

Apartments Converting To Condos

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Garden Apartments have been converted into condominiums.

Residents of the 102-unit complex located on Forest and St. James streets received word of the conversion Tuesday. The documents for conversion were filed in the town clerk's office late Thursday.

About 25 percent of the one and two bedroom apartments are occupied by elderly persons. Under the conversion agreement, the owners, a limited partnership controlled by Mark Lavitt, Coventry, will let the tenants stay until their lease expires.

In the case of elderly persons who did not wish to buy the apartments, which will be priced under $40,000, the units will be provided for five additional years.

Tenants will be able to purchase the apartments at reduced rate, but no provision for a senior citizen reduction was made.

Under state law, tenants have 90 days to decide if they will purchase the unit, and 180 days to move out if they do not purchase.

The owners have said the conversion will take place over the next several years, and the residents were notified of the options in a meeting Tuesday.

The apartment complex was recently renovated. But it still has a central heating system. As the apartments are sold, separate heating systems for each apartment will be installed, according to a spokeswoman from ERA Daniel Reale, Inc., the firm representing the owners.

State law mandates condominiums maintain separate heating elements for each apartment.

The residents of the complex greeted the conversion with mixed reactions.

"I have a lease that expires next year," Jane Bagley said. "But I plan on staying the full five years. At my age it doesn't pay to buy." Mrs. Bagley is 83.

Wesley Hale says he will probably move from Manchester when he leaves the complex.

"My lease is up in June," he said. "But I plan on staying until I have to leave. I can't buy it, I just sold my house to move to Manchester."

"If I were younger, I would buy it," said Thomas McCann. "Every other place will be going this way anyhow."

"I'm 65, and can't see buying it. I'll stay as long as I can."

Although Robert Weiss, town manager, recently asked the Ethics Commission for a ruling on whether or not realtors who serve on the Board of Directors can vote on any town action to limit conversion to condominiums, town officials said today no action was planned as yet.

"There is no rule or law that would involve us," Pascal Mastrangelo, housing authority chairman, said. "If they follow the state condominium requirements we do not have any authority."

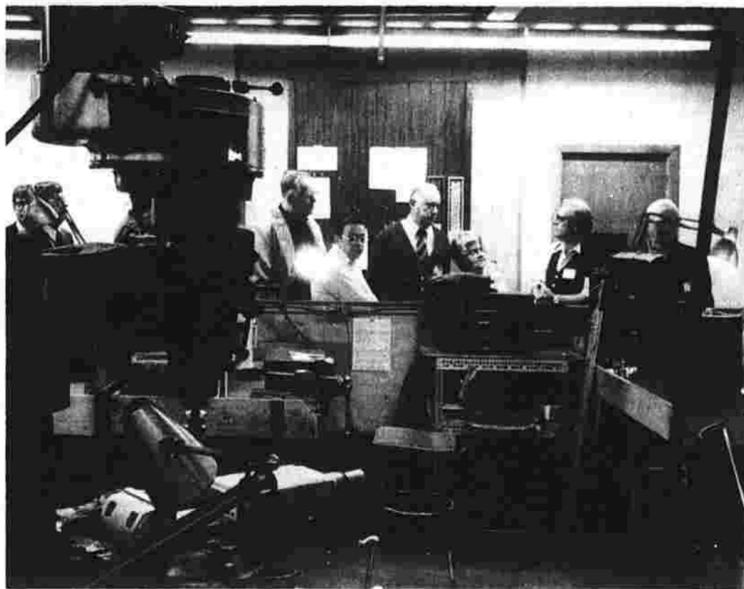

Both Charlie McCarthy, assistant town manager, and Alan Lamson, planning and zoning director, said they knew of no action planned by the town to restrict apartment conversion to condominiums.

"The question hasn't come up yet," Lamson said.

Chamber Members See Firm

MANCHESTER — The Chamber of Commerce's Friday Forum, a program designed to familiarize chamber members with local businesses, today visited Dynamic Metal Products Co., Inc., at 422 N. Main St.

Hans Weiss, president and founder of Dynamic Metals, in addition to being a noted artist, described for local businessmen his metal-working company and the state's skilled labor market.

Weiss described Dynamic Metals as 17 years of growth. The company exclusively services the aerospace industry, amassing $4 million in sales per year and employed 80 laborers.

Weiss said the company's success is attributable to the skill of its craftsmen, "success equals people." He added most jobs are done with handwork and not the huge, expensive machines that stereotype the industry. He said it takes four years to train a metal worker.

The company handles about 700 different items each month, employing eight or nine separate trades in the process. Each item requires 20 to 50 individual operations.

The firm contracts more frequently with Pratt & Whitney, General Electric, Hamilton Standard and Canadian aircraft industries. The company is capable of producing intricate components, some with very fine tolerances equated this to a measurement with a precision equal to the size of a normal strand of hair, split three times down the middle.

Dynamic Metals has produced parts used on Apollo moon missions and currently specializes in jet engine components. Parts are currently produced for the U.S. Air Force's F-100 engine and Israel's French-built Mirage jet fighter.

Weiss said Connecticut has attracted metal working firms because of the state's pool of skilled labor. But he also referred to it as a shrinking pool. He said 50 percent of the state's industry is machine industry but added the average age for a metal worker is 56. While the average age of Dynamic Metal's employees is 35, the ability to train new workers is what Weiss presented as a key to the continued life of the metal working trade in the state.

Weiss has supported government-assisted training programs for metal craftsmen. He was written brochures for such programs and pointed to a study by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics that ranked tool and die makers' incomes seventh out of the top 26 occupations.

He noted 1980 will be a year of increased growth for Dynamic Metals because customers have increased their jobs by 50 percent. Difficulties have arisen in obtaining the light metal alloys used for aircraft parts. Titanium and nickel are hard to find, says Weiss, but the company has contracts that run through the next two years. "In this business the potential for growth is unlimited."

The German born president of Dynamic Metals called this country, "a fantastic place," adding, "everytime I return from a trip I feel like kissing the ground."

Girl Escapes Rapist Attack

MANCHESTER — A sobbing juvenile escaped rape Thursday night when her knife-wielding attacker had a change of heart and let her go, police said today.

Detective Capt. Joseph Brooks said the teen-aged local youth was leaving Charter Oak Park at 8:25 after skating when she was grabbed by a man who was armed with what appeared to be a kitchen knife.

Brooks said he threw the girl to the ground and began molesting her. However, he said, the girl pleaded with him to stop and he abruptly got up and ordered her to get out of the park.

Her assailant was described as six-foot-tall, 25 to 35 years of age, clean shaven, short-haired, with a pale complexion and a big nose.

Brooks said the girl immediately fled when he released her, told her mother and the police were called. The incident is under investigation.

Grand List Up By 2.2 Percent

MANCHESTER — The town's Grand List increased by 2.2 percent from last year, Town Assessor J. Richard Vincent announced Thursday.

Vincent said the grand total of $558.4 million represents a modest increase.

"It is in line with other towns this year," he said.

The new Grand List is up by $12.4 million from last year's $546.9 million, meaning there was that much more new construction, new equipment and new motor vehicles brought into town last year to be taxed.

Vincent said it was the first time in five years that the list was out on time. The town has two more years to go on its phase-in program of new property assessments caused by revaluation. The town decided to spread out the increases over five years instead of placing the burden on homeowners solely in one year.

"They had to re-evaluate, and then phase-in came in," said Vincent, who was appointed assessor six months ago. "This is the first year we have caught up. Next year we hope to complete the Grand List by Dec. 31." Including the phase-in, the Grand List will total about $468.5 million, up from last year's $425.6 million.

This year's list included an 8 percent increase in motor vehicle assessments, but a percent drop in personal property. He said the decline was mainly because of a reduction in business inventories. Real estate assessments increased by 2 percent.

From the grand list, the Board of Directors will establish a mill rate for the coming fiscal year. If the board wants to raise the same amount of money as it did for this year, the tax rate would be cut from the present 42.98 mills to about 37.54 mills, assuming that state and federal revenues remain constant.

The only indication so far for budget increases has been Town Manager Robert Weiss's directive to his department heads that they keep their budgets within a 6 percent ceiling.

Vincent said the biggest taxpayers list will be out shortly as the Grand List has to be analyzed.

Cops Have Sketches Of Holdup Suspects

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Police today released composite sketches of the two suspects who held up Michael's Jewelers on Main Street shortly after 11 a.m. Thursday and escaped with more than $2,000 in jewelry.

The two men, one armed with a shotgun and the other with a pistol, ordered four employees to lie down on the floor and the store manager to empty display cases of jewelry into a green tote bag. The heist included diamond and gold rings.

The man carrying the pistol was described as a white male, between 25 and 30 years of age, five-foot-nine inches tall and weighing about 170 pounds. He was said to have reddish-blond curly hair and short sideburns.

Witnesses also told police he wore a round, flat plaid cap, with green tones, gold framed wire rimmed glasses, a tan coat, blue jeans, tan work boots and loose-fitting gloves. Police said he also had "poor teeth."

The man with the shotgun was described as a white male, about five-foot-six inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds, dark complexion with black wavy hair, and wearing a three-quarters length brown leather coat which could easily conceal a shotgun. Police said he was believed to be in his late 20s or early 30s.

Police are seeking these two and another man and a woman who are believed to have been in a second getaway car. The armed robbers fled the scene in a maroon Ford and abandoned it at Laurel and Chestnut streets. From there, police said, they left in a brown car and escaped pursuit.

There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery. After taking the jewelry, police said the two ordered the manager to unlock a rear door and they escaped to the Ford parked on St. James Street.

Ironically, the patrol officer who first reported to the crime was only seconds behind the suspects, Detective Capt. Joseph Brooks said this morning.

As the officer drove in back of the store, Brooks said, an employee at Arthur Drug pointed in the direction in which the two escaped. However, a parked car prevented the officer from getting onto St. James Street.

