

Second Quits School Board

By DONNA HOLLAND

BOLTON—The membership of the Board of Education is undergoing a change with the resignation of two of its members within the last two months.
The resignation of Wallace Kelley was accepted Thursday night. Kelley has accepted new employment and plans to relocate.
In his letter of resignation he said, "The insight gained by my service on the board has only increased my confidence that Bolton provides a very high quality educational program for their students and we continue in spite of its small size and declining enrollment."
John Morianos, board member and Democratic Town Committee chairman, asks any Democrat who is interested in filling the position to contact him by next week.
The school board appointed Andrew Maneggia to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Barbara Smith last month.
Maneggia previously served on the board for many years and resigned after he accepted principal's position in Vernon.
Morianos abstained from voting on Maneggia's appointment. He said, "I feel the board should not have two teachers on it. I think it's a conflict of interest."
Morianos said, "It's nothing personal. He's very qualified. I don't think you will find anyone more qualified."
James Marshall, board member, said, "Educators know a heck of a lot about this field and contribute a lot to it."

Three Teachers To Retire Early

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON—Early retirement has been granted to three Bolton High School teachers, by the Board of Education.
The teachers, who have served a total of 46 years in the Bolton school system, are Beverly Estlin, business education, Joseph Shanahan, social studies, and Ernest Stokes, French.
Shanahan and Stokes have both taught at Bolton High School since it opened 16 years ago. Mrs. Estlin has taught there for 15 years.
All three retirements are effective June 30.
John Morianos, board member who moved to accept all three resignations, said, "I've had personal experience with each of them and I mean it when I say it with deep regret that we accept their retirements. I will miss them."
Joseph Haloburdo, school board chairman, said, "I share your emotions. When you read a teacher who has been with the school since it opened, it's leaving, it's tough."
In November the board approved an early retirement plan that is applicable to the current school year only. Under the plan, the board had to be notified by Jan. 1 of any teachers who intended to retire.
Edward DiProno, music teacher, was granted until May 1 to make a decision on whether or not he would retire because of his recent illness.
The board granted a second year leave of absence to Brenda Solemio, elementary school teacher. Mrs. Solemio is currently on a one-year leave of absence for maternity reasons.
She requested an additional year so she can spend time with her daughter and to work on her master's degree.
James Marshall voted against the request.
Morianos said, "The basic job of the board is children so we should grant the request to someone who wants to spend more time with her child. We aren't creating a 'dish' for the school system."
He said he doesn't believe the board is setting a precedent because each case is a separate case.
The board ratified the appointment of Joseph Gamboli as a high school math and science teacher for the remainder of the year.
Donald G. McAuliffe, chairman of the Committee on Americanism for the Manchester Lodge, said the goal of the essay contest is to promote and stimulate interest in Americanism through the youth of the community.
The contest will be open to any student from the fifth through eighth grades in the Manchester school system. Each essay will be 150 words or less, on the subject "What The American Flag Means To Me." Essays will be judged on neatness and originality, as well as legibility and spelling.
United States Savings Bonds will be awarded to the winning essays: first prize, $100; second prize, $50 and third prize, $25. Awards of Honorable Mention

Unit Seeks Aid For Teen Study

MANCHESTER—Districts 9 and 10 will be the site of stiff competition in the Republican Town Committee elections.
In District 4 it is expected that three of the present 17 members will not seek re-election. But only nine positions are available in the district according to the new state law that takes effect this year.
In District 9 it is expected eleven persons will seek the available seven seats. Ten persons are incumbents while one Curtis Smith, Downey Drive, has announced his candidacy for the first time.
The Republicans are choosing their town committee by caucus election for the first time. Previously they were elected by present committee members.
The new state law requires equal representation for each district, one representative for every 100 registered Republicans. This forced shift of committee members is causing the squeeze in the two districts, which will result in some incumbents not retaining their seat.
However, Republicans are encouraging any candidacy, seeing this election as a chance to "open up the party to new people," according to party members.
District 9's challenger Curtis Smith, who is waging a full scale campaign, has received the endorsement of Carl Zinsner. Zinsner is also up for re-election in District 9.
"Some incumbents may not get on the committee," Zinsner said. "I may not even get on, but this is not the end of the world either. Who knows who will win?"
"I think the competition is good, even though it may cost me my seat."
Elise Swenson, committee chairwoman, expects there will be "a lot of hard feelings," after the Jan. 22 caucuses.
"Five people will be dropped in District 4," she said. "It's going to disturb some. Curtis Smith could cause an upset. He's working hard. If the others don't get out and get their votes they won't be re-elected."
Two husband and wife teams are expected to run in District 9 further putting a strain on the election. Zinsner, whose wife Ellen chose not to run this year, said one family member on the committee was enough for any family.
"There are only so many spots," he said. "It would make a difference if only one ran."
While District 4 and 9 have two may candidates, Districts 6 and 10 may not have enough. Seats are being added in both, four in District 10 bringing the total to seven and three in District 6, also for a total of seven.
The upcoming election will pare the number of town committee members from 85 to 78.
Nominations will be taken from the floor at each caucus, rather than as part of slates.
Monday night was really students' night at the store. For the sixth straight year, students from Manchester High School's distributive education class managed the store with only minimal help from their instructors and what few employees were there.

Democrats Face District 8 Fight

MANCHESTER—Lingering bitterness over a previous election may cause a primary battle in District 8 of the Democratic Town Committee elections.
District chairman Thomas O'Neill, did not include Mayor Stephen Penny and Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano in his slate, nor did they request to be on it.
O'Neill says they opposed his election as district chairman, and he will not support them now.
"They went against me, why should I support them," O'Neill asked. "If they want to run they can run, but we're ready for them. We've got a big district and I think our slate will run pretty solid."
"There has been speculation, denied by both Penny and Cassano, that they are formulating a slate to challenge O'Neill. It has been reported James Murphy, a committeeman whom O'Neill bumped, will on the Penny-Cassano slate.
Penny said today, echoing Cassano's remarks yesterday that they have not decided whether or not to run. He also denied reports of the slate.
Other party sources said they fully expected Penny and Cassano to run, with the backing of Ted Cummings, Democratic Town Committee chairman.
O'Neill said yesterday that Penny and Cassano were playing games to find out where we stand."
O'Neill says with two board of directors' members on the committee, the others will be intimidated.
"The rest of the members won't feel free to speak their minds," he said.
O'Neill's slate has not been filed in District 8, the deadline is Thursday.

Sanctions Threatened For Holiday Meetings

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — A black state legislator has threatened to bring official sanctions against at least eight Connecticut communities which had scheduled public meetings for today in violation of the Martin Luther King Day holiday.
Rep. Thurman L. Milner called the scheduled meetings a "slap in the face of state law and black people" and vowed Monday to file a complaint with the state Freedom of Information Commission if the illegal meetings were held.
The Hartford Democrat also said he would send letters of protest to the offending communities, demanding an explanation as to why the meetings were scheduled.
"Dr. King is not just a hero to black people but to America itself," Milner said.
He said he was upset because many people worked hard to convince the legislature to declare the slain civil rights leader's birthday a state holiday.
Bloomfield, Farmington, Vernon, Shack Windsor, Rocky Hill, Glastonbury, Windsor and West Hartford were known to have meetings scheduled for today.
Glastonbury officials had not decided this morning whether to hold a Town Plan and Zoning Commission meeting tonight.
Town secretaries said the meeting could be held as long as no action was taken on any items. Officials could not be reached because a staff meeting was being held by Town Manager Richard S. Borden.
The TFZ will only be facing a nineteen agenda tonight with possible action being taken on four items. If the commission cannot take action on the agenda, the agenda would be reduced to five subjects.
In South Windsor, a meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission, scheduled for tonight, was canceled when it was found it fell on the holiday.
A meeting of the Vernon Board of Education's Personnel Policies Committee, also scheduled for tonight was canceled. The next meeting of the committee will be on Jan. 21.
In Manchester, the Human Relations Commission had scheduled a meeting but canceled it because of the holiday.
Meetings of public agencies are illegal on state holidays and the state Freedom of Information Commission may impose up to a $50 fine on agencies found to be violating the holiday meeting prohibition.
Albert Lenge, the FOI's assistant counsel, said Monday to his knowledge there have been no complaints filed in previous years about irregularities had been involved in the decision to change the route.
Ms. Barbara Sachs ruled new information came out the night the board made its decision to change the route. She said Tedford didn't have the opportunity to dispute this new information.
Ms. Sachs also ruled it was improper that Deakin brought some members of the board of education to the disputed site. "Tedford didn't have the opportunity to bring the board members to the site," Deakin explained.
The board members may have been biased in favor of Deakin's position on the bus stop, due to his presence while they viewed the area, according to the decision.

