Electronic Toys In Short Supply

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONG KONG (UPI) — Many youngsters who put electronic games at the head of their Christmas lists are due for disappointment. The coveted gift may end up as an Easter present instead.

The world's toy makers have been frantically assembling microprocessor games, but an acute shortage of chips, brains of the sophisticated units, have thwarted their efforts.

The situation developed so slowly manufacturers find it difficult to pinpoint the blame. An executive with one independent Hong Kong supplier said, "The surge in demand outstripped the most optimistic estimates made when chip manufacturers planned their production schedules for this year."

Hong Kong imports its chips primarily from the United States. Some producers attribute the shortage to competition for the parts from the automobile and computer industries.

A spokesman for the Trade Development Council noted that early in 1979, sales of microprocessor games increased more than 500 percent over the previous year. That influenced many other local manufacturers — previously concentrated on consumer electronics such as calculators and video games — to shift production to the toys.

The expanding market was expected to boost the British Colony's toy exports to an all-time high, a goal it still may meet through sales of more traditional gifts. Contributing to premature confidence that orders of microprocessor games could be met was the availability of skilled mold-makers, circuitry and other necessary ingredients.

Except the chips. As long as the chips poured in, thousands of the popular games were shipped to the United States, the primary buyer, and to Britain where they are catching on quickly. But companies started to feel the supply pinch in August.

Manufacturers who did not purchase enough chips early in the year had to pay 30-40 percent more for what chips were available, a price hike that ultimately will hit the consumer.

Charles Chapman, an authority on toys as editor of a Hong Kong industry publication, said, "There was no way anyone could have predicted such a shortage. Demand just outstripped the supply."

Despite obstacles, manufacturers here managed to produce 60 percent of the market demand. Chapman said, Hong Kong's competitors, Taiwan and Japan, also face the chip shortage problem, he added.

"The demand is overwhelming and is expected to intensify in 1980," he said. "Some children may have to wait a while for their Christmas gift."

Hand-held microprocessor games, now in their "first generation," will be expanded soon, Chapman said. Each currently provides one game such as hockey, soccer, football, car racing, chess or checkers.

Next year multiple games in one unit will emerge, Chapman said.

Christmas Produces Happy and Sad Tales

By United Press International. The Metropolitan Transit Commission driver Gary Van Ryswyk's Santa Claus. Mrs. Mallory in the grandmothers of Marine Capt. Westley Williams, who was among the 13 black and woman hostages released before Thanksgiving. "We didn't plan no big nothing," Mrs. Mallory said. "We're still concerned about the other boys over there. We'll be praying and we'll be thinking about them."

Santa and he was suspended until further notice. Abel said the MTC is afraid to allow exception to the dress code because: "What might happen at Halloween?" Most Americans observed Christmas in more conventional ways and the Christian world's most celebrated holiday produced its traditional share of happy and sad tales. In Albany, N.Y., Della Mallory said she was happy to spend the holiday with her grandson — one of the 13 hostages released last month by the Iranian militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. But she said her Christmas thoughts were with the Americans still being held.

Domna Mae Hollis, 40, robbed the First Minnehaha National Bank of $1,400 on Dec. 6, 1978. She said she used $700 to buy presents for her three children and paid off about $700 in loans. She was sentenced to four years in a Kentucky federal prison. But before the holidays, a federal judge released her, gave her $15 to buy presents for her children and counseled her to stay away from banks. Firefighters in Columbus, Ohio, felt sorry for the news people who had to work on Christmas Day so they prepared ham and turkey dinners for them. Most prisoners in the Olmsted County (Minn.) jail were given a 30-hour leave over Christmas with the understanding they would return Christmas evening. "I view Christmas as a time of reconciliation," Olmsted County Judge Daniel Foley said. "If inmates can handle it, I like to give them a little furlough."

Children Target Of Pope's Appeal

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — John Paul II dedicated his Christmas Day appeal to the children of the world, stressing the importance of human rights, the dangers of the arms race and the immorality of abortion. Speaking from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to about 300,000 people gathered in the square below him, John Paul said he was dedicating his traditional Christmas message Tuesday to the world's children, in honor of the U.N. designated Year of the Child.

"What better wish can I express for every nation and the whole of mankind, and for all the children of the world, than a better future in which respect for human rights will become a complete reality throughout the third millennium which is drawing near," the pope said in the "Urbi et Orbi" (To the City and the World) address. And in a reference to the continuing construction of nuclear weapons, John Paul appealed in a firm voice. "Are the children to receive the arms race from us as a necessary inheritance?" In this perspective we must ask ourselves whether there will continue to accumulate over the heads of this new generation of children the threat of common extermination for which the means are in the hands of the modern states, especially the major world powers," he said.

The pope also used the opportunity of his Christmas Day address to reaffirm the theological foundation of the church's opposition to abortion — the belief that life begins at conception rather than birth. "The child is also a great and continuous test of our fidelity to humanity," he said. "It is a test of our respect for the mystery of life upon which from the very first moment of conception the creator places the imprint of his image and likeness."

John Paul delivered his "Urbi et Orbi" appeal after celebrating two pontifical high masses in St. Peter's Basilica, the high point of the holiday season that ends with a special mass Jan. 1 — a day observed each year by the Vatican as the International Day of Peace.

Haig Gets UTC Post

HARTFORD (UPI) — Alexander M. Haig Jr., former U.S. Army general and commander of NATO forces in Europe, has been elected president and chief operating officer of United Technologies Corp., it was announced today. Haig succeeds Harry J. Gray, who held the post since 1971. Gray will remain as chairman and chief executive officer of the Hartford-based conglomerate. Gray said Haig was responsible for the direction, planning, organization, administration and deployment of the integrated forces for 13 nations while he was Supreme Allied Commander of Europe. "This wide range of management and administrative background, combined with Al Haig's extensive experience in world politics, diplomacy and international affairs, qualifies him as the best possible president and chief operating officer we could find for our rapidly growing international company," Gray said.

Haig, 55, graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1947 and became a full general in 1972, when he was appointed vice chief of the army. Gray said Haig's "rapid rise can only be compared with the wartime promotions of President Eisenhower." In 1969 Haig was appointed to the White House as senior military aide to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He became deputy assistant to the president for National Security Affairs the following year. Haig was named chief of staff for the Nixon administration in 1973, a post he held until his appointment as commander in chief of the U.S. European Command in October 1974. Two months later he was named Supreme Allied Commander, Europe. Haig was also one of three new members named to the UTC board of directors. The others are Robert J. Carlson and Peter J. Scott, both recently elected vice presidents of UTC. UTC is one of the nation's top 20 manufacturing firms and Connecticut's largest private employer. It designs, builds, and sells a variety of high technology products for industrial, commercial and government customers worldwide. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group, Otis Elevator and the Carrier Corp. are among its wholly owned subsidiaries.

Hansen in Iran Again

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Congressman George Hansen began his second controversial attempt to win freedom for the American hostages today and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini warned that Iran must prepare to face a U.S. economic blockade. In another sign of a possible rift between the ruling Revolutionary Council and militant students, former Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and fellow council member Yadollah Sahabi protested "baseless accusations" by two students in a Christmas Day television broadcast. Other militants apologized for the broadcast, which attacked former vice premier Abbas Amir-Entezam for "collaboration" with the United States. "These two brothers confessed to their mistake" and were ready to accept "any religious punishment," the militants said.

The official Pars news agency said Tehran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Khomeini, also visited the hostages on the 53rd day of their captivity and told them: "We have no animosity toward you and in Islam all human beings are free and equal." "I hope (President) Carter will stop being obstinate and come to his senses so that you may be released as soon as possible," the Tehran Ayatollah said. Montaberi shook hands with every prisoner, including one who tried to release Rep. Hansen arrived today on his second personal diplomacy mission in two months but refused to mention specific details of his "open-ended" visit. "I'm here to build on my past efforts," the Idaho Republican said. "The last time I opened the doors to the country, to the government, and to the embassy, I think that was very significant and I paved the way for the hostages to have more open treatment." The three Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen celebrated Christmas mass Tuesday with small groups of hostages — 43 in all — prompting new questions about the total number of captives held by the Iranian militants. The clergymen met today with Ghotbadeh but no details were released and a spokesman for the three said they had not requested a meeting with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. After the embassy visit Tuesday, the clergymen reported the hostages appeared to be in "good shape."

wednesday Grounded Sailors Rescued

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — More than 100 people aboard a luxury adventure liner that crunched into the rocks off an Antarctic island are safe today aboard a Chilean rescue vessel, authorities say. The Chilean navy said its transport ship Piloto Pardo, reached the stricken liner Lindblad Explorer early Tuesday and took aboard "around 25 women and 85 men," none of whom was injured in the accident. Authorities said 11 members of the crew remained aboard the ship, awaiting the arrival of a tugboat to try towing the Lindblad Explorer off the rocks. Chilean officials said the rescue vessel would arrive Friday in the southern Chilean port city of Punta Arenas, 900 miles away. The ship made its first tourist run to the Antarctic in 1971 and at that time, passengers paid up to $4,100 each. A U.S. Navy spokesman said the ship radiocast Christmas messages Monday saying it ran aground on Anvers Island, some 40 miles from the American Navy base of Palmer Island off the Antarctic Peninsula, just northeast of the frozen continent. The accident flooded the ship's engine room and damaged its propeller. Although it was listing 5 degrees starboard, the U.S. Navy spokesman said it was in no danger of sinking. There were no details of how the Lindblad Explorer went aground, or the sea conditions. (UPI photo)

Editorial Point of Contention

The occupations of four Manchester directors has become a point of contention on the local scene because they are real estate agents.

We think it is improper for any citizen or group to seek to disenfranchise these four individuals on matters pertaining to housing that might come before the board.

Republican Carl Zinsner and Democrats Stephen Cassano, Barbara Weinberg and James McCavanaugh were elected by the people to make decisions for the town.

Voters were aware housing considerations would come before the board. They also were aware the four directors earn their livings by marketing real estate.

We see no conflict in these directors doing their jobs. They, perhaps more than others on the board, have extensive knowledge of housing conditions and circumstances in Manchester.

To preclude them from using their professional knowledge to benefit the community would be silly.

If some members of the board happened to earn their livings as accountants, would they be precluded from making decisions about financial matters or be banned from budget considerations?

We doubt it.

The business of government is done in the full light of day.

Directors are open to the closest possible public scrutiny through the media and through citizen participation in meetings where decisions are made.

We think any member of the board who may stand to gain financially by a board decision should step down for the purpose of that vote.

That is a different kind of conflict and is the kind of situation the ethics commission was created to handle.

But to discriminate against those elected to serve the community on the basis of their occupation is wrong.

The large number of directors who are in the real estate business is unusual, but the voters decided they were the ones best suited to make decisions for the town.

To disenfranchise these directors would also serve to disenfranchise those who cast favorable votes for them.

Housing has been and will continue to be an important issue in Manchester.

Having professional resources on the board who understand the intricacies of the housing situation in Manchester should be looked upon as a positive factor for the town.

The way town government operates it would be difficult for any director to use the elected office for personal gain.

There are sufficient watchdogs of Manchester government to uncover any hint of conflict and those elected to serve have gained the confidence of the people based on their personal and professional reputations in the community.

We are confident they will make decisions about housing they sincerely think will be for the good of the community as a whole and not for any selfish motives.

Each director is fully aware the decisions the board makes will reflect on their personal, professional and political integrity.

That awareness is sufficient deterrent to any shady conduct by any director.

Capitalizing on their positions of public trust would result in destroyed personal, political and professional reputations.

Each director views his or her reputation with pride and, we are confident, would never jeopardize it by violating the public trust given.

New Dem Puppet

To the editor:

I see where Ted Cummings has a new puppet.

In my opinion he is a turncoat and a disgrace to the Republican party. He made a fool out of us and Director McCavanaugh.

I read the reasons Mr. Sweeney had in the paper tonight and it is a shame to put a man in charge of the others in town.

For the report he made a mess out of everything.

DiRosa said you brought up a good thing about age, the new attorney will be 30, Penny 31 and DiRosa 32.