Brooks confirmed that a shot was fired, but said it was by accident. A woman in a blue Ford who was trying to drive onto St. James Street from a driveway saw the two enter the first getaway car.

The suspect who carried the pistol was driving and his shotgun-toting companion tried to leap into the car as it sped up the street. However, Brooks said, he fell to the ground and the shotgun discharged when he dropped it.

Police said the woman tried to follow them, but lost pursuit. She was driving the blue Ford which police had originally issued an all-points bulletin for as the getaway vehicle.

Brooks said the abandoned maroon car had been impounded. It was stolen from the K-Mart shopping plaza parking lot just a short time before the robbery, he said.

At last report, the second vehicle was reported heading west on Laurel Street. Brooks said five detectives, five patrolmen, two dispatchers, himself and another sergeant were involved at the height of the investigation.

Police today issued these composite sketches of the two armed robbers who stole more than $2,000 worth of jewelry from Michael's Jewelers on Main Street Thursday morning. The man with the hat carried a pistol while the other suspect held the shotgun.

Legal Services Run into Red

MANCHESTER — A local legal service for low-income residents will probably be suspended because of a lack of operating funds, Attorney Josiah Lessner said this morning.

Lessner, who is president of Legal Services of Manchester, said, "We don't have any more money to pay the phone bills or the office help. If we get some money and get set up, we may get it going again."

The operation, which is headquartered at the St. Mary Church rectory on Park Street, has felt financial pinches ever since the town voted to withdraw from the Community Development Block Grant program last year. The April 17 referendum wiped out a $5,000 grant to the legal service.

Lessner said he would try to get businesses or the town Board of Directors to fund the service. If not, he said, he would go before the Manchester Bar Association to ask that the operations end.

After the CD money was withdrawn, 42 lawyers from the local bar association contributed $1,300 to keep it running. However, Lessner said, it wasn't enough to pay for the part-time secretary, the phone bills and the answering service.

All legal services were provided free of charge by local lawyers.

Lessner said he has sought donations from businesses and may ask the Board of Directors to fund it during the next fiscal year. An application has been sent to the United Way of Greater Hartford, but no confirmation has been received. Lessner said one local bank promised to consider funding the service, but only during its June annual meeting.

"We'll probably suspend operation for now," he said. "I'm hoping to resurrect it, but I don't know how long."

China to Boycott

PEKING (UPI) — China will boycott the 1980 Olympic Games unless they are moved out of Moscow, the Chinese Foreign Ministry announced today.

In a statement, the Chinese government said it is "clearly inappropriate" in view of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

The announcement was a shift in China's response to U.S. President Carter's call for boycott of the Moscow games.

On Jan. 22 the Chinese National Olympic Committee announced that China would go along with the boycott if the majority of Olympic countries wanted it.

"While the Soviet Union continues to occupy Afghanistan in disregard of the resolution of the United Nations General Assembly, it is clearly inappropriate to hold the 22nd summer Games in Moscow," the statement said.

Games in Moscow, the Foreign Ministry announcement said.

"We support the call on the International Olympic Committee to decide on transfer or cancellation of the games, and we will work to promote such a decision."

"In case the International Olympic Committee fails to make such a decision, the Chinese government will ask the Chinese Olympic Committee to seriously consider staying away from the 22nd summer Olympic Games in Moscow."

Proposal Dead
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill says if President Carter recommends to Congress to either defeat the proposal or ignore it.

"As I read the Congress, I would think the registration of women wouldn't go," O'Neill said. He said he would like to see the president would be "better off" not even asking for authority to register women.

New York tailor Vincent Santalano — who numbers such luminaries as Frankie Valli, Sergio Franchi and Telly Savalas among his clientele — has come up with a new design for the fashion world.

He calls it "the Rubell" — in honor of Steve Rubell, the Studio 54 major-domo recently sentenced to three years in the slammer on income tax charges. Santalano says it's a high fashion blue denim prison suit, and explains — "I feel that Steve's life style deserved a little fashion imagination to equal the imagination he brought to the New York City nightlife scene."

Besides, says Santalano, "it will make his three years go faster if he can dress in something elegant."

Peter Gatien's initial idea for his new multimillion-dollar Atlanta pleasure palace was right out of the annals of Rome — but it turned out tigers are on the endangered species list, so he couldn't put a cage of them under the Lighthouse glass dance floor.

Then Gatien decided to settle for a black panther, and the Humane Society got into the act. No panther? No panther.

But Gatien is unflappable — says "I didn't invest $5 million just for a panther. We'll just go on with something else."

The "something else" is real live mermaids — in a cage now converted to a swimming tank. Mermaids, it seems, are neither endangered nor of any particular interest to the Humane Society.

Queen Elizabeth needs someone to keep the palace tidy up, so like any other British householder in search of help, she's running a classified ad in the London Daily Telegraph.

It says, "Wanted, Buckingham Palace. Vacancy for the post of chief housekeeper upon retirement of the present incumbent on income sent holder. Single applicant to take up residential appointment in July 1980. Age group 45-50. Apply to master of the household."

And equality or no equality, the queen doesn't want a man mucking about the place with mop and broom.

Says a palace spokesman, "I think it has to be a woman. It's a job for a woman." Men's libbers might take exception to that.

It takes a while for royalty to come of age. The Netherlands' Crown Princess Beatrix will be 42 on April 30, and she'll finally get the birthday present she's been waiting for all her life — the throne.

Beatrix is married to a German businessman — a union that stirred up a storm of protest. Her sister, Irene, stirred one up too when she converted to Catholicism, but at least her marriage — to a Spanish Carlist prince — kept the bloodline blue. Juliana has reigned since 1948.

However, others, including a Western diplomat, said the fire did not start until after police had stormed the embassy.

Initial reports said about 40 Quiche Peruvians seized the embassy Thursday, demanding a meeting with representatives of President Romeo Lucas Garcia's right-wing military regime to voice their complaints of alleged army repression against them.

Manchester Search Proceeds
MANCHESTER — The search for a president for Manchester Community College has been narrowed to five candidates, with acting president Bob Miller rumored to be among those still being considered.

The search committee met Wednesday afternoon to individually rank the five in order of preference. His recommendations in priority listing will now be sent to the Board of Trustees for community colleges.

The discussion of the five was done at Tuesday's meeting of the Regional Advisory Council, at which the college's budget was also discussed.

In addition to the Legislative Budget Committee operating at each of the 12 community colleges, the Connecticut Conference of Community Colleges will form a chapter on each campus. James Nakos, chairman of the advisory council, termed the chapters, "collective bargaining units."

Nakos said a total of 24 committees would thus be operating as lobbyists for the community colleges when the legislature convenes. "We will work together," Nakos declared.

Nakos added that a student on the committee brought up a "darn good point" on the need for continued funding of community colleges. Nakos said many young people are concerned about the loss of funding, since the community college, with its inexpensive tuition and convenience, is their only hope for higher education.

"I decided to join the Kennedy effort because the 1980 Presidential campaign presents the country with critical choices," he said. "I firmly believe that the 1980 election will set the tone and directions that the country will take for the rest of the century."

While neither admitting nor denying the charges, Tretton agreed to the issuance of an injunction that barred it from engaging in such practices in the future. Judge Thomas Flannery signed the order.

According to the suit, Tretton-Bell, the firm's biggest subsidiary, identified itself as the Bell Helicopter Co., paid $300,000 to a sales agent in Ghana in 1971, "knowing or having reason to know" it would go to a senior official of the Ghanaian Air Force, in connection with the purchase by Ghana of two helicopters at what the SEC called an "inflated price."

During the banking committee's March 1978 hearings on Miller's confirmation, the suit said, Tretton made "false and misleading" representations to the committee about the transaction, and Tretton-Bell officials withheld information about it from the committee.

"Tretton, through Miller, gave 'erroneous and misleading' information to Tretton shareholders' meetings in 1976 and 1977 by denying there had been illegal payments abroad," it said. Miller had no "reasonable basis" for such statements.

"Two Tretton divisions spent $600,000 between 1971 and 1978 retaining Pentagon officials, despite Defense Department rules prohibiting officials from being entertained by defense contractors. The suit said Miller knew of the practice and knew records of the entertainment expenses were not being properly kept."

Miller said through his office, "Since the company has elected to agree to a settlement, without admitting or denying any of the allegations, it would seem appropriate to leave any further comments to the parties directly involved."

Miller worked for Tretton from 1956. He became its president in 1960 and was its chairman from 1974 until he became chairman of the Federal Reserve Board in March 1978. President Carter switched Miller to Treasury last August.

During the 1978 confirmation hearings, Miller denied knowledge of improper payments. Nowhere did the SEC suit say explicitly that he did know about any of them.

Test and Repair Delays Reduce Use of Millstone
WATERFORD (UPI) — A Northeast Utilities spokesman says delays in repairs and testing will keep the Millstone I nuclear power plant operating at 40 percent of its power capacity at least until next week.

Northeast, which operates two nuclear plants at the Millstone complex and the Connecticut Yankee nuclear plant in Haddam, estimated it costs $225,000 a day to supplement the reduced output by burning oil.

Millstone also received word Thursday it needed to change a timer which would start one of its emergency shutdown systems in the event of an accident and failure of other systems, NU spokesman Everett Perkins said.

The plant has been operating at 40 percent power since Jan. 4, when an anonymous telephone tip to the NRC in 1974, announced a crack in the reactor cooling system led inspectors to find cracks in concrete near pipe supports for a shutdown cooling system. The system — an isolation condenser — was then deemed inoperable.

He said it did not pose a problem and only required changing a timer for the system to meet the NRC's regulation for the performance of the emergency systems.

The concrete wall which had the superficial cracks holds a pipe support designed to protect against vibrations in the pipe which carries steam from the reactor.

Northeast said if the supports were significantly weakened it was possible the pipe could crack, allowing radioactive steam to escape inside the reactor containment building or an auxiliary building.