Board To Rehear Bus Stop Matter

By MARY KITZMANN

MANCHESTER—The Board of Education at its meeting Monday night decided to follow the advice of the assistant town attorney and rehear the Tedford bus stop matter.
The state Board of Education had ruled the Bobby Lane/Gardner Street bus stop dispute, brought by Mr. Kenneth Tedford of 45 Bobby Lane, be reheard. The state hearing officer made the ruling because testimony at the various hearings raised new questions and because an administration official may have unduly influenced local board members.
The local board received the ruling Jan. 4 and has 30 days from that date to decide what action to take. Their decision to rehear the matter was based on advice from Attorney William Shea. Acting Superintendent of Schools Wilson E. Deakin suggested the board consider the matter before their scheduled meeting Jan. 28.
The board member Peter Crombie said he felt the board could respond to the matter "at leisure" and that the

Bill To Reinstate Biennial Budgets

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD (UPI) — A group of legislators are working on a bill to end Connecticut's eight-year fling with annual budgets without treading on the toes of colleagues who fear two-year budgets would give the governor too much power.
Rep. Abraham Glassman, D-South Windsor, chairman of the subcommittee studying the issue, said a biennial budget would force the Legislature and executive branch to think ahead before spending money.
"We usually approve programs without recognizing the fiscal impact in subsequent years," Glassman said Monday. "We've worked ourselves into a hole on some occasions."
He said that under the drafted bill, which will be aired at a Capitol hearing Jan. 22, the governor and Legislature would approve a budget for fiscal 1981-1982 and 1982-1983.
Any deficiencies, Glassman said, would have to be taken care of each year. The governor and Legislature also would have to consider minor changes and modifications for the second year of the budget.
"It's not really a two-year budget and then we ignore it," Glassman said. "It would require constant attention, but it wouldn't require building a budget from zero each year."
He said another advantage is agencies wouldn't have to work on budgets all year long. The present system requires departments to start working on the next year's budget the day after the current one goes into effect.
Wright believes the concept might fly this year, although a similar measure died after it was proposed by a special fiscal reform committee two years ago.
"People feel they should have been better prepared for what's happening this session," he said.

Troops on Border

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) — At least 10,000 Soviet troops have taken up positions along Afghanistan's border with Iran, diplomatic sources in the Afghan capital of Kabul said. The 66th Motorized Rifle Division, one of an estimated seven Soviet divisions in Afghanistan that total 85,000 men, have taken the position within the past "couple of days," posing a major threat to Iran's oil fields, the sources said Monday.

Iran Expels Press

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iran accused the American press corps of "insulting the Iranian revolution" and said they would be expelled from the country. The decision to expel American journalists came at a meeting of the ruling Revolutionary Council Monday night.

Carter Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is meeting with top aides and foreign leaders to prepare a major statement announcing what steps the United States is prepared to take to protect its vital interests in the Persian Gulf and Middle East. White House press secretary Jody Powell said the date and the forum for outlining the policy to the American people have not yet been set.

Nixon Will Repay

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has agreed to repay $33,295 of the money the federal government spent on improvements to his seaside estate. The settlement also includes a provision the General Services Administration will remove a controversial electric heating system after the Nixons move to New York City next month.

Gunman 'Paranoid'

DENVER (UPI) — A "paranoid" gunman who was hospitalized last year for attempting to get into the White House shot and killed a Secret Service agent in the Denver bureau, then was shot in a gunfight with agents. Agent Stuart Parison Watkins, 39, died Monday night while undergoing surgery at Denver General Hospital. The assailant, identified as Joseph Hugh Ryan, 31, Lakewood, Colo., died earlier at the same hospital.

Beirut, Lebanon: A leading OPEC oil minister Monday called the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan a threat against world oil supplies and said the 13-nation cartel will hold an emergency session to discuss the crisis.

Study Histories

ATLANTA (UPI) — Defense attorneys are studying the financial histories of prospective jurors in the bank fraud trial of Bert Lance, zeroing in on their loans, banking relationships and even checking account overdrafts. Jury selection enters its second day today. Only eight persons were chosen for the jury pool Monday, although U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr. said he hoped to have a panel of 66 seated Wednesday, from which attorneys could select a trial jury.

Surgery Failure

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslavia announced surgery failed sharply with Berdon and recommended the one-man grand jury system be maintained. He said a permanent one-man grand jury should be established for ongoing criminal investigations.

Judge, Prosecutor Favor End of State Grand Jury

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Superior Court judge, the state's top prosecutor and a maverick defense attorney say Connecticut should do away with the appointment of grand juries to weigh indictments in major crimes. Judge Robert I. Berdon recommended the state have probable cause hearings where attorneys would argue before a judge on whether a suspect should be formally charged and brought to trial instead of convening grand juries to decide. The former state treasurer who now sits in New Haven Superior Court told a study committee on grand jury Monday that the state also should do away with one-man grand juries for major criminal investigations. "Both the constitutional and the investigative grand jury have outlived their effectiveness. They have failed to protect our liberties," said Berdon, noting the present grand jury system stemmed from a centuries-old common law which attempted to put a buffer between innocent people and the law. Berdon's call for an end to the 18-member constitutional grand jury was supported by Chief State's Attorney Joseph E. Blawie, who resigned last year. He said he would act as chairman for the two months but will not seek reelection to a full two-year term.

Milford jail aial and the handling of the highly-published Barbara Gibbons murder case. Williams criticized the use of constitutional grand juries, saying his study of grand juries in the New Haven and Waterbury judicial districts had shown an overwhelming lack of minorities and the poor on the panels. Williams proposed that probable cause hearings be allowed in any case where a suspect doesn't post bond within 24 hours. He said innocent people have waited in jail for more than a year only to have their case dropped when they got to court. He said such situations could be eliminated by immediate hearings.

Pigskin Break

At least the 59 American hostages being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran will have something to break the monotony of their long captivity next week. Day 78 of their ordeal falls on Sunday — the day the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Los Angeles Rams tangle in the Super Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. Radio Station KMPG newsmen Alex Paen has a treat for them. He says he's arranged for a videotape of the game to be delivered for broadcast at the embassy.

No Payday

Playboy magazine centerfolds get $100,000 these days for posing in the nude, but Suzanne Somers says she didn't get a dime for the 10-year-old buff layout the magazine published of her. She tells People magazine she consented to the 1969 photo session because she was divorced, and shacked with $20,000 in hospital bills for her injured son. She says she's "very harrassed" by the whole thing. She's suing for $3,000 for the exposure at the time, but "chickened out." Says her manager, Jay Bernstein, "She didn't try to survive."

Banzai Barrage

American rock fans have been known to hurl everything from flowers and firecrackers to beer bottles at their idols, but Japanese aficionados have come up with a new wrinkle. Leif Garrett — just back from a Far East concert tour — says he suddenly found himself bombarded in Tokyo with a barrage of confetti and party streamers. Says Garrett, "It was like being caught in the middle of a kamikaze mission... At one point I couldn't see, lost my balance and fell." But he isn't complaining — says "better confetti than flying sushi — which is okay to eat but probably awfully messy to pick out of your hair."

Royal Rocker

When Princess Caroline of Monaco was quoted in the French magazine Elle as saying her private ambition is to be a rock singer, Shep Gordon was quick to respond. He's called her from Los Angeles — wants to know if she really means it. Gordon says he has just the spot for her — opposite a client of his. Gordon manages Alice Cooper and figures there's a spot onstage with his garish show even for a Mediterranean princess.

Glimpses

Desi Arnaz Jr. — 26-year-old son of Lucille Ball — and 24-year-old Linda Furl were married Sunday in Bel Air, Calif. David Janssen has been signed to play the title role in "Damian of Hawaii" — a 2-hour NBC-TV drama about a Catholic missionary priest who, 100 years ago, volunteered to live among heathens on Molokai. Jose Ferrer has just wrapped up his role in Columbia Pictures' TV drama "The Dream Merchants," costarring Kay Ballard, Robert Culp, Mark Harmon and Ray Milland. Peter Bogdanovich is in New York for production work on his Time-Life feature "They All Laughed," which will costar Audrey Hepburn, Ben Gazzara and John Ritter.

Attorney John Williams appeared at the Connecticut Capitol in Hartford Monday, to testify before the Commission to Study the Grand Jury. (UPI photo)

HARTFORD (UPI) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered agents to find evidence linking Black Panther Bobby Seale to a 1969 slaying for which he and a fellow Panther were tried and set free. Seale's attorney claims. The telegrams and other documents in the FBI's file on Seale were obtained by Williams under the Freedom of Information Act. Williams said Seale hasn't decided whether to take legal action against the government. "Again and again the special agent in charge responded 'Sorry chief, there is no evidence,'" Williams told a study commission on grand juries. Williams said the telegrams support his contention that the state's use of grand juries to weigh indictments in major crimes amounted to "a prosecutorial rubber stamp."

