

Mass transit vital factor in regional plan

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

Mass transit is an important part of this region's developing transportation plan.
The resumption of passenger rail service between Hartford and Manchester has been proposed. A Transportation Committee bill seeks as much as $10 million in bonds to upgrade the present Conrail freight line. As it is, the line makes one trip each day, averaging speeds between 10 and 20 m.p.h.

The bill, supported by state Rep. Walter H. Joyner, R., and State Sen. David M. Barry and Marcella C. Fahey, both Democrats, would make possible an east-west line, carrying passengers along a Manchester-Hartford-New Britain-Waterbury route.
The bill is due out of committee March 13. A hearing is scheduled March 13 at the Whiton Memorial Library. Its approach to the vital question of funding will determine its route to the full Legislature.
If bonding were to be sought, the bill would pass through the Finance Committee. An outright call for tax dollars would send it to the Appropriations Committee of which Sen. Fahey is vice chairman.

Fahey doubted Wednesday the likelihood of the $10 million appropriation, calling the figure high. She expressed support for the idea, saying she favored immediate service along the line.
Rep. Joyner said Wednesday it would take only $1 million to upgrade the existing line, adding that commuter parking lots were already in place.
Another bill introduced by Joyner would re-establish the freight line between Manchester and Willimantic. A committee decision is expected to go before the Legislature, incorporating results of a feasibility study now in progress. Joyner said the Providence and Worcester Railroad, which is interested in the line, has estimated that $8 million would be needed to restore service.
The Trans Plan being developed by the Capitol Region Council of Governments is expected to outline later this month the region's transportation policy for the next 15 years. CROG policy will affect federal programs. The agency has given its mandate because the region is a channel for interstate trade dollars.

The CROG staff two weeks ago presented its Policy Board with a set of transit options based in large part on commuter preferences. The board refused to endorse a plan calling for the DOT plan is a combination of highway, bus and rail service respectively. Lynch said highways are most appropriate where an area's population is widely spread. Bus transit, he said, is most feasible for inter-city travel where populations are also less dense, such as Manchester to Hartford or Bloomfield to Hartford. Rail, he added, is ideal in areas with high population density.

Rep. William R. Cotter, D., a member of the House Appropriations Committee, supported the mass transit stipulation. A Congressional vote will determine how the $34 billion will be divided. The bill is expected to raise at least $227 billion over 10 years with 40 percent marked for reductions in federal income taxes and the federal deficit.

Cotter is also supporting construction of the East Hartford link between 1-94 and 1-96. Environmental groups in eastern Connecticut have delayed its completion. They say the East Hartford project as being connected with the extension of 1-94 to Providence.
Rep. Toby Moffett last summer developed a citizens Task Force on Mass Transit for the entire state. Mary Louise Homicki, a Moffett aide, said the task force, which is supporting rail improvements, was from the entire state because of the issues extended beyond the sixth district. The group advocates development of an overall mass transit plan for Connecticut.
Mass transit plans are developing in the state and federal Legislatures. However, government implementation of transportation programs lag well behind.

inter-city rail service exists along the state's coastline, most notably between New Haven and Norwich (and on to New York City). Service between New Haven and Springfield is a new phenomenon.
In Washington D.C., a House-Senate conference considering the proposed Windfall Profits Tax allocated about $4 billion over a 10-year period to mass transit and energy research and development projects.

Fendell to leave ROTC

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Norman Fendell, director of the Regional Occupational Training Center since its inception four years ago, will resign from the Manchester public school system effective Oct. 1.
Fendell, who is credited with being the moving force behind the creation of the center for the physically and mentally handicapped, also served on the Governor's Committee for Employment of the Handicapped in 1975.
Saying he had visited Israel five times, the last time being two years ago when he made job inquiries, Fendell has accepted a position as consultant to that nation's Ministry of Education.
He said although there is no abundance of opportunities in his field in Israel, there does exist a system not nearly as advanced as the programs in the United States which are the concern of the handicapped. He particularly praised Dr. John Cassels, now head of the Gengras Center for Exceptional Children, as being responsible for his entry into the burgeoning field.

Fendell said he has seen many changes in the public's acceptance of the handicapped, such as those encouraging them to find a place in the job market. Additionally, he said the public is now more sensitive to the needs of the handicapped, as can be evidenced by the ramps and the general awareness of their special needs.
"I don't think you'll find another community in the country that does as much for their handicapped and elderly population as Manchester," Fendell declared, localizing his contention that there is greater understanding of the people to whom he has dedicated most of his life.
Saying he was unsure exactly what his role would be in Israel, Fendell said he intends to travel to the Caribbean first, and to try his hand at writing non-fiction.
Another hobby of Fendell's brought an expression of loss from Superintendent James Kennedy, who said Friday, "Besides missing Mr. Fendell as a fellow employee of the school system, I shall miss him because he is one of the few people in town I can occasionally beat at tennis."
Kennedy has good reason to miss Fendell, as a review of the man's accomplishments. Having received his B.A.

degree from Syracuse University, Fendell went on to earn his master's degree from Eastern Connecticut State College. He earned a certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies in Administration at the University of Hartford and also attended law school.
He began his teaching career in Manchester in September 1961. At that time he taught a special education class at Bentley School. After his Bentley experience, Fendell moved to Manchester High School in 1964 and originated a work study program for special education students, which was the first of its kind in Manchester.
In 1966, Fendell was appointed to the position of special education supervisor. While serving the school system, Fendell worked actively with interested parents, citizens and the Board of Education in creating and maintaining the Manchester Sheltered Workshop. He was associated with the workshop until 1976, when the training center was opened.
The center, which serves 22 towns besides Manchester, has undergone much change since it was initially conceived, primarily because of state laws that mandate the mainstreaming of less severely handicapped into the regular school system.

Speaking of future trends, Fendell said he foresees the center meeting the needs of the more severely handicapped and development of programs allowing these people to live independently, instead of concentrating on finding them competitive employment. He added there will probably be a greater concern for the handicapped who are over 21 years of age, and that the deinstitutionalization move will impact on the center.
Saying he was looking forward to moving on, and away from the winter climate in New England, Fendell said he was considering living on a kibbutz, and was surprised by the 100 percent inflation rate now ravaging Israel. "I've worked with some of these students and their parents for 10 to 15 years," Fendell mused. "I should have known of the students and their parents would like me so that I would be missed."

Certainly the administration will miss him, as Kennedy remarked, "He has served well. He is recognized statewide and indeed nationally as an educator who has pioneered in services for the handicapped, especially the mentally retarded."

SOUTH WINDSOR—Despite an apparent lack of activity recently, members of the South Windsor Land Trust said it is alive and well, and active.
A meeting of the general membership has been called for March 20 at 6 p.m. at the South Windsor Library. The topic of the meeting will be "Where Do We Go From Here?"
The land conservation trust is chartered to hold land for passive use in its natural state and for the education of the public as to the benefits of such land use.
The trust already owns one parcel of land called the Williams Property on Ellington Road. A monument acknowledging the gift was installed and dedicated last June and the parcel has undergone a drainage improvement program and will be planted with grass and shrubs this spring.
Also, a property of some eight acres, on the Scantic River, is in the final stages of legal work for donation to the Land Trust and will be available for the use of members in 1981.
Tom Gella, a spokesman for the trust, said the trust is actively engaged in finding out about employment opportunities, interviews and job follow-up. Any other questions relating to finding work will also be addressed.
Interested persons are asked to register before March 10 by calling the Youth Service Department at 644-0875, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The land trust is in need of people to help with various tasks in the future and would like anyone interested to attend the March 20 meeting.
Considerable assistance is available from the state and the many land trusts in other towns, for all areas of activity. These areas include education, maintenance of land, land acquisition studies, and the tax and legal aspects of donating land or money to a land trust.
Youth agency sets workshop on jobs

Ryba outlines goals for Bolton boards

BOLTON — The goals, responsibilities and duties and proposed activities of the Board of Selectmen subcommittees were outlined by First Selectman Henry Ryba at the recent meeting of the board.
Ryba said, "It has been my feeling for some time that the efficiency of the Board of Selectmen would be enhanced through the creation of board subcommittees. The board approved the establishment of five subcommittees at a recent meeting.
Ryba said, "The existence of these subcommittees will provide a vehicle to channel board members' talents while minimizing the possibility of delays in formulating and executing board policies."
He added that the subcommittees would submit their various proposals to the board for formal votes and in no way would their activities be conducted so as to supplant authority of the full board in the decision making process.
The goal of all subcommittees is to expedite the Board of Selectmen policies.
The responsibilities of the subcommittees include providing periodic reports to the board on activities relating to their respective subcommittee and make recommendations for the adoption of proposals and requirements for future use, to determine what equipment might be required in the future, and to evaluate current space allocations in the interest of improving efficiency and productivity.