Well, Mr. DiRosa, age and experience with Penny, Cassano and company proved how good they were last year.

Look at the mess they made of the town with all the law suits and other things I think the Republican Party under good leadership last fall could have swept the town.

I see where all the Republicans supported with the exception of Gloria Della Fera the appointment of Mr. Chasburn, a man who caused all the trouble calling us racists, bigots and what not.

So I want to ask you Mr. DiRosa, especially you, and the rest of the Republicans where were you when Frank Lupien needed help?

I know Frank Lupien well and he is one of the most honest and dedicated citizens this town has had or ever will have.

Of course you will get an article from the head of the Citizens of Responsibility that he should quit or be fired, I ignore this figuring the source it came from.

The leaders in the Republican Party let Mr. Lupien down like the leaders let our great President Nixon down. Watergate was nothing compared to Chappaquiddick.

Yes, Mr. DiRosa you can be a puppet for Cummings, he must be gloating going down after hounding a man all weekend that just came out of the hospital is pretty low.

That Holocaust incident should have been stopped if we had a mayor that knew his job and in my opinion Mr. Weiss being the leader of the town should have known enough to shut up.

Oh, the glory to be a dictator in a town, eh Mr. Weiss?

I read Dr. Buz report and also may others including Mrs. Kirkland the new AFL-CIO president's wife who was a survivor. It was an awfully over-blown thing.

Here is an example, Community College of Baltimore Inner Harbor Campus has over 500 signatures from fellow collegians, the students are asking that such "Holocaust" not be permitted on campus and no monument be permitted to propagandize for the so-called "Holocaust."

Yes, Mr. DiRosa, you should be ashamed of yourself the way you and others have not stuck up for Mr. Lupien. All he did getting those signatures in the bitter cold.

Trouble in this town is you don't want to know the truth because Mr. Weiss has the town in such a mess and the last two years were the worst.

Mr. Penny, when are you going to stop hiring all those people for silly reports? What about that storage space for the help to leave town vehicles? I saw one truck up there on a Saturday and Sunday. They still take their home and ride around as much as usual.

All I can say in closing is ignorance is bliss.

W. Jorgensen,
23 Gardner St. West,
Manchester.

P.S. I have the Spot-Light, a Washington paper for Dec. 3 and Dec. 24. You can have Mr. Weiss or Mr. Penny read the truth about the Holocaust.

Fire Going Out of Smoking?

smokers to poaching on the competition's share of a virtually stagnant market through a proliferation of variations. Further, most of those being introduced are low-tar, less-nicotine cigarettes.

In fact, a Federal Trade Commission report just out notes that for the first time more than half the brands on the market are low-tar varieties.

The anti-smoking forces may indeed be gaining ground. But it would appear that far from the war being almost over, the main front has merely shifted.

Sex in Advertising

While the exit from the Carter cabinet of Joseph Califano, former secretary of health, education and welfare, removed an outspoken foe of smoking from the government, the tobacco industry may have scant cause for celebration.

Califano's successor, Patricia Harris, may be less aggressive in her approach, but she is known as a formidable campaigner once she defines a goal.

Recently, she drew a bead on cigarette hustling. While stressing that at the moment she hasn't any plans to propose new restrictive regulations or legislation on the subject, she sharply criticized the industry practice of pushing brands by giving away free samples, which go in quantity to young people. That practice, she said, is "absolutely beyond the pale."

Mrs. Harris added that cigarette advertising in general should be handled with "great caution" and that in particular advertising featuring "sexy guys and sexy gals" should be discontinued.

Delete sex from advertising? That's more than caution. That's virtually un-American.

Contests Due for GOP Election in Two Districts

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER - Sift competition is expected in two districts for the first GOP election of town committee members.

The competition in District 4 and District 9 stems from the new state law requiring equal representation for all districts; one representative for every 10 registered Republicans. The law also requires the GOP to elect town committee members through caucus. Previously the old town committees voted in new members.

District 4 presently has 17 representatives; eight will be eliminated. District 9, presently has 12 positions; only seven are needed.

In two districts, 6 and 10, seats will be added. Four more representatives are needed in District 10, bringing the total to seven. In District 6, three additional seats will be added, also for a total of seven.

Two out of eight incumbent representatives remain in District 6, leaving six seats vacant.

The upcoming Jan. 22 will pare the number of town committee members from 85 to 78. The election will be the first for the Manchester Republicans. Democrats have used the caucus elections for 12 years. This year's is on Jan. 22.

Unlike the Democrats, the GOP will nominate and vote on the candidates at the caucus. The Democrats must file petitions for candidacy before the election.

Both parties have procedures for challenges to the committee elections.

Elsie Swenson, acting GOP town chairwoman, said she expects a few problems with the elections.

"In District 4 and 9 there will probably be a heavy voter turnout," she said. "Perhaps in the others we will have to get states together to run."

"I expect there'll be some problems; this is the first time for elections."

Last week, during an executive GOP meeting, Fred Peck, Republican registrar, asked his Democratic counterpart, Herbert Stevenson, to explain procedure.

For this he was criticized by Republican Board of Directors member Carl Zinsner who said Peck should know his job.

Swenson agreed today that "Fred should have read the book" before contacting Stevenson.

"I did not suggest it," she said. "But Herb had a good presentation, and I'm glad he came."

"But the meeting was really to decide whether to open the schools in all the districts, or have the election in one place."

Swenson said she had suggested, as an emergency economy, to have both parties' elections on the same night, but decided against it.

The GOP elections will be at all ten schools. Mrs. Swenson said the GOP will have another meeting, early in January, to prepare slates, and discuss possible candidates.

Presently, few persons have expressed interest in the districts with open seats.

"I hope we can get many voters out for this," Mrs. Swenson said. "In the districts with competition I know there will be a large turnout."

Ordinance Delayed By EDC

HEBRON - Members of the Economic Development Committee have decided not to push for a town meeting early next year to adopt an ordinance which would establish a formal Economic Development Commission.

The members agreed to wait until after the budget meetings are finished before placing the proposal before the townspeople.

The committee also discussed the merits of membership in the Capital Region Planning Agency but agreed to postpone any action on the matter after discussing the pros and cons.

Some of the areas of assistance which would be available from the regional agency would include transportation, housing, land use, public safety and industrial development.

James Lynch, committee chairman, said that it would appear that the committee would benefit from membership in the agency. He also cited the fact that economic development of the town could benefit. He said he hopes that the town may join the region before the committee recommends establishment of a permanent Economic Development Commission.

Leslie Cosgrove, economic development coordinator for the Town of Marlborough, will meet with the committee to discuss with the committee to be accomplished in his town. The meeting is scheduled for Jan. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building.

Dems Protest GOP's Choice

HEBRON - Richard A. Keeffe, chairman of the Hebron Democratic Town Committee has issued a letter of protest concerning a recent appointment to the Board of Tax Review by the Board of Selectmen.

In his letter Keeffe said, "The Hebron Democratic Town Committee protests the recent action by the Republican members of the Board of Selectmen in appointing a Republican to fill the vacancy on the Board of Tax Review."

Keeffe said that although the appointment was within the letter of the law, it has been the custom for many years for the Board of Selectmen to request a recommendation from the respective town committee of the person who resigned.

James Lynch, a Democrat resigning from the Board of Tax Review to fulfill statutory requirements as a newly elected member of the Board of Finance.

"This action by the Board of Selectmen can only be interpreted as an extremely partisan action which has no place in good town government."

Oil: From British, Massadegh To Shah, K and Rockefellers

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Precisely at the midpoint of this century - and at the midpoint, too, of American involvement in Middle East oil affairs - a series of threats and crises reverberated throughout the Middle East oil region which prefigured the cataclysmic events of the 1970s.

The oil companies had established a corporate world government in oil matters dominated by Exxon, Shell and British Petroleum. They pegged the world price of oil to the high production cost of oil sales on the U.S. Gulf Coast. Thus the consumers never benefited from the incredible cheap-to-produce Middle East oil, which the oil companies extracted for 10 cents a barrel.

Then in 1950, the eccentric Mohammed Mossadegh began to inflame Iran with attacks on the British-run Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which he nationalized amid jolting confrontations, great blubbery and fantastic chaos. His impassioned behavior created an upheaval that threatened the oil companies' control of the world market.

At first, the companies tried to negotiate with Mossadegh, but he had some of the same traits that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was to display nearly 30 years later. Mossadegh simply refused to come to terms.

Howard Page, then the Middle East coordinator for Exxon, recalled the confrontation in later testimony. "The U.S. government tried several schemes, three or four schemes, and sent people out, high-level people, to negotiate with Mossadegh," recounted Page.

"The British advised they would never get anywhere with Mossadegh. I would have advised the same thing. I couldn't have done it with Mossadegh. I did it with the next government but not with Mossadegh."

Exxon's man neglected to mention that the company helped bring the "next government" to power. Strings were pulled in Washington by the politically powerful Rockefeller family, who through a complex of cross-crossing corporate wires, controlled those giants of capitalism: Exxon and Chase Manhattan Bank.

The details of a CIA coup, by the nature of the operation, are murky. But competent sources attest that the Rockefeller helped arrange the CIA coup that brought down Mossadegh and replaced him with Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The grateful shah restored the expropriated oil properties to their British owners but also permitted several American oil companies to muscle in on the British show. The dominant American company in this new consortium was none other than Exxon.

The consortium was represented in the 1960s by John J. McCloy who had been president of Chase Manhattan; sources say he took his signals from the Rockefellers.

The shah demonstrated his gratitude to the Rockefellers in many other ways. These included heavy deposits of his personal fortune at Chase Manhattan; housing developments in Iran built by Rockefeller family company; Chase investment in the International Agro-business Corporation of Iran; channeling of oil letters of credit through Chase Manhattan; deposit of the National Iranian Oil Company in Chase's London affiliate and Chase's 33 percent interest in the Iran-Chase International Bank created in 1974.

During the lucrative relationship with the shah, the Rockefellers employed Henry Kissinger as their foreign policy adviser. It was with the Rockefellers' blessings that Kissinger later moved to Washington to guide Richard Nixon's foreign policy. In fact, the peculiar cord was never completely broken; Kissinger, while on the White House payroll, accepted a $50,000 gift from Nelson Rockefeller.

Sources close to the shah say that Kissinger collaborated with the shah in pushing up world oil prices. At least this much is certain: Kissinger did nothing to discourage the shah from precipitating the OPEC oil gouge.

Could Kissinger have stopped the shah from launching oil prices out of control? The shah not only owed his throne to the United States but Kissinger acknowledges in his autobiography that the shah was "star struck" by America and, therefore, eager to do America's bidding.

In 1973, President Nixon was preoccupied with Watergate. This left Kissinger free to call the shots in foreign affairs. He chose not to interfere with the shah's clamor for increased oil prices. By allowing, perhaps even encouraging the shah to quadruple oil prices, Kissinger made possible fabulous profits for the shah and the Rockefellers. But this started a trend which now threatens the Western world with economic ruin.

Kissinger, meanwhile, returned to the Rockefeller fold as the chief foreign policy adviser to the Chase Manhattan Bank. When the shah was overthrown, Kissinger and David Rockefeller became his real estate agents. Rockefeller found the shah a plush haven in Nassau. Later Kissinger persuaded Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo to allow the shah to settle temporarily in Mexico.

Then Kissinger and Rockefeller, joined by McCloy, organized a pressure campaign to bring the shah into the United States. They finally succeeded in getting Carter's approval for the shah to check into a New York hospital center. As a direct result, the U.S. embassy in Tehran was overrun by militants who grabbed the diplomats as hostages and held them in knife-edge jeopardy.

The Rockefeller-shah-Kissinger connection has been a disaster for the United States and cries out for congressional investigation.

Town Faces Problem In Filling CETA Jobs

By MARY KITZMAN Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — In Manchester, like many other towns, it is increasingly difficult to find CETA employees for government jobs. But under the federal program's new guidelines, this is supposed to happen.

CETA is being phased out of local governments," Steven Werber, personnel supervisor, said. "The new guidelines change the emphasis of the program from the local government to the private sector. We will rely less and less on CETA employees, while the private sector begins to use them more."

