SOUTH WINDSOR—A proposal to build an indoor swimming pool adjacent to the high school and the South Windsor Community Center has received a low priority rating by the state Board of Education.

The state board has given the project a number one rating, and will recommend financing only for projects with a one and two rating, according to School Superintendent Robert Goldman.

Education Commissioner Mark Shedd said projects given the number one and number two ratings total more than $32 million, and projects in the number three rating total another $20 million.

Tax Cutters Adamant

Most American people aren't strangers to complacency in public affairs. All too few attend budget or zoning hearings; check the credentials of candidates; go to the polls on election day.

But those associated with Howard Jarvis aren't complacent about tax limitation, the ramrod for California's Proposition 13.

Jarvis claimed the measure would provide across-the-board income tax reductions of 25 percent, a 20 percent cut in federal spending, maximum capital gains tax of 15 percent, and a surplus of revenues over expenditures. But, while he called the bill "reasonable," he admitted it's an uphill fight trying to get it passed.

He claimed Proposition 13, the Jarvis-Gann initiative which passed in California in June 1978, cut property taxes by 57 percent or $6.4 billion.

Added Jarvis: Because of the measure, California's economy is surging, welfare rolls have taken a large drop; personal incomes are up; the government payroll is down; it's cheaper to own a home; and a half million private sector jobs have been generated.

Whether or not the Jarvis claims are extravagant, you have to agree the Proposition 13 promotes revived proof that an aroused public still has clout.

Retired Fire Chief Admits Corruption

HARTFORD (UPI) — Retired New Britain Fire Chief Raymond Galati has pleaded guilty to corruption charges as the state detailed how he bought his way up the civil service ladder and sold promotions to subordinates.

Galati, 60, entered the plea Tuesday before Hartford Superior Court Judge Eugene Kelly, conceding the state had overwhelming evidence to convict him for selling promotions in the city's fire department.

Prosecutors said Galati had joined other New Britain officials in selling promotions and pressuring subordinates to pay for them.

Galati faces up to 80 years in prison and $30,000 in fines on two counts each of bribery and conspiracy and single charges of first-degree larceny by extortion and attempt to commit first-degree larceny by extortion.

Chief State's Attorney Austin J. McGuigan, who headed the probe, said the investigation was confidential.

defense told Kelly no plea bargain had been worked out and Galati's decision to plead guilty wouldn't affect the sentence the state will recommend.

Galati was scheduled to be the first of 19 men, most past or present New Britain officials, to stand trial on charges stemming from a one-man grand jury report into the alleged sale of promotions and misuse of city property.

Galati, dressed in a conservative suit with a bright yellow shirt, stood quietly with his hands folded as he answered when asked by Kelly whether he understood the implication of his action and his rights to go forward with a trial.

The charges which the state dropped were those stemming from Galati's own rigged promotional exams for deputy fire chief and examinations he had rigged as favors for others without payment involved.

The remaining charges against Galati include conspiracy of conspiring with other officials.

CONDO WORKSHOP Condo Ownership: Everything You Wanted to Know ... Now You Can ASK

Congressional Quarterly Carter, GOP Agree on Energy

WASHINGTON Sharp differences on energy policy divide the major candidates seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

By contrast, the major Republican contenders — with one exception — generally share the same energy goals.

President Carter and Republicans Ronald Reagan, John Connally, George Bush and Howard Baker all generally support an end to energy price controls and other steps to encourage domestic production of oil and gas.

They all support increased coal use, continued reliance on nuclear power — in a safe manner, encouraging production of synthetic fuels and using, when practical, solar and other alternative energy sources.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and California Gov. Jerry Brown, Democrat, would ration gasoline. Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., wants a 50-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, with a limited rebate through reduced Social Security taxes.

Kennedy also firmly supports continued oil price controls. Kennedy and Brown further separate themselves from the other candidates by their opposition to the expansion of nuclear power.

Although presidential candidates in recent years have talked a lot about energy, the issue has never been a major factor in a campaign. That is likely to hold true in the 1980 election, despite efforts by Kennedy and Anderson to make energy a key issue. But energy questions have become more prominent in recent debate because of growing unrest in the Middle East, which supplies almost half of the oil used in the United States.

The link between that area and U.S. energy security was dramatically underscored when Carter threatened to go to war to protect oil supplies in the Persian Gulf region.

And a spate of lines at gasoline stations could transform energy policy into a key element in the campaign at any moment.

Kennedy has bluntly championed rationing. "I believe people would rather use a little less gasoline in their cars than spill the blood of young Americans to protect OPEC's pipelines," Kennedy said.

His strongest calls for rationing came after Carter's warning he would use military force in the Persian Gulf. It has become a major theme of Kennedy's campaign.

Brown also generally endorses rationing, but is less vehement in his support. Kennedy considers rationing a short-term measure that will save 1.7 million barrels of oil a day. After government incentives have encouraged conservation, he would end rationing.

