Experimental Trip Spurs Rail Interest

MANCHESTER — Whether or not passenger rail service between Hartford and Manchester will be reinstated on a regular schedule, participation in a demonstration trip Thursday sparked the interest of more than 100 state and local officials and representatives of the greater Hartford press corps.

As the self-propelled Budd car pulled out of Union Station, talk among the dignitaries was confined to regular rail service for Manchester in the transportation plan of the state and some railroading nostalgia.

The trip was organized by U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett, who had planned to ride the train but was detained in Washington by the sudden illness of his father.

The half-hour ride to Manchester was confined to 25 miles per hour because state railroad officials were concerned about track conditions probably would be within reason.

Passengers experienced some sway in the car as it passed over tracks officials concede are in need of revitalization.

Rail and state officials said during the trip they found the track to be in better condition than they had expected.

State Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers found some controversy aboard the car as two groups supporting rail transportation accused the state Department of Transportation of having a highway orientation.

Representatives of the Connecticut Transportation Coalition and the Connecticut Association of Rail and Bus Users capitalized on the trip to lobby for their cause.

A leaflet distributed to the passengers by the transportation coalition called for citizen action to get the state to rethink its highway construction program, specifically mentioning I-84 and I-86 projects.

Aboard the train and again in the crowd of well-wishers in Manchester, Powers said the state is committed to a mix of highway and mass transportation. He said Connecticut has a strong commitment to rail transportation as part of a balanced transportation program, recognizing the need for highways and rail service.

He said a Capital Regional Council of Governments is preparing a study on the feasibility of a Hartford-Manchester passenger line.

"This kind of service will cost extra," he said. "It doesn't pay that could generate 50 percent or more of its cost through fares probably would be within reason."

The group gathered at Whiton Memorial Library heard greetings from Mayor Stephen Penny, State Rep. Thomas Serrano, co-chairman of the House Transportation Committee and the Bennet Junior High School stage band.

Rent Subsidies Hit New Snag

MANCHESTER — The town received another setback Thursday in its efforts to award all of its 14 new rent subsidies to local residents.

The Washington, D.C. office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development ruled that Manchester must award six of the units, or 40 percent, to poor people now living out of town or less all of these subsidies.

McCartney Freed

TOKYO (UPI)—Former Beatle Paul McCartney, jailed for nine days on marijuana smuggling charges, was freed today and ordered deported immediately.

Police said prosecutors decided not to seek an indictment against McCartney, who now heads the rock group Wings. He was released at 4 p.m. (2 a.m. EST) from the Metropolitan Tokyo Detention Center, they said.

He was then ordered to go to the Tokyo International Airport at Narita, 40 miles east of Tokyo, where he was arrested Jan. 16.

The 37-year-old rock star, his wife Linda and their four children came to Japan for an 11-concert Wings tour. The tour was sold out far in advance but it was canceled after McCartney's arrest, when customs agents found what they said was almost eight ounces of marijuana in the pop idol's luggage. McCartney was ordered held in jail while officials decided whether to prosecute or deport him. The former Beatle would have faced up to seven years in prison if he had been convicted on the charges under Japan's stiff drug law.

His release came a day after British Consul D.W.F. Warren-Koott visited the performer-composer in his cell and reported he was "receiving proper treatment."

McCartney had been described by his agent as being "frustrated" because he did not know that was going to happen to him.

He reportedly has promised to reimburse promoters for their losses due to the cancellation.

Down Payment

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—A state Banking Department survey showed prospective home buyers in Connecticut who are lucky enough to get a mortgage had better be prepared to make larger down payments.

The survey of the state's 170 banks released Tuesday also said mortgage rates have increased substantially and the toughest place to borrow money for a home was Fairfield County.

Almost half the banks surveyed weren't offering mortgages with 20 percent down payments, while almost 60 percent weren't accepting applications for 10 percent down payments. Until recently, 10 percent or less was the norm.

Banking Commissioner David H. Neiditz said the survey also showed the median interest rate on a 25-year mortgage with 25 percent down had risen from 10.5 percent to almost 13.2 percent since last January.

Banking Department Economist

High C. McLean, who conducted the survey Jan. 7, said mortgages were generally available at higher down payments but added that some larger savings banks which traditionally handled mortgages were no longer doing so.

"This is not something I have run into before," he said, explaining that while it wasn't unusual for smaller commercial banks not to accept mortgage applications it was for the savings banks.

"For savings banks to not be accepting mortgage applications, that's an unusual situation," he said. "It shows savings flows are not adequate to keep up with what they would like. I think we're beginning to see that deposit inflows are slowing down."

Gourmet Thief

KENNEBUNK, Maine (UPI)—A thief stole silver from a church and celebrated with an unusual feast. He left behind empty containers of beef consommé and wine, and candle drippings on the stove where "he apparently cooked his meal."

"Silver is selling pretty good right now, so I guess he decided to celebrate," said pastor Clifford Geiger of St. David's Episcopal Church, adding the thief bypassed valuable brass ornaments and "only took sterling silver."

"The beef consommé cans were opened with a letter opener," he said. "He did it all by candlelight and dripped candle wax on the stove in the kitchen where he apparently cooked his meal."

The thief who heisted engraved silver bowls and cruets, a chalice and other items also left behind an empty bottle of rubbing alcohol.

"I have no idea what he did with the rubbing alcohol," said Geiger. "I hope maybe he drank it."

Border Security

ST. ALBANS, Vt. (UPI)—Security along the border between Canada and northern Vermont and New York will be increased soon in preparation for the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid.

District Immigration Director George Lara said Wednesday four inspectors will be added to the eight-person force at the Highgate crossing. He said manpower will also be beefed up at Champlain, N.Y., and in Montreal.

Gordon Dillmore, deputy chief border patrol agent, said agents will be transferred temporarily to Vermont and New York from more easterly border points.

Officials said the increased surveillance is aimed at coping both with the bigger volume of border crossings and with the possibility of terrorists trying to reach Lake Placid.

Rent Curbs Get Support

VERNON—Added to other requests received that the town have a Fair Rent Commission, the Town Council has received a petition from some residents of multiple family homes on Grove Street.

The petitioners ask for rent control, the Fair Rent Commission and to have their rights recognized for good maintenance of their rented units.

The petition was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Blankenship and 13 other persons who live at 89 and 95 Grove St.

The town attorney has ruled that the Town Council has the authority to establish a fair rent commission. This ruling was made after the council received a petition signed by 238 residents.

Edwin Lavitt, the town attorney, said such a commission could investigate complaints, conduct hearings, and control rents for apartments, houses, and mobile homes.