In August of 1978 the town had 105 CETA workers. There are 25 CETA employees now, with two available clerical positions that Werber is having trouble filling.

"We can't find qualified applicants," Werber said. "Anybody who is qualified for the positions can find a better paying job in the private sector. We will either have to institute another training program or train on the job."

Training the chronically unemployed is the primary goal of the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. Eligible persons have a low income, below $3,000 for a single person, and are unemployed for 15 weeks.

For the first 18 months, CETA pays the person's wages. After that the employer either adds the position permanently or lets it drop. Theoretically, the unskilled worker has become skilled through on-the-job training, and can find employment in the private sector.

However, since the old guidelines paid up to $20,000, half from federal funds and half from local, many CETA positions were filled with college graduates, and not the chronically unemployed.

The new guidelines limit CETA income to an $8,000 average, reducing the number of skilled applicants. Only clerical positions fall in this pay range in Manchester. And those with clerical skills can find employment in the private sector at a much higher salary.

"The changes actually make it more of a training program," Werber said. "But it makes it harder for us to find applicants."

Town CETA position salaries must also be negotiated with the labor unions, further increasing hiring difficulty. For these reasons, Werber says, the private sector non-profit organizations in particular, will be receiving more CETA funding, while the governments receive less.

This year, Manchester's CETA fund is $400,000, two years ago it was one million dollars. But the drop in the unemployment rates the past two years has also accounted for the drop in funding, according to Werber.

Werber must fill the two open clerical positions within about a month or return the funds to CETA. But before doing this, he says the funds may be given to a private organization, or a training program may begin.

Last year, in conjunction with Manchester Community College, 15 persons received clerical training using CETA funding. Three were hired by the town, and the rest went into the private sector labor force.

"We need people to do the work," Werber noted but first they have to know how.

"We don't look upon this as a free education," he said. "Rather we're using federal funds to employ local residents. It's not a waste of the funds."

As qualified applicants become harder to find, and training programs increase, Werber says the job of a CETA employee will change also. "We will use the employee for more basic programs and skills," he said. "No program will stop, but CETA employees will be assistants."

Area Police Report

Vernon
Robert Demay, 23, of 7 Walnut St., Rockville, was charged early Christmas morning with first-degree criminal mischief. He allegedly pulled a false fire alarm on Mountain Street.

Roger Bell Jr., 22, of 29 School St., Rockville, was charged with disorderly conduct in connection with the investigation of the same incident. Police said he became abusive.

No court date was given for either man.

Manchester — The Manchester Area Conference of Churches has called on Gov. Ella Grasso to protect convalescent home patients from involuntary transfers by investigating the system which protects the rights of patients in convalescent and nursing homes.

ELLINGTON — The letter asks that the governor and the Department of Health not only protect patients from involuntary transfers but also investigate the system which protects the rights of patients in convalescent and nursing homes.

MURDER PROBE IS CONTINUING
EAST HARTFORD — Police are continuing their investigation into the stabbing murder of Mrs. Cora B. Davis, 28, of 49 Sunnyside Drive, whose body was found near her home late Sunday night.

Mrs. Davis' body was discovered by passersby on the porch of a neighboring home at 53 Sunnyside Drive, shortly before midnight.

MANCHESTER — Area motorists may have some problem getting gasoline for the rest of the month, but apparently not a serious one. A few gasoline station operators asked today by The Herald expected some problem. One frankly expected to run out of gas. Two others said it would be tight.

Most, however, expected to have enough gasoline to last until their January allocations arrive.

Two of the operators attributed their adequate supply to the fact that they received additional allocations by applying to the state for them early in the month.

Vandals Blamed In Power Outage

HEBRON — Some 6,500 homes in Hebron, Salem, Colchester, and East Haddam were without power for several hours Christmas morning and officials of Northeast Utilities said the outage was apparently caused by vandals.

Power company officials said three insulators in an isolated section of the Amston Lake area of Hebron were apparently vandalized.

The outage was reported shortly before 4 a.m. and it took the power company crews about six hours before they located the damage. Power was restored about 11:30 a.m.

Weekend Assault Probed by Police

EAST HARTFORD — An 18-year-old Manchester woman was sexually assaulted Sunday at 3:45 a.m. on Burnham Street near the Manchester town line, police said.

Police said the woman was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital after the incident.

Police said the woman was hitchhiking at Main and Governor streets when she was picked up. The subject drove to a Dunkin' Donuts shop and then proceeded to Burnham where the assault took place. According to police, she was beaten and

Manchester Police Report

MANCHESTER — Police reported an early Christmas morning break-in at the Cumberland Farms store, 1083 Main St. The suspects stole eight cartons of Marlboro cigarettes and two cases of Coca-Cola with a total value of $98.

Other burglaries reported over the holiday weekend were:

- The theft of $75 from Tires International, 1195 Tolland Turnpike Monday night.
- The theft of an undetermined amount of jewelry from a Main Street home. Police said two upper rooms were ransacked.
- A break-in at JB Realty, 352 West Middle Turnpike. Police said the suspects entered the office behind the Parkade Clarence. Reportedly he had left the home about an hour before the fire broke out.

Fire officials said structural damage was light but the building was extensively damaged by heat and water.

Volunteer firemen from Andover, Columbia and Hebron responded to the fire which was reported about 9 p.m. The home is adjacent to the Andover Post Office. It is being investigated by State Police of the Colchester unit.

Fire officials said gasoline was apparently tossed into the home through a first-floor window. Firefighters found gasoline in the building, especially in the living room and dining room where the fire appeared to have started.

A person in a passing car called the Hutchinson Fire Department and a passenger in the car went into the house to make sure there were no children or anyone who might have been injured.

The tree, located at the Hutchinson property at Wales Road and Rt. 6 in Andover, has become something of a community project in the 25 years that the Hutchinsons have been decorating it. It appeared for a while that the tree might be dark for Christmas Eve after someone vandalized it. It was repaired in time, however.

Andover Tree Bright Again

ANDOVER — The lights were lit on Christmas Eve at the Hutchinson family tree despite the damage done to them earlier in the day by vandals.

John Hutchinson said today that his grandsons picked it up and reconnected what had been cut.

Only about 30 lights were stolen, Hutchinson said, and he replaced them.

Synagogue Youth Group Aids Staff on Christmas

HARTFORD (UPI) — For some workers at two of Hartford's hospitals, Christmas was a day off as 70 Jewish students and parents donned white jackets to answer phones, change beds and run patient errands.

"They're basically only doing minor surgery," joked attorney Stuart Appelbaum who organized the program Tuesday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center and Hartford Hospital. He spent his day keeping tabs on the young volunteers.

The students, members of the United Synagogue Youth chapter at Beth Hillel Synagogue in Bloomfield, scurried about the hospitals handling varied tasks, including complete operation of the computerized patient information system at Hartford Hospital.

"They're getting something out of this but so are we," said Appelbaum, the group's adviser.

"The kids learn a great deal today. They learn about compassion and they learn about the importance of giving of themselves," he said.

The students dedicated their service to 14-year-old Samantha Reichlin, who had volunteered last year and planned to be with them this Christmas but who died earlier this year.

Adult volunteer Fred Green, a salesman from Bloomfield who came for a second year with his son and daughter, agreed.

as the students went about their jobs all smiles, which a spokesman at St. Francis said in itself was a holiday plus.

"We're very pleased and delighted that they're here," hospital spokesman Gregory Barrett said.

"They assist throughout the hospital. But the most important thing they do is they cheer up the patients on a day that I think could be quite lonely."

Adult volunteer Fred Green, a salesman from Bloomfield who came for a second year with his son and daughter, agreed.

Top Cop Backs Increase In State's Drinking Age

HARTFORD (UPI) — Public Safety Commissioner Donald J. Long says he would back an increase in Connecticut's drinking age as one way to help slow the number of traffic deaths involving young drivers.

But Long said Monday state police and lawmakers can only do so much to prevent accidents and urged state residents to do their part during the holiday season and every time they drive a car.

"We need the cooperation of the motoring public," Long told a news conference Monday. He asked motorists to obey the speed limit and not to drive or "allow anyone else to get behind the wheel if they're been drinking."

Long said the percentage of alcohol-related accidents involving 17-year-olds last year was three times higher than in 1977 and a higher drinking age was needed to help slow that climb.

Several lawmakers have said they will introduce legislation to hike the 18-year-old drinking age when the Legislature begins its next session in February. A bill to increase the age was passed this year but was vetoed by Gov. Ella Grasso.

Long said his appeal to motorists counted "not only during this holiday season but each and every time you get behind the wheel."

State police have made more arrests this year and enforcement on the highways has just about doubled, he said. "But enforcement alone does not appear to be the answer. Police alone can not prevent accidents," he added.

At least seven people have died on Connecticut's roads since the long weekend began at 6 p.m. Friday. Long said state police have investigated 225 accidents and 77 involved personal injury.

Long said it had been a "difficult weekend" but quoted the holidays as not an exception.

"People are being killed on our highways every weekend of the year. The problem is they (the fatalities) are year round," Long said.

The number of state traffic-related deaths stood at 555 by Sunday, a record high for the state. On Dec. 3 this year's running total surpassed the old death record set in 1973.

Pilot Died Of Smoke

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — An autopsy showed the pilot of a single-engine plane that went down near Monroe ten days ago died of smoke inhalation, not burns or injuries suffered in the crash.

Orange County Coroner Mary M. McPhillips Monday said Ronald Giombotzky, 45, of State Hill probably died minutes after slamming into Skutumpahunk Mountain.

The wreckage of his Cessna 172 was spotted Sunday by a private pilot flying over the area in the southern part of Orange County.

Giombotzky had taken off from Orange County Airport in Montgomery Dec. 16, saying he was headed for Bridgeport, Conn.

Weather that day was inclement, and conditions were prevalent, but Giombotzky filed a Visual Flight Rules plan and took off, officials said.

Civil Air Patrol planes had covered the route between Montgomery and Bridgeport for a week without finding the downed craft.

The crash site was on a mountaintop about 10 miles from the airport.

The Precision Haircut

If you hate the way your haircut disappears the day after... come to Command Performance where we specialize in the precision haircut. Precision haircutting is our technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. So as it grows, it doesn't lose its shape. And because the hair is cut to fall naturally you don't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it. The precision haircut with shampoo and blow-dry costs just fourteen dollars for guys and gals. We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. No appointment is needed, just come in. And you'll see that precision is right for you.

Unusual Publishing Firm Owned by Its Employees

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Bureau of National Affairs in Washington sounds like just another government agency but it's a successful — and unusual — private business, owned entirely by its employees. One of the most successful of the country's few worker-owned companies, BNA was created by the late David Lawrence, the Washington correspondent who also founded U.S. News & World Report. It is a specialty publishing firm that grossed $52 million in 1978 and expects to do about $70 million this year. Its stock, issued at $10 a share in 1947, currently is priced at $600 but the only people that can buy it are BNA employees. It also pays very good dividends. Although it didn't issue stock until 1947, Lawrence founded BNA back in 1929 to push very specialized periodicals of interest to business firms. The first was U.S. Patents Quarterly. To anyone not passionately interested in patents, it wasn't thrilling reading but it contained lots of useful information and that has been the tone of BNA publications ever since. Now there are 50 of them, a few daily news letters and the rest weekly, monthly, semi-monthly or bi-monthly guides to a variety of more or less esoteric business fields. Lawrence was one of those chaps who had to have as many irons in the fire as he had fingers and toes — a widely syndicated newspaper political column, a radio program, two weekly general news magazines, which eventually were merged, and a lot of other things. He decided in 1947 he could no longer give BNA the kind of management it needed and it wasn't making big enough profits in those days to set the world afire. So he suggested to some of the top hands that they buy the company. This inner group insisted that everyone be given a chance to buy in. John D. Stewart, now president and editor-in-chief of BNA, was one of the original stockholders. He had joined the company as a writer in 1939. He became its president in 1964 and under his leadership it has grown until it now has 1,400 workers. Sixty-seven percent of these own stock. Any employee can buy shares after one year of full-time service or five years as a part-timer. No one may own more than 5 percent of the company.

