

GOP Split Predicting Vote Count

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—Republican Party leaders vary in predicting voter turnout for tomorrow's town committee elections one to 10 percent of registered Republicans.

Wallace Irish, state central committee member, estimated five to 10 percent would vote, while Elsie Swenson, acting committee chairwoman, and Carl Zinsser, Board of Directors member, were less optimistic. Zinsser put the number of voters at two percent of the town's 7,788 registered Republicans.

However, all noted the number of voters in this year's election, the first time committee members will be elected by caucus, is crucial to Manchester's Republican Party.

"It's foolish to hide the facts," Irish said. "Our party is not strong. This is the opportunity to open the party, and we really need the outside help."

"There's a vacuum in the party right now. We've been running good candidates in election and just haven't had the organization to elect them. We need the ideas and enthusiasm of new people."

Elsie Swenson expects a larger number of voters in District 4 and 9 where contests have developed. In District 9 it is expected 11 persons will seek the available seven seats. In District 4 the number of seats has been reduced from 11 to seven.

These changes were mandated by the new state law which requires equal representation for each district. One member will be elected for every 100 Republicans in a district. The total number of committee members will be trimmed from 85 to 78. Previously, the old committee members elected the new.

Elsie Swenson says the new procedure is causing some confusion among voters, and could cause some changes in the party.

Irish agrees that some incumbents probably will lose their seats. "Some of them haven't been to a committee meeting in months," he said.

Irish is running in District 7 where nine persons, incumbents, will be seeking seven positions.

"If they don't campaign they will lose out," he said. "If they lose out they will lose out."

One candidate who has not made a phone call is Carl Zinsser, running in District 9. He says it's possible he could lose his seat.

Another District 9 candidate, newcomer Curtis Smith, has been waging a full-scale campaign. Last week over 700 letters were sent out to voters. Smith has the endorsement of Zinsser and other Republican Board of Directors members.

However, Zinsser worries that the lack of voters will allow town committee to be controlled by a fraction.

"Conceivably a conservation element could show up and vote," he said. "This would mean a few voters control the district."

A reason for not voting, according to Swenson, is confusion over the new caucus procedures. Candidates will be nominated at the caucus rather than using announced slates like the Democratic Party.

"People have called wondering how to vote," she said.

All registered Republicans can vote. The caucus will start at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and voting begins after nominations. It will continue until the caucus chairman begins to tally the votes. Voters may come to the caucus, and leave after balloting. Regular polling places will be used, except that District 3 will use the Buckley School gymnasium.

Delegate Selection To Start

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — The 1980 delegate selection process begins today, with Republican challengers to front-runner Ronald Reagan campaigning right up to the start of the precinct caucuses that open the presidential race.

President Carter was favored over Sen. Edward Kennedy in the Democratic race, with public opinion polls showing Reagan the GOP favorite.

Former Ambassador George Bush, the man given the best chance to upset Reagan, was scheduled to fly to three Iowa cities and campaign right through the beginning of the evening caucuses held in school rooms, fire halls and living rooms in 2,531 precincts.

"We've come a long, long way, and tonight will tell how far," said Bush at a morning news conference. He would not make any predictions about the outcome. But noting that he was just an asterisk in the polls a few months ago, he said his showing would be "better than all the expectations."

Former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski came to Des Moines to offer an 11th hour endorsement of his fellow Texan.

Jaworski said Bush's actions as Republican national chairman in the final days of the Nixon administration was "beyond reproach ... otherwise I wouldn't be here."

The last statewide public opinion poll showed Carter well ahead of Kennedy of Massachusetts and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. among Democrats, and Reagan with a lead over the big field of Republicans.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, Bush and former Gov. John Connally of Texas trailed the former California governor in the Iowa poll. Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and Reps. Philip Crane and John Anderson of Illinois were distant also-rans.

At the caucuses, less than 10 percent of the state's 1.6 million voters will begin a months-long process of selecting delegates for the national political conventions next summer.

Iowa will send 50 Democrats and 37 Republicans to the conventions, but it won't be known until spring exactly how many can be claimed by which candidates.

What the caucuses will do is give the first real indication of candidate popularity in 1980, and begin the long trek toward the nominations.

But the influx of politicians and pundits also made other forms of political fortune telling popular. Some crystal balls showed Kennedy, with a hustling young corps of volunteers and lots of money, pushing Carter. Others claimed Bush was sure to be second to Reagan and maybe first.

The candidates worked hard at the "perception game," claiming they would finish lower than they really expected in hopes of manufacturing an upset.

But the truth was that none of the experts really had a handle on the situation and, like the public, would have to wait for the results late tonight or Tuesday morning.

The caucuses, like the primary campaign in sparsely populated New Hampshire, are thought to hinge on the success of campaign organization — the ability to contact personally voters and get them to the precinct meetings.

Three Fires Set, One Suspicious

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Four fires — three of them set and the other called suspicious by Chief John Rivosa — kept the Town of Manchester Fire Department busy Saturday.

Firemen first extinguished a blaze in a vacant part of a building at 276 Hartford Road. Rivosa said this morning the call came in at 2:01 p.m.

After the department was put on alert to help the East Hartford Fire Department at 10 p.m., three fires within 38 minutes broke across town.

The town firemen finished dousing a warehouse blaze at Allied Casting Co., 260 Tolland Turnpike, a fire which the Eighth District Fire Department was originally called to.

The other two calls were for a stack of Sunday newspapers that were ignited in front of Liggitt's Drug Store, 404 West Middle Turnpike, and a hatchway blaze at a 30 Oak St. home.

Rivosa said the Allied Casting fire is suspicious and that his department is continuing to investigate this and the three arson fires.

The Eighth District Fire Department originally answered the warehouse fire at 10:01. A department spokesman said this morning that a district was notified by Manchester police of a fire behind the Pumpernickle Pub on Oakland Street.

"No sooner had the trucks gotten onto the road," he said, "when we received a second call saying it was a structure fire behind the M & R package store. We automatically contacted the town department when we realized it was their fire."

He said the district sent 60 firemen to put out the blaze, who had the fire under control by 10:45.

Rivosa said some bales of paper were set ablaze in the warehouse. The amount of damage hasn't been ascertained as yet, he said.

He also said somebody lit a bundle of Sunday newspapers store outside Liggitt's Drug Store.

"The heat cracked the glass," he said, "but didn't get into the store."

The third Saturday night fire, a hatchway fire at 30 Oak St., was put out by the owner, Rivosa said. The fire department was there just to check up on it.

"That was also set," Rivosa declared. "There was nothing there to start that fire."

As for the Saturday afternoon blaze, Rivosa said a fireball between the vacant portion of the Hartford Road structure prevented the flames from spreading to other parts of the building. He said the department experienced no problem in extinguishing that blaze.

Advertising in Films Debated in Schools

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — On any given day, the multimedia room of Manchester High School contains films from commercial companies to use in the classroom for educational purposes.

However, a Ralph Nader group recently released results of a study they say shows these business-sponsored materials actually double as advertising. According to Sheila Harty of Nader's Center for Study of Responsive Law, schools spend only 1 percent of their budgets on instructional materials. "On cue, industry has recognized the prospects for self-advancement," she said.

"We have used and I expect we would continue to use commercial films," Calvin Fish, instructional materials coordinator at MHS, said. He added, "I expect we'd be alert to any attempt to exploit children or use them as a captive audience."

Fish said when a topic is controversial, such as nuclear energy, "Our rule is that both sides need to be presented. Students are mature enough to balance the views presented."

Fish said the school had recently passed a policy on advertising in classroom materials. "We sought to safeguard the children," he said.

According to Charles Perry, audiovisual coordinator at Bennet Junior High School, "I haven't seen any film that has a sales pitch per se. But I have been aware of this (advertising potential) ever since I started working in this field."

Perry said the advertising is done by a printed lead at the beginning of the film. "A lot of times, we'll skip the advertising and start right in with the movie," he said. But he added, "Sometimes you know who the film is sponsored by because, for instance, a Shell truck will drive into the picture."

"There have been occasions when we've felt the advertising in a film was objectionable so we won't use it," Perry said. He added that if a teacher views a film with his first class and finds the film objectionable, other classes are not exposed to it.

"We've been pretty cautious about it through the years, although it is entirely possible to get a glimpse of a sponsor's billboard in a film we show," Perry said.

The Nader report cited the importance of selling young children on a particular brand name. It cited a statement in Printer's Ink, a publication for marketing communications: "Eager minds can be molded to want your products. In the grade schools throughout America are nearly 23,000,000 young girls and boys. These children eat food, wear out clothes, use soap. They are consumers today and will be the buyers of tomorrow ... Sell these children on your brand name and they will insist that their parents buy no other."

Perry said, "Many students are so exposed to advertising that they don't even notice it."

Fuel Bank Is Full

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Area Conference of Churches Fuel Bank Challenge has been surpassed by several hundred dollars already, even though the fund drive was set to last until the end of February.

Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC, said today, "We have more than $1,200. The bank gave us until the end of February and we did it in a couple of weeks. The people really came through."

The Savings Bank of Manchester had contributed $840 for the MACC Fuel Bank, which assists people not eligible for help with fuel bills through any other local, state or federal program.

In addition to the initial contribution, the bank issued a challenge to the public to match funds up to $1,000.

Mrs. Carr said the fund drive topped its goal Friday, which completes the Challenge program. But she added, "We collect money all the time, because we disperse money all the time. If the weather stays warm, we'll be in fairly good shape."