Lavitt's opinion has been turned over to the council's Rehabilitation Committee to study and to prepare a recommendation to be made to the council.

The first petition with the 238 signatures was prompted when some landlords imposed supplemental rent charges for heating costs and the persons renting the units said maintenance was poor.

Afghan Rebels Take Heavy Soviet Toll

By United Press International Soviet supply planes bringing troops and supplies into Afghanistan are reportedly taking out another kind of cargo — casualties.

U.S. intelligence sources have estimated 2,000 Soviet troops have been killed or injured since they invaded Afghanistan nearly a month ago.

Western diplomats in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, who put the Soviet dead at between 1,200 and 2,000, said the Russians are losing men mostly in small, Viet Cong-style ambushes instead of large battles.

One Soviet soldier at an outpost in Salang Pass told Western reporters the Moslem rebels' "favorite technique is to block the road by causing a landslide. Then they try to pick off our engineers when they come to clear the road." Reports from refugees said the Soviets were using air strikes against the insurgents.

The soldiers at the outpost told the reporters they look on their duty in the foreign country as normal aid, unlike the American presence in West Germany, South Korea or even Vietnam.

"There are reliable reports of large numbers of coffins being loaded on planes at Kabul Airport and being flown back to the Soviet Union," one diplomat in Islamabad said Thursday.

Various reports have said that the Soviet troops are dug in around major population centers and highways while the rebels are operating out of the mountains and near the borders. Wall Street Journal reporter Jonathan Kwitny, a war correspondent, said American journalists were expelled until he was arrested Sunday and expelled Tuesday, reported in the major western Afghan city of Herat residents would climb to the roofs at night and shout "Allah Akbar," God is Great," for two hours.

The Soviet sound trucks would prowl the city, urging the people to come down, he reported from Pakistan.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Thursday the United States has not been able to substantiate reports "at this time" the Soviets are using lethal chemical weapons against the Afghan rebels.

The Soviets have denied using chemical warfare and Carter said if the reports were true, "such action would be an outrageous and inhumane act against defenseless people."

Killer Diller

The one-liners fell like hailstones Wednesday at New York's Les Mouches ("I used to be a lampshade in a bar...")

— it was the only job they'd give me". After the show, Phyllis Diller held forth on several subjects, and they still sounded like one-liners.

Of her last "lecture": "The title was, 'Not World Has Changed.' I never said a word about that and the audience never knew the difference."

On changes in comedy since the '60s: "The barriers are down. Back then you couldn't even say 'hell' or 'broad' on TV — and 'broad' is a very funny word."

But the answer was straight when the twice-divorced funny lady was asked if a new "Fang" is on the horizon. Said she, "Not really — I'm having too much fun just as things are now."

Quo Vadis? The crystal ball comes out of the closet Friday when the University of Texas and the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library sponsor a look at the 1980s — and they'll have a couple of eminent crystal-gazers doing the honors.

Mass Transit Steps

A lot of enthusiasm for passenger rail service between Hartford and Manchester was generated in a promotional venture Thursday.

Once that happens, the state Department of Transportation will look at the prospect of the service and its priorities.

Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers made it clear the state is interested in developing a mix for transportation resources which will include rail and highways.

Soviets View Carter As 'Weak, Vulnerable'

WASHINGTON - There is quiet nagging conviction in the Washington strategy councils that President Carter himself laid the groundwork for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Cuba, Carter complained to congressional leaders that the Soviets were lying. "The Soviets deny it has combat status," he told them privately. "But it is a combat unit."

But how can we hope for unity among the churches if we do not have unity within our families and communities? As we take steps toward each other in the church, we need to take steps toward each other in our homes, our jobs and our neighborhoods.

Dr. Stolzenberg Directs Newington Hospital Unit

NEWINGTON — Dr. Jonathan B. Stolzenberg of Glastonbury has been named director of the Division of Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics at Newington Children's Hospital. The appointment was announced by A. John Meniel, executive director for the children's hospital.

Dr. Stolzenberg's duties include the medical supervision of the children's hospital program for Evaluation of Development and Learning (EDAL) — a program for children who have multiple difficulties in developing their abilities during the years of infancy, childhood, adolescence and early adulthood.

In addition, Dr. Stolzenberg will work to expand developmental and behavioral services already available at the children's hospital and he is responsible for developing resident training programs in developmental and behavioral pediatrics for the pediatric residency program at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine where he has been appointed assistant professor of pediatrics.

Before joining the children's hospital, Dr. Stolzenberg served as director of children's services and director of medical education at the Center for Comprehensive Health Practice, New York Medical College, and was an instructor in pediatrics and assistant professor of family medicine. His extensive professional background encompasses all phases of comprehensive medical care, including family therapy, parent education and community medicine.

Dr. Stolzenberg was raised in West Hartford and is an alumnus of the Kingswood-Oxford School. He was graduated summa cum laude from Harvard University where he gained distinction as a Harvard National Scholar and selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honor society.

He received his medical degree from the Albert Einstein College of Medicine at New York's Yeshiva University and completed residency training at Bronx-Lebanon Hospital Center and a fellowship in ambulatory pediatrics at Metropolitan Hospital Center and Flower Fifth Avenue Hospital.

Dr. Stolzenberg is a member of numerous professional organizations and societies including the American Association for the Care of Children in Hospitals; the Ambulatory Pediatric Association; the Association for the Behavioral Sciences and Medical Education; and the Avanta Network — an international society of professionals who have trained with noted family therapist Dr. Virginia Satir and are involved in developing training programs in human growth and development. He is a candidate member of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

New State Tax Proposal To Be Aired at Hearing

VERNON — Persons in the Vernon area will be able to discuss and ask questions concerning several proposed tax bills during a public hearing scheduled for Jan. 31 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers of the Memorial Building.

The hearing will be conducted by the Business Tax Subcommittee of the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Commission.

Vernon's State Rep. Chester Morgan said the public is invited to comment, especially on a proposal on gross earnings tax of the major oil companies at a rate of 1.5 percent. He said this would generate an estimated $20 million in new revenues. Hearings have been held in Waterbury and Hartford at which oil company executives from Mobil, Exxon, Texaco and Sunmark, have been unanimous in their opposition to the bill while members of the labor unions and citizen group have generally favored it," Morgan said.

While the majority of public hearings and committee meetings are held in the Capitol, Morgan said, "Because of the controversial subject of the bill the subcommittee has decided to hold major hearings in the Vernon area."

