

Waldheim Concludes Iran Talks

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim today conferred with Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh in an attempt to break the stalemate over the seizure of American hostages by Moslem militants.

Soviets Battling Afghans

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (UPI) — Soviet-installed Afghan strongman Babrak Karmal warned today he would ask for more military aid from Russia to supplement the estimated 50,000 Soviet troops in the isolated nation and vowed to fight all opposition, Radio Kabul said.

There were reports; unconfirmed but well credited in New Delhi and Peshawar, that Soviet soldiers battled Afghan opposition forces 60 miles from the Pakistani border.

The reports said the Soviets have secured the Afghan capital of Kabul and have moved out to secure the central Asian country's only major road network.

The reports also said the Soviet troops mortared and bombed major telegraphic switchboards and government telecommunications installations, cutting off most communications within Afghanistan.

Diplomats in New Delhi said rebel tribesmen have joined forces with Afghan soldiers, their former foes, to battle the Soviet invasion force in Afghanistan.

Asian diplomats in the Indian capital also said the Soviets have poured 50,000 troops into Afghanistan, beginning with a massive airlift over Christmas that helped install Karmal as leader and oust Hafizullah Amin, who was killed either during the coup or executed afterward.

American diplomatic sources estimated the number of Soviet troops in Afghanistan at the slightly lower figure of 45,000 with about the same number massed on the Soviet side of the border with strategic Afghanistan, which borders Russia, China, Iran and Pakistan.

In the Afghan capital of Kabul, Karmal was quoted on the official Kabul Radio as saying he would request even more defense aid from Moscow and other Soviet-bloc countries until opposition to his rule dies down in the Central Asian nation.

"We announce to the world that as long as the enemies of Afghanistan do not refrain from interfering with our sovereign territory, we, on the basis of the wishes of the people of Afghanistan and for the sake of the defense of our country, shall ask for further assistance from the U.S.S.R. and other peace-loving countries," the radio quoted Karmal.

"We shall ask for help from ... Vietnam, Cuba, Angola, the Palestinian Arab people and others," said Karmal, who reportedly was not even in the nation when last week's coup erupted.

"We shall not back down."

reporter who was present when the two emerged from the talks overheard Ghotbzadeh telling Waldheim, "Your ideas may have helped."

Waldheim's spokesman told reporters the talks "lasted about as long as we expected."

Although the state radio and television reported Waldheim's visit without any critical comments, Revolutionary Council First Secretary Mohammad Beheshti told reporters he thought the U.N. chief's mission would result in "a right solution for the crisis."

"If the purpose of his (Waldheim's) visit is fact-finding, his visit will be successful because he will find the facts here," Beheshti, a key aide of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, said.

At the U.S. Embassy, Moslem militants holding 50 other Americans hostage since Nov. 4 vowed not to have anything to do with the U.N. chief. "We won't let him in even if he wants to," said a spokeswoman.

On Tuesday, thousands of Afghan exiles shouting "Death to Brezhnev" stormed the Soviet Embassy, ripped down the hammer-and-sickle flag, and burned the banner to protest Russia's intervention in Moslem Afghanistan.

Iranians, who have shouted "Death to Carter" for two months outside the U.S. Embassy, joined the Afghan exiles to denounce Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev for Moscow's biggest foreign intervention since the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Waldheim exuded confidence before departing for Iran, saying he wanted to meet with Islamic strongman Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini — probably the one man in Iran who can set the hostages free.

But Waldheim's opening schedule included a planned meeting with Ghotbzadeh, and a visit to a home for what Iranian officials said were victims of atrocities during the rule of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

First Baby of 1980 Is Boy

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The first baby of the new decade born at Manchester Memorial Hospital is a boy. Benjamin James Decker is eight pounds, six ounces, and 21 inches.

That big boy is the third child of James and Karen Decker, 50 Buff Cap Road, Tolland. Benjamin comes into the world with a 5-year-old big sister, Julie, and a 2-year-old big brother, Blake, to help take care of him.

Mrs. Decker has been a special education teacher at Manchester High School for the past four years. Mr. Decker shares the presidency of the Decker, Guertin & Cheyne advertising company, located at 114

Brooklyn St., Vernon. Other companies will be sharing Benjamin's birthday celebration. The Savings Bank of Manchester is giving $10 for each pound the baby weighs. The money will be deposited in a savings account for him.

Benjamin will be well-fed, as Highland Park Market is giving him a case of Enfamil baby formula and the Northway Pharmacy is giving a case of baby formula, parent's choice. In addition, Flo's Cake will bake a cake for Benjamin's first birthday.

An engraved pewter baby cup from Shoor Jewelers awaits Benjamin, and Prague's Shoes will provide a pair of StrideRite Firsties. Marlow's will give a $5 gift certificate for the new arrival.

But Manchester's merchants haven't forgotten the proud parents, as Brown's Flowers will give Mrs. Decker a floral arrangement and Flower Fashion will present Mrs. Decker with a dozen long stemmed roses. Regal's will outfit the Very Important Parent with a $5 gift certificate.

For those with "morning-after" revulsion, television commentators in Chicago offered advice on a cure for a hangover. Actually, experts said, there is none. But there are a few ways to make it livable — including aspirin, plenty of sleep or, for the stout-hearted, a variety of folk cures such as the Bismarck herring and cold beer treatment recommended in Germany.

And for the armchair addicts, the results left the universities of Alabama and Southern California in dispute as to who should be chosen the national championship by a panel of coaches that vote in the UPI poll.

Undeclared, untied Alabama soundly defeated seventh-ranked Arkansas, 24-9, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans while unbeaten but once-tied Southern Cal rallied to edge undefeated Ohio State, 17-16, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.

Once-beaten Oklahoma knocked off previously undefeated Florida State, 24-7, in the Orange Bowl in Miami and once-beaten Houston upended once-beaten Nebraska, 17-14, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

Mighty Quake Hits Azores

PONTA DELGADA, Azores (UPI) — A mighty earthquake registering 8.0 on the Richter scale rumbled across the Azores island chain, killing more than 50 people, injuring nearly 400 others and leaving thousands homeless.

The quake struck the nine-island chain, site of the U.S. Lajes air force base, on Tuesday, destroying 60 percent of the villages on the islands of Terceira, Sao Jorge and Graciosa, first reports said.

U.S. military officials said the base on Terceira, 1,000 miles west of the mainland, suffered only "minor damage" and that the 3,700 Americans and dependents at the U.S. base escaped with only "minor cuts and bruises."

But they reported 52 Portuguese dead and up to 400 injured. The Azores regional government, however, reported 29 confirmed deaths with young children accounting for a large part of the casualties.

President Antonio Ramalho Eanes arrived at Lajes base today to oversee rescue operations and send planes and helicopters ferrying medical supplies, cots, blankets and tents to the stricken areas.

American medical teams from the base rushed to hospitals to aid in caring for the victims.

Before leaving Lisbon, Eanes decreed a three-day period of national mourning.

Residents in the city of Angra do Heroismo on Terceira, north of Ponta Delgada on unscathed Sao Miguel island, said their formerly whitewashed port looked like "the desolate scene after a massive bombardment."

The quake struck the Portuguese-owned Atlantic archipelago, site of the U.S. Lajes Air Force Base, at 3:42 p.m. (11:42 a.m. EST) Tuesday, cutting off almost all communication with Lisbon, which is 1,000 miles to the east.

The Portuguese national news agency ANOP reported that it was the strongest tremor to strike the Azores in 20 years. The quake's epicenter was 72 miles northwest of Terceira, seismologists said.

In Washington, Air Force spokesman Lt. Col. Peter Alexander said there were no fatalities among American servicemen at the island base.

Town Planner Becomes 30-Minute Millionaire

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — For 30 minutes last Friday, Alan Lamson was a millionaire.

Lamson, director of planning, drove to Hartford and returned with $2 million literally in his pocket.

"I really didn't feel anything while it was in my pocket," Lamson said. "I was just glad to have the check."

Perhaps the excitement was reduced because Lamson's name was not on the check. The money is a progress payment to the Town of Manchester from the state Department of Economic Development.

Lamson picked up the check, because it was faster than using the regular procedure. The money was needed quickly to pay Buckland Industrial Park bills during the first of the year.

Usually the payments are mailed. "I'd rather have it go through the mail," Lamson said.

As a precaution Lamson took another person with him to get the check. "Any precautions are not unwarranted when you have $2 million in your pocket," he said.

But Lamson doubts whether the check would be useful to anyone else besides the town treasurer, who he gave it to.

"I doubt if a bank would honor a $2 million check made out to Manchester," he said. "It would look rather strange to walk in and ask to cash it. I wonder if banks have $2 million on hand."

This is not the first time Lamson has been a "millionaire for a short time. He once had $3 million. This was the payment of J.C. Penney for Industrial Park land.

"It isn't usual for me to pick up checks, but when we need the money I do," he said.

About 20 percent of the $2 million will be used for bills. The rest will be invested by the town treasurer until it's needed.

The state pays half the cost of developing Buckland Park. It's share amounts to about $5 million.

And Lamson hopes the other payments are mailed. "It makes me slightly nervous," he mentioned last Friday before receiving the check.

New Year's

Revelers Become Vandals

By United Press International
New Year's revelers turned vandals in two of the nation's larger turn-of-decade celebrations and one of the '80s' first babies had hospital nurses to thank for not being born in the '70s.

Fighting, looting and arson broke out in downtown Reno, Nev., at the stroke of midnight. It took an army of police to restore order. More than 100 people ended up in jail and property damage was heavy.

Police said there would have been a lot more damage — and probably more injuries — if revelers had liquor glasses to hurl at police and stores in the downtown section. After a similar riot in 1961, the downtown casinos began issuing plastic drinking glasses to their patrons.

In Chicago, upward of 100,000 revelers jammed the downtown State Street Mall, dancing in the streets and smashing windows and panels in two mobile television units on hand to televise the festivities.

Boston police arrested 22 people after a private New Year's Eve bash at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel turned into a melee. Bottles were thrown from smashed windows, 36 hotel rooms trashed and seven policemen injured as several hundred youths staged a three-hour rampage on the hotel's 18th floor.

Nurses at Chicago's Cook County Hospital counted down the seconds and claimed to have delivered the first baby of the 1980s at one second after midnight.

"We were holding her head back, trying to get the title," said Frances Slutas, administrative supervisor of the hospital.

The unnamed girl followed the last baby of the '70s, Christiana Marie Apapanow, by only seconds, Ms. Slutas said.

Many Americans, as usual, spent New Year's Day nursing hangovers and watching college bowl games.

For those with "morning-after" revulsion, television commentators in Chicago offered advice on a cure for a hangover. Actually, experts said, there is none. But there are a few ways to make it livable — including aspirin, plenty of sleep or, for the stout-hearted, a variety of folk cures such as the Bismarck herring and cold beer treatment recommended in Germany.

Update

Steel Shutdown

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's state-owned steelworks shut down early today in the first nationwide steel strike since 1926, threatening widespread disruption of the nation's already shaky economy.

The strike is on, said Bill Sims, leader of the steelworkers union. "It is an impossibility to call it off. The only question now is how long it lasts."

An even more vital question was what effect it would have on industries like automobile manufacturing and shipbuilding, which are crucial to the economy.

Industry Secretary Sir Keith Joseph, a top policy adviser to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, warned the strike would be "extremely harmful."

New Record Highs

LONDON (UPI) — Gold opened at new record highs on the first day of trading in the 1980s, nearing the $600-an-ounce mark, and the dollar widespread disruption of the nation's already shaky economy.

The Zurich bull market closed, gold hit a new opening high of $553.50 an ounce in London compared with Monday's close of $524.50. At the morning fix, the price jumped another $24.50 to a new all-time high of $559.

The dollar opened easier against major European currencies, although it was still under pressure. The Swiss franc did not show because foreign exchanges were closed in Zurich.

"The dollar remained under pressure in early trading, reflecting the crisis in Afghanistan and the still unresolved hostage situation in Iran," said a passerby who would not be named.

The dollar was slightly firmer against the pound, opening in London at $2.2186 against Monday's close of $2.2200.

Passerby Helps

FORT SMITH, Ark. (UPI) — A woman, a passerby who would not be named, allowed her name to be released, spotted two men wrestling inside U.S. 64 at Altus shortly after midnight Tuesday.

She held a gun on one of the men, a traffic violator, who was attacking a state trooper, until help arrived.

Slate trooper Bill Brashears, 32, a 22-year veteran, said he had stopped a weaving van and arrested the driver for driving while intoxicated.

Fighting Rulers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Linda Arrigo Shih, 31, said she and her Taiwanese husband, Ming-tek, were arrested in the southern Taiwanese city of Kaohsiung. The Shih's slipped out the back door of the building and Ming-tek escaped while Linda went to a neighbor for help.