The gasoline tax is a key point for Anderson. "The time has come to call on the American people for some measure of sacrifice to try to reduce consumption," he said.

Anderson would use gasoline tax revenues to cut Social Security taxes. Only persons using excessive amounts of gasoline would feel the full brunt of the tax.

Like the other Republican contenders, Anderson is opposed to continued price controls on oil and gas. The GOP candidates also stress the need to reduce government regulations of the oil and gas industry.

"We are going to solve (the energy problem) with people who know something about energy, and that is the oil companies," Connally told ABC's "Issues and Answers" program.

Connally also has supported Palestinian self-determination as part of a comprehensive Middle East settlement that he hopes would lead to a stable supply of oil for the U.S. at reasonable prices. But Connally has been less vocal about this idea in recent weeks.

George Bush agrees with Reagan and Connally that the government should leave the energy marketplace alone. But he makes sure to put some distance between himself and the oil industry.

Bush, who started his own oil company in the 1950s, wants the government to "monitor the oil companies more closely, ensuring that it has the full facts about their operations — something the government has lacked in the past." He also is sympathetic to conservation and to alternative energy supplies.

Jimmy Carter agrees with the call on the American people for some measure of sacrifice to try to reduce consumption. He also wants to encourage coal use and to diversify supply sources. He has set limits on U.S. oil imports, but actual imports are not expected to reach that ceiling this year.

Major energy legislation Carter proposed is expected to emerge soon from congressional conference committees; the tax on oil company profits resulting from decontrol, the energy mobilization board to cut red tape for priority projects and the special corporation that will invest billions of government dollars to encourage production of synthetic oil.

Enactment of the legislation will be a major victory for Carter.

Handicapped Rights

On Oct. 1, 1979, the State of Connecticut passed a long overdue, but much needed, law for parking which was well received by handicapped people throughout the state.

Unfortunately many laws have loopholes, not giving them the teeth it needs to accomplish what the law intended to do.

In fact, the governor just recently came out with a letter to tax all towns, suggesting that they put into effect local ordinances giving power to the police department, not only to patrol private shopping areas but also to fine illegally parked cars that do not bear the state permit that is required.

Towns that already have a local ordinance in effect, have had no problems with illegal parking. I live in Manchester, and they haven't got an ordinance.

I've met with Police Chief Lannon and although he is sympathetic to the cause, his hands are tied till we get a local ordinance. In fact, he told me of a "young man" who gave him a hard time when he asked him to remove his car from a handicapped parking space.

I have come to the conclusion that there are three types of people who will park in a handicapped parking area — the type that, when confronted, will show you their sore wrist in order to justify their guilt about being caught, the type that will ignore you when approached, and the type that will give you a hard time when you ask them to remove their car.

A rough draft is now being drawn up by Malcolm Barlow, the town attorney, for a local ordinance. Anyone sympathetic to the cause, especially a handicapped person, please find out when this will be on the agenda, and please attend the directors' meeting to show that we in Manchester care and support the handicapped of our community.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Forgotten Hostage's Dramatic Release

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON — The incredible behind-the-scenes story can now be told of the dramatic rescue of the Forgotten Hostage. He is Richard Starr, a 32-year-old Peace Corps botanist who spent a grueling three-year ordeal in the mountainous jungles of Colombia.

As the White House quietly negotiated with the new Iranian government for the release of 50 American captives in Teheran, we were secretly bargaining for the return of the unfortunate Starr.

The balding, bespectacled scientist's nightmare began in the early morning of February 14, 1977, when armed communist guerrillas from the Revolutionary Armed Command of Colombia (FARC) attacked the village of La Macarena, where Starr was a volunteer. After a pre-dawn shootout which left at least three dead, the guerrillas picked the still sleepy Starr from the crowd of cowed villagers. When Starr, whose Spanish wasn't yet fluent, couldn't give his answers quickly enough to suit the gun-toting outlaws, he was tersely ordered to pack his bag. "You're coming with us," he was told.

Stuffed with pesos and stolen booty, the revolutionaries retreated casually into the jungle confident that neither the police nor the army would be able to track them down in the tropical undergrowth. It was the prelude to more than 1,000 days of cruel interrogation, psychological torture and unremitting boredom for the Seattle, Wash., native.

Starr lived under a plastic tarpaulin, strung between two trees, and was constantly bird-dogged by four or six guards. He spent most of his time gathering botanical samples, listening to the radio and sleeping the long hours from dusk to dawn.

His only friendly companions were two exotic birds which he named after the famous Soviet dissidents Alexander Solzhenitsyn and Andrei Sakharov. The names were deliberately chosen to irritate his captors. But the insult seemed to go over the heads of his illiterate abductors, even though they constantly spouted communist dogma.

More than 2,000 miles away, meanwhile, my associate Jack Mitchell was negotiating with FARC intermediaries for Starr's release. Mitchell went to Mexico City last September to meet secretly with the chief intermediary, a Colombian native whose identity we can't reveal.

us on positive proof of Starr's well-being. Their primary interest wasn't political but pecuniary — the guerrillas wanted American greenbacks and lots of them.