He said the people of Eastern Connecticut should take advantage of this opportunity to testify and help the committee in its deliberation on the bill, a major impact to the citizen of this state.

provide a variety of services. In addition to spiritual care, a missionary provides educational assistance, legal aid, medical care and development assistance in the areas of building and farming. "You learn when you are in the field," he says of how he learned about construction, "learning from those who have building knowledge, such as other missionaries or Peace Corps volunteers."

"I have also tried to broaden the people's knowledge of law in their country," he said.

In Ruheba, he was often called upon to help the people solve basic everyday problems involving law, such as interpreting land documents, leases, and property rights.

Law is what brought Father Mapelli to Connecticut in 1979. He was granted a sabbatical to attend the University of Connecticut Law School in West Hartford, but soon discovered that the study of United States law would not help him deal with the complexities of Bengali law. He transferred to UConn's School of Social Work, where he has gained valuable insights that he believes will help him when he returns to Bangladesh later this year.

His work at Manchester Memorial Hospital and Meadows Convalescent Home will, he hopes, provide him with an understanding of medical institutions. He has been extensively involved in public health in Bangladesh, often being the only provider of medical services in the area. He has built and staffed two dispensaries while in Bangladesh, offering medical care to all the poor regardless of race or creed. Approximately 75 percent of the people are affected with various skin, lung and intestinal diseases, with worm infestation very common among children.

Prior to leaving for Bangladesh 18 years ago, Father Mapelli attended a special medical education program for missionaries offered by the medical faculty of the University of Milano. "It was a very difficult program," he reports, "but very necessary to provide the types of service these people need."

Another of the services he has worked to provide is education. His personal goal is to provide primary education to everyone in his mission, regardless of financial ability to parents' attitudes. Since there is no convent or school on the mission, the students are sent to boarding school. There are currently 213 children in school, mostly in primary school. Gifted children, he indicated, are supported all the way through the university system.

He does most of his work among the Hindu missionary of Bangladesh, which is 55 percent Moslem and only 15 percent Hindu. "The minorities feel that their last hope is the Christian tradition if they want to remain in Bangladesh," he said. "They see the Christian community as a bulwark of strength, as a larger body that can defend them in a country where they are in the minority."

The Moslems in Bangladesh, he found, unlike their counterparts in other mid-East countries, are very fair, honest, compassionate people. Many of them have lent strategic support to the mission and some are always speaking up for the rights of the minorities.

One thing that went along with the single, separate theaters of yesteryear, of course, was the very evident sense of management continuity. A Jack Sanson helped the State, on Manchester's Main Street, for years. Nowadays, a theater manager is on the move from one theater to another, from one city to another. It's part of progress, caravans.

While years ago the largest regional circuits included Warner Bros. small goods. Father Mapelli and his assistant quickly gave pursuit into the night and following a 13-mile chase, apprehended the robbers and the stolen property. Father Mapelli has often been called upon to hop onto his motorcycle and hurry to a neighboring village, in an effort to help drive other robbers away.

Father Mapelli, when not carrying out the many roles of his multi-faceted position as a missionary, enjoys big game hunting. Since his arrival in 1961, he has killed two jungle leopards.

"Natural disasters," he says, "are exacerbated by these calamities, he adds, and educational efforts undermined, since school buildings are frequent victims of this violent nature. In a country where 80 percent of the people are illiterate, and of the 20 percent who do go to school, 75 percent drop out before the fifth grade level, self-improvement is made only that much more difficult."

Father Mapelli, however, is looking forward to returning to Bangladesh later this summer. "I am anxious to establish a new substation of the Ruheba mission and put into practice what I have learned since past year. Bangladesh may be a difficult place, but your work is very much appreciated by the people. You know you are helping people better themselves and that is important."

While at Manchester Memorial Hospital, Father Mapelli is a member of the Department of Pastoral Care providing an ecumenical ministry to patients, families and staff. His presence is being sponsored jointly by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, area Roman Catholic parishes and Manchester Memorial Hospital.

That's Entertainment Enormous Change Seen in Theaters

By ALLEN M. WIDEM

The latter-day emergence of the multiple-screen plexus — such as East Hartford's Showcase Cinemas VI — may be indicative of the enormous change evident in motion picture theaters across America.

To think a fleeting generation ago that one could have the choice of half a dozen attractions under one roof was something of an imagination indeed!

Forty years ago, however, it was a decidedly different ball game, in effect — a town such as Manchester with the State and Circle Theatres, separate and distinct movie outlets. Downtown Hartford with Loew's Poli, Loew's Poli Palace, Allyn, E.M. Loew's, Strand, Regal, Princess, State, among others. None contained two and more screens.

Today? There's the Manchester Parkway III, The Vernon Cine II, Variations on a theme, and very much with it, so to speak. There are multiples in still other municipalities with eight screens. But then, whoever heard of massive shopping malls with dozens upon dozens of shops, services, under one roof 40 years ago?

One thing that went along with the single, separate theaters of yesteryear, of course, was the very evident sense of management continuity. A Jack Sanson helped the State, on Manchester's Main Street, for years. Nowadays, a theater manager is on the move from one theater to another, from one city to another. It's part of progress, caravans.

Teacher Consulted For Revived Show

WEST HARTFORD — Sixty years ago, when University of Hartford professor Leonard F. Manheim was an undergraduate at Columbia University, he played a female in a now virtually lost musical, "Fly With Me," by Richard Rodgers.

"I was a female heavy," he recalls with obvious relish, "and quite right, too. I was pretty heavy."

Columbia students will stage the same show this April and all they have to go by are the cue cards and music. The script never made it to Broadway and probably never beyond the Columbia campus where Rodgers was a student.

In an attempt to revive the show as accurately as possible, Andrew Harris, a Columbia theater arts professor, journeyed to the University's West Hartford campus to check Manheim's reminiscences.

The show is about a college run on Bolshevik principles on an island off North America. "We didn't even know about Cuba then," Manheim recalls. His role was that of Constance Houghton, professor of love. He sang the part in a baritone.

Manheim has been invited to attend the show's revival. "It's going to be a terrific shock to have girls playing girls' parts," he says. He is looking forward to going and his only regret is that his old friend Richard Rodgers, who died recently, will not be able to be there with him.

Manheim went to high school with Rodgers and since they were both musical Manheim sang in the Metropolitan Opera chorus — they saw a good bit of each other. "We did Gilbert and Sullivan shows and after the rehearsals, Rodgers would play the piano by ear."

"I'll always remember that it was he who gave me my first cigarette. I'd never had one before, but you see he was a junior and I was a senior so I couldn't let on that I'd never had one."