Swensson to Head GOP

MANCHESTER — As expected, Elsie "Bibi" Swensson was elected temporary Republican Town Committee chairwoman at its meeting last night. Mrs. Swensson will fill the unexpired term of Richard Weinstein who resigned last year. She has said she would act as chairman for the two months but will not seek reelection to a full two-year term.

Board Gets Labor Suit

MANCHESTER — Another labor suit instituted the town and its employees has gone to the state Board of Mediation and Arbitration. The board set a Jan. 22 date to hear the case of Robert Orlovski, a public works department employee. Orlovski, like two other public works employees, claims he was wrongly denied a promotion according to the union contract.

Manor Hearing Delayed

HARTFORD — The state has delayed a hearing on the possible eviction of Medicaid patients from a Manchester nursing home because the facility's operators have expressed a willingness to cooperate with officials. The state had accused the owners of violating the rights of 14 patients by transferring them to the Vernon Manor health facility without proper planning.

PZC Receives Sewer Request

MANCHESTER — An inland wetland permit and zone change request have been received by the Planning and Zoning Office. Woodhaven Builder Inc. of Burnside Avenue, East Hartford, have requested the inland wetlands permit for Birch Mountain Road. The permit, for use or development of wetlands, will allow the company to build and service term sewers. The storm sewers were a condition of an earlier Planning and Zoning Commission decision. The PZC allowed development of Blue Trail Estates, provided the company put in the sewers. An application to rezone four acres on East Center Street was also filed Monday. The land, owned by Louise England, Bolton, is zoned Residence B and A. The application is to change the zone to M, allowing construction of apartment houses, single family homes, and duplexes. The site on Cook and East Center Street, behind the V.F.W. was previously to be used for a small shopping center several years ago. This zoning request was appealed to the state Supreme Court, after residents objected to traffic of the proposed shopping center. Since the Supreme Court upheld the appeal, East Center Street has been widened and Green School has become the Senior Citizens Center.

Report Eyes Philosophy

MANCHESTER — The visiting commission from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges is in part of Manchester High School's philosophy and objectives which "guide the professional staff and the specific goals which they have established to meet the needs of the student body."

Who's the Real Culprit?

Without any disagreement among council members. The disagreements came when the mayor named several committees and attempted to establish four new subcommittees to deal with the four major town departments — police, public works, fire, and recreation. Campbell said he felt that these committees usurped the powers of the director of administration and the mayor and he and some other Republican members of the council have refused to serve on these committees. Last month when the mayor made some reappointments to some established committees, Campbell again led the objections to naming some Democrats to replace Republicans. Daigle said today, "The Republicans have indicated that they will appoint Democrats to replace Democrats who leave the boards appointed by the council. They are merely asking the Democrats to reciprocate where the appointing authority is the mayor."

Evaluation Team Says MHS Needs Renovation

MANCHESTER — After three and one half days of on-site analysis of Manchester High School, the 30 educators who play a large role in deciding whether the school is nationally accredited have decided the school is better than most but that it needs extensive physical renovations. The report, which was part of a school and community report, contributed to the report. The findings of the previous year's report, which Ludes said in a report to the superintendent he had already acted upon every recommendation that related to the health or safety of students or faculty. The report had mentioned hazardous chemicals, which Ludes said had been eliminated. The report also mentioned that the fire alarm system be redesigned, with it being amplified in noise areas, and a board installed showing where the alarm was set off. A safety consultant was suggested in the report to go over the use of the film, chemicals and welding tools. To act on the rest of the recommendations, Ludes asked for, and the board approved, a meeting of the school on Jan. 31. The high school will meet for half session on that date. The report is available in town libraries so any town resident can personally review the findings.

Evaluation Lists Goals

- 1. To develop a spirit of cooperation and respect for the rights of others and an understanding of what living in a democracy entails.
2. To encourage intellectual curiosity, ability to reason logically, and to provide a stimulating forum for formulation and exchange of ideas.
3. To develop within each student a sense of self-worth and purposefulness.
4. To equip those students who wish to enter the world of work with basic skills, practical experience and proper work attitudes which will help them to get and keep a job.
5. To aid the student in a wise choice of vocation and/or further education.
6. To develop skills to enable students to locate sources of pertinent information and to apply principles needed to accomplish their career and life goals.
7. To provide a program which will help students to meet the needs of a very diverse population by offering the individual student a wide range of both subject matter and level of difficulty.
8. To promote good health and physical fitness and a pattern of living which will enable the student to maintain this condition.
9. To develop an awareness of, and help eliminate, prejudicial attitudes, both in school and society, in the areas of sex, race, religion and economic status.
10. To encourage creativity and aesthetic appreciation and the development of skills and interests which will enrich students' leisure time as well as their choice of vocation.
11. To provide an awareness of principles of school, the home, school, work and within the community at large.
12. To provide an ongoing process of understanding and analysis of family relationships and organizations.
13. To promote students' awareness of their place in the ecosystem.

Report Eyes Philosophy

MANCHESTER — The visiting commission from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges is in part of Manchester High School's philosophy and objectives which "guide the professional staff and the specific goals which they have established to meet the needs of the student body."

Statement of Philosophy

Students at Manchester High School are recognized by school as unique individuals. It is the school's philosophy to provide a program which will enable the student to function in society and in an occupational situation. The school provides an atmosphere where students can develop a sense of self-worth and respect for others, regardless of differences among people: such as those of race, religion, sex, ethnic backgrounds and intellectual ability. Because the school operates within a democracy and is dedicated to producing students who will function well within this system of government, the school offers many opportunities for interacting of students with each other in a cooperative environment and for sharing of responsibility with staff members in many areas of school life.

Vernon Board Keeps Forum Rule

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — The Board of Education will stand by its existing policy to allow townspeople to speak on agenda items only during the Citizen Forum portion of board meetings. The board's General Policies Committee, recommended Monday night, the board change its policy to allow citizens to speak on any topic they wish to during that portion of the meeting. In making the recommendation for the change the committee, chaired by Robert Schwartz, suggested having the general public fill out forms before a meeting starts to allow them to speak on any issue they wish. However, the committee said if the topic wasn't listed on the regular agenda then the board wouldn't have to address it that night. Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, said he would have reservations about such a system. He said he has found that those having special concerns have had no difficulty in making those concerns known and to institute some action. He said it would be fine to say if a question is raised it wouldn't be dealt with that night. He said that could have an impact on the reliability of the board and could have an adverse effect. He said comments could be made that the board couldn't answer and likened it to incidents where there is testimony given in court and although it's ordered stricken from the record it isn't erased from the minds of the jury and others who heard it. Board member Dr. George Prouty said he is in favor of an open forum but not in favor of allowing persons to speak or ask questions on any subject they want to. He said if a person wants to speak on a special subject then he or she could have the item listed on the agenda. In defeating the motion to change the board's policy concerning the forum, the board assured the public that it was still open to listen to any problems or questions. Dr. Daniel Woolwich, board chairman, said he will keep an open mind and if anyone has a problem they should call him, and board member, or any of the administrators. He said just because the motion was defeated it doesn't mean the board is closed to suggestions and questions. The policy now in effect was instituted last year, up to that time the public could discuss any topic it wished to. Red Men MANCHESTER — Mianstonohob Tribe, International Order of Redmen, will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at the Italian-American Club, 135 Eldridge St. and will rehearse for the visit of the great chief. Refreshments will be served.

Flag Pledge Suggested

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — While the Board of Education isn't ready to approve a formal policy concerning the pledge to the flag, it has agreed to recommend to all teachers that the pledge of allegiance be incorporated as part of their daily routine. The question of that procedure is followed in the classrooms concerning the displaying of the American flag and the pledge of allegiance was raised by Mrs. Nancy Herold. Mrs. Herold was also instrumental in having the American Legion donate 25 inside flags and one outside flag to the schools, at no cost. Monday night, speaking during the Citizen Forum portion of the board meeting, Mrs. Herold said she feels adults should encourage students to pledge to the flag and the school board should endorse it. She said the curriculum in the schools is good but said she feels the board should emphasize the importance of loyalty to the country adding it might help to cut down on some of the vandalism in the schools. Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, had checked with each school to find out just what format the classroom teachers are following. He found out that all of the elementary schools are making this part of the daily routine but that Sykes, the Middle and Rockville High School do not do it on a regular basis because of the many other activities that are going on just before classes start. Dr. Sidman said the state mandates the American flag be displayed in each classroom but there are no mandates concerning the pledge. This is left up to the individual schools. Dr. Sidman said he had no objections to the board approving the recommendation concerning the pledge of allegiance as long as anyone's personal rights are adjudicated. The board, in approving the recommendation, agreed to have the General Policies Committee review the matter further to see, if at some time, the matter should be considered as part of the board's policy.