She said she was grabbed by the police and arrested the next day and deported. Her husband has gone underground. They are fighting the Nationalist Chinese rulers of the island. She accused the Nationalist Chinese government of violating the human rights of the native Taiwanese who make up a majority of the island's 16 million people.

"I intend to do everything in my power to cause the collapse of the (nationalist) regime on Taiwan," she said on her arrival in the United States. "It is a completely immoral and evil regime."

Fire in Quebec

CHAPAIS, Quebec (UPI) — The worst fire in Quebec in 41 years roared through the Opemiska Club during a New Year's Eve dance and killed 42 people. Claude Rioux, chief of police in Chapis, a northern Quebec mining town of 3,200, said Tuesday almost all of the victims were trapped in a narrow rear exit.

The bodies, he said, were charred almost beyond recognition.

Some 300 people escaped from the one-story building through two rear exits, but many of them were severely burned on their hands and face. In Chibougamau, some 19 miles to the east, an unidentified 21-year-old man was scheduled to appear today before Quebec Fire Commissioner Cyrille Delage. Rioux said the man, who was arrested Tuesday morning but not charged, "was playing with a cigarette lighter close to an arch of tree branches near the front entrance."

Mancheste Parents Blamed for Teacher 'Burnout'

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Teachers in this town have a problem. Their problem is not so visible as the physical beatings teachers in big cities have faced. But their problem is real and it is perhaps more disturbing because of its insidious nature.

Educators of this nation's children are experiencing "burnout" — a condition that occurs when teachers can no longer accomplish their primary task of teaching.

In urban areas, much of this burnout stems from physical violence, or fear of violence by young thugs. But in Manchester, the burnout can be traced to the pillars of the community.

Access to area teachers, parents are responsible for teacher burnout. Lee Hay, an English teacher who has taught since 1966, said, "Teaching has become much more difficult. We don't seem to have the confidence of parents now."

Hay said parents in this town often allow their children to out classes. "Many kids miss school and mother and dad don't mind. The parents take the kids out of class for a family vacation. The children will be at the beach with their parent's knowledge."

Hay called parental acceptance of truancy demoralizing. "If we don't have parents believing something important is going on in the schools, I'll tell you very honestly that nothing important is going to go on," he said. He quickly acknowledged he was generalizing, and that many parents do care.

Some parents who care, are concerned about things that have been outdated. Many believe the three R's — Reading, 'Riting and 'Rithmetic — are the only important subjects to be taught in school. Teachers remind them that state and federal laws mandate that their jobs cover much more than just "basics."

Morals education, sex education, teaching of the handicapped, driver education, and family planning are just a few of the special demands teachers face. Until recently, these subjects had been the domain of other institutions, such as church and family. But the burden has shifted.

"It is not uncommon to hear a parent say, 'I can't do anything with this child, can you?' Hay said. He added, "But I love being in a classroom with 30 teenagers all day. How many parents would?"

Despite Hay's belief that "Most of us love teaching," a school psychologist said many problems in being an educator are inherent in the education system.

"The isolation of the classroom is one of the major causes of burnout," Marsha Faith, regional coordinator for Connecticut Teachers Center for Humanistic Education, said.

She said teachers don't have the coffee breaks available to other workers, which provide a link with peers. They also don't work with other adults, spending most of the day with students.

The popular inclination may be to respond, "In the old days, teachers functioned well enough in a one room schoolhouse." But this response comes full circle to the issue of parental support.

"In the 'good old days' of the one-room schoolhouse, parents backed up their teachers and there was respect for the institution," Faith said. "That's not necessarily true today. A lot of parents will fight a teacher now."

Hay confirmed this. "A lot of times when we call a parent concerning discipline we get the response, 'Not my kid' instead of hearing 'Tell me the details.'"

At Manchester High School, progress notes are sent to the home midway through the quarter if a student's grade is marginal or failing. "Teachers have been told in unquotable terms by parents that they didn't want to know," Hay said.

"Parents play such a crucial role in education," Faith said. "Just another example she cited is parental responsibility to urge their children to do the assigned homework. 'Often, teachers don't have the back-up here,'" Faith said.

Increasingly, teachers are responding to this lack of support by finding other employment. The Connecticut Education Association, bargaining unit for 25,000 teachers in the state, reported that 600 teachers quit their jobs in 1978 to start new careers.

The CEA's executive director, Thomas A. Mondani, said, "Six hundred teachers is not a lot, but if we lose this amount every year, it will have a significant effect in the state." The state had 30,000 teachers last year.

Hay, Manchester's union president, said he knows of at least eight teachers in the high school who are looking for another kind of work.

"No teacher expects independent wealth from teaching," Hay said. "But there used to be a nebulous, positive feeling you received from the public when you were a teacher. That feeling is disappearing — and the money isn't going to keep you in teaching."

Hay added, "Teachers have somehow lost the mystique that other professionals, such as doctors and lawyers, have retained."

Hay said people, "always seem to treat teachers with a bit of suspicion. They think, 'you only work 180 days a year,' or they think teaching is an easy job anyone can do."

Ms. Faith agreed this lack of support and recognition for teachers expertise leads to discouragement. "Even administrators who are developing curriculum don't recognize teachers. If they are doing a special project, they'll bring in outside experts, even though there may be a teacher in the system who is an expert."

Manchester's administrator with direct supervision over the teachers seems to be well aware of the problems facing them. Wilson E. Deakin Jr., assistant school superintendent in charge of administration, said he believes teaching is becoming more difficult.

Deakin conducts exit interviews with teachers who are leaving their jobs. "I'm hearing that it is getting harder and harder to teach. People are retiring at a younger age, or they are going into industry," she said.

Deakin said he believes the junior high level is especially difficult to teach. "These students are physically large but they are not goal directed yet. In high school, the students are considering college or work and if they don't want to be in school, they can drop out. But junior high students don't have the maturity to be working toward goals," Deakin said.

Many school systems have poor relationships between the administration and the teachers, which is often cited as contributing to teacher burnout.

Hay claims an unusually good relationship exists between teachers and administrators in Manchester. "When I have a problem I can go to Dr. James Kennedy (school superintendent) and I swear any other teacher can too," Hay said.

He said one administrative problem that frustrates many teachers is the lack of job mobility. He said the last full-time teacher at the high school was hired nine years ago.

"As a result, we're not getting an influx of new teachers. The enthusiasm of new people is infectious, but we're not getting that. When people retire, their posts aren't filled. This is in response to the declining enrollments," Hay said. Ms. Faith agreed that new teachers "revitalize the educational system."

If new teacher aren't going to be the answer to Manchester's teacher burnout problem, Ms. Faith's teacher center is suggesting several solutions. Federal grants are funding studies that will enable teachers to recognize the symptoms of burnout and provide methods of dealing with it.

Some of those symptoms include depression, anger, psychosomatic illnesses and loss of purpose.

Various solutions include sharing experiences, which legitimize existence of problems, and getting professional help. Support teams of teachers are meeting regularly to discuss common problems. Ms. Faith hopes these teachers will serve as resource people for teachers with similar problems who haven't had the opportunity to meet with others.

Teachers are caught in the middle. They have to answer to kids and parents, and also to administrators. The forces are opposed, which leads to feelings of helplessness within the teacher. And the system doesn't allow teachers to explain this to each other," Ms. Faith said.

Ms. Faith's sessions to cope with this attitude began Jan. 21, and are free. More information may be obtained by calling 649-9500.

Woman Selected to Head Studio

Sherry Lansing, the production executive responsible for "The China Syndrome" and "Kramer vs. Kramer," has been selected to head Twentieth Century-Fox Productions.

Vice Chairman Alan Hirschfeld, who announced her appointment today, said she would be responsible for the development and production of the studio's feature film division worldwide.

Ms. Lansing, he said, is "the ideal executive" because "she combines with her creative and artistic capabilities a finely honed sense of the marketplace for movies and a strong business acumen."

Delay of SALT Treaty Seen as U.S. Response

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's options for a U.S. response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan include delaying final consideration of the SALT II pact, says a White House aide.

The aide said Tuesday Carter still plans to submit the treaty to the Senate for ratification, but one of his options would be a delay in submitting the treaty for Senate ratification.

The Soviet intrusion has cast a shadow over Carter's tenuous lobbying for the arms control pact, and Senate Democratic leaders may pressure the timing of the debate on SALT ratification.

The president remained at the White House over the New Year holiday weekend and scheduled a meeting today with the National Security Council to discuss Afghanistan and the continuing Iranian crisis. He also was to meet economic advisers.

In addition, he awaited a report from Deputy Secretary Warren Christopher who has been in Europe consulting with major foreign leaders on a collective effort to counter the Soviet intrusion into Afghanistan.

The aide stressed Carter's overall position is unchanged on the strategic arms limitation pact. "Our position remains the same," he said. "We believe we're better off with a SALT treaty than not. It is not a favor to the Soviet Union. It is not based on trust."

"The president believes the SALT treaty should be ratified and is in the

Bring on the Clowns

Irvin and Kenneth Feld have been taking their show on the road for years — but they've never taken it to Australia or Japan. That's an oversight the producers of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus are about to correct.

On Saturday, they'll open the Metro Carlo Circus Spectacular version of "The Greatest Show on Earth" for a 17-week run throughout Australia, and when that one's done, they'll head the big top to Tokyo for 15 weeks more.

"Never in the circus' 110-year history has it ever played Under Down or the Far East."

Quote of the Day

Frank Nathan, spokesman for Broadway's new presentation of "Oklahoma," in announcing the cast's plan to sing "Sound of Music" at Monday's performance in honor of Richard Rodgers, who died Sunday in New York: "We're singing it particularly with the line, 'With songs they have sung for 1,000 years,' in mind... his songs will be sung for another 1,000 years."

Glimpses

Jack C. Landau, a Washington, D.C., lawyer and reporter, will be given the 1979 John Peter Zenger Freedom of the Press Award on Jan. 11... Bo Derek will be in New York later this month with husband John Derek to christen her new poster at Maxwell's Plum... Robin Williams is on his way to Malta, to start playing "Popeye" in the Paramount-Disney Robert Evans production of the Jules Feiffer screenplay... Van Johnson is starring in "Send Me No Flowers" at Earl Holliman's Fiesta Dinner Playhouse in San Antonio, Texas... James Earl Ray is costarring on Georgia location with Brenda Vaccaro, Colleen Dewhurst, Ned Beatty, Reg Foster and Powers Boothe in who plays the Rev. Jim Jones — in "The Mad Maxian"

Mancheste Parents Blamed for Teacher 'Burnout'

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Teachers in this town have a problem. Their problem is not so visible as the physical beatings teachers in big cities have faced. But their problem is real and it is perhaps more disturbing because of its insidious nature.

Educators of this nation's children are experiencing "burnout" — a condition that occurs when teachers can no longer accomplish their primary task of teaching.

In urban areas, much of this burnout stems from physical violence, or fear of violence by young thugs. But in Manchester, the burnout can be traced to the pillars of the community.

Access to area teachers, parents are responsible for teacher burnout. Lee Hay, an English teacher who has taught since 1966, said, "Teaching has become much more difficult. We don't seem to have the confidence of parents now."

Hay said parents in this town often allow their children to out classes. "Many kids miss school and mother and dad don't mind. The parents take the kids out of class for a family vacation. The children will be at the beach with their parent's knowledge."

Hay called parental acceptance of truancy demoralizing. "If we don't have parents believing something important is going on in the schools, I'll tell you very honestly that nothing important is going to go on," he said. He quickly acknowledged he was generalizing, and that many parents do care.

Some parents who care, are concerned about things that have been outdated. Many believe the three R's — Reading, 'Riting and 'Rithmetic — are the only important subjects to be taught in school. Teachers remind them that state and federal laws mandate that their jobs cover much more than just "basics."

Morals education, sex education, teaching of the handicapped, driver education, and family planning are just a few of the special demands teachers face. Until recently, these subjects had been the domain of other institutions, such as church and family. But the burden has shifted.

"It is not uncommon to hear a parent say, 'I can't do anything with this child, can you?' Hay said. He added, "But I love being in a classroom with 30 teenagers all day. How many parents would?"

Despite Hay's belief that "Most of us love teaching," a school psychologist said many problems in being an educator are inherent in the education system.

"The isolation of the classroom is one of the major causes of burnout," Marsha Faith, regional coordinator for Connecticut Teachers Center for Humanistic Education, said.

She said teachers don't have the coffee breaks available to other workers, which provide a link with peers. They also don't work with other adults, spending most of the day with students.

The popular inclination may be to respond, "In the old days, teachers functioned well enough in a one room schoolhouse." But this response comes full circle to the issue of parental support.