Mrs. Carr said she was considering heading off fuel problems at their start, by asking oil companies to include in their bills notification that help is available. She said, "Before they shut somebody off, surely they (fuel companies) ought to indicate that help is available."

Aim of College Making Money

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey shows nearly two-thirds of the nation's freshmen entered college with the goal of being financially "well-off" someday.

The 14th annual survey of "The American Freshman," released Sunday, depicts current college freshmen as more materialistic than any other entering class in recent years.

Nearly two-thirds of the 289,814 students responding to the 14th annual survey of "The American Freshman" said "being very well-off financially" is a very important goal, the report said.

By contrast, only 43.5 percent in a similar survey in 1967 considered financial security to be an important goal.

The survey, supported in part by a grant from the National Institute of Education in Washington, was directed by Alexander W. Astin of the University of California at Los Angeles in cooperation with the American Council on Education.

"This increasing materialism has also been accompanied by increased student interest in power and status," Astin said.

"More students today than ever before express an interest in 'obtaining recognition from colleagues' — 52.2 percent, up from 50.3 percent last year, and 39 percent in 1974."

Other highlights of the survey: —Since 1966, women's interest in four careers traditionally dominated by men — engineering, law, medicine and business — has more than quadrupled, from 5.9 percent to 25.9 percent.

—The number of freshmen whose parents make $40,000 or more per year increased by nearly one-third over last year.

O'Marra Gets Zoning Post

MANCHESTER — Thomas O'Marra, former assistant public works administrator, will become the town's new zoning enforcement officer when Ernest Machell steps down Jan. 31.

O'Marra was selected among eight candidates for the job, which is a permanent position in the Building Inspections Division.

O'Marra, who has a law degree from the University of Connecticut, is married to the former Mary O'Connor and has seven children. Previous to his work with the town, he was employed by the state in employee security, public works and the office of the comptroller.

Update

Tito Improving
 BELGRADE (UPI) — A medical bulletin today reported President Josip Broz Tito, 87, was in "good" condition following amputation of his gangrenous left leg in an attempt to save his life.

"President Tito, who was operated on yesterday at the Clinical Center in Ljubljana, passed the night peacefully," the bulletin said.

"Temperature, blood pressure and pulse are within the limits of normal."

"The general health condition of President Tito is good," it said.

However, a government source said it was too soon to tell how his condition would progress. Tito had been in good shape for a day following his bypass operation last week but his condition suddenly deteriorated later.

Gold Panic Eases
 LONDON (UPI) — Gold opened today at $825 an ounce on Zurich exchanges, down $15 from Friday's close, and a record $840 in London, up $5.

The dollar closed marginally up on most European exchanges.

Following Friday's panic spree of gold buying, speculators eased back somewhat. Market sources said no new international news developments occurred during the weekend to influence today's session.

In Hong Kong, gold closed at $827 an ounce in steady trading.

In Zurich, dealers said there was no special reason for the downward opening, with some profit taking and a quiet market. After opening, however, the metal started to rise steadily to the $840 mark.

Air Rate Hikes
 GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — World airlines agreed today to increase global passenger and freight rates beginning in April, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) said.

An IATA spokesman said no details of the increases would be available until the meeting officially ends Tuesday.

"The airlines are still going through the routine details of the increases — cargo rate increases are almost finished but passenger fare details need a little more working out," the spokesman said.

The increases were expected, however, to be along the same lines as the hikes last July when prices rose between 8 and 15 percent, depending on the route, geographical location and type of ticket.

Bert Lance Trial
 ATLANTA (UPI) — A longer-than-expected jury selection process has postponed the beginning of testimony in the bank fraud trial of former federal Budget Director Bert Lance and three other men.

A pool of 53 prospective jurors has been chosen and three more jurors were expected to be named today.

From that number, 12 jurors and six alternates will be chosen. Opening arguments were expected to get underway later today.

Of the prospective jurors selected last week, only three said they had never heard of Lance. However, several said the names of Lance's co-defendants were unfamiliar.

The Justice Department has accused Lance, Dalton businessman Thomas Mitchell, former banker Richard T. Carr and one-time Calhoun druggist H. Jackson Mullins of conspiring to illegally obtain $83 loans totaling $20 million from 41 banks for themselves, their friends and family. They are also accused of falsifying statements to banks and misapplying bank funds.

California Flood
 Work crews are strengthening delta levees on the rain-swollen San Joaquin River that flooded rich California farmland, forced farmers from their homes and swept away 3,000 cattle in Contra Costa County.

Two earthen levees near Knightsen broke Friday, flooding 100 acres and forcing evacuation of 30 people from two islands, Holland and Webb. Officials feared strong north winds and rising tides would further erode the levees and flood Veal Track, a heavily populated peninsula.

The flooded islands were submerged under 15 feet of water.

Band Staff Leaves
 TOKYO (UPI) — Staff members of Paul McCartney's rock band left Japan today and the jailed former Beatle offered to make good the $1 million lost sustained by Japanese promoters of a concert tour canceled by his arrest.

The Tokyo district prosecutor's office said no decision had been reached on whether to file drug charges against McCartney or deport him for trying to smuggle marijuana into Japan.

Harvey Goldsmith, manager of Wings rock group, said the singer's Japanese lawyer, Tanaka Matsuo, went to the Tokyo detention center with food but was turned away.

Several hundred rock fans gathered outside the Budokan Martial Arts Hall where McCartney and Wings had been scheduled to begin their 11 concert tour of Japan today.

Dodd Knocks His Probable Foe

By JACQUELINE HUARD
 HARTFORD (UPI) — Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., says conservative voters are unlikely to want Republican James Buckley because he was turned out of office after one term as a U.S. Senator from New York.

"The first opportunity they (voters) had to pass judgment on his performance six years later, they threw him out of office. Why?" Dodd said of his probable Republican opponent in the U.S. Senate election. Dodd, who is giving up his 2nd District congressional seat in a bid for the U.S. House, said Buckley won't be much competition politically.

But he told UPI in an interview he won't go after Buckley issue-by-issue until after the summer convention. He did stress he won't re-election twice while Buckley survived a lone term in Washington.

Buckley was challenged for the GOP nomination by Senate Minority Leader Richard D. Zoeller, R-Waterbury. Dodd, 35, is unopposed.

"He (Buckley) was summarily rejected by his constituency after representing them from the state of New York. I'm sure that says something about his performance as a representative," Dodd said.

Buckley, a wealthy man and brother of conservative columnist William Buckley, said the day he announced that he needed about $2 million for his campaign. Dodd is shooting for a minimum of $500,000.

"He (Buckley) raised $100,000 in nine days. I raised $130,000 in six months. That ought to give you some idea of what I'm going to be up against," Dodd said.

"Politically I'm going to have him, there's no question."

What happens in the November general election could depend on who grades the lot of the ticket, Dodd, who endorsed Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., early on, said recently he'd be perfectly comfortable with President Carter.

But he said that doesn't mean he's backing away from the Kennedy endorsement.

"I have sent a message today to the United States Olympic Committee, spelling out my position," Carter said Sunday, "that unless the Soviets withdraw their troops within a month from Afghanistan, that the Olympic games be moved from Moscow to an alternate site, or multiple sites, or postponed or canceled."

"If the Soviets do not withdraw their troops immediately within a month, I would not support sending our athletes to the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow," Carter said.

Carter also said the president could seek authority, through port a boycott, if necessary, Carter could seek authority, through passport and currency, to block U.S. allies, including Britain, Germany, Canada and others will support him. White House

"There are no known contenders on the Democratic side and it's unlikely there will be. The likeliest opponent — Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn. — made it clear last year he won't be a candidate."

But Dodd denied it's only a political maneuver to make sure voters don't think he's too cocky and assured of having the nomination in the bag long before convention time.

"You know they're not handing out Senate nominations this year," he said. "There wasn't a secret meeting some place where they said 'let's give this one to old Chris.' You have to work for these things."

"I'd rather make sure than take a chance. Call it what you want, but I'm not going to risk losing this because no one has decided to challenge me for the nomination."

The Almanac

By United Press International
 Today is Monday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1980 with 345 to follow.

The moon is moving into its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Civil War Gen. Thomas Jonathan Jackson — a Southern Confederate commander known as "Stonewall Jackson" — was born Jan. 21, 1824.

On this day in history:

In 1861, Jefferson Davis resigned from the United States Senate, 12 days before Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1954, the world's first atomic-powered submarine, the "Nautilus," was launched at Groton, Conn.

In 1977, President Carter pardoned American draft evaders and ordered a case-by-case study of deserters.

In 1970, The Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the Dallas Cowboys, 35 to 31, in the Super Bowl at Miami.

A thought for the day: President Harry Truman said, "A president cannot always be popular."

Mayor Asks Inspection Of Center's Roof Beams

HARTFORD (UPI) — Mayor George Athanson has asked for a special meeting to determine if faulty roof beams in the Hartford Civic Center Coliseum.

Athanson said Saturday he had called the City Council and other officials to meet at City Hall today to determine if the latest problem would affect reopening of the facility.

The coliseum's original roof collapsed under tons of ice and snow Jan. 18, 1978, just three years after its completion and five hours after a college basketball game. No one was injured.

Inspectors looked for faulty welds all this weekend. Public Works Director Jordan Rich said the extent of the problem hadn't been determined, but "the roof isn't going to fall down as far as I know."

He said when the problem was discovered Friday a check of 96 welds had shown eight with imperfections. He said additional welding material may be needed.

Athanson had hoped to reopen the coliseum last week but it was put off because fire and safety inspectors refused to issue a temporary certificate of occupancy. City Manager Donald Peach said officials would follow the situation day to day to decide on another date.