Board OKs Vo-Ag Trip

VERNON — The Board of Education Monday night granted approval to the Vo-Ag Department of Rockville High School to plan a two-day trip to Longwood Gardens and the Philadelphia Flower Show. Board approval was necessary because the trip will mean students will miss a day of school plus a Saturday. The cost of the trip will be about $46 a student and the students will pay their own way. The students will stay overnight at the Penn Center Inn in Philadelphia and will be gone March 14 and 15.

Century's Last Survey Sponsored by Society

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Historical Society is making its final survey of historical homes in this century. The society's House Marker Project entered its final phase this week with the mailing of notices to the owners of homes recorded in town between 1850 and 1880. Response has been satisfactory, the society said in a written statement, but it is hoped that at least 50 percent of those notified will display the markers, which are provided without cost. The latest notice mailing brings to over 100 those listed between 1750 and 1880 in the Arts Encounter Architectural Survey, which was made in 1978. Constance Adams, who has assisted Edson Bailey, chairman of the original Sites Committee, said those notified who might have questions or any others who have proof of their property's historical importance should contact her. AFS Meeting SOUTH WINDSOR — The American Field Service will meet tonight at 7:30 in the community meeting room of the South Windsor Community Center, Ayers Road. The public is invited to attend.

An Aid to Education

Manchester High School Principal Jacob Ludes deserves the strong backing of the entire community in his effort to further refine the school's open campus policy.

Monday he proposed changes to the high school's open campus policy that would restrict the movement of the incoming sophomore class in September and would require the privilege be earned during the course of the year for sophomores, juniors and seniors.

The new proposal would restrict the unhampered movement of the next sophomore class and would monitor sophomores' attendance, behavior and achievement to determine if they have earned the open campus option for their junior year.

All involved in the project agree there is a better educational environment at the high school this year because of restrictions proposed a year ago.

Those restrictions gave sophomores the automatic open campus option after the first 20 weeks of classes, if they didn't cut classes, cause trouble or fail to work at accepted levels.

Ludes reports the program to date has been a success. Most sophomores have earned the freedom to set their own schedule during free periods.

Some have not and still will be required to attend quiet study halls, along with juniors and seniors who have proven they can't be trusted with the open campus privilege.

Next fall he proposes to extend the restriction all year for sophomores, who will have an opportunity to earn their "wings" and be given open campus freedom in their junior year.

The open campus system is working well for those who have shown the responsibility and maturity to cope with the privilege.

We are pleased to see Manchester High School teaching students they must earn what they get in life. High school students are being shown that society requires certain behavior standards.

Whether it's called deportment, citizenship or responsibility these kinds of character-building requirements have been lacking in public schools for the past decade.

We think Ludes' plan will be of benefit to the community and the school by providing an atmosphere that will better encourage learning and by helping high school students learn the value of social responsibility and mature judgment.

Over the first twenty years of my ministry I behaved like the therapist in that cartoon. I had developed substantial resistance for my preaching at making my hearers feel that they were falling short of the mark.

A History Lesson

To the editor: I remember what history has told me. Walking along the streets of the former concentration camp (Oswiecim) Auschwitz, it was hard to believe that these are the same streets where not so many years ago lories had passed with corpses of prisoners, some who had died in the camps and some who had been shot in the yard of Block 11.

As I walked to the wall of Block 11, to pay my respects my thoughts were: "This is a part of me," not just because of my Polish heritage, not because the Nazi Army broke into the Polish territory on Sept. 1, 1939 and World War II had begun; not because the first prisoners to be taken to Auschwitz on June 14, 1940.

Yes they were Poles 728 in number, and stayed the largest single group until March of 1942 and amongst the Germans-Czechs-Yugoslavs-Soviet not because first to be shot were 40 Poles on Nov. 22, 1940; not because I am a human being and the 18 flags I counted and photographed in Block 4 were flags representing "man beings such as 11 of 18 nationalities who died at Auschwitz and whose blood had soaked into the road I am standing on and who died dreaming of uniting the world w/onds of brotherhood and its betterment.

History tells it is impossible to give an account of all the crimes committed by the Nazis in the occupied countries: bombing of towns and villages; extermination of nationalities; political, religious and racial persecutions and mass arrests were only some among a whole series of crimes.

Notice boards were full of announcements of executions, though only some were made public. Governor Hans Frank, when interviewed by correspondent Kleiss of "Volksischer Beobachter" (Nov. 6, 1940) made the following statement:

"In Prague, for instance, big red posters announced that seven Czechs had been shot a day, then I thought, should I wish to the same in the case of every seven Poles shot here, all the forests in Poland would not suffice to produce the necessary quantities of paper."

For the last time in the history of the Auschwitz camp prisoners were executed by hanging on Dec. 30, 1944. Five prisoners were then hanged: three Austrians and two Poles.

Ex-prisoner Franz Danman, an Austrian, thus related the event: "First the Poles were led toward the scaffolding. Seeing the gallows, they cried out in Polish: 'Long live Poland, long live freedom.' Then the Austrian Communists Burger and Friemel, together with Vesely from Vienna, were pushed towards the scaffolding.

Quiet among themselves, they walked the short distance, scornfully ignoring their executioners. Under the gallows, Friemel, a combatant in the Spanish Civil War, raised himself up and shouted in a loud voice, 'Down with Fascism.' With the noise around his neck he shouted again in a voice so loud that it carried far, 'Long live the Soviet Union, down with the brown plague of murder!'

Ladwig Vesely was the last, and with the noise already round his neck he shouted, 'We today, tomorrow you.'

History informs us that four million persons from all countries under Nazi occupation perished in Auschwitz.

Men had created the Auschwitz inferno for other men. Men turning against other men, against whole nations had transferred crime into the crime of genocide.

Squeal On, Big Oil; We Stand With Facts

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON — Whenever something appears in print that is less than reverent about Big Oil, its mouthpiece, the American Petroleum Institute, can be counted on to squeal like a stuck pig.

These piteous squeals have never bothered me. A columnist is known by the enemies he makes, and I'm proud to be on the "enemies list" of the greatest gongers of the Twentieth Century. But it would be nice if the API occasionally larded its porcine polemics with a few facts.

Last October, I revealed the contents of a CIA report which showed that the Carter administration had deliberately lied to the American public about the cause of last year's gasoline shortage.

Secretary James Schlesinger repeatedly blamed the troublesome gas lines on the Iranian revolution, which they said had caused a drop in overall world oil production of some 2 million barrels a day and a significant drop in U.S. petroleum imports.

But the API report made clear what Carter and Schlesinger knew — that both world production and U.S. imports were in fact greater than the year before. The oil companies knew this too, of course, but were apparently too busy counting the profits from the artificial shortage to bother correcting the administration's lie.

The API tried to shoot holes in my column, with a two-page diatribe sent to editors of the nearly 1,000 newspapers that run this column. Interestingly, the letter failed to address the only fact that might have embarrassed the oil industry — the strange circumstance that U.S. oil production was 150,000 barrels a day lower than the year before.

Instead, the API attacked peripheral issues. First, it claimed the CIA report was not secret, but was "circulated in various Washington offices, including non-government offices." Well, my associate Dale Van Atta was told by at least half a dozen government officials that the report was not available to press or public. He finally found someone who agreed to leak it. Maybe he should have asked the API, which apparently has no trouble obtaining CIA reports.

Then the API tried to pooh-pooh the figures in the CIA documents, claiming that they were nothing new, that in fact the API itself had published them week by week. This is simply not true: The API's figures were estimates, and unreliable; the CIA's figures were verified facts, which is what made them worth reporting.

More to the point, the Energy Department was also using unreliable figures, with the result that its predictions of a drop in world oil production were false, and was alarmed when figures began appearing to prove it. "When the discrepancy could not be resolved," the House report said, "no attempt was made to reveal the new data, or suggest DOE-published data might have been inaccurate."

Which is just what I wrote in October, Squeal on API.

A Forgotten Phenomenon

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first two months of the Iranian hostage crisis, American politicians gave the world a glimpse of an almost forgotten phenomenon — a bipartisan U.S. foreign policy.

There is plenty of opposition to this view, of course. Many Americans, both in and out of government, believe debate and dissent in foreign affairs as well as in domestic matters is essential to public support of government policies.