Rodgers started writing music when he was 14. He was writing summer camp songs then. He never finished Columbia, though. He only went two years.

Manheim, on the other hand, not only graduated Phi Beta Kappa, but went on to get both an M.A. in English and a degree in law simultaneously.

(Wethersfield), among others. Jack Sanson, of course, went on to manage the Strand in Hartford, at the time one of the flagship theaters for Warner Bros. Theaters in the New England states. He maintained that particular Sanson touch of management-plus — the kind of theater manager taking the utmost pride in the theater, in staff, in attractions. Not that today's management ranks are remembered that vaudeville, today's management ranks, in the main, do not date back to yesteryear's mod operandi, where training began in the time of combination motion picture/ vaudeville programming, perhaps the most fascinating combination of theater setting to date in the 20th Century.

It must be remembered that vaudeville, American style, flourished to mid-20th Century, and in theaters where motion pictures were also a main bill of fare. If you're middle-aged, you'll readily remember hour-long shows at the 4200-seat State in Hartford, where vaudeville was followed by a double-bill film schedule, plus short-subjects. And in the not so long ago, theater managers had a particular fondness for "dressing up," donning tuxedos on Friday and Saturday nights.

Of course, what the era of the multiple-screen has done is winnow down, markedly, the number of single-screen theaters in small towns and villages, across Connecticut and across America. The availability of multiple-screens on tremendously increased accessibility (countrywide dotted with beribboned interstate highways) has brought the city closer to the country and the country closer to the city.

But the movie theater business, by tradition, has encompassed the personality touch. Such as a Jack Sanson strolling along Manchester's Main Street on a winter night, more often than not greeted and greeted. The movie theater manager of yesterday, above all, was a known component of the community.

Producing Guild
Marvin Greene (left) and John Hansen appear in the Producing Guild's Production of "Promenade, All," running through Feb. 3 in the Wallace Stevens Theatre of the Hartford Insurance Group, 690 Asylum Ave., Hartford. For information and reservations, call 522-8309.

Theatre 3 Returns With Stitt Drama
MANCHESTER — Theatre 3 returns in residence at Manchester Community College with a pre-season presentation of "The Runner Stumbles," a drama by Milan Stitt. "The Runner Stumbles" opens Wednesday, Jan. 30, and continues through Sunday, Feb. 3. Sunday's performance will be held at 2:15. All other performances are at 8:15. The play will be held at the Manchester Community College Auditorium on the Bidwell Street campus.

"The Runner Stumbles" is a drama about a priest who is accused of killing a nun, and is based upon an actual incident which took place in upper Michigan at the turn of the century.

The guest performers include John Herr as the priest, Father Richard, Susan Ples as the nun, Sister Rita, and Elizabeth Brady as Mrs. Shandig. John Herr was most recently seen in "Emigre" this past fall at the University of Connecticut. He has also performed in the Nutmeg productions of Edward Albee's "Seascape" and the musical "Damn Yankees."

As director, Herr has staged such plays as "Death of a Salesman" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." He is presently graduate director adviser at the University of Connecticut and is working on a work-in-progress production of "The Persecution" which is scheduled this spring at UConn.

Susan Ples has been seen in the area in such roles as Sally Bowles in "Cabaret," Elizabeth in "The Crucible" at the Little Theatre of Manchester; Childie in "The Killing of Sister George" at the old Triangle Playhouse; and Norma in "Invitation to a March" for the Producing Guild. Her previous appearance with Theatre 3 was in Harold Pinter's "The Lover."

Elizabeth Brady has performed, directed, and produced theater extensively throughout the New England area. Among her acting credits, she lists Jean Brodie in "The Firm" for Miss Jean Brodie; Miss Reardon in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," Eleanor in "The Lion in Winter" and the lead in "Applause." She recently directed "Bells Are Ringing" and "Twelve Angry Men" for the Little Theatre of Manchester. Ms. Brady also directed "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" for Theatre 3. As producer, she founded Encore Playhouse and "South Pacific," with music by Mitch Leigh and lyrics by Joe Darion, first appeared on Broadway in 1955 and starred Richard Kiley. With memorable songs like "Dulcimer" and "The Impossible Dream" the musical portrays the jousting Don Quixote. Holgate, an unusually versatile performer, is an operatic and concert baritone as well as a classical trained actor. In addition to appearing in thirteen operas including the national tour of "La Boheme," he has appeared in six Broadway shows including "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to Town," "Sweet Charity," "Grand Tour" and "1776" for which he won the Tony Award and a role in the film of the same name.

Stan Rubin costars as Cervantes' manservant, Sancho Panza. Rubin is making his third area appearance after previous roles in Coachlight productions of "Fiddler on the Roof" (Avram) and "Girl Crazy" (Doc Parkhurst).

Aldona is played by Marie King who is returning from a two-year tour with the New American Opera Theatre. Ms. King has appeared with Jose Ferrer in "Song for Cyrano." Additional solo credits include "Vanities," "Side by Side," and the identical role of Aldona in "Man of La Mancha."

'Aladdin' in Storrs

STORRS — "Aladdin," the classic Chinese fairy tale of the poor boy with the magic lamp, will be presented by the Prince Street Players at the University of Connecticut's Jorgensen Auditorium Saturday at 1 and 4 p.m.

The troupe will present the story of how Aladdin defeats an evil magician to win untold riches and love of a beautiful princess in the style of traditional Chinese theater, with elaborate costumes, masks and props.

Chinese theater involves great imagination on the part of both actors and audience. A ladder becomes a mountain, or a screen becomes a wall, for example. Or, a "stage manager" plays several characters by changing hats, or becomes a tree by holding an umbrella.

The show also features Oriental music and instruments, such as songs, rattles, and drums.

The story of Aladdin is drawn from "A Thousand and One Nights," popularly known as "The Arabian Nights," and Prince Street version is adapted from the translation by Sir Richard Francis Burton, completed in 1888.

The Prince Street Players were founded in New York City in 1965 and dedicated to the highest standards of professional theater for children. They have performed on Broadway, and in many American and Canadian cities, as well as on four television specials for CBS.

Auditions Slated
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Auditions for choral parts and small solo roles in "La Traviata" will be conducted by the Springfield Symphony Orchestra on Saturday, Feb. 8, 8:00 p.m. at the First Church, Court Square, Springfield.

Stay Aboard Ship
MYSTIC — An overnight stay aboard the square-rigged ship Joseph Conrad is the highlight of a two-day study program offered February through April to school and youth groups by Mystic Seaport Museum.