Athanson has insisted that the coliseum not be opened until a permanent certificate of occupancy has been issued.

He said Saturday he was "upset" by the latest development and it only emphasized his point that a permanent certificate was needed.

"It's a psychological thing. We need to extend the maximum confidence to the public that every weld, every bulb, every nail, is properly placed," he said.

"We've been assured over a period of time that everything is okay with the roof and to behold, problems with the new roof have appeared," Athanson said the coliseum "has

Liberals Back Kennedy

WEST HAVEN (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has won a presidential endorsement from the liberal wing of Connecticut's Democratic Party.

Forty-five delegates supported Kennedy in balloting Saturday by caucus of Connecticut Democrats. Ten delegates supported President Carter and seven remained uncommitted. A candidate needed 37.2 votes to win the group's endorsement.

Lucille B. Rivo of Woodbridge, president of the 400-member caucus, said Kennedy's support came from delegates who felt Carter had not worked hard enough for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment and from labor members.

"There were two women from NOW (the National Organization for Women) who felt very strongly that Carter had not worked hard enough on the ERA," said Mrs. Rivo.

"I think many of our members who are labor members felt that Kennedy was always a strong supporter of labor," she said. Other delegates caucus was packed with people who had already decided to vote for Kennedy.

The caucus also endorsed Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., for the Democratic nomination for the seat being vacated by retiring Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Two delegates abstained in the vote for Dodd — the party's only candidate for the Senate nomination.

Avcollie Back in Court

WATERBURY (UPI) — Former state legislator Bernard Avcollie heads back to Superior Court Tuesday, when the state will ask that a sentencing date be set on his conviction for the slaying of his wife.

The state was also expected to ask that bond be set for Avcollie, who has been free pending appeal. Avcollie is seeking another hearing before the state Supreme Court in the case.

The attorney had appealed a state

Carter Sees Boycott as Deterrent to Aggression

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says a U.S. boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow would be a "deterrent to aggression" and signal to the Soviet people the world's outrage over the Russian invasion of Afghanistan.

"I have sent a message today to the United States Olympic Committee, spelling out my position," Carter said Sunday, "that unless the Soviets withdraw their troops within a month from Afghanistan, that the Olympic games be moved from Moscow to an alternate site, or multiple sites, or postponed or canceled."

"If the Soviets do not withdraw their troops immediately within a month, I would not support sending our athletes to the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow," Carter said.

Carter also said the president could seek authority, through passport and currency, to block U.S. allies, including Britain, Germany, Canada and others will support him. White House

State Athletes Ignoring Talk

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut athletes training for the Summer Olympics in Moscow say they try not to think about the possibility of a U.S. boycott of the games — out of fear their training will suffer.

President Carter appealed to the U.S. Olympic Committee Sunday to give the Soviet Union an ultimatum — either Russia withdraws its troops from Afghanistan or America will boycott the Summer Games.

Andrew Bessette, 26, a hammer thrower from Vernon, said he tries to put the boycott out of his mind.

"I respect my country so that if officials think a boycott is necessary, I'll go along," said Bessette, who finished fourth place in the 1979 Pan American games. But he said a boycott would hurt many athletes.

Bessette said if there was a boycott, "it might be too hard to get psyched up again" to train for the 1984 Olympics.

What's going to stop someone from taking it away again," he asked.

Anne Boucher, 21, a Yale University rower, has had her sights set on a member of the Olympic rowing team since high school.

"I try to think about the boycott less and less, otherwise it gets too depressing and will interfere with my training," said Ms. Boucher of Middletown, who is on a year's leave of absence from Yale to intensify her Olympic training.

Ken Johnson, 34, of New Canaan, who gave up a white collar business career to carry his javelin into Olympic competition, said he doesn't care where the Olympics are held.

Johnson, a New Canaan gymnast who qualified for the Olympic trials in June, said a boycott would be good politically because Moscow would see millions of dollars go into another country's pocket.

Two 17-year-olds who hope to become members of the U.S. Olympic women's gymnastic team say they work hard and try not to think about a boycott.

"If the U.S. withdraws, there's not much left for me," said Leslie Russo of Durham.

Miss Russo and Marcia Fredericks of North Haven both study in New Haven under Muriel Grossfeld — one of the nation's top women gymnastic trainers.

Wally Miller, an Olympic hopeful from Southern Connecticut State College in New Haven, said, "I know there's no Olympics, I'll stick off in my training, so I try to block it out of my mind, he said.

Teammate Carl Antonelli said if there were no 1980 Olympics, "I'd just shoot for '84."

Boycott Backed

President Carter Sunday called for a U.S. boycott of the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympics unless the Soviet Union removes its troops from Afghanistan. He urged the Olympics be moved or postponed or canceled. Carter appeared on NBC's "Meet The Press."

Arson Suspected in Fire

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Authorities suspect arson in a weekend apartment house fire in which a 5-year-old girl died.

At least 10 other persons were injured in the blaze early Saturday at the three-story dwelling on Stratford Avenue.

Police said Bertha Pettway, 5, was pronounced dead at Bridgeport Hospital.

Four residents were carried down ladders by firemen. Two residents who escaped the burning building by jumping from upper floor windows and four other tenants were listed in fair condition at Bridgeport Hospital.

Police say the arson squad was called in because a suspicious man was seen outside the building and a kerosene incendiary device was found at the scene.

Woman Gymnast Supports Boycott

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — One of the nation's top women's gymnastic trainers says she supports moving the Summer Olympics out of Russia.

Three-time Olympian Muriel Grossfeld said Sunday American athletes should be allowed to perform in the Olympics, but she is against having the games in Moscow.

Commenting on President Carter's call for a boycott of the Olympics unless Russian troops withdraw from Afghanistan, Mrs. Grossfeld said, "All athletes who compete are Americans first, athletes second."

"I would hope they would do the most they can to relieve the situation, but I don't approve of Moscow for the Olympic games."

Mrs. Grossfeld, who has been to Russia as a competitor, coach and trainer, said athletes who go to Russia find "very difficult and horrible to compete. You're watched and guarded every moment, so if it (the site) is to be changed, it might be a blessing in disguise."

"But these young athletes should not be denied something that comes along to many of them only once in their life. I hope that something could be done to avoid something like this in the future."

She said Russia has used the games to promote its own philosophy. "They don't optimize the Olympic principle. The U.S. absence would be felt, she said. "The Soviets need us to prove they are better as a different kind of society."

Two candidates for the six-member U.S. Women's Olympic gymnastics team are studying under Mrs. Grossfeld — Leslie Russo of Durham and Marcia Fredericks of North Haven, both 17.

"I've told them to concentrate on their training. We don't talk about outside problems, its no good for their training," she said.

U.S. Athletes, Coaches Split on Boycott Issue

NEW YORK (UPI) — As the possibility increased that the United States would boycott the summer Olympics in Moscow, American athletes and coaches were divided over the emotional issue.

President Carter said on national television Sunday that the U.S. would send a team to the Moscow Games if the Soviets remain in Afghanistan another month, and he said he believed the American people would agree with him.

Track and field standout Dwight Stones, Houston McTeer, and Franklin Jacobs threatened support of the administration's position.

Four-time Olympic discus champion Al Oerter, who two weeks ago said he could not understand the purpose of a boycott and changed his position, saying, "It's time to put personal considerations aside."

But marathon runner Bill Rodgers, who has vehemently opposed a boycott, reaffirmed his position.

sprinter Harvey Gance said the United States should pull out only if athletes' safety is endangered, and long-time swim coach George Haines made a plea for a delay in the final decision on the matter.

F. Don Miller, the executive director of the United States Olympic Committee, said in Colorado Springs, Colo., that the U.S. athletes would be polled about their opinions.

He said the time and the method of the survey have not yet been determined. The USOC has the final responsibility for deciding whether or not to send a team.

Stones, a champion high jumper, said in a television interview, "I am totally in support of the President's decision. If the Games go on without the U.S., they will be very shallow. It would ruin the Russians' whole propaganda thing — that they and the East Germans can beat us."

Stones circulated a petition supporting that position at a Philadelphia track meet Saturday, four days after the Muhammad Ali track club announced its members would boycott the Moscow Games.

A member of the club, champion sprinter Houston McTeer, said Sunday, "We are with the president all the way. If the situation continues, we could get over there and some of the athletes might end up as hostages."

Jacobs, a high jumper, said at a track meet in Princeton, N.J., that he would be disappointed if there was a boycott but would support it if it came because "it's got to depend on the world viewpoint, not the athlete's disappointment."

Oerter, who is in the midst of a comeback, said, "I'm disappointed. I've been working 34 years trying to make the team again but this is not the time for that kind of personal consideration. We have to band together to show how appalled we are."

Adult Class To Resume

MANCHESTER — Courses leading to adult high school equivalency diplomas and courses for persons who are in need of a pre-high school review will be offered to area residents as part of the local Adult Basic Education program when classes resume for the winter semester at the Manchester Evening School Feb. 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The high school equivalency program is a 12-week course to prepare adults who have not completed high school for the Connecticut high school diploma examination. Current state regulations require those taking the examination to be at least 19 years of age or be a member of a high school class that will be graduating by June.

For the high school equivalency preparation program, classes are offered Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Manchester High School. All programs are classes available to area residents. Registration for these programs will be held at Manchester High School on Jan. 28, from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. A counselor will be available to discuss these programs at the time of registration.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the director of adult basic education, Joel Chaizon, at the Board of Education office (647-3578).