In any case, Jimmy Carter had no reason to expect that he would get the unified support of both Democrats and Republicans when the U.S. embassy in Teheran was captured and its occupants taken hostage.

What our world needs most of all is folks who can affirm life and work effectively to make the world a better place. Perhaps they need most to be moved by a vision of what a better world would be like. We need vivid images of a new day to capture our imaginations and move us on. Amos could do that, too, when he called on us to:

Let justice roll on as a river and righteousness as an ever flowing stream. Amos 5:24

Embassy Guards

Along with eight other Marine guards including one other woman — she takes her turn on rotating, 8-hour shifts guarding the entrance to the American Embassy in downtown Belgrade and carrying out other security duties.

Wills Necessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wills do more than pass on family assets to relatives and friends. They can keep family business operating, name guardians for minor children or create trusts to care for them until the children are old enough to control family assets themselves.

Careful estate planning with a will can also help minimize legal costs and taxes. A recent government publication contains tips on how to do all these things, $1.50.

If you missed the International Food Expo at the Civic Center this past weekend you missed a lot of fun. If you did attend, you know what I mean.

It was crowded, but once you fought your way through the crowd and drifted to the various booths, there was walking space.

We enjoyed the ethnic booths and munched Gaucho Pie with the Argentinians, tasted yuca and sausage with people representing the Dominican Republic, purchased meat pies, as well as tiny minicement tarts at the British Isles booth.

Thoughts

One of my favorite "New Yorker" cartoons has the psychoanalyst saying to the patient on the couch, "You mean after all these years of therapy, you still feel guilty? Aren't you ashamed?"

Over the first twenty years of my ministry I behaved like the therapist in that cartoon. I had developed substantial resistance for my preaching at making my hearers feel that they were falling short of the mark.

Identified with the prophet Amos. He tells of all the sins of Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, the Arameans, Moab, and even Judah and of how God will bring harsh judgments on all of them for their evil ways.

I suppose ministers like to scold because some people like to feel guilty. But I try not to scold any more. I have come to think guilt is a poor motivator. Guilt tends to immobilize us, makes us feel depressed and maybe even causes us to enjoy self-loathing.

What our world needs most of all is folks who can affirm life and work effectively to make the world a better place. Perhaps they need most to be moved by a vision of what a better world would be like. We need vivid images of a new day to capture our imaginations and move us on. Amos could do that, too, when he called on us to:

Doctor Says Adoptive Children Seek Info

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Adoptive children who search with the search for their birth parents are looking for information, not reunion.

The conclusion of David Peters, director of professional services for Christian Family Services in St. Louis, Peters' interviews have convinced him information surrounding adoptions must be made more accessible, both to adoptees and the mothers who gave up their babies.

Peters says a major obstacle to changing the law is the myth about what the adoptive children really have in mind.

The prevailing myth is that adoptees are trying to get back at their birth parents in some way, or that they just pop up on the doorstep one day and say "Here I am," Peters said in an interview. "Usually it doesn't happen that way at all."

"The people we've talked to have done it very carefully, calling their parents beforehand, asking whether they had given up a baby for adoption on such-and-such a date, then saying that they are those children."

Ludes Urges Expansion Of Closed Campus Plan

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — High School Principal Jacob Ludes told the Board of Education at its Monday night meeting that the closed campus program for first semester sophomores and senior problem students is working and should be a mandatory full year program for sophomores in 1983.

Under this policy, which Ludes instituted after seven months of reviewing the deteriorating attendance patterns, class cuts have been slashed by 50 percent.
Ludes said a review of sophomores' grades under this system shows improvement. The school shows that attendance and achievement are related, which we've suspected right along," Ludes said.

He said in view of these factors the 1983 class will enter the high school without any opportunity for an open campus privilege until their junior year. This policy removes the current opportunity sophomores have to gain the open campus right after one semester of good behavior.

The educators approved without discussion the field trip of the Illing Jr. High and Manchester High School students to take place at Nathan Hale elementary school has been the subject of controversy recently.

Several board members said neighbors of the school had complained to them about the proposed disco. Deakin said, "I share the concern because I know all you need to ruin this is one or two bad apples."

He said however, that the dance sponsor would be providing police coverage of the event and that the parking lot would be covered. "If you're going to have problems, it will be on the periphery of the event," Deakin said.

Duckpin Scores Higher
Duckpin bowling scores continue to climb and the latest to reach the 200 single game total was Lee Courtney last week in the Restaurant League. He rolled a 202 score.

While consistency has not been needed for the most part in all three games rolled by men or women there have been more one-game single highs than ever before.

There was a time when a duckpin had to roll a 100 single to get recognition.
With the passing years, the alleys have been made "faster" with more kickback and the result has seen scores increase.

Just why bowlers can't put together three straight big games, except for the "pros," remains a mystery.

In another year the single efforts for mention may go to 150 for men and 135 for women with only triples 375 and 350 or better for male and female pinners to be published.

Golfing Weather
The weather has been great for golfers but not for skiers," Karney Ovan, co-owner of the Tallwood golf course reports. The course is still open with a few die-hard golfers out on the weekend when weather conditions permit.

Officials at East Catholic High home basketball games find Cliff Demers director of athletics, handling the electric clock, football coach Jude Kelly the official scorer and Roy Giguere, track coach, operating the public address system.

A slumped down Bob Levitt is the familiar face in charge of the ticket booth at East Catholic basketball games, a duty he has performed for the past six years. Levitt, a top-flight baseball umpire, has dropped 30 pounds and looks like he could go around Atlanta, Baltimore, Buffalo, East Hartford, Both Manchester High and East Catholic High produce excellent basketball programs which are well directed to fans at home games.

Ludes said the administrative staff believes these changes will improve the educational environment and that the open campus privilege is, "more appropriate for older students than for sophomores."

Patriot Home Foes
New England Patriots home games next season in the NFL will be held in New England cities, Buffalo, Cleveland, Denver, Los Angeles, Miami and the Jets. Dates won't be announced until April by the league office.

Scott Must Serve Rest of Sentence

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A state appeals court says boxer James O. Scott, a contender for the world light heavyweight crown, must remain in Rahway State Prison and continue serving his sentence for armed robbery.

The Appellate Division of the Superior Court Monday said there was no merit to Scott's appeal of his conviction, which stemmed from a May 7, 1978 armed robbery during a drug-buying expedition in Newark in which a murder was committed.

Scott was a Trenton resident at the time of the crime and had been accused of the murder as well, a mistrial was declared when the jury could not reach agreement on the charge.

Scott, 32, was sentenced to 20 to 30 years in prison for robbery and received an additional 10 to 15-year term for using a weapon.

Scott has continued to box since he began serving the jail sentence and four of his fights from inside Rahway have been seen on national television.

His record as a boxer is 17-1-1 and he is considered by Ring Magazine to be the world light-heavyweight champion. His most notable victories were against Eddie Gregory in 1978 and Yagu Lopez last year.

In his appeal, Scott argued that his case was "poisoned" by a statement which he gave voluntarily but which he would not sign because authorities refused his request to have an attorney examine it.

But the three-judge appeals court disagreed, ruling the statement had been given voluntarily and that Scott had no right to have an attorney with him at the time of his confession.

CCIL-Leading Five Tests Tribe Tonight

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports-writer

Once before this campaign Manchester High confronted the CCIL basketball leader and came away a winner.

And that's the task awaiting the Indians again tonight as they host league-leading Simsbury High at Clarke Arena at 8 o'clock to highlight the schoolboy slate.

The Trojans, 7-1 in the league and 8-1 overall, moved into the top rung as both Manchester and Fern Falls fell last Friday to Windham and Enfield respectively to fall into second place, each 7-2. The Silk Towners are 7-3 overall.

Elsewhere on the schedule, East Catholic, 8-1, pits its six-game winning streak against non-conference Notre Dame High in West Haven while 2-4, 4-4 Cheney Tech entertains Col rival 2-5, 3-5 Rocky Hill High.

Both also have 8 o'clock tap-offs. Also, 2-7 Penney High travels to Enfield to combat 7-2, 8-3 Fern High while 2-6, 3-7 East Hartford High hosts 4-5, 4-6 Enfield High in CCIL engagements. In Charter Oak Conference tilts, 1-6, 2-6 Bolton High journeys to Middletown to face 1-6, 1-7 Vinal Tech; 1-6, 1-8 Hram High hosts 3-3, 3-3 Portland High in Lebanon and streaking 5-2, 7-2 Coventry High.