The 103-foot Joseph Conrad was built in Copenhagen as a training ship for the Danish merchant service. Launched as the Georg Stage, the ship carried more than 4,000 cadets on six-month training cruises in the Baltic and North Seas until 1934. The vessel was purchased from the ship breakers by Alan Villiers, who refitted her and renamed her Joseph Conrad. Villiers and a teen-aged son, Colin, owned the ship for 25 years and voyaged around the world in 1930s. The Conrad was then sold to become a private yacht, but she served the U.S. Maritime Commission as an American training ship during World War II. In 1947 Congress decided the ship was to be preserved where she is an exhibit and a berthing facility.

In the Seaport's two-day "Life Aboard Ship" program, groups of 20-40 young people stay aboard the Conrad, tour Seaport exhibits, participate in musicals, see films and hear illustrated talks. Activities are centered around one of four maritime history themes, Whaling, Fishing, Had You Lived Then (19th century life) or the Building of a Wooden Ship.

Programs begin at 1 p.m. and continue through 1 p.m. the following day. Accommodations on the Conrad, including three meals are included in the price of $35 per person. Reservations are being accepted through the Seaport's office, 100 Seaport Avenue, Mystic, Conn. 06340. Openings exist Feb. 1 to 28, March 20 to 21 and April 16 to 17 for "Life Aboard Ship." The School Overnight Program, Groups of children, Grade 4 and above are eligible. Registration information is available from the Education Department, Mystic Seaport Museum, 536-2631.

'Best of Broadway'
HARTFORD — "The Best of Broadway and Hollywood is the theme of the second Hartford Symphony Pops concert on Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Hartford Jay Alai Fronton. Pops conductor Richard Hayman will lead the orchestra in such hits as "Hey, Look Me Over," the themes from "Law" and "Supernova" in addition to selections from "The Sound of Music."

Hayman has served as chief arranger for the Boston Pops Orchestra since 1950 and worked closely with the late Arthur Fiedler. He is the principal "Pops" conductor of the St. Louis Symphony and the Birmingham Symphony — in addition to annual guest appearances with more than 25 other orchestras throughout the country. He has done extensive work in the television and recording industries as well as scoring Broadway shows and motion pictures. Hayman has received numerous awards for his dedication and achievement.

Hartford Symphony
HARTFORD — In his second appearance with the Hartford Symphony, cellist Yo Yo Ma will perform Shostakovich Cello Concerto No. 1 on Wednesday Jan. 30, at 8:15 p.m. Cellist Ronald Thomas will perform the same work on the premiere concert of the Symphony's new weekend series on Friday, Feb. 1, at 8:00 p.m. Both concerts will be at Bushnell Memorial Hall.

Maestro Arthur Fiedler will conduct both concerts, which will open with Kodaly's Galanta Dances, and conclude with Dvorak's Symphony No. 7.

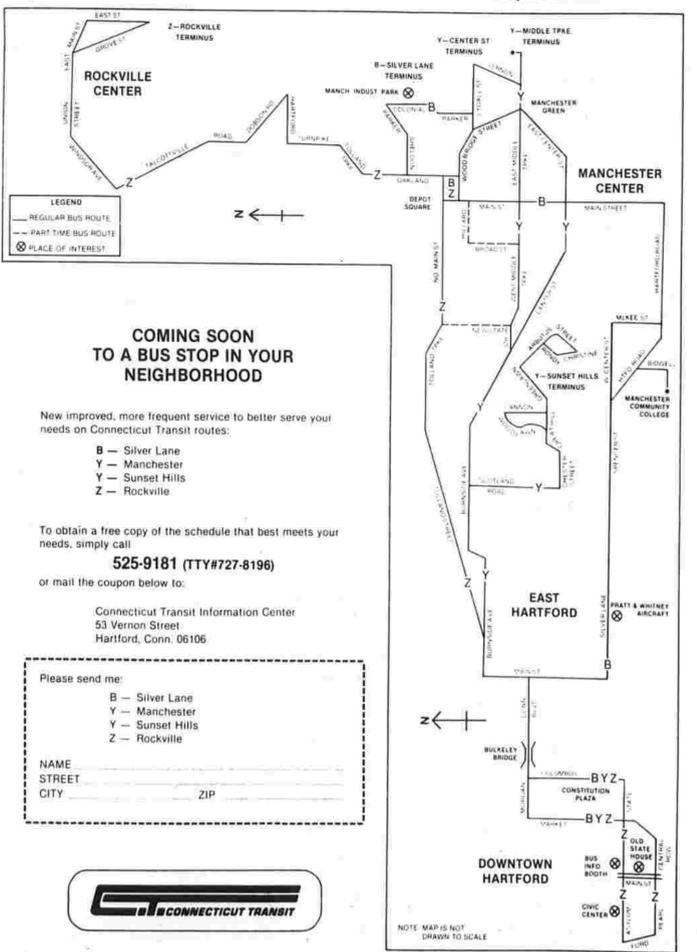

Thomas premiered with the Hartford Symphony earlier this season in the First Tchaikovsky Festival. Thomas made his highly successful New York debut in 1974 after winning the Young Concert Artist Auditions. He attended New England Conservatory and in addition to his symphony appearances, Thomas often performs in recital with chamber groups.

'Man of La Mancha'
EAST WINDSOR — Executive Producer Sam Belkin has announced the Coachlight Dinner Theatre will produce the musical "Man of La Mancha" from Jan. 30 to April 6.

The Broadway musical stars Ron Holgate as Cervantes, the windmill-jousting Don Quixote. Holgate, an unusually versatile performer, is an operatic and concert baritone as well as a classical trained actor. In addition to appearing in thirteen operas including the national tour of "La Boheme," he has appeared in six Broadway shows including "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to Town," "Sweet Charity," "Grand Tour" and "1776" for which he won the Tony Award and a role in the film of the same name.

Stan Rubin costars as Cervantes' manservant, Sancho Panza. Rubin is making his third area appearance after previous roles in Coachlight productions of "Fiddler on the Roof" (Avram) and "Girl Crazy" (Doc Parkhurst).

Aldona is played by Marie King who is returning from a two-year tour with the New American Opera Theatre. Ms. King has appeared with Jose Ferrer in "Song for Cyrano." Additional solo credits include "Vanities," "Side by Side," and the identical role of Aldona in "Man of La Mancha."

Road Encounters For Local Fives

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

Local fans will have to take to their vehicular transportation if they wish to see basketball action tonight as Manchester High, East Catholic and Cheney Tech each are slated for road encounters.

