

Dem Slate Due Today

MANCHESTER — The District 8 slate for the Democratic Town Committee elections, the only slate not filed, will be filed today, which is the deadline date. The election caucuses will be Jan. 23.

While speculation has been running high as to whether Mayor Stephen Penny and Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano, both eliminated from the district-endorsed slate, would file individually, neither had filed by press time today.

Thomas O'Neill, Eighth District chairman, commented earlier this week that Penny and Cassano had opposed his election as district chairman and therefore he wouldn't support them. He said the two men didn't ask to be put on the slate.

O'Neill has charged Penny and Cassano with "playing games" to find out where they stand. Some party members said they expected the pair to run with the support of Democratic Town Committee Chairman Ted Cummings.

Those on the endorsed District 8 slate are: Joan Cooke, Lockwood Street; Raymond Lanzano, Lyness Street; Virginia Lessard, Lyness Street; Rocco Lupacchino, Adams Street; and Joan Lynd, Coolidge Street.

Also: O'Neill, Bluefield Drive; May Mohr, Thompson Road; Howard Pitkin, McKee Street; Enrico Lufini, Lyness Street; Irene Fisch, Grant Road; and Camillo Vendriolo, Summer Street.

Realtors Told Of Segregation

MANCHESTER — The Woman's Council of Realtors was told at its luncheon seminar this morning that a pattern of segregated housing exists in this area. The director of housing from the Urban League of Hartford said a regional testing program revealed these findings.

Twelve area towns were targeted and two agencies in each town were visited by a minority and white team. Both teams were of the same income level and were seeking similar housing.

Ninety-five percent of the white visitors were asked if they preferred a particular area while 90 percent of the blacks were not given the option.

In all but four cases, the agents could not find homes for the minorities. In all but two of the white cases, agents couldn't find homes.

"Realtors are not blatantly discriminatory, but there were two instances of discrimination," the spokeswoman said.

She said a white tester was told by the rental agent that the tester wouldn't be interested in residing in a certain area because it had a high minority population. The spokeswoman said the law prohibiting discrimination has been in effect for 12 years and that there is no excuse for this type of remark.

About 60 Realtors, none of whom were minorities, attended the luncheon at the Manchester Country Club.

Law Hikes Load Of Youth Cases

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town's Commission on Children and Youth learned at their Wednesday night meeting that Manchester may be the only community in the state to be determining its caseload in anticipation of the new law ending status offender classification.

Jean Zurbrigen, coordinator of positive youth development, was guest speaker at the commission where she described the status offender change.

She said as of July 1, no matter how many times a youth runs away, the child cannot be institutionalized. This is because of a law already passed but yet to take effect called Families with Service Needs.

In addition to the change in runaway laws, truancy, incorrigibility, and sexual promiscuity are no longer youthful offenses punishable by a term in an institution. Instead, the community must treat the family, which places burdens on all towns.

"Instead of saying the child is 'sick,' the court can say 'This is a family with needs.' This means that instead of one person going to a child guidance clinic, the whole family will go. The community will probably be faced with more people to deal with," Mrs. Zurbrigen said.

Mrs. Zurbrigen said Manchester is dealing with the increased demands by sending a questionnaire to 50 area agencies that deal with children. "We are the only community trying to find out the caseload," Zurbrigen said.

She called the new bill a youth and community issue and said her survey should provide some answers by Jan. 25. Lee Ann Stauffer, commission chairperson said she felt the survey responses would aid the commission in determining the need for a teen center or a teen crisis hotline.

At the last public meeting of the commission, General Manager Robert Weiss, and Robert Digan, youth services director, among others, said there was a need for a teen center.

Mrs. Zurbrigen also discussed her work with elementary students which she characterized as an effort to head off delinquent behavior, "at the pass." She said in fourth through sixth grade, students begin to exhibit a tendency toward delinquent behavior.

Mrs. Zurbrigen is working in Robertson, Verplanck, Waddell and Keeney Elementary Schools to "eliminate patterns that are predictive of other difficulties." The program's goal is to strengthen attendance patterns.

Several Commission members asked Mrs. Zurbrigen her opinion of the new law. "I don't know. I am not convinced sending runaways to Long Lane has worked. On the other hand, I'm not sure where the bottom line is. Who has the power to say stop? She asked.

Greg Kaine, commission member and high school staffer, said, "It seems like they can run free. There is no bottom line punishment. Even though Long Lane may not be the best, it was an option. Now it is one less option."

Gasohol Is Seen As Future Fuel

GLASTONBURY — Dick Mount, one of the owners of the Texaco gas station on Hebron Avenue, said he expects more and more people will be using gasohol in upcoming years.

This statement comes after Texaco Inc. announced at the Hebron Avenue station Wednesday it will sell gasohol at 20 service stations in Connecticut and eight in Western Massachusetts.

State Energy Undersecretary Thomas Fitzpatrick, attended the press conference along with Texaco officials.

Texaco spokesman Robert Hoxie said the firm originally test marketed its gasohol in Indianapolis, Boston and New York, but is now expanding into about eight other states.

"Our main objective is as an extender of gasoline," he said. "It's one way to stretching the supply. It's not an answer by itself, but it's a part."

Mount, who owns the Hebron Avenue outlet with his brother Bob, said there were about 40 persons at the press conference.

He said gasohol costs 6 cents to 8 cents more than average lead-free gasoline.

"But it burns cleaner and it gives more miles per gallon. The gasohol is 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol," he explained.

Texaco District Manager L.J. Marroni said Texaco is using gasohol to stretch its fuel supplies. He said however, that gasohol was no more energy-efficient than gasoline. He said the use of the product could help reduce the nation's dependence on foreign oil.

Mount said the octane of gasohol is higher and that cars will run better.

Housing Inaction Knocked

HARTFORD (UPI) — Three northeastern governors charge the Carter administration is doing too little too late to help the region with its housing problems.

But U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Moon Landrieu told the Coalition of Northeastern Governors' meeting Wednesday that other regions also have problems and the federal pie is just so big.

Govs. Ella Grasso of Connecticut and Edward J. King of Massachusetts tried to keep the session light, but Govs. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey, Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire and J. Joseph Garrahy of Rhode Island criticized federal inaction.

"The competition for the federal dollars is becoming keener and keener," said Landrieu. Population shifts have turned the federal eye to boom towns that have surfaced in other regions in the past 30 years, he added.

Landrieu said President Carter was the first to adopt an urban policy and was trying to coordinate housing, transportation and social service programs "instead of spreading ourselves in a thousand different directions."

"We brag about the fact that for the first time we have an urban policy," Byrne commented. "How about let's abandon our urban policy and go back to the good old days?"

He said indications are Carter will ask Congress to allocate fewer federal dollars for housing in New Jersey than the state has received previously.

Landrieu, who met with the governors to discuss housing and related energy problems, said Northeast states under the federal block grant system wouldn't be shortchanged.

Gallen and Garrahy asked Landrieu why the federal government was not moving more quickly in selling tax-exempt bonds for low interest mortgage loans.

Unless the federal government and Congress act immediately, "I see the housing industry coming to a grinding halt," said Gallen, who is Carter's campaign chairman in New Hampshire.