Editorial A Busy Session Seen

Crucial foreign and domestic issues await the 96th Congress when it reconvenes in Washington Tuesday.

But in this election year, solutions may seem more elusive than usual as lawmakers weigh the political overtones.

In the Senate, positions held by 24 Democrats and 10 Republicans will be involved in the election; while in the House, all seats are up for grabs.

The fact that a number of lawmakers are candidates for presidential nominations could further divert attention from problems carried over from last year's congressional session.

Foreign policy issues may well dominate the 1980 session. Russia's invasion of Afghanistan and the continuing crisis of the Americans held hostage in Iran tend to thrust international events to the forefront.

Also abroad, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries keep pushing up oil prices. The health of the American economy seems more dependent than ever on influences overseas, especially in the volatile Mideast.

Inflation still bears the "urgent" label - but other facets of the economy also will be begging for attention, including the national budget, deficit spending, employment, taxes, etc.

The federal budget for fiscal 1981 will be unveiled late this month. It is likely to touch off major debate between the big spenders and the advocates of a balanced budget. Information filtering from the budget planners indicates a ballpark figure of around $615 billion is being discussed - vastly higher than the total projected nine months ago.

Energy policy, long a subject of foot-dragging, remains a critical issue. Rising costs of energy may serve as a prod for action.

In the light of world events, national security undoubtedly will command prime atten-

Resolution Concerns KKK and Cross Burnings

By NANCY CARR
Executive Director

In last week's MACC column we mentioned a resolution passed by the MACC Board of Directors concerning the Ku Klux Klan. Since we have had several inquiries concerning this resolution, it seems best to print the resolution in its entirety.

The Resolution

WHEREAS, The resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan in recent months has been widely reported in the media, and

WHEREAS, The Klan cannot exist without the consent and blessing of that segment of our citizenry which either secretly or openly shares its doctrine, or condones its activities by apathy and

WHEREAS, Cross burning is an elaborate and premeditated act which desecrates the Christian symbol of the Cross and violates its meaning and cannot be dismissed simply as a spontaneous expression of juvenile restlessness;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED That the Board of Directors of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches -

1) Expresses its concern for the victim of Ku Klux Klan violence;

2) Calls upon the member churches of the Conference and all persons of conscience to -

a) express their repugnance and alarm over the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan as a terrorist organization in American Society;

b) condemn the KKK's appropriation of the Christian cross as a symbol of hatred, racism, anti-Semitism, and terrorism;

c) declare their complete and unalterable opposition to the philosophy and tactics of the Ku Klux Klan;

d) be alert to the dangers posed by the Klan and work unceasingly for a society in which love and justice are extended to all persons as members of God;

e) seek ways to oppose the efforts of the Klan to promote racism and prejudice among young people;

3) Calls upon federal, state and local governments to -

a) use their resources to initiate and empower educational efforts against the evils of terrorism; and

b) mobilize their law enforcement agencies effectively to investigate and bring to trial the perpetrators of KKK violations of the law.

Adopted by the MACC Board of Directors 1/9/80.

The Coal Transportation Battle

By JUDY SARASOHN

WASHINGTON - The push to switch from foreign oil to American coal is setting the stage for a battle between railroads and pipelines over the lucrative business of transporting coal.

Andrew Tully Moslem Unity

WASHINGTON - Over the long haul, there is for the Soviet Union in Afghanistan a perilous Catch 22. The Russians have worked their will in such countries as Ethiopia and Somalia, but this is the first time they have gone adventuring in what is in effect a pure Moslem state.

The Alghans are a proud and courageous people. What may turn out to be more important, their Moslem faith gives them an innate hostility to both foreign traditions and atheistic ideologies. They are weaned on hatred for a Russian regime that has locked the door on all religions, including Islam. Allah is just as much a criminal in official Moscow's eyes as Jesus Christ.

There are about 500 million practicing Moslems in the world, most of them in Russia's neighborhood. The takeover of Afghanistan has caused the leadership of those 500 million Moslems to launch an ideological war on the Soviet Union.

"This is a challenge to all the Moslem countries," says Alesidn Karofa, director of the Moslem World League in New York, about the takeover of Afghanistan. "We call upon the Moslem governments and the Moslem nations around the world to stand up together and to see to it that the aggressors are thrown out of Afghanistan."

One cannot - yet - see Moslems around the world sending expeditionary forces to battle the Russian invaders. But Moslems are more sensitive to assaults on their faith, more given to righteous action when pushed around, than members of other sects. Every statement of outrage issued seems to reflect a determination to do something forceful about the plight of their brethren in Afghanistan.

In short, the Russians may have committed an awesome blunder. For they have acquired some new enemies abroad, enemies whose faith encourages them to fight, and if necessary, die for their religious cause. The trouble the ragged Moslem rebels have given the Soviet's well-trained troops in Afghanistan is evidence of a fervor that in times of stress becomes militant fanaticism.

Meanwhile, the Russian leadership has alienated millions of Russians - the Moslems who live mostly in the southeastern portion of Lenin's Paradise. Those followers of Allah have always given the Soviet state a lot of trouble and now they have added reason to maintain their intransigency. Already, intelligence reports tell of new acts of sabotage and "slowdowns" in the areas bordering on Afghanistan, Iran and Turkey.

In the past, a number of Moslem regimes have found it convenient to play footsie with Moscow. But they have discovered that the age of colonial empires is not past. The expansionist Soviet empire is still in tact, still bent on imposing its sovereignty on countries where it sees opportunities to strengthen its national security and economic interests.

Moslem countries made little protest as long as Moscow kept its jackboots out of their territory. They let infidel fight infidel, and bad luck to both. Now they are faced with Soviet colonialism in one of their brother states, and their anger is boundless.

In that context, the Russians may have shown enormous stupidity by invading Afghanistan. Even a super-power should be leery of adding its name to the enemies' list of a religious alliance numbering 500 million souls.

An immediate decision of the NSC was to give military aid to the faltering dictatorship of Pakistan's president, General Zia ul Haq. Congressional leaders were asked to find a way around a Foreign Assistance Act loophole known as the Symington amendment, which forbids military aid to a country that may be developing nuclear weapons.

The decision to help Pakistan brought up our sticky problem of motivating India, now more pro-Soviet than ever under Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. The NSC is Even one large diameter pipeline could do that promise," Dempsey told a congressional committee.

Part of the unfair advantage of pipelines is that they could carry just what would be allowed to condemn private land for rights-of-way.

There is now only one slurry line in operation. The 273-mile Black Mesa Pipeline carries coal from the Black Mesa mine in Arizona to the Mohave power plant in southern Nevada. Several other projects are in the planning stage.

Complaining that railroad freight charges are pricing coal out of practical use, some industries are turning to foreign coal.

Central Power and Light Co., headquartered in Corpus Christi, Texas, is experimenting with African coal. The utility believes it is cheaper than coal transported by rail from Colorado despite the 300-mile rail haul in Africa, 7,000-nautical-mile ocean voyage and an 88-mile truck trip.

Some labor unions support the legislation, noting the thousands of jobs that would be created during pipeline construction. Construction of the proposed 1,300-mile Energy Transportation Systems Inc. (ETSI) pipeline from the Gillette Mine in Wyoming to White Bluff, Ark., and Baton Rouge, La., is expected to create nearly 7,000 jobs.

But the railroads are adamantly opposed to the legislation, contending it would give pipelines an unfair advantage over the railroads for no compelling reason.

"It is primarily not energy legislation," said William H. Dempsey, president of the Association of American Railroads. "It will not produce more energy ... It represents absolutely no progress in dealing with the energy problem."

Coal is the single largest commodity carried by the railroads. Some railroads are counting on expected increases in coal traffic to ease their financial woes.

"Coal represents new and profitable traffic for these railroads, such as move."

For the first time, the Soviets are now within fighter range of the crucial Straits of Hormuz, through which passes 40 percent of the free world's oil supply. Hitherto, their closest airbase was 850 miles from Hormuz, beyond the reach of their principal fighter plane MIG-23. The MIG-23's combat radius is 700 miles - and the Soviet airbase at Kandahar, Afghanistan, is 650 miles from the straits. So a Soviet bombing attack would have a lighter cover.

For what cold comfort it provides, the Red Army's rape of Afghanistan has given our intelligence experts a chance to photograph and analyze the Soviets' latest and best weapons in action, including the Mi24 helicopter gunship, known as the "Hying tank" because of its armor and firepower.

Thought

On January 18th, the Christians around the world began the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. This is a time for all who profess faith in Jesus Christ to work and pray for the unity of his church, the unity he spoke of at the Last Supper when he prayed that "all may be one ...". St. Paul reminds us: "There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism; one God and Father of all ...". (Eph. 4:5)

The church that Jesus Christ established is meant to be the sign of unity among his followers. It is the Body of Christ, and although it has many members, they are to be one through the Holy Spirit. The church is called to go forth as an assembly of believers who witness to the presence of God's Kingdom in our world. Each of us has different gifts, but they are to be used to build up the one Kingdom of God.

If we claim to be followers of Jesus Christ, if we acknowledge him as Lord, and if we believe we are called to be his church, then we need to overcome the divisions that keep us apart. Let us pray during this week that we may discern God's will for us to be united, and let us dedicate ourselves to this work.

The Rev. William Carroll

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Is Pakistan Next For the Soviets?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Top-secret meetings of the National Security Council considering the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan have centered, since the beginning, on the key question: Will the Russians try to gobble up Pakistan as well?

The president's security analysts are divided on the interpretation of the Kremlin's intentions. Some feel the Soviets were simply reacting to a deteriorating situation; others see the Afghan aggression as the first of a new wave of Russian expansion.