Starr's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Jensen, was on the edge of nervous exhaustion when a long-awaited breakthrough occurred during the last week in January. Our contact confirmed that the revolutionaries had made their demands clear to him via short wave radio. They wanted $250,000 in cash and a quick consummation of the deal — no more negotiating.

Although we realized the danger of accepting to ransom demands, the length of Richard's ordeal indicated that buying his freedom was the only way to secure it. Time meant nothing to the FARC guerrillas; they would hold him for years if necessary.

So I called on a friend in the business world who prefers to remain anonymous. He generously offered to lend us the full $250,000 on my personal pledge I would return it in full regardless of the outcome of our negotiations with Starr's captors. Mitchell had to visit three bank branches in order to gather sufficient cash the evening before he left for Colombia. He concealed it in a nondescript canvas duffle bag.

Mitchell and a Spanish-speaking adviser, John Longan of Bentonville, Ark., flew to Colombia on February 2nd. They arrived in Bogota at night and checked into a hotel where they could be easily reached.

After a series of clandestine meetings, involving whispered conversations over pay telephones and pre-dawn rendezvous with several contacts, Mitchell was instructed to fly in the single engine airplane of an intermediary to Neiva, a city 130 miles southwest of Bogota.

On Feb. 7th, Mitchell arrived in Neiva and registered in a designated hotel in the city square. He was soon

Now's Time to Enter Chicken Cooking Contest

With chicken one of today's best food buys, everyone's looking for different ways to serve it. Each year the National Chicken Cooking Contest turns up hundreds of interesting recipes - favorite chicken dishes of good cooks across the nation.

The 1988 chicken cook-off will be held in August in Atlanta, Georgia, but now's the time for those who want to participate to polish up their best recipes and enter. A prize of $10,000 awaits the year's top chicken dish.

The National Broiler Council, sponsor of the annual event which dates back to 1949, has announced that March 15 is the deadline for entries. A final from each state and the District of Columbia will receive an expense-paid trip to Atlanta and a chance to cook it out at the World Congress Center for a total of $20,000 in prizes.

A panel of well-known food experts will select the five top recipes in the competition. Dishes will be judged on equal points - taste, appearance, simplicity and appeal.

Anyone may enter the contest. A whole chicken or any part or parts may be used. Recipes should be written for approximately four servings and take no longer than three hours to prepare.

Enter as many recipes as you like but submit each on a separate sheet of paper with name, address and telephone number. Mail before March 15 to: Chicken Contest, Box 2818, Central Station, Washington, DC 20005.

In some states, a preliminary cook-off will be held to determine the state finalist. In states where no cook-off is held, an independent recipe judging agency will determine the winners.

A number of special events and sightseeing trips are planned for participants in Atlanta. Contest headquarters will be at the Omni and winners will be announced at an Awards Banquet there the night of the cook-off.

Just to get you thinking about chicken and the type of recipe that could be a winner, the National Broiler Council adapted this recipe for "Mushroom Stuffed Chicken" (below)

1 broiler, cleaned and cut into 4 pieces
1 lemon
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup sherry
Mushroom Stuffing (recipe follows)
Place chicken halves in broiler pan with rack. Cut lemon in half and rub entire surface of chicken, squeezing so there is plenty of juice. Mix together salt, pepper and paprika and sprinkle over chicken. Broil, skin side down, approximately 8-inches from heat, for about 15 minutes, basting occasionally with butter and sherry which have been mixed together. Turn chicken; continue to broil about 15 minutes more, basting occasionally. Remove chicken from broiler pan and place in baking dish, skin side down. Fill chicken cavities with Mushroom Stuffing and bake in 375° F oven for about 15 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Makes 4 servings.

Mushroom Stuffing
In small fry pan, melt 3 tablespoons butter; add 1/4 pound of mushrooms which have been cleaned and sliced. Cook 3-4 minutes until mushrooms are soft but not brown. Stir in 1 tablespoon flour and 1/4 cup chopped parsley. Add 1/4 cup cream, stirring constantly until mixture is smooth. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Dear Lucy - In the past when food was relatively inexpensive, most shoppers were not interested in refund offers. They were also unaware of most of them.

As a result, few shoppers asked for refund forms. Most supermarket managers disregarded the forms, throwing them out when they found them on the shelves or even prohibiting manufacturers' representatives from posting them.

Although times have changed, this poor attitude persists in many supermarkets. Their managers have not yet realized that supermarket shoppers want to take advantage of every discount opportunity, including manufacturers' refunds!

With food prices skyrocketing, supermarkets should do everything possible to help their customers save money with refund offers. After all, a manufacturer's refund costs the store nothing.

Instead of prohibiting salesmen from putting up refund forms, the stores should be calling food companies and their representatives to request as many refund forms as they can get.