Landrieu said he was concerned there would be "enormous abuse" in state and local administration of the program unless strict controls were placed on the federally insured loans.

"I do believe they are going to be permitted, but with some reasonable limitations," he said, adding the Carter administration wanted to make sure the loans were not made for luxury homes.

The administration also was challenged by Carl Hurwit of the Connecticut Housing Department, who said he went to the Northeast meeting on housing and related energy problems "looking for a messiah."

CNG Seeks Rate Hikes

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Natural Gas Corp. today asked the state for a $15.3 million increase and requested an additional $1.6 million interim hike to cover increased operating costs.

A spokeswoman for the utility said the increases would add about $9.67 to an average monthly bill for customers who use gas for cooking and hot water. The hike would be about $12.54 per month for customers who also use gas for heat.

King Quillen, a spokeswoman for the Division of Public Utility Control, said CNG noted in the application that it wanted the $1.6 million hike immediately because it is moving into a new operating and administrative center.

"Generally the reason they think they need more money is because they have substantial increases in costs," Ms. Quillen said.

The last increase that CNG was granted was in May 1979 when it was allowed to hike annual revenues by $3.9 million. The utility had asked for $9.4 million.

Ms. Quillen said the hearing process on the overall increase would take about five months. Hearings on the interim hike, if the DPUC commissioners decide to proceed with that part of the application, probably would begin sooner.

Panel OKs Projects

MANCHESTER — The Town Building Committee approved a plan Tuesday night that will enable the town to prevent the abandonment of local dwellings this winter and allow for the weatherization of town buildings.

The project calls for the town to spend $20,000 to avoid the abandonment of local dwellings. However, the manager's office requested committee approval to withhold an additional $60,000 until April 1st, in order to protect residents against harsh winter weather which might force an unexpected rise in abandonments.

Under the original plan, which calls for continued mild weather, the town will spend $60,000 to weatherize the Lincoln Center by replacing all of the 80 windows. Of the remaining money, $4,500 will be spent to insulate the Center's ceiling, $3,000 will allow for insulation of the town municipal building's ceiling and $500 will go for the purchase and installation of recirculating fans in the YMCA gym. The fans are designed to increase the flow of heat which rises to the ceiling where it remains stagnant.

possible. McCarthy said that the town had received $88,000 under Public Act 79-11, which authorizes funds for Capital Improvement Projects for the Weatherization of Town Buildings.

Assistant Town Manager, Charles McCarthy, told the committee that the manager's office was concerned over large fuel bills which result from shortcomings in town buildings.

As a result, the town had been searching for a combination of local and federal monies that would make a capital improvements project possible. McCarthy said that the town had received $88,000 under Public Act 79-11, which authorizes funds for Capital Improvement Projects for the Weatherization of Town Buildings.

Expulsion Order

The Soviet-backed government today ordered the expulsion of all American reporters from Afghanistan, the State Department said in Washington.

State Department spokesman Mark Sawicki said the expulsion order appeared to have come from Afghanistan's Office of Information.

The office ordered journalists, including cameramen, to leave on the first available plane out of the capital city of Kabul.

Sawicki said additional details of the order, relayed to Washington by the U.S. Embassy in Kabul, would be available later in the day.

But Western diplomats in the Pakistan capital of Islamabad said their sources say the situation in Afghanistan has scarcely changed in the past week.

On the first anniversary of Shah Mohamed Reza Pahlavi's flight from power, Iranians marched through Tehran to celebrate. Militants holding the U.S. Embassy announced they have uncovered more documents "proving" some of the 50 American captives are spies.

Not Much Support

There isn't much support for a boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow among world Olympic committees and athletes, but the White House is trying to push some action in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

White House press secretary Judy Powell confirmed Wednesday, only the Soviets remove their troops from Afghanistan by mid-February, President Carter personally favors a boycott.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) - Mexico might introduce a Security Council resolution linking freedom for American hostages in Tehran to an international inquiry into the alleged crimes of the deposed shah of Iran.

The price of gold fell in London, Zurich and Hong Kong today, in an apparent easing of the frenzied buying, but the cost still stayed well above the $700-an-ounce mark.

The price of gold fell back further at the London morning fixing to $728.50, where it opened at $740, compared with a close of $755 the previous day and a world record of $785 an ounce in Zurich, it fell $26.50 to open at $733.50.

Elvis Drug Case

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) - Elvis Presley's doctor says if he hadn't provided the rock king with drugs, he would have gotten them from somebody else.

Dr. George Nichopoulos told the state Medical Board Wednesday Presley needed drugs to wake up and drugs to go to sleep; drugs to kill his pain and drugs to clear his throat.

Tougher Stance

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A Senate committee may take a tougher stance on criminal penalties for marijuana use now that scientific experts say heavy pot smoking can affect the brain, lungs, heart and reproductive systems.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said the two days of hearings on medical effects of the drug, which end today, will help the Judiciary Committee decide whether it needs to take another look at the marijuana provision in the criminal code reform bill it approved last year.

Man Charged in Slaying

HARTFORD (UPI) - A man who thought his case wouldn't go to trial has been indicted on murder and kidnapping charges in the torture slaying of a fellow youth gang member.

A Hartford Superior Court grand jury Wednesday handed up the formal charges against Kenneth Barak, 27, of New Britain, in the Aug. 31, 1979 slaying of Arthur L. LaBier, 17.

Police said LaBier was abducted and repeatedly stabbed and beaten to obtain information.

The 18-member panel spent about six hours listening to evidence and deliberating before it returned the indictment.

Barak, LaBier and a third man, whose case has been dropped, are public defenders, sought Judge John D. Brennan's permission to stand alone in representing himself in the case.

Brennan rejected the plea, allowing Barak to continue his own defense but also assigning a public defender as "stand-by counsel."

"For what reason do you want to represent yourself?" the judge asked. "I feel I can do a better job," Barak responded. "I'm aware of the facts of this case and I want to go to trial."

Brennan, however, warned that "a lay person is not really qualified to address about doctors by saying 'I feel I can do a better job.'" Barak objected to the judge's decision, but was told, "You are going to get it whether you want it or not so that your rights are protected."

Within a few moments he was conferring with the appointed lawyer, after failing to respond with challenges to the judge's explanation of law to the grand jury.

Under the state Constitution, a grand jury is required to return indictments in crimes which carry the death penalty or life sentences. Both the murder and kidnap counts against Barak are punishable by life sentences.

Brennan granted Barak's request that he be removed from the courtroom. He argued the jury could be biased by viewing the chains which sheriff's said were needed for security.

Barak was arrested in the Black Hills of South Dakota several weeks ago after the slaying. He has been held in lieu of bond at the New Haven Community Correctional Center.

Boxing Probe Concludes

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut's top boxing official says an investigation of welterweight Charles Newell's near-fatal ring injury so far shows no need for changes in the state's boxing regulations.

Consumer Protection Commissioner Mary Heslin, whose office regulates boxing in Connecticut, said Wednesday her probe of the circumstances that led to Newell's critical brain injury showed that "everything was in place and in order" by the end of next week.