Douglas Willett, East Hartford High School principal, presents the Thomas Redden Award to Meg Prior of 129 Collimore Road. The senior received the award from the Yale Club of Hartford for outstanding achievement in scholarship, athletics and leadership. (Herald photo by Pinto)

East Hartford Senior Receives Yale Award

EAST HARTFORD — An East Hartford High School senior recently received the annual Thomas Redden Award from the Yale Club & Scholarship Foundation of Hartford. Meg Prior of 129 Collimore Road was chosen the most outstanding girl in the school for her leadership in scholarship, athletics and leadership. She ranked number one in her class. Miss Prior has been on the honor roll every year, is a member of the National Honor Society, received the Trinity Book Prize and attended Laurel Girl's State and the Civitan Citizenship seminar.

She has been a member of her class's executive board for four years and currently is serving as its treasurer. She is a four-year member of the marching and concert bands and is the vice-president of the concert band. In athletics, she is the captain of the track and gymnastics teams, for which she has lettered four times each. She holds the school record in the 80 and 440-yard dashes and was selected OCL first team in track. She also lettered in cross country the past two years.

Vernon Junior Women Plan Vision Screening

VERNON — Volunteers from the Vernon Junior Women's Club will meet Jan. 10 to plan a town-wide preschool vision screening program. The meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. at the home of Janice Cormier. This orientation session will be conducted by the Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness to train the club members in the administration of a simple eye test which will be given to children ages 3-5. The free and painless screening will be conducted in area nursery schools and a town-wide screening program will be held in early spring.

Vernon Film Premieres

VERNON — "Alert and Alive," a film produced in the Vernon school system with the aid of a state grant, was shown last week in Washington, D.C. Clare Albom, supervisor of physical education and safety in the Vernon system, was invited to make the presentation on Vernon's bus and pedestrian safety program, at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's national conference. Mrs. Albom explained the program and how it was taught in the Vernon system. The film has received numerous accolades and is considered the only one of its kind in the United States and one of a few produced by a public school system. The 1974 Connecticut Safety Commission's "Concern for Safety Award," was presented to the Vernon school system in recognition of production of the film.

Sewer Information Ready

VERNON — Information concerning connecting to the sewer lines in the Troutstream Drive-Deerfield Drive area is available in the engineering office in the Memorial Building, Park Place. Property owners must obtain a permit from the department before they connect to the system. The $1.5 million project has suffered many delays since it was started late in the summer. Residents in the area said their problems with their septic systems have become critical and they are anxious to tie in to the line. The lines were laid along Route 30 from Cold Spring Drive to Mt. Vernon Drive and on Sunnyside Drive and Vernon Avenue from South Street to Route 30. Residents may tie in anytime now.

Candidate Declines Post

HEBRON — Mel Olinsky, who had agreed to fill the position of assistant superintendent of schools, has decided against taking the position. David Cattanch, superintendent said. Olinsky is currently employed as an assistant principal of the Mansfield Middle School. He had agreed to vacate that position upon being appointed assistant superintendent. As assistant superintendent he would have had jurisdiction in the three elementary schools in Hebron, Andover, and Marlborough as well as the junior and senior high school of Rham. Olinsky gave as his chief reason for not taking the position, the fact that he would miss the daily contact with staff and pupils. Cattanch said he has contacted the chairman of the Central Office Committee for the purpose of calling a special meeting on Jan. 9 in order to continue the search procedure for an assistant.

GOP Suggests Appointment

HEBRON — Members of the Hebron Republican Town Committee voted unanimously to recommend that Janet Von Deck be presented as the candidate to fill the vacancy on the Zoning Board of Appeals. Mrs. Von Deck has served as an alternate on the board during the past year. Robert Gouelle was nominated to fill the vacancy as an alternate. The committee is making plans to have a dinner-dance Feb. 2 at the Chestnut Lodge. Tickets can be obtained from any committee member or by calling Jerry Cross, chairman of the event. The next committee meeting will be Jan. 17 at 8 p.m. at the Town Office Building.

Being Gifted Means Taking Risks, Psychologist Says

STORRS — If being "gifted" sounds attractive, but hopeless considering your usual take-home "critical edge" for giftedness is simply one's ability to take risks, says a University of Connecticut educational psychologist.

Gifted adults generally exhibit a core cluster of three traits, says Dr. Joseph Renzulli: above-average ability, creativity, and high task commitment. But it is the last — high task commitment, which determined productivity — and productivity is the barometer of personal effectiveness.

"Students too long have been cast in the learner role. They have been told to sit at the feet of the master," Renzulli says. "I say some students can go beyond merely learning lessons. In fact, they can demonstrate their giftedness by producing something unique — not for their teacher, but for an audience of peers, consumers, informed adults. The pay-offs are phenomenal," he adds.

"Dedicated to the belief people can do a lot more than they think they can," Renzulli says analyzing one's "real" interest is the key to self-actualization or giftedness.

"To help determine what one's real and potential interests are, he designed an instrument to do the job. It's called an "Interest-A-Lyzer."

"The 'Interest-A-Lyzer' is, in fact, a series of questions designed to focus on what people really enjoy or love to do. 'We often miss the boat completely in our culture because we get rewarded for what we do well, not for what we really like to do,' Renzulli says.

"Even worse, we actually believe we like to do what we do well, but that may not always be the case. We may even hate what we do quite well."

Stereo-typic pressures, for example often force women into service-oriented roles and other corner men into high financial gain activities, Renzulli says.

"But the Interest-A-Lyzer is designed to help both adults and children discover and focus on their real interests. Sample questions from the children's edition, for example are:

- "If you could invited some famous person back to life, who would it be?"
- "If you were going off to space for a year, what favorite things would you take with you to help you pass the time?"
- "Imagine yourself the famous author of a well-known book. What kind of book would it be? What would it be about? What would you title it?"

If these questions appear simple, they are not in fact, for some, Renzulli says, they are painfully difficult. The cover of the children's Interest-A-Lyzer warns: "Do not try to answer these questions now. Read them over and think about them for a few days."

"And please do not discuss the questionnaire with others at this time. Sometimes we can be influenced by the opinions of others and this influence may prevent you from exploring some of your own interests."

A classic study of 150 most successful men, all of above average ability and creativity, shows the greatest contrast between the two groups was "all around emotional and social adjustment and the drive to achieve," Renzulli says.

"Self-image enables us to take those critical risks to get our 'product' out there," for better or worse, for acclaim or possible rejection, Renzulli believes.

"Take the risk," he says. "You'll like it."

Self-concept develops from our reflection of ourselves in the outside world, Renzulli says, not from a mystical or mysterious "inner peace" as Eastern philosophies suggest. "Our motives all differ — egoism, altruism, or just plain profit," he adds. "But it really doesn't matter. What counts is getting your product out there."

Products can vary from books to booze, from junk to jaws. "The important thing is developing a sense of audience, a sense of one's self as a producer, a student who thinks of herself as a writer of reports, may just write a report, but one who thinks of herself as an author, may just write a book," Renzulli adds.

The teacher's role he defines as supportive, helping the student discover his own real interests and providing the tools for him to explore them and produce. Renzulli himself has produced a number of his own "products."

Other Renzulli "products" include: "The Contrite" — a half conference to provide a little glamour and "The Compactor, a guidebook to assist regular classroom teachers in compacting and streamlining the regular curriculum for students who can master basic material.

Connolly Removes Manley From Regional Agency

COVENTRY — Daniel Manley, who has been aggressively fighting plans for a municipal sewer system for the town for almost a decade, has been removed by Town Manager Frank Connolly as the town's representative to the Windham Regional Planning Agency.

Last fall Manley, who is also a member of the town's Conservation Commission, voted against a planning agency motion that supported sewers for Coventry. Connolly said he felt Manley was representing his personal view on the issue rather than the position of the town.

Connolly has replaced Manley with Ray Desnoes, a local attorney. The town's other representative on the agency is Betty Gardner, who works in the town planner's office.

Numerous town councils since 1971 have either directly or tacitly supported a proposal for sewers as developed by the town's Sewer Authority, recently renamed the Water Pollution Control Authority. Current plans call for sewerage of the lake and Village areas and have won the reluctant approval of the Planning and Zoning Commission, Town Planner Gregory Fadic, believes there is no viable alternative to sewerage to protect the water quality of Coventry Lake.

The planning agency's Water Quality Committee last month voted 7 to 5 to ask the federal Environmental Protection Agency to conduct an impact study of Coventry's sewer plan, which is estimated to cost $12 million, with 90 percent of the tab to be picked up by the government. It was Manley who recommended the federal review, which could delay the project by as much as two years.

Manley's proposal came after the issue had been discussed by the Conservation Commission, which opposes sewers. Commission chairwoman Joanne Corrigan said she was told an impact study would cost between $30,000 and $50,000.

Manley had started a small group called

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Warned of an engineering misuse at the Seabrook nuclear power plant, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has asked the nation's other nuclear facilities to double check their earthquake stress calculations.

Aquifer Analysis Slated

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey, predicting New England could face a shortage of water within the next 30 years, will begin analyzing regional aquifer systems in 1982 which could lead to changes in state laws.

In an initial report published Tuesday, the USGS said it believes New England and other parts of the nation may experience water shortages because of pollution, rising consumption, and lack of sound water management plans.

The USGS study will focus on aquifers — underground formations that supply groundwater — many of which cross state borders, making their management more than a local problem.

Hebron Dims Fill Vacancy

HEBRON — The Democratic Town Committee has accepted the resignation of George Smith as a committee member and appointed Edward Selter to replace him.

In other action the committee voted to recommend that Catherine Coburn fill a vacancy on the Board of Education created by the resignation of Lillian Broderick.

Brooks recently said conflicts in existing state laws and conflicts among agencies charged with management make it impossible to offer intelligent decisions about groundwater.

He called for amending land-use laws to protect "water recharge" areas, and for setting up procedures to state agencies can honor each others' permits.

Jamaican Cult Linked To Hartford Murder

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Hartford man was held today on $100,000 bond, charged with a cult-related shooting on Christmas Day that left one man dead and the accused and another man injured, police say.

Wayne Rust, 29, was charged with murder and first-degree assault about nine hours after the 12:30 p.m. Tuesday shooting in a run-down tenement in the city's North End, police said today.

Police would not identify the dead man, pending notification of next-of-kin.

But they said Victor Francis, 17, of Windsor was shot above the right eye and was in stable condition at St. Francis Hospital.

Police said they were pursuing a theory that the shooting may have been sparked by rivalry among factions of the Jamaica-based Rastafarian cult.

Rastafarians worship the late Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie and use marijuana as a sacrament in religious services.

The slaying was the second Rastafarian-related death in the city within the last two weeks, police said.

Basil Rochester of Bridgeport died Dec. 17 as a result of gunshot wounds sustained in an Oct. 22 shooting.

Two other unidentified men were inside the sparsely furnished apartment where Tuesday's shooting occurred, police said.

Vernon Seeking State Fuel Aid

VERNON — Mayor Marie Herbst has applied for a state grant of $25,536, the town's share of a state-wide fuel oil loan fund designed to assist middle-income families with their fuel bills this winter.

State Rep. Chester Morgan, D-Vernon, was co-sponsor of the bill. The money will be loaned to households with income from 125 to 300 percent above the poverty level. The family must also be unable to pay current fuel expenses and must have been refused by at least one fuel oil dealer in an attempt to secure oil.

The town will make payments directly to a fuel oil dealer and the loan must be paid in full by Oct. 1, 1980.

At the Town Council meeting scheduled for Jan. 7, the council will conduct a public hearing to obtain the comments of townspeople for a winter energy plan.

The council has already voted to set aside $6,000 as a start of a fuel fund for a low-interest loan program. This will be added to the money coming from the state and loan amounts will range from $180 to $300 depending upon the income levels.

The council hasn't yet decided which department will administer the fund.

St. Bernard's Church Supports Fuel Bank

VERNON — St. Bernard's Church has donated $1,100 to the Tri-Town Fuel Bank which was started in the fall with a donation of $500 from the Greater Vernon Jaycees.