Manchester, idle since last Friday's 70-48 triumph over Enfield, has a short trip to East Hartford to combat CCILC foe Penney High. East has a slightly longer venture as it treks to New Britain to oppose HCC rival St. Thomas Aquinas while the Techmen journey to Colchester to oppose Bacon Academy in the CCG play.

The Indians are 8-3 in the league, 8-4 overall while the Black Knights stand at 7-7 in the CCG and 10-10 overall. The Eagles are 5-1 in the HCC, 10-2 overall while Aquinas is 2-3 in conference titles and 8-4 overall. Cheney, losers of four straight, is 2-7 in the CCG, 4-7 overall while the Bobcats are 6-3 in the conference, 8-3 overall.

Unbeaten Battle Won by Bennet

Two unbeaten squared off yesterday as the Iling and Bennet girls' basketball teams met at the Iling gym. When the smoke settled, the Bears had extended their unbeaten streak to eight straight with a 59-43 decision over the homecoming Rams.

Bennet was won in a row over a two-year span while the loss was Iling's first of the season after seven successive triumphs. The Bears, playing their best game of the campaign, took command from the outset with a 19-6 edge after the intermission.

Wendy Arrum had 16 points, Shana Hopperstead 12 and Beth White 10 for Bennet while Lisa Christensen was a tower of strength off the boards and defensively.

Laura Petersen netted 12 points for Iling with Toby Brown (12) and Patti Wojnarowski (11) also in twin digits.

Nets Very Much Alive In NBA Eastern Race

By MICHAEL SHALIN
UPI Sports Writer

It's just a start and there are four teams to pass in the standings, but the New Jersey Nets are very much alive in the NBA's Eastern Conference playoff scramble.

Now, let's start off by saying that the Nets still have the second-worst record in the conference. But, with John Williamson leading the way in his 20-game weight-related exile, New Jersey has reeled off successive victories over Cleveland and Washington — two of the clubs that must be hurdled for the Nets to join the post-season festivities.

Thursday night, New Jersey routed Kevin Fortis 106-90 in the second half and an outstanding second-quarter defensive display to a 98-77 victory over the slumping Bullets, who lost their sixth straight.

Behind 22-21 after the first period, the Nets, who trail Indiana by two games for the sixth and final playoff spot, held the Bullets to 11 second-quarter points in running a 51-33 halftime lead. Washington shot 4-of-18 in the second quarter, scoring just three points in the first 7:30.

"The guys were just playing great defense and we dominated the boards," said Newlin, who has become one of the league's most dangerous offensive weapons.

"We've got a great defensive team and we can't play much better than we played in the second quarter. It's just a matter of time when we'll take it anyway we can get it."

Washington made a move in the fourth quarter, coming as close as four points, but George Johnson blocked five shots in the quarter to settle the issue.

Mets Owners To Meet Press

By MICHAEL SHALIN
UPI Sports Writer

The owners of the New York Mets will meet the press today to discuss the team's financial situation and the possibility of a sale.

The Mets, last-place finishers in the National League East the past three years, were purchased for $21 million Thursday by a group consisting of Nelson Doubleday, president of Doubleday and Co., Inc., and the great, great nephew of the man who supposedly invented baseball.

Other games, Kansas City clubbed Utah 110-89 and Portland tripped Los Angeles 111-102. Scott Wedman scored 20 points, 18 in the first quarter, to lead Kansas City over Utah. Otis Birdsong added 16 points and Ernie Grant led 13 for the Kings, who shot 62 percent from the field.

Ron Brewer and Tom Owens scored 27 points apiece as Portland broke its own four-game losing streak and ended Los Angeles' six-game win string. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 30 points, had five fouls in the third quarter when he fouled out.

Spokesman Tim Gilles said 10,700 people have already paid RTB about $14 million for accommodations, airline tickets and tickets to the games. Gilles said half the money has already gone to the Soviet government, and travel company officials do not know if they can get that back.

There were two "finalists" for the sale — the Doubleday family and the Allen investment banking firm, thought to be the front-runners up to the last minute. One source close to the situation said, "It seemed they (Doubleday) weren't going to be outbid."

Calfee Earns Golfing Lead

By MICHAEL SHALIN
UPI Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — When Bill Calfee became a professional golfer in 1972, he was 22, a year out of the University of Maryland, where he earned a degree in economics.

So, after winning only $15,402 last year, he gave serious thought to quitting and moving on in another direction. When you are 30 and you have no career to speak of, it's not hard to figure out why Calfee thought the way he did.

As hard as he pondered the future, Calfee and his wife Susan decided to quit it one last try. If he couldn't cut it in 1980, that would be it. No more golf.

He wanted to play in the Bob Hope Desert Classic at Palm Springs, Calif., 2 weeks after the start of the new year, but because that is an invitational event he was unable to crack the field.

Calfee had no particular desire to play in the Phoenix Open last week, but he wanted very much to get started this week in the San Diego Open.

So, he came out last week to practice and on Monday, he shot a 67 for the second lowest qualifying score among 37 players who won spots into the tournament proper.

Snow Welcomed At Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — A cloak of long-awaited white began to fall on Lake Placid, officials said, and the Winter Olympic village came alive again.

Ed Lewi, spokesman for the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, said Wednesday that five inches had fallen on the snow-crawling village by afternoon, with more forecast for later in the week.

"It's beautiful," said Wendy Bergen, sales manager for WITD Radio. "I think it's great. I think it's terrific because it's just what we need."

Ms. Bergen said that as of mid-afternoon about five inches of snow had fallen since Tuesday, really covering for the first time this winter the previously barren mountains that surround Lake Placid.

The machine-made snow is hauled to the cross-country and biathlon trails with about five inches of machine-made snow.

So far, Lewi said, crews covered about five miles of the cross-country and biathlon trails with about five inches of machine-made snow.

Trials on Whiteface Mountain, where the Alpine events will be held, are already heavily covered with machine-made snow, as are the 70-meter and 90-meter ski-jumping areas at Intervale.

Spokesmen for RTB were not immediately available for comment. "There's no indication of fraud or illegality involved," RTB spokesman said.

Refunds Unlikely For Olympic Trip

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 10,000 people who paid a New York travel agency in advance for trips to the Moscow Olympics may not be able to get their money back, state officials say.

The customers may fail to get money back, a spokesman for the state attorney general's office explained, because the Soviets may not make refunds following President Carter's threat that the United States might boycott the games.

Olympic packages offered by the agency include a 15-day trip for $1,550 and a 22-day deal for $1,850. Added to the prices were tickets to various events, with prices ranging from $5 to $40 each.