Also to study internal procedures and forms and to maximize use of time and energy and explore innovative approaches to enhance operation.
The fifth subcommittee is the labor negotiations team. All subcommittees will schedule meetings as necessary.

Everyone candidate for Barry's seat

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — As State Sen. Marcella Fahey, D-East Hartford, put it Friday night, "Sure, everyone in Manchester, Glastonbury, South Windsor, Bolton... is a candidate."
And just about everyone contacted by The Herald said they were considering a run for the seat being vacated this November by Sen. David Barry, D-Manchester.
Former Manchester Mayor Matthew Moriarty said Friday night, "I have considered it, but I haven't reached a conclusion. One working the weekend I'll be talking to some people." Moriarty added that he expected to reach a decision early next week.
Rep. Abraham Glassman, D-South Windsor, who is preparing for a challenge to his seat as representative for the 14th District, called that his main concern. But he added, "If something happens later on, who knows? Right now I'm working hard on getting re-elected."
On the Republican side, Carl Zisser, who recently resigned as minority leader of the Manchester City Council, called his candidacy a "possibility." Zisser said, "I'm considering it but what I do is going to depend more on what happens to the economy. If business were to start picking up, sure, I'd be considering it. But if not, I'm going to wait and see. The economy is still a question mark."

But if not, I'm going to wait and see. The economy is still a question mark."
Former Sen. George Hannon, formerly of East Hartford and the third district, could not be reached for comment. Hannon now lives in Glastonbury.
Zisser said monetary issues will be key to the campaign. "The state, unfortunately, like the federal government continues to spend with no end in sight." He accused government of trying to please special interest groups called for spending cuts across the board.
Others mentioned as possible candidates for the Senate seat include Rep. Robert "Skip" Walsh, D-Coventry; Rep. Alvin Ahearn, D-Bolton; and Rep. Teresa Lee Bolton, D-East Windsor.

Inflation rise said 'shocking'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation at the wholesale level registered another "shocking" rise in February, and President Carter promised Friday to take dramatic action to ease the price level.

Washington officials said the price index rose 1.2 percent in February, the highest gain since 1974.
The Labor Department announced that producer prices for goods ready for sale to retailers soared by 1.5 percent last month — a 19.1 percent compound annual rate that was fueled by the biggest energy increases in six years.
Prices had jumped 1.6 percent in January. Thus, the first two months of 1980 have seen the biggest back-to-back wholesale price increases since 1974.
In a separate report, the Labor Department said the nation's unemployment rate dipped to 6 percent last month from 6.2 percent in January.
The change, although termed insignificant by government economists, offered evidence that the long-awaited recession may be delayed again.
Shortly after the new inflation report was made public Friday, Citibank of New York hiked its prime lending rate to 17 3/4 percent and several other banks followed suit.
Harris Bank and Trust of Chicago went to 18 percent.
"If I hadn't been prepared for this, I would say the February price picture was shocking," said one administration economist. "It's clear that energy is the main villain, but now it has spread to all areas except food."
Foo prices fell 0.5 percent after dropping 0.8 percent in January.
A group of mayors who met with Carter at the White House said the president told them he will offer "bold initiatives" within the next three or four days.
Carter said the new anti-inflation steps would be "unsettling for some people," according to one of the mayors.
Administration officials say Carter will most likely slice $20 billion from the fiscal 1980-81 budgets and may seek selective credit controls to slow down borrowing.
The Labor Department said that with the exception of food the cost of items at the wholesale level climbed sharply across the board.
Energy items rose last month by 7.5 percent, by far the largest gain since March, 1974.

Connally looking for a victory

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — John Connally appealed Friday for a massive turnout in Saturday's South Carolina presidential primary and predicted he will get the victory he needs to stay alive in the race for the GOP nomination.
"I frankly think we are going to carry the state — I really do," Connally told a news conference as he embarked on a final swing of South Carolina's major urban areas.
But a poll conducted for Ronald Reagan and an assessment by George Bush — both running against Connally in the Republican contest — indicated the former Texas governor would come in far behind Reagan.
The Reagan poll showed him favored by 55 percent, Connally 18 percent and Bush 12 percent with 15 percent undecided.
And Richard Norman, field coordinator for the Bush campaign, said his personal predictions give Reagan 55 percent, Connally 25 percent and Bush 20 percent.
Connally used a chartered jet to campaign despite depleted resources while Reagan, the former two-term governor of California, rolled down the state's highways in search of votes.

Bush also returned to the state after a two-day absence.

Danielson seeks aid after fire

DANIELSON (UPI) — State and town officials met Friday to determine what aid was available to help six businesses gutted when an early morning fire swept through a section of a Main Street block.
The fire broke out within half an hour of another fire which claimed the life of an elderly man who lived just across the corner" from the block, officials said.
Harry Cooke, 80, died after fire broke out in a second-floor bathroom of the two-family house he lived in on Reynolds Street, in Danielson, an aging borough of Killingly. The cause of both fires was under investigation.
Assistant Town Manager Francis Frobel said the Main Street fire was another blow to the already depressed economy of northeastern Connecticut.
"It's the aftermath we have to deal with now," he said. "It's quite a loss, in an area such as Killingly. We're not the best of economic health. It's certainly a blow."
Firefighters from a dozen companies battled the fire which left homeless the occupants of apartments over the businesses. No injuries were reported and temporary housing was found for the tenants.
Gov. Ella Grasso dispatched a representative of her office and the state Department of Economic Development Friday to discuss state assistance for the firms.
The fire also caused minor damage to the nearby town hall when a minor explosion apparently ignited by heat blew out windows.
Frobel praised firemen for containing the fire to the six businesses, saying it could have been much worse.
"I've got to hand it to them," he said. "They did a fantastic job saving the surrounding buildings. The buildings are actually all touching each other without even an alley in between."

Cooke's death was the second resulting from fire in less than 24 hours in northeastern Connecticut.
Norman Proulx, 43, died Thursday from smoke inhalation after a minor fire at his home in the North Grosvenor Dale section of Thompson. State police said Friday they determined Proulx suffered a seizure and dropped a cigarette which ignited a chair.

The international politics of energy

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Energy and the Way We Live..."

In early 1979, Iran's oil workers joined the revolution that ousted their hated ruler, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

By the year's end, seizure of the American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by the revolutionaries had escalated the situation beyond the mere loss of energy supplies from Iran to a major international crisis.

Outcasts in Iran's oil exports, and leaping prices hiked inside and outside the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) were giant new steps toward world power by the developing nations.

The process by which energy-rich states gained control of their own resources and also political leverage over their Western customers was far more, however, than just an exercise in current Muslim or Arab geopolitics. Its roots lie much deeper.

The seven sisters

In 1901, Muzafferuddin Shah of Iran granted gold prospector William Knox D'Arby what was to become the first traditional Middle East oil concession.

In rough order of size, the majors, or "Seven Sisters," have been Exxon, the Royal Dutch Shell group, Texaco, Standard Oil of California (known as Socon, marketing as Chevron), Mobil, Gulf and British Petroleum.

Under the old concession system, the companies ran huge oil-bearing territories almost like colonies. Host governments had little control and shared minimally in profits.

Venezuela was the first to break with this pattern. After its first free elections in 1954, a nationalistic government passed an income tax law giving the government 50 percent of the oil companies' profits - at that time a truly revolutionary step.

The 50-50 system spread quickly to the Middle East, where Saudi Arabia took the lead in demanding half the profits of the Arabian-American Oil Company (ARAMCO), owned then by four of the seven sisters: Exxon, Texaco, Socon, and Mobil.

In early efforts in the 1950s under Prime Minister Muhammad Mossadegh to break the concession system altogether and nationalize oil brought confrontation between Mossadegh and a coalition of the Shah, the British, and the U.S. CIA - which brought the Shah back from temporary exile in 1953 in a military coup.

Before the 1960s, the seven sisters acted together to establish a single world price for oil, based on the Gulf of Mexico oil price set by U.S. companies. Since Middle East oil was vastly cheaper to produce than Gulf of Mexico oil, the major companies made enormous profits in the Middle East.

By the 1960s, however, Saudi Arabian Light oil had replaced Gulf of Mexico oil as the world's pricing yardstick. When the Suez War of 1956 between President Nasser's Egypt and an Anglo-French-Israeli coalition temporarily closed the Suez Canal to tankers, the price of Saudi Arabian Light rose to a then unprecedented height of $12.12 per barrel (compared to $32 for some OPEC spot transactions in the late 1970s).

Mideast producing countries briefly tasted wealth, so when the foreign-owned companies unilaterally cut prices drastically again in 1969-60 without consulting producer governments, the shock was rude.