The fund is being administered by the Hockanum Valley Community Council under the direction of Patricia Cornish. It is allowing up to 150 gallons of oil or $50 toward present gas or electric bills to those eligible.

The applications, from the towns of Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington, are reviewed by the social service departments in each town. No income level for eligibility has been set. Each application will be judged on its merits.

This is the second year the fuel bank has been in operation and the amount in the bank has fluctuated from $500 to $2,000 depending upon the number of donations received and the number of applications received.

Other donations have come in from the First Lutheran Church of Rockville, Vernon Post 1021 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Women's Fellowship of the United Congregational Church of Tolland.

So far the bank has made it possible for 35 families in the three towns to receive help with their fuel bills.

Taxes Due in January

VERNON — The second installment on property taxes on the Oct. 1, 1978 Grand List is due and payable during the month of January. A penalty of one percent per month will be charged until the bill is paid in full.

Property owners who have bought real estate since Oct. 1, 1978 and who don't have an escrow account for taxes should call the office of the tax collector for information on the amount due.

Also due in January is the supplementary property tax on motor vehicles. The bills were mailed out earlier this month.

Residents may pay their bills by mail or in person. The tax collector's office is in the Memorial Building on Park Lane, Rockville.

Egyptian Traveler

Seventh Grader Home After Trip to Egypt

EASLEY, S.C. (UPI) — Sam Brown, 12, is back from six days in Egypt as the VIP guest of President Anwar Sadat. He liked the belly dancer, he said, but not the hot temperatures of the food.

"I'm glad to be home," he said Christmas night. "Maybe I'd like to take another trip, but not too close to this day."

The seventh grader, who was invited to Egypt on an all-expense-paid trip after writing an admiring letter to Sadat, was more concerned for the moment with the two games and a football he received for Christmas.

He was disappointed, however, about not getting a bicycle, said his mother Sybil Brown.

She had to wait five hours at the Greenville-Spartanburg Jetport Christmas Eve because of a three-hour flight delay, but "it was worth it when he came flying into my arms," she said.

He spent the next five hours talking about the trip. "He was all keyed up," she said. "I couldn't get him to bed."

He made it clear what he liked and disliked about the trip. He enjoyed the belly dancer and the "wonderful temples" but complained about the hot climate and the food. He dined on hamburgers, french fries and Coke whenever he could.

In fact, Sam, a chunky boy with blond hair and blue eyes, lost a lot of weight while in Egypt and his mother said he looked much better. She added that he didn't ask for his usual seconds during the family Christmas dinner.

He saw all the major tourist attractions in Cairo, Luxor and Aswan, but his big hope for the trip—a meeting with Sadat—never materialized. Sam had written Sadat, telling him how much he admired the president after he learned about his background on a television show.

The Egyptian government picked up the tab for the trip, and the airlines provided the transportation.

Someone gave the family a Christmas tree and a turkey so they could enjoy a traditional Christmas, Mrs. Brown said.

Sam's father, Donald, has been out of work for 14 months with a back injury, and Mrs. Brown was forced to give up her job because of arthritis, diabetes and high blood pressure. In addition, Sam's 4-year-old sister has been hospitalized twice with pneumonia.

Tax Forms Being Mailed

ANDOVER, Mass. (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service hopes to complete the largest mailing ever in the Northeast of its 1979 tax forms by Jan. 7, with a total of 7.7 million forms going to taxpayers in the seven-state region.

Standard 1040 and 1040A were to be sent to residents of upper New York state and the New England states starting today.

An estimated 5.9 million taxpayers will be filing for refunds totaling $2.9 billion, IRS regional director Joseph H. Cloonan said. He said people who file early will receive their refund checks before May 31, 1980.

Changes in the tax law include a $1,000 deduction for a personal exemption and a dependent, up from $750. Persons over 65 get a double exemption of $2,000. Blind persons are allowed an additional $1,000 exemption.

Hemorrhaged deductions on state gasoline taxes will no longer be allowed and under certain circumstances unemployment compensation will be counted as taxable income.

Hebron PZC To Meet

HEBRON — The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building.

The commission will be asked to approve the acceptance of Gold Road in Gledhill Acres subdivision, sign the Mill Farm Estates plat, review a complaint concerning Nutek/Scribner; and review an inquiry from the town attorney concerning delivery of plans.

People/Food

Good Food for Good Cheer

'Tis the season for holiday entertaining. And what a merry time of year it is! There are many directions party plans can take, but no matter if the festivities are large or small, formal or casual, good friends plus good food always add up to a good time for all.

When the occasion calls for a traditional dinner, make it an elegant affair with a regal Pork Crown Roast. Be it a special gathering of special people or a family feast, all heads will turn toward the magnificent roast as it comes to the table beautifully browned and brimming with a golden stuffing.

The crown is fashioned by the meat retailer by tying together two center pork loins, which have been frenched by cutting away the meat to expose the tips of the rib bones. If desired, a halo of frills can be placed on the rib ends to accentuate the crown effect. Pork's fine flavor is deliciously complemented by Stuffing a la Waldorf. Inspired by famous Waldorf salad, it features Golden Delicious apples from Washington State, chopped and combined with celery and pecans in a light, fluffy dressing. The bits of apple contribute a natural flavor boost while herb-seasoned stuffing mix makes preparation easy.

Gaining popularity on the holiday party scene are informal get-togethers that revolve around the hors d'oeuvre table. While guests enjoy the relaxed mood and tasty tidbits, the hostess appreciates the ease with which she can entertain a crowd. The key to keeping guests coming back for more is an assortment of attractively displayed appetizers contrasting in appearance, texture and flavor. Impressive will be Mini Ham Quiches and Smoked Sausage Roll-Ups, a delectable duo conveniently made with light, crisp prepared frozen puff pastry. The tiny pies are flavorful with ground ham and Swiss cheese while the roll-ups feature smoked sausage links bundled in a golden pastry wrap. Party-perfect, too, are Sauerbraten Apple Sausage Balls, made by combining ground pork sausage and chunks of Golden Delicious apple and served shimmering in a sweet-sour glaze that's spiced with ginger snaps.

Sure to spark conversation are Fancy Franks on Rye. Party rye bread makes an excellent base for a nippy cheese spread and miniature frankfurters cut to form fans. Let guests help themselves to still another attractive appetizer, Pork Apple Kabobs — skewered pork steaks decorated in holiday colors. In pleasing contrast to the hot hors d'oeuvres will be cool and creamy Three-Cheese Spread served in a large Washington Red Delicious apple and accompanied with thin crisp crackers, Snack Sticks and apple wedges.

Pork Crown Roast with Stuffing a la Waldorf

1 1/2 to 2-lb. pork crown roast* (approximately 6 pounds)
1 large Golden Delicious apple, coarsely chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 package (8 ounces) herb-seasoned stuffing mix
1/4 cup chopped pecans
1 to 2 spoons grated orange peel
1 cup water

Place crown roast, rib ends down, on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water and do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F) for 2 hours. Remove from oven. Turn roast so that rib ends are up. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part of roast making certain that it does not rest on fat or on bone. Meanwhile, cook apple, celery and onion in butter 2 to 3 minutes. Stir in herb-seasoned stuffing mix, pecans and grated orange peel; add water and toss lightly to combine. Fill cavity of crown roast with stuffing and continue roasting until meat thermometer registers 165°F. Cover roast with hot water and allow to set at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes. Temperature usually rises to 170°F during this period. Carve between ribs. Yield: 6 cups of stuffing.

*Pork crown roast should be ordered from your retailer in advance.

Microwave Directions for Pork Crown Roast

Place crown roast, rib ends down, on rack in baking dish. Cover with wax paper and cook at medium power (50%) 45 minutes, rotating the dish a half turn during cooking. Turn rib ends up and cook, covered with wax paper, at medium 20 minutes, rotating dish half a turn during cooking. Meanwhile, cook apple, celery and onion in butter 2 to 3 minutes in large frying pan. Stir in stuffing mix, pecans and grated orange peel; add water, tossing lightly to combine. Fill cavity of crown roast with stuffing and continue cooking, covered with wax paper, 20 to 30 minutes or until meat thermometer registers 165°F. Cover roast with hot water and allow to set at room temperature 15 to 20 minutes. Temperature usually rises to 170°F during this period. Carve between ribs.

Note: Stuffing that will not fit in crown can be baked separately.

Smoked Sausage Roll-Ups

1 sheet frozen "Bake It Fresh" puff pastry or 1 package (12 ounces) miniature smoked sausage links
2 packages (5 ounces each) miniature smoked sausage links

Defrost puff pastry 20 minutes, then unfold. Preheat oven to 450°F. Cut pastry sheet into 3 equal strips, cut each strip crosswise into ten 1-inch wide strips. Roll each strip of pastry around a piece of sausage. Place roll-ups on rack in broiler pan, seam side down, in center of oven. Close oven door. Immediately reduce temperature to 100°F and bake 15 to 20 minutes or until pastry is golden brown. Yield: 30 smoked sausage roll-ups.

*Cut each sausage link into 3 pieces.

Mini Ham Quiches

3 sheets frozen "Bake It Fresh" puff pastry
3/4 cup ground cooked smoked ham
1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 tablespoon chopped chives
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon dry sherry

Defrost puff pastry 20 minutes, then unfold. Cut dough with a sharp knife into two-inch squares. Press a piece of dough into each cup of a mini muffin pan, forming a ridge at the top. Combine ham, cheese and chives, tossing lightly to mix. Place 2 teaspoons ham mixture in each pastry-lined cup. Combine egg, milk and dry sherry; brush your cover ham mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375°F) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool slightly; remove from pan. Yield: about 24 miniature quiches.

Fancy Franks on Rye

2 packages (5 ounces each) miniature frankfurters
1/2 cup pimento cheese spread
16 slices Party Rye or Pumpernickel slices
1 cut in half crosswise

With a sharp knife, cut frankfurters almost through into 16 to 18 sections. Spread 1/2 teaspoon of cheese spread on each half slice of bread. Put 1 frankfurter on each half slice of bread, cutting it slightly. Place on rack in broiler pan, 1 inches from heat, and broil 10 to 12 minutes. Yield: 32 appetizers.

Sauerbraten Apple Sausage Balls

3 Golden Delicious apples
1 1/2 pounds fresh pork sausage
1/2 cup herb-seasoned stuffing mix
1/3 cup chopped onion
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup apple juice
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup crushed ginger snaps

Core and grate enough apple to make 1 cup. Add sausage, stuffing mix, onion, egg, dry mustard, salt and pepper; mixing lightly to combine. Chill 30 minutes. Shape into 18 small balls, brown on all sides in large frying pan. Pour off drippings. Combine apple juice, vinegar, sugar and ginger snaps; pour over meatballs. Bring to boil, stirring occasionally; reduce heat, cover tightly and simmer 10 minutes. Core remaining apples and cut into chunks; add to meatballs and continue cooking 3 to 5 minutes, until apples are just tender. Transfer to chafing dish and keep warm. Yield: 48 meatballs.

Three-Cheese Spread in Apple Cup

8 ounces cream cheese
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
4 ounces blue cheese, softened
1 cup shredded onion
1 egg
2 slices bacon, cooked, criss and crumbled
3/4 cup Red Delicious apples
Lemon juice
Cheddar cheese
3/4 cup dry sherry
Dash garlic powder

With electric mixer, beat cheeses, sherry and garlic powder until smooth. Stir in bacon. Remove core from 1 apple, being careful not to cut through blossom end. Cut slice from top and hollow out, leaving a 1/4-inch shell. Scallops top edge. Brush cut surfaces of apple with lemon juice. Fill with portion of cheese mixture; refill as needed. Core remaining apples. Cut in wedges and dip in lemon juice. Serve apple wedges, goldfish crackers and Snack Sticks with cheese spread. Yield: 2-3 cups.