"In the 'good old days' of the one-room schoolhouse, parents backed up their teachers and there was respect for the institution," Faith said. "That's not necessarily true today. A lot of parents will fight a teacher now."

Hay confirmed this. "A lot of times when we call a parent concerning discipline we get the response, 'Not my kid' instead of hearing 'Tell me the details.'"

At Manchester High School, progress notes are sent to the home midway through the quarter if a student's grade is marginal or failing. "Teachers have been told in unquotable terms by parents that they didn't want to know," Hay said.

"Parents play such a crucial role in education," Faith said. "Just another example she cited is parental responsibility to urge their children to do the assigned homework. 'Often, teachers don't have the back-up here,'" Faith said.

Increasingly, teachers are responding to this lack of support by finding other employment. The Connecticut Education Association, bargaining unit for 25,000 teachers in the state, reported that 600 teachers quit their jobs in 1978 to start new careers.

The CEA's executive director, Thomas A. Mondani, said, "Six hundred teachers is not a lot, but if we lose this amount every year, it will have a significant effect in the state." The state had 30,000 teachers last year.

Hay, Manchester's union president, said he knows of at least eight teachers in the high school who are looking for another kind of work.

"No teacher expects independent wealth from teaching," Hay said. "But there used to be a nebulous, positive feeling you received from the public when you were a teacher. That feeling is disappearing — and the money isn't going to keep you in teaching."

Hay added, "Teachers have somehow lost the mystique that other professionals, such as doctors and lawyers, have retained."

Hay said people, "always seem to treat teachers with a bit of suspicion. They think, 'you only work 180 days a year,' or they think teaching is an easy job anyone can do."

Ms. Faith agreed this lack of support and recognition for teachers expertise leads to discouragement. "Even administrators who are developing curriculum don't recognize teachers. If they are doing a special project, they'll bring in outside experts, even though there may be a teacher in the system who is an expert."

Manchester's administrator with direct supervision over the teachers seems to be well aware of the problems facing them. Wilson E. Deakin Jr., assistant school superintendent in charge of administration, said he believes teaching is becoming more difficult.

Deakin conducts exit interviews with teachers who are leaving their jobs. "I'm hearing that it is getting harder and harder to teach. People are retiring at a younger age, or they are going into industry," she said.

Deakin said he believes the junior high level is especially difficult to teach. "These students are physically large but they are not goal directed yet. In high school, the students are considering college or work and if they don't want to be in school, they can drop out. But junior high students don't have the maturity to be working toward goals," Deakin said.

Many school systems have poor relationships between the administration and the teachers, which is often cited as contributing to teacher burnout.

Hay claims an unusually good relationship exists between teachers and administrators in Manchester. "When I have a problem I can go to Dr. James Kennedy (school superintendent) and I swear any other teacher can too," Hay said.

He said one administrative problem that frustrates many teachers is the lack of job mobility. He said the last full-time teacher at the high school was hired nine years ago.

"As a result, we're not getting an influx of new teachers. The enthusiasm of new people is infectious, but we're not getting that. When people retire, their posts aren't filled. This is in response to the declining enrollments," Hay said. Ms. Faith agreed that new teachers "revitalize the educational system."

If new teacher aren't going to be the answer to Manchester's teacher burnout problem, Ms. Faith's teacher center is suggesting several solutions. Federal grants are funding studies that will enable teachers to recognize the symptoms of burnout and provide methods of dealing with it.

Some of those symptoms include depression, anger, psychosomatic illnesses and loss of purpose.

Various solutions include sharing experiences, which legitimize existence of problems, and getting professional help. Support teams of teachers are meeting regularly to discuss common problems. Ms. Faith hopes these teachers will serve as resource people for teachers with similar problems who haven't had the opportunity to meet with others.

Teachers are caught in the middle. They have to answer to kids and parents, and also to administrators. The forces are opposed, which leads to feelings of helplessness within the teacher. And the system doesn't allow teachers to explain this to each other," Ms. Faith said.

Ms. Faith's sessions to cope with this attitude began Jan. 21, and are free. More information may be obtained by calling 649-9500.

HESITATION CAN BE COSTLY

Once you put real estate on the market, you have to make up your mind to move when the right offer comes. Your asking price should be pretty close to your selling price if you have priced your property realistically. The right offer may be your first offer, and if you turn it down, you may never get another as good.

However, the offer should be a written one — the only kind that has any real significance and on which you can depend.

Just remember that a legitimate offer should be accompanied by a good-sized check depending on the selling price.

Never accept a verbal promise and take your property off the market. The next day, a good sale may be lost. If you are tied up in this type of questionable transaction, you'll never have to worry about this situation arising if the sale of your property is in the hands of a Realtor.

The Nguyen Van Ta family, arrived safely in Hebron this past weekend and has been adopted by members of St. Peter's Church and also by the rest of the town. Seated on the left is the mother, Muoi, holding Giao who is eight months old. Next to her is son Tam, three years old and the father, Ta.

Vietnam Family Arrives

By PATRICIA MULLIGAN
Herald Correspondent

HEBRON—Hebron's newly adopted Vietnamese family arrived in town Saturday under the sponsorship of St. Peter's Church and was honored by all of the townspeople at a reception Sunday at the church.

The family of Nguyen Van Ta consists of the mother, Muoi, a son, Tam, three years old, and a daughter Giao, eight months old.

Late in October the idea of adopting the family was brought before the congregation and after the proposal was adopted a Refugee Resettlement Committee, made up of about 36 people, was formed to make plans for a family.

The committee divided up into 13 sub-committees who were in charge of such things as securing clothing, furniture, food housing and employment for the family as well as committing themselves to supporting the family until it is able to do so itself.

Since the church made the announcement support from the rest of the community has continued to flow in. Dr. Jeffrey Kraman offered his services, the United Brethren Synagogue of Hebron donated truckloads of household items, the Hebron Center Nursery School collected barrels of children's clothing the Gilead Congregational Church raised $450 for the project, and the First Congregational Church of Hebron supplied room in its barn for the storage of furniture and household items. More than $1,000 was raised before the family arrived, but members of the committee anticipate that the goal of $2,000 will be achieved soon.

Residents wishing to donate may send checks in care of the Refugee Resettlement Fund in care of St. Peter's Church.

Aided by an interpreter, Nguyen Van Ta explained the families exodus from Vietnam. Ta had been chief of mechanics in the navy shipyards in Saigon during the war, but had returned to the countryside and his family farm in 1973 when the war ended. In 1978 when China invaded the reunited Vietnam all of those in Vietnam, of Chinese descent, were forced to leave or face serious consequences. Ta's wife is of Chinese heritage.

With Ta's knowledge of engineering he was able to get the family, including the then two-week old Giao, onto an escaping 45-foot fishing boat.

In April of '79 the family safely reached the Air Raya refugee camp in Indonesia which was nearly a week's journey over miles of open ocean. Of the some 400 persons who started out, about 100 died during the journey. When the boat reached Malaysia it was towed back to sea.

The day before Christmas the church committee was informed, via the Church World Service, that the family would be arriving in Connecticut on Dec. 27. The volunteers then swung into high gear to find temporary housing for the family which was found with the Nelson Moore family on Yorkshire Drive. Moore went shopping at a Vietnamese market in Hartford for a supply of home-style food.

Also obtained was a Vietnamese-American dictionary, warm coats, hats, mittens and boots, which were brought to the airport along with three interpreters.

However, the family didn't arrive as scheduled. About two hours before the Hebron group was scheduled to leave for the airport they received a call that the family had landed in San Francisco, from Indonesia, too late to board the plane for Bradley Field.

When the Hebron group finally went to the airport they carried signs with the family's name on it so they would have no doubt as to who they would be meeting.

Through one of the interpreters, Nguyen Van Ta thanked members of the congregation for their support. He expressed concern about a packet of letters he brought which were addressed to other refugees who had escaped from Vietnam and were living in the United States and he received the assurance of his host that the letters will be mailed.

Van Ta said he is eager to learn the English language so he will be able to obtain work as soon as possible. The family does have some relatives in the United States and at this time the church group is attempting to locate them.

Views On Dental Health

By JACK BYNES, D.M.D.

DENTAL IMPLANTS

Dental implantology (inserting a post into the jawbone to act as an anchor for dentures) goes back to the times of the early Egyptians. Mummies and skeletons have been examined, and they indicate that dental implants were attempted even in those days.

A dental implant is a device that supports a single crown, bridge or a full denture, when the gums cannot normally retain them. There are two types: One has a metal framework that rests on the jawbone with the gum tissue closed over it. The other is placed into the bone, like a root of a tooth. Both types have a post or protrude through the gum to serve as an anchor. While implant dentistry is quite complex and still considered experimental, and practiced only by relatively few experts - it does provide a new approach to denture problems.

Varying degrees of success are reported, but it appears that the percentage of successful cases is directly related to the amount of training and experience of the implantologist.

New Mayor Seeks Resolution of New Haven Strike

NEW HAVEN (UPI)—Biagio DiLieto says he will immediately work for a resolution in the 25-week strike at the Olin Corp. as the new mayor of the state's third largest city.

The former police chief was inaugurated as New Haven's 47th mayor at Yale University Tuesday, saying he would give special attention to the strike that has affected 1,350 workers since July. But DiLieto said "the outlook for a settlement is not optimistic."

Repeated efforts by outgoing Mayor Frank Logue and state Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro have failed to end the walkout.

During the ceremony at Woolsey Hall, DiLieto called for a partnership between City Hall and New Haven residents, telling about 2,000 people he could provide leadership if he received their backing.

"I give you my pledge to provide the leadership," he said. "We need your participation, your concern, your demands for excellence and your recommendations."

DiLieto and Logue, longtime political foes, traded several bars during a rocky transition period between the city's November election and Tuesday.

But Logue attended the inauguration seated between DiLieto and Gov. Ella Grasso.

DiLieto, who was narrow loser when Logue was re-elected in 1977, defeated the two-term mayor by 2,700 votes in New Haven's Democratic primary last September. He won the heavily Democratic city's general election by a 2-1 margin.

In the last week of his term, Logue failed in his attempt to gain Board of Finance approval of 84 personnel items, including the appointment of a new tax assessor and a new city engineer. After the board tabled the items, DiLieto charged that Logue had tried to "insure that he can exercise some residual control" over the city after his term ended.

DiLieto has already filled several major posts in his administration, including the appointment of William Jones as New Haven's top personnel officer. Jones was a high-level coordinator in the mayoral campaign of state Treasurer Henry Parker, Connecticut's highest ranking black official. Parker finished a distant third in New Haven's Democratic primary behind DiLieto and Logue.

Christmas Trees To Be Recycled

MANCHESTER — A Christmas tree recycling program will be carried out again this year by the Park Department. Christmas trees will be fed through a chipping machine to provide mulch and trail base material for use in the Town parks. The Park Department requests that all residents bring their Christmas trees to one of the following locations:

1. Love Lane at the sandpile.
2. Corner of School Street and Autumn Street.
3. Tolland Turnpike at the Gravel Pit entrance.
4. Harrison Street at the Park Garage.
5. Sandpile on Edgerton Street near the rear of the lumberyard.
7. The Sanitary Landfill on Olcott Street.
8. Sandpile at Union Pond - North School Street.

Residents are requested to remove all nails and other metal from the trees and pile them adjacent to the sandpile to prevent them from blowing around. Residents are asked not to dispose of trash or garbage at these locations.

Next week the Park Department will begin chipping all the stockpiled trees. With resident cooperation, a successful program can be carried out this year.

Rec Signups Slated

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Recreation Department will conduct registration for the winter season of the cultural program Jan. 2 through 4 for Manchester residents and Jan. 7 through 11 for surrounding towns as well as Manchester.

Registration is held at the Arts Building on Garden Grove Road between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. A $5 per year recreation membership or a $5 per class non-resident fee is required to take the classes.

Two new classes have been added to the program: advanced photography and dance. Advanced photography will meet on Wednesdays from 9:30-11:30 at a cost of $16 per student. The class will cover working with lighting and more intense darkroom procedures. Students should have knowledge of 35mm cameras and also some darkroom experience. Dance will meet on Wednesdays from 1-2:30 and is free with the recreation membership or non-resident fee.

Among other classes offered are ceramics, pottery, quilting, doll making, needlepoint, cake decorating and many exercise classes. Further information is available by phoning the Arts Building, 647-3089.

KKK Cross Downplayed

MANCHESTER — Police Chief Robert Lanes said this morning that the reported Ku Klux Klan cross found by an unidentified woman on Halloween is an isolated incident and does not represent a sudden surge of racial tension in town.