A Los Angeles couple filed suit Wednesday demanding a refund from RTB Olympic Travel, 20 E. 46th St., which has collected $14 million from people around the country for trips to the Moscow Olympics.

Marshall and Marlene Grossman demanded that RTB explain why it refused a refund of more than $3,000 they paid for a trip to the games.

Spokesman Tim Gilles said 10,700 people have already paid RTB about $14 million for accommodations, airline tickets and tickets to the games. Gilles said half the money has already gone to the Soviet government, and travel company officials do not know if they can get that back.

Beattie Looking Ahead to Chance

SEATTLE (UPI) — Jim Beattie's drawn-out arrival in the major leagues has already lasted as long as some big league careers.

Four times in the past two years, the New York Yankees plucked Beattie out of the minors to plug a hole in the pitching staff.

Beattie was one of the keys in the 1978 stretch drive when the Yankees overtook Boston, winning four of six games in the final week of the season.

Beattie's educational and regional background makes him something of a rarity among big league baseball players, but his career is not without precedent.

Mike Flanagan, the Cy Young winner for Baltimore in 1979, pitched for the University of Massachusetts. Pete Broberg, a well-traveled veteran, pitched for Beattie's Ivy League alma mater before signing with the Washington Senators for a huge bonus in 1971.

"I didn't go to a college with a great baseball factory," said Beattie. "I went to a college with a great liberal arts tradition. I was thinking about a career in architecture. I graduated with a degree in art."

"After my sophomore year I was pretty sure I would have a career in baseball. But I was ready to go to a graduate school. I'm sure my life would be totally different if I wasn't a baseball player."

Mister X of Golf Tour Looks Back

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Since joining the PGA Tour 21 years ago, Miller Barber, the quiet Texan affectionately referred to as Mister X, has won 11 tournaments and more than $1.5 million.

When he started out, the purses were one-tenth of today's $300,000 weekly pots. The tournament sites weren't always top country clubs and often the pro-am on Wednesday was more important than the pro competition.

And when a tournament ended on Sunday, no one left town. Instead, the pros hung around for a round of games designed to win over the sponsors and ensure a tournament the following year.

"It was tough, a lot tougher than a lot of the younger guys out here," said Barber, who is playing today in the $25,000 San Diego Open. "My generation really paid the dues, but I'm not griping. My only pain in talking about it now is that I don't think things like that should be done under the rug and forgotten."

"Sure, we have a great tour and it should become even greater as the years go by. I've missed a lot about having had a hand in helping it progress during the years."

Barber isn't one to speak out, but now he was a little ruffled, meaning he spoke an octave or two above a whisper. Who could blame him? The only reason he is playing this week is that he finished in the top 25 in last year's San Diego Open.

It's hard to believe someone with Barber's credentials is what the PGA calls a nonemblem player. That doesn't exactly make him a rabbit but it does put him on the spot.

"Fortunately," said Barber, "I've made a lot of friends among sponsors over the years and I can pretty much get an exemption wherever I choose to play, but that's not the point."

"I don't think someone like me should be put in the position of having to go to a sponsor hat in hand asking for a spot, but there isn't a tournament played that doesn't have half a dozen players who have no business in the field."

Barber lost his exempt status because he failed to finish in the top 60 money winners in 1979. Since he never has won one of the major tournaments, he lost his right to play. "I'll get by. Had I not been sick last year and missed some events, I think I would have made the top 60 without any trouble."

Barber actually finished 61st. Except for his first 4 years on the Tour, he has been an exempt player every other season. And by winning 11 tournament titles, he started 1960 10th on the all-time money winning list.

Barber was felled by an asthma attack during the Bob Hope Desert Classic 2 weeks ago and wound up spending 3 days in the hospital. Last week in the Phoenix Open, he played in the rain on Friday — the second round — and almost quit again. So he missed the cut, or, to the record books, in the first two events of the new season.

I expect to play a lot better this week because I feel a lot better," he said. "Besides, I like the two courses here (Torrey Pines). I've always had a lot of success. But the big thing is to regain my health because next week we play in the Crosby, and there never is any guarantee about the weather in that tournament."

Hearing Set On Garage Proposals

COVENTRY — The Town Council has voted to call a public hearing Feb. 11 on several alternative town garage sites following a recent closed session and an open session. The Democratic majority on the council favors an addition to the town hall, while the Republicans lean toward continued consideration of a number of proposed locations. Councilman Roy McLean has argued against holding a hearing on only one site, which would not allow open discussion on alternatives by the voters.

Earlier this month, the Democratic town committee voted to push for a hearing on the Town Hall site, although it did not specifically endorse that location. Advocates pointed out that this site had access to the town's main road (Route 31) and had the approval of the Coventry Highway Department. Plans call for a 13-day, U-shaped garage plus increased office space for town officials.

Town Manager Frank Connolly reported at a recent Town Council meeting that a new town garage had been under consideration since 1969. In 1970 and again in 1975, Connolly explained reports were filed recommending a new facility. The present one has been deteriorating for years, has a collapsed roof, and is alleged to be polluting the Mill Brook with contaminated runoff.

In 1976 the council appointed a study committee that recommended purchase of a site on Talcott Hill Road. This was rejected at a town meeting, which advised the council to come up with a town-owned location in order to save the cost of land purchase.

Another committee appointed the following year failed to come up with an agreement on a proposal. In 1979 Town Planner Gregory Padick and Town Engineer Donald Holmes reviewed all town-owned property and settled on two alternatives: land off Daley Road and the parcel behind the Town Hall. But the Daley Road terrain proved unsuitable for construction.

The Board of Education and the Parks and Recreation Commission opposes the Town Hall alternative, which would cut into athletic field at middle and high schools. It also would have an impact on the senior citizens housing project, Orchard Hill Estates. A proposed access road to Ripley Hill Road has been criticized by resident of that area.

Rockville Fire Veteran Retiring After 40 Years

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

VERNON — Arthur Hewitt of Rockville will be retiring from the Rockville Fire Department on Feb. 6 after serving as a volunteer for 40 years.

In 1940 he helped put out a fire at the Princess Ballroom on Village Street.

Three children lost their lives when fire struck a tenement building on High Street and another child lost his life in a fire in his Windsor Avenue home a few years ago.

The young child was brought to the burn center in Boston, by helicopter, but died shortly after.

More recently Hewitt worked for hours at a fire, last August, that caused extensive damage to the Union Congregational Church. Besides the fire started by the firebug, and the recent one believed to be the work of an arsonist, Hewitt said fires were started in the church twice when it was struck by lightning and another time when a kitchen was melting wax in the kitchen and forgot about it causing it to boil over and catch on fire.

