order because he said he feels alterations on the property owned by the Londons on Route 66 don't comply with the building code.

Miss Lillian Criticized

HARTFORD (UPI) — A religious group has described Lillian Carter as lacking in basic Christian values for her remark she would pay $1 million to have Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini killed.

The president's mother offered her solution to the Iranian crisis at a campaign event in Bow, N.H., last week on the eve of a Muslim holy day.

But the Christian Conference of Connecticut said it showed "insensitivity" to Mrs. Carter's part.

"Such a statement, whether uttered in jest or not, is a blatant denial of the basic Christian conviction that human life is

First Meeting Members Back Carter's Efforts

CLINTON, Mass. (UPI) — It was almost three years ago that President Carter conducted his first "town meeting" and told 850 Clinton residents that his administration would give peace in the Mideast top priority.

The effort to end war in that part of the world would occupy "a major part of my time," Carter told the residents of the old mill town who crowded into a yellow brick meeting hall on the evening of March 16, 1977.

Today Carter is faced with a Middle East crisis that strikes much closer to home as he tries to extricate 50 Americans from the U.S. embassy in Tehran where militant students are holding them hostage.

Many of Clinton's residents appear to support the way Carter is handling the situation.

Katherine Thompson, at whose home Carter stayed overnight, said the president was handling the situation "beautifully — only as he could do it and as it should be done." Mrs. Thompson, who said she will vote to re-elect Carter.

"I think the people (hostages) should have come before the shah of Iran. They're our people, and the shah of Iran is going to die anyway, and I think our people should come first," she said.

William Coulter, 52, editor and publisher of the Clinton Daily Item, whose family has owned the newspaper for four generations said, "We're ordinary people. We don't have any great solution to the world's problems. I think he's doing an admirable job, keeping his cool under the circumstances. I know he must be getting a great deal of pressure both from the public and private sector ... If he ordered any rash move, like an Entebbe style action, he probably would risk the lives of those hostages."

Bank manager David K. Klinkhamer said, "I think he's doing the best he can and I'm really not a Carter man." He warned that presidential candidates should keep quiet about the situation until the crisis is over.

"If they (the Iranians) don't feel we're rallying around our president they might feel like they should go along with this thing longer," he said.

Florist Timothy M. Kane, 36, who attended Carter's town meeting said, "I think I can't see anyone else having any better answer ... Everyone seems pretty satisfied, even the people I speak to who hated Carter. How he handled this either going to make him or break him."

High school senior Tammi Taylor, 17, a clerk at the Town Point and Supply Co., said the Iranian situation is "all we talk about around here."

She said her boyfriend is not having any better answer ... "Everyone seems pretty satisfied, even the people I speak to who hated Carter. How he handled this either going to make him or break him."

Termination Funds Gone

MANCHESTER — A number of unexpected retirements has depleted the employee termination funds, and the remaining amount won't cover the four employees scheduled to retire.

The town anticipated eight persons would retire or quit this year, appropriating $40,000. During the first five months of the fiscal year, this number has left. But the amount remaining in the fund, $1,758, will not cover those scheduled to retire later this year.

A number of the retirements were "unexpected," according to Town Personnel Director Steve Werboer, and caused the shortage.

The termination benefits include payments to employees for unused sick leave, and vacation. A person who retires can receive up to 105 days pay, someone who quits is eligible for up to 45 days pay. Werboer estimates the town requires about $1,500-$2,000 for each person leaving.

The town requests advance notice of retirements, so appropriations can be included in the budget, he said. But this year only two notices were given.

"But if we lose somebody who's retiring at the top of the pay scale, we hire somebody at the lowest pay scale," Werboer said.

He noted the difference between the two levels would help offset the termination benefits shortage.

The funds necessary for those scheduled to retire during the remaining seven months will have to come from the general fund.

"But if we lose somebody who's retiring at the top of the pay scale, we hire somebody at the lowest pay scale," Werboer said.

School Guttled by Fire

HARTFORD (UPI) — Authorities Sunday investigated the cause of a weekend fire which gutted a state-run school for retarded children.

Hartford Fire Dept. Capt. James Breen said an unidentified caretaker was the only person inside the Evergreen Avenue building when fire broke out about 5 a.m. Saturday.

Breen said the caretaker escaped unharmed from his third-floor apartment.

Six city fire companies fought the blaze about three hours before bringing it under control, authorities said.

Breen said the building was gutted and "uninhabitable."

Garth Thorne, state commissioner of mental retardation, said the building, used to improve the developmental skills of 12 retarded children, will have to be torn down and the program relocated.