If you want to see more refund forms in your supermarket, make a point of letting the store manager know it. Inform the manager that your continued patronage may depend on how successful he or she is in offering you low prices, good service and refund opportunities.

If shoppers like you get this message across, there will be more than enough refund forms for everyone.

P.S. Don't accept the excuse that manufacturers don't provide refund forms. Food companies want to get as many of their refund forms as possible into supermarkets.

And when a store manager tells you that refund forms clutter up the aisles, ask how many forms he or she has seen in the aisles lately.

Dear Supermarket Shopper - When my son told me he wanted a newspaper route, I wasn't sure it was a good idea.

How was I to know that as the mother of a newsboy I would have an opportunity to get extra copies of each week's food section?

For the last two years I have enjoyed coupons galore as a result of my son's work.

But now I have a problem. My son wants to try out for the high-school swim team. If he makes the team, he will have to give up the paper route.

I feel crushed! What can I do?

How would it look for a mother of three to deliver newspapers? (My two daughters have already said no. If you say it's all right, I'll try it! - Susan L. from Van Nuys, Calif.)

Dear Susan - I agree that you have a serious problem. Perhaps your daughters might change their minds if you could get them interested in responding and refunding.

If that fails, consider whether any of your friends have children who could take over the paper route with the understanding that you share the extra food sections.

Dear Supermarket Shopper - When I first started refunding, I was afraid that we would end up eating a lot of junk food. But we are actually eating better.

I used to buy the store brands of canned vegetables. We got so tired of them that many times we would skip vegetables altogether.

Dear Lucy - In the past when food was relatively inexpensive, most shoppers were not interested in refund offers. They were also unaware of most of them.

As a result, few shoppers asked for refund forms. Most supermarket managers disregarded the forms, throwing them out when they found them on the shelves or even prohibiting manufacturers' representatives from posting them.

Although times have changed, this poor attitude persists in many supermarkets. Their managers have not yet realized that supermarket shoppers want to take advantage of every discount opportunity, including manufacturers' refunds!

With food prices skyrocketing, supermarkets should do everything possible to help their customers save money with refund offers. After all, a manufacturer's refund costs the store nothing.

Instead of prohibiting salesmen from putting up refund forms, the stores should be calling food companies and their representatives to request as many refund forms as they can get.

If you want to see more refund forms in your supermarket, make a point of letting the store manager know it. Inform the manager that your continued patronage may depend on how successful he or she is in offering you low prices, good service and refund opportunities.

If shoppers like you get this message across, there will be more than enough refund forms for everyone.

P.S. Don't accept the excuse that manufacturers don't provide refund forms. Food companies want to get as many of their refund forms as possible into supermarkets.

And when a store manager tells you that refund forms clutter up the aisles, ask how many forms he or she has seen in the aisles lately.

Dear Supermarket Shopper - When my son told me he wanted a newspaper route, I wasn't sure it was a good idea.

How was I to know that as the mother of a newsboy I would have an opportunity to get extra copies of each week's food section?

For the last two years I have enjoyed coupons galore as a result of my son's work.

But now I have a problem. My son wants to try out for the high-school swim team. If he makes the team, he will have to give up the paper route.

I feel crushed! What can I do?

How would it look for a mother of three to deliver newspapers? (My two daughters have already said no. If you say it's all right, I'll try it! - Susan L. from Van Nuys, Calif.)

Dear Susan - I agree that you have a serious problem. Perhaps your daughters might change their minds if you could get them interested in responding and refunding.

If that fails, consider whether any of your friends have children who could take over the paper route with the understanding that you share the extra food sections.

Dear Supermarket Shopper - When I first started refunding, I was afraid that we would end up eating a lot of junk food. But we are actually eating better.

I used to buy the store brands of canned vegetables. We got so tired of them that many times we would skip vegetables altogether.

With my coupons and typical supermarket has more than 10,000 items from which you can select. Each year manufacturers introduce hundreds of interesting new products.

But all too often shoppers get into a rut. They walk down the aisles with blinders on, picking up the same items that they selected the last time they shopped, and the time before that, and the time before that.

Give and Take

The average U.S. family, which makes $18,800 a year, paid $1,935 in federal income taxes in 1979, down from a $2,455 tax on the same income in 1970. But the Social Security tax on these earnings shot up from $375 in 1970 to $1,150 last year, the Conference Board finds.

U.S. Lobbyists Promote Beef Exports to Japan

By DENVER (UPI)—When Texas native Bert Tension dons a red, white and blue apron and a chef's hat to barbecue beef, he represents any other amateur cook enthusiastically preparing a feast of ribs.

But most any time Dr. L.B. "Bert" Tension cooks, it is for one reason — promotion.

Tension is the representative to Japan of the U.S. Meat Export Federation, an organization working to open foreign markets for U.S. beef. He relies on his fluency in Japanese to convince Oriental residents to introduce hamburgers and T-bones into their traditional rice and fish diet.