She said the investigation was "80 percent complete and the full report will be submitted to Gov. Ella Grasso by the end of next week."

Newell, 26, remained comatose and in critical condition at St. Francis Hospital where doctors performed surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain several hours after he was knocked out in a fight last Wednesday.

Newell was decked by a hard right throw by Marlin Starling in the seventh round of a preliminary bout at the Hartford Civic Center.

Mrs. Heslin indicated she was still waiting for a report from Dr. John X.R. Basile, the neurosurgeon who rushed into the ring after Newell was knocked out. Basile, one of two state-appointed doctors at ringside, has been attending the injured boxer at the hospital.

Newell is a convict who began serving a 6-12 year robbery sentence in the minimum security prison at Enfield in November 1977.

Mrs. Heslin said since the Hartford man is an inmate and was injured while boxing professionally under a special prison recreation program, the state will pay for his hospitalization.

Landrieu said Wednesday the federal government has all but barred the conversion of apartments built with federal funds into condominiums but won't interfere with the private conversions.

"It is for each state, each local community to deal with this problem," Landrieu told at a news conference after meeting with the Coalition of Northeastern Governors, which was attended by five governors.

"We had to take a stand on condominium conversions in this state and we did it," she said, also calling for more federal funds for low-and middle-income families to purchase their own homes.

Similar actions limiting conversions have been considered by local officials in Hartford, where conversions have worsened an already tight market for rental housing.

Landrieu said HUD was studying condominium conversions and expected a report by May. However, he warned against expecting substantial federal action in that area or anticipating the federal government can do the entire job in any aspect of housing.

The committee agreed all condominium conversion "is not bad" as long as it was carried out with safeguards for tenants and owners.

One proposal would provide state-sponsored low-interest loans to increase incentives for new apartment construction.

Rep. Antonia Parker, R-Glastonbury, said any legislation drawn up by the Legislature should insist on home rule, with the municipalities establishing ordinances governing condominium conversion.

Sen. Eugene Skowronski, D-Derby, submitted five proposals to the subcommittee designed to tighten up legal protection for tenants caught in apartment conversions.

One would allow a tenant to sell back a condominium to the building owner if it proved unsatisfactory after one year. Another would require building owners to fully disclose the structure's condition to tenants.

The other proposals would set up an ombudsman office and a task force to assist tenants affected by conversions to either find alternate housing or facilitate the purchase of condominiums.

MANCHESTER - The Housing Authority Wednesday night unanimously approved boosting the income limits at the 276 units of elderly housing at Westhill and Mayfair Gardens.

The increases conform with the hikes the department of Housing and Urban Development approved in its Section 8 housing program. Under Section 8 guidelines, a qualified tenant pays only 25 percent of his adjusted gross income toward rent and the federal government subsidizes the rest.

Under the new income limits, a single individual now must earn no more than $10,500 and two people must have annual incomes of no higher than $12,000.

The authority also increased limits on assets the tenants can own. An individual cannot have assets over $15,000 while a couple cannot have assets over $20,000.

He also says "I never earned more than $3,000 a year before I was 31 years old."

He's 42 now, and earns $2 million a picture, but Hoffman still is circumspect about boy-girl relationships - says "perhaps one of the things you need for marriage to last is a short life span."

City councilmen in Albany, Ore., figure the end justifies the means when it comes to getting citizens involved in the municipal budget process. So they staged a raffle.

Twenty-five people turned up at this week's budget session - up 25 from previous attendance - to vote for $75 worth of free sewer use and a year of free city bus rides.

Heiga Wooley won the bus pass and Dale Lackman took home the sewer service. Both, presumably, gained increased fiscal understanding in the process.

Acting City Manager Gary Holliday says the raffle was such a success the council will do it again - this time with a cord of firewood and free boat rides on a city park lake in the hopper.

Condo Policies Said State Responsibility

HARTFORD (UPI) - Restrictions on conversions of private or public apartments to condominiums are best left to state and local governments, not federal authorities, HUD Secretary Moe Landrieu says.

Landrieu said Wednesday the federal government has all but barred the conversion of apartments built with federal funds into condominiums but won't interfere with the private conversions.

"It is for each state, each local community to deal with this problem," Landrieu told at a news conference after meeting with the Coalition of Northeastern Governors, which was attended by five governors.

The other proposals would set up an ombudsman office and a task force to assist tenants affected by conversions to either find alternate housing or facilitate the purchase of condominiums.

Income Limits Raised For Elderly Housing

MANCHESTER - The Housing Authority Wednesday night unanimously approved boosting the income limits at the 276 units of elderly housing at Westhill and Mayfair Gardens.

The increases conform with the hikes the department of Housing and Urban Development approved in its Section 8 housing program. Under Section 8 guidelines, a qualified tenant pays only 25 percent of his adjusted gross income toward rent and the federal government subsidizes the rest.

Under the new income limits, a single individual now must earn no more than $10,500 and two people must have annual incomes of no higher than $12,000.

The authority also increased limits on assets the tenants can own. An individual cannot have assets over $15,000 while a couple cannot have assets over $20,000.

Governors Talk Freely But Not About Politics

HARTFORD (UPI) - They kidded New Hampshire Gov. Hugh Gallen about being the new kid on the block, Connecticut's Ella Grasso and New Jersey's Brendan Byrne joked about legalized gambling.

But the five Democratic governors attending Wednesday's Coalition of Northeastern Governors meeting avoided the Democratic presidential contest.

Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy's name wasn't even mentioned during the session and in most cases his opponent for the Democratic presidential nomination was referred to as "the administration" or "the president."

Mrs. Grasso, chairwoman of the conference, welcomed Gallen as a new member of the governor's coalition with a veiled reference to his predecessor, Republican Melrim Thomson, who refused to join.

"This has been some time in coming and we're glad he could join us," Mrs. Grasso said of Gallen, whose decision to bring New Hampshire into the conference left Maine as the only New England state not a member.

Gallen said he looked forward to working with his fellow governors in addressing common problems such as housing, energy and transportation.

While he didn't talk politics publicly with Mrs. Grasso, Gallen said she had discussed the presidential race over lunch.

Mrs. Grasso, a leading supporter of Carter's re-election, wanted to know how the president was doing in New Hampshire's upcoming presidential primary.

Gallen said he told her the president's campaign was picking up additional support but still had a soft spot in southern New Hampshire, which has strong ties to Kennedy's home state of Massachusetts.

He said he and Mrs. Grasso also had spoken politics over lunch with New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne.

But when they sat down behind the microphones to answer reporters' questions, Mrs. Grasso and Byrne joked about gambling, a common source of revenue for both of their states.

"What time does jail start?" asked Byrne.

"You're asking the wrong person," replied Mrs. Grasso, a critic of legalized gambling. "Is that what you do down in New Jersey?"

"No that's what I come to Connecticut for," replied Byrne, whose state is the only in the Northeast with legalized casino gambling.

Correction

In Monday's Herald, it was incorrectly reported that Evelyn Graham will represent Connecticut and five other states at a Washington, D.C. seminar meeting of the national legislative council of the American Association of Retired Persons-National Retired Teachers Association. It is actually Evelyn W. Greig who will represent the six states.