But there was no chance for release with the plant operating at reduced power, the utility said. The affected system is one of two shutdown cooling systems used when the main condenser is not available. It reduces pressure in the reactor by cooling the steam, normally used to make electricity, when the plant is automatically shut down.

The concrete apparently cracked during an automatic shutdown Dec. 18 when water leaked into the pipe leading to the isolation condenser and caused a "water hammer" — a shaking of the pipe similar to clanging in old steam radiators.

Manchester Search Proceeds
MANCHESTER — The search for a president for Manchester Community College has been narrowed to five candidates, with acting president Bob Miller rumored to be among those still being considered.

The search committee met Wednesday afternoon to individually rank the five in order of preference. His recommendations in priority listing will now be sent to the Board of Trustees for community colleges.

The discussion of the five was done at Tuesday's meeting of the Regional Advisory Council, at which the college's budget was also discussed.

In addition to the Legislative Budget Committee operating at each of the 12 community colleges, the Connecticut Conference of Community Colleges will form a chapter on each campus. James Nakos, chairman of the advisory council, termed the chapters, "collective bargaining units."

Nakos said a total of 24 committees would thus be operating as lobbyists for the community colleges when the legislature convenes. "We will work together," Nakos declared.

Nakos added that a student on the committee brought up a "darn good point" on the need for continued funding of community colleges. Nakos said many young people are concerned about the loss of funding, since the community college, with its inexpensive tuition and convenience, is their only hope for higher education.

CCAG Heads Jobs Kennedy Campaign
HARTFORD (UPI) — Marc Caplan, director of the Connecticut Action Group, has announced he will leave his job to take a state post in the presidential campaign of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Caplan, who succeeded Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., as CCAG director in 1974, announced Thursday he will resign to take over as staff coordinator with Kennedy's state campaign Feb. 4.

"I decided to join the Kennedy effort because the 1980 Presidential campaign presents the country with critical choices," he said. "I firmly believe that the 1980 election will set the tone and directions that the country will take for the rest of the century."

Miles Rapoport, CCAG's current staff director, will assume the organization's director. Rapoport, 30, joined CCAG last July after working with Massachusetts Fair Share for four years.

While neither admitting nor denying the charges, Tretton agreed to the issuance of an injunction that barred it from engaging in such practices in the future. Judge Thomas Flannery signed the order.

According to the suit, Tretton-Bell, the firm's biggest subsidiary, identified itself as the Bell Helicopter Co., paid $300,000 to a sales agent in Ghana in 1971, "knowing or having reason to know" it would go to a senior official of the Ghanaian Air Force, in connection with the purchase by Ghana of two helicopters at what the SEC called an "inflated price."

During the banking committee's March 1978 hearings on Miller's confirmation, the suit said, Tretton made "false and misleading" representations to the committee about the transaction, and Tretton-Bell officials withheld information about it from the committee.

"Tretton, through Miller, gave 'erroneous and misleading' information to Tretton shareholders' meetings in 1976 and 1977 by denying there had been illegal payments abroad," it said. Miller had no "reasonable basis" for such statements.

"Two Tretton divisions spent $600,000 between 1971 and 1978 retaining Pentagon officials, despite Defense Department rules prohibiting officials from being entertained by defense contractors. The suit said Miller knew of the practice and knew records of the entertainment expenses were not being properly kept."

Miller said through his office, "Since the company has elected to agree to a settlement, without admitting or denying any of the allegations, it would seem appropriate to leave any further comments to the parties directly involved."

Miller worked for Tretton from 1956. He became its president in 1960 and was its chairman from 1974 until he became chairman of the Federal Reserve Board in March 1978. President Carter switched Miller to Treasury last August.

During the 1978 confirmation hearings, Miller denied knowledge of improper payments. Nowhere did the SEC suit say explicitly that he did know about any of them.

Test and Repair Delays Reduce Use of Millstone
WATERFORD (UPI) — A Northeast Utilities spokesman says delays in repairs and testing will keep the Millstone I nuclear power plant operating at 40 percent of its power capacity at least until next week.

Northeast, which operates two nuclear plants at the Millstone complex and the Connecticut Yankee nuclear plant in Haddam, estimated it costs $225,000 a day to supplement the reduced output by burning oil.

Millstone also received word Thursday it needed to change a timer which would start one of its emergency shutdown systems in the event of an accident and failure of other systems, NU spokesman Everett Perkins said.

The plant has been operating at 40 percent power since Jan. 4, when an anonymous telephone tip to the NRC in 1974, announced a crack in the reactor cooling system led inspectors to find cracks in concrete near pipe supports for a shutdown cooling system. The system — an isolation condenser — was then deemed inoperable.

He said it did not pose a problem and only required changing a timer for the system to meet the NRC's regulation for the performance of the emergency systems.

The concrete wall which had the superficial cracks holds a pipe support designed to protect against vibrations in the pipe which carries steam from the reactor.

Northeast said if the supports were significantly weakened it was possible the pipe could crack, allowing radioactive steam to escape inside the reactor containment building or an auxiliary building.

But there was no chance for release with the plant operating at reduced power, the utility said. The affected system is one of two shutdown cooling systems used when the main condenser is not available. It reduces pressure in the reactor by cooling the steam, normally used to make electricity, when the plant is automatically shut down.

The concrete apparently cracked during an automatic shutdown Dec. 18 when water leaked into the pipe leading to the isolation condenser and caused a "water hammer" — a shaking of the pipe similar to clanging in old steam radiators.

Editorial Vernon Council Wrong

Vernon Mayor Marie Herbst and members of the town council can look forward to accomplishing very little unless they develop at least a minimal working relationship.

Although the mayor is a Democrat and the council has a 7-5 Republican majority, partisanship and lack of cooperation should end.

To date Mayor Herbst has been thwarted in her attempts to make appointments because the council refuses to confirm her choices.

Government has a system of checks and balances intended to keep the various branches under control.

In Vernon the Town Council is given confirmation power of mayoral appointments in an effort to make certain unqualified persons are not appointed to important town positions.

The town council seems to have taken the stand that the confirmation power is a political tool to be used against a minority party mayor trying to establish her own administration.

The voters of Vernon elected Mayor Marie Herbst because of her ability to administer the executive branch of town government.

Voters elected the council to establish the rules under which the town will operate.

The council's role is legislative, not administrative. The partisan

The council's continued effort to prevent the duly elected mayor from establishing programs within her jurisdiction is wrong.

We hope this petty political bitterness ceases and the two parties in Vernon recognize the need for government to function.

Thoughts

There is a world that runs by contracts and agreements: legal and otherwise. There are marriage contracts, business contracts, building contracts, and some of us talk of personal contracts between people which establish the beginning, the guidelines, and the ending of relationships.

There is one particular contract that has not been mentioned - the Gospel contract, or better stated, the Gospel promise.

It is a promise that we cannot avoid and one that does not depend upon our signature. Perhaps that's the hardest thing about this contract or promise, it is given to us without requiring a return on its investment. It is freely given without strings attached. A promise to end all contracts. Thanks be to God.

The Herald in Washington Carter Abandons Fight

By LEE RODERICK
WASHINGTON - President Carter says his new budget for the fiscal year beginning October 1 "will help control federal spending, significantly reduce the federal deficit, and aid in our fight against inflation."

Wrong, wrong and wrong again. He also says it is a budget of "restraint," and that's wrong too.

The administration has painted the rosiest picture possible in the 1981 budget.

Under the very best of circumstances it says receipts will total $600 billion and spending $616 billion - leaving Uncle Sam "only $16 billion in the red."

But with the Soviet bear marauding in the Middle East, OPEC continuing to push oil prices ever upward, and a long-predicted recession likely to hit the country almost no one really believes Washington will get by with a $16 billion deficit in a fiscal year that begins just one month before a presidential election.

Budget Director James McIntyre said the other day that "the 1981 deficit is less than half the 1980 deficit." Since the deficit estimated for this year is $40 billion, he was right.

What McIntyre didn't add, however, is that one year ago the administration announced it was holding the 1980 deficit under $30 billion, but it has since ballooned by at least a third.

Carter, whose election promise to balance the budget by 1981 has long since been thrown into the scrap heap, has been even less forthcoming in describing his handling of the economy.

In his recent "Meet the Press" interview, Carter was asked about the fact that inflation has risen from 4.8 percent the year before he took office to over 13 percent in 1979. He answered that "all the increases for practical purposes since I have been in office have been directly attributable to increases in OPEC oil prices."

That is simply false. When energy isn't even figured into the price rises, inflation in all other components - including interest rates, food and clothing - rose from 4.6 percent in 1976 to 10.9 percent in 1979. While it is true that energy was a major factor in increased inflation from 1978 to 1979, it is also true that the three years of skyrocketing prices under Carter have due primarily to non-energy factors.

One year ago the president's budget said this: "The rate of inflation, which was over 9 percent during 1976, is expected to fall to around 7 percent at the end of calendar year 1979." Instead it rose to over 13 percent.

The current budget projects an inflation rate of 10.4 percent for 1980 - horrendous even if accurate, and likely to climb higher yet in reality.

Although the president, in his budget message to Congress, said, "Restraining inflation remains my highest domestic priority," the chief anti-inflation measure proposed in the budget is hospital cost containment. The budget blithely includes savings of $800 million from hospital financing, even though it has little hope of being passed by Congress.

This mark of unreality pervades not only the budget but Carter's approach generally to inflation. Last year the administration asked for voluntary compliance to hold wage increases to 7 percent, with prices set accordingly. It has now abandoned that guideline under pressure from organized labor.

In the 7 percent policy "place is a new system headed by Harvard Professor John Dunlop in which wage increases are to fall within a range between 7.5 and 9.5 percent. In other words, wage increases - with prices following close behind - will be what the money pay board under Dunlop decides they ought to be.

Given the flexibility and pressures on the White House in this election year, can anyone doubt that wage agreements will be reaching, and eclipsing, the 9.5 percent target?

Carter's weak response to inflation is a political gamble that his stock will continue to rise in the face of the foreign crises now facing the United States.