Determination of the Soviet's ultimate goal has a particular urgency. Under a 1959 treaty, the United States is committed to help Pakistan in the event of an attack. The treaty was concluded with Chinese, not Russian, aggression in mind.

Other things the NSC experts dis-abused themselves of from the start was the Kipling-esque idea that fierce, sharpshooting Afghan tribesmen would be a match for heavily armed Soviet troops. "We dropped the romantic notion early of these guys in their pajama suits and turbans using 19th-century guns to beat the Russians from the hill," an NSC source told my associate Dale Van Atta.

There was some wishful speculation at first that Afghanistan would prove to be the Russians' Vietnam - the Red Army pinned down in a war of attrition, costly in both men and material. But the barren hills of Afghanistan don't afford the protection that the jungles of Vietnam gave to guerrilla operations.

Furthermore, the NSC analysts concluded glumly, the rebels are not poorly armed and running out of food, but they have no leader of Ho Chi Minh's stature to organize the battle against the Soviets. Intelligence agencies have identified more than 50 distinct, semi-autonomous rebel groups in various

Council Sets Discussion On Sewer User Charges

VERNON — The Town Council will conduct a public hearing tonight at 7:30 in the Memorial Building on a proposed ordinance establishing sewer user charges. The regular meeting of the council will follow the hearing. The town's three state representatives will be present at the regular meeting to discuss state legislation with the mayor and the council. The three are, Teresale Bertinuso, Chester Morgan and Aloysius Shearn. Also to be present is Michael Skelley, state senator. The council will also hear a report on condominium conversions by Town Attorney Edwin Hall; be asked to approve Regina Road as a town road; will discuss a land exchange proposal that has been pending for several months; be asked to approve buying sodium vapor lights for the center of Rockville; be asked to reclassify the position of plumber, heating and electrical inspector; discuss establishments selling drug-related paraphernalia; and discuss the town audit fund balance. During the regular meeting the council will also be asked to take action on the ordinance on sewer user charges; receive a petition requesting town rent control and a Fair Rent Commission; discuss committee appointments and an over expenditure in the former Fire Department II budget; discuss amendments to the town charter; and review a memorandum on town-owned property of the Town of Vernon. At the end of the regular meeting the council will go into executive session to discuss pending litigation with Special Council Abbot Schwabel.

Pool Concept Is Revived

SOUTH WINDSOR — The concept of an indoor swimming pool will be revived tonight when the Town Council meets at 8 p.m. The proposal for a pool complex was shelved before Nov. 6 when many residents hoped it would be included as a referendum item on the ballot. The council decided, because voters were faced with the massive Avery Brook referendum issue, it would be best to postpone any swimming pool proposals. The issue will be brought up again tonight in the form of a resolution whereby the Town Council will instruct the Public Building Commission to "investigate the feasibility for an indoor South Windsor Public School Natatorium as proposed by the Town Council." The resolution also instructs the PBC to develop the concept including preliminary estimates and shall meet with all appropriate government agencies seeking their input in the development of the concept. The council will ask the Public Building Commission to report their conclusions on or before April 14. The proposal was originally made by the Republican members of previous Town Council. Preliminary estimate of the plan's cost was $1.9 million, 30 percent of which would be eligible for funding from the state education department because it would be used as a teaching station. Although the Town Council voted against its inclusion as a referendum item in November, 1979, members said they were not voting against the pool concept, but rather against the concept being considered at that time. Town Council favored construction of the pool following a survey of recreational needs in town.

Drinking Campaign Scrapped

BOSTON (UPI) — The state has scrapped a plan to distribute wallet-sized "Know Your Limits" cards describing blood alcohol levels for people who sometimes drive after drinking — after an expenditure of $100,000. Under the campaign, all Massachusetts motorists would have been sent a card to assist "responsible people who may sometimes drive after drinking," similar to programs run in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania in recent years. About 1.5 million cards bearing a chart and the inscription, "The safest policy is not to drive after drinking" were printed at a cost of $100,000. Only then did Motor Vehicle Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin learn of the plan. McLaughlin reportedly pleaded with King to shelve the plan because it would appear the state condoned mixing alcohol with driving. An association of Massachusetts liquor wholesalers had been a force behind the program and planned to pick up printing costs.

Afghans Begin Purge Of Western Journalists

By United Press International The Soviet-supported Kabul regime moved Tuesday a purge of foreign journalists by refusing to accredit western reporters in Afghanistan, where moslem rebels were told to wage a "holy war" against the red army invaders. Iran offered Sunday to do whatever it could to help the rebel Afghan guerrillas and in Pakistan, visiting Chinese foreign minister Huang Hua pledged Peking's support of Pakistan. President Carter sought to put additional pressure on the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan by calling for a boycott of the summer Olympic Games in Moscow, but his call brought little international support and was scoffed at by Moscow Radio as "futile." "Neither I nor the American people would support sending a team to Moscow with Soviet troops in Afghanistan," Carter said. "Unless the Soviets withdraw their troops within a month from Afghanistan the Olympic games should be moved from Moscow to an alternate site or multiple sites or postponed or canceled."

Iran Rights Rule Heads Off Strife

The regime of Babrak Karmal, installed in a Soviet-backed coup in December, stopped issuing accreditation to western reporters Sunday in a move diplomats said could result in their expulsion. "No accreditation is being issued to journalists for the moment," an official of the Afghan Information and Culture Ministry told a British reporter who applied for accreditation. All American reporters were expelled from Afghanistan last week for what the government charged was slanderous reporting and attempts to disrupt the nation's affairs. Many of the 40 remaining Western journalists predicted that they shortly would also be forced to leave. The Babrak regime announced Sunday that it was changing the colors of the red and gold Afghan flag. Diplomats said the move was apparently aimed at improving the government's image with Afghanistan's 17 million Moslems. In a brief announcement, Kabul radio said the colors and design of the new flag would be decided at the next meeting of the ruling Revolutionary council. It did not say when the meeting would be held. Western diplomats speculated that the new flag would include green, the traditional color of Islam, in a bid to placate Moslems angered by the communist regime's Soviet ties. But in Iran, state-run Tehran Radio quoted a leader of the Afghan Islamic Organization, one of the insurgent groups battling Soviet troops in Afghanistan, as saying that the rebels will never accept — or negotiate with — the Babrak regime. The radio, monitored in London, also quoted the guerrilla official as appealing to other insurgent groups to join a united front and wage a jihad, or holy war, against the Soviet forces. "Like all aggressors in history, the Soviet Union is bound to meet defeat," Hua said as he toured the Afghan refugee camp in the village of Azkabel, 18 miles north of Peshawar, Pakistan, the capital of the northwest province bordering Afghanistan. "The biggest threat not only to the Sunni branch of Islam in strategic areas such as Baluchistan on Iran's southeastern border. The Baluchistan area, in which sunnis are the majority, has been troubled by autonomy movements in the past. The new constitution recognizes only the Shiite branch of Islam, the one to which most Iranians, including Khomenei, belong. During December's constitutional referendum, many Sunni Moslems boycotted the vote because they objected to the provision that makes Shiite Islam the state religion. Iran is the only Moslem country where Shiites are in power, though there are important Shiite communities elsewhere, particularly Iraq. The radio said Khomenei approved the amendment but stipulated it should be put to the people in a referendum before the constitution is changed to give the minorities official status. As the hostages entered their 12th week of captivity, the militants holding them captive issued no communique on their condition.

Trustees Prepare Lease For Action by Educators

VERNON — The Board of Trustees of the George Sykes Memorial Training School is drawing up a new lease to be presented to the Board of Education for approval. The lease with the school expires this year. As it has in the past, the lease will describe the obligations of the trustees and of the school board and is for the consideration of $1 a year, John S. Mason, president of the Board of Trustees said. Mason said that the fixed costs which the trustees pay will run about $17,000 for 1980. The board will also pick up the bills for $7,000 for improvements to the building as recommended by the principal and the building superintendent. Sykes School was left to the town by the late George Sykes, who, on Nov. 11, 1903, made a bequest providing a fund for the foundation of the George Sykes Memorial Training School. Sykes left $100,000 in a perpetual trust to establish the manual training school. In 1907, Mrs. Charles Phelps, daughter of Sykes, turned over the deeds of two parcels of land to be used as a site for building the school. The fund was later expanded with gifts from other members of the Sykes family and bequests from the Maxwell and Prescott estates. In 1923 the trustees agreed to build the school at a cost of $250,000 and the Town of Vernon agreed to equip and maintain the school as far as teachers and school necessities were concerned and the trustees agreed to keep the building in repair. Last year a proposal was made by the superintendent of schools to close the school which now houses Grade 6 students and to put those students in the Middle School. Because of strong objections from students and parents, the board decided to defer action for at least another year. Mason said the building is in excellent condition and the trustees hope that it will continue to be used for school purposes in the foreseeable future. He said, "The Board of Education will determine this and the trustees will give them their complete cooperation." The trustees also elected Charles MacMillan, vice president and treasurer of the Savings Bank of Rockville, to fill a vacancy on the board created by the death of Charles Pressler. The action took place at the annual meeting of the board.