At booths in Japanese supermarkets and at trade fairs, Tension explains techniques such as broiling and marinating to "get across to the Japanese that U.S. beef is juicy, flavorful and tender."

Tension, who worked his way through Texas A&M veterinary school by flipping hamburgers at a College Station fast-food stand, says the Japanese were opposed to the opening of an MEF office in 1978 because of what it might do to their own cattle industry.

Japanese cattle producers, he says, demonstrated by parading steers around the U.S. Embassy in Japan to protest the opening of the MEF office.

But opposition to the lobbying efforts of the American meat group has turned around. Now the Japanese Livestock Industry Promotion Corporation, which controls beef imports to Japan, has opened a Denver office. MEF President Alan R. Middaugh says this will enable closer contact with a leading importer of U.S. meat and meat products.

Heretofore, Japan's prime source of meat has been grass-fed beef imported from Australia.

An MEF spokesman said Japan has a quota structure that essentially guarantees the continued purchase of Australian beef. But Tension says younger Japanese, becoming more and more indoctrinated into Western culture and lifestyle, want the Western meat dishes.

Middaugh says most of his organization's promotions are geared for hotel chefs and restaurateurs who want to "Americanize" their figure you're getting a fairly good bargain," says Steve Carpenter, assistant to the MEF president in Denver.

He said a New York strip sirloin sold in a Japanese supermarket is three to eight times more expensive than what an American housewife would plunk down for the cut at the grocery store checkout line.

Carpenter said high prices in Japan were "created by the simple fact that the Japanese government has created a surcharge — an artificial high charge — on U.S. meat."

Tension said the domestic Japanese beef production is 4 million head per year and these include Holstein bulls, which are dairy animals fattened for slaughter.

Middaugh said projections were for Japan to import 30,000 metric tons of American beef by 1983 and 75,000 tons by the end of the next decade.

Quorum Lacks, Plan Meeting Reset

MARY KITZMANN

HERALD REPORTER — While many downtown businessmen attended last night's Board of Directors meeting, a quorum of board members did not. About 45 persons attended the meeting to oppose the downtown revitalization plan. But due to unusual circumstances, only four directors were present.

Stephen Cassano, deputy mayor, Democrats James McCavanagh, and Arnold Kleinschmidt, and Republican Gloria Della Fera, heard their viewpoint. The other directors could not attend for various reasons. William Diana, Republican, is hospitalized with a fractured leg. Peter DiRusso is on vacation in Mexico. Stephen Penny and Barbara Weinberg, Democrats, both are ill. One position is vacant, pending the appointment of Carl Zisser's successor.

Phil Harrison, chairman of the Downtown Coordinating Committee, was supposed to preside at the revitalization plan. But no quorum could be taken without a quorum, so Harrison opted to wait until the full board could hear the plan.

But Cassano and the other directors believed the citizens shouldn't be asked to attend another meeting. The speakers were given 10 minutes to speak last night, and additional rebuttal time if they wanted, according to the board's public hearing record.

Most chose to save the additional time for another public hearing when the plan is presented to the board.

When B.D. Pearl, Main Street, opposed the plan at its March meeting, he was the sole critic. Last night, he was in the majority in a straw vote, the plan, which would lower the mill rate but expand the taxing district, had only one supporter, George Marlow, owner of Marlow's Department Store, who was the minority one last night.

"The plan is inadequate as far as rehabilitating the business district or the residential property in the area," Pearl said. This idea has surfaced before and I always will oppose it. If necessary I will take further action than I have in the past few weeks to oppose it."

"The new taxing district will not raise enough money for development," he said. "I'm not opposed to it, but I'm not going to pay the salaries of a few people hired to manage the business district."

The revitalization plan would lower the tax from 10.5 mills to 9.5 mills in the expanded district. About $100,000 would be raised by the tax, and an additional $500,000 from selling tax-exempt mini-bonds. The bonds would be used for building improvement loans.

Besides the expanded tax district, the bonds also sparked opposition. "There's a place now to go if you want a loan to improve your property," said Stephen Marlow, owner of Seymour Motorsports Inc. "It's called a bank."

Kudlow called the plan vague, and said "in time the 5 mill rate will go up to 10 again anyway."

"It's a fourth government telling me how to spend my money," he said. Kudlow, Pearl and about four other businessmen are organizing opposition to the revitalization plan. They bought an advertisement in The Herald urging opposition.

John Tucci, Castle Street, said the plan would "not help anybody but these guys." "Why should the taxpayer be asked to subsidize these businessmen," he asked. "It's not fair."

Charles Bruder, Park Street, said the tax on the downtown residents would have a negative effect. "I've watched the taxing district grow," he said. "The people who live downtown already have low income. This tax would only add another burden on them."

But the plan's sole supporter at the meeting, George Marlow, said "These people oppose everything." "They would only have to pay from $125 to 150," he said.