But it is a gamble almost certain to fail when Americans get beyond the ayatollah in Iran and the Russians in Afghanistan and again check their pocketbooks.

Hobart Rowan, the astute business editor of the Washington Post, said it straight and right recently: "President Carter never got seriously about inflation until a huge U.S. trade deficit helped collapse the dollar in 1978. Beret of any policy of his own, Carter had to accept a much tighter monetary posture at the Federal Reserve, later strengthened under a new chairman, to fight the inflation battle for him."

"It's time," Rowan adds, "for Carter to stop looking for excuses and start shaping some sort of meaningful anti-inflation economic policy."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON - For all his pervasivity, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev gives Washington policymakers a sense of security. He's an adversary they have come to know. They understand his moods and can anticipate his moves. He is perverse, yes, but predictable.

So despite all the rhetoric and rancor between Washington and Moscow, there is quiet dread that Brezhnev may be losing control of the Kremlin to unknown forces who may already have portended the future by promoting the aggression against Afghanistan.

An earlier scare rippled through Washington four years ago when secret intelligence reports warned that the ailing Brezhnev might retire. "Brezhnev's longstanding cardiovascular problems and persistent dental troubles have taken a tol," reported a top-secret dispatch on Nov. 29, 1975. "His swings in mood have become more pronounced, perhaps in part because of greater use of stimulants and sedatives."

The Central Intelligence Agency learned that Brezhnev's younger brother, Yakov, had told "a foreign friend" that "the Soviet party boss will retire at the party congress in February (1976)."

Brezhnev himself dropped a similar hint of a group of visiting U.S. senators. "No one is eternal and life being what it is, there comes a time when a person must leave," he said, "whether for retirement or because of illness."

The Soviet interpreter didn't pass on Brezhnev's remark about "illness," but the escort officer from the American embassy picked it up. The embassy later reported to Washington in a classified account: "The Soviet interpreter did not translate the reference to illness probably because he regarded it as too sensitive ..."

clandestine reporting and Brezhnev's more recent public behavior suggests he now means to stay on."

"Clearly," the report added, "Brezhnev has periods of elation and depression, and his intentions may vary as his mood swings. Thus we can expect more contradictory reporting on his plans ..."

Now, four years later, intelligence analysts again are speculating that Brezhnev's grip on the Kremlin may be weakening. As long as Brezhnev is in charge, they believe, the Soviet Union will hold back from a direct confrontation with the United States.

The state of his health, therefore, could affect the state of the world. Those who have seen Brezhnev recently say the mileage is beginning to show on his face. He is a burly, bloated man of a once impressive specimen.

His huge gray head hangs forward, the face pallid, the eyebrows still bristling, the eyes small - perhaps only they seem small, encroached upon as they are by great cheeks. The supposition that probably has become more pronounced ...

"He sometimes uses stimulants and sedatives in excess of the recommendation of his physicians, and this has probably accentuated his mood swings. There is no indication that his intellectual ability has been significantly affected by these emotional problems and no sign of a lessening of his judgment or contact with reality."

"But on several occasions ... the CIA summary adds, "he has been described as unable to concentrate, inattentive and fatigued. In addition to reflecting the depletion of his limited physical reserves or the effect of excessive medication, these could be symptoms of depression."

"Periods of depression are likely to lead him to focus on his other health problems, and this could magnify future bouts of depression. In fact, recent reports suggest that Brezhnev may be attempting to reduce his use of mood-affecting medications, as well as to lose weight ..."

Conservation Study Under Way

VERNON - The Tolland County Soil and Water Conservation District is assisting the U. S. Department of Agriculture in a 60-day public participation period designed to encourage public review and comment on a federal conservation program appraisal as mandated by the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act.

The 1977 Public Law, enacted by Congress, directs the USDA to report on the status and condition of the nation's soil, water and related resources, and to prepare a soil and water conservation program based on that appraisal. The purpose of the RCA is to ensure that USDA conservation programs are responsive to the short and long-term needs of the United States.

The public review plans were discussed by conservationists from the USDA, Soil Conservation Service, and representatives of Connecticut's eight Conservation Districts during a Jan. 23 meeting at the Tolland County Agricultural Center in Vernon.

"We are now at the point where public responses to the RCA draft proposals are needed," Joseph A. Neasey, Tolland County district conservationist said.

He said the whole focus of USDA programs in the future will be based upon these RCA documents and added that the extent of technical assistance given by USDA agencies to the citizens and towns of Connecticut, will be directly affected by the final proposals of the study.

To generate interest on the public level, each Conservation District will direct its own public response campaign. In Tolland county, meetings, slide shows, and informational packets will be the primary methods of enlisting comments, Neasey said.

The public will have access to the summary report at the public libraries and through the district office and comments will be sent to the response analysis center in Athens, Ga.

After three years of research, the USDA Coordinating Committee has completed its resource appraisal. In addition to identifying the quantity and quality of the nation's natural resources, the present RCA report projects the impact of population growth, technological advances and increased export trade upon those resources. It includes an impact assessment on food and fiber production, water quality, soil erosion, water supply, energy conservation and other resource problems. The RCA document now contains seven or eight "alternative strategies" through which USDA agencies could alter their current soil and water conservation programs.

Outing Club Conquers Mt. Higby

What can you do on a one-day holiday? Some people manage to get out of a busy and productive schedule for themselves, but most of us end up mooping around the house without accomplishing much of anything.

It was that way you did on Martin Luther King Day, you might be interested in hearing how I solved my dilemma: hiking with the Outing Club.

This particular hike was on Mount Higby. As it was my first experience with the club, I was initially afraid that I had fallen in with a bunch of Euell Gibbons enthusiasts. What I found was a group of friendly and interesting people who had a genuine love for the outdoors and who were glad to pass along useful information about outdoor sports as well as entertaining stories about past hikes and backpacking trips.

The hike itself, though relatively short was an invigorating rather than tiring one. I was conveniently timed for midday so that no one would have to get up too early or go home too late. The trail we followed, though not especially difficult or unusual did have its more challenging aspects and did bring the group to various places from which we could see various types of winter scenes. The trip left me, as a novice, with an overall positive attitude toward hiking.

The only disappointment was that there were only two high school members who participated in this enjoyable activity; the rest of the group was comprised of dedicated chaperones and MHS alumni. Mr. Glaser, the club's advisor, reported that membership had drastically declined after the beginning of the school year; unfortunately, if this trend continues it will affect the future and limit future club activities.

Remember this the next time you're stuck with a one-day holiday or are in the mood for exercise, commingling with nature, or just being in good company - then listen to the announcements for news of the Outing Club. The Outing Club needs your active participation today. Nikki Cormier.

Volleyball was just one of many activities that was available at the "Senior Blast Off" held on Wednesday night at MHS. The "Blast Off" marked the beginning of the senior class events that will fill the remainder of the 1979-1980 school calendar. (Photo by Cummings)

Annual Musical Being Prepared

Each year in the midwinter a spirit of severe competition and cut-throating appears in the midst of an usually friendly and congenial group. The reason for this drastic change is the trysts for the Music Department's annual musical. Once the cast is announced, however, the group pulls together again and a strong group effort toward the success of the show appears.

The 1980 effort will be "Annie Get Your Gun" by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein. The story centers around a spunky Annie Oakley, who gains entrance into Wild Bill Hickock's Wild West Show as a cowgirl. The first female ever to do so. Such immortal songs as "Anything You Can Do" and "There's No Business Like Show Business" come from this musical.

As always, the MHS musical will be directed by Miss Martha White, of Round Table fame. Her student director for this year is Glenn Engelson, a senior. Glenn has participated in two musicals and various Sock 'n Buskin productions. His assistance to Miss White should be invaluable.

Whatever Joan Blondell took on - most especially, the brash, blond blonde - gave the motion pictures of her era, beginning back in the long ago 1930s, a certain taste. And when the uptown Warner Bros. pictures in which she appeared wended their way into the Manchester/Hartford area, initially at the then-Warner Bros. State, downtown Manchester, and Strand, downtown Hartford, folks flocked from miles around. A Joan Blondell movie was in every sense of the word, escapism, cheering the dreary years of the Great Depression, cheering on those back home during World War II.

Animal Care Discussed

Have you witnessed a tortoise having a caesarian section? Do you know how a dog is cured of diabetes? Have you ever fought with an animal in an attempt to give him an injection? If you are a veterinarian by profession, then these are just a part of the many experiences you face each day.

Dr. Pomper, a veterinarian at the Bolton Veterinary Hospital, joined the Medical Club for the last meeting and shared with us some anecdotes, both humorous and serious. A series of slides about a tortoise undergoing a caesarian section were put before us. The animal's shell had to be removed and the tortoise anesthetized before such an operation could take place. The ending was a happy one for both Dr. Pomper and the tortoise: the mother gave birth to seven healthy turtles.

Dr. Pomper next went on to inform us of canine diseases. Diabetes, for instance, is more common with dogs owned by the elderly. It occurs as a result of inflammation of the pancreas, which then fails to produce insulin. The disease can be controlled by giving the animal regular shots of insulin. Learning how to give these shots is sometimes difficult for the owner, especially if she is elderly.

There also exists in this profession that uncertainty of whether an animal should be put to sleep. This question, Dr. Pomper said, never becomes easier - even with experience.

The Medical Club meets every first and third Wednesday of each month. The guest speakers are from all the diversified fields of medicine. If you have even the slightest interest in medicine, you are welcome to come to our next meeting, Nani Dhar.

Clash Releases New Album

The promotional sticker on the cover of the new Clash album reads, "18 new songs by the only band that really matters."

Record companies are wont to overstate, and as I considered the band's previous efforts some of the best rock of the 1970s, I dismissed the blurb as mere hyperbole. I sat back and listened to "London Calling," expecting to be entertained with the double-album as I had been with earlier Clash albums.