Olin Workers OK Pact; Six-Month Strike Ends

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — More than 1,500 production workers at the Olin Corp. arms manufacturing plant here returning to work today after agreeing on a new contract to end a bitter six-month strike. Members of Victory Lodge 609 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers voted 632-71 Sunday to ratify the three-year contract worked out Saturday night by state Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro. The contract includes a contested job security provision for senior workers. Union president John Palmieri said the company retained the right to establish work levels in the contract while granting most job security provisions and speedy arbitration measures. The workers walked off the job July 15 over a productivity clause which the union charged was an attempt by the company to get rid of older workers. More than 80 percent of the machinists local is comprised of workers more than 55 years of age. The sports arms manufacturing company also agreed to drop all charges against workers arrested during the strike, Palmieri said. He said the union will not seek fines against union members who crossed picket lines. Wages and benefit provisions, agreed to in September, will provide hourly workers an average 7 percent increase for each year of the contract in addition to a minimum 15-cent cost of living increase in each of the last two years. Improvements were also made in medical and life insurance, pensions, and other fringe benefits. Gov. Ella Grasso complimented Peraro and the negotiators "for their diligence and concern in bringing these negotiations to a successful conclusion." She said Peraro "is to be commended for his constructive role."

Students To Fight Drink Age Increase

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) — Students from Connecticut's private colleges, who will meet this week to plan strategy for fighting any attempt by the 1980 Legislature to raise the state's legal drinking age. The Association of College Unions International will sponsor the strategy session Wednesday at the University of Hartford. Backers of the movement claim raising the drinking age beyond 18 would discriminate against college students and would create enforcement problems on campuses. Margaret Tedone, of the Connecticut Conference of Independent Colleges, who will address the meeting, claimed Saturday the 18-year-old drinking age limit was a problem among high school students and not college students. Mrs. Tedone, director of legislative and public relations for the CCC, said officially, her organization was not taking any stand on the issue because "it is not a problem on the private college campus." But she said raising the drinking age would be unfair to many college students who now enjoy beer drinking at college pubs. Betsy Green, vice chairman of the University of Hartford Student Union board of governors, said if the age is raised, "campus pubs would probably close and student employees laid off." Also, she said, "Faculty members would have to act as policemen."

Coventry Groups Mull Municipal Sewer Plan

COVENTRY — The Town Council has decided to invite the Pollution Control Authority to its meeting tonight, at 7:30 in the Town Hall, to discuss a municipal sewer plan. The authority and members of the conservation group have been at odds for many years on the question of whether the town needs sewers to preserve the water quality of Coventry Lake. A heavy population in the lake area, combined with small lot sizes has led to septic tank overflows which are contributing to the early aging of the water body which is considered to be the town's prime resource. The authority, under the leadership of Richard Breault, has developed a facilities plan for severing part of the lake basin, the Village area, and an industrial stretch south along Route 31. The Planning and Zoning Commission finally approved the plan after years of opposition. Daniel Manley, who was replaced as the town's representative by the Windham Regional Planning Agency, has been appointed to the agency's Water Quality Committee, an advisory group. The commission has asked the federal Environmental Protection Agency to conduct an impact study on the sewer issue. Breault contends that such an action by the EPA could delay the implementation of sewers by as much as two years. He also maintains that the facilities plan already contains an impact study for the area. The question of a storm drainage system will also be considered at Monday's meeting. Town officials are exploring possible sources of state and federal funding for a storm drainage network that will be needed to complement the sewers, if they are approved by townpeople at a referendum tentatively scheduled for this spring. Sewer proposals have voted down in two previous referendum votes over the past 10 years. The council also will consider an ordinance "creating" the Water Pollution Control Authority. The document was finalized by the previous council, which renamed the Coventry Sewer Authority a water pollution control agency to conform to state laws. The ordinance provides for seven members, although the existing authority would prefer five.

Meeting Set By Exchange

MANCHESTER — The Exchange Club of Manchester and Glastonbury will meet Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Manchester Country Club. The National Exchange Club is sponsoring a system to fight child abuse with centers scattered across the country. The key to the program is a non-professional, volunteer trained to work with an abused child. Speakers and guests will include Superior Court Judge Frederica Brennen, Attorney Richard Dyer and Manchester Police Lieutenant Patricia Graves. A film explaining the exchange program will be shown. ## Burial Slated For Ex-Justice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William O. Douglas, outspoken champion of individual rights during his 36 years on the Supreme Court, will be buried Wednesday at Arlington National Cemetery. Douglas died Saturday at the age of 81 at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where he had been hospitalized since Christmas Eve for pneumonia and kidney failure. His wife Cathleen and other family members were at his side when he died. Chief Justice Warren Burger today was to read a short tribute to Douglas at the first meeting of the high court since Douglas' death. During his 36 years and seven months on the court — a longer term than any other justice — Douglas was a forceful advocate of civil liberties and the right to dissent. When he retired Nov. 12, 1975, after suffering a stroke, Douglas had written more than 1,200 opinions. His outspoken views caused him to dissent from the court's opinions more than 500 times, mostly when the court failed to enlarge civil liberties. During his career which spanned the tenure of five chief justices, Douglas saw his liberal views accepted by a majority under Earl Warren and then rejected under Burger. Douglas was an avid conservationist and outdoorsman. He led 184-mile hikes along Washington's Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and spent as much time as he could in the mountains of eastern Oregon and Washington State. He was reared in poverty in Yakima, Wash. Two attempts were made in Congress to impeach Douglas — the first in 1953 after he stayed the executions of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. The other related to Douglas' salaried chairmanship of a Chicago foundation. "William O. Douglas was a lion-like defender of individual liberty," said President Carter. "He was fiercely certain that the simple words of the Bill of Rights were meant to protect the humblest citizen from the exercise of arbitrary power, and he never deviated from that conviction." Douglas once said his most important decisions were abolishing legalized segregation and the "one-man, one-vote" rule for state legislatures. Douglas' body will go on public view Tuesday at the National Presbyterian Church in Washington. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. EST Wednesday at the same church by Pastor Kenneth Edward L. R. Olson. The nine Supreme Court justices and three former justices will be honorary pallbearers.

New Connecticut Natural Gas Headquarters Assures Better Service for All Customers...

- Hartford Operations Now Consolidated at 100 Columbus Blvd.
- A Facility Designed for Customer Convenience.

Operating and Administrative Center in downtown Hartford...dedicated to our belief in the future of the dynamic area we serve...benefiting customers in all CNG cities and towns.

Same Customer Phone Number 524-8361

Our telephone number for Hartford area service calls, bill information, to open or close accounts, for appliance repair and customer relations information remains the same.

Our General Office telephone number has been changed to 727-3000

Direct dialing has been introduced to save time on calls to various individual departments. Phone numbers of the departments involved can be obtained by calling the General Office.

New Britain and Greenwich telephone numbers remain the same.

Designed for Efficiency And Modern Gas Service...

Energy conservation is emphasized in the new center. Windows comprise only 25 per cent of total wall area. A variable air volume system developed through computerized energy studies will maximize energy savings. Electrical load will be cut to half of normal through use of task lighting directed to work areas.

The new complex includes a 54,000 square foot operating center and an 89,000 square foot, eight-story office structure of unusual wedge-shaped design with a steel frame sheathed in precast concrete made attractive by gravel from Connecticut's Farmington River.

The center is strictly a Connecticut undertaking. The design-build team was headed by the Industrial Construction Company, Inc., of Newington. Architects were Fred Ferguson, Mahaffey & Perry of Hartford and the mechanical electrical contractor was C. N. Flagg & Co., Inc. of Meriden.

When our decision to remain in downtown Hartford was announced, former Councilman Richard Susman, then chairman of the Hartford City Council's Planning and Development Committee, stated that "this major facility will help strengthen the long-term tax base for Hartford and will maintain desired employment levels in the central business district." A tax deferral program developed by the City of Hartford and air rights agreements made the downtown location possible.

The new center is a strong indication of our faith in the vitality and future of downtown Hartford and the area we serve. The new facilities are as modern as any in our industry and will enable us to provide Better Service — Consolidation in one location of many operations previously carried out at separate locations in buildings dating back to the 1920's will add to our ability to provide the best in gas service now and for years ahead. Customers and visitors will be able to do business with us in a facility designed to accommodate them.

Greater Efficiency — The new center and its advanced facilities will contribute much to our long-range programs for improving efficiency.

Easy Access — Our Columbus Boulevard location near to Constitution Plaza provides easy access to Interstate Routes 91 and 84, convenient for customers and employees as well as for rapid handling of service calls over a wide area.

Direct Dialing — You can dial more calls directly to the departments you want to reach, saving time as compared with going through a central switchboard.

Customer Parking — In a convenient free parking area.

Auto Teller — Customers can pay bills at the main office without getting out of their cars.

Appliance Showroom — A wide range of modern gas appliances always on display.

Group Hires Lawyer On Zoning Challenge

MANCHESTER Attorney Richard Conti has been retained by a group of Bigelow Street residents in their court appeal against a Zoning Board of Appeals decision permitting construction of two houses on what they feel is a single lot.

Attorney Conti, of the firm of Gerry, Walsh, Diana and Wichman, replaces Malcolm Barlow as counsel for the group. Barlow withdrew from the case to avoid a potential conflict of interest when he became an assistant town attorney.

The residents voted unanimously Friday night to retain attorney Conti.

Program Set On Holocaust

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Area Conference of Churches is sponsoring a program on the Holocaust, according to Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC. "The feeling is that many people don't have any idea what the Holocaust was like."

The list included a telephone answering box, a jewelry box, a wrist watch, 5 diamond rings, 5 diamond pins and 10 sets of cuff links.

Police said today $85 was taken from a safe at the Henson Metal Co., 218 Hartford Road, over the weekend.

A Milford Street couple reported the theft of a gold bracelet valued at $1,250 from a master bedroom on Jan. 14 and 15. The incident remains under investigation.