Marlow cited the parking lots, St. James Church, and two others as progress in the downtown area. The board will hear the presentation of the plan at its March meeting. On March 27 the board will finish its regular meeting, postponed last night, after meeting at 7 p.m. with the Board of Education.

Man Rescued From Elevator

MANCHESTER — Firemen from the Town Fire Department Tuesday rescued a man caught in an elevator at the Manchester Parkade office.

Captain Joseph McCooze said an electrical malfunction apparently caused the problem. He said the rescuers had no problem freeing the man with their special device for unlocking doors.

The department received the call at 4:23 p.m. McCooze said the victim was probably trapped less than 10 minutes.

Bike Track Site Unsure

MANCHESTER — No one opposed the plan for the green to return after they built Route 85," Day said. "It might not fit, just as it's returning now."

Other persons said the noise would be "intolerable" and questioned the town's liability for accidents.

Kiernan is requesting to lease the land for $1 a year. He would charge $5 to use the track, but said last night he did not expect to make money off the races. He also offered to pay expenses for the first year, if the track lost money.

There are three other racing areas in Connecticut, in West Haven, Wilton, and Plainville.

Stephen Cassano, deputy mayor, asked Kiernan to present his plan to the Park and Recreation Commission at its Thursday meeting. He also suggested three other possible sites for the track, on Love Lane, Keeney Street or Kennedy Road.

Town Waits for Word

MANCHESTER — The town is waiting for word from the U.S. Treasury Department concerning the legitimacy of the affirmative action plan. If word is not received within 10 days, the plan will fall in the lap of the Board of Directors.

Steven Werber, personnel supervisor, told the Human Relations Commission Tuesday night the town was surprised by statements in the newspapers that the Treasury Department did not intend to comment on the proposed plan.

The town had asked for a response to the plan, which sets goals and timetables, eight months ago. Bruce Forde is the new Republican representative.

Blue was released on a $500 non-surety bond for a March 3 appearance in East Hartford Superior Court, police said.

Heiden Has Done His Part

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — Eric Heiden has done his part. Now it's up to his sister, Beth, and figure skater Linda Fratianne to get the United States out of the deep freeze in the gold medal race at the Winter Olympics.

Eric Heiden won his third gold medal of the Games — the only ones earned by the U.S. in competition — Tuesday by taking the men's 1,000-meter speed skating event. The Madison, Wis., student will probably win two more in the 5,000 and 10,000-meter races before the Games are over but unless his sister and Fratianne can get their acts together, that will be the grand total for Uncle Sam's athletes.

Entering Tuesday's competition in the men's figure skating it appeared the U.S. had a good shot at a gold medal. But, Charlie Tickner of Littleton, Colo., — second after Monday's compulsory figures — slipped slightly during his short program and fell to third place in the competition.

Tickner will probably do well in the final free skating program and the program Thursday night but he will still have a hard job overhauling Britain's Robin Cousins, who is in second place behind leader Jan Hoffmann of East Germany. Hoffmann is not considered a good free skater.

Beth Failed

Beth Heiden has been disappointed in three races so far but she has her best chance today in the women's 3,000-meter speed skating race.

"It could be my best event," she said. "Before this started, I would have said that it was my best. We'll have to wait and see how it goes. I just hope I'm not in the first pair again. When you're first, you sort of have to guess what the ice is like. You have to get together with your coach and decide what you think you're capable of doing. That makes it more difficult."

"I heard the weather is supposed to be warmer Wednesday and that helps in the longer distances."

The weather is expected to rise into the 50s which may make things very difficult for the women skaters who will be competing in the first run of the giant slalom.

"We're very worried about the weather," said Marc Hodler, president of the International Ski Federation.

Fratianne, the world champion from Northridge, Calif., is the favorite to win the gold medal in women's figure skating but she will have to perform better than she did in the nationals when she fell twice during the short program. She will compete in the compulsory figures today, the first phase of the competition.

"When I got home I think it was almost good to feel — it made me work harder," said Fratianne. "Maybe if I had done well I would have gone home and not worked as hard."

Fratianne's stiffest competition is expected to come from Annett Pötzsch of East Germany.

"With Annett the key is the compulsory figures and the short program. If I can get the top three figures... if I'm second or third going into the long program I'll be okay," said Fratianne.

Hockey Tonight

The undefeated U.S. hockey team also will be in action tonight against West Germany and a gold medal will be contested in the 4 X 10 kilometer cross-country relay.

Heiden won the only medal for the U.S. Monday by beating Canada's Gaetan Boucher. Frode Roeming of Norway and Vladimir Lobanov of the Soviet Union tied for third.

Heiden previously won the 500 and 5,000 meter events and has his sights set on winning two more gold medals in the 1,500 and 10,000 meter events.

"I'd like to, I have two races to go and I'm concerned about both. In the 1,500 the biggest problem to get prepared for is the hurt because it's an anaerobic oxygen problem," said Heiden. "In the 10,000, it's getting harder and harder to get prepared for each race. Physically I'll be okay but I have to get mentally prepared. Today, I wasn't as psyched as I should have been but hopefully I will be for the 1,500."