But first, a bit of background. Although the Clash are among the most popular bands in Great Britain, the group are virtually unknown to the American listening public. Only the critics are aware of the Clash, and they have praised the band to the skies.

The quartet's self-titled debut was available only as an English import until this past summer, upon its American release, it was instantly hailed as one of the finest rock albums of 1979.

Comprised of songs from the British release and later Clash singles, the album is the best example of raw rock 'n' roll on either side of the Atlantic. The Clash's follow-up, "Give 'em Enough Rope" (the first American release), continued the tradition of politically motivated rock, and like its predecessor, received enthusiastic reviews. Despite the acclaim, the Clash have yet to make a mark on this country. Neither album has sold well, and the band is accorded little or no airplay on FM stations.

All of which brings us to "London Calling," the third Clash release. An attempt on the group's part to broaden their popularity (they've devoted consist of critics and a few hard-line new wavers), this album is at least as rough-frenetic than the other two. The rough-edged excitement remains intact in some spots.

High School Happenings

The second semester of the 1979-1980 school year officially began on Monday of this week. This meant that most students received a new class schedule, new classes, new teachers, and a new chance to perhaps do a little better this semester than they did last semester.

The first senior class sponsored activity was held at Manchester High School Wednesday night, from 7 until 10:30.

The "Senior Blast Off" as it was titled, attracted more than 300 students. The band, "The Last Band," provided music in one area of the gymnasium for those students that wanted to dance, and ping pong tables and a volleyball net were set up in another area of the gym for the non-dancing crowd.

Refreshments were also provided and served in the cafeteria. This was just the first of many events planned by the senior class in order for class members to meet and become acquainted with other 500 class members before graduation. It's unfortunate if you missed this first event. It was a real blast!

Members of the senior class will be measured for graduation caps and gowns on Tuesday, Feb. 5, of next week during the school day. For those members of the class of 1980, that graduation isn't as far away as they might think it is.

Beginning in this new semester, most sophomore students of MHS will join their upperclassmen in receiving the privilege of the open campus. It should be noted that most, and not all of the sophomores will

Skiers Angry: Plot in Works

The absence of snow in these parts has brightened up the lives of those who own their own homes, and who would otherwise be shoveling the white stuff on a morning till night.

But others are not so happy about the lack of snow. A group of enraged skiers have dashed off an angry letter to Mother Nature, berating her for her no-snow policy in Connecticut. A spokesman for the skiers said today that if there is no snow in the state by February 1, the group will consider retributive action against Mother Nature.

Possibilities include the kidnapping and holding of Father Time. Mother Nature could not be reached for comment at press time, but Father Time was willing to make a statement. He is quoted thusly: "Look, take it from one who knows. It's not me to fool Mother Nature."

Singers Plan Variety Show

This past week, the choir room has been overflowing with vocal, dance, and comedy talent. The reason for this over-abundance of gregariousness is the annual variety show, which is sponsored by the Round Table Singers Parents Club.

The chosen theme for this year's show is "Showbiz."

The Round Table Singers will appear in the dress of their favorite actors, instead of their usual attire. All of this fun and excitement will take place on Wednesday, Feb. 6, Miss White, Music Department head, has expressed her pleasure in the turn-out of potential entertainers.

It should prove to be an interesting evening, so why not come down to Bailey Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. and witness this talent firsthand? The date, again, is February sixth, and admission will be two dollars.

Blondell Films Were Escapism

A memorial service for Joan Blondell brought a stable group of entertainment industry people to St. Malchy's Roman Catholic Church off New York's West 49th Street, and fittingly, the media did not intrude on the poignant service. The people who came, and they are "names" in the business, most assuredly, were among those whose careers had touched that of a gamey gal who simply never got caught up in the so-called Hollywood assembly line.

Whatever Joan Blondell took on - most especially, the brash, blond blonde - gave the motion pictures of her era, beginning back in the long ago 1930s, a certain taste. And when the uptown Warner Bros. pictures in which she appeared wended their way into the Manchester/Hartford area, initially at the then-Warner Bros. State, downtown Manchester, and Strand, downtown Hartford, folks flocked from miles around. A Joan Blondell movie was in every sense of the word, escapism, cheering the dreary years of the Great Depression, cheering on those back home during World War II.

She never considered herself in the Ethel Barrymore acting class, of course, but, then, Miss Barrymore could not, not any stretch of the imagination, take on a screen role that had been carefully calculated for the particular talents of one Joan Blondell.

She was born in New York in 1912, daughter of actor Eddie Blondell. He had

The Clark-Schuldmann Duo - Harry Clark, cello, and Manchester Community College. Bugs Not Sold in U.S. But Herbie's Due Back

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Volkswagen doesn't sell its bug model in the United States anymore but Herbie, the lovable 1964 VW of Disney movie fame, rolls out of the starting gate for the fourth time in "Herbie Goes Bananas."

The familiar sun-roofed VW with red, white and blue racing stripes and the number 53 stenciled on its doors heads for Latin America this time around, co-founding Cloris Leachman and Harvey Korman in the process. Both in the United States and abroad.

The doughy little automobile made its debut in "The Love Bug" in 1969, topping all other films that year at the box office. Disney produced "Herbie Rides Again" in 1974 and "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" in 1977. The combined box-office receipts for the three VW pictures so far is $200 million, an incredible figure considering the star is a car.

Don Tait, who wrote and produced "Herbie Goes Bananas," thinks "The Love Bug" could not have been made with any other automobile.

"The VW is a sort of symbol of the little guy," Tait said. "Stacked up against all the big cars in the world, Herbie is the underdog who can do superhuman things. Most people in the audience can identify with him."

"Not every car would have been a success as the hero of a movie. I mean, Dodge or an Oldsmobile just wouldn't

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

THREE-NINE STEPS, THE (PG) - Robert Powell, David Warner, Karen Doree, John Mills, Spy Thriller. This is the third remake of the story (earlier ones were in '35 and '56) and maybe the new generation won't remember the first two. If not, they'll be satisfied, because it's a well told tale (much different from the earlier ones about pre-World War I spy). A little slow in spots, but more humorous touches. GRADE: B.

ALL THAT JAZZ (R) - Roy Scheider, Ann Reinking, Jessica Lange. (Drama) Bob Fosse takes a lot of chances in his '76, "luscious character studies and an incredible performance by Roy Scheider. Dazzling dance sequences, but don't go expecting to see Bob Fosse's "A Chorus Line." This is a movie. GRADE: B-.

BLACK HOLM, THE (PG) - Maximilian Schell, Anthony Perkins, Robert Forster. (Drama) This is Disney's attempt to do a big, lavish space film, and millions were spent on remarkable special effects. But they use a story they probably got for $2M. And the actors aren't up to snuff, so the whole thing is absurd, when they intended it to be amazing. The robots are cute, though. GRADE: C-.

BLACK STALLION, THE (G) - Kelly Rowley, Mickey Rooney. (Drama) The real star in this gorgeous fantasy is Calvo DeCuberto's cinematography. There's little dialogue in the film's first half, just superlatives, and poetic film. Based on Walter Farley's book, it's the story of a young boy rescued, also brings his equine friend home for the match race of the decade. GRADE: A-.

CHAPTER TWO (PG) - Marsha Mason, James Caan. (Romantic Comedy/Drama) Neil Simon's play, somewhat autobiographical, about a woman who finds a new love but has problems laying out her late wife's memory. It sounds soubert, but it isn't. It has some very funny moments, as well as some that will touch your heart. Lovingly acted. Directed and produced by Robert Altman. GRADE: A-.

ELECTRIC HORSEMAN, THE (PG) - Robert Redford, Jean Fonda. (Romantic Drama) A textbook case of much ado about nothing, this is Fonda's finest performance since "The Candidate." It's a classic, with great music and great acting. It has some good moments, but it's not the best. GRADE: B-.

GOING IN STYLE (PG) - George Burns, Art Carney, Lee Remick. (Drama/Comedy) Much talent is wasted on this tale about three old men who turn from horrid to bath robbers. Funny, written and directed, and produced by John Wood. It has some good moments, but it's not the best. GRADE: B-.

KRAMER VS. KRAMER (PG) - Dustin Hoffman, Meryl Streep. (Drama) A faithful adaptation of Avery Cormen's novel, this is basically the story of a court battle over custody of a young boy, and what child and parent can do to battle. No villains here, merely human beings with flaws. Magnificent performance, including one by a great new child actor, Justin Ryland. But it does have a tendency to pale along in spots. GRADE: A-.

"JIT" (PG) - An all-star cast. "A comedy spectacle" Universal and Columbia call it. It may be the biggest production to recent years. It's Steve Spielberg's attempt at comedy, set in sunny California a few days after Pearl Harbor. But the comedy is cartoonish, slow slapstick and with heavy-handed dialogue. It has some good moments, but it's not the best. GRADE: C-.

QUADROPHENIA (R) - Phil Daniels, Leslie Ash. (Drama) Tom Blanton on mid-60s British mod garb, but a good treatment of an old and troubling theme. Taking its cue from a powerful concept and score by The Who, the film portrays a youth wrestling with his sense of identity. Cast and crew of relative unknowns in a movie which is exciting, turbulent, yet touching. GRADE: A-.

ROSE, THE (R) - Bette Midler, Alan Bates, Frederic Forrest. (Drama with music) This story of the tragic decline of a Janis Joplin-like singer is ugly and unpleasant, but tremendously effective and moving. Midler's performance is truly outstanding, and you'll find yourself weeping with her, as those drugs and pain destroy her. Castion. Gutter language. GRADE: A. (film grading: A - superb; B - good; C - average; D - poor; F - awful)

Professor Predicts Paperless Future

STAMFORD - John Savage believes the future is not in chemicals, but in electronics - a reality which he says has already dealt the film industry a "body blow" and could result in a paperless future.

"Film is dying," says Savage, an instructor of "Writing for the Visual Media" at the University of Connecticut at Stamford.