Creation of OPEC

The offspring of this shock, fathered chiefly by two oil ministers, Abdallah Tariqi of Saudi Arabia and Perez Alfonso of Venezuela, was OPEC. It was conceived at the first Arab Petroleum Congress of April 1959 and born at a crisis meeting of Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and Kuwait in Baghdad in 1960.

Eventually, the five charter members were joined by Qatar, Libya, Indonesia, Abu Dhabi (now the United Arab Emirates), Algeria, Nigeria, Ecuador and Gabon.

To force prices up to fair levels, OPEC in the 1960s regulated production. Its members also sought equity participation for host governments in decisions regarding production, distribution, and pricing, first argued upon ARAMCO by Saudi Arabia in 1964. When a world sellers' market for oil appeared in 1971, OPEC members were able to elbow major companies, little by little, toward granting participation.

Revolutions in Iraq (1958), Algeria (1962), and Libya (1969) led those three Arab states to nationalize production and related operations like distribution and marketing. Gradually they gained full control of Western oil operations on their soil. Other OPEC members branched out into creating their own petrochemical, natural gas, and tanker industries.

By February 1973 a devaluing U.S. dollar led OPEC to begin drastic price hikes to protect members' income. Then, as U.S. import demand rose, the Arab oil embargo exploded upon the West, to support Egypt and Syria in their 1973 war against Israel.

World oil prices quadrupled, and supplies drastically tightened in the 1973-74 period, bringing world recession. Despite such Western countermeasures as formation of the International Energy Agency to share scarce supplies, a series of OPEC conferences - not without inter-OPEC wrangling - moved prices upward again and again.

True, the economic interdependence of the world has mitigated this situation somewhat. Oil giants like Saudi Arabia depend on the West for everything from wheat to weapons, including the Western technology they need if they are to end this dependence.

Nonetheless, by 1979, Nigeria, black Africa's major OPEC member, had begun to exert pressure on the U.S. to favor the political solution it sought in Rhodesia, and Arab and Muslim OPEC members and their allies were influencing policies of West Europe and Japan to favor the Arab and Palestinian cause in the Middle East.

By combining skillful use of the oil weapon with extreme political acumen, President Sadat broke the stalemate with Israel in 1973. First, with Syria, he waged limited war against Israel. Then with Syria, he persuaded Jimmy Carter, Sadat pursued a policy that they both termed "dangling peace" - leading to the Egypt-Israel peace treaty signed in Washington, March 26, 1979, the first which an Arab government ever signed with the Jewish state.

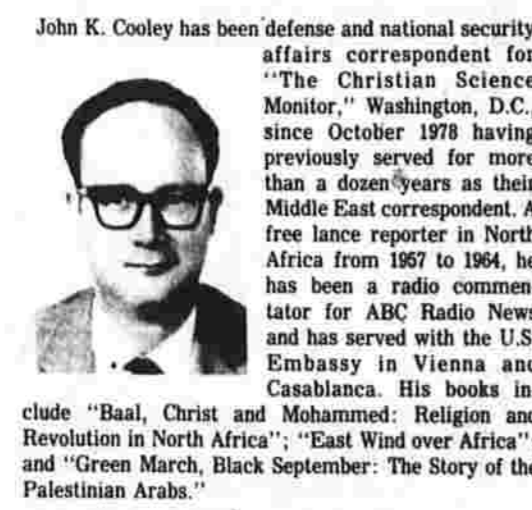

Today, the U.S. struggles toward a coherent energy policy. President Carter since 1977 has been seeking to allow U.S.-produced energy to rise toward world price levels, thus encouraging U.S. domestic production while the North Sea, Alaska, and other non-OPEC sources are developed, and research goes forward on alternatives. Meanwhile, OPEC's constantly growing leverage faces the U.S. with hard choices. Should it consider setting oilfields or breaking blockades by use of military force? Or should it consider reshaping U.S. foreign policy to please OPEC members?

Or, finally, should the U.S. government try to curb, through legislation and mass education, America's insatiable appetite for OPEC oil? These questions are certain to engage the attention of Americans well into the 1980s and beyond.

Answers

- (1) A group of seven big Western oil firms that dominated the world oil market from the 1920s to 1950s. (2) A law giving the government of an oil-producing country 50 percent of the oil companies' profits. (3) To support Egypt and Syria in their war against Israel. (4) Using military force to seize oil fields and break blockades, reshaping foreign policy to please OPEC, curbing our energy appetites to become energy independent.

offered me valentines. As the new minister, Mr. Taylor, was there, I was tempted to tell the anecdote about the absent-minded moderator.

"It was a small church in Vermont whose elderly minister had at long last submitted his resignation. The search committee very quickly came up with a candidate for they had been hoping and anticipating the change for a long time. Finally the day arrived for the new minister to be presented to the congregation. There was one hitch - the present pastor was still around. The deacons finally decided to hold a reception for both."

The moderator knew how forgetful he was - so he carefully wrote the details of his responsibility on a card and placed it in a ready place in his breast pocket. He opened the meeting by saying, "This is a joyous occasion when we can thank our beloved pastor who has served us so long and so well whose name has become a byword in our village -"

In the evenings Mr. Clough would gather his gangs of workmen and preach to them the Gospel, then encourage the converts who accepted it to go and tell the news to others.

Bolton First Selectman Henry Ryba said he was going to put a lock on the thermostat in his house because it should be set at 50 degrees and no higher. For some reason he thinks the thermostat is turned higher when he's not home. Ryba said, "The house feels very warm when I get home from work each day," but everybody insists "I didn't touch the thermostat."

Short dresses and mini skirts, a nuclear war, the end of disco music and revival of rock, more

Bike track discussion frustrates its proponent

Kevin Foley
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — "I thought all of the questions had been answered," Robert Kiernan said. "If someone on the Rec Commission doesn't want a bike-motocross track, I just wish they'd tell me. I've worked a lot of hours on it."

So saying, Kiernan vented his frustration at the Park and Recreation Advisory Committee. The commission met in a special session Thursday night to discuss a bicycle-motocross track proposed by Kiernan.

Kiernan is the owner of the Manchester Cycle Shop and a representative of the Bicycle Motocross Association. The track, he has proposed to the Board of Directors and Town Manager Robert Weiss would be used by boys and girls in various age groups Monday evenings in a season running from the end of April until August.

Director Mel Siebold. He says he has talked to the recreation director in Wilton, where just such a bicycle-motocross track exists.

"He thinks the program there is a good one," Siebold said. "It is on state property, but private interested parties maintain the track and supervise the races."

Siebold, who supports the proposed track, went on to say that he thought the Recreation Advisory Committee was "trying to do too much."

Divestiture order stands

HARTFORD (UPI) — State regulators Friday refused to alter their order forcing the Times Mirror Co. to divest itself of Connecticut's largest newspaper or two cable television outlets.

A three-member panel of the Division of Public Utility Control signed the decision, clearing the way for a possible court challenge. Under the Uniform Administrative Procedures Act a decision can be taken to court once it is signed.

Corporate officials said during hearings last year they would appeal if told they couldn't keep the Hartford Courant and the cable firms in the Hartford and Meriden areas.

In deliberations in January, the DPUC panel ruled Times Mirror an "unstable owner" of the cable franchises, saying the cross ownership of the newspaper could give the firm unfair influence in the affected news market.

When Times Mirror bought the cable firms, it said it was not considering further acquisitions of media in Connecticut.

Under the order, the giant conglomerate must divest itself of either the newspaper or the cable franchises by April 1, 1981.

The panel also said it felt Times Mirror might stifle growth of the cable franchises for fear they would compete with the Courant, which Times Mirror bought last year for $105.5 million.

In the latest ruling, the commissioners said "The Authority understands the complex proceedings which Times Mirror must undertake in order to comply with this order. The Authority believes the Date of April 1, 1981 or the franchises will be revoked at that date."

The decision came in response to a Times Mirror claim that the DPUC didn't have the authority to revoke the franchises if it didn't divest itself of them by that date.

The commissioners also said that "any plan by Times Mirror to dispose of, or otherwise alter the relationship of Times Mirror (the cable franchises) will require approval of the Authority and will be considered in a separate proceeding."

Blacks back imbalance bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — Black state lawmakers Friday agreed to seek legislative approval of Connecticut's racial imbalance law and defeat the controversial welfare proposal.

The Legislative Black Caucus also voted to support a bill to provide a 10 percent cost of living increase to welfare recipients and a measure that would make cross burnings or any other religious symbol destruction a crime.

Rep. Maurice B. Mosley, D-Waterbury, chairman of the caucus, said that Rep. Thurman Milner, D-Hartford, who had resigned from the group last week, agreed to return to the caucus.