State Board Ignored Info Law

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Freedom of Information Commission has warned the Connecticut Board of Higher Education it won't tolerate disregard or indifference to the FOI act.

The panel Wednesday adopted an FOI hearing officer's finding which concluded the board "violated several major sections of the Freedom of Information Act" while drafting plans to restructure the state college system.

An assistant state attorney general's request to strike the "gratuitous" language in finding's final paragraph, which was highly critical of the board, was rejected by the commission.

FOI Commissioner Donald Friedman, the hearing officer, said the board's "disregard" of the FOI act "not only places the violating agency in a bad light but diminishes the values of its recommendations and its work product."

"Furthermore, in the future, such indifference to the law may provide a basis for finding the respondent board has followed a pattern of willful misconduct with respect to which penalties should be imposed," the finding concluded.

State law allows the commission to levy fines of up to $500 for willful disregard of the law.

The finding said the violations occurred while the board was deliberating ideas during a series of workshops and a weekend retreat last June and July.

J. Sarah Posner, an assistant at-ney general who represented the board, said Friedman's finding was not supported by the record and the last paragraph contained "gratuitous language."

"It wasn't a case of an intentional indifference" of the FOI act and the board's deliberations showed "careful consideration of the public interest," Ms. Posner said.

She also called the finding's conclusion unnecessary and improper because it went "beyond the scope" of the proceeding.

The commission rejected her arguments, made a technical amendment and unanimously adopted the finding.

The complaint was brought July 13 by Antonia C. Moran, state coordinator for the American Association of University Professors, who claimed the workshops and retreat in June and July were held without public notice.

Friedman also found the board failed to keep minutes of the meeting, discussed certain matters in executive session which should have been before the public and improperly withheld documents about those sessions.

He noted the board had "a very important task: striking a restructuring of the system of public higher education."

Ms. Moran said the AAUP was "very pleased" with the finding and hoped to work more closely with the board.

Kelly Road Widening Opposed by Residents

SOUTH WINDSOR — Residents who oppose the proposed widening of Kelly Road should make their feelings known to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Town Council has passed a resolution endorsing the concept of widening the road. This action was necessary before any planned expansion by Gerber Scientific Inc., but the council left the Planning and Zoning Commission as the authority on the matter.

Woodcock said the issue is within the jurisdiction of the Planning and Zoning Commission. He said if the commission votes to deny Gerber Scientific's proposal to widen the road Gerber would have to take the commission to court and the matter wouldn't come back to the council.

Reagan Poll Claims State Lead

HARTFORD (UPI) — A month-old poll released just one day before a Connecticut campaign stop by GOP presidential frontrunner Ronald Reagan claimed he would win by a two-to-one margin "if the election were held today."

But the man in charge of the poll, Don Ferree of the University of Connecticut Social Science Data Center, said Wednesday the month-old results hadn't been updated.

The poll released Wednesday by Reagan's state campaign executive director, Anthony Nania, repeatedly referred to the results as current or as "the latest survey," saying the polling results were "released today" and showed what would happen "if the Connecticut presidential primary were held today."

But Ferree said the poll was based on interviews with 500 state residents between Nov. 29 and Dec. 5 and the results were originally released on Dec. 18 — nearly a month ago.

"The things that didn't make it into that release are first of all that the poll was conducted in early December and is not necessarily what would happen today," Ferree said.

"The results have already been released. We have not just done another poll," he said. "The quibble is the timing, the implication is there was a new poll done and that isn't true."

Ferree said the original survey never even mentioned the state's March 25 primary election — it merely asked who voters would like to see elected president.

Nania's release said "As in previous surveys, Governor Reagan continues to hold a commanding lead over his opponents for the Republican presidential nomination in this latest poll."

He said the poll gave Reagan 39 percent of the GOP vote, John Connally 17 percent, George Bush 16 percent, Howard Baker 7 percent, Robert Dole 2 percent, leaving 18 percent to undecided voters and 1 percent to various other presidential choices.

Ferree said the numbers were right — when the survey was taken — but the timing was wrong now.

"There's no clear way people would know we didn't ask people today and that we didn't ask anything about the election in general," he added. "The exact questions asked were 'Who would you most like to see elected president?' and 'Which of the following Republicans would you most like to see?'"

Reagan was scheduled to address a luncheon meeting today at the Stamford Italian Center.

Editorial First Arbitration Experience

Arbitration settlements for teachers in Manchester and Vernon have been awarded. At first glance, the settlements themselves seem to be fair, but the disturbing factor is the loss of local control over teacher pay scales. The Manchester settlement is particularly disturbing in light of the apparent $200,000 budget deficit. The board of education had budgeted teacher pay raises, but the settlement's impact went far beyond the budgeted amount, resulting in a real problem for town taxpayers. There is no doubt teachers deserve to earn a fair rate of pay. That isn't the real question.

The questions Manchester officials must face is how can you come within reasonable tolerances on budget planning when you have nothing to say about the pay scale award. As a result of the arbitration award both the Board of Education and the teachers are upset. The board, because it now must work to find the money to pay the teachers in the first year of the contract, is in a quandary. Further complicating the situation is the sincere effort on all parts to try and keep spending within the six percent increase guideline set by Town Manager Robert Weiss.

The teachers are upset because the second year of the contract limits teacher pay raises to 7 percent. The 9 percent raise in the first year is less a point of contention. In Vernon the settlement was less but the board and the teachers apparently were closer together going to arbitration. The overall picture of this first binding arbitration agreement may have a positive effect on future negotiations. Both sides in Manchester are unsatisfied with the settlement and the first experience has shown binding arbitration to be no cure-all for teacher contracts.

This experience may encourage the negotiating teams to work harder in the future to attempt to avoid binding arbitration. We think the best solution for Manchester is tough, concentrated negotiation at the local level. Both sides may prove to be more open to compromise and settlement, knowing the outside arbitration award was unsatisfactory. Binding arbitration awards could have been much worse and they could have been much better. We hope this will be the first and last time Manchester will be forced into arbitration by outside persons who have no feel for the community tax picture or for the need of the teachers.

Thought

I believe religion must not remove us from this world but bring us, instead, closer to it. I think there has been no more damaging concept and perversion of truth religion than the faith which leads to a preoccupation with another life in another realm. It is here and now that we all must be engaged. My religion must teach me to care about this earth now. It must be ecologically sound — appreciate the interdependencies among peoples and with the natural order — inculcate reverence for the entire earth as a holy place — require from each one of us, as a matter of course, roles to play in the conservation of energy, the protection of all species, and require celebration of our connectedness with all things and with one another.