Pork Apple Kabobs

2 pork blade steaks, cut 3/4 inch thick (approximately 2 pounds)
3/4 cup apple juice
1/3 cup catsup
2 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
2 1/2 tablespoons catsup
1 small green pepper, cut into 24 pieces
1 large Red Delicious apple
1 large Red Delicious apple

Partially freeze steaks to firm; remove bones, cut into strips 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick and place in plastic bag or deep bowl. Combine apple juice, 1/3 cup catsup, soy sauce and garlic; pour marinade over pork strips, turning to coat. Tie bag securely or cover bowl; marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours (or overnight). Remove steak strips from marinade, reserving marinade, and thread, weaving back and forth on thin wooden skewers. Combine 2 1/2 tablespoons catsup with 3 tablespoons of reserved marinade. Thread 1 piece of green pepper on tip of each skewer. Place kabobs on rack in broiler pan, 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 15 to 16 minutes, turning and brushing with marinade occasionally. Cut apple into 24 pieces; dip in lemon juice. Place 1 piece of apple on each kabob before serving. Yield: 24 kabobs.

market with $109 worth of groceries for which they paid $1.46. Not once have they or the TV reporters explained exactly how they do it. Do you know how? - Mary M. Glen Mills, Pa. Dear Mary - Many manufacturers offer free packages of their products instead of cash refunds. You can find lots of these offers in my CLIP 'N' FILE Refund Lists. If you send in the required proof of purchase, the manufacturers will send you a coupon that you can redeem at the supermarket for a free product. If you save up enough of these coupons, you can also go on a shopping extravaganza. This is how most of the "coupon queens" do it. How long will it take you to save up enough free-product coupons to buy $109 worth of groceries for $1.46? It may take some time. If you were an experienced refunder who saved $60 a month with refunding, at most half of that amount, or $30, would be received in the form of coupons for free products. The coupon queens have brought some good publicity to couponing and refunding. But unfortunately the television coverage given to their shopping spectacles leaves many people with the false impression that this sort of thing can easily be done every week. They are led to believe that there is some secret about refunding that will allow them to buy $100 worth of groceries each week for just a few dollars. When they find out that isn't possible, they often become disillusioned and go back to the old shopping grind. It has always surprised me that television reporters who go along on these shopping trips either don't realize or ignore the deceptive quality in the shows put on by many coupon queens. I suggest that you forget about these made-for-television shopping spree and concentrate on the basics. If you will be content eventually to save $30 to $50 a week on your total bill for food and household products, then follow this advice: Organize your coupons. Get into refunding. Concentrate on taking advantage of supermarket specials. As you build up your inventory of coupons and proofs of purchase, your savings will grow. Soon you will find at least one discount opportunity for almost every item on your shopping list. You will also be enjoying supermarket shopping in a way that you never did before. You won't get big-time TV coverage by saving this way, but you will feel as good as if you had.

Sofrito Gives Pasta a Spanish Accent

Pasta makes an excellent side dish or light supper when served with homemade fresh tomato sauce and a green salad. A Spanish seasoning sauce called sofrito is a mixture of tomatoes, garlic, onion, parsley and stuffed green olives, all sauteed in olive oil. In Spain the sauce usually tops rice. Sofrito is best when made with fresh tomatoes. When using fresh tomatoes during winter, allow them to ripen at room temperature as much as possible before cooking. Serve with fine egg noodles for a tasty side dish to accompany fish or poultry. Spanish Sofrito and Noodles 8 ounces fine egg noodles (about 4 cups) 1 tablespoon salt 3 quarts boiling water 1 large onion, chopped 1 clove garlic, minced 2 tablespoons olive oil 2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and coarsely chopped 1/2 teaspoon paprika 1/2 cup Spanish stuffed green olives, halved 1/4 cup chopped parsley Gradually add noodles and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Meanwhile, in large skillet, saute onion and garlic in oil until golden. Add tomatoes and paprika. Cook over low heat, stirring often, for 3 minutes. Add olives, parsley and noodles. Cook and stir until hot. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Teach Child Timely Habits

Are your children regularly on time for their appointments? Or are they often late despite constant nagging? Is there never time for them to complete their homework and household chores? Most parents confess that time problems are nearly constant for their youngsters. And these difficulties only increase with additional activities as children grow older. A decision must be made now on how much responsibility you as a parent want to take over such situations and how much will be given your child. As author and management expert Ken Blanchard explains, "Parenting to be effective will necessitate Mother and Father working themselves out of their traditional job and making their children gradually responsible for their own behavior." Nobody wins those power struggles over messy rooms, missed appointments, unfinished homework and so on. Classes, workshops, seminars, books and counseling may provide solutions. (But a back-to-basics approach is easier and quicker. Cooperation and communication are the keys toward opening a new chapter in your relations with your children. Set aside time each week for honest listening and sharing with members of your family. Consider establishing weekly round-table family discussions, inviting everyone a turn at being chairman. When disagreements arise, call a conference session to resolve the problem. Decide fairly how the problem might be resolved. Using the negotiating table will save many hours of futile bickering. Start a suggestion jar into which all family members can place proposals and gripes. And don't put off beginning that large monthly calendar with colored pens used to distinguish at a glance each family member's appointments. Here is a morning-through-evening list of suggestions to help you help your children to make the most of their time: Provide each school-age child with his or her own alarm clock. That makes each youngster responsible for judging the time necessary to complete morning chores and get to school on time. - Store all lunch supplies in one drawer. (Except those that must be refrigerated, of course.) Keep an inventory of lunch items to assure easy preparation of lunches. Plan simple, nourishing breakfasts with emphasis on variety. - If members of your family commute to school or office, have change for bus fare ready in a container near the door. Keep rolls of coins on hand to assure a good supply of change. - Stack books, papers and reports by the front door to avoid those frantic last-minute searches. - Allow children time to unwind and relax after school. - Rotate household chores so that everyone shares equally in the work. - Dinner should be a reflective time for children to discuss the day's events. Avoid all interruptions during that period. - Have children put out their next day's clothing the night before to avoid having to make early-morning decisions. - Help children establish their own systems of clothing maintenance, room cleaning, letter writing and budgeting. Youngsters can take over all of these chores much earlier than most parents expect. Parents, like employers, often ignore good behavior because they expect it. Guard against this tendency, because children need praise and assurance that their achievements are appreciated. The productive habits they learn early will save them considerable time and trouble when they reach adulthood. (Next: Travel)

Zippy Fondue

Mention fondue and we immediately think of dipping chunks of crisp bread into melted cheese or chunks of beef into heated oil. However, one form of fondue is actually a baked casserole. The flavor and texture of this dish vary depending on the cheese you select; in this case, it is made with Cheddar. And mustard provides some added zip. Mustard Bread Fondue 2 tablespoons onion powder 1 teaspoon powdered mustard 8 slices whole-wheat bread, crusts removed 1/2 cup butter or margarine 1/2 pound chunk ham, cut into 1/2-inch chunks (1 1/2 cups) 1 1/2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese 4 eggs 3 cups milk 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper 1/4 teaspoon paprika Mix together onion powder, mustard and water. Let stand 10 minutes for flavor to develop. Butter both sides of bread slices. Cut each slice into quarters. In a 1 1/2-quart casserole, arrange bread, ham and cheese in alternate layers. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in preheated 325-degree oven until puffy and golden, about 1 hour, 20 minutes. Serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 portions.

1980: A Good Year for Pork, Poultry Bargains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American consumers will find pork and poultry the best bargains at the meat counter next year.

Rapid increases in production will make both more plentiful than this year. Agriculture Department economists also predict retail pork prices 7 percent below year earlier levels through June.

Retail poultry prices are expected to remain about the same as this year, although poultry producers will be getting less for their birds. Beef prices are expected to rise 8 percent in 1980, a comparative relief following a 26 percent increase in 1979.

Tight beef supplies, which have caused high prices the past few years, are not expected to increase significantly until 1981.

Overall, government economists predict 1980 food price inflation will be 7 to 11 percent. When pressed for a more specific prediction, they settled on 8 percent.

Agriculture Department economist J.B. Fenn said the 8 percent estimate does not allow for disruptions such as freezes of fruits and vegetables, an unfavorable crop weather next summer or strikes.

Retail food inflation averaged 10 percent in 1978 and is expected to be 11 percent for this year.

With labor costs expected to rise in 1980, costs of restaurant food will rise at a faster rate than food prepared at home, economists said.

Grocery prices are expected to increase 7 percent and food eaten at restaurants, cafeterias and fast-food establishments is expected to cost 10 percent more.

Farmers, who receive about one-third of the consumer's food dollar, have benefited from higher food prices over the past two years, but they are not expected to receive much benefit in 1980. The other two-thirds of the food dollar pays the cost of moving food from farm to check-out counter.

Economists said the farm value of food will rise just 1 percent and have a moderating effect on food price inflation. Costs for transportation, marketing and labor are expected to rise 19 percent.

Labor costs account for 46 percent of marketing expenses, packaging accounts for 12 percent, transportation for 8 percent and corporate profits for about 6 percent.

Consumer spokesman Ellen Haas of the Community Nutrition Institute said, "There is no question but that it simply costs more today to bring lettuce from California to Boston or that keeping a store at 65 degrees Fahrenheit during the summer is getting more expensive."

But, she said, profits of food retailers and processors have been too high, a charge the food industry loudly disputes.

Government economists said food industry profits are expected to decline in 1980.

Retail dairy prices are expected to rise 9 percent, about the same level as government price supports for dairy producers. Egg prices will rise and egg prices will fall, economists predicted.

Economists said marketing costs will push up prices for cereals, bakery products and processed fruits and vegetables by more than 8 percent.

Costs of fresh fruit and vegetables are harder to predict because they are vulnerable to freezes. Vegetable supplies are dependent on prices at the time farmers plant.

Expectations of a record orange crop may moderate citrus prices.

An upswing in coffee prices is expected in the first part of the year. Prospects for the entire year are dependent on whether there is frost damage in Brazil or other tropical coffee producing nations.

Easy Open Rolls

If you have opened a can of refrigerated biscuits with a spoon or with a crack on the edge of the counter and have thought there must be an easier way, there is. Refrigerated country style and butter-milk biscuits in "easy-open" cans that are opened by simply peeling off the label are now in supermarkets in this area.

Although the idea sounds simple, the technology that made this packaging innovation possible was complex. It took several years of laboratory work by packaging scientists and engineers to develop the process. Then months of testing in supermarkets followed to make sure these easy-open cans performed well in the marketplace and that consumers really preferred the new method.

Only Pillsbury and Ballard products packed in two-inch diameter cans will have the new easy-open method at first. Because this new packaging design also requires major changes in can manufacturing lines.

Since the country style and butter-milk biscuits will be the first products available in the new easy-open cans, you might want to try them in new ways. Easy Seasoned Dinner Puffs quickly turns a can of biscuits into a savory break-apart loaf that will add substance and good eating to a light supper or make a delightful addition to an informal company meal.

Another new way to use the biscuits is to use them as an expensive and readily-available replacement for corn tortillas when you are hungry for Mexican food. Cheese and Chicken Enchiladas is a good way to turn a small amount of left-over chicken into a hearty main dish.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 can (10 biscuits) refrigerated butter-milk biscuits

Melt butter in saucepan over medium heat. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk. Cook until mixture boils and thickens, stirring constantly. Add 1/2 cup of the Monterey Jack cheese and 1/4 cup of the Cheddar cheese; stir until melted. Remove from heat. Reserve 1/2 cup sauce for topping. Heat oven to 375°F. To remaining sauce, add chicken, olives and onion. Separate dough into 10 biscuits. Flatten each to a 4-inch circle. Spoon about 2 tablespoons of chicken mixture down center of each biscuit. Roll, up and arrange seam-side-down and sides touching in ungreased 12x8-inch baking dish or 2 1/2 quart shallow casserole. Bake at 375°F for 19 to 21 minutes, or until golden brown. Spoon on remaining sauce and sprinkle with reserved cheeses. Return to oven for 3 to 4 minutes, or until cheese melts. Serve immediately. Serves 6.

Keep Garlic Fresh

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — Fresh garlic keeps for a long time in a cool, dry place - but if a whole bulb is too much for your household, there are ways of keeping the leftovers without spoilage. Drop peeled cloves of garlic into a small jar of olive oil or vegetable oil, and store it at room temperature. Both the garlic and the flavored oil can be used for salads or in cooking.