Milner had quit because, he said, the caucus had not put up a stronger effort to oust Rep. Russell Reynolds, D-West Haven, from the House for the remainder of the session.

Milner's efforts to oust Reynolds failed but the House, in an unprecedented move last month, voted to censure the former Roman Catholic priest after he admitted writing a racial slur.

Reynolds, in response to a United Press International legislative poll, wrote that taxes should not be raised and instead, "put the niggers back to work."

Mosley said the caucus will fight to kill a proposal that would require able bodied welfare recipients to hold down jobs.

At the same time, the caucus will make a strong effort to raise Aid to Families of Dependent Children payments by 10 percent.

Mosley said the attempt by some lawmakers to link the welfare plan with the AFDC proposal will be "fought to the end."

Sen. Sanford Clout, D-Hartford, said the welfare proposal was "racist" and should be rejected as a degrading form of servitude.

A resolution approving regulations to implement the state's 10 year old racial imbalance law was passed by the Senate, 27-9, on Wednesday and now goes to the House where it faces tough going.

Jobless rate down in state

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's unemployment rolls edged slightly downward during the last two weeks of February, due mainly to a decrease in seasonal closings, the State Labor Department said Friday.

The department said the number of workers collecting benefits dipped to a weekly average of 44,121 for the 2 week period ending March 1. That compared with a weekly average of 44,360 in mid-February.

The number of workers filing for benefits as a result of temporary and seasonal closings was down from a weekly average of 654 in mid-February to 843 for the latest period, a spokesman said.

The figures put the state's insured unemployment rate — those workers eligible for benefits — at 2.7 percent which compared to 2.8 percent for the same period last year.

The insured rate is included in the state's overall unemployment rate which was estimated at 4.8 percent. Declines in the number of claims during the latest period were reported at 11 Labor Department offices.

Man charged at cafe
MANCHESTER — Marshall H. Meyers, 30, of 8 Quarry Road, Bolton, was charged with breach of peace Thursday at the Hartford Road Cafe, police said. Meyers was released on $100 bond.

Rockville man charged in church fire probe

VERNON — A young Rockville man has been arrested in connection with the major fire last August at the Union Congregational Church. Vernon Police said Lonnie D. Keniston, 18, of 74 Union St., was taken into custody Friday at 12:30 p.m. on a Superior Court warrant.

Keniston was charged with second-degree arson and third-degree burglary, police said. He was being held on a $10,000 bond and was scheduled for arraignment Monday in Superior Court.

Police said the arrest concluded a lengthy investigation, but they would not release any details on the case.

The early morning fire on Aug. 30, 1979, destroyed the church kitchen and damaged the adjoining social room. Other areas of the building sustained smoke and water damage.

Mangiate! Mangiate!

Now that's Italian

By BETTY RYDER
Family Editor

"H'mmm, it sure smells good," is the comment usually heard when people visit Pasta Italiana Ltd., the home of fresh pasta, at 188 W. Middle Turnpike, Manchester.

Opened in December 1978 by Roger and Marcia Negro and Dominic and Carla Squatrito, all of Manchester, the business has continued to grow. "I had always been looking for a business to go into," Negro said. "We got talking about the idea when we heard of some pasta machines which were for sale and decided to give it a try."

Since opening, Pasta Italiana, Ltd., has produced 42,746 dozen ravioli; 36,352 pieces of manicotti; 8,000 gallons of meat sauce; 2,500 pounds of lasagna; and more than 5,000 pounds of egg pasta.

Roger and Carla, who are the proprietors of the store, are very particular with the ingredients used in their products.

"We use no additives, no frozen eggs, and fresh vegetables," Carla said.

So emphatic are they that their products be of the highest quality, they sent pasta samples to the Food Research Laboratory in Boston, Mass., for evaluation. "It proved that the old belief that pasta is fattening, is not entirely true. The report from FRL said that 4 ounces of our pasta equalled 1 gram of fat and we use also very little salt," Carla said.

"We use only Durham flour, not the regular cake flour. Durham is from the heart of the wheat and many firms cannot obtain it since it can only be purchased in large quantities. We use more than 2,000 pounds of flour a month and make about 100 pounds of pasta.

"Our pasta may be frozen as we use very little water, mostly eggs. It can also be refrozen without affecting the taste or texture of the pasta. Even frozen, it only takes 2 to 3 minutes to cook," she said.

The Manchester area is not the only place where people are enjoying their fresh egg pasta. "Our products have been to Italy, Montreal, Canada, Hawaii, Ohio (on a regular basis), California, Vermont, North Carolina, Florida, New York, Washington, D.C., and Maine," Negro said.

"We even have received letters from out of state with checks requesting that we apply the check to whatever merchandise it will buy and deliver same to an aunt, cousin or friend living in Manchester as a gift. We also have several local businesses who ask us for gift packages for their customers," he said.

Helping out at the retail store, which sells food prepared and frozen to be taken home to be cooked, are Teresa Negro, Roger's mother, and Bertha Zaccardelli.

"We keep things pretty well on schedule," Carla said. "One day we make manicotti, the next ravioli, and later in the week we may replenish our meat sauce supply or make meatballs."

Among the items available are fresh egg pasta, egg pasta with spinach, casseroles (meatballs in sauce), pasta saucers (plain, meat or mushroom), minestrone soup, cavatelli, tortellini, lasagna, angel wings, cannoli and panettone.

Other assorted Italian specialties include Ferragina chocolates, cookies, bread, express coffee, grated cheeses, hot and sweet peppers and olives.

Moving cancels program

By WALLY FORTIN
Hi folks! Well, we started moving this past Monday but ran into a slight snag which delayed some of the work.

However, I'm sorry to say but we are going to have to cancel our programs for all this coming week.

The reason is that it took all week just to get moved in and now we must place all the furniture and equipment in their proper place and really need the time to do it right.

We have some exceptions to closing, and that is we will have our bus going for shopping on Tuesday morning and we will also have our income tax men available and on duty Tuesday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Our Variety Show rehearsal is scheduled at our new center this Sunday starting at 5 p.m. We remind all participants to bring soft soled shoes to wear during rehearsal.

We wish to extend our sincere condolences to the family of the late Dorothy Duggan and her family whose husband, Robert, passed away this past week. Also to the family of John Hallgren who passed away this past Monday.

By the way once we get back into real action our bus will continue the same route.

Even though we are moving and are not running our program, our office will be open for business as usual and we remind you all that we are selling tickets for our St. Patrick's dance scheduled March 20.

We will ask you folks planning on dancing to please bring with you a pair of soft soled shoes to help us keep our main floor looking as nice as it is now.

Also we still have a few seats left on the second bus for our Boston Flower Show and we expect to leave from our new center on March 19 at 8 a.m.

We had a nice turnout for last Friday's set back games with the following winners: Archie Houglighting, 137; Bill Stone, 134; Amelia Anastasia, 132; Grace Windsor, 130; Clarence Duhing, 12; Ann Thompson, 125; Josephine Schuett, 123; Mina Reuther, 122; Arthur Bouffard, 121; Catherine Capuchin, 121; Floyd Post, 121.

Next Saturday's column should bring the good news that we'll be back in business again with all our programs getting back into the swing again.

As the weather starts to warm up, you can look forward to seeing new programs being added.

By the way, now that we're in our new center, we are putting out a call for the need of some nice furniture for some of our rooms and also ask you to check out your cellar and garage to see if you may have some carpentry machines and equipment that you will no longer be using. Our hobby shop sure could use them.

If you have any of the above, just call our office and we'll be happy to send a few people out to look them over.

Venora hot streak paces East

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Staff Writer
Led by Bob Venora offensively and Tommy Fortin defensively, East Catholic made the most of its second chance by soundly whipping Bristol Eastern, 65-46, in a State Basketball Tournament Class 1 quarterfinal bout last night at Hall High in West Hartford.

"He saved it for tonight," mused Eagle Coach Jim Penders, recalling the nightmarish outing against Crosby.
Venora, 6-foot-3 senior captain, was an unbelievable—but true—15-for-15 from the field and 5-for-8 from the foul line in equalling his season-high 35 points. He also latched onto 8 rebounds as East held a wide margin in that department, 25-10.
"Bobbin let rebounded," he was back to himself tonight," marveled Penders. "Bobby was simply incredible. That has to be one of the best tournament performances for us ever. It was a great team effort. I guess we have a jammed thumb believe it or not. He won't admit it but..."

Fortin, 6-foot-2 senior forward, was installed in the middle of the back of East's 2-3 zone and helped shut down the Lancers inside. "What a job he (Fortin) did." Penders first remarked. "No question he solidified the middle of the defense. I don't know how many steals and deflections he had but it was a great effort."
Eastern had a 12-10 lead after one quarter with Jim Bates tossing in 18 markers for the Lancers.
It was deadlocked at 14-14 early in the second stanza where the Eagles ripped off 8 unanswered markers, 5 by Venora who was 9-for-9 from the floor in the opening 16 minutes, to take control.