The ancient psalmist felt this deeply and expressed it poetically in his images of this earth as God's creation and domain to be adored and cared for. Thou hast spread the heavens like a tent and on their waters laid the beams of thy pavilion: who taketh the clouds for thy chariot, riding of the wings of the wind... Thou makest grass grow for the cattle and green things for those who toil for us, bringing bread out of the earth and wine to gladden our hearts... High hills are the haunt of the mountain-goat, and boulders a refuge for the rock-badger... In vivid imagery the poet in Psalm 104 goes on to enumerate and adore the moon and sun, the day and night, rejecting that the earth is full of thy creatures, beasts great and small. Here is the great immeasurable sea, in which move creatures beyond number. Here ship sail to and fro, and then the psalmist proclaims: May the glory of the Lord stand forever, and may he rejoice in his works! It is, indeed, some contrast to have before us the image of Leviathan, the whale, as the playing of God, and to reflect on the still continuing slaughter of these great and glorious creatures of the deep. Yes, my religion must teach me to care for this earth and all God's creatures and creations in it. Arnold F. Westwood, Unitarian Universalist Society, East

Brown's Timing on Iran

By JEFF MAPES
WASHINGTON — When Gov. Jerry Brown called for a congressional investigation into the shah's admission to the U.S., there was little doubt the longest presidential candidate had one purpose in mind: restore his flagging campaign by portraying President Carter as incompetent. As usual, Brown's demeanor was serious and intense as he told reporters after a State Department briefing that "we have the right to know how we got into" the Iranian hostage situation. My first demand is that the facts leading up to this crisis be fully disclosed to the American people," he said in demanding that Congress find out if Carter was indeed warned that admitting the shah into the U.S. for medical treatment would endanger Americans in Iran. But Brown tipped his hand to his real purpose when asked why it is important hearings be held now instead of waiting until the hostages are released. Because, he replied, Americans deserve to "know how we got in this situation and the responsibility of Jimmy Carter — not in 1981, but in 1980." By 1981, of course, the presidential election will have been completed and all the congressional ducked taking a stand on whether Brown. "Unacceptable silence on the part of Jimmy Carter is unacceptable," Brown fumed at one point, unmasking his frustration at being unable to score points against Carter. The California governor's presidential hopes have received one blow after another in the last three months. First, Sen. Edward Kennedy announced his candidacy, suddenly relegating Brown to the role of a minor challenger. Second, Carter's popularity has skyrocketed since the Iranian crisis, making any challenge more difficult. And lastly, Carter pulled out of the lame debate, ending the one big chance the low-budget Brown campaign had for reaching a national audience and impressing them with Brown's rhetorical quickness. So, just as he did when Proposition 13 passed overwhelmingly despite his opposition, Brown had to think of something clever to recoup his political fortunes. Brown's fervent embrace of Proposition 13 after it passed worked, but it's questionable his attack on Carter's competence will be anywhere near as successful. After all, Brown has already ducked taking a stand on whether Carter was correct to embargo grain to the Soviets in retaliation for the invasion of Afghanistan. That's clearly a stand Brown can take without there being any question of endangering the hostages. Instead, Brown said nothing for two months after the hostages were taken. Knowing the entire time of press reports that the U.S. had been warned about admitting the shah to the U.S. Then, he finally calls for congressional hearings, which he does not claim will help gain release of the hostages. If it is so important to let the American public learn about what Brown sees as Carter's big mistake, why didn't he call for hearings a month ago? he was asked. "I think a certain amount of time was appropriate," he responded. What seems to make this an "appropriate time" is that other presidential candidates are tentatively starting to criticize Carter's handling of the crisis amid signs the public is becoming more impatient about the way the crisis has dragged on.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Zahedi's Heady Times Slowly Come to Light

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The deposed shah of Iran still rules a far-flung, multi-billion-dollar financial empire from his exile on Contadora island off the coast of Panama. He is in constant communication with his trusted millions around the world, who still address him slavishly by his imperial honorifics. The Panamanian authorities have upgraded the island's telephone system to accommodate him. The prime minister of his shadowy empire is Ardesbir Zahedi, who used to be the shah's swinging ambassador in Washington. His written reports to the shah, as always, begin with the salutation: "I kiss your feet thousands and thousands of time and beg you to allow me to report to His Imperial Majesty the following." Zahedi is now as secretive and elusive as he used to be ostentatious. He lives near the shah's secret bank accounts in Switzerland, slips frequently into the United States and pays court to the shah at his idesway. He has been little more than a year since Zahedi was the darling of the society writers who chronicles the pouts, whines and boss moods of the social moths fluttering around the flame of power in Washington. He was always dapper, always charming, always able to put together the lame puns and bland epigrams that pass as wit at Washington parties. But behind the tinkling glasses, sparkling wines and sophisticated chatter, he led a secret, more sordid life. He cleaned up his files before he surrendered the Iranian embassy to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's loyalists. But in his haste, Zahedi left behind clues to the double life he had led. This cryptic note, for example, was found among his abandoned belongings: "A girls wk. $1500." Witnesses explain that Zahedi did a big business with some of Washington's classiest prostitutes. He held orgies in the embassy's Persian Room — an intimate but lavish room, with a high octagonal dome of mosaic mirrors, a fresco of lovers set among tiles and silk Persian rugs assessed at least $50,000 apiece. He invited prominent guests into this richly draped and cushioned love nest to watch belly dancers, smoke opium and sample the favors of his high-priced call girls. Zahedi assigned two men to procure the women who were offered to guests he wanted to influence, sources say. For Washington ruckamucks who preferred out-of-town philandering, he reserved a suite at New York City's fashionable Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, his sources claim. Among his personal effects was a photograph, taken in his bachelor quarters, of a strikingly beautiful, raven-haired woman lounging on rugs and pillows. She is dressed in red pants, red scarf and a white blouse open down to there. If the names should ever be revealed of the men who have been entertained by Zahedi's call girls, sources say, it would be a major Washington sex scandal. My staff located some of the women hired by Zahedi, but they refused to identify their playmates. Apparently, Zahedi also passed out greenbacks as if they were calling cards. Embassy records show that he drew sums in cash. The largest single check made out to cash was for a staggering $500,000. He lavished money on luxuries. He paid $456,000, for example, for two custom-built Mercedes Benz automobiles, both armored and equipped with James Bond-type protective devices. He also used cash, according to witnesses, to pay off pro-shah demonstrators. Embassy attaches carried the money in briefcases and handed it out to Iranian loyalists. The witnesses also report that Zahedi would write out large checks for cash before receiving visits from certain U.S. officials and members of Congress. The cash presumably was delivered to the visitors, but there were never any witnesses to actual transactions. Both witnesses and records attest, however, that he distributed expensive gifts to thousands of prominent Americans. The gifts ranged from $700 tins of Iran's finest caviar to dazzling jewelry and Persian rugs worth up to $20,000. There were 4,000 names on his gift list. But this will be the subject of another column. Telling Ted President Carter is politically vulnerable in the West, and Sen. Ted Kennedy must change his image as an anti-growth conservative if he is to make any gains on Carter in the Rocky Mountain and sagebrush territories. That's the advice political advisers close to western states' governors have given Kennedy. Even Carter's recent upsurge in the polls has left most western political kingmakers unenthusiastic about his re-election. Angry farmers and developers haven't forgotten Carter's infamous "hit list" of water projects to be eliminated by Congress despite Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus' partially successful efforts to soothe ruffled feathers.