A writer/producer in the GTE Information Communication Center in Stamford, Savage says, "The immediacy of video production is the primary cause of death, noting 'video is so far ahead of film it isn't even funny.'"

Writing also might be dying. Savage adds, pointing out that writing for the audio-visual media is quite different from fiction, poetry and other types of writing. Savage, who claims some people watch six hours of television a day, says books could turn into "museum pieces like papyrus scrolls."

But the effect won't be all bad, because as the field expands, there will be a need for more audio-visual media writers.

And that is one reason the "Writing for the Visual Media" course is so popular, says Savage.

The course, designed to provide basic knowledge and experience in writing and producing film, video, slide and multi-media programs, includes many students who are employed full time in various Stamford-area corporations.

Savage, who has taught communications courses at Fairfield University and lectured at the Universities of

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if Buddy Ebsen is dead. Mom and my sister tell me he is dead. Also, could you find out about a movie called "Walk On the Wild Side." I know Sal Mineo was in it, and I think Shelby Longmire. Can you tell me how to get it played on TV? DOORHITTY MILLER, Michigan City, Ind.

No, Buddy Ebsen isn't dead. I don't know what movie you are talking about. "Walk On the Wild Side" started Jane Fonda, Mingo and Miss Winters weren't in it. Shelby Longmire was in "Wild In the Streets" - could that be it? Anyway, the only way to get a movie on TV is to call your local station and suggest it.

DEAR DICK: I have a $100 bet riding on this, so please answer soon. There is a TV commercial for Pringle's potato chips, with a blonde actress in a white gown. She sings the ditty in a sophisticated, operatic fashion. My parents say this is Eileen Fulton (Lisa in "As the World Turns") and I say no. What is the bet? We haven't seen her on the tube since the KIMBERLY BRUSH and JULI BOERSMA, Kalamazoo, Mich.

She is definitely off the show, replaced by Randi Oakes. But she wasn't fired, far from it. Actually, NBC is so high on her they took her off the show to build another show for her. The world is that the network thinks she has a "special interest" whatever that means. In the meantime, you can see her on the "Back Rogers" series for NBC. Erik said nothing to do with it, although it is true they didn't get along too well.

Exhibits

Show Features City's Theater

HARTFORD — John Wilkes Booth meets Chang and Eng in a new exhibition at the Connecticut Historical Society. The actor whose Ford Theater shot eclipsed his fame as a thespian and the original Siamese twins are featured members of the cast of "120 Years of Hartford Theater," which is slated for a four-month run at the Society.

The diversions of old-time Hartford, from melodrama to minstrels, from the tragedy of Hamlet to the "death of Jesse James," and the daring promises of "Green Room Follies" are reflected by the posters, playbills, photographs and memorabilia on display.

Drawn exclusively from the society's collection, the rare items on exhibit include four unique 18th-century broadsides advertising performances of such plays as "A Cure for a Scold," a painted backdrop of the Charter Oak for the 1856 drama "Nathan Hale, Martyr Spy," and an oil portrait of actress Lizzie Mae Ulmer, by the local Black artist Nelson Primus.

Presented in conjunction with the 50th anniversary celebration of the Bushnell Memorial, the exhibition at 1 Elizabeth St. is open to the public at no charge. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, through May.

Crossing Point

HARTFORD — Adele Broitman, Hartford's well known visual artist, is preparing for a solo exhibition, "Crossing Point," to be shown at the Farmington Valley Arts Center in Avon from Sunday through March 2. The public is invited to meet the artist at a special opening Sunday from 3 to 6 p.m.

The title "Crossing Point," is a physical step for the artist who is moving to New Mexico from New England where she has lived and worked for many years.

Ms. Broitman will present her graphic designs in paper, collage and paint in the current exhibition.

Ms. Broitman is a graduate of the Hartford Art School of the University of Hartford. She has exhibited her work in New York and locally at the University of Connecticut, Asylum Hill Artists Collective, University of Hartford, Footprints in Manchester, and the J. Doyle Dewitt American Collection. She has conducted workshops at Wesleyan University, Shanti School, and the Wadsworth Atheneum.

During the duration of the exhibition, the Farmington Valley Arts Center gallery hours will be Tuesdays through Saturdays, 11 to 4, and Sundays, 1 to 4. For further information and directions call the center at 678-1867.

Black History Month

HARTFORD — To celebrate Black History Month, the Community Renewal Team's Crafters Gallery in conjunction with the Wadsworth Atheneum, will present African Art from the Wadsworth Collection, with selected additions, beginning Sunday.

There will be a free public reception and performance by the Artists Collective Performing Dance Ensemble, from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Club Plans Exhibition

NEW HAVEN — The New Haven Paint and Clay Club announces its 79th annual exhibition, New York and New England artists will show their work and compete for $1,600 in awards and purchase prizes during this prestigious show.

The exhibition will continue from March 9 through April 4 in the John Slade Ely House, 51 Trumbull Street, New Haven. The show will be limited to original works in oil, watercolor, graphics, acrylic, mixed-media and sculpture which have not been previously exhibited at the John Slade Ely House.

The New Haven Paint and Clay Club is fortunate to have William H. Bailey as juror this year. As a student at Yale, Bailey came under the influence of the

The Craftery is located at 1445 Main St., Hartford. Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. The exhibit will remain on view at the Craftery, with selected excerpts at the Wadsworth Atheneum, through March 9.

Watercolor Show

HARTFORD — Priscilla Souder has a one-woman show of watercolors at the Connecticut Public Television Gallery 24 this month.

Mrs. Souder, who lives in Enfield, has displayed her works at various juried shows held at the John Slade Ely House, in New Haven, the Slater Memorial Museum in Norwich and the Greater Hartford Arts Festival.

Mrs. Souder attended the Vesper Group School of Art in Boston and has studied with a number of artists from the University of Connecticut and the University of Hartford. She is a member of Connecticut Women Artists Inc., Connecticut Artists 33, and the Tolland County Art Association.

CPTV's Gallery 24 is located at 24 Summit St. in Hartford at the telecommunications center. The gallery is open to the public at no charge weekdays from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m.

Pioneer Photography

STORRS — About 30 photographs by pioneer Mexican photo-journalist Augustin Victor Casassa (1874-1938) will be on view at the University of Connecticut's William Benton Museum of Art Saturday through March 8.

One of the first photo-journalists of this century, his most noted achievement was his unflinching documentation of the Mexican civil war that began in 1910 and continued into the 1920s.

His Goya-like portrayals of horrors of war were a great influence on other Mexican artists as well, including Posada, Rivera, and Orozco.

Their unposed spontaneity evokes the ease of a 35 mm camera, but remarkably, Casassa worked only with large format equipment involving tripods and glass negatives.

Casassa started working as a journalist at the age of 20, and in 1893 founded the Mexican Association of Journalists. In 1911, he started the first Society of Press Photographers, and two years later, the Agency for Photographic Information.

The photographs on exhibition are on loan from the Prakapas Gallery in New York City.

The museum is open free to the public Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

The next seven years he spent at the University of Indiana and returned to Yale as a professor of art in 1969. He has been Director of Undergraduate Studies, Director of Graduate Studies in Painting and, for one year, Dean of the School of Art.

Copies of the exhibition prospectus and entry cards may be obtained by writing Donna Infantino, Secretary, 34 Sachem Road, Stony Creek, Connecticut 06405. Entries will be received at the Ely House Thursday, February 29 from 6 to 8 P.M. and Friday, February 29 from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M.

Winter Weekend Slated at UConn

STORRS — A student-made ice-skating rink, a "Mr. Wild and Wonderful" pageant, and UConn Night in Hartford highlight the "Wild, White, Wonderful Winter Weekend" beginning Feb. 6 at the University of Connecticut.

The annual winter extravaganza, sponsored by the Student Union Board of Governors, is scheduled to begin with the UConn-UMass basketball game on Feb. 6 in the field house.

At halftime, the Amazing Fantasy Jugglers take the court to provide the entertainment, followed by the introduction of the "Mr. Wild and Wonderful" contestants, parading through center court in formal wear.

The competition will continue after the game when contestants are judged on swim wear, talent, and on a final interview. The winner of the pageant will be announced. He will receive a $50 gift certificate for dinner at a Hartford restaurant, and will be crowned "king" of the Winter Weekend.

On Friday, the student-made ice rink on the graduate field will be dedicated, to provide a facility for a "Work and Wolf" party on "W.D.C. Music for the party will be provided by the WDRS mobile van.

The graduate field also will be the site of a Friday night bonfire and pep rally for the forthcoming UConn-Rhode Island basketball game.

Following the outdoor activities, which include a dorm/area council "Olympic" competition on the ice, the Student Union will remain open as a 24-hour "warming hut."

Events programmed continually will include: "Local Talent" in the lobby, "Casino Night" at midnight, a "Twister" extravaganza, video presentations in the lobby, a "Down with Disco" party, and a Late, Late Movie/Pajama party to start at 3 a.m.

A beerfest in the ROTC hangar and other dorm events will continue all night.

The highlight of the weekend will be the UConn Caravan to Hartford, for the scheduled UConn-Rhode Island basketball game in the Hartford Civic Center. The $50 bus, 200-car caravan will be held regardless of whether the Civic Center opens.

The Hartford-Sheraton's main ballroom has been secured for a UConn party.

A "Welcome Back to UConn" party also is planned in the ROTC hangar, to begin at 2 a.m. Sunday morning.

On Feb. 10 the "Wild, White, Wonderful Winter Weekend" will end with the concert in Jorgensen Auditorium, featuring regional favorites NRBQ and Pousette-Dart Band.

Solons Debating Guns and Condos

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gun control and limits on condominium conversion could be two of the most closely debated issues if they get to the floor of the coming legislative session, a UPI poll of lawmakers shows.

A survey of lawmakers turned up fairly close splits on those issues. But the legislators overwhelmingly favored both the death penalty and enforcing able-bodied welfare recipients to work for their benefits.