East led at the half, 31-24. Fortin, working awfully hard and cleaning the floor with his uniform, had three steals in the third stanza as East moved to a 43-32 spread going into the last canto.
Bates in the third stanza with his 17th point became the all-time leading scorer in Bristol history. He finished with 21 markers and 1,561 points for his career. The old city mark was set by Mark Noon of St. Paul.

The Lancers tried to pressure East fulcrum in the final period but the Eagles broke it, and converted at the free-throw line.

other end. After facing Sacred Heart and Crosby's quickness, Eastern's pressure was easy, Penders agreed.
Brian Calligan had four quick baskets early in the fourth quarter to help East. "They (Eastern) went man at us and that's when Brian excels," Penders explained. "He has the quickness. We spread them out and went backdoor."
Bates was the lone Lancer in twin digits and the key was forcing him to work hard all evening. "Bates really had to work hard. We didn't run any Chinese defenses on him. We were talking, communicating on defense and knew where he was," Penders stated. "We took them out of their rhythm."
Bobby Cox, the Braves' manager, doesn't go along with Burroughs' assessment. Not completely.

Herald Angle

By Earl Yost
Sports Editor
"Usually I'm the oldest player in the tournament," 34-year-old Tom Gorman noted during the Aetna World Cup play this weekend at the Hartford Civic Center, "but with this gang, I'm the youngest."
And he was right, playing with United States teammates Charlie Paster (58), Marty Rissler (38), Dennis Halston (37), and Jim Osborne (35).
The old gaffer with Australia are Rahn Newcomb (41), John Newsome (35), Fred Stolle (41), Ken Rosewall (34) and Roy Emerson (43).
Playing being restricted to 35 and over, Gorman just made it as having passed his 34th birthday he became eligible.

Balanced Iona topples Cross

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—Sharpshooting senior guards Glenn Vickers and Kevin Hamilton combined for 41 points to lead a balanced scoring attack Friday, helping Iona to an 84-78 victory over Holy Cross in the first game of an NCAA round doubleheader.
Marquette met Villanova in the nightcap.
The victory was Iona's 17th straight and topped its season record to 29-4, the most victories in the history of Iona. Iona meets ninth-ranked Georgetown in the second round Sunday.
Holy Cross, the ECAC North champion, finished its season at 19-11.

Nine in row for Celtics

BOSTON (UPI)—Larry Bird and Cedric Maxwell combined for 47 points Friday night to lead the Boston Celtics to a 111-102 win over the Philadelphia 76ers.
It was the season-high ninth straight win for the Celtics, while the loss broke a six-game Philadelphia win streak.
The Celtics opened a 21-16 bulge at the end of the quarter as they closed the period with a 16-2 shut. Rick Robey led all scorers in the period with eight of his 18, and Bird chipped in with six of his 27.
With the game tied 36-36 with 8:32 left in the half, Boston ran off a 13-2 spurt giving them a 39-28 lead which they never relinquished.
Maxwell paced the Celtics to a 47-24 halftime lead with six of his 20 points, and Julius Erving led the Sixers with eight of his game-high 35 in the period.
The Celtics opened a 63-40 lead midway through the third period as Robert and Bird contributed six points apiece in a 16-4 Boston run, but the Sixers came back with a 14-9 run of their own to draw 66-66.
Erving paced the Philadelphia attack with 14 points in the quarter and Lionel Hollins added eight of his 14 points, but Boston still led after three quarters, 72-58.
The fourth quarter opened as a shoot-out between Bird and Erving, but Bird scored Boston's first 10 in the period, while Erving scored 10 of the Sixers first 12. But Boston still led 82-70, and continued pulled ahead until the final buzzer.

Speed big asset pro star says

"Speed is the biggest asset in tennis," Gorman reported after he whipped Rosewall, taking the decision in the third and deciding set on Thursday night's opening program.
The handsome Gorman will be back Sunday afternoon in the featured singles match against Newcombe.
"The top guys today are faster than ever."
"He Nastase and Laver, during their prime years, were as fast as any player in the game today."
"You have to have desire to continue playing and you must discipline yourself to stay in great shape. You've got to have quickness and speed."
"I practice more now than ever. If you lay off as long as two weeks, you lose too much," Gorman added.

Golf now fun for Mike Hill

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (UPI)—After 12 often-grim years on the PGA Tour, Mike Hill decided he was going to have fun and Friday shot a 5-under-par 67 for a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark in the $300,000 Jackie Gleason Invitational Golf Classic.
Hill, who says his philosophy now is that if he hits a bad shot he will no longer let it upset him, had a two-round total of 8-under-par 156. In second place at 11 under was first-round leader Danny Edwards, who followed his opening 66 with a 71 Friday.
In a three-way tie for third at 138 were Johnny Miller, apparently making a comeback of his own, Bob Murphy, a winner here in 1975, and Rick Colbert, a former PGA tour member. Murphy had a 71 and Simmons a 72.

Argentina leading U.S. in Davis Cup

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—Argentina took a 1-0 lead in the American zone finals of the Davis Cup of tennis Friday with Argentina's Jose Luis Clerc leading U.S. star John McEnroe two sets to one in a second match called due to darkness.
Guillermo Vilas, Argentina's top-ranked player, gave Argentina the lead on the first day of the three-day zone finals with a long and drawn-out win over Brian Gottfried of the United States. Vilas won, 7-5, 6-4 and 6-3.
But the surprise was Clerc, who at the end of the day had gone very close to giving McEnroe. He defeated the American in two of his three matches, beating Argentina's 5-0 in Washington, D.C., in 1971 and 4-1 in Memphis, Tenn., in 1979.

Hard work

"I think more about keeping in top condition today than ever before. When I was younger, it just came naturally. Now I have to work hard at it to stay sharp."
Keys in his opening win were a strong, hard serve and ability to outrun his older foe at crucial times.
"Bjorn Borg practices harder than any player in the game today, just as Borg," Gorman said back. "He's at the same level now that Laver once

Penalty minutes

Two more minutes in penalties and Dave Keon of the Hartford Whalers will match his career high for a single season. The veteran center has picked up 10 minutes this season. He had 12 minutes during the 1969-70 season while with Toronto. The Springfield Indians will play a "home" game Sunday, March 30 in Hartford against Adirondack in the American Hockey League. Tom Webster is a playing coach with the Red Wings. The Indians are on a shoot-out between Bird and Erving, but Bird scored Boston's first 10 in the period, while Erving scored 10 of the Sixers first 12. But Boston still led 82-70, and continued pulled ahead until the final buzzer.

Three-way tie

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Louise Bruce bridled the final three holes Friday to move into a three-way tie with JoAnne Carner and Debbie Massey at 3-under-par 69 following the opening round of the $125,000 LPGA Classic at the Rancho Park golf course.
Next at 139 were Lee Trevino (72), Dave Eichelberger (68), Larry Ziegler (69), Doug Tewell (68) and Morris Hatakeya (66).
Hill, who has won since the 1977 Ono Kings Island Open and finished 102nd on the money list with $38,077 last year, sank long putts of 80 and 25 feet on his way to his 67 over the par 71, 7,128-yard Invitational course.
He wound up with a steady round of five birdies and no bogeys to put him in contention at the midway point of a tournament for the first time since he won three years ago.
"Obviously I played pretty good. I putted good. I played good, the wind blew and I'm glad I've over," said the

Sutton out $500 daily

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Los Angeles pitcher Don Sutton, absent from the Dodgers' spring training camp since it opened March 1, was assessed a $500-per-day fine beginning Friday.
At the same time, Dodger officials expanded their efforts to trade the 35-year-old pitcher, who had a 12-15 record last season.
Sutton, the Dodger record-holder for career victories, strikeouts, shutouts and innings pitched, was going to be his day when he saved par out of a bunker on the first hole.
"There are certain holes that can set up your whole day, like No. 1. It's difficult to par out of the bunker and it makes you think it's your day," he said.
Hill said he started this year on the tour with an entirely new attitude.

Numbers game for R Sox

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI)—Boston Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer is already plying the numbers game at spring training—bit earlier than usual. But he's still not sure who he can count on to make the trip north.
Zimmer plans to carry three catchers, but there is no certainty one of them will be Carlton Fisk. Fisk, still bolstered by a sore him which rendered him virtually useless last year, threw lightly in practice, including a few gingerly tosses to second base.