The cross was found Halloween night at the corner of Main and Grove streets by the woman, who reported the incident to Town Manager Robert Weiss. Weiss passed the investigation on to Laman, who said he did not find any cross.

"I investigated it (the incident) personally on Halloween," said Laman, who had suited up as usual for patrol on Oct. 31.

However, he said, this cross was not found and he considered it an isolated incident. He said the perpetrators may have been triggered to make the cross because of some other KKK-related incident reported in the media.

According to published reports, the 6-foot-high cross was inscribed with the red-ink letters KKK and attached with carpenter's joints. Weiss was contacted apparently because the woman did not want to reveal her name to the police for fear the incident would become known publicly.

CofC Search Almost Over

MANCHESTER — The search for a new Chamber of Commerce president is almost over. Nathan Agostinelli, chairman of the chamber and president of Savings Bank of Manchester, said today he believes a decision will be made before the end of January.

Agostinelli said the decision centers on "two or three applicants."

He said none of the finalists are Manchester residents.

Although the chamber's search committee expects to make its decision within the next few weeks, Agostinelli said the starting date is unclear. He said the employment date would be based on obligations the president-elect had to his employers.

The post was vacated when James Breitenfeld was accepted as job in Florida. Breitenfeld resigned effective Dec. 1 to head a regional chamber serving Pinellas County.

New Parent Classes

MANCHESTER — Classes for new parents will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight in conference room C of the Manchester Memorial Hospital. The classes are sponsored by the Family Oriented Childbirth Information Society.

A registered nurse will conduct the class which will feature the film "The Newborn." Prerequisite is a physician's certificate (MCH 186).

Youth Panel Sets Meeting

MANCHESTER — The Commission on Children and Youth will hold an open meeting Jan. 9 to determine goals and priorities and to develop ways to establish themselves in the community.

The commission previously had hoped to hold an executive session, closed to the public and the press, so the atmosphere would encourage a more relaxed, informal discussion of the issues.

However, after obtaining the advice of several members of the Board of Directors, the commission decided to open the meeting to the public.

The meeting is necessary because the commission is composed of all new members, and the members haven't been able to accomplish enough to establish themselves.

The meeting will take place in the Municipal Building hearing room at 7:30 p.m.

Manchester Police Report

MANCHESTER — Police charged 31-year-old Lester M. Thurston, 52 Reed St., Rockville with first-degree reckless endangerment Tuesday morning.

According to police, a woman, who identified herself as the ex-girlfriend of the accused, complained of trouble with the suspect. Police alleged he followed the woman in a car and forced her vehicle into the left lane on Main Street, nearly causing collisions with other cars.

Thurston was released on a $200 cash bond, police said, for a Jan. 14 appearance in East Hartford Superior Court.

Several Hurt in Crash

SOUTH WINDSOR — Two people are in critical condition at hospitals and several others suffered injuries in a two-car, head-on accident that happened on Oakland Street in South Windsor, Monday night.

Police Chief John Kerrigan said the accident is still under investigation and he asks anyone who was in the area at the time to please contact him with any information they might have.

Ray C. Everett, 30, of 146 Pine Tree Lane, South Windsor, the driver of one of the cars, was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and later transferred to St. Francis Hospital, Hartford. He is reported in critical condition.

The driver of the other car, Earle Fredericksen, 21, of Windsor Locks was treated and released at Manchester Hospital. Police said she suffered a broken nose and a broken leg.

Carol Daniels, 30, and Andrew Daniels, 32, both of Bloomfield, passengers in the Everett car, were also injured. Ms. Daniels is reported in critical condition at Hartford Hospital and Daniels is at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Police said she has a head injury.

Educator Quits Smoking

MANCHESTER — School Superintendent James Kennedy has quit smoking.

His 30-cigarette-per-day habit has lasted for years, but his resolve to quit is strong.

"I take quitting one day at a time," Kennedy said. He added that taking one day at a time is the advice given those with a problem. The phrase comes from the hopeful credo of the Alcoholics Anonymous recovery program.

Kennedy had said he'd try to quit for one day on Jan. 1. But he said instead he decided to quit on Christmas Day, and that he hasn't had a cigarette since then.

His disenchantment with smoking peaked on Nov. 15, the date of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout. Kennedy served as the town chairman for the effort and snuffed his habit to set an example.

His smoking decreased from a pack and a half per day to half a pack after the smokeout. Then, on Christmas the half pack became none. Officials of the American Cancer Society in Manchester congratulated Kennedy on his success, and said his progress was the kind they like to see.

Another group will be holding a campaign on Jan. 15 to get people to follow in Kennedy's style. The Connecticut Lung Association will provide workshops to help people quit, and will have toll-free telephone support systems.

Further details and a quit-smoking kit for participants are available from the Lung Association at 45 Ash St., East Hartford.

Black Lawn Statue Recovered by Cops

MANCHESTER — Anyone missing a black jockey lawn statue can check the Manchester Police Department.

Police said such a statue was recovered over the weekend at the Charter Oak pond and deposited in the department's room of "found" property. As of this morning, Patrol Capt. Henry Minor said, no one had yet claimed the statue.

The statues gained notoriety last summer when a bunch of them were stolen from homes in various Hartford area communities.

Alabama Stakes Claim to No. 1

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Alabama has staked its claim for No. 1 and this time the Crimson Tide expects to strike gold.

Last year, Alabama, then ranked second, thought it had the UPI Board of Coaches national championship locked up when it knocked off topranked Penn State 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl. Also, the coaches saw it differently and voted Southern California No. 1 in the final ratings which the coach of Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, his team and thousands of dyed-in-the-wool Crimson Tide fans.

This year, however, Alabama doesn't expect to be denied. Not after thrashing seventh-ranked Arkansas 24-9 Tuesday in the Sugar Bowl before a Superdome record crowd of 77,486 and a national television audience. It was the 21st consecutive victory for topranked Alabama and enabled the Crimson Tide to complete a 12-0 season — its first perfect campaign since 1966.

"I said it before and I say it now," said Razorbacks Coach Lou Holtz, who suffered the worst beating in his four years at Arkansas. "I don't think there is anybody in the country who can beat Alabama. I don't think Alabama can play any better than they did today, and if they can, I sure don't want to be on the field with them."

Except for two brief lapses at the outset of each half, when Arkansas scored its only points — Alabama was in complete control of the game. The Crimson Tide, behind a pair of touchdowns runs and a 50-yard punt return by Major Ogilvie which set up a 25-yard field goal by Alan McElroy, built a commanding 17-3 halftime lead and never was seriously threatened.

Arkansas did mount an 80-yard touchdown drive — capped by a 3-yard TD pass from quarterback Kevin Scanlon to Robert Farrell — at the start of the third quarter but the Razorbacks never got closer than the Alabama 26-yard line the rest of the game.

"Alabama deserves to be No. 1," said Scanlon, whose 245 yards passing provided most of the Razorbacks' offense. "They have the best defense in the country. If you don't vote for them for No. 1, you've got to be crazy. We've got a good team and they beat a good team."

Alabama was leading 7-3 on Ogilvie's 22-yard run in the first quarter when Scanlon fumbled the snap from center on his own 24 and the Crimson Tide recovered. Four plays later, Ogilvie dove over from the 1 and Alabama had a 14-3 lead.

"The fumble snap was very, very critical," moaned Holtz. "It shouldn't have happened, but it did."

"I really don't know what happened on the fumble exchange," Mayor Scanlon said. "The ball hit my bottom hand instead of the top hand. It's no ones fault."

Despite the botched play, Arkansas was trailing only 17-3 midway through the fourth quarter and seemed to have Alabama in trouble when a punt by Bruce Lahay was intercepted by the Razorbacks on the Crimson Tide's 2-yard line.

It was then, however, that Alabama showed the power of a champion. Behind the running of Billy Jackson and quarterback Steadman Shealy, Alabama marched 98 yards in nine plays with fullback Steve Whitman going the final 12 for a touchdown that ended the Razorbacks hopes for an upset.

"I'd say that was a gut check drive," said Ogilvie. "It was probably the biggest series of the game because it helped us regain the momentum and take time off the clock."

It was largely Alabama's defense, however, that keyed the victory. "They didn't give me much time," admitted Scanlon, who completed 22-of-38 passes but was sacked three times and had two passes intercepted. "Even the passes I completed I was taking at them from the ground. And a lot of them that I missed could have been completed if I had had another second."

"We missed too many third-and-twos and third-and-ones. That's a result of an outstanding defense. A lot of teams give you a lot of looks, but Alabama's defense is much more aggressive, disciplined and consistent."

USC's Charles White Too Much to Handle

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter might have said it best. "Charles White is a great player. He beat us today."

White, Southern California's Heisman Trophy-winning tailback, defied third-ranked Ohio State for 247 yards in 38 carries including dazzling runs of 32 and 23 yards in the Trojans' winning touchdown drive and that was pretty much the story of their 17-10 victory over the Buckeyes Tuesday in the 66th Rose Bowl.

White, who talks a lot but is very capable of backing up what he says, was too much for Ohio State to handle. He overshadowed another outstanding performance by Schlichter.

"Charles White is the finest football player I've ever seen and the greatest competitor I've ever seen," praised Southern Cal Coach John Robinson. "If there is any doubt, go back and look at the fourth quarter."

Nobody had to go back and look. The second-ranked Trojans, who finished with an 11-0-1 record, won the only 21-21 tie with Stanford, now must wait until the final vote by the UPI Board of Coaches to see if they will win their second straight national championship.

Alabama ranked No. 1 in the final regular season ball, beat Arkansas 24-9 in the Sugar Bowl.

"Obviously, we deserve consideration for No. 1," said Robinson. "So does Alabama. But I'm pretty much made up my mind who I'm going to vote for."

State's first-year Coach Earle Bruce, who said he had not seen much of Alabama but saw record, tied it 7-7 in the second quarter on a 71-yard march culminated in a 51-yard run by Elston, who had come in to replace starter Delrick Brown.

Then it was punt, punt, punt until the start of the final quarter.

Elston drove his team from his own 17 to the Nebraska 41 to set up a 41-yard field goal by Kenny Hatfield with 8:25 to go and the Cornhuskers came back to score on the Quinto-Finn pass.

The Nebraska TD was set up by one of the trick plays used by Coach Tom Osborne during the day. A throwback pass from Redwine to Quinn that took the ball to the Notre Dame loss preyed on the minds of his players for quite a while.

"Our kids carried that game last year with them for a long time," said Yeoman. "It stuck with them. But we didn't say one thing about that game. We didn't have to."

Sixth-ranked Houston at least partially made up for the 1979 setback by coming from behind in the final minute Tuesday to whip eighth-ranked Nebraska, 17-14.

The Cougars drove 66 yards under the guidance of backup quarterback Terry Elston and scored on a fourth-down, 6-yard throw from Elston to wide receiver Eric Herring — a pass that glanced off a Nebraska defender. The throw came with only 12 seconds left in the game.

"From the first day we found out we were coming here we were thinking, 'Remember 79,'" Herring said. "We learned last year in the Cotton Bowl that a team can come from behind. We quit playing last year and got whipped."

The Cornhuskers, meanwhile, found out just how Houston felt last year.

"It's just like being hit in the gut," said Nebraska wide receiver Jeff Finn, whose 6-yard TD catch from quarterback Jeff Quinn with 3:56 to play appeared to have given the Cornhuskers the win.

The Nebraska-Houston game seemed to be en route to a bland standoff before a flurry of last-quarter activity turned the game into a thriller.

Nebraska — the Big Eight Conference runner-up after ending the year with a 10-2 record — scored in the first period on an 85-yard drive that ended in a 9-yard run by Jarvis Redwine. The Cornhuskers had squandered a scoring opportunity early in the period on a missed field goal after recovering a Houston fumble on the game's first play.

MIAMI (UPI) — Oklahoma speed turned out to be the answer for Florida State's feared passing attack in the Orange Bowl Tuesday night.

The fifth-ranked Sooners, 11-1, gave up an early touchdown but then the defense clamped down on the Seminole receivers and roared to an easy 24-7 victory. If Oklahoma hadn't lost four fumbles, the score could have gone higher.

"Our defensive football team played an outstanding game the last three quarters," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "We can run or pass on defense."

Or, as Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden tells, "They were just as fast as I was afraid they were. Their overall speed was incredible."

The defensive star of the game turned out to be a second stringer — senior safety Bud Hebert inserted when Switzer decided to go with five defensive backs. The decision paid off when Hebert intercepted three Florida State passes.

"Bud Hebert had a great game," Switzer said. "Maybe he should have been starting all along."

Hebert and company held the Seminoles quarterback tandem of Jimmy Jordan and Wally Woodham to 100 yards passing, almost exactly half of the per game average that sent Florida State into the Orange Bowl regular season-ending setback against the Sooners.