"They play the best team defense in the league and they make very few mistakes. They're an aggressive rebounding team, maybe the best rebounding team in the league. When you combine all those, they have to be considered the best," Pearson entertains 6-1, 6-3 East Hampton High as its of the circuits top four club collide.

On the staff side, Manchester High, 8-2 in the league and 8-3 overall, travels to Simsbury to oppose the 4-5 Trojans in an 8 o'clock start. Simsbury handed the Indians one of their two loop losses, 68-53, at Clarke Arena.

"This is the biggest game for any of the current players," cited Manchester Coach Doug Pearson, "If ever there was a crucial game, this is it."

Simsbury topped Manchester in the first week of the season, 47-42, and has won five in a row. The Trojans have come out on top the last six times they've faced the Indians.

"They are the strongest team in the league right now because without question they have the most intense team," Pearson viewed the upcoming foe. "They have the best guard in the league in (Jeff) Bogus and two outstanding players in (Zack) Harris and (Tim) Emrich and the other players compliment them very well."

Redmond Retains Senior Vets Title

Two Jacks, Redmond of the host club, and Dunmead of Easton, Mass., No. 1 and No. 2 seeds, finished that way in the second annual Junior Veterans Tournament last weekend at the Manchester Racquet Club.

Redmond, defending champion, did not lose a set in sweeping past four foes although he was forced to a tie-breaker in the best of three-final set.

The left-handed veteran, named No. 4 in New England Junior Veterans play, for men 35 and over, depended upon a serve and volley game to win top money against the No. 3 ranking New England player.

Redmond registered 6-3 and 7-6 set wins, taking the latter in the nine-point tie-breaker, 5-2. The champ broke Dunmead to serve in the first set to win the fourth game, but Dunmead came back to match the feat before Redmond took over and won the match in nine games.

The second set was tighter and Dunmead led at one time, 3-1, before Redmond hit his game together. To square the match, both held serve until the score read four and four a tie-breaker.

Dunmead was a tired man Sunday for he had teamed earlier with partner, Whitey Joslin, to win the mixed doubles play. The singles finalist played three singles and as many doubles matches Saturday and Sunday before starting across the court at Redmond in the championship tilt.

The odds were in Redmond's favor. He had defeated Hamilton 7-5, 4-1 (retired); Powers def. VanKruiningen 6-1, 6-3; Uthegann def. Clausen 4-2, 2; Poplawski def. Franh 7-6, 6-1; Shick def. Rooden 4-3, 6-3.

Finals: Dunmead-Joslin def. Joslin def. Kelly 6-2, 6-3; Tucker def. Lamberton 4-6, 7-6, 6-1; Dunmead def. Lamsford 6-2, 6-1.

Quarterfinals: Redmond def. Powers 6-4, 6-1; Poplawski def. Uthegann 2-6, 6-2; 7-4; Joslin def. Shick 4-6, 6-3, 3-2 retired; Dunmead def. Tucker 6-1, 6-3.

Message Loud and Clear

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — By making the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers 11-point favorites in Super Bowl XIV, the oddsmakers are conveying a message loud and clear.

Numerically speaking or otherwise, they're telling you there's practically no way the Los Angeles Rams can win Sunday's ballgame, and most people associated with professional football go along with that assessment.

Ray Malavus, the Rams' coach, doesn't care what anyone says. He can tell you two ways his team can upset the mighty Steelers: one by their ability to control the football and run it, and the other being by getting off the kind of pass rush that would minimize the effectiveness of Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

As the man who not only leads their pass rush but the one the rest of the Rams look up to for leadership and inspiration, Jack Youngblood, their veteran defensive end, emerges as the key to whatever meager chance they have of surprising the Steelers.

Youngblood is something to see in action on a football field. He has been focusing a lot on Mean Joe Greene of the Steelers, then you've got a pretty good idea of the way Jack Youngblood, the Rams' 26-year-old team captain, plays the game. He sacked enemy quarterbacks 16 times this past season to lead the team that department and was credited with 51 tackles, 29 assists and three forced fumbles. Along with that, he was named All-Pro for the seventh consecutive year.

Fingers Crossed

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed about him," said Malavus following Monday's practice session. "He worked today and moved pretty good. Against Tampa Bay, he did a good job but not what he's capable of. He's done a great job for us all year and he's the one who inspires the rest of our team."

Jackie Wallace, the Rams' lanky strong safety who played with the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl IX, says Youngblood has helped him immeasurably this season.

"Not only me, but everyone else on our defense," Wallace pointed out. "He does something for your morale, especially on those short yardage and goal situations where he'll get in there and make a big play, then pick himself up and tell us, 'Hey, we gotta stop 'em now.' He's one of those fellows who radiates his own confidence to you. You can look in his eyes and see it."

Defensive guard Dennis Harrah knows what Youngblood is going through now with his leg because he's broken the same bone, the fibula, in his own leg in a game with Denver early in the season and played two games on it.

"It's terrible, and playing on it is very tough to do," Harrah said. "The boy had a weight-bearing boot on. He was playing on it isn't very dangerous, but it's dangerous enough. Jack is a very tough individual, though. All year long, he's kidded me about my leg and said to me, 'You big sissy.' Now he says, 'I'll never say anything to you again.'"

Wendell Tyler was the Rams' leading rusher this year with 1,109 yards. He led the NFL with an average of 51 yards per carry and says he'll feel like a circus performer because everybody will be watching him.

Not everybody. The Steelers will be concentrating on Jack Youngblood more than anything else. They know if they stop him, they also stop the Rams.

Playing Hurt

There's only one hurt. He's still not completely over a hairline fracture in his left leg suffered a couple of weeks ago in the Rams' practice game over Dallas. He's playing hurt, says the Rams' coach, Ray Malavus, nine days ago and he'll certainly play Sunday.

Youngblood was decked out in western style, wearing a brown cowboy hat, suede jacket, blue jeans and tan boots after finishing a light workout Monday and he was hurrying to the bar to get his hair cut.

"Right now, I feel real good," he said. "The leg doesn't bother me at all." He said "All that stuff I've been hearing and reading about us not having a chance against the Steelers is a bunch of garbage. We deserve to be in the Super Bowl as much as they do. I think it'll be a lot more exciting, and the keys to our win will be if we can stop their running attack and put some pressure on Terry Bradshaw."

Fred Dryer, the Rams' other starting defensive end, says he'll be in good company of winning Sunday. "I'm excellent" if they are all healthy.

Montreal Well On Road Back

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens are coming back to Montreal and that means trouble for the rest of the National Hockey League.

The four-time defending Stanley Cup champions, being written off by some "experts" after a bad start and a coaching change, won their fourth straight game Monday, knocking the limping Atlanta to six shots over the night. The Canadiens and the New York Rangers skated to the win in the second in posting a 5-2 victory.

"We're starting to feel as a team," said Guy Lafleur, whose breakaway goal gave the Canadiens a 3-1 lead in the first game Monday.

"When you only give up two goals in a game, you know you are doing the job. This is the way the team should play."

The modest winning streak is taking some of the pressure off Coach Claude Ruel, who looks over for Bernie Geoffrion Dec. 12. The Canadiens are now 7-1 under Ruel after losing the first four.

"I told these players as long as they come to play these games prepared mentally and physically and give 100 per cent, then the breaks will start bouncing their way," Ruel said.

Lafleur's goal came at 8:58 of the final period. His initial drive hit the post but Atlanta goalie Don Buchard backed up and accidentally knocked the puck into his own cage. The Flames made it 3-2 when Jean Pronovost scored on a power play at 12:02, notching only his second goal in his last 20 games. Atlanta had a chance to tie the game in the final minute, but failed to cash in.

Guy Chouinard had given Atlanta a 1-0 lead with 53 seconds left in the opening period. Then the Canadiens used two power-play goals within a 35-second span of the second period to go in front for good.

With the Flames two men short, Yvon Lambert scored his ninth goal of the year as he tipped a drive from Lafleur past Buchard at 6:36. At 7:09, Steve Shutt got his 25th goal while the Flames were still a man short.

"The game turned around in the second period when we were two men

Grid Recruiting Visits Rapped

ATLANTA (UPI) — Doug Barfield contends the NCAA's new tougher rules on recruiting visits favors the nation's top college football powers.

The way Auburn's head coach sees it, a team like national champion Alabama — which happens to be his biggest rival off the field as well as on — doesn't need as much personal contact to attract the top high school prospects.

"Everybody knows about Alabama," said Barfield. "When you are No. 1, when you are appearing on television so often and going to a major bowl year after year, you don't have to sell your program."

"We don't have those advantages at Auburn, at least we haven't had them in recent years — so we find it necessary to get out there and talk to the young men we'd like to have on our team."