Father time haunts Yanks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The New York Yankees are still throwing big money around but they may not be able to buy off Father Time.
After three years as kingspins of the American League, the Yankees were routed from the throne last season and banished to fourth place in the AL East.
"We used to be the best team money could buy," said outfielder Reggie Jackson, "but inflation hit us and we're no longer the best buy anymore."
The fall from grace was a serious blow to the Yankees' pride. Principal owner George Steinbrenner was so mortified that he had conducted a housecleaning designed to restore the team to prosperity.
Steinbrenner got himself a new manager, Dick Howser, and a new

Numbers game for R Sox

"It certainly is a long way to second base. I'm not going to let the numbers game fool me. My arm feels tight and a bit sore after all the batting practice I've taken for the last couple of days. But I couldn't do any of that this time last year—swinging the bat or having a throw reach second base."
Zimmer said that unlike last year, an injured Fisk would not be carried on the active roster.
"But we've got to find out how he is to make up our minds if we need help there. The later we find out, the worse off we are. We can only see if he can make some improvement every day," Zimmer said.

Zimmer labeled the numbers game now as "in between." We don't know what we're going to do. If he (Fisk) doesn't show any progress in the next 10 days, we have to start thinking a different way. And if we trade for a catcher, the numbers would change for us."
The Red Sox also have a logjam in the infield, with five players competing for two backup slots. Jack Bronkhorst has the inside track on the substitute job at third base behind Butch Hobson. Rookie Glenn Hoffman and Stan Papi are fighting for the relief spot at second base.

general manager, Gene Michael, plus a handful of new players geared to fill specific holes.
On paper, the Yankees appear to be as deep as they were two years ago when they won their second of two consecutive world championships. But the calendar may prove to be their mortal enemy.
"I don't anticipate any problems," said Howser, a former Yankee coach who left his job as coach at Florida State University to assume the managerial reins. "We have a chance to win it and that's why I came back."
STRENGTHS—Powerful batting order overlaid with left-handed hitters geared to Yankee Stadium, two of best left-handers in baseball in Ron Guindry and Tommy John, outstanding bullpen corps of Rich Rodriguez, Ron Davis and Rudy May; deep bench; superb inner defense.

Joe's Grand guy in Maine shows way

SEATTLE (UPI)—Glenn Anderson, one of the standouts on Canada's Olympic hockey team, has agreed to play for the Seattle Breakers of the Western Hockey League for the remainder of the season, the club announced Thursday.
Anderson was offered an NHL contract by the Edmonton Oilers, but elected to play with Seattle to preserve his amateur status.

Burroughs not sure on future

By Milt Richman
"Ted said, 'Go out and do it, and you'll be here as long as I'm here.' Burroughs remembers that clearly but he doesn't talk about the $400,000 loan he received from Turner, a loan on which the Braves' owner has been paying most of the interest rate.
That's sort of forgotten by Burroughs, who came up with back trouble last season and slumped to 224 with only 47 RBI and 11 homers.
"They (the Braves) should've told me I was involved in a deal and let me give them a yes or no," he says. "But they announced the trade and then asked me. It's kind of like backing a guy into a corner. They don't understand a bad year. If a guy has a bad year and he's 28, get rid of him. I want to play but I have no idea what will happen now."
Jeff Burroughs is right when he says his problem has something to do with his salary. He said no to the one club that would take him. He shouldn't get that. Nor the possibility that anything can happen in baseball and he could work his way back into Atlanta's lineup yet."

Asked for trade

Seemingly forgotten by him also is how he became so unhappy with the Braves last season, he asked them to trade him several times.
The Braves tried during the winter but the only one who seemed to want Burroughs was Bud Corbett, owner of the Texas Rangers.
A trade finally was agreed upon during the December meetings in Toronto. Burroughs would go back to Texas along with Adrian Devine and Pepe Frias for Doyle Alexander and Larvell Blank.
"Except that Burroughs, in Hawaii at the time, says the Braves didn't ask his permission first before the trade was announced. The Braves say they tried to reach Burroughs but somehow the deal got on the wires beforehand."
Finally, Braves' General Manager John Mullen did contact Burroughs and he vetoed the deal. There was an unusual rider to the swap. If Burroughs failed to report to the Rangers, they agreed to pay the Braves $50,000. That was because Atlanta wanted still be stuck with Burroughs' contract.
Had he been notified beforehand, Burroughs says he might have agreed to go back to the Rangers.

Yanks tab Cerone starting catcher

From Rick Cerone's mouth to God's ears. That's what Dick Howser, the Yankees' new manager, is hoping Cerone came to the Yankees from the Blue Jays last November along with southpaw Tom Underwood and outfielder Ted Wilborn for first baseman Charlie Chambliss, pitcher Paul Mirabella and infielder Damaso Garcia, and if he can't cut it, Howser doesn't have too much to fall back on.
"There was only one Thurman Munson," goes on Cerone, whom the Yankees are relying on to be their No. 1 receiver. "There'll never be another. The only way I catch is like Rick Cerone. To be a good catcher, you have to be able to run, throw and call a ballgame. I think I'm able to do that. Coming over here to the Yankees will help me because of the pitching staff. That's what makes a

Complex groundbreaking culminates 10 years work

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

ANDOVER — Groundbreaking ceremonies for Hop River Homes, an elderly housing development on Riverside Drive in Andover, will be March 17 at 10 a.m. at the site.

Many people have been working since 1968 to plan a project for Andover.

The 24 one-bedroom units will be built by Keenan and Navaro of Dayville, Conn. Construction of the homes should take about one year.

The Andover Congregational Church Social Action Committee, recognizing the need for elderly housing in the area, began building for land in 1968.

The group settled on the present site only after it considered more than 30 sites and tent housing done on a number of them had negative results.

The New Samaritan Corp., an inter-faith housing organization, lent the group $6,000 "seed money" for expenses such as a land option, maps and preliminary architect's fees.

The group put an option on the site, located off Long Hill Road, interviewed several architects, hired one, had the required maps drawn up and made a preliminary application to the Farmers Home Administration. Help with the application was given by the New England Housing Corporation, a non-profit group.

After the land was bought a committee, part of the Andover Congregational Church Human Concerns Committee, was formed. It consists of church members and interested community residents.

During the next three years the group sought and received approval from the local Wetlands Commission, Planning and Zoning Commission, the state Department of Health, Army Corps of Engineers, Farmers Home Administration, Federal Rent Subsidy (for as many as 18 units) and Connecticut Housing Finance Authority, interim financing.

In June 1979 the committee received tentative approval for an $80,000 mortgage from the FMHA (the small in designates a rural community).

In July the land was purchased and a well dug with money loaned by the Savings Bank of Manchester. In August the project went to bid. Bids were opened in September but all were rejected because they were too high. The project went to bid again in November and although the bids were lower, they were still too high.

The committee negotiated with the lowest bidder to cut costs but still had to request an additional $100,000 from FMHA.

The units were turned down and told to "go back" to the mortgage.

Costs were cut by $30,000 after many hours of review by the architect, contractor and subcontractor.

The FMHA then gave approval for an additional $70,000, making the total mortgage $80,000.

Of the total $24 units, 18 will receive federal rent subsidy if necessary — those eligible will only pay 25 percent of their income for rent.

The remaining units will be rented at the fair market value based on a sliding scale depending on income.

The committee, in order to keep from making drastic cuts in the apartments themselves, agreed to pay for items not included in the mortgage.

The committee is responsible for raising $21,000 for the following: $2,275, sponsor's contribution (money the committee committed itself to raise on a local level); $4,200, filling in a pond (required by the Wetlands Commission); $8,000, money lent by New Samaritan that must be paid back; and $1,000 for furniture, fixtures and office equipment in the development's community room.

About $3,000 of this amount will be picked up by the mortgage.

The Andover Congregational Church Human Relations Committee voted to donate $3,633 to the Hop River Homes.

Other donations were received from The Andover Grange, $100; Women's Auxiliary of the Andover Volunteer Fire Department, $100; and $25 from the Marlborough Barn.

Advanced apple-parer

By MACKENDRICK
RUSS
This apple-parer, lately discovered in a barn north of Boston, is a Lockey & Howland type, patented in 1886. It is fairly well along in the evolution of this segment of Americana. Note that it is clamped onto a shelf — the earliest ones were simply fastened to a board and must have required several hands for their operation. The very first models did not have the automatic blade to follow the curve of the fruit. The cutting element was mounted on a swiveled arm that had to be guided while the apple, stuck onto a fork on a bar, was rotated against it.

The earliest patent for an apple-parer was granted in 1863 to a Moses Coakley of Pennsylvania. The first really practical one, if any were, was the Sargent and Foster which had a blade guided mechanically as the one shown here. The slubbery peeled apple had to be removed by hand.

There was an explosion of paring devices in the 1890s. (Up to the turn of the century some 150 patents had been taken.) To the design shown above there was added a programmed pusher-off lever. Then came what has been described as the pride of the trade, the Reading Hardware Company's contraption that would peel, push off and cut out the blossom end.