Muzio Wants More $$
HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's motor vehicles commissioner says complaints about his agency's inefficiency would stop if it had more money. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Benjamin Muzio told lawmakers Wednesday that the department's 900 employees do their best with what money they have. "We collected $110 million for the state and get very little help in return," he told the Legislature's Transportation Committee. But when asked how much more money the agency would need in its new budget, Muzio said, "We don't propose any new budgets because we don't get it." The Motor Vehicles Department has come under fire from lawmakers who say the agency could be more efficient and other claims that there have been many more complaints about the department from citizens. Muzio said the Legislature keeps adding motor vehicles statutes to the books without providing his agency with more staff and money to keep pace with the increased demands. "We keep struggling. Then we get a new law that says check each of the 2,000-000 people who are getting a registration and make sure they all have an insurance identification card," Muzio said. He said when he asks for more money he's told "work it in with your staff. We try, but if it doesn't work, we're called a bunch of bureaucratic bums."

Barry, Fahey To Ride First Bus to College

MANCHESTER — State Sens. David M. Barry and Marcella Fahey will be aboard when a bus makes its inaugural run Jan. 22 from Hartford to the campus of Manchester Community College. Barry and Fahey, both Democrats, representing the 4th and 3rd districts respectively, said they were pleased that East Hartford and Manchester students and staff of MCC will no longer have to depend solely on private automobiles to get to and from the college. The reverse bus schedule back to East Hartford and then Hartford leaves Depot Square at 19 minutes past the hour, passes MCC Hartford Road Campus at 33 minutes past the hour and then loops through the Bidwell Street campus. At 38 minutes past the hour, the bus leaves the main campus towards East Hartford travelling west on Silver Lane. The last bus leaves MCC Bidwell Street campus at 7:38 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Both senators have worked with MCC officials in urging Transportation Commissioner Art Powers to expand existing

Weicker Calls for Embrago

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn. has called for an embargo on the sale of all U.S. goods to the Soviet Union. Weicker told a state delegation to the White House Conference on Small Business Wednesday that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan demands such action. Weicker said an embargo on all manufactured goods would show the world that the U.S. will not stand for the Soviet attack. "People do not believe us," he said. "And they do not believe that we have the will." "When the establishment is willing to sacrifice, the world will believe us," he said. Weicker has said he favors a U.S. boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow.

Europeans Replace Americans As Caribbean's Big Spenders

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Suddenly, menus at major tourist hotels along Jamaica's north coast and on Barbados' silvery beaches are printed in German as well as English.

Prices all around the Caribbean are going up this year because of inflation and spiraling energy costs, and with the decline of the U.S. dollar, Americans seem to be traveling less in the sun-splashed islands on their doorsteps.

Airline connections between the islands and from the Caribbean to North America also continue to be a stumbling block because of frequent and difficult connections, but most Caribbean resort destinations aren't grumbling because they're packing in the Europeans and they're getting more and more of them on charter flights with package deals bypassing regular airlines.

The typical traveler around the Caribbean these days is no longer the adventurous American who makes his own way to the islands. It's a German, a Swiss or a Swede who comes on a package-deal charter and doesn't think there is anything expensive about a $100-a-day hotel room. When he converts it into his own currency, it seems cheap to him.

Because of the influx of Europeans, hotel reservations for the entire winter season running from Dec. 15 to April, when the Caribbean tropical sun seems especially alluring to those from cold, Nordic climes, may already be hard to come by on some islands. The major tourist destinations like Barbados and Jamaica, however, have central hotel reservations desks at airports and will always be able to put up the lone straggler somewhere in their wide variety of accommodations.

One exception is Trinidad at carnival time Feb. 4-8, 1980. This annual colorful spectacle, the premier carnival of the New Orleans and Rio de Janeiro, is such an attraction that at this late date all hotels are already sold by booked.

"The season looks fabulous," beams Mrs. Barbara Gloudon, Jamaica's deputy tourism director based in Montego Bay.

The European tourism market has opened up in such a big way for Jamaica that the island's national Americans will come here than ever before instead of going to Europe.

"No matter what happens in the U.S. economy, we're in for another record season," says Eric Bergstrom, the Wisconsin-born tourism director of the tiny British colony of the Cayman Islands, located midway between Cuba, Jamaica and Central America and fast coming up as a scuba-diving mecca.

Bill Stewart, the Hotels Association president of St. Lucia, a newly independent nation in the Eastern Caribbean with unrivaled scenic beauty such as a drive-in volcano, said hotel bookings this year are up 100 percent over the previous year, mainly due to the activities of charter operators.

Barbados boasts a 34 percent increase in travelers from the European market

Board Names Panel to Study MHS Renovations

MANCHESTER — As promised last month, the Board of Education has announced the formation of an ad hoc citizens panel to study the renovations at Manchester High School. James Moroney, 42 Hilliard Street, Carter Street.

The board released the names of the members Monday night. The committee will offer recommendations on an administration report and will also be asked to offer any modifications. It will be asked as well to explain the project to Manchester residents.

The school board is gearing for a November referendum. Estimates to repair the deteriorated roof range between $5,000 and $9,000. The balance of repairs hasn't been estimated yet.

The committee includes: Roger Bagley, 66 Dale Road, N. Charles Boggin, 71 Spencer Street; William Brinshaw, 5 Dover Road; Dr. Daniel Baras, 94 Highland Drive; Scott Clendaniel, 39 Duncan Road; Judy Clough, 50 Mountain Road; Howard Epstein, 145 Lakewood Circle N.; Miller Hugh, 201 Shallowbrook Lane; Neil Hauraban, 472 Hillard Street, and Paul Hubbard, 4 Earl Street.

U.S. Money Aids Urban Homestead

HARTFORD (UPI) — Moon Landrieu, U.S. secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Wednesday announced a federal loan to aid the remodeling of a city apartment building, the state's first multiple-family urban homesteading effort.

Landrieu, accompanied by Gov. Ella Grasso and Mayor George Athanson, announced the $118,000 loan while standing in front of the three-story yellow brick apartment building in Hartford's deteriorating Clay Hill neighborhood. The house is being gutted and will be remodeled into six apartments. The units will be owned on a cooperative basis.

Another $82,000 has been collected from various sources to fund the rehabilitation project. Landrieu said the loan, which carries a 3 percent interest rate, is not monumental but significant in terms of urban efforts to reclaim and remodel abandoned buildings.

"We believe we can ultimately rehabilitate whole neighborhoods," said Landrieu, who was to meet with Northeast governors later in the day to discuss housing problems.

South Windsor Accepts Check

SOUTH WINDSOR — A check for $140,000 from the Town of Manchester, originally refused by South Windsor officials because the sewer agreement hadn't been finalized between the two towns, has now been accepted. South Windsor officials said.

The fee is for the hookup of the sewer to the western part of the J.C. Penney Industrial Park to the South Windsor lines.

The new agreement was requested by South Windsor officials when it became apparent that in order for Manchester to take any sewage from South Windsor, the sewage would have to flow through the Eight Utilities District, which was not part of the original agreement.

The Manchester-South Windsor agreement, surrounded by controversy since 1977, calls for adjoining towns to treat sewage originating outside of the boundaries, if the land contour and gravity make such transfer more feasible than in-town pumping to the sewage treatment plants.