Share Spotlight

Sharing the spotlight with Heiden Tuesday was Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark, who captured the giant slalom with a strong run down

Whiteface Mountain, Stenmark was only third after Monday's first run but turned in a second run of 1:20.25 Tuesday for a combined total time of 2:40.74.

It was an especially gratifying victory for the king of the slalom since it was his first Olympic gold medal and came before the King of Sweden, Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein won the silver medal and Austria's Hans Enn took the bronze in the 1976 Olympic cross-country relay.

Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash., was the top American with a 10th place finish in a time of 2:44.33. His twin brother, Steve, finished tied for 15th, another 61 of a second back, Cary Adgate of Boyne City, Mich., and Pete Patterson of Sun Valley, Idaho, both fell.

"I'd have to say I'm disappointed," said Phil Mahre, who had finished fifth in the 1976 Olympic giant slalom. "But, I'll be better in the slalom Friday. That's been my best World Cup race all year."

East Germany won three of the four medal events contested Tuesday. Ulrich Wehling won the Nordic combined, Frank Ullrich the luge, and Gerni Fluckinger and Karl Gschwentz of Austria placed third with 11.70-75.

Brought by a pair of 5.9 marks from the Soviet luge, Igor Kabanov, and the American string of high marks for the World Championships brought a chorus of boos from the capacity crowd of 7,500 at the Olympic Fieldhouse.

Judy Blumberg of Tarzana, Calif., and Michael Seibert of Washington, Pa., finished seventh for the best U.S. showing.

Penalty Loops

Ulrich, a 22-year-old police lieutenant, was forced to ski two penalty loops of 200 meters each but still outdistanced Soviet sharpshooter Vladimir Altkin by more than 42 seconds to finish with a winning time of 2:21.09. It was the first Olympic gold medal in the biathlon for the East Germans, whose previous best was a silver medal in 1972.

Lyle Nelson of McCall, Idaho, was the top U.S. finisher in 19th place, the fourth best individual effort by an American biathlete in the Olympics. The achievement was all the more remarkable because Nelson had spent the last three days in bed with the flu and had not practiced in a week.

Nelson finished with a time of 35:40.56, more than three minutes behind Ulrich. Don Nielsen of South Strafford, Vt., placed 44th with six misses and a time of 30:51.02. Peter Hoag of Minneapolis had four misses and finished 45th in the 50-man field with a time of 36:53.44.

"It's getting harder and harder to be affected by a power failure, which hit at 10 a.m. Batteries immediately kicked in to operate the electronic timing, however, and results were delayed only by three minutes."

Wehling won his third straight gold medal in the Nordic Combined event. The East German had entered the race as the leader after the first day of competition in the 70-meter ski jump and the 27-year-old physical education teacher finished ninth in U.S. showing.

Successful Defense

Rinn successfully defended his Olympic title in the two-man luge. Rinn and his 1976 partner, Norbert Hahn, established a track record on the first heat with a sizzling run of 39.93 seconds for the 740-meter Mt. Van Hoevenberg course.

Italian World Cup champions Peter Gschwentz and Karl Brunner took the silver medal with a combined time of 1:19.906. Georg Fluckinger and Karl Gschwentz of Austria placed third with 11.70-75.

Brought by a pair of 5.9 marks from the Soviet luge, Igor Kabanov, and the American string of high marks for the World Championships brought a chorus of boos from the capacity crowd of 7,500 at the Olympic Fieldhouse.

Judy Blumberg of Tarzana, Calif., and Michael Seibert of Washington, Pa., finished seventh for the best U.S. showing.

Bird, Celts In Hartford

The incredible Larry Bird, 6-9 All-American from Indiana State named to the National Basketball Association All-Star team in his rookie year, will lead the Boston Celtics into the Hartford Civic Center Tuesday night, against the troublesome Atlanta Hawks of the Central Division at 7:30.

Bird is one of the main reasons why the Celtics, with the regular season two-thirds over, are having their best start since 1973. He is leading the team in scoring (19 points), rebounding (10.3), and steals while ranking second in blocked shots. He very seldom has a below par game.

Tickets has been the talk of the National Basketball Association players and fans with his true concept of the way basketball should be played. Often opposing coaches will say after the game, "Bird really put on a clinic tonight."

Bird is the reason why the Celtics once again are one of the biggest attractions today. Everywhere the Celtics go, the fans flock to see the Bird do his magic act with his brilliant in-court maneuvers that is the focal point of attention. With the team continuing playing excellent basketball, the viability of the Celtics as sure-fire gate attraction is insured with Bird as the impetus force.

There are approximately 1,500 tickets left for this outstanding attraction between the two leaders of their respective divisions. On the other hand, there are still plenty of tickets available for the March 18 game against the Indiana Pacers. Tickets may be purchased at the Hartford Civic Center and all Ticketron outlets. In addition, customers may charge tickets to MasterCard or Visa by calling the Civic Center Charge Line, 727-8010.

Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is so much emphasis placed on sex these days? Like eating and sleeping, sex is just another bodily function. Some people require more than others. And there are a lot of folks who wisely never think about it.

Today, everywhere you look you see articles and books telling you how to have "good" sex. There are even therapists to teach people how to do something that comes naturally when two people love each other. My sainted mother would turn over in her grave if she knew that people are actually going to specialists to get instructions on how to make love.

Let's be realistic, Abby. The average person falls in love once maybe twice in a lifetime. Unfortunately, some people never fall in love, but they find other things in life that are equally fulfilling and rewarding.

Maybe if we stopped talking about sex so much, we'd have fewer hookers, rapists and sex-crazy people. Right?

LEVELHEADED

DEAR LEVELHEADED: Wrong! Hookers have always been with us. Isn't prostitution known as the oldest profession?

And it's time that myth about rape is put to rest. The rapist is more interested in degrading and humiliating women than he is in achieving sexual gratification.

Finally, sex between two people who love each other does not always insure mutual satisfaction nor does it come naturally. Our early training has conditioned many of us to regard sex as nasty and sinful. But thanks to therapy "sessions," if you will, we can be taught to overcome our inhibitions and hangups, and enjoy sex without guilt.

DEAR ABBY: I have some standard answers for many people who ask me how old I am. I always say, "Plenty nice." And when I'm asked how much I weigh, I say, "One hundred and too much."

HAZELIN PIKETON

DEAR HAZEL: Ain't it the truth!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31 year old woman, divorced for four years, and have no children.

The man I've been dating for five months has asked me to marry him. He has already bought the ring. I told him I wanted to wait until I know him better. I think I love him, but I want to be sure my feelings are real.

There are a few things about him that bother me. He is 27, and has had only one semester of college. This certainly isn't going to set well with my family because we are all college graduates and have professions. The age difference isn't going to set so well with them either.

He is mature, responsible, hard-working and earns $35,000 a year, but it's only a job - not a profession.

My parents have met him once, briefly, and they don't know he's only 27, and not a college graduate.

Something else bothers me: I don't like the ring he bought for me.

VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: Don't say you until you don't give a hoot what your family thinks about his age, his non-professional job, or anything else. And should you ever reach that point, if the ring still bothers you enough to influence your decision - say no!

CONFIDENTIAL TO WASHINGTON STAR READER:
You can either earn it or marry it. But if you marry it, you will more than earn it.

How far can we go and still be safe? Get Abby's new booklet: What Teenagers Ought to Know: Send $2 and a nag stamped #8 cent addressed envelope to ABBY: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Astrograph

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

February 21, 1980

Projects you conceive this coming year will have an excellent chance for success. When you think you've come up with a good idea, submit it to the people who can get it to the marketplace.

PIECES (Feb. 25-March 26)
Your first thoughts are likely to be your most productive ones today. When you get an idea, put it into action and then make necessary connections as you go along. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
In your financial dealings today, advise the things could have great significance. Use your smarts to figure out ways to start making pennies add up to dollars.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)
Your words carry a great deal of weight with friends today. Advise them where you can, and be sure to lay compliments if they're deserved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Someone kind of you who is working behind the scenes today will be laying complimentary things to persons who can advance your interests.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Seek the company of persons who stimulate you mentally. Through an exchange of ideas, you may learn of something that will reward your efforts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
If you've been contemplating making a minor adjustment to help your work or career, this is a good day to do it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your judgment is quite keen today, so abide by your evaluations if you've thought things through to the last detail.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
You manage your own affairs well today and you're also good at running the show for others. A use will be found for your skills.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
One of the big reasons friends will want to confide in you today is that they know suggestions you offer will be constructive. You won't try to put your ideas on a worthwhile hobby or with small tasks around the house, instead calling in a repairman. Mr. Fix-it has nothing on you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You should excel today in things requiring imagination or creativity. Forge the physical chores. Concentrate on the mental ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Move quickly on any bright ideas that could contribute to giving your family a greater sense of security. Your thoughts are winning.

Deft defender makes team lead dummy and continued with a spade won by the king after East played low. Next came the eight of diamonds. Both Wests ducked and dummy's king took the trick. A second trump put East in with the ace in order to lead the jack of diamonds to South's queen and West's ace.

At table one, West led back a diamond. South, ruffed, led his jack of hearts and let it ride. East took his queen and South claimed the rest of the tricks, since East had been thoroughly end played.

At the other table, West took time to count out South's hand. West saw that two tricks in the red suits would be necessary if he wanted to set declarer. If East held the king of hearts and a winning club, any lead back would work. If East held both king and queen of hearts an immediate heart lead was necessary to stop the potential end play.

So West led a heart and declarer was walking around dead.

Today's hand decided a regional Swiss team when one South player made the spade game and the other went down.

The bidding and early play went the same way at both tables.

Each South won the club.