"I think they were less than what they would have been if they had been tonight," Hebert said. "Their passes weren't too sharp. A couple of them just floated."

Bowden agreed: "I feel like both quarterbacks were cold. Neither one of them was on tonight."

Switzer had so much faith in his defense that he elected to kick off to open the second half.

"We made some mistakes and already had a punt blocked. I didn't want the ball," Switzer said. "I had confidence we could stop them and get field position for the offense."

But defense wasn't the entire show for the Sooners. Junior quarterback J.C. Watts ran for 127 yards including a 61-yard TD gump and 1978 Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims closed out his college career with 164 yards.

"The two combined for a 34-yard TD in the final period that iced the game, as Watts jittersbugged for 12 yards and lateraled to Sims for the last 22. Watts was named the game's outstanding offensive player for his efforts."

"The ball game was a challenge for me. I accepted the challenge and hit it head on," said Watts, ever so first time this year after a two-year apprenticeship under the graduated Thomas Loft.

"Watts said he didn't feel the Seminoles were overconfident going into the game, but "we were kind of dead at first" 7-0 lead on Michael Whiting's touchdown from one yard out.

But then Watts broke his gylarder, fullback Stanley Winston slashed over from 5 yards out and Michael Keeling hit on a 24-yard field goal to make it 17-7 at the half.

"We went into the game that Florida State could be as if we didn't play well," he said. "When we went up 17-7, it took some of the sting out of them, but then we started playing sloppy. Our fumbles may have cost us 15-24 points."

Sims said he was only mildly pleased with his performance in the final game of his college career.

"I'm satisfied a little bit, but I think a few times when I got into the open, I should have broken it."

In a subdued Florida State locker room, Bowden said he felt the turning point came in the second quarter when the Seminoles moved to the Oklahoma 2, but were repulsed and then turned over the ball when field goal holder Rick Stockstill fumbled.

"I had scored and had a 10-0 or 14-0 lead. I think it would have given me Eric but he kept drifting across the field."

He said when he saw Oklahoma's five defensive backs on the field he "ruined the ball, but their defensive line stopped us so we couldn't take advantage. Their defensive line deserves a much credit for their pass defense as well as their offense."

The loss broke a 15-game winning streak for the Seminoles.

"You never want to go out losing, but you can't take those 11 wins in 1979 away from us," Jordan said.

"You always have to think that you have a shot to win it," said linebacker David Hodge, who was voted the game's most valuable player.

"Terry Elston proved today he can get anything done he wants to," Yeoman said. "Terry was excellent on that last drive. He's got the equipment."

Elston replaced senior quarterback Delrick Brown early in the second quarter and immediately took Houston, 11-1, to a touchdown, scoring on a 3-yard run. Through the next 1 1/2 periods, the Nebraska defense smothered the Cougars, yet Yeoman never considered taking out Elston.

Elston is the stronger kid," Yeoman said. "Things were opening up that were more to his style than Brown's. I told the kids (Brown and Elston) that they were going to alternate every three or four series and if one got hot he would stay in."

Elston, who rushed for 37 yards on 22 carries and passed for 119 yards, pulled out the Cotton Bowl by taking the Cougars 66 yards in 3:44 to Herring's winning reception. He hit five-of-seven passes for 42 yards on the final drive.

"(Herring) was the only guy I saw that was half open on that last play," Elston said. "Nebraska had good coverage and at first I couldn't see Eric but he kept drifting across the field."

"Terry was going to me all the way," Herring said. "Two Nebraska players were there and one of them reached up but I tipped the ball up and grabbed on to it."

Rose Bowl

MIAMI (UPI) — Oklahoma speed turned out to be the answer for Florida State's feared passing attack in the Orange Bowl Tuesday night.

The fifth-ranked Sooners, 11-1, gave up an early touchdown but then the defense clamped down on the Seminole receivers and roared to an easy 24-7 victory. If Oklahoma hadn't lost four fumbles, the score could have gone higher.

"Our defensive football team played an outstanding game the last three quarters," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "We can run or pass on defense."

Or, as Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden tells, "They were just as fast as I was afraid they were. Their overall speed was incredible."

The defensive star of the game turned out to be a second stringer — senior safety Bud Hebert inserted when Switzer decided to go with five defensive backs. The decision paid off when Hebert intercepted three Florida State passes.

"Bud Hebert had a great game," Switzer said. "Maybe he should have been starting all along."

Hebert and company held the Seminoles quarterback tandem of Jimmy Jordan and Wally Woodham to 100 yards passing, almost exactly half of the per game average that sent Florida State into the Orange Bowl regular season-ending setback against the Sooners.

"I think they were less than what they would have been if they had been tonight," Hebert said. "Their passes weren't too sharp. A couple of them just floated."

Bowden agreed: "I feel like both quarterbacks were cold. Neither one of them was on tonight."

Switzer had so much faith in his defense that he elected to kick off to open the second half.

"We made some mistakes and already had a punt blocked. I didn't want the ball," Switzer said. "I had confidence we could stop them and get field position for the offense."

But defense wasn't the entire show for the Sooners. Junior quarterback J.C. Watts ran for 127 yards including a 61-yard TD gump and 1978 Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims closed out his college career with 164

Quarterback Worked Magic

DALLAS (UPI) — Houston Coach Bill Yeoman was asked how he could stand so placidly on the sideline with his team trailing Nebraska, facing fourth-and-goal at the 6-yard line and just 17 seconds to go in the 1980 Cotton Bowl.

"There wasn't a great deal I could have done other than call the plays," Yeoman responded.

But calling the plays was about all Yeoman needed to do, because on the field junior Terry Elston, the Cougars' ace relief quarterback, was working magic. And in the end, Yeoman pronounced this Houston team the best he has ever coached.

Elston, who came off the bench to score the winning touchdown in three games for Houston this year, slipped a desperation fourth down pass into the reach of flanker Eric Herring. Herring tipped the ball up and then grabbed it to give the Southwest Conference co-champion a 17-14 win, its second Cotton Bowl victory in four years.

"You always have to think that you have a shot to win it," said linebacker David Hodge, who was voted the game's most valuable player.

"Terry Elston proved today he can get anything done he wants to," Yeoman said. "Terry was excellent on that last drive. He's got the equipment."

Employee Fringe Benefits Likely to Expand in '80s

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fringe benefits will play an important role in personnel policies in the 1980s, with pressure expected for expansion in such areas as specialized coverages and pension benefits, a leading consulting firm reports.

Recession or no, the trend toward more such benefits cannot be reversed. William M. Mercer, Inc., said in reporting on its latest survey of corporate chief executives on employer attitudes toward employee benefits.

Merger, a leading consultant on employee benefits, queried the 2,500 companies in the various Fortune magazine blue chip lists. A total of 626 responded.

Some 92 percent of these said fringe benefits would remain among their most pressing concerns.

Forty-six percent expect the greatest internal pressure would come from middle management and 43 percent thought the big push would be from blue collar workers.

Sixty-five percent said they expected the heaviest external pressure for higher benefits from labor unions; 49 percent thought it would be from the federal government.

Fifty-nine percent of the respondents said they already have plans to increase fringe benefits in the 80s and 38 percent said they intend at least to keep them at present levels.

Fifty-six percent said their executives and employees now look on fringe benefits as an expected right, and 51 percent said they would like to see benefits represent an increasingly larger share of the compensation package, apparently in the belief this would ease the tax problems of many.

About 70 percent said they would favor more flexible benefit programs that would give the employee more options. This is surprising because such flexibility with employees enjoying many options could introduce administrative headaches.

But the chief executives generally were firmly opposed to certain benefit options.

Sixty-four percent, for example, were against the introduction in industry in general of the kind of portable pension plans John L. Lewis won for the United Mine Workers years ago. They saw portability as an administrative nightmare.

They opposed earlier vesting of pension funds than the present customary seven to 10 years on the grounds it is too expensive and also turned thumbs down on that very novel benefit of company pensions for non-working spouses of employees (which differs from a widow's surviving interest in her husband's pension if so arranged.)

They also were against cost-of-living indexation of pensions on the grounds it becomes impossible to provide real actuarial funding for such a program.

The chief executives said the additional fringe benefits most in demand by both middle management groups and unions include dental care, legal aid, optical care and pre-retirement planning and counseling. These, of course, on top of the basic desire for better pensions.

Executives show a definite interest in early retirement incentives as fringe benefits, the study showed.

While three-quarters of the chief executives said they had reviewed their pension plans for unfunded liability problems, 92 percent said they were not concerned in this area.

Eighty-two percent are against national health insurance but 90 percent said they regarded it as inevitable.

Fifty-eight percent of the executives said they think the role of the private pension system should be expanded in view of the funding difficulties associated with Social Security.

Sewer Panel To Set Rate

VERNON — When the Sewer Authority meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building it will be asked to adopt a proposed rate schedule for 1979-80. The Town Council will be asked to review the schedule at its Jan. 7 meeting and will conduct a public hearing on it Jan. 21.

The rates for the sewer users increased considerably over the past year to pay for the cost of operating the new sewage treatment plant. The cost of building the plant was paid by federal and state grants and a local contribution. It isn't included in the user charge.

It has been estimated it will cost about $900,000 annually to operate the tertiary treatment plant which cost $15 million to build.

Before the new plant went into operation the users paid $21 for residential use per year. When the prices were increased the early part of this year, they went to $35 for six months.

But because the plant wasn't in full operation, the second payment was reduced to $12 for that six months.

When the authority meets Thursday it will propose a rate of $60 a year for residential users and to increase the rate for commercial and industrial users from $252 per thousand gallons of sewage to $320 per thousand.

The town is in the process of studying a way to cut the operating costs of the plant by converting the incinerator so it will make regular garbage as well as sewer sludge. The sludge from the plant and the town's garbage collections are now taken to the Ellington landfill area for disposal.

The sewer user bills are due to be mailed out this month and will be payable in two installments, the first by Feb. 1, if the fee proposal is adopted by the council after the public hearing.

Building Committee
HEBRON — The Rham Junior High School Building Committee will meet Jan. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rham Junior High School library.

The committee will discuss bids for equipment and furnishings for the building and will discuss and take action on buying safe and drapes for the building, space requirements and alterations for the computer, and approve invoices as required.

William F. Legault

Legault Feted By Elks Lodge

MANCHESTER — William F. Legault, secretary of the Manchester Lodge of Elks, was honored by the lodge at a recent dinner-dance.

The event noted Legault's tenure as secretary for 10 years and for fulfilling his obligation as an Elk in an exemplary manner.

Legault is vice president, mortgage department, of the Savings Bank of Manchester. He lives in Manchester with his wife Carol and two daughters.

Retired Teachers
MANCHESTER — The Retired Teachers Association of Manchester will meet Jan. 8 at 1:30 p.m. at the First Federal Savings Bank, 344 W. Middle Turnpike.

After a short business meeting the members will see slides and pictures on "Miracle workers: Old Places and Old Times." Miss Karen Kelly of the Citizens Action Committee will also speak briefly. Members and guests are invited. Refreshments will be served. Anyone needing transportation should call Ella Fletcher, 646-5679.

NBC Show Premiere Marathon Episode

NEW YORK (UPI) — The opening episode of NBC's new series, "Skag," is three hours long — which is too much of a potentially good thing.

The show opens Jan. 6, 8-11 p.m. Eastern time, starring Carl Malden as Pete Skagka, a Pittsburgh steel mill foreman married to Piper Laurie. He has four children, two of each kind.

The script comes from the pen of Oscar and Emmy-winning Abby Mann, and it certainly is a cut above television's usual look into family life which either looks like an animated Norman Rockwell poster or degenerates into soap opera squalor.

The trouble is not even Mann can handle an assignment in which he is both trying to tell a story and at the same time setting up the introduction for a continuing series. Structural mayhem results.

As "Skag" opens, the audience meets the Skagka family. There's Pete, proud of his Serbian ethnic heritage, a strong family chief with the best will in the world tends to alternately ignore and dominate his children.

His wife is loving and goes along.

The oldest of Skagka's children is David, product of Skagka's brief and disastrous first marriage, who works in the steel mill and also works hard for his father's love. It remains elusive.

The youngest child, a daughter, is overweight and feels underloved. The favorites are son John, a medical student, and beautiful blond daughter Barbara.

Rounding out the family is Skagka's senile father, whom he loves and cares for.

Then Skag suffers a stroke that almost kills him. He fights his way back against paralysis, at one point dragging himself across the hospital floor in a scene lifted from Franklin Roosevelt's battle with polio in "Sunrise at Campobello."

But, as the doctor warns son David, stroke victims have faced the truth of their own mortality and they never come back to what they were.