Town Attorney John Woodcock told the Town Council that both Manchester and South Windsor can hook into each other's sewer systems in keeping with the contract. Acting Town Manager Charles Enos said the $140,000 received from Manchester has to be used "for something to do with sewers" and may be used to pay off interest on sewer bonds.

Three at Cheney Quit Hoop Squad

MANCHESTER— Resembling what occurred at cross-town Manchester High School where one player left the team, three members of the Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School's varsity basketball team have quit, it has been learned.

Guard Mike Fraser, forward Mike Kenon and center Blayne Cohen have left the squad in recent days, reportedly because of conflicts with second-year Head Coach Phil Crockett.

Fraser left the team after sitting and not playing in Cheney's Jan. 8 contest against Canton High School, a game the Techmen won, 48-43.

Cheney is scheduled to play Crownell High School Friday afternoon at the Cheney gym at 8 o'clock. The Beaver record stands 2-5 in the

Thoughts ApLENTY

By Len Auster

What's Unreasonable Does Manchester High basketball Coach Doug Pearson deserve the treatment he received at this week's Board of Education meeting?

Pearson has been charged with harassment of player John Haslett by the player's mother, Harriet. Mrs. Haslett went so far as to demand the coach be fired. She attacked without warning and her comments were made without Pearson being given a chance to tell his side.

Harassment is a serious charge. Mrs. Haslett has said Pearson is being unreasonable.

Those who deal with Pearson know he can, indeed, be cantankerous. Most concern he isn't unyielding and has been known to admit a mistake and go on, holding no grudge.

But before everyone takes a side I think we should examine some facts. Authority Chairman Pascal Mastrangelo, a Democrat, said, "If a person can't live up to the specifications, I really believe that person should not accept the appointment. I rest my case."

After the criticism was given, Schwolsky asking the authority's attorney, Allan D. Thomas, if a member can be removed after missing two meetings without good cause.

Thomas said the Board of Directors, who have authority over all appointments, could remove the person. He promised to review the statutes and determine whether the authority has the right to remove one of its members.

Murphy said his part-time work would not be a hindrance to his attendance at the meetings.

UConn Takes Free Throw Tilt

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter

Spending a lot of time 15 feet away from the basket, UConn converted 36-of-44 free throw opportunities to topple Iona College at the Field House in Storrs.

A less than capacity crowd of 4,480 watched the Huskies win their fourth in a row to move to 10-4 for the season. The young Rams now sport a 4-9 mark.

UConn's next court action is Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock against McNeese State. The Huskies return to Big East Conference play Wednesday when they host Providence College at the New Haven Coliseum at 8 o'clock.

Tickets for both contests are still available. The Huskies were only 15-for-39 (38.5 percent) from the field but 29 fouls whittled on the young and anxious Rams sent them to the charity stripe. Their UConn made hay, hitting 81.4 percent.

Forty-four to 13 in free throws, UConn emerged with a 31-29 edge. A hoop by John Walsh with 14:36 remaining made it a 6-point spread but then the Huskies struck back.

Clay Johnson ended a five-and-a-half minute scoring drought with a 15-foot jumper and Mike McKay skied to the jam home dunk, awakening the crowd.

"McKay's hoop woke everyone up," agreed Husky Coach Don Thompson. Two free throws by Cory Pernon, who was 12-for-12 from the line, topped off the scoring.

Former Eastern Catholic standout Penderly, who played at UConn in his senior year, finished with 20 points and 14 of his 30 points in the final quarter.

Portland Victors Despite Plan Loss NEW YORK (UPI)— The Portland Trail Blazers didn't follow through on their game plan Wednesday night and lost the game.

The Philadelphia 76ers ran away with a 121-110 victory and afterward, Portland Coach Jack Ramsay said, "We didn't want to give them the rest break and we did. They were running off our offense, and that shouldn't happen."

Julius Erving scored 26 points and Maurice Cheeks recovered from first-half foul trouble to add 16, all in the second half, to carry Philadelphia.

"We weren't running and got into a situation of trading baskets with the Lakers in the first half," said 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham. "Maurice really got us going."

In other games, Indiana topped Denver, 117-96. Boston dined on Chicago, 114-104. New Jersey beat Houston, 122-112. Kansas City stopped Milwaukee, 112-108. Los Angeles edged Golden State, 97-96. Missouri defeated Utah, 115-109, and San Diego nudged Atlanta, 111-108.

In a released statement, O'Brien said videotapes of the game and interviews conducted by the league office "revealed that Cowens was the clearly the aggressor and threw the first punch."

He said Rollins precipitated the first-quarter fight by throwing an elbow at Cowens that wasn't detected by officials.

Several punches were thrown by both centers and both were ejected from the game.

Boycott Momentum Gains

NEW YORK (UPI) — While International Olympic Committee officials remained firm in their insistence this summer's Olympic games would take place in Moscow, momentum for some action in response to the Soviet Union's aggression in Afghanistan appeared to mount in the United States.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell confirmed Wednesday, unless the Soviets remove their troops from Afghanistan by mid-February, President Carter personally favors a boycott. And Secretary of State Cyrus Vance earlier told the New York Times he thought America should pull out of the games unless the occupying Russian troops went home in the next five weeks or so — an action he does not expect.

withdrawing from the games are the British Olympic Committee, said its secretary, Richard Palmer. "As things stand at the moment, there are no plans to withdraw."

Sen. Edward Kennedy said he wants America to participate, but would not object strongly if President Carter decides the nation should boycott the games.

The New York Times called for a boycott in a Thursday editorial, and Tennessee Sports Editor John Bibb announced he would not cover the games in Moscow.

Canada, alone, has given the U.S. some support. Prime Minister Joe Clark said Tuesday Canada is attempting to persuade Lord Killarin and the IOC to change the site of the Olympics.

Despite the U.S. government's position, most American athletes and Olympic officials are opposed to a boycott or change of venue. U.S. Olympic Committee President Peter Kane said a move would be inappropriate.

"A boycott is just not the right way to do it," said Kane. "We will be talking with the IOC about other options. What we will recommend, I don't know."

seasons with the Whalers before returning to his native Sweden in 1977, also has been negotiating to join his old club permanently, Kelley said Tuesday.

Kelley, who recently returned from a 12-day scouting mission in Sweden and Finland, said Abrahamsson was "anxious to come back and play for the Whalers."

"It would be a long shot for this year, but if he decided to come back next year, I don't know what would stop him," Kelley said.

The 33-year-old defenseman agreed to play for the Whalers next month when the Swedish Elite League is idle, noting that the Swedish league refused to approve the move.

"They said he couldn't play for two teams in the same year," Kelley said.

Kelley said he was hopeful that Abrahamsson could stay on with the Whalers after next month.

"I should think that if he played up to Feb. 1 he would have fulfilled his obligation to the team," Kelley said.

The 6-foot-2-inch, 185 pound Abrahamsson had 28 goals and 68 assists in 228 games with the Whalers. His best season was 1975-76 when he scored 14 goals and 21 assists.

Carter Faces Embarrassment

LONDON (UPI) — One of the most embarrassing public functions that President Carter is likely to face in the coming months is to officially open the Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid Feb. 13.