Most of Connecticut's lawmakers were against an attempt to repeal Connecticut's racial imbalance law. And the Democratic-controlled Legislature — knowing Gov. Ella Grasso has hinted she might break precedent and seek a third term — lopsidedly opposed any effort to limit governors to two, four-year terms in office.

But lawmakers were evenly divided on gun control, an issue aimed at them in the wake of a strict, new local ordinance in New Haven, and condominium conversion, a measure which came to the forefront during last year's emergency energy session of the Legislature.

The group which convinced New Haven to ban sales of handguns between two private parties has promised to seek support for statewide handgun controls from lawmakers.

Fifty percent of the legislators said they would support gun control, 43 percent opposed any limits. Six percent said they would support limited gun control and 1 percent was undecided.

But Senate President Joseph Fasullo, D-Hartford, said personally will oppose any efforts to consider gun control during this year's short legislative session, which is reserved for money matters.

The Legislature, which approved a temporary moratorium on condominium conversions during its fall energy session, was also evenly divided over whether a moratorium should be made permanent.

Slightly more than 50 percent said they approved of a moratorium, 38 percent opposed any limits. Five percent and more than 6 percent said they favored a temporary moratorium.

Ethics Panel Declines To Rule on Questions

MANCHESTER — The Ethics Commission declined last night to rule on three of four questions in its agenda.

"We can't formulate guidelines. But when a specific issue comes up, we wouldn't reject it," Adler Doherty, commission member, said. "If we ruled on real estate agents, you could substitute doctors or lawyers or any occupation in the same reasoning," Cohen said.

Part of the commission's reasoning was trusting the elected officials to disqualify themselves from an issue that could be a conflict of interest.

"I believe there are some honest people with integrity on the board or we wouldn't elect them," Adler Doherty, commission member, said. "We can't damn anyone for their philosophy anymore than we can for holding real estate licenses."

The commission postponed ruling on another question raised by Carl Zinsner, board of directors' member, who resigned this week.

Zinsner requested the commission examine whether Elizabeth Sadowski, eighth Utilities District tax collector, can also serve on the Board of Tax Review.

The commission decided more information was needed about the functions of both offices before releasing an opinion.

The commission will ask the town manager for a statement on the Board of Tax Review, and will request Mrs. Sadowski to appear before the commission at its next meeting.

Pro Hockey at Its Best
Professional hockey at its best, National League style, was demonstrated by a fired-up Hartford squad in green and white colors against the Boston Bruins last Wednesday night at the Springfield Civic Center.

It was a sellout crowd with hundreds standing in the exit portals or sitting in the aisles.

The Whalers had waited, patiently, for the day when they would not only meet up but turn the tables on the well established Bruins as a power in the NHL.

That day finally arrived Wednesday night when Coach Don Blackburn's charges gave a super effort and the result was a top-sided 8-2 decision.

Several years ago two clubs tangled during the pre-season exhibition schedule in Hartford and the Bruins literally blew the Whalers right out of the building with a five-goal spurge in the early minutes of period number one.

Then, earlier this season in the first of four regular season meetings, the Bruins rallied to nip the Whalers in Boston.

No.1 Rival
While the Bruins may have different thoughts, the Bostonians are the No.1 rival of the Whalers.

They are the only major league ice teams in New England.

The rivalry wasn't formed overnight.

The Whalers tried in 1971 to invade the solid Bruins territory when the World Hockey Association opened for business and the war between the leagues erupted.

The Whalers were co-tenants of Boston Garden, accepting the dates available after the Bruins' schedule had been completed. The choice dates were all taken. But the Whalers had to have a place to play and they wanted to lure some of the faithful Bruins supporters to their side.

This experiment didn't happen. The Bruins were an established team, fronted by the great Bobby Orr, and still having the likes of high scoring Phil Esposito at the doorstep to push in goals, the Whalers lost money, a lot of money, and were

Trouble Ahead With Jack Back

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Jack's back, and that could prove to be a lot of trouble for those with eyes on the $54,000 prize in the $300,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Jack Nicklaus, the man who used to cast a shadow over the field every time he played, made his 1980 debut Thursday, and new swing and all he shot a 68 at Cypress Point.

Ordinarily, that might not raise much of a fuss but the bad news for everyone is that Nicklaus just about has his new swing grooving. He had to fight his way out of the sand a number of times.

His partner worked well, too, as attested by six birdies. Jack had three bogeys, missing short putts on two of the three holes, or he might have been the leader after the first round by ten strokes.

The leaders turned out to be the two most consistent players on the PGA Tour — Tom Kite and Jerry Pate, who called in to play in the opening round.

"Generally, I played very well," said Kite, a man who always manages to finish in the top 10 but rarely takes home the winner's check. "On this day Cypress Point played easy, but it is an unforgiving course if you're not careful."

Pate missed short putts on the seventh, ninth and 13th holes or he

Woman Demands Name Be Dropped from Suit

By CHARLIE MAYNARD
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Thursday's legal actions following a flourish of name-dropping from lawsuits involving local residents.

Nancy Watts, who was named a plaintiff in a suit against South Wind- sor, Manchester and the Eighth Utilities District over a three-party sewer agreement, said she demanded her name be dropped as a plaintiff because she never consented to be one.

"I did not feel I had given any permission to have my name put on any lawsuit," she said this morning.

Mrs. Watts said she first realized she was a plaintiff by reading the announcement of the suit in the press. She was named along with Raymond Lawrence Doyler Jr. and Pat McNamara, who are also 8th District residents.

Since then, Republican District Carl Zinsner has resigned from the board. He was also a defendant in the suit and was listed first in the Angeli vs. Zinsner case.

Manchester voters decided last April 17 to withdraw from the Community Development Block Grant program for two years. The program was administering the sewer Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The town successfully argued to Senior U.S. District Judge M. Joseph Blumenthal that only existing members of the board should be defendants. The new members are James McCavanagh, Barbara Weinberg, Arnold Kleinschmidt and

Ali to Aid President

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, summoned by President Carter, who called Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev "a man of peace" during a visit last year to Moscow.

Ali said he would be in India for a week early to leave on the mission to Africa for Carter.

Asked how he liked the title "Ambassador Ali," the former champion said: "I don't like the title ambassador. I'm just unique, period."

Ali spent his two-week stay in southern state of Madras where he received the White House call. Then before leaving New Delhi en route to London and New York, he turned serious.

"This is not a publicity stunt," said Ali. "This is important. If Russia's allowed to keep taking territory, it will soon be taking the oil fields. We've got to let them know we are serious."

He said he was playing games with Russia and called Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev "a man of peace" during a visit last year to Moscow.

"I think I've become more aggressive on the golf course," she said of her recent surge. "It's like there was no more fear. I think it's a matter of achieving some goals and gaining confidence."

"I haven't put that much pressure on myself recently. I've gone out and played my own game. When I start a tournament now, I just try to be in the top 10, and if you're in the top 10, you have a chance to win."

She said she was a little surprised by her prowess in her first round of the year.

the round by canning an uphill 30 foot putt.

Kite started out slow but finished fast, making five birdies in his last seven holes for a 30 and 68. Pate almost matched his 30, holing an eagle putt from 40 feet on the 10th and picking up birdies on 14 and 17 for a 31 and 69.

"Obviously, I played well," said Kite, a man who always manages to finish in the top 10 but rarely takes home the winner's check. "On this day Cypress Point played easy, but it is an unforgiving course if you're not careful."

Armed Man Robs Store

MANCHESTER — Police are investigating a Wednesday night armed robbery where an undetermined amount of cash was taken from the Dairy Mart store, 368 Spencer St.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask entered the store at 8:40 p.m., jumped over the counter and pointed a knife at a female clerk, demanding the money from the cash register.

The suspect was described as a light complexioned black man in his early 20s, about six-foot-three inches tall, of medium build, wearing a tan, zippered coat, black pants and a pair of sneakers, police said.

Police said the clerk said the suspect took the cash receipts from behind the counter as well and then fled the store on foot. They believed the robber apparently knew of a special hiding place for the store's cash.

Many Absent From Schools

MANCHESTER — Absenteeism in elementary schools is on the increase at the elementary level due to pneumonia, strep throat, and flu-like sicknesses.

But the increase is about the same as it was at this time last year.

Lynn Gustafson, lead school nurse, said today there are 1 percent more students out of class at this time than in February of 1979. She said she couldn't trace the absenteeism to a "flu, because there is more variety than that."

The flu-like symptoms include fever, aching joints, upset stomach, and symptoms common in a cold, such as runny nose, headache or sore throat, she said.

However there seemed to be a greater incidence of pneumonia this year than in the past.

On the high school level, Gerri Hoyt school nurse said there was no increase in absenteeism.

Detroit Rookie On Hot Streak
By United Press International

Mike Foligno may not be the Detroit uniform but after his performance in the past three games, the red-hot rookie has caught his coach's attention.

"This is Mike Foligno Week," quipped Red Wings Coach Bob Kromm, after Foligno notched his second hat trick in three games to lead Detroit to a 4-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Penguins. "He's got a lot of talent. I said that earlier in the year and I'll say it again."

"I said early in the year I thought he was capable of scoring 40 goals in this league. You know the old saying — once they come, they come like grapes."

Foligno, who also assisted on rookie John Ogronski's game-winning goal in the third period, put another way.

"I've always said between every ocean there's a desert," he said. "Well, this is my ocean."

Foligno, who turned 21 Tuesday, has scored eight goals in the last three games and in the last seven to pass Philadelphia's Brian Propp as the highest scoring rookie in the NHL.

But the 6-foot-2, 190-pound right wing said he's still a rookie and "I've still got a lot of things to learn."

"I don't ever want to think I can do it all myself, because I can't," he said. "When you start popping a couple in there, you start to realize maybe you can put the puck in the net in this league."

We've got to let them know we are serious."

The flu-like symptoms include fever, aching joints, upset stomach, and symptoms common in a cold, such as runny nose, headache or sore throat, she said.

However there seemed to be a greater incidence of pneumonia this year than in the past.