Police charged Richard P. Bedrosian, 23, of 729 North Main St., Manchester, with three counts of issuing a bad check and also possession of less than four ounces of cannabis. He was released on a $500 cash bond, police said, for a Feb. 4 court appearance.

Ahearn To Ride Rail Experiment

BOLTON — State Rep. Aloysius Ahearn of Bolton has been invited by U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett to ride on the passenger run from Hartford to Manchester Thursday. The "special ride" is to demonstrate the viability of short-run commuter rail lines in Central Connecticut.

Also invited to take the train ride are: Governor Ella Grasso, U.S. Rep. William R. Cotter, Manchester Mayor Stephen Penny, and Wallace J. Irish Jr. of Manchester, a Republican state Central Committee member.

Following the train ride, which will be a public celebration at the Whalon Memorial Library when the train arrives.

The train will leave Hartford at 1:30 p.m. and move along at a slow pace of about 20 miles per hour, arriving in Manchester about 2:15 p.m.

Ahearn led the fight in 1975 to prevent the ripping up of the existing Manchester-Willimantic rail line. The Legislature, rather than the Department of Transportation, for recent actions to improve rail service.

"Efforts by the Legislature and many public service groups and concerned citizens, as well as the stark reality of the energy crisis, has impelled the DOT to a commitment to rail service. I look forward to that future day when I will ride a passenger train from Hartford to Willimantic," Ahearn said.

VFV Visit
MANCHESTER — The Anderson Shea Post and Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will make a recreational visit to the Rocky Hill Veterans hospital tonight. Members planning to attend should meet at the Post Home, 608 E. Center St., at 3:30 p.m.

Steelers Best in NFL History

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Swann, Joe Greene, Mel Blount and Jack Ham each said it in their own way: This Pittsburgh Steelers team may be the best in NFL history.

But Ham reflected on the question the most. Forcely to watch the game from the sidelines because of an ankle injury, the All-Pro linebacker paused when asked whether this Steelers team is the finest ever.

"The comparison is hard to make, but I think so," he said. "Number one is our depth. There are 45 players who can play. We're a better team now for the reason that we have much more talent now than we've ever had."

Of the dynasty which has captured four Super Bowls since 1975, these were other typical comments by the Steelers following their 24-10 comeback victory over the Los Angeles Rams in Super Bowl XIV Sunday.

From quarterback Bradshaw, the game's MVP: "I would say it has to be the best Steelers team ever considering the position we were in, our age, and the pressure. Everybody's been shooting for us for the last eight years, and our victory came against the Rams, who we had never beaten before. It's quite a remarkable collection of athletes."

Blount: "I think winning this fourth Super Bowl should put us in a special category. I think this is probably the best team ever assembled. They talk about Vince Lombardi, but I think the Chuck Noll era is even greater."

From Greene: "For the past six years we have been damn good. You get that same nervous feeling when you see that crowd and realize the magnitude of the Super Bowl. We just had too many good football players. The Rams were very high emotionally and they executed very well. They played a real good game. As I said, we just had too many good football players."

The Steelers were 11-point favorites, but trailed the Rams 17-17 early in the fourth quarter when Bradshaw rallied the Steelers with a spectacular 73-yard touchdown bomb to John Stallworth that put Pittsburgh ahead for good 24-19.

The 31-year-old Bradshaw, who threw two touchdown passes and three interceptions, said he lacked confidence in his passing game in the first half, and wasn't even sure that the play that won the game would work.

He said the play to Stallworth was a "60 prevent slot hook and go," a play developed just a week ago.

"I ran the pass eight times in practice and I didn't like it, but it worked today," Bradshaw said. "This is my most satisfying Super Bowl. I felt more pressure than at any other time."

Victorious coach Chuck Noll said, "This victory is probably the best we've ever had," as he accepted the Super Bowl trophy from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Noll said the Rams "ran the ball very well and played great defense," but credited his team with coming up with the big plays and holding off the Rams with a strong game-ending defense.

Jack Lambert, who intercepted a Vince Ferragamo pass on the touchdown, said he was "a little bit nervous" about the game.

Lambert said he felt he could return the interception for a score and then had thoughts of passing it off to teammate Mel Blount.

"I thought I could take it all the way for a touchdown," he said. "Then I saw I couldn't and I thought I could lateral to Mel Blount. He'd have a better chance to take it in. I don't get paid to run the ball — I get paid to hit people."

"Then I just cradled the ball and hit the ground. The last thing I wanted to do then was take a chance on fumbling the ball. Let's say I was sweating it out at a bit when I saw getting that close to our goaline with only six minutes to go."

Lambert said he felt the victory was the result of a balanced performance by the Steelers.

"The first two years we won the Super Bowl, I thought our defense won it for us," said Lambert. "Last year I thought our offense won it for us. And this year, I thought it was a combination of the two."

Steelers fans who were in the stadium for the game said they were "very orderly," said one unidentified white-hatted police officer. "In fact, it's kind of surprising. The crowd seems to be smaller than other years. Too many they're getting used to this."

The fans this time didn't pour into the city as the NFL championship game ended at Pasadena, Calif. They trickled in. Maybe the Steelers' difficulty in winning kept them at their television sets longer. Instead of roaming the streets, the groups made their way directly to Market Square to mass their cheers and banners and happy handshakes in honor of their Steelers, who really did — as the big plays and holding off the Rams with a strong game-ending defense.

Jack Lambert, who intercepted a Vince Ferragamo pass on the touchdown, said he was "a little bit nervous" about the game.

Lambert said he felt he could return the interception for a score and then had thoughts of passing it off to teammate Mel Blount.

"I thought I could take it all the way for a touchdown," he said. "Then I saw I couldn't and I thought I could lateral to Mel Blount. He'd have a better chance to take it in. I don't get paid to run the ball — I get paid to hit people."

"Then I just cradled the ball and hit the ground. The last thing I wanted to do then was take a chance on fumbling the ball. Let's say I was sweating it out at a bit when I saw getting that close to our goaline with only six minutes to go."

Lambert said he felt the victory was the result of a balanced performance by the Steelers.

"The first two years we won the Super Bowl, I thought our defense won it for us," said Lambert. "Last year I thought our offense won it for us. And this year, I thought it was a combination of the two."

Steelers fans who were in the stadium for the game said they were "very orderly," said one unidentified white-hatted police officer. "In fact, it's kind of surprising. The crowd seems to be smaller than other years. Too many they're getting used to this."

The fans this time didn't pour into the city as the NFL championship game ended at Pasadena, Calif. They trickled in. Maybe the Steelers' difficulty in winning kept them at their television sets longer. Instead of roaming the streets, the groups made their way directly to Market Square to mass their cheers and banners and happy handshakes in honor of their Steelers, who really did — as the

Steelers Joyous In Locker Room

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers' locker room was joyous but not chaotic following their fourth Super Bowl victory in as many appearances, and that more than anything else tells the story of their remarkable success.

The Steelers, you see, expect to win. They know they have the very best of personnel in the NFL. When they win, they're a happy bunch but they keep it all in perspective. They won the Super Bowl last year and they assume they'll win it again next year.

On Sunday, against a stubborn but outmanned Los Angeles team, the Steelers came up with the big play when it counted and the Rams didn't, and Pittsburgh's 31-19 triumph over the dogged Rams in Super Bowl XIV gave the Steelers a legitimate claim to the title of the greatest team in pro football history.

The Steelers, sparked by a spectacular performance from quarterback Terry Bradshaw to John Stallworth and a key interception by Jack Lambert, surged to their fourth NFL title in the last six years when they rallied in the final period to defeat the 11-point underdog Rams.

The unprecedented fourth Super Bowl victory did not come easily, as the lead changed hands six times before Bradshaw finally put the heavily favored Steelers ahead to stay with 12:04 left in the game on the spectacular TD bomb to Stallworth.

"Everybody's been shooting for us the last eight years and it (the victory) came against the Rams who we had never beaten," said Bradshaw, named the game's most valuable player. "It's quite a remarkable collection of athletes."

Bradshaw, 31 and a 10-year veteran, said, "I felt more pressure than at any other time," and added that the pass to Stallworth was a "99 percent slot hook and go," a play developed only a week ago.

"I ran the pass eight times in practice and I didn't like it, but it worked today," Bradshaw said. "This is my most satisfying Super Bowl."

Noll said the Rams "ran the ball very well and played great defense," but credited his team with coming up with the great plays and strong game-ending defense as enabling the Steelers to win.

Museum To House Big Cat

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Children's Museum has received pledges from two insurance companies in its fund-raising drive to build a home for a 150-pound middle-aged mountain lion.

Museum director David D. Bonney II said Saturday more than $4,000 was needed to build a pen for Ninja, a lioness found abandoned recently in a garage in Tolland.

The museum told the Connecticut Humane Society it would adopt the de-clawed cat, providing it could raise enough money through private and public donations for proper care and quarters.

Bonney said that a Hartford insurance company had pledged to match each $1 in private contributions with $2, up to $2,000.

He said another insurance agency had donated $1,000 to build the pen. The museum director said the public donation he received from the public was 55 cents from a young visitor to the museum, which draws 160,000 people a year.

The first kid gave me 55 cents," Bonney said. "It is to me the most beautiful thing in the world."

Bonney said the museum is planning to build an outdoor 25-foot cage for Ninja, who is halfway through her expected 12-13-year life, with an accompanying indoor cage.

He said the lion had been kept all her life in smaller cages and had developed a liking for people — a plus for a museum directed to children.