The NCAA, in its case so many of its recruiting changes in recent years, wants to cut down on visits with high school prospects as part of its continuing economic move. But Barfield feels this particular bit of economics will merely make the rich richer.

Talk with almost any college coach and he'll tell you recruiting is the least-liked part of his profession.

"I don't care for it because its very nature forces too many of our colleagues to do things that go against my grain," says Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "It should be enough for a young man, and his family, that we are offering a college education that quite often would not otherwise be available."

"It makes me sick," said Crum, "when I see some things that go on in recruiting."

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler suggested that if the aim of the NCAA is to provide real balance in college football, "Perhaps we should have a draft similar to the one conducted by the pros. Put all the high school seniors in a pool and have the college teams pick, although I must admit I haven't the slightest notion how you'd go about determining the order for such a draft."

John McKay, who gave up college coaching at Southern Cal to go with the pros in Tampa Bay, said, "The one thing that makes coaching in the NFL so much easier than it was in college is not having to recruit."

Pepper Rodgers, fired by Georgia Tech last month after 13 seasons as a head college coach, said recruiting was the one thing he wouldn't miss. "It can be demeaning at times," he said. "I've found myself sitting in a prospect's house, cats jumping on my chair, dogs and small children underfoot, and wondering, 'What in the heck am I doing here?'"

"This is all true," said Barfield. "But if you are going to be a college coach, you've got to accept the fact that recruiting is a key part of your job and you'd better do a good job at it if you want to be successful on the field."

The emphasis on having a winning team — and you aren't going to stick around long without one — puts a heavy burden on your recruiting. That's why coaches whose teams aren't on top have to work a lot harder during the recruiting season than someone like Bear Bryant.

Eagles Return And Post Victory

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles returned to the field after an 11-day break, East Catholic picked up where it left off with a 47-39 victory over St. Thomas Aquinas in HCC girls' basketball action last night in New Britain.

The triumph was the Eagles' fourth in a row and pegs their conference mark at 3-2 and overall record at 5-3. Their next outing is Wednesday afternoon at 3:15, a make-up tilt against Hartford Public in Hartford.

The setback drops the Saints to 0-5 in the HCC and 3-6 overall.

East opened an 18-4 effort in the first half and grabbed a 27-11 at the half-time break. Aquinas, behind some torrid outside shooting in the third stanza when it hit 60 percent of its tries, sliced the Eagle tide to 35-25 going into the final eight minutes.

Aquinas threatened, but couldn't pull close to East.

Monica Murphy and Sue Dalley had 17 and 16 points respectively to top lead while Denise White and Karen Lucier also turned in solid performances. Kathy Bassola led the Saints with a dozen points.

East's jayvees won their third in a row (no score given) to move their record to 3-5. Linda Johnson had 11 points and Sue Evans 8 rebounds.

East Catholic (47) — Ingallina 0-0 0. Lucier 0-0-0, Murphy 8-17, Walsh 0-0-0, Dalley 7-24, White 2-2-6, Cunningham 1-0-2, Farr 2-0-1, Skehan 1-0-2, Campbell 0-0-0, Totals 21-38-47. Saints (39) — DiPietro 2-0-0, Miller 0-0-0, Bassola 6-0-2, Camp 1-1-4-3, Clerker 2-0-4, Pont 2-0-4, Damusco 2-0-4, Hawrylik 3-0-3. Totals 19-39-39.

Stadler Controls Temper and Wins

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Craig Stadler was once described as a bear in a man's clothing stomping down a fairway.

He also was described as a short-tempered, self-centered young man who would never win a golf tournament.

"I was a little hot about that hole," Stadler said later. "But I told myself I was still going to win. It was a matter of my or him (Putzler) with whom he turned in the same threesome."

As things played out, that was the winning putt because neither Putzler nor Sullivan, playing in the threesome behind, made a move. In Classic by two shots.

Stadler, a former University of Southern California All-American and U.S. Amateur champion, thus walked off with the $50,000 check and his first victory after four years of trying.

"I played quite well all day," said Stadler, who is 27 and now lives in Nevada. "Every time I needed a shot, I got it, and I guess that's the key to winning a tournament."

Mark Hayes was at 37 while George Cudde, D.A. Weibring, Dave Hill, Tom Kite, Bob Mayberry and Larry Wadkins tied at 348. Keith Fergus and Jim Colbert were next at 349 and defending champion John Mahaffey landed at 356.

Johnson Earns Starting berth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Los Angeles' "Magic" Johnson, the first rookie since 1969 selected to start in an NBA All-Star game, and the league's top six scorers have all earned berths in the Feb. 3 game in Landover, Md., according to the final results of fan balloting released Monday.

Johnson will be joined in the West backcourt by Lloyd Free of San Diego and Adrian Dantley of Utah, Marques Johnson of Milwaukee and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles making up the front line. For the second year in a row, San Antonio's George Gervin was the overall vote-getter with 286,463 votes.

Johnson's starting lineup are 1979 MVP Moses Malone of Houston, Philadelphia's Julius Erving and Atlanta teammates John Drew and Eddie Johnson.

DePaul at Top of Pack

NEW YORK (UPI) — After 37 years, Ray Meyer finally made it to the top — but will he still be there in March?

DePaul replaced Duke as the nation's No. 1 team in the latest collegiate basketball ratings from the UPI Board of Coaches as Meyer reached the summit for the first time in his 38th year of coaching the Blue Demons.

The Blue Demons, 12-0, collected 28 first-place ballots from the 37 coaches participating and posted 56 overall points to easily beat out No. 2 Ohio State, Syracuse is rated third, underpunctuated Oregon State is 4th and Duke dropped from first to fifth following two straight losses.

Louisville moved into No. 6, Notre Dame is ranked seventh, St. John's, No. 8, became the second Eastern school in the top 10, Kentucky plummeted five spots to ninth and Purdue is second No. 10.

The Blue Demons' lofty position this year surprises even their venerable coach.

"I honestly thought we would have a couple of losses by now, especially with eight or 12 games on the line," Meyer said. "But we'll take it. I hope, and I'm quite confident, being No. 1 will inspire this team to work hard every night."

Ohio State, 11-1, picked up five first-place votes and 497 overall points and Syracuse, 14-0, recorded the other four first-place votes and 469 points in following four victories this week. Oregon State, 15-1, added four points to move up three spots to No. 4 and Duke, 12-2, lost consecutive games to Clemson and North Carolina and fell four notches from the top spot with 326 points.

Louisville, 12-2, vaulted into No. 6 with 392 points and was ranked at drawing a technical foul, shoved an official and was ordered to leave the gym. He returned and the game was stopped.

The University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff was leading Tougalo College when Jackson, Miss. 24-21 five minutes before the end of the first half Monday as Lewis became angry at a call and ran onto the court to protest, said IAFBP sports information director Carl Whimper.

Lewis drew a technical foul, then showed official Bill Shamburger of Little Rock. He was ordered to leave the gym, but refused. IAFBP security was finally called and the game was stopped. Whimper said.

40-Tourney Tour For Young Golfers

EAST PALMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — Paul Harney, a former touring pro who spent two decades on the PGA tour, has announced plans for a 40-tournament tour aimed at young golfers across the country.

The purpose of the Grand National Tour is "to offer young 60th professionals an opportunity to display their skills," Harney said. He stressed the tour is not in competition with the PGA.

The idea is somewhat similar to one being kicked around by the PGA. A PGA Commissioner Deane Berman has suggested a satellite tour for the younger players, who would compete for prize money with the best players moving up to the regular tour.

Harney, who operates his own club on Cape Cod, said he has received 400 applications and added the qualifying tournament will be held the week of Feb. 11 at the Tropicana Golf Club in Las Vegas, Nev. The top 250 finishers will comprise the tour. Tropicana will also be the site of the Grand National's first tournament March 17-21.

11 tournaments will carry a minimum of $300,000 in purses, Harney said. Sponsors are being sought from the fields of sports manufacturing, insurance and other groups.

Harney made no mention of television, but said he foresaw no problems in negotiating for sponsors and courses. He added, "the reaction has been very enthusiastic."

The tour will be owned by the Harney family, who own the Tropicana. Harney said. It will also offer life insurance and retirement income for the players, he said.

Each participant in the tour must pay an entry fee of $5,000, which covers membership and entry fees. In addition, each player must participate in at least 16 of the 40 scheduled tournaments.

The players must cooperate with sponsors, and can be forced to stay at certain hotels, wear certain shoes, use certain clubs and balls, and even promote the tour's advertisements, for which they will receive extra wages.

"Having spent nearly 20 years playing and promoting tournament golf all over the world, what I have felt is fond memories and some of the money I won. Many other good players were not so fortunate, though they labored just as hard. They have only the memories to sustain them," Harney said.