During Skag's long convalescence, he also learns some hard truths about his family — that his oldest son loves him best, that his 15-year-old daughter has been promiscuous since the age of 13 in a desperate search for attention. He learns that his younger son is self-centered and cold, and that his beautiful daughter could not overcome her distaste and visit him in the hospital.

Meantime, he also must worry about retaining his job and regaining his virility.

In his writer to complications, most of them involving a lot of talk and little action, some fine moments tend to get lost. When Skag comes to his father's bedside at night, seeking reassurance, the old man turns his back, curls up and clutches his pillow, an elderly child who wants his son to be his father.

"Skag" as a three-hour movie is too long but harbors some good moments. As the pilot for a series, there's no way to predict how the show will turn out in a one-hour format.

Second Semester Set

HARTFORD — The Hartford Conservatory's second semester of 1979-80 begins in January with a number of classes for children, teens and adults, in addition to private lessons in all instruments and voice.

Classes in the New Year include choral instruction and ear training, which may be taken for credit, as well as non-credit classes in theory and ear training, acting, dance, and Suzuki strings.

A new class combining acting and mime begins Jan. 17.

For information on Conservatory classes or private lessons, phone 246-2588.

Women's Club To Sponsor Puppet Show

SOUTH WINDSOR — The South Windsor Women's Club will sponsor a performance of the Pandemonium Puppet Company on Jan. 13 at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The show consists of a collection of folk tales and songs from around the world and is family entertainment for those of all ages.

The puppet company usually performs with a core of three puppeteers and uses a variety of theatrical techniques which include puppetry, mime, masked actors and audience participation.

The puppeteers work directly on stage, manipulating clay and macramé marionette puppets which range in height from two to five feet.

Tickets may be bought in advance from any member of the women's club or will be available at the door the day of the performance. Anyone wanting more information should contact Linda Kingston, 644-8366.

A PROGRESSIVE DINNER French Country-Inn Style

One night you can play the genial host to eight hungry travelers stopping by your "establishment" — and visit two other fine "inns" as a guest yourself! It's all part of the fun of a progressive dinner, where people share the cost and work of preparing food, visiting each others' homes to sample the fare. It's a great way to beat rising food costs and busy schedules.

Creative ingenuity and versatile ingredients make Salmon-Camembert Pâté, White Bean Choucroute Garni and French Golden Apple Tart a menu with panache that can be prepared ahead of time for convenience. Those fellow travelers not preparing a specific course can bring along bread, wine and a green salad to accompany the main course.

APPETIZER AT A SEASIDE INN:

The freshly-caught flavor of Pacific canned salmon blends perfectly with Camembert's suave taste in a pâté seasoned lightly with garlic, shallots, thyme, basil and parsley. Serve with crackers and crudités: cherry tomatoes, cucumber slices and celery. A dry white wine goes well with the pâté.

SALMON-CAMEMBERT PÂTÉ

- 1 can (7-3/4 ounces) salmon
- 8 to 9 ounces Camembert cheese
- 1/3 cup unsalted butter
- 1/4 cup chopped shallots or green onions
- 2 tablespoons coarsely chopped parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
- 1/8 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
- Crackers
- Fresh vegetables

Drain salmon thoroughly and flake. Remove rind from Camembert and cut into chunks. Place salmon, cheese, butter, shallots or green onions, parsley, garlic powder, thyme and basil in food processor. Process until smooth and blended. Place in serving dish, cover and chill. Serve with crackers and vegetables. Makes about 1-2/3 cups.

AN ALSATIAN-STYLE MAIN COURSE:

Western dry great northern beans give a delightful new twist to this great French dish. Sauerkraut is cooked slowly with salt pork, onions, apple, carrots and white wine, then joined by cubes of pork, tender white beans and spicy sausage. Serve with a green salad, thick-crust French bread and a full-bodied burgundy, if desired.

WHITE BEAN CHOUCRUTE GARNI

- 2 pounds sauerkraut
- 4 ounces salt pork, cubed
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 medium Golden Delicious apple, cored and diced
- 2 medium carrots, peeled and cut in 1-inch chunks
- 2 cups dry white wine
- 1 bay leaf
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1 pound boneless pork or smoked pork chops, cut in 1-1/2-inch cubes and browned on all sides
- 2 pounds Polish sausage or assorted precooked sausages, cut diagonally in 1- to 2-inch chunks
- 4 cups cooked Western dry great northern beans

Drain sauerkraut and rinse under cold running water. Drain well. Sauté salt pork in large oven-proof skillet or Dutch oven until crisp. Add onion and garlic to skillet; sauté until tender. Stir in apple, carrots, sauerkraut, wine, bay leaf and pepper. Cover and bake at 325°F. 2 hours. Stir in cubed pork; cover and continue baking 30 minutes. Add sausages and beans, stirring to combine. Return to oven and bake an additional 15 to 20 minutes, until beans and sausages are heated through. Makes about 10 servings.

TO COOK BEANS: Wash 1-1/2 cups Western dry great northern beans. Cover with 4-1/2 cups cold water and let soak overnight. Or, for quick soak method, bring beans and 4-1/2 cups hot water to boil; boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat, cover, and let stand 1 hour. Drain and rinse beans; discard soaking liquid. Add 4-1/2 cups hot water. Boil gently with lid tilted to desired tenderness, about 1 hour. Drain beans.

DESSERT IN APPLE COUNTRY:

Golden Delicious apples hold their shape and give sweet, fresh flavor to this French-inspired tart. Washington Golden Delicious apples, flavored with apricot preserves, liqueur, raisins and spices, resembles thick applesauce consistency, then turned into a buttery pastry shell. Additional apple slices are arranged in a circle over the top. Apricot glaze adds the final glistening touch. Serve the tart with whipped cream, if desired, and accompany with rich French-roust coffee.

FRENCH GOLDEN APPLE TART

- 6 cups cored, peeled and thinly-sliced Golden Delicious apples
- 1/4 cup apricot preserves
- 6 tablespoons sugar, divided
- 2 tablespoons orange-flavored liqueur
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup golden raisins
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- Tart Shell (below)
- 2 cups cored and sliced Golden Delicious apples
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- Glaze (below)

Place 6 cups sliced apples in saucepan. Cover and cook over low heat until soft, adding water if necessary to keep from sticking. Stir in apricot preserves, 1/4 cup sugar, liqueur, butter or margarine, raisins, lemon peel, cinnamon and nutmeg. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture resembles thick applesauce. Spread in baked tart shell. Toss 2 cups apple slices with lemon juice and 1 tablespoon sugar. Arrange slices overlapping in circle over filling. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake at 375°F. 25 to 30 minutes until apples are tender. Glaze tart while still warm. Serve warm with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Tart Shell: Combine 1-1/2 cups flour and 3 tablespoons sugar. Cut in 6 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1 egg yolk, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla and 2 to 3 tablespoons cold water, mixing with fingers to form a smooth ball. Roll out and line a 10 to 11-inch tart pan with removable bottom. Prick thoroughly. Bake at 400°F. 10 to 12 minutes, until lightly browned.

Glaze: Heat 1/4 cup apricot preserves with 1 tablespoon orange-flavored liqueur just to boiling. Spoon over baked tart while still warm.

Don't Risk Young Teeth

Teach your youngsters good dental habits from the start, says Dr. Seymour Silber, an eminent New York specialist in children's dentistry.

Silber has examined and treated thousands of young teeth in private practice and at the out-patient dental clinic of New York's Lenox Hill Hospital.

"From the first time they begin to be aware of their teeth and the use of a toothbrush," says Silber, "they should be taught the correct way to brush their teeth, which is up and down and not across."

Cleaning the teeth correctly is of prime importance in dental health. Even if the child finds it boring and a chore, he must be taught.

Silber warns parents against thinking that baby teeth are not medically important. A child's first teeth are vital, he insists, and often need the care of a pediatrician, a patient, highly efficient specialist in children's teeth.

Their rates may be slightly higher than those of regular dentists, he says. But you will find them invaluable if your children need any special dental care.

Silber refutes the notion that decay of young teeth results primarily from inheritance or soft enamel. Instead, he says, cavities result from bacteria that remains on the teeth.

"Good nutrition for the teeth doesn't depend entirely on what you eat," he continues. "It depends largely on what kinds of foods go into the mouth and what residue is left on the surface and between teeth."

Silber urges parents to feed their children plenty of "detergent foods" such as raw fruits and vegetables.

"These foods scrub the teeth, as it were, and help prevent caries (decay) from developing," says Silber, stressing that children should be taught the importance of selecting such foods for themselves.

"Avoid giving your children foods that are soft and sugar-laden," he adds. "Sugar, particularly, causes a breeding ground for bacteria which it remains on the teeth."

Silber appears unconvinced of the value of electric toothbrushes and similar appliances.

"Unless the gadgets arouse unusual interest in a child's brushing his teeth, I can't see any particular advantage," he says.

Netted Turkey Roasts

What a catch! Netted Turkey Roasts in sizes up to 3 pounds! Choose from all white meat, all dark meat or a delicious mixture of both. We call them Netted Turkey Roasts because the solid pieces of turkey meat, white and dark, are tied together with strings or nets so that they will roast to a golden perfection in your oven. And since you find them in your freezer section at your grocery store, you can keep them in your freezer and pull them out for some great impromptu meals. They can be put right from the freezer into the oven no thawing, no bother. What could be simpler and still produce a great turkey meal? It makes a great light spring dinner served with garden fresh vegetables and fruit.

Netted Turkey Roasts are so versatile and easy and that's important when you're a busy schedule. Try using it for turkey divan, turkey tetrazzini, sandwiches, salads, casseroles, or as we have presented it, sliced and served hot with buttered baby carrots and brussels sprouts.

Other advantages? Turkey ranks higher in protein than any of the other popular cooked meats, and has generous amounts of riboflavin, niacin, and iron.

Food Mart wants you to be "picky-picky-picky" too, and choose from the freshest and best fruits and vegetables.

Cheesecake Calendar Art, 1980: A Recipe or Miss Piggy in Lace Tights

Cheesecake calendar art these days is apt to be either a recipe or Miss Piggy of the Muppet Show in black lace tights or a harem outfit.

Scenes and line art are number one among "freebies," or advertising calendars given out free. But in bookstores, "The pig just jumped over the cat" at the end of November, says Allan Marshall, special projects director for the American Booksellers Association.

Translation: sales of "The Miss Piggy Calendar 1980" had just moved ahead of Kliban's cats.

Dogs and cats "are far and away the most popular subjects" on calendars published by a Kansas City-based greeting card manufacturer, said John Dinaro of Hallmark.

"They sell out almost as quickly as we can get them on the shelves," Dinaro said.

Dinaro said scenes and culinary calendars are also very popular.

"Piggy girls in scanty attire were very prevalent up to about 10 years ago, says Ray Brand, product manager for the calendar division of Brown and Bigelow, the major manufacturer of advertising calendars.

"We decided to go out of the business of girly calendars about 10 years ago because it's not in keeping with the image we are trying to maintain as a quality house," Brand said in a telephone interview.

"We've moved to the type that is selling at retail, with fine art illustrations and scenes," advertising messages and manufacturers' imprints are also subdued, he said.

Obviously the change has not hurt business, brand said, freebies' distribution leveled off about 10 years ago, then picked up. He pegged the growth rate at about 15 percent a year for the past four or five years, even though some of the best consumer outlets have vanished.

There are fewer mass-and-palooza in residential neighborhoods, he said, and "there's no longer a shoe store on the corner giving out calendars."

But the needs of retail stores, banks and other service groups are greater than ever, he added.

"Millions are given away by local and industrial business firms."

Bookstores are also a major source for wall and engagement calendars. The booksellers' Marshall sees it as an overkill situation: more than 400 different calendars from 88 publishers are currently available.

Prices range from about $3 or $4 to as much as $23.50 for "Sothy's International Art Diary 1980," published by the international, London-based auction firm of Sothy Park Bernet & Co.

Subjects range from traditional to bizarre: From Norman Rockwell paintings to Miss Piggy and fantasy characters from television and the movies, from "Crocket's Victory Garden Calendar" to cannabis and cocaine calendars and the available. The "Simplicity New Diary and Calendar" contains lots of practical information such as time-saving sewing, craft and fabric care tips and measurements for 15 figure types and patterns from toddlers and chubbies to the average man.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration is taking steps to make sure the estimated 60 million Americans now covered by private dental insurance policies are not over-exposed to x-rays.

The agency has issued a notice saying that insurance companies should not require dental patients to submit post-treatment x-rays of their teeth when they file a claim so the company will have proof of the dental work done.

"As a general principle there should be some potential benefit to any individual receiving x-ray exposure. However, post-treatment dental radiography when required by a remote party is essentially a screening procedure that is not always needed because the decision to perform the x-ray is not dependent on the patient's dental care needs," the FDA said.