Aid Overweight Teen

It's tough to be an overweight teen-ager. Dieting can set him or her apart. Yet much of this tension can be relieved by eating a modified diet with the family.

Child psychologists and diet therapists stress the importance of the family meal to overweight youngsters. Those meals must be nutritious, balanced, enjoyable and in keeping with the calorie needs of the most active and rapidly growing members of the family.

When a child grows up in an environment of nutritional good sense, proper eating habits can become a form of enjoyment rather than a resented discipline. Under these favorable circumstances, a child ultimately can learn by imitation the habit of achieving and maintaining a proper weight.

He or she will do so without loss of emotional stability through deep-seated resentment of parental threats, mockery and deprivation. Following are examples of how family meals can be adapted to the calorie and nutrition needs of the teen dieter. He or she can enjoy enough of the family meal to feel a sense of belonging rather than being set apart.

The menus are part of a series prepared by the nutrition department of Harvard University.

Day One
Dinner for the family: Baked meat loaf, tomato sauce, string beans with mushrooms, french-fried potatoes, caraway-seed rolls, butter, lemon chiffon pie, coffee, milk.

Day Two
Dinner for the family: Cranberry cocktail, baked chicken Parmesan, parsley potatoes, green peas and diced carrots, corn muffins, butter, grape-nut pudding with cream, coffee, milk.

Day Three
Dinner for the family: Broiled halibut steak, lemon butter, potato croquettes, harvard beans, jellied cabbage salad, mayonnaise, poppy-seed rolls, butter, maple-walnut layer cake, coffee, milk.

Day Four
Dinner for the family: Baked meat loaf, tomato sauce, string beans with mushrooms, french-fried potatoes, caraway-seed rolls, butter, lemon chiffon pie, coffee, milk.

Day Five
Dinner for the family: Baked chicken Parmesan, parsley potatoes, green peas and diced carrots, corn muffins, butter, grape-nut pudding with cream, coffee, milk.

Day Six
Dinner for the family: Baked chicken Parmesan, parsley potatoes, green peas and diced carrots, corn muffins, butter, grape-nut pudding with cream, coffee, milk.

Day Seven
Dinner for the family: Baked chicken Parmesan, parsley potatoes, green peas and diced carrots, corn muffins, butter, grape-nut pudding with cream, coffee, milk.

Future Foods Showcased At Educational Expo

A taste of tomorrow's food can be had at a vast new exposition area in Orlando, Fla., to open in October of 1982. The planned Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow at Walt Disney World will contain a working "farm of the future," where actual food crops will be grown using advanced scientific techniques.

Visitors to the Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow (EPCOT) will tour a Land Pavilion, sponsored by Kraft, Inc., where the prototype "farm of tomorrow" will be on view. Here, futuristic controlled-environment agricultural techniques will be used to produce crops. Tomato plants will grow suspended in the air with roots exposed and Bibb lettuce plants will grow in Styrofoam flats floating in tanks of water. The light spectrum will be separated to enhance growth of some experimental crops.

These promising techniques have been researched at the Environmental Research Laboratory of Arizona, located near Tucson. The laboratory has been engaged in research systems for food production in non-productive environments since the early 1960s. Carl Hodges, director of the laboratory, is a consultant to Walt Disney World on the EPCOT project.

Kraft's futuristic Land Pavilion is one of several experimental crop exhibits at EPCOT examining the fields of Transportation, the Seas, Life and Health, Space, and Energy as they relate to the community of tomorrow. Dorothy Holland, vice president for Consumer Affairs for Kraft, Inc., comments that the Land Pavilion is "one of the most exciting projects in our long history. The Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow has been conceived as a vast showplace for potential technological concept for the future. In the Land Pavilion we will examine man's harmonious relationship with his environment, specifically focusing on innovative food production methods, wise harvesting of the land, nutrition, and products for today and for the future."

Employment of these revolutionary food production techniques on a commercial scale remains in the future, although a few of the high value crops are being successfully marketed. Other food production possibilities include the cultivation of halophytes, protein-rich plants that thrive on seawater; aquaculture, the "farming" of shrimp and other types of seafood in controlled environments; and the growing of produce in mist culture.

Shifting the focus from the futuristic vegetables of tomorrow to the easily available fresh produce of today, the Kraft Kitchens have created some menu concepts that showcase vegetables in quick-to-prepare dishes. One Mediterranean influenced idea is an updated version of shish kabobs, served over pasta instead of rice, frequently with marinade and turning occasionally.

Prepare spaghetti as directed on package. Add the grated parmesan cheese, toss lightly. Serve with kabobs, 6 servings. Mosaic Salad
1 qt. torn spinach
1 cup shredded red cabbage
1 1/2-oz. jar Kraft pure chilled unsweetened grapefruit sections
2 hard-cooked eggs,
quartered
1/4 cup alfalfa sprouts
1/4 cup blue cheese dressing
Layer spinach, cabbage, grapefruit and eggs in shallow salad bowl. Sprinkle with alfalfa sprouts; serve with dressing 6 servings.

To save on last-minute preparation, thread the green pepper cubes, onion halves, and marinated skewers ahead of time, then broil later as the spaghetti cooks. The Kraft Kitchens suggest serving this dish with a colorful Mosaic Salad layered with spinach, red cabbage, grapefruit sections and hard-cooked egg slices; and dressed with Kraft chunky blue cheese dressing.

Mediterranean Shish Kabobs
1 pkg. Kraft tangy Italian style spaghetti dinner
1/4 cup Kraft red wine vinegar and oil dressing
1/4 cup water
1 lb. round steak, 1/4 inch thick, cut into strips
1 large green pepper, cut into squares
6 small onions, cut in half
1/2 cup cherry tomatoes
Combine the herb-spice mix, dressing and water; pour over meat. Cover; marinate in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Drain, reserving marinade. Arrange meat and vegetables on skewers; place on greased grill. Broil or grill to desired doneness, brushing frequently with marinade and turning occasionally. Prepare spaghetti as directed on package. Add the grated parmesan cheese, toss lightly. Serve with kabobs, 6 servings.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers who complain packaging runs up the cost of food are right about some products. The Food Market Institute, a Washington based trade association, says the cost of making a bottle of calcium supplement is 49 cents in 1975; the ingredients accounted for 7.04 cents, while the packaging cost 42 cents. The figures are from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. FMI says packaging industry sources add that costs as a percentage of the food dollar are about the same now as they were 20 years ago, despite new designs and convenience factors.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wallet-sized, updated vintage guide to Italian wines is being distributed free by the Italian Wine Promotion Center. It covers the 1961 to 1977 vintages of 28 varieties, lists wines by type and indicates which wines would benefit from aging and which are at their best drinking stage now. To obtain a copy of the guide, write: Italian Wine Promotion Center, One World Trade Center, Suite 2067, New York, N.Y. 10048.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An international authority on standards for helmets and face guards in sports will be the speaker at the next in a series of sports medicine seminars Jan. 17 at the University of Connecticut Health Center here.

Earl Franklin Hoerner, M.D., head of sports medicine at Tufts University, will be speaking on "Head and Face Injuries in Athletes." Also speaking will be Cosmo Castaldi, D.D.S., head of pediatric dentistry at the UConn School of Dental Medicine. He will discuss injuries to the mouth and teeth.

The sports medicine seminars are sponsored by the orthopedics division of the UConn School of Medicine's surgery department. They are open without charge to physicians, trainers, coaches, physical therapists and others interested in the subject.

Each seminar is one hour long and takes place at 5 p.m. in the Health Center's Link Room, following a Thursday sports injuries and knee clinic. Future topics will include ankle injuries in athletes, on March 20, and factors limiting performance, on May 15.

Pittsburgh Kicker Excels

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Pittsburgh place-kicker Mark Schubert made sure he didn't get sick in the Christmas Day Fiesta Bowl, but he certainly made some Arizona Wildcats ill.

After the Panther senior booted three field goals in the Wildcats' 16-10 victory over the Wildcats, Schubert explained he was extra cautious before the contest so he wouldn't get sick.

"Some of the players had gotten the bug and were experiencing some nausea," Schubert said as he told why he did not eat a pre-game meal. The tactic worked as Schubert was a perfect 3-for-3 in field goal attempts as the 10th-ranked Panthers ended 1979 with an 11-1 mark.

Schubert, named the game's outstanding offensive player, hit a pair of field goals from 46 yards and another from 10 yards closer.

It was fitting that a place kicker won the offensive honor in a game that lacked offensive excitement.

Both quarterbacks, freshman Dan Marino of Pittsburgh and senior Jim Krohn of Arizona, hit only half of their passes. The contest was a battle of field goals until the final seconds of the third period when Marino, with his sharpest passing of the day; threw three straight completions for 70 yards. The last one went 12 yards to Benjie Fryor for a touchdown.

The TD put the Panthers ahead, 13-1, and actually settled the outcome, but it was the first of the three passes Pittsburgh Coach Jackie Sherrill felt was the turning point.

On that play, Pitt was on its own 30-yard line with second and 30 after a quarterback sack and a holding penalty. Marino hit Mike Dombrowski on a 34-yard pass and completed a 24-yard aerial to Ralph Sill to set up the touchdown.

Authority To Speak On Sports

FARMINGTON — An international authority on standards for helmets and face guards in sports will be the speaker at the next in a series of sports medicine seminars Jan. 17 at the University of Connecticut Health Center here.

Blaine Stoughton, leading scorer with the Hartford Whalers this season, leans against boards during lull in action at Springfield. Stoughton has tallied 21 goals, three more than his season output in 1978-79. Tonight the Whalers entertain the record-setting Philadelphia Flyers. (Photo by Dave Roback)

Patriots Big Help To Clubs

The New England Patriots may not have had a successful season but they made the Boys' Clubs of Boston $50,300 richer.

In 16 season and 4 pre-season games, the Patriots scored a total of 503 points against opponents. This means $50,300 for the Boys' Clubs. For every point scored by the Patriots in pre-season and regular season games, Frito-Lay, Inc., makes a $10 donation to the Boys' Clubs of Boston. This is the fourth year that Frito-Lay has teamed with the Patriots in this worthy community project.

Last year the Boys' Clubs received the tidy sum of $45,200 for all the points scored by the Patriots during the 1978 season, according to Michael Grenert, Frito-Lay Division Sales Manager.

While the thousands of Patriots fans may be disappointed, there are more than 5,000 youngsters from Burlington, Chatham, South East, Roxbury and South Boston who are a lot happier.

Veteran Returns
TORONTO (UPI) — Coach Floyd Smith said he will decide today whether to put Carl Brewer back in the Toronto Maple Leafs' lineup.

He also coached baseball and headed the physical education department. The Clarke Arena was named in his honor. Greer, who attained greater success as basketball coach at the University of Connecticut, was a successful soccer coach at Manchester High before going to Ellsworth north South Windsor High.

It was also during his stay in Manchester that he coached the Rangers' basketball team, a group of young men who dominated the area scene.

Hoped Scouts Took Notice

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Syracuse quarterback Bill Hurley, noted the most valuable player for the victorious North squad in the Blue-Gray Classic, hopes pro football scouts took note of his performance.

Hurley hit 12 of 15 passes for 128 yards and one touchdown and ran for another score Tuesday to lead the North to a 22-13 victory in the 42nd annual nationally televised College All-Star game.

"I was just excited to have been here and played so well," he said. "I don't know what they (pro scouts) have in store for me. I don't know if I can play quarterback, but I think I could play defensive back." The 190-pounder said.

Hurley, a sprinter quarterback in college, moved the North team into a lead it did not relinquish when he rolled around left end for a touchdown in the first end.

The Blues took a 14-0 lead in the second quarter when Hurley connected with Oregon State wide receiver Steve Coury on a 5-yard scoring pass. Coury, described by Hurley as a "tremendous football player," caught passes of 12 and 15 yards to keep the drive alive.