On the high school level, Gerri Hoyt school nurse said there was no increase in absenteeism.

MHS Faculty Involved In Review of Evaluation

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Manchester High School staffers met Thursday afternoon to begin to brainstorm their way through the 85-page report of the Visiting Committee of the New England Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

Jacob Ludes III, principal, called the effort, "The most faculty involvement and commitment I've ever experienced in the eight times I have gone through this process."

"Final implementation plans should be laid by March," Ludes said. He called Thursday's meeting a "commencement, in that we are at the end of the formal self-evaluation procedure, but we are beginning to internalize the recommendations."

The visiting committee's report is part of the accreditation review of the high school. The report will be studied by the association, which will decide by May the length of the school's accreditation. Ludes said the school isn't required to comply with all the recommendations but said accreditation may hinge on compliance with some of the major findings of the committee report.

Bruins Rebound and Win

BOSTON (UPI) — Gerry Cheevers figures it took a lot more than talent and hard work for the Boston Bruins to bounce back from their worst defeat of the year and post a 4-2 win Thursday night over the New York Islanders.

"We showed a lot of guts out there," the Boston netminder said, after turning aside 12 shots to help snap a two-game losing streak.

"Against Hartford (an 8-2 loss Wednesday) we were just awful. But we team played well tonight. We needed something like this," he told reporters. "We've got to prove we can play hockey — and we're still a pretty good team, gentlemen."

The victory was Boston's second in the four games it has played since losing Terry O'Reilly, Mike Milbury and Peter McNab. The three were suspended for engaging in a fight with fans in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 23.

"There's no hope now that we'll get them back so we'll just have to win it out," said Boston's Rick Middleton, who scored two goals, set up two others and sported a bandage over his left eye, courtesy of an errant skate. "Maybe subconsciously it affected you. I know one thing — no one gives up on this team and we can come back. This was a big game for us."

Middleton helped set up a Dwight Foster goal at 11:13 of the opening period, although he later admitted he had a "bad feeling" about the goal. Five seconds later, Middleton gave Boston a 2-0 lead when he poked a loose puck past New York goalie Billy Smith.

"You can't dwell on one real fast," said Islanders coach Al Arbour. "At that's just what happened. We let the Bruins push us all over the ice."

The Bruins outshot New York 6:2 in the first period, and allowed just one goal in the second period.

"Taking the body was the top priority, even though I can understand the reluctance not to that after the way people reacted. We played a pretty good game under difficult con-

Bogey-Less Round Achieved by Little

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — South African Sally Little's golf fortunes took a sharp turn for the better last year and after Thursday's opening round of the 1980 LPGA tour, they look like they're continuing right on course.

Little, a 28-year-old blonde who makes her home in Deerfield Beach, Florida, finished 5-under-par 68 Thursday to take a one-shot lead over the first round of the $100,000 Championship of Deer Creek.

Trailing her by a stroke at 69 over the par-73, 6,280-yard Deer Creek Course were four golfers — Amy Alcock, Jan Blalock, Beth Daniel and JoAnne Carner. Another shot back at 70 were Jan Stephenson, Hollis Stacy and rookie Vicki Singleton, who qualified for the tour only two weeks ago at Sarasota.

Nancy Lurie, the tour's top money-winner the last two years, shot an even-par 72.

Little won three tournaments for the first time last year and won $19,105-01, finishing sixth on the money list.

"I think I've become more aggressive on the golf course," she said of her recent surge. "It's like there was no more fear. I think it's a matter of achieving some goals and gaining confidence."

"I haven't put that much pressure on myself recently. I've gone out and played my own game. When I start a tournament now, I just try to be in the top 10, and if you're in the top 10, you have a chance to win."

She said she was a little surprised by her prowess in her first round of the year.

"Normally I have not played so well early in the year," Little said. "Seeing it was the first round of the year, I was really nervous this morning."

More Donate Blood

MANCHESTER — An unexpected number of minor illnesses, rendering some donors unacceptable, reverse the dismal results of last month's blood drive. The Red Cross reports that 135 pints were collected at the Wednesday's bloodmobile at the Knights of Columbus.

Results show that 86 people walked into the day-long collection site, with a distancing of the 64 who had made appointments.

Eighty-five people had appointments, however, 21 no-shows were reported.

Manchester Red Cross director Elaine Sweet said, "We are elated with the turnout; it was much better than expected and C. Herdic, William H. It's the walk-ins that did it. We are much closer to the quota than we have been in many months."

Mrs. Sweet said 15 donors were deferred. She attributed this in part to the poor weather that Allan P. Walsh.

Solon Claims Hypocrisy Rules Betting Legislation

WALLINGFORD (UPI) — A Democratic senator favoring legalized sports betting says lawmakers are "hypocrites" for allowing some forms of gambling and making other types of wagering taboo. "We're basically hypocrites," Sen. Michael Skelley, D-Tolland, told a meeting of Senate Democrats Thursday. "We tell the public we don't want you gambling on what we consider immoral." But Senate President Joseph Faulstich, D-Hartford, told Skelley "gambling per se is not moral." He said it was to lawmakers to allow "the least risk of corruption and scandal. And we have reached the point of reasonableness." The senators, preparing for next Wednesday's opening of the 1980 Legislature, met to discuss legislative stands on a number of issues including the budget, housing and condominium problems and racial imbalance in schools.

Dems Question Spending But Agree to New Taxes

WALLINGFORD (UPI) — Senate Democrats admit they aren't sure whether the state has been spending more money than it needs, but agreed they'll have to agree to new government operations and I'm not so sure OPM (Office of Policy and Management) is doing it. Sen. Richard F. Schneider, D-Exeter, co-chairman of the legislature's Appropriations Committee, said Thursday the senators were faced "with a societal decision." He said the public had been able to cope with growing budgets over the past 10 years.

State Lacked Evidence To Prevent Child Death

HARTFORD (UPI) — Child welfare officials say they knew a 4-year-old boy was in danger of being abused or neglected two years before he suffocated inside his mother's refrigerator, but had no evidence to obtain legal custody. "It was foreseeable and should have been prevented," a report by the state Department of Children and Youth Services has concluded. "In retrospect, we could have been sharper," Charles Launi, the department's deputy commissioner, said Thursday. "We could have provided supportive services, a parent aide or a visiting nurse, maybe even a foster home." But he said "it was an awful lot easier to see that in hindsight. It's very difficult to predict at the time what's going to happen." Margaret Johnson, 31, pleaded guilty Thursday in Hartford Superior Court to a risk of injury charge in connection with her son's death. Mrs. Johnson had originally pleaded innocent to both manslaughter and the risk of injury charge, but Public Defender Richard E. Kelly said the court agreed to drop the manslaughter charge if she pleaded guilty to the lesser and "more appropriate charge."

Health Education Plan Presented at Hearing

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter

VERNON — The Board of Education is expected to be asked to establish two health education staff positions, one at the Middle School and one at Rockville High School to implement the program next school year. The proposal was presented Tuesday night to the board's Curriculum Committee and the committee deferred action on it.

The proposal, presented by Claire Bellino, head of the Home Economics Department and John Bellino, head of the Science Department, said it is expected that a Task Force of the General Assembly will make a final report that will contain a recommendation to the legislature for action and from there it will go to the State Department of Education.

He said it might be a couple of years before the state mandates separate health education programs for each level.

The state has already mandated health education in the elementary schools. The Bellinos also said that he has submitted proposals to the legislature for action and from there it will go to the State Department of Education.

He said it might be a couple of years before the state mandates separate health education programs for each level.

The Bellinos prepared a five-year plan for the health program at the elementary level. This provides for continuation of the nutrition program in Grades 1-5; development of a nutrition curriculum for kindergarten; to review and refine the K-5 curriculum; continue in-service workshops for teachers; conduct human growth and development seminars for parents and students in Grades 4-6, in the evenings.

Also: The addition of staff to strengthen the existing curriculum and to insure each child is exposed to health instruction; develop an "Adolescent Development" course for Grades 7 and 8; hold a human dynamics seminar for parents and students in Grades 7 and 8, in the evenings; and to conduct in-service workshops for teachers so health is reinforced in the academic and elective areas.

At the High School level it calls for additional staff so each student passes a health education course before graduation.

Parents are invited to call for an appointment to observe the school in session. Further information and applications are available by calling the church office, 872-2170 or Judy Spillane, teacher-director, 875-4112.

Vernon To Get Payment On New Treatment Plant

VERNON — The Town of Vernon will be receiving a check for $1,027,500 from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency which will be the town's first partial payment on the $16 million sewage treatment plant.

The plant was started in 1976 when Mayor Thomas Benoit was in office and signed the contract with Titan Northeast Construction Co. of Framingham, Mass. The Federal government funds 75 percent of the cost of the plant, the state, 15 percent and the town the remaining 10 percent.

The EPA ordered the town to abate pollution of the Hockanum River and the signing of the contract moved a project that had been in the works for some 15 years.

The new plant uses an operation developed by Zimpro Inc. and it is proving to be efficient in treating the type of waste processed in the Vernon plant which is located on Windsorville Road. It has proven especially important for Vernon as it eliminates odor from the treated wastewater caused by discharges from some manufacturing plants.

The check from EPA is in payment for water pollution control construction carried out from December 1974 through September 1979. Actual payment is made as portions of the project are completed.

EPA officials said payment of the town may be used to reduce any indebtedness the town may have accrued as a result of the construction of the wastewater treatment facilities.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I know how GOING BALD feels. I was 38 when my hair started coming out by the handfuls. I went to my doctor and he asked, "How is your sex life?" I told him I hadn't had any lately. It had been married 20 years and had four kids.

He said, "Either tell your husband to get busy, or find yourself a boyfriend." Well, I didn't know where to look for a boyfriend, so I prodded my husband, and said, "Doctor's orders!" It worked like magic. Now my hair is so thick I have to have it thinned out regularly, but now my husband has a bad back.