The action is part of the FDA's overall effort to reduce needless exposure to x-rays.

Some health experts believe widespread in the insurance industry, but the growth of dental insurance — by about 25 million persons in the past two years — has left the agency worried about the possibility.

The agency said dental societies and others became concerned when a few such policies surfaced several years ago "because such policies require patient exposure to radiation regardless of its clinical necessity or applicability."

The FDA also said it could be argued that "some other means of claims verification, such as random spot-checking of patients by an independent dentist for the insurance carrier is a more effective approach to detecting false claims or of assessing poor dental care."

All Coupons Don't Qualify for Double-Savings Offer

The Supermarket Shopper

By MARTIN SLOANE
Dear Supermarket Shopper - I recently received a store coupon from the Dow Chemical Co. that said "$4 worth of groceries free."

My supermarket was offering double coupon savings but refused to double the coupon's value because of the "free" word. Would you clarify the difference between so-called "free" coupons and those acceptable for double value? - Elaine B. from Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Elaine - When supermarkets offer to double the value of coupons, they mean cash-off coupons, the kind you clip out of this newspaper. Their offers are not intended to include manufacturers' free product coupons, the kind you receive from the manufacturer in return for proofs of purchase.

When stores advertise double coupon savings, they usually mention specifically in their advertisements that their offers do not apply to "free" coupons.

Dear Supermarket Shopper - You often mention supermarket coupons that double the value of cash-off coupons. I have kept an eagle eye on newspaper advertisements, but there doesn't seem to be a store in this whole area that is offering to double the value of my coupons.

How come? As an avid coupon clipper, I demand my rights! - Angry Alice from Georgia.

Dear Alice - Be patient. It is only a question of time before double coupons become your area.

They have spread to almost every part of the country except the South. And they have begun to be offered in North Carolina. We have seen indications that supermarket resistance to double coupons is crumbling in other sections of the South.

So get ready. Start building your coupon inventory. Save your high-value coupons. And when you see the first advertisement for double coupons, grab your coupons and get down to the store as quickly as you can!

Dear Supermarket Shopper - I have divided my cash-off coupons as you suggest, but I have gone a step further. In each of the 12 product groups, I have inserted a plain index card with the words "No Expiration" on it.

There are no expiration dates for many coupons, especially those issued by Pillsbury and Procter and Gamble. These coupons are put behind the index card and the coupons with expiration dates are put in front of it.

You now have two sections in each of your 12 files, but you can skip the "No Expiration" sections when it is time to look for coupons that are about to expire. This will save you time, and everyone like to save time as well as money!

Maureen - Your suggestion makes sense and I am giving it a try. I want to take this opportunity to emphasize that my method for couponing and refunding is not fixed and inflexible. On the contrary, I am continually looking for ways to improve the system.

I especially appreciate the help that comes from my readers. I carefully evaluate every suggestion that might make it easier for supermarket shoppers to get the maximum savings from coupons and refunds.

So, if you have an idea that you think is worthwhile, please send it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald. Because of the volume of mail, I am unable to respond to each letter personally.

Spices Do Have Lives

Consumer Report

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Dear Consumer Reports - Do spices - ginger or sage, for example - have shelf lives? How long and under what conditions can their flavor and aroma be maintained? Dear Reader - Spices do have shelf lives that vary depending on temperature and humidity conditions of storage. Most spices are ground, some are equipment that can heat them enough to drive off the aromatics that provide flavor and aroma. Thus, those qualities in a spice often have deteriorated even before reaching the grocer's shelf.

If spices were vacuum packed, they probably could retain their flavor and aroma for a year or more. But, since they aren't packed that way, the shelf life is shorter than that. To maximize the life of your spices, keep them in a cool and dry place. And to avoid prolonged storage, purchase them in small containers that can be used up quickly.

Dear Consumer Reports - I own an electric mixer, a blender and a meat grinder and have been thinking about adding a food processor to my kitchen tool collection. Would it perform enough tasks that the others can't do to justify the expense? Dear Reader - Whether an expense is justified is an entirely personal matter that only you can answer after considering the facts.

A food processor is a very useful kitchen appliance. It cuts food preparation time and handles tricky mixing tasks (such as making bread or pie crust dough) quickly and easily. Most of the processors we've tested are remarkably easy to use - an advantage that might inspire you to try recipes you've always considered beyond your reach, including mousses or patés.

Still, as versatile as they are, food processors can't do everything in the kitchen. An electric mixer is better for whipping cream or beating egg whites, and a blender only does a processor when it comes to pureeing large amounts of food. Indeed, many people may not want an all-purpose gadget that might be more than willing to chop vegetables, grate cheese and knead bread dough by hand.

Dear Consumer Reports - Should I put snow tires on my late-model front-wheel drive car? If the answer's yes, should they go on the front or the back? Dear Reader - Snow tire regulations vary from state to state, and local weather conditions must also be taken into consideration when discussing snow tires. So, check with your local motor vehicle agency and consider the prevailing weather.

Generally, snow tires should always go on the driven wheels, if not on all four. Many makers of front-wheel drive cars suggest placing snow tires on all four wheels for better braking and handling. The front-wheel drive market expanded this year with General Motors' line of "X-Cars." For road test data on four models, see the September 1979 issue of Consumer Reports. It also contains brand-and-model ratings of single lens reflex (SLR) cameras and vacuum cleaners. (To order, send $1.25 to Consumer Reports, F9091, Box 9000, Orangeburg, N.Y. 10962.)

No matter what kind of car you own, it's wise to read the owner's manual, which generally contains most of the information you need to correctly maintain your car. From the mail that arrives at Consumer Reports, it appears that many owners overlook this valuable source of information.

Apple Treats from France and England

Next time you offer a friend an apple or an apple dessert, toss in a bit of French or English. Did you know, for example, that the apple is a member of the rose family and a distant cousin of the pear? Apples were part of the cooking tradition in such countries as France, Denmark and England long before the Pilgrims set foot on this continent. The fruit was introduced to the Americas by Europe. Baking with apples is still popular in Europe, where it is demonstrated that there's more to a freshly baked apple than being part of a pie. For example, this French apple cake has a texture between that of a cake and a cookie. And a fresh apple tea bread is definitely in the English style, more like a cake than a yeast bread. Both make excellent desserts and afternoon treats with tea or coffee.

French Apple Cake
Topping
2 cups sliced pared cooking apples
1 tablespoon flour
2 1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Kraut, Frank Lasagna
It's neither purely Italian nor purely German. But lasagna filled with kraut, franks and cheese makes a hearty dish for big eaters. Kraut 'n' Frank Lasagna 4 cups well-drained sauerkraut (about 32 ounces)
1 pound frankfurters, thinly sliced
1 (12-ounce) package pasteurized American cheese slices
9 lasagna noodles (about 8 ounces)
8 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 1/2 cups milk
1 (16-ounce) container creamed cottage cheese
1 egg
1 teaspoon caraway seed
6 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne pepper
2 1/2 cups milk
Parsley, for garnish
If garnish is desired, reserve 1/4 cup kraut, 2 frankfurters (sliced) and 2 slices American cheese cut into triangles. Cut remaining cheese into strips.

Cook lasagna noodles according to package directions. Drain well and set aside.
To prepare kraut 'n' frank filling, melt 2 tablespoons butter in large skillet. Add onion and chopped parsley. Sauté over medium heat, stirring constantly, until onion is tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in drained kraut, franks, cottage cheese, egg and caraway seed. Mix until ingredients are well combined. Set aside.

To prepare cheese sauce, melt remaining 6 tablespoons butter in medium saucepan. Stir in flour, salt and cayenne pepper until smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Reduce heat to low. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and begins to boil. Remove from heat. Add cheese strips to sauce. Stir until cheese is melted.

In ungreased 3-quart ovenproof baking dish, layer 3 noodles, 1 1/3 kraut 'n' frank filling and 1/3 cheese sauce. Repeat 2 times, ending with cheese sauce. Cover with foil. Bake in 375-degree oven for 45 minutes or until center is hot and bubbly, removing foil for last 15 minutes of baking time. If garnish is desired, arrange reserved kraut, frankfurters and cheese triangles around edges and in center of baking dish when foil is removed. For easier cutting, let stand 5 minutes after removing from oven. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

Apple Treats from France and England
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
Mix flour, sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over apples. Drizzle with lemon juice and butter. For batter, sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into bowl. Beat together eggs, milk and butter. Add to dry ingredients. Mix until moistened. Turn into pan over apples. Bake in 425-degree oven for 30 minutes. Invert on plate and serve warm. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 to 12 servings.

French Apple Tea Bread
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg and cloves
Add 1/2 cup of dry ingredients to apples and nuts in small bowl. Stir to coat apples. Blend remaining dry ingredients into creamed mixture alternately with milk and vanilla. Stir in coated apples and nuts. Turn into greased 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

Drivers Feel Sight Changes

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Changes in vision that occur normally after age 55 can interfere with driving unless the driver learns how to overcome or compensate for the problems. The American Optometric Association says the changes include a need for more light, more sensitivity to glare, greater difficulty in changing focus from near objects to far and vice versa, slower reaction time, diminishing side vision and sometimes more difficulty in distinguishing the color of traffic signals accurately and quickly.

Champion Chili Recipe

Joe Stewart's recipe for "Reno Red Chili" which won the 1979 World's Championship Chili Cookoff.

Rendered beef fat to coat skillet 1 1/2 inch deep
3 pounds chuck steak, coarsely ground or cut into small chunks
3 pounds chuck, coarsely ground black pepper
8 dried red chili peppers, stemmed and seeded and boiled 30 minutes in 3-4 cups of water
1/2 cup chili powder (no kidding)

3 tablespoons cumin seed, crushed
2 tablespoons MSG (optional)
6 medium cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon leaf oregano brewed in 1/2 cup beer (like tea)
3 medium onions, chopped
2 tablespoons paprika
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 cans beef broth (not condensed)
1 cup stewed, pureed tomatoes

2 tablespoons masa harina (fine-ground corn meal made by Quaker Oats)
Salt, powdered oregano and garlic powder
Brown meat in rendered beef fat adding black pepper to taste. After browning, drain meat. Add chili powder, crushed cumin seed, MSG and minced garlic. Cook 30-45 minutes using as little liquid as possible, adding cooking water from peppers as necessary. Remove skins from boiled chilis, mash pulp and add to meat mixture. Add chopped onions, oregano and beer mixture, paprika, vinegar, one can beef broth and pureed tomatoes. Simmer 45 minutes.

Dissolve masa harina in remaining beef broth, stir into chili and simmer 30 minutes.
Taste and add salt, chili powder, powdered oregano, garlic powder to taste if needed. Simmer 15 minutes and serve.

Expert Says Extra Touches Will Make Your Beer Better

"Beer has moved up-town," the expert said. "Now that it has people should know that they should take as much care in serving it as they do with wine."

James A. Haire should know. At age 62, he has spent more than 30 years with Jos. Schlitz Brewing Company, one of America's oldest and largest brewers. He's responsible for giving Schlitz managers and distributors advanced education in the economics of the brewing industry and the marketing, care and serving of beer.

"Beer drinking is a very personal thing," Haire said. "In fact, many people drink it differently when they are alone than they do when in public. But there are a few things they can do to increase their enjoyment, and this is a little extra knowledge to share with friends over a round or two."

"First, it's perfectly fine to drink beer out of a can or bottle, but most people prefer to decant it — to pour it into a glass. This lets the carbon dioxide bubbles — escape, and it puts a head on the beer," Haire said.

"Don't pour it gingerly. Tip the can or bottle over quickly and pour the beer right down the middle so it foams up. Beer with a head has greater eye appeal, tastes smoother and goes down more easily."

"Next, he said, it helps to have a true beer glass, for example one of the

James A. Haire, an authority on beer, says the best way to enjoy beer is in a "beer-clean" glass — one that has been washed in detergent (not soap) and allowed to air dry, so it is free of animal fat and lint.

How To Become A Sandwich Artist

There's artistry in the making of a sandwich. Americans seem to have a special flair for combining unusual but complementary ingredients.

Joe's special sandwich — which blends spinach, ground beef, eggs and cheese with such seasonings as Italian herb, herb pepper and garlic — might have been too much for the Earl of Sandwich. However, it makes a flavorful filling for pita bread, buns or hero rolls. Serve with your favorite potato dish and fresh vegetable sticks.