A major fire a few years ago destroyed the Northeast Pharmacy in the Northeast Shopping Center. Another life was lost when a man tried to put the fire out in his home before he called the fire department.

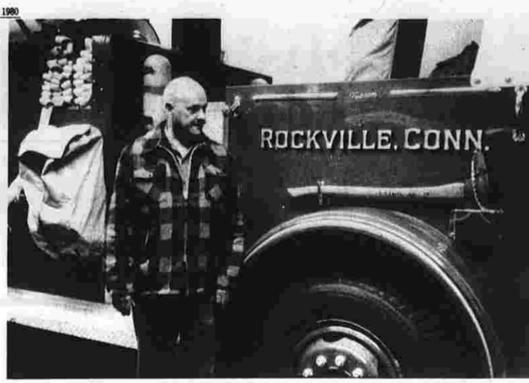

The most recent fire at which Hewitt worked during the night, was the one in November that destroyed the Pritchard block on Union Street leaving several stores and apartment dwellers without space to operate or live and indirectly causing the death of the owner of the block, Francis Pritchard Sr.

The firefighters are also called on to do many other jobs such as pumping out cisterns that have been flooded due to sudden thaws or for other reasons.

Hewitt said he and other firefighters were on duty for an entire week during the 1973 storm. He said he and Chief Magada and a couple of other men were called to Mansfield to pick up cuts to use at the Middle School where people who were without power in their homes, were housed.

Department members also spent hours filling sandbags and stacking them around the Tankenhausen Dam when it was in danger of breaking during heavy winter rains.

Hewitt said when he first started with the department it had only one motorized pumper and just had gotten its first motorized ladder truck. Hewitt was a member of the Fitton Company which had just a hose wagon which was replaced in

Red Cross Hopes For More Donors

MANCHESTER — The next visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to the Manchester-Bolton branch of the American Red Cross is hoping for a boost in blood donations.

The bloodmobile is scheduled to be at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 138 Main St., from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The Red Cross is concerned because the recent national decline in volunteerism is now being reflected in a drop in blood program donors.

"With the local goal 100 pints of blood at each visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile and with an average of only 90 pints donated per visit the past several months (the same average decline is being mirrored throughout Connecticut), the Manchester-Bolton Red Cross Branch has decided to concentrate on reversing the trend.

At a recent meeting of its board of directors, the situation was explored extensively and the board issued the following statement on volunteerism in general and the Blood Program in particular:

"Volunteers are special people and are recognized so by the American Red Cross. No matter what their age or background, almost always they can find some satisfactory work with the Red Cross.

"Whether they have one hour a day to offer, or one day a week or even one week a month or year to devote, they're always welcome at the Red Cross and their skills are put to careful and worthwhile use.

"High on the list of Red Cross volunteers are dedicated blood donors. The pride and joy of the Connecticut Red Cross is its Blood Program — unique in the United States and the envy of the rest of the country.

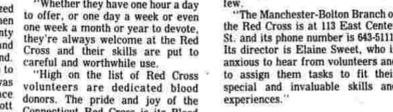

"Established in 1950, the Blood Program has two basic principles — Red Cross is the sole donor-recruiting agency for blood supplies in Connecticut, and no payment ever will be made for the blood itself (the only charge to Connecticut patients is the cost for processing the blood).

"In the 30 years the Connecticut Blood Program has been in existence, blood and blood products have been available to any individual hospitalized in a Connecticut hospital, with no requirement for replacement by the patient or his/her

State Consumer Counsel Vows Rate Request Fight

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — State Consumer Counsel Barry Zitzer has vowed to fight the still unspecified rate increase Northeast Utilities plans to request later this year.

Zitzer charged Thursday that the state's largest utility had operated long enough under the record $86 million increase granted last year to determine if needed more money.

He called the latest request "incredible arrogance" on Northeast's part.

The utility will file notice of intent to seek the hike with the Division of Public Utility Control in April and a formal application a month later to help it keep up with double-digit inflation, said spokesman Emmanuel Forde.

He said subsequent hearings and DPUIC action will take another five months or so, which would put off any granted higher rates until next fall. The utility hasn't decided how much money it will ask for, Forde said.

"It's regrettable, it's unfortunate," the utility spokesman said. "But it's just a fact of business life that when you don't make the required return on your investment to serve consumers you have to seek the rate increase."

Zitzer said he would fight the request "all the way down the line," pointing to last year's increase.

"Our reaction is obviously negative," he said. "Northeast Utilities recently received the largest revenue increase in the history of regulation in the state of Connecticut."

The utility was "obviously challenging this last rate order as insufficient," Zitzer said.

He charged that Northeast hadn't gone to court to seek the full $131 million it sought last year, when the DPUIC granted $86 million, because even the reduced amount was "a bonanza."

Forde said Northeast was hard hit by "double digit inflation," which has depressed earnings for shareholders.

"We look at our earnings situation which has been particularly poor over the last few months," he said. "All the indications we have is that we're nowhere near carrying the rate of return that the DPUIC allows."

The increase would affect customers of Northeast's Connecticut Light and Power and Hartford Electric Light Co. subsidiaries in Connecticut.

Zitzer also said he believed the request will help his office's efforts to have legislation enacted limiting the number of rate hike applications a major utility can file in a given period of time.

Even after the request with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities last Nov. 16, seeking a $27.9 million rate hike for the 194,000 customers served by its Western Massachusetts Electric Co.

Transfer of Sinai Land Begins Normal Relations

BIR GAFGAF. Egypt (UPI) — Israel handed over to Egypt today a vast chunk of the strategic Sinai in a simple ceremony signaling the beginning of normal relations between the two nations and the end of more than a decade of Israeli control of the desert.

A brief ceremony at Refidim, Israel's military capital of the Sinai, completed the transfer of the final 5,560 square miles of territory — two-thirds of the desert peninsula — in a phased withdrawal begun in May under the terms of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Egypt's red, white and black flag replaced the blue and white banner of Israel at the base after nearly 13 years of Israeli control.

Israeli forces withdrew to a 248-mile line from El Arish in the north to Ras Muhammad in the south. The Israeli flag was hoisted in a ceremonial and emotional farewell to the complex Wednesday, complete with a tank display and an aerial salute.

Even after the handover is completed, Israel will still control about a third of the peninsula, east of a line running from El Arish in the north to Ras Muhammad in the south until April 1982 — the date for its final withdrawal to the 1948 international boundary.