Bonney emphasized that the museum is not a zoo and would use the lion for educational programs. Since Ninja can be approached by people he said the staff will probably enter the pen to narrate future educational programs for youngsters.

The lion will have a feline neighbor, he said.

Vermont Firm To Open New Woodstove Foundry

RANDOLPH, Vt. (UPI) — In 1974, Duncan Syme spent a year building his first cast-iron woodstove.

This week, Syme's company officially opens the first new woodstove foundry built in the U.S. since the turn of the century — a $5 million building expected to produce 50,000 stoves in 1980.

Already, as workers tip vats of molten iron into molds at the rate of 200 castings an hour, other employees are expanding the brand new 60,000 square-foot building to add a third furnace.

From the beginning, Syme and Howells had difficulty finding foundries that would cast their stove parts with the attention to detail, and to the production deadlines, that they required.

Syme and Howells set up business in an area celebrates the 300th anniversary of the White River in the hill town of Randolph, where they are now the largest employer.

From an original five employees, the staff has grown to 225.

"The factory has been back-ordered since the day it opened and things are in a perpetual state of construction," said Morris.

The phenomenal success of Vermont Castings Inc., whose production has doubled every year since 1975, is a symbol of the phoenix-like return of woodburning as a source of home heat.

"We were a laughing stock in the foundry industry, because here were these crazy people who knew nothing about foundries spending $5 million," said Morris.

The plant began casting parts nine months after groundbreaking, an accomplishment pointed out endlessly to visitors.

"In 1973, hundreds of companies sprang up to fill this sudden demand for woodstoves. We expect there'll be some shakeout soon; there are too many people making junk," said Morris.

"This year you'd have to be a fool not to make money in the woodstove business," says Stephen Morris, the company's manager of customer relations. "Sometimes it seems like everybody in the world wants to buy a woodstove."

Product Quality Depends on Competent Management

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the Japanese Matsushita electrical company bought a television receiver factory in Illinois in 1974 it found the plant's product quality level was 150 defects per 100 finished sets against one-half defect per 100 for plants in Japan.

Smith's work is a textbook for industrial management on how to go about reversing what he considers the appalling quality level of the products of American industry.

Quality assurance is the responsibility of general management, not of the quality professionals," he stresses. Unless that cardinal tenet is understood and followed by a company, Smith says, "quality will never happen."

Four Companies Coming to State

HARTFORD (UPI) — Four out-of-state companies will pump about $13 million into Connecticut business expansion, creating 241 new jobs, state Economic Development Commissioner Edward J. Stockton said.

Possible Answer

The answer to America's driving needs in the late 1980s and beyond may be found in the Mercury Antser, a 1,200-pound electric concept car approximately the size of a Mercury Bobcat.

Consumer Showcase

VERNON — The Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce is making plans for Consumer Showcase '80, the chamber's bi-annual product show scheduled for April 12 and 13 at the Vernon Center Middle School.

Heritage—the better way with new rates and gifts.

Heritage leads the way in savings investments. Because we offer the latest rates for the 6 month certificate. And for the newest idea in savings, we're introducing the 2 1/2 year savings certificate. What's more, when you open a new certificate account, we give you a choice of quality luggage—free or at a substantial reduction.

6 month savings certificate 11.783% 12.306%

annual rate      equivalent annual yield

New 2 1/2 year savings certificate 10.40% 11.12%

annual rate      effective annual yield

Our rates for this high earning/short term certificate are the highest permitted by law. And even though the federal government prohibits compounding on this certificate, we have a way to maximize your returns. Because we can deposit your monthly dividends in an interest-earning savings account. To qualify for this certificate, a $10,000 minimum deposit is required.

(Rate above applies for the week of January 17-23. Federal regulations require a substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Rate subject to change at maturity. Yield is based on reinvestment of principal and yield at maturity. Federal regulations prohibit compounding of interest during the term of this certificate.)

BAG A BARGAIN Receive your choice of beautiful matched luggage and tote bags free or at tremendous discounts when you deposit now.

FRANK AND ERNST. IN MY CASE IT WAS ALL SINS OF OMISSION - I COULD NEVER GET ORGANIZED. Dear Abby. DEAR ABBY: Whenever my husband and I have an argument we can't seem to settle, he says, "Write to Abby," so I'm writing. On what holidays do the nation's florists do the biggest business? I say that the biggest day is Mother's Day. My husband says it's Valentine's Day. Also, is more money spent on flowers for funerals or weddings. We can't seem to agree on this. THE BATTILING BRIGHAMS. DEAR BRIGHAMS: No orchids to me. I asked the Florists Transworld Delivery, and they listed the holidays in order of sales reported by the nation's florists: Christmas, Mother's Day, Easter, Valentine's Day, Thanksgiving. As for weddings versus funerals, florists represent approximately 40 percent of an average florist's business, while funerals represent only 10 percent. And what better time is there to rent my readers to give flowers to those you love while they can smell them? DEAR ABBY: My sister is 46, divorced and a part-time waitress. I don't know what the definition of an alcoholic is, but I think she's one. When she's sober, she's a perfect lady, but after a few drinks she used to bed with any guy who looks good to her. Recently met a fine gentleman who seemed very much interested in her, but he was turned off fast when a few drinks she said, "If I ever marry again, my husband will have to let me have friends once in a while because I need variety?" Well, Abby, what respectable man would want a wife like that? I could get her to quit drinking, do you think she would straighten out sexually? I think her appetite for "variety" is brought on by whiskey. CONCERNED BROTHER. DEAR BROTHER: Alcohol relaxes tension sometimes removes inhibitions, so it would seem that your sister's promiscuity is brought on by her drinking. Her "need for variety" can be cured only if she is strongly motivated to cure it. Work on one problem at a time. Keep her sober, and you may not have to worry about her promiscuity. DEAR ABBY: I have never seen anything in your column about this subject. Perhaps it's not regarded as a problem by most, but I think it deserves a mention. I'll call it "Advice to parents in love." Parents, when you buy gifts for your married son or daughter, don't spend more on your son or daughter than you spend on his or her spouse. Example: Christmas gifts for son: Cashmere sweater, tennis racket, brief case, wrist watch. Christmas gifts for his wife: A pair of oven mitts, a box of dusting powder, a Monopoly game, a subscription to TV Guide. And please don't give your married child a personal gift on his birthday, and give his spouse something "for the two of you." "Share the gifts" for the two of you "for their anniversary." I realize most parents are naturally inclined to be a little more generous to their own flesh and blood, but please don't do so obliviously. It's tacky. DEAR ABBY: Regarding what to give a couple for a wedding gift that has lived together before marriage: I made a donation to PLANNED PARENTHOOD in their honor. Sign me... PRACTICAL IN POMONA. Are there questions you can't ask your parents? Get Abby's new booklet: WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Drugs, sex and alcohol are plainly discussed. Peanuts - Charles M. Schulz. DEAR ABBY: Whenever my husband and I have an argument we can't seem to settle, he says, "Write to Abby," so I'm writing. On what holidays do the nation's florists do the biggest business? I say that the biggest day is Mother's Day. My husband says it's Valentine's Day. Also, is more money spent on flowers for funerals or weddings. We can't seem to agree on this. THE BATTILING BRIGHAMS. DEAR BRIGHAMS: No orchids to me. I asked the Florists Transworld Delivery, and they listed the holidays in order of sales reported by the nation's florists: Christmas, Mother's Day, Easter, Valentine's Day, Thanksgiving. As for weddings versus funerals, florists represent approximately 40 percent of an average florist's business, while funerals represent only 10 percent. And what better time is there to rent my readers to give flowers to those you love while they can smell them? DEAR ABBY: My sister is 46, divorced and a part-time waitress. I don't know what the definition of an alcoholic is, but I think she's one. When she's sober, she's a perfect lady, but after a few drinks she used to bed with any guy who looks good to her. Recently met a fine gentleman who seemed very much interested in her, but he was turned off fast when a few drinks she said, "If I ever marry again, my husband will have to let me have friends once in a while because I need variety?" Well, Abby, what respectable man would want a wife like that? I could get her to quit drinking, do you think she would straighten out sexually? I think her appetite for "variety" is brought on by whiskey. CONCERNED BROTHER. DEAR BROTHER: Alcohol relaxes tension sometimes removes inhibitions, so it would seem that your sister's promiscuity is brought on by her drinking. Her "need for variety" can be cured only if she is strongly motivated to cure it. Work on one problem at a time. Keep her sober, and you may not have to worry about her promiscuity. DEAR ABBY: I have never seen anything in your column about this subject. Perhaps it's not regarded as a problem by most, but I think it deserves a mention. I'll call it "Advice to parents in love." Parents, when you buy gifts for your married son or daughter, don't spend more on your son or daughter than you spend on his or her spouse. Example: Christmas gifts for son: Cashmere sweater, tennis racket, brief case, wrist watch. Christmas gifts for his wife: A pair of oven mitts, a box of dusting powder, a Monopoly game, a subscription to TV Guide. And please don't give your married child a personal gift on his birthday, and give his spouse something "for the two of you." "Share the gifts" for the two of you "for their anniversary." I realize most parents are naturally inclined to be a little more generous to their own flesh and blood, but please don't do so obliviously. It's tacky. DEAR ABBY: Regarding what to give a couple for a wedding gift that has lived together before marriage: I made a donation to PLANNED PARENTHOOD in their honor. Sign me... PRACTICAL IN POMONA. Are there questions you can't ask your parents? Get Abby's new booklet: WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Drugs, sex and alcohol are plainly discussed. Send $2 and a long, stamped (25 cent) self-addressed envelope to Abby, 133 Lake Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.