Doubleheader

The New England Basketball Association will present a doubleheader Sunday night at East Hartford High when the Portland Airex (1-3), led by 6-8 Jeff Carr, former UConn star leading the league with a 30.3 average, will oppose the Hartford Oilers (0-1) with ex-Eastern League cagers Eddie Griffin and Billy Jones in the first game at 6:15.

The East Hartford Explorers (2-1), with Jerry Fort, the league's second top scorer (25.1), will play Hartford Generals (2-1) in the nightcap at 8:15. The Generals are led by Dwight Tolliver and Bill Tisdale.

Between games, Bill Hutt, former East Hartford athlete in the late 30s and early 40s, will be honored with presentation of the Doves-Explorers annual Sports Award.

Meet Reset
Date of the annual Manchester High-Alumni boys' swimming meet has been changed from Saturday at noon to Friday at noon at the school pool.

Coach Ron Anderson reported change was made because the heat at the school will be turned off after Friday.

Coaches Supported For Hall of Fame

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor
List of nominees for consideration to the proposed Manchester Sports Hall of Fame increased over the holiday with the addition of the following names —

Meredith "Moe" Morhardt, Katie Tucker, Elizabeth Waskielwicz Humphrey, Frank "Snitz" Mordavsky, Tom Kelley, Will Clarke, Hugh Greer and Ron "Red" Smith.

Morhardt, current highly successful baseball coach at Gilbert High in Winsted, is a former three-sport standout at Manchester High — baseball, soccer and basketball.

Greer, who attained greater success as basketball coach at the University of Connecticut, was a successful soccer coach at Manchester High before going to Ellsworth north South Windsor High.

It was also during his stay in Manchester that he coached the Rangers' basketball team, a group of young men who dominated the area scene.

Looking Back One Decade

NEW YORK (UPI) — So many historic events have taken place during the past decade that any attempt to record them all is sure to result in glossing over some.

That's bound to be the case with the list to follow.

Starting with 1970, a couple of events of that year still remain sharply etched in my memory. The first one was Bowie Kuhn's suspension of bad boy Benny McLean, and the second Muhammad Ali return to the ring after being barred nearly four years because he had fought against those Viet Cong. All came back by stopping Jerry Quarry.

The following year, 1971, pretty much belonged to Roberto Clemente, who all but annihilated the Baltimore Orioles in the World Series by helping the Pittsburgh Pirates beat them with his .414 batting average. That was the same year Jim O'Brien brought the Baltimore Colts a 16-13 victory over the Dallas Cowboys in Super Bowl V with his dramatic 32-yard field goal in the last five seconds.

It was in 1972 that the first one to sweep the Triple Crown in a quarter century. Later in the year, Dick Williams won release from his contract with Oakland although Charlie Finley added the stipulation he couldn't sign another one to manage the Yankees.

Aaron's Feet

Jack Aaron will never forget 1974, the year he broke Babe Ruth's record by hitting his 715th home run off Al Downing of the Dodgers in Atlanta. All of the years in this past decade I'd have to pick 1975 as the vintage one.

Especially recall the grace with which Al Reoney, the popular owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, accepted the trophy marking his team's first world championship in its history after the Steelers' mailed the Minnesota Vikings, 16-6 in Super Bowl IX at New Orleans. That was the same year Al gave one of the greatest performances in his career by stopping Joe Frazier in the "Thrilla in Manila." And who can

Top AFC Player

Fouts, who broke an NFL single-season passing record this year in leading the Chargers to their first playoff berth since 1966, Tuesday narrowly edged Houston's Earl Campbell by one vote for the honor.

Fouts, whose 4,082 yards passing broke Joe Namath's single-season record of 4,007, was named on 36 ballots cast by UPI's panel of 56 pro football writers — four from each AFC city. Campbell, the NFL rushing leader who helped Houston to the playoffs for the second straight season, received 25 votes.

Campbell was the NFL rushing leader with 1,897 yards and his 19 TDs rushing tied an NFL record set by Green Bay's Jim Taylor.

Fouts will be at quarterback Saturday when the Chargers play host to Cleveland at Super Bowl berth.

"This is by far the most fun I've ever had playing football," said Fouts, 28, a seven-year veteran. "It's because of the way we're playing, the guys on the team and the coaching staff. We're all so very together."

Fouts had two great receivers, John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner, catching his passes this season. Joiner caught 72 passes for 1,008 yards and Jefferson, hurt at the end of the year, caught 61 for 1,090.

"J.J. (Jefferson) is the finest receiver I've ever thrown to," said Fouts. "As for Charlie, he probably has the finest knack for getting open I've ever seen. It's almost like he has a built-in sonar or something."

There are no ego problems on the team. And I think that is the trademark of all good teams in all sports."

Top East Fives on Display

NEW YORK (UPI) — Resurgent Eastern basketball will have four of its top teams on display beginning Wednesday in the 28th annual Eastern College Athletic Conference Holiday Festival.

St. John's will meet Lafayette and Georgetown will face Boston College.

Georgetown, which defeated Holy Cross and Alabama to win the 1977 Holiday Festival, this year has beaten Maryland, Providence, Loyola (Calif.) and Houston en route to a 7-1 mark. Its only loss came against Indiana.

The Hoyas are led by 6-foot-7 Craig Steltzer, career 11th best shooter in the nation at 72 percent with an 18.7 average. Teammate John Duren, the 1977 Festival's MVP, is returning with an 11.5 average.

Boston College, 5-1, lost to Georgetown late last season but in its biggest game this year came within two seconds of upsetting top-ranked Duke in the Industrial Classic in Providence, R.I.

St. John's, three-time winner of the Festival and third-place finisher behind Rutgers last year, has lost once this season. Coached by Lou Carnesecca, St. John's has beaten against Indiana.

Lafayette, undefeated at 4-0, will be making its first Holiday Festival appearance and the Leopards are topped Rutgers while losing only to Tennessee.

The final for the tournament is Friday night.

In another tournament involving top teams, Oregon State takes on Idaho. Brigham Young meets Penn State in the second game.

On Thursday, Oregon plays North Carolina-Charlotte and Clemson versus Texas Tech.

In other tournaments, Florida, Iowa State, Jacksonville and William & Mary will play in the Gator Bowl Tournament in Jacksonville, Fla., and Louisiana Tech, North Texas State, Oklahoma, Oklahoma City, St. Francis (N.Y.), San Jose State, Western Michigan and Wyoming are at the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Eastern Michigan and Loyola and Louisiana State remain sixth with wins over Arkansas and Tulane. Ohio State dropped five places in the ratings to No. 7 because of its 75-65 loss to Louisville and Indiana fell four spots to the eighth position after a four-point loss to the Tar Heels. Purdue fell two positions to ninth with its loss to the Wildcats and Iowa, which will be forced to go without star guard Ronnie Lester for the next two weeks, jumped into the No. 10 spot after victories over Mississippi State and Dayton.

Coaches, Player Reps Tab Earl Campbell No. 1

Despite the pounding Campbell takes game after game, he has been amazingly durable. He finished the regular 1979 campaign with the amazing feat of gaining more than 100 yards in each of the final seven games — an NFL record.

With all the acclaim and increased public exposure, Campbell is still a quiet, unassuming person. And a grateful one.

Last year, in appreciation for his blocking, he took Houston's offensive line to dinner. Fortunately, an admirer saw the brazen party, and, without identifying himself, picked up the check.

Feeling magnanimous, Earl decided a few weeks ago to do it again, this time expanding the receiver Mike Kentro one day.

"Earl, everybody's going to dinner," complained receiver Mike Kentro one day.

"Why not?"

"I'm pulled by one block for me all year, you can come, too," said Earl, who can display a dry sense of humor.

So this whole offensive unit, led by Earl, showed up at Angelo's Faberman's Ward and chomped through dinner.

But more important than statistics is the fact that while Campbell has been with the Houston Oilers, he has loved the game and has been loved in return. He has been the NFL player's player.

In those two years, he has been the dominant individual in the league. He has led the NFL in rushing both years — in 1978 with 1,847 yards and in 1979 with 1,897 yards.

Earl Campbell has become a force unto himself, the most devastating runner in the game since the great Jim Brown. And the only one close to him for a combination of strength, quickness and balance.

He stepped on one too many toes with the Bruins and he was released. It wasn't long before something else popped up. There was a challenge to undertake in Denver, and there fans wanted he'd be a nudist colony wants a tailor shop. A puzzling and collective disaster in people in a sports-oriented town intrigued Cherry, who liked the idea of trying to rebuild the Rockies.

"The hardest part of this job is adjusting to all the mistakes," says Cherry, who has the Rockies off to their best start in history. "But I came here for the challenge so I basically knew what to expect. Only this was a bit more of a challenge than I thought."

Coping with a lack of exposure and a team that needs time to prosper has taken its toll on Cherry after two months on the job. He's still among the most colorful figures in the league but he looks tired, like a man who has had trouble sleeping nights.

"For the first six weeks here, I hardly slept a wink," says Cherry. "A lot of people who mean well tried to suggest ways of dealing with the frustration, but I found the best way of all — I drink a lot."

Seriously, though, we're making progress and I think we have a chance to make the playoffs this year. All we need is some scorers ... and a few defensemen ... and about five more real good players. Once we take care of those minor details, we'll talk about Stanley Cups."

In five seasons with the Bruins, Cherry posted an impressive 231-106-6 record and helped Boston to four Adams Division titles and two unsuccessful trips to the Stanley Cup Finals. His talents were fully recognized when he was voted the Jack Adams Award as Coach of the Year in 1975-76.

Major Bowl Football Games

Alabama and USC Hoopie's Winners

By Major Amos B. Hoopie
Father of the Bowl

Egal, friends, the matchups in the eight major 1979-80 college football bowls over the long holiday weekend are as interesting as any you've ever seen in your lifetime.

The first eight teams in the Top 10 ratings will be in action. And three of them — Ohio State, Alabama and Florida State — have perfect 11-0-0 records.

A fourth, Southern California, finished undefeated but suffered one tie, for a 10-0-1 mark. The other four — Oklahoma, Arkansas, Nebraska and Houston — racked up impressive 10-1 records.

The participants in the final four games on New Year's Day compiled an astronomical 83-4-1 (94 percent) Amazing Index!

Here is how the Hoopie System — half-kick — calls these outstanding games:

Friday, Dec. 28
GATOR

NORTH CAROLINA 21

The Wolverines (8-3) boast a strong defense which has limited opponents to 99.3 yards per game and an average of just 12.2 points. On offense the Wolves count on the hard-running of Dutch Wolford and the spectacular acts of exciting wide receiver Anthony Carter.

Considering that defense-offense combination, the North Carolina Tar Heels (5-5-1) have free-wheeling 100 yards-per-game Amos Lawrence.

But, dear reader, your correspondent would't be surprised if Johnny Hayes' punting duel from Nebraska's Jarvis Redwine.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Accuses Doctor Of Galpractice

DEAR ABBY: My boss has a problem that is affecting me. He is a womanizer. He is married for the second time and is unreliable to his wife. He is involved on his wife's having a child to keep her home. She was a nurse, and loved her work. He is a doctor.

DEAR ABBY: I think it would be better for all concerned if you quit your job. You know too much about your boss's private life to maintain a proper business relationship with him.

DEAR ABBY: I've got a problem I have tried several times to solve. I am a 23 year old man who is not a very good looking man. I have a very good job. I have a very good income. I have a very good car. I have a very good house.

DEAR ABBY: I have a "stappy" answer for the woman who husband looks so much younger than she. I am an older 37 and holding woman who is fortunate enough to be loved by a younger man 28.

partners hold both king and jack of spades. you will collect five quick side tricks. Not that this is likely, but it is possible if South has a fancy 15-point contract.

Then Victor goes on to explain that there is a far more important principle of defense play involved here, which is that if you can defeat a contract you should go ahead and defeat it.

Just look at the hearts. You hold king-queen-jack-tens and there is the 10 spot in dummy. Declarer is surely going to have to take a club finesse you are going to score your king and be on lead.

There is a lot of bridge literature on what are known as single-suit plays - plays that involve the proper handling of one suit and just that one suit. Victor Mollo points out that the normal way to handle the spades in today's hand is to cover North's seven with your eight. If by some chance your