Joe's Special Sandwich
1 (12-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 pound ground chuck
1 cup frozen chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon Italian herb seasoning
1/2 teaspoon herb pepper seasoning
2 large eggs, beaten

1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
4 (6-inch) pita breads, halved, or sesame hamburger buns
Drain spinach well. Press out excess liquid. Brown meat with onion and garlic over high heat, stirring occasionally. Drain off excess fat.
Add spinach and herb seasonings. Stir over low heat until spinach is hot. Stir in eggs and salt to taste. Sprinkle with cheese.

Continue to cook just until eggs are set, occasionally stirring gently. Remove from heat.
Gently open pita-bread halves. Fill each with about 1/2 cup spinach-meat mixture. Or serve on sesame hamburger buns. Serve at once.
This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings. Note: 1/2 teaspoon seasoned pepper or lemon-and-pepper seasoning may be substituted for herb pepper.

Glass. The Clear Choice with Connecticut's Deposit Law.

Effective January 1st, "Mandatory Deposits" are law in Connecticut. That means there will be a 5¢ minimum deposit on all carbonated soft drink and beer containers — cans, plastic and glass.

The state government is asking you to return these containers to help reduce litter. But you can do even more for your environment, just by buying everything in glass bottles — the standard of purity. Here are the reasons why:

- Glass is always recyclable.
- Only glass can be refillable.
- And glass isn't made from imported materials, but from sand — which America has plenty of.

What's more, glass can help make the deposit law easier on you. You can return glass bottles in the same convenient carriers you buy them in. So redemptions are quicker and easier to handle.

And everyone loves the way glass keeps beer and soft drinks tasting naturally delicious. Helps them stay fresh, too. Because glass is resealable.

With the new "deposit" law, you'll want the container that's good for the environment. And good for you. So whenever you shop, make the only natural choice. Glass.

In 1980, they're still our most important source of energy.

It takes a lot of human energy to supply the energy you use. It also takes hard work, dedication, and a real desire to help people. From providing 24-hour repair service to answering everyday questions, the people of Northeast Utilities work together to supply safe, clean energy you can rely on 365 days a year.

In fact, during 1979, the 7,180 men and women of Northeast Utilities produced 22 billion kilowatt-hours of electric energy, supplied more than 25 billion cubic feet of gas, installed 1,628 miles of power lines, restored power to over 500,000 customers in the wake of six major storms, committed almost 5 million dollars to research and new energy sources, including solar and laser fusion, gave countless hours of their personal time to help benefit community programs, and completed 60,000 "Energy Conservation Audits" for customers.

We also maintained 50 miles of public hiking and ski touring trails on company property, saved more than 20 million barrels of oil worth 400 million dollars through the use of nuclear power, donated and installed another utility pole for a family of nesting ospreys, responded to 2 million calls at our customer service centers, helped return 250,000 shed to their spawning grounds, spoke to 37,000 school children about electrical safety, and rescued at least six kittens stranded in trees.

NU people worked hard to increase the productivity of our generating plants, committed 20 million dollars to expand water power, instituted economical vanpooling programs, and changed to smaller, more gasoline-efficient cars and trucks. All in an effort to keep costs down...despite spiraling inflation and rising oil prices.

Our pledge for the 1980s is to do even more. It's a continuing commitment from 7,180 NU people to service, conservation, research, and affordable energy for the three million people we serve.

Rural Sites Best for Dumps, Report Says

By SUZANNE TRIMEL. HARTFORD (UPI) — A preliminary report says rural eastern Connecticut is the most suitable dumping area for 12 million gallons of hazardous wastes produced annually by state industries.

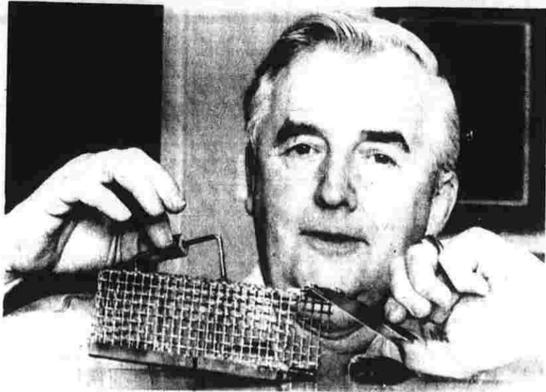

The draft, prepared for a state Department of Environmental Protection task force, said while economic and political considerations favor locating hazardous waste dumps in more developed areas, health and safety factors made remote sections more suitable.

But Stephen Hitchcock, director of Hazardous Materials Management for the State Division of Environmental Quality, said Monday the report "eliminates areas where dumps could not go," rather than "recommend where they can go."

"We're not saying the dumps can go in a certain area," he said. "But we're saying they can't go someplace."

He said the four counties which produce most of the state's hazar-

College Bans Booze

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — Central Connecticut State College, blaming alcohol for student vandalism, absenteeism and assaults on staff, has taken the "drastic step" of banning the use of alcohol on campus.

CCSC officials Monday suspended an 8-year-old policy adopted by the Board of Trustees for State Colleges allowing limited alcohol consumption and barred the use and possession of liquor by students.

A recent review of campus problems, including disciplinary cases, vandalism to college buildings and property, misuse and tampering with life safety devices, assaults upon staff members and absenteeism from classes, shows an overwhelming number of those incidents are directly related to alcohol consumption,

Welfare Official Says Eligibility Not Checked

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state Department of Income Maintenance official says the agency is so short-staffed it has temporarily stopped checking the eligibility of welfare recipients in Connecticut.

George B. Coleman, the department's deputy commissioner, said Monday the 80 people who normally handle the eligibility checks have been reassigned to process a wave of new benefit applications.

Federal law requires the state to check on the eligibility of welfare clients, but Coleman said there were so many new claims the employees must be reassigned to comply with court orders requiring disbursement of new benefits within 45 days after an application is filed.

"We made a difficult decision," he said. "We were between a rock and a hard place."

Coleman said a hiring freeze and budget cuts ordered by Gov. Ella Grasso has left his agency with 167 unfilled staff positions.

Sabotage Blamed For Derailed Car

HARTFORD (UPI) — Conrail officials say a self-propelled railroad car that derailed in Naugatuck Saturday was sabotaged.

None of the car's 35 passengers or crew members were injured when the train jumped off its tracks Saturday while on its way from Waterbury to Bridgeport.

The car hit a steel rod sticking between two rocks and propped from the tracks, officials said.

Educators To File Suit Against Arbitration Law

HARTFORD (UPI) — A statewide association representing local education boards says it will file suit seeking to void a state law mandating binding arbitration in teacher contract disputes.

The suit will be filed on behalf of the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education and four towns. It claims the law requiring local school boards and teachers' unions to submit unresolved contract disputes to binding arbitration violates due process provisions of the U.S. and state Constitutions.

CABE spokesman Steve Mansfield said Monday the law unfairly forces both teachers and local school boards to accept the decision of an outside arbitration party selected by the state.

High Court Upholds Teacher's Dismissal

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Supreme Court has ruled a local Board of Education was within its authority when it fired a tenured teacher over the recommendation of an impartial hearing panel.

The high court said Monday that although the hearing panel may make factual judgments in a dismissal case, the school board retains the final decision on whether the employee should be retained.

In a unanimous decision, the court upheld a lower court's approval of the firing of Robert Petrino from the Shelton school system.

Petrino was suspended by the Shelton Board of Education after he had been convicted of second-degree larceny. The panel substantiated Petrino's conviction, but recommended he be retained as a teacher.

Cramer Appointed To Defender Post

HARTFORD (UPI) — Richard S. Cramer, assistant federal public defender in Hartford for five years, has been appointed acting chief federal public defender.

Chief U.S. District Judge T. Emmet Clarke said Monday Cramer will head the public defender's office until the applications of 20 permanent candidates are reviewed by Connecticut's federal judges.

Andrew B. Bowman of Fairfield left the $45,000 job Monday.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, our 19-year-old daughter (I'll call her Ellen) went to work in a large office. Six months later, a woman phoned, saying Ellen and her husband (I'll call him Don) were having an affair.

Don is Ellen's boss. He is 36 and has 3 children. My husband and I were stunned.

We confronted Ellen with this. She admitted that she and Don had been seeing each other, but that he didn't love his wife, so she didn't feel responsible for breaking up his marriage.

Don moved out of his house and into an apartment. Ellen, who had been living at home, rented an apartment near him. We found out that they are living together, and Ellen only keeps her apartment for appearances sake. Don's wife told us that although her husband has had other affairs, she still loves him but has no alternative, so she's filing for divorce.

We were heart sick about what our daughter is doing. She isn't aware that we know she is living with Don. She also doesn't know that we found out she had a pregnancy and abortion since this affair began.

She comes home occasionally, and I know she loves us. I want to tell her to stay away, but a counselor advised us not to shut her out - that it would only drive her closer to this man. I think if we tell her we don't want to see her while she's involved with him, she might realize that she needs her family, and that this man is just using her.

Should we let her know about the pregnancy, her living arrangement, etc., and not to come home until the affair is over? Or should we play dumb and be cordial to her? We love her very much but are torn about what to do.

HEARTSICK IN TEXAS

DEAR HEARTSICK: Your counselor is right. If you shut your daughter out, you'll drive her closer to them. All parents want desperately to protect their children, but some grown children must make their own mistakes and learn the hard way. If S. You'd gain nothing by letting Ellen know the way you dug up about her private life.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed CHICKEN struck a painfully responsive chord. CHICKEN was engaged to be married, the invitations had been sent and the gifts were pouring in. In all the while she had a feeling that the marriage wouldn't work, but lacked the nerve to call it off.

A year and a half ago, I was engaged to a man who appeared to be "perfect" for me. Both sets of parents were overjoyed. On the surface it looked like an ideal match, but in my heart I knew there were unresolved problems. (He knew it, too, but thought marriage would solve everything.)

The closer we got to the wedding date, the more certain I was that it wouldn't work, but all the plans were made, the invitations went out, and lavish gifts started coming in. Three hundred and forty guests were coming to the wedding, and my dear mother had worked so hard to pull it all together that I didn't have the heart to call it off.

Well, we were married in front of all those people, pretending that we were going to live happily ever after, when we both knew we never should have gone through with it. The marriage lasted four months, and we are still litigating the divorce. The pain and embarrassment for my parents - and his - has been incredible. Those who sent wedding gifts felt ripped off, an everyone wonders what went wrong.

Abby, your advice to CHICKEN was right on: "Cancel the wedding by telephone or telegram immediately! It will be somewhat sticky, but far better than being stuck in a bad marriage."

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

DEAR OUT: A surprising number of readers - as well as women - wrote to say that they, too, were "chicken," but made the mistake of hanging in there until their goose was cooked.

Abby, your advice to CHICKEN was right on: "Cancel the wedding by telephone or telegram immediately! It will be somewhat sticky, but far better than being stuck in a bad marriage."

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

DEAR OUT: A surprising number of readers - as well as women - wrote to say that they, too, were "chicken," but made the mistake of hanging in there until their goose was cooked.

DEAR HEARTSICK: Your counselor is right. If you shut your daughter out, you'll drive her closer to them. All parents want desperately to protect their children, but some grown children must make their own mistakes and learn the hard way. If S. You'd gain nothing by letting Ellen know the way you dug up about her private life.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed CHICKEN struck a painfully responsive chord. CHICKEN was engaged to be married, the invitations had been sent and the gifts were pouring in. In all the while she had a feeling that the marriage wouldn't work, but lacked the nerve to call it off.

A year and a half ago, I was engaged to a man who appeared to be "perfect" for me. Both sets of parents were overjoyed. On the surface it looked like an ideal match, but in my heart I knew there were unresolved problems. (He knew it, too, but thought marriage would solve everything.)

The closer we got to the wedding date, the more certain I was that it wouldn't work, but all the plans were made, the invitations went out, and lavish gifts started coming in. Three hundred and forty guests were coming to the wedding, and my dear mother had worked so hard to pull it all together that I didn't have the heart to call it off.

Well, we were married in front of all those people, pretending that we were going to live happily ever after, when we both knew we never should have gone through with it. The marriage lasted four months, and we are still litigating the divorce. The pain and embarrassment for my parents - and his - has been incredible. Those who sent wedding gifts felt ripped off, an everyone wonders what went wrong.

Win at bridge

leads a diamond. Dumny's friends ask: "What now?"

The answer to the problem is that unless West holds the king of clubs you aren't going to make your contract. So, we have completed the hand with West holding the club king. It still may not look to you as if you can bring in the rest of the tricks, but they are there by means of an unusual play known as a criss-cross squeeze.

You simply cash all your trumps to come down to queen of diamonds and ace of clubs in dummy. West will have to unguard one of his kings and you simply cash the ace of that suit, lead to the other ace and make the last trick with the appropriate queen.

Note that if West discards all his little diamonds, you will have no problem. If he holds one an unguards the club king, you will be able to work that out also.