Any announcement of a U.S. boycott obviously will be postponed until the Games at Lake Placid are well underway, or perhaps even in order to avoid increasing the awkwardness that Carter could face as he faces the entire Olympic family and its traditions.

Between now and then, Carter will be faced with four clear options over the Moscow Olympics.

Bradley Museum Gets Nine Planes

WINDSOR LOCKS — Nine world famous aircraft including the last surviving ocean luxury clipper, the Sikorsky VS-44 Flying Boat, have been provided to the Bradley Air Museum to replace some of the 23 aircraft totally destroyed during the Oct. 3, 1979, tornado, it was announced by Philip C. O'Keefe, museum director.

O'Keefe announced the acquisitions at a board of directors meeting of the Connecticut Aeronautical Historical Association, which operates the non-profit museum.

The Naval Aviation Museum in Pensacola, Fla., will provide the Sikorsky VS-44, four-engine flying boat which has been a long sought prize of the museum. This pre-WW II luxury ship was built during the mid-thirties and is the only remaining "clipper ship" of its built in the world by three separate companies — Boeing, Martin and Sikorsky.

The U.S. Navy announced three aircraft which it will provide the museum: the A-4A Skyhawk, a post-Korean War attack plane; the F-4K Corsair — a famous Navy fighter plane of the 50s and 60s; and the Navy T-38B Seastar, the world famous jet which is claimed to have been the training aircraft of more jet pilots than any other type in the world. All three aircraft replace identical planes which were destroyed by the tornado.

The Air Force is furnishing four planes. They are: the F-86A Sabrejet — the famous Korean War "MiG" killer which replaced the museum's damaged model; new to the collection are two F94C Thunderjets which were rare Korean War fighters and will be combined to form one displayable aircraft; and the Bell P-83 King Cobra, a WW II biplane which was used by the United States, primarily for Russia, under the lend-lease program.

A private source will provide a Sikorsky S-61 Helicopter which was a post-WW II — late forties rescue aircraft. This acquisition adds to the museum's goal of having the finest collection of Sikorsky aircraft in the world. It flew with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

O'Keefe said, "Only time and financial resources are needed to bring all nine aircraft to Connecticut since the museum must pick them up from their various base locations."

The museum has undergone considerable changes due to the loss of 23 of 63 aircraft destroyed by the tornado disaster. It is presently open to the public on weekends only (weather permitting), Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to dark with reduced admissions at 95 cents per person and donations accepted.

The Bradley Air Museum is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year and was founded by a small group of aviation enthusiasts to preserve early aircraft and to form an organization dedicated to aeronautical history. Located on the grounds of the United States Army, the indoor/outdoor exhibits of 63 aircraft on display include everything from wood and fabric planes to supersonic jet fighters. The museum boasts the nation's fourth largest aircraft collection and the third largest propeller collection in the United States funded mainly through admissions and donations.

A recovery fund drive is under way to sustain the museum's 1980 operating expenses, restoration and public display. It is short $50,000 of its $150,000 goal. Donations and persons who want to donate tax deductible gifts to assist the recovery fund can write to Bradley Air Museum Recovery Fund, Windsor Locks, CT 06095.

Gardening New Selections Named for 1980

By FRANK ATWOOD

One vegetable grown for table use, another grown for its ornamental value and three annual flower varieties have been named All-America selections for 1980.

New garden seeds, picked for 1980, are appearing now on seed racks in retail stores, and among them will be the new All-America selections.

There is a bright red zinnia, a small marigold with orange colored flowers, a red verbena, a golden zucchini squash and an ornamental pepper with fruits that vary from yellow to red and orange.

The companies that publish seed catalogues have listed the 1980 winners in their offerings for the season, some at premium prices. Gardeners who want the latest and most publicized flowers and vegetables expect to pay a little extra. Some of the premium money filters down to the company, or the individual, who did the breeding work that produced the new variety.

Gold, silver and bronze medals are offered for these winning varieties but this year the judges gave no gold award. They gave three bronze medals and they awarded one silver medal to Peter Pan Flame, a hybrid zinnia with large petals described as "crimson scarlet." Several Peter Pan zinnias have previously been introduced. Flame is a new hybrid in this series.

The plants grow 12 to 14 inches high, begin blooming when they are six inches tall and continue to bloom all summer. The variety is a small recommended for planting in the open garden, or in boxes, in full sun.

Earliest Marigold
A dwarf French marigold has been honored this year. It is called Janie and is said to blossom earlier in the season than any other marigold. It

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Joel and I live in the same house but have separate bedrooms because I've known for years that Joe can't leave other women alone. I got tired of fighting with him about it, so I just gave up. In fact, I don't even care anymore.

I'm staying with him until our daughter grows up. Barbara is 11, and Joe is a very good provider.

A few weeks ago Joe went to Colorado to visit his brother, Frank, and he took Barbara along. When they came home Barbara told me that after Uncle Frank went to work, Daddy and Aunt Jennie would lock themselves in the bedroom for a long time. She said Daddy told her not to tell anyone.

Abby, should I let this go or make a stink? After all, Jennie isn't just another woman. She's his brother's wife!

DEAR CHANGED: What's to be gained by making a stink? Your husband would probably turn on Barbara for turning him in.

Since your daughter is being exposed to some raucous behavior on the part of married men, I'm sure she understands that not all married men behave like Daddy, nor do all married women carry on like Aunt Jennie.

DEAR ABBY: My old lady and I are having an argument and hope you can settle it. I say pigeons are still being trained to carry messages, and the wife says that pigeons haven't carried anything but diseases since the Civil War.

Who is right? ANDY IN FORT WORTH

DEAR ABBY: You are. Pigeons are still being trained to carry messages. (They were used in World War II for that purpose.)

DEAR ABBY: What is a mother supposed to say when her child asks, "Can Kevin stay for supper?" - and Kevin is standing right there looking up into your face?

I always say, "Of course, but Kevin has to tell his mother and get her permission first."

That may irritate Kevin's mother, but Kevin's mother, she's afraid to say, "Mother, you call Kevin's mother."

So, like a manly, I call Kevin's mother, and she says, "Are you sure he'll be no trouble?" Then what am I supposed to say? Anyway, I think you have the picture.

I really don't mind having one more for supper because mine is an only child, and it's nice for her to have someone to play with. But I don't like being maneuvered into it, and my son pulls this often. Also, after supper they play until it's dark and goes who has to take the dinner guest home?

Is there a solution? CONNED IN CONNERSVILLE

DEAR CONNED: Your resentment at being outsmarted by a couple of junior art is understandable, but your loyalty to your son has friends. Simply instruct him to ask you privately if he may have a guest for supper.

CONFIDENTIAL TO IN-LOVE WITH A CO-WORKER WHO'S TRAPPED IN A LOVELESS MARRIAGE? Get out of that office and out of his life. It would be easier to smuggle down past a rooster than to hide the fact that you two are madly in love.

TEENS: Are there some questions you just can't ask anyone about sex, drugs, your own feelings? Get Abby's new booklet, "WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW," Sent $2 to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose a long, stamped 12c, self-addressed envelope.