Up to that time the motive power was applied by twisting a crank. A new idea, coming from the New England Boy Co. "The Thompson Parer," would peel the apple, cut it into 6 pieces and kick off the core — all with one back and forth motion of a straight handle.

An article, practically a dissertation, with 21 pictures, appeared in the Oct. 14, 1979, "Antique Trader Magazine." The author, Marion L. Levy, describes the four basic varieties of the successful apple parers: the "turntable," the "quick return," "geared segment," and the "lathe." It may come as a surprise to hear that you can still buy a new apple-parer. It is called the White Mountain, a lathe type, selling for $17.50, up from its 1977 price of 40 cents. This one will give you a handful of naked apple rings, all ready for drying or instant apple-sauce.

Ms. Levy would welcome any inquiries about her hobby. Send a SASE to 16000 South Woodland Road, Cleveland, Ohio 44120.

Supermarket Shopper

Why Do Manufacturers Use So Many Different POPs?

By MARTIN SLOANE

Dear Supermarket Shopper—Why don't all manufacturers adopt a similar proof of purchase? Then we shoppers wouldn't have to go to all the inconvenience of saving hundreds of squashed boxes, packages and bags.

I have a large house with plenty of room, but it is still a messy job. I pity the shoppers who must keep their refrigerator, their apartments or mobile home—Mary S., Bayport, N.Y.

Dear Mary—Manufacturers use different proofs of purchase for several reasons:

Some say with a proof they have traditionally asked for, such as a box top.

A net-weight statement may be required because the refund offer is limited to a product of a specific size.

Some manufacturers want you to be aware of how nutritious their product is, so they ask you to cut out the nutrition-information panel.

Others want you to remember their trademark, so they ask you to cut out the picture of the baby from Charmin or the lumberjack from Brawny.

This hedgepodge of required proofs is the importance of foreign language and cross-cultural studies in the schools and their implications on international business and the job market.

The seminar was held at the North Haven facility of Pratt and Whitney Aircraft.

Shanahan is a social studies teacher at Bolton High School. Mrs. Winkler teaches Spanish at the school.

Both teachers will participate in a follow-up workshop.

Town Councilman Roy McLean will hold office hours from 10 a.m. to noon to meet the public in the Planning Office on the lower level of the building.

Information on current council agenda items such as property reevaluation, Coventry Lake Park, and the proposed sewer program will be available at the council chairman Robert Kozntz.

McLean invites residents to come in and discuss the annual town budget and the 1981 budget for the school and Central Office Committee and a request from Project RISE for storage space.

Board members will hear various committee reports, discuss a Grade 6 trip to New York and the Hurdsee Bridge.

Town hall busy today

COVENTRY — There will be more than the usual Saturday activity at the Town Hall today with three unrelated sessions being conducted by various town organizations.

Town Councilman Roy McLean will hold office hours from 10 a.m. to noon to meet the public in the Planning Office on the lower level of the building.

Information on current council agenda items such as property reevaluation, Coventry Lake Park, and the proposed sewer program will be available at the council chairman Robert Kozntz.

McLean invites residents to come in and discuss the annual town budget and the 1981 budget for the school and Central Office Committee and a request from Project RISE for storage space.

Board members will hear various committee reports, discuss a Grade 6 trip to New York and the Hurdsee Bridge.

Field specifications studied

BOLTON — The specifications for the soccer field at Bolton High School were discussed at length by the Public Building Commission recently.

Ronald Soares, commission chairman, said, "It will be a standard size soccer field prepared and drained so within a short time, even after an appreciable rain, the field should be dry."

The field specifications were drawn up by TMR Associates, landscape architects, from East Hartford.

Soares said the specifications should be ready to go out to bid after a final review by the commission members and architect Monday night.

When the bids are returned, the commission will request the necessary money from the town.

Board meeting

ANDOVER — The Andover Board of Education will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Andover Elementary School conference room.

The agenda includes an executive session for personnel appointment, a board member to the Massey Music Committee, discussion on the 1980-1981 budget for the school and Central Office Committee and a request from Project RISE for storage space.

Board members will hear various committee reports, discuss a Grade 6 trip to New York and the Hurdsee Bridge.

Supper honors founder

MANCHESTER — The second annual potluck supper for all Girl Scouts in the Robertson School area was held Feb. 28 at Robertson with 136 Girl Scouts and adults participating.

The supper is part of an ongoing cooperative activity among the five troops at Robertson.

Chosen as a theme this year was a daisy motif. Daisy was the nickname of the founder of Girl Scouting in this country, Juliette Gordon Low. The Scouts made "Daisy" placemats, napkin rings, centerpiece in a beautifully coordinated effort and tribute to their founder.

Brownies from Carol Colvin's Troop 821 and Judy White's Troop 608 sang a medley of songs.

The following Brownies provided entertainment under the leadership of Mrs. Colvin: Jessica Russell, Kathryn King, Tara Lyster, Clara Hulst, Amanda Nevin, Jessica Nevin, Jill White, and Karen White.

Also, Lisa Ambach, Jennifer Burbank, Jennifer Gilbert, Vicky Han, Robin Kearney, Pam Minella, Kelly Muir, Meagan Pillard, Laurie Smith, Schie Schuebs, Karyn Swanson, Kathy Tonic, Wendy Mitchell, and Leslie Smart.

A Court of Awards was held and Girl Scouts of Barbara Minella's Junior Troop 611 received badges for needlecraft, troop camper and my home. The girls receiving awards were Jill Boggini, Nancy Hulme, Ann Marie Kearney, Susan Swanson, Kelly Twible, Lisa Zimkiewicz, Carrie Heuser, Robin Minella, Patty Solo, Carolyn O'Neil, Denise Deschamps and Cindy Payson.

Junior Girl Scout Troop 601 also received badges for troop work. Valerie Colvin, Kim Martin, Marcia Zinkin, Kathy Tyler, Cindy Colvin, Karin Galligan, Colleen Dechery, Tammy Tracy, and Michelle Legget received badges for world games and troop camper.

Dianne Strommer's Cadette Troop 658 received badges for my government. The Cadettes are Kerrie Murphy, Chris Colvin, Theresa Landry, Debbie Poland, Lynn Allard, Lisa Yarnes, Sue Ambach, Kim Tracy, Cathy Warwick, Kathy Ambach, Chris Costello, and Kim Costello.

All girls received other badges that they had worked on individually.

master's Provisionals including the St. Louis Bears, Trans-Mississippi and Graf Zeppelin plate blocks. From Canada there will be two of the Seaway inverts (only 200 are in existence), and also two of the very rare 1851 Queen Victoria 12-pence black stamps.

The sale catalog, which is offered by the collectors in itself, will be for $5 with prices realized by the Galleries at 1120 E. 56th St., New York, NY 10022.

There'll be some changes. Members of the Manchester Philatelic Society and the Central Connecticut Coin Club should bear in mind that Mot's Shoprite will now close at 9 p.m. on their meeting nights. Quick dicking and decision-making will be the watchword.

The next meeting of the stamp club will be on Tuesday the 11th, Mot's Community Hall, 587 E. Middle Turnpike, 7 to 9 p.m.

Angels Disguised As Children

These little angels can sing, now that they are no longer ill or hungry. Others are still waiting.

Angels sing in the strangest places... in Ossagee, Bangor, Grayville and Dyce, and the angels are often disguised as children.

To thousands of these angels, the places are not strange — they are home, a place to laugh and play and sing. Unfortunately, for 350 million of the world's children, home can also mean hunger, malnutrition, disease and loneliness.

For some of these angels, love has changed their lives. Hunger to songs of confidence. You can bring a new song to a hungry child by becoming a child sponsor. Sponsorship can mean a new life of health and happiness for a child.

For a free booklet on how you can help the angels, write World Vision International, Box 6, Pasadena, Ca. 91109.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for 23 years, and have always thought you fair and intelligent but when you said that the parents who smoked marijuana in front of their four-year-old child were guilty of "child abuse," I couldn't believe my eyes!

DEAR ABBY: I did. Marijuana is no more "legal" in Alaska than it is in any other state of the United States. It is decriminalized under Statute No. 17.12.110(6) of the state of Alaska. No one is allowed to grow their own for consumption. I think you are guilty of robbing about please get the restrictions on.

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see your warning about angel dust. Everything you said about it was true. I make you a violent, and I really miss your head. I know, I was in high school, ready to graduate, when I smoked that dust. I didn't even know it. I smoked some pot and had a level with blue pot. I didn't get high, I just went crazy.