"The purpose of the Grand National Tour is to prevent the same things from happening to other young professionals," Harney said.

The tour is scheduled to last through October 19, with stops in such areas as Bakersfield, Calif., El Paso, Texas, Oklahoma City, Okla., Atlantic City, N.J., and other sites where the PGA does not play. Nine of the 40 tournaments will be played overseas, at as yet undesignated sites.

How Much Do Quarterbacks Get?

JUST ASK Murray Olderman

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff: It's going to cost the St. Louis Cardinals dearly because they procrastinated when first basemen Keith Hernandez walked into the front office last spring ready to sign a new contract. The best deal he could get was a young slugger was in a slump. All he did last season was hit 344 for the National League, which is 165 runs and 100 RBIs shy of MVP title with Willie Stargell. Now, Hernandez is expected to get $150,000 per year. It'll cost the Cards at least $2 million for five years.

Q: How long has Ray Guy been putting for Oakland and where would I address a letter to him? — R.R., Greentown, N.C.

A: Guy, out of Southern Mississippi, was the first punter ever made a first-round NFL draft choice — by the Raiders in 1973. While he was considered a top punter in the NFL, he was not his most productive. In fact, it was his first time he didn't make all pro. Yet over two seasons in the NFL, both with the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders, he averaged 42.6 yards per punt. You can write him care of the Oakland Raiders, 7811 Oakpark Blvd., Oakland, Calif. 94621.

Q: In which round do you think Vagas Ferguson from Notre Dame will be drafted? Also, do you feel that in the NFL the performance of Ferguson will outdo that of Charles White? — Nathan Schardt, Danvers, N.H.

A: In spite of the fact that Ferguson is pro prospect, Ferguson ran the 40-yard dash in 4.5 seconds, which boosted his stock among NFL scouts. He is a good punter, but I don't think he'll be taken by a first-round choice. But I don't feel he has the talent of USC's White. There's a tendency to downplay White as a pro because he weighs 182. But he's a smaller than Tony Dorsett of Dallas. White will surprise people.

Q: What's happened to George Blanda? When he retired, he really disappointed. Do we love him and suddenly — — Sammy Davis Jr. of the Houston Oilers, originally from Houston? — J.R., Caldwell, Idaho.

A: The salary range for NFL quarterbacks last year ran from $300,000 for a rookie ($1.675 per game) to $380,000 ($2,200 per game). The median right now is $102,600 annually, or $6,600 a game, based on the regular 16-game schedule. There is no California ante, rans in Sonora — the gold country. He went to school at Santa Clara, from where the Oilers drafted him No. 1 in 1971.

Head-On Collision at Astrodome

Coming from opposite sides of the Houston Astrodome at 50 mph, autos were driven up ramps and into the air for a head-on collision during auto thrill show last Sunday. The drivers escaped uninjured. (UPI Photo)

Hot-Shot Skiers Are Injured Less

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — A skilled skier barrels downhill at breakneck speed. He encounters a knotty spot of terrain, flies through the air and plunges to earth with jarring impact.

At another area of a ski center another skier just learning the ropes. Skiing along at a leisurely, relaxed pace, he attempts to make a short turn. Instead, he skids on ice and gets falls in the snow.

The proficient skier could be expected to break his leg or ankle, while the second simply would walk away none the wiser.

Wrong, says Dr. Jasper Shealy, a ski safety expert and one of few ski safety researchers in the country.

"The little old lady skier, cautiously has a better chance of getting seriously hurt than the hot-shot skier," said Shealy. "If the hot-shot falls, he'll probably walk away."

Shealy, an industrial engineering professor at the Rochester Institute of Technology, frequently is consulted testily in injury lawsuits and now is conducting injury studies on downhill and cross-country skiing. He is a member of a subcommittee on ski safety for the American Society for Testing Materials.

One of his favorite topics is debunking myths connected with ski safety and injuries.

Shealy said his research shows that ski lessons do not reduce the accident rate because instructors usually emphasize technique, not safety.

"If you take lessons it will make you somewhat safer earlier on, but it has no long-term effect on making you ultimately safer," he said. "Lessons are of no significance as far as safety goes."

Although learning how to fall properly is covered in most ski lessons, Shealy said most things not covered are "learned" through the school of hard knocks.

"Most instructors don't go over how to maintain equipment properly or how to avoid accidents when encountering ice," he said. "How to ski on ice should be included."

"We haven't gone as far as we can in the analysis of ski to see what we can teach people to make it safer."

In one of more surprising findings, Shealy said the severity of an injury is inversely related to speed. In other words, the slower someone is skiing, an injury is more likely to be severe.

"If you look at the strength of tissue — legs and bones for example — you'll find the bone is literally stronger on impact than with slowly applied force," he said.

"Imagine that you have a bucket of molasses and that you put a plastic spoon in the bucket and stir. If you stir slowly, the spoon won't break. But if you stir it fast, the spoon will break," he said. "The molasses is like the leg that the faster you try to stir, the stronger it becomes."

and, ski bindings release more readily on sharp impact. Shealy said.

Skiing is not as dangerous as people believe and the majority of ski injuries are not severe, he said.

"It's a question of perception," the 40-year-old professor said. "The reported injury rate for downhill skiing is about one per 1,000 skier day. Of course there are many more than that is reported, probably twice as many. But even then, that's not too bad."

"About half of downhill ski injuries are bruises and sprains," he added. "There is just a small number of fractures. Most injuries are relatively non-serious."

"But people have a perception that it's riskier than it really is," Shealy contended. "The injury rate 10 years ago was two times as much as it is now."

He said the reduced injury rate is due to improvements in equipment and snow-making apparatus, making for smoother terrain.

Shealy urged skiers to use caution on the slopes, but not too much caution.

"I'm not advocating people fly through the air, but caution can be overdone," he said.

Player of the Week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Washington Bullets forward Greg Ballard, who averaged 28 in three games, has been named the NBA's Player of the Week for the period ending Jan. 13.

Ballard, who has been starting in place of the injured Bobby Dandridge, had a career high with 31 points in Friday's game at Philadelphia and bettered it in Sunday's game against Portland with 32 points. For the week, he shot 58.5 percent from the field on 38-for-65, and averaged 12.3 rebounds.

Ballard, the first Bullets player to win the weekly award, gained the honor in spite of stiff competition from Moses Malone of Houston, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and Lonnie Shelton of Seattle.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This letter has taken me 2 1/2 years to write. It is in response to someone who asked you if she should acknowledge the birth of a friend's baby who had been diagnosed as having Down's Syndrome. (Mongolism.) Thank you, Abby, for saying, "Yes, the mother of such a child needs all the support and cheering up she can get."

I read that column the day I came home from the hospital with little Jimmy, my newborn Down's Syndrome baby. But there is so much more that most people need to know, and as one who has had that experience, may I say it:

Please keep in mind that what happened to Jimmy was tragic, but the child himself is not a tragedy, and neither is our other children, as do send a card, a note, or a little gift to acknowledge his birth.

Here are a few suggestions that will help you feel more comfortable when talking to your child with pity, and as one who has had that experience, may I say it:

Please don't ask if "manly" runs in the family. Down's Syndrome is a chromosomal defect, and is rarely hereditary. Furthermore, a Down's child is retarded, which is vastly different from insanity.

Don't hesitate to ask how he is getting along. Some people avoid mentioning the child as though he had died because they think the situation is too horrible to even discuss. When the child seems to be progressing, please don't say he seems "normal" and maybe won't be retarded after all. New parents need to face up to the facts regarding their new special child before they themselves can accept him as he is. By denying his limitations, you encourage false hopes, and convey the message that you don't really accept or love him.

About a third of all Down's children are born with heart defects. Our Jimmy required open heart surgery. He survived the operation and is much improved. We thank God for that, so please don't say it might have been a "blessing" had he died. And don't express surprise that they "would be" dead. And don't express surprise that they "would be" to operate on such a child.

Please believe the parents when they say that their special child is a very worthwhile little person, and is actually glad to have him. While Down's Syndrome is nothing to wish for, it can be accepted, and is not nearly as catastrophic as it seems the first few weeks.

In the beginning, the parents need to talk about their feelings. Don't argue. Listen. Let them weep, and weep with them. And when they can finally smile about their baby, you smile, too.

Don't refer to the child as "that poor little thing." It hurts me to see people look upon my child with pity, and as one who has had that experience, may I say it:

People don't mean to be insensitive or cruel - they just don't know how to handle the birth of an exceptional child. I know this is much too long for your column, Abby, but please write as much of it as possible. You will be doing a tremendous service to many.