Optical Style Bar - "25 Years of Service"

We have created one of the most respected, dependable and most complete optical laboratories and visual care centers in Connecticut. For many years our motto was "If It's Made of Glass We'll Grind It." With the advent of plastic lenses it became necessary to amend our motto to include plastic. We fully intend to incorporate our laboratory to accommodate additional lens materials as they are developed. We stay on top of research and development in the field of visual care. We have patterns for over 3,000 different shapes of frames, plus over 1,500 eyeglass frames on display, hard and soft contact lenses, sunglasses galore, plus hearing aids. Optical Bar has two convenient locations to serve you: 763 Main Street and 191 Main Street, both in Manchester. Between the two stores, one store is always at your service six days a week.

SPORTS VIEW

Al Maguire loves attention

By JOAN CROSSBY

Al Maguire, the outspoken NCAA basketball sportscaster on NBC, enjoys calling the shots, even when they are about himself. "This is no con-job," he says. "I'm so bad, I'm good."

Maguire gets away with this statement. He loves being a sportscaster. Why? "It's flattering having smoke rings blown at you all the time. Every night is Saturday night," he says.

He knows the score from the inside out. Both he and his brother Dick were star basketball players for the New York Knickerbockers. Then he became an outspoken coach and now, for the past three years, NBC's basketball expert, along with Dick Enberg, Maguire calls Enberg his "security blanket."

When it comes to developing his own security, Maguire counts on his coaching skills. "I wouldn't want a steady diet of the job," he admits from his Wisconsin home. "I'm always very nervous at the top of the game, but once the game gets going, I become a coach and I relax."

His honesty wins him controversy. It also makes young coaches suffer. For that he is sorry. But he doesn't plan to temper his criticisms. "I can't stop, because if I stop I won't be me," he says.

For instance, he once said that coach Dean Smith of North Carolina "maybe is faking injuries to his players." Smith got upset, but with characteristic honesty Maguire says, "I realize that Smith wouldn't do that. I would though."

This is how Al did it — to become a sportscaster, that is. "The first year I was with NBC, they put me in the back room and I was always seen on the top of the TV screen in a circle. Then they moved me out front," he recalls humorously.

He says he thinks the college basketball season is a very exciting one. Comparing colleges to the pros he says, "Colleges are more spontaneous and their mistakes create the interest. Also, because there is only one game per year at each location, each game has the excitement of a Broadway opening."

The NCAA Tournament began on NBC on March 8, and Maguire thinks it "could be the biggest and truest championship in the United States. It's all a build-up to that last game and there is only one winner."

The Aldas Work As A Family

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD — It is touching to hear tales of the Barrymores (John, Lionel and Ethel). A gathering of the Fondas (Henry, daughter Jane and son Peter) is a sentimental sight. The same can be said for the Carradines (father John, and sons David and Keith) and the Van Patten (father Dick, sons Jimmy and Vincent). Now we can include the Aldas (father Robert, sons Alan and Antony).

The patriarch is Robert Alda who, like it or not, will always be remembered for his portrayal of George Gershwin in the film, "Rhapsody In Blue," despite the fact that it was made nearly 40 years ago.

Robert Alda entered show business while he was studying for the medical profession; he decided it was easier to make money singing. He went all the way and became a Broadway musical comedy star.

He was brought to the West Coast specifically to star as Gershwin in the film about the American composer's life. It was such a strongly linked character, it created a major problem for Alda in what should have been his finest hour. Soon, it was impossible for him to get leading roles, and he was offered a string of B pictures.

He returned to New York and the stage, and regained his stature as a top star in "Guys and Dolls."

In recent years, he has appeared in theater, films — many in Italy — and last season he had one of the lead roles in NBC's ill-fated "Supertrain." He played the cross-country train's doctor.

Robert Alda would like to become involved in another series, although he feels he would not like to be the star; he's happy as the second banana. "The pressures aren't as great," he rationalizes, "when you play a supporting role as a regular."

He has adapted well to supporting roles. He recently collaborated with wife Flora on a book, which will be published in June by MacMillan, and directed. "It was such a joy," exclaimed Robert.

The Aldas, Alan, Antony and Robert appeared in a recent production of "M.A.S.H."

It was the first time he had appeared with both sons. "Alan and I were in five stage plays together (including "Luv" at the Bergen Mall Playhouse in New Jersey)," he recalls. "I also did a segment in the series a couple of years ago, playing the same character I'm playing this time — the civilian medical consultant who arrives at the unit's hospital to conduct refresher courses in the latest surgical methods. I'm sort of overbearing and insistent, and I get on their nerves."

In "M.A.S.H.," it all comes to a head when Hawkeye and the civilian doctor snipe at each other, and the young medic confronts them.

"Oh, I just loved that scene, listening to Antony tell off his old man and his older brother," Robert Alda says and laughs.

Proud papa sees a very strong physical resemblance and acting skill between both sons.

"They're both 6 feet, one-and-a-half, and slim — just like I used to be," Robert reflects, and smiles. "They both are leading men who can handle drama and comedy equally," he asserts.

"I remember when Alan was winning a lot of raves. They began to refer to him as the new Jack Lemmon. He certainly has made a wonderful career. In one week he won six awards, between the People's Choice and the Golden Globes.

"Antony looks so much like Alan — except that he has that continental look, as well as an American look. You can tell that Antony has a European background."

Robert was referring to his second wife, Flora, who was born in Italy. Believing that the Los Angeles smog was affecting her emphysema, she, Robert and young Antony moved to Rome for nearly 13 years, returning on occasion to the United States for extended periods. Then they resettled in the Pacific Palisades.

Antony actually began his professional career in the United States before his parents moved to Rome. He won a co-starring role in a pilot for the television version of "Three Coins In The Fountain." The series was never aired.

Like his half-brother before him, Antony pursued acting in high school. Back in the states, history repeated itself; Robert performed with Antony on stage, just as he had done with Alan 20 years earlier.

Robert recalls Alan's show business debut. "He wrote this musical in high school and he starred in it. I was starring on Broadway at the time, in "Guys and Dolls," so I could go to the networks and get them to send scenery over to the school for the play."

In recent years, Robert and Antony have co-starred in an annual summer run of "Later Leonardo." "We polish it up each year, and perhaps we'll get it to Broadway or Off-Broadway," Robert speculates. "It's a great role for Antony. He plays Leonardo DaVinci projected into the present."

Now that his immediate family is settled in their careers, Robert Alda has two more "family" goals. Two of Alan's three daughters are interested in acting.

"Someday, I'd love to perform with my two sons and my granddaughters," Robert says longingly.

TV DIALOGUE

TV COUP — I'm always on the lookout for Bruce Boxleitner, whom I first noticed on "How the West Was Won" and recently saw in "Wild Times." I hate to be greedy, but does he have anything else coming up? — Susan Castellari, Canton, Ohio.

There are a couple of Boxleitner goodies on the menu for those of you who can't seem to get your fill. "The Baltimore Bullet," a theatrical release should be coming out soon. And Bruce has just won the much-coveted James Dean role in the TV remake of John Steinbeck's "East Of Eden," also starring Timothy Bottoms and Jane Seymour.

EARLY OATER — I recently saw a movie on TV called "Journey to Shiloh," about a group of young Texans who go off to fight for the Confederacy. I thought James Caan was one of the soldiers, and I even thought I spotted Harrison Ford from "Star Wars." Am I right, and who were the others? — Karen Pelissier, Deming, N.M.

Although neither actor would probably list that lackadaisical Civil War adventure as their favorite film, both James Caan and Harrison Ford co-starred along with Michael Sarrazin, Jan Michael Vincent, Don Stroud, Paul Peterson and Michael Burns in the 1968 feature.

NO CANDY — Who was the lady that did Polaroid commercials with Jim Garner? I am positive it is Candice Bergman, but I have been told I'm wrong. I am depending upon you to settle my mind. If it isn't Candice at least tell me she resembles her. — Vivian Padgett, Waycross, Ga.

The actress who has gotten a new lease on her career from those commercials is Mariette Hartley, who does bear something of a resemblance to Candy Bergen. Bergen, by the way, pitched Polaroid in her own ads, which might have added to your confusion.

TWO TINAS — I would like to know if Tina Louise is Frank Sinatra's daughter. I am under the impression that she is, but people that I've talked to say she isn't. I know it's silly, but I would die to know. — Mary Albino, Waterbury, Conn.

Everything in the world of trivia is just a little silly, so don't fret. Tina Louise is not, however, Ol' Blue Eyes's little Tina. Sinatra does have a daughter Tina.

GOOD MORNING — I am an avid watcher of "Good Morning America," but I don't know where to write to GMA. How can I get the address? — Pamela Hamsher, Corvallis, Ore.

You can get the address just for the asking. Write the entire cast and crew at "Good Morning America," One Lincoln Plaza, New York, NY 10023.
