Final repair phase scheduled

MANCHESTER — The last phase of a three-year sidewalk construction plan will begin in a few weeks, Jay Giles, public works director, said. The town has about $250,000 remaining of a $770,000 grant from the federal Economic Development Administration for sidewalk construction. The funds will be used for sidewalks on the east side of Ferguson Road, and the north side of Garth Road. The contractor, Aleria and Son, notified Giles that work would be started soon. Giles noted that with curbs and gutters sidewalks cost about $20 a

Drive slated

BOLTON — The annual Red Cross fund drive in Bolton is scheduled for Sunday afternoon with a townwide, door-to-door canvass planned. Because the Bolton community is not included as a member in the area United Way campaign, this annual drive is the only way by which the Bolton Red Cross raises its funds. The canvassers Sunday will be Girl Scouts from the Cadette and Senior Scout Troops, participating as part of their service projects. They will carry Red Cross literature and identification.

Town-district should talk

The town is stuck with a fire station in a district it can't serve and the Eighth District has a district to serve with no fire station.

are rejected. Rather than seeking to mend the wounds the long court battle over Buckland fire service has caused, Penny seems determined to continue an adversary relationship with the district.

It seems clear the Eighth District and its fire department is here until residents of the district decide otherwise. Penny will accomplish nothing by his insistence there will be no dialogue.

It is difficult to be a statesman, especially when doing so may mean compromising when one has particularly strong feelings on an issue.

When a battle is lost in the courts, there is little recourse but to abide by the decision. There is no shame in fighting the good fight and adhering to one's arguments until those arguments are proven wrong.

To continue a lost battle is a waste of time and is tantamount to tilting at windmills. We think it is time to put past differences aside and to begin a dialogue that could result in mutual advantage to the Town and the Eighth District.

Mayor Penny should reconsider his opposition to re-establishing the Town-District Liaison Committee. In addition to possibly finding a way to rid the town of an unneeded fire station, the dialogue will prove to be a first step toward improving relations between the town and the district at a time when mutual cooperation is to the advantage of all.

Thoughts

Once we are invited to become a guest of the Holy, it can change our way of thinking. There's a story about St. Anthony who, when he was alone in the desert, grew to thinking that there could be no holier saint than he.

sandals. But, he said raising his head, "I have mended each pair as though they belonged to my Lord and Savior."

In the presence of the Holy, one of the tendencies of being a guest is that of humility, never to think more highly of ourselves than we ought.

Feeling a bit of a draft

For one-time pro's pro in the empire business, Britain is displaying an almost unseemly haste to get completely out of it.

In one of the most rapid voluntary transfers on colonial record, the crown's transitional administration in Rhodesia is turning over key powers to the newly elected black leadership of what is still to be proclaimed the independent nation of Zimbabwe.

That is a recognition that also appears to be gaining some ground. If ever so slightly, in Rhodesia-Zimbabwe's neighbor, the Republic of South Africa, the advent of black rule is an historic moment for the former. It could be even more so for the latter.

Back in 1960, former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan observed that "winds of change" were sweeping Africa, establishing himself not only as a phrasemaker but a prophet. He was referring to the irresistible pressures for black self-rule.

That wind has now swept to the borders of South Africa, the sole remaining political sovereignty in Africa and the world where a white minority governs an overwhelmingly nonwhite population.

South Africa, for all its intransigence to outside pressures for change in its apartheid ways, has not been blind to these developments. The present government, in a radical departure from Afrikaner precedent, is moving very cautiously if clumsily to expand participation of the non-white 80-plus percent of the peoples of the country in its affairs.

Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha is pressing constitutional reforms that would involve replacement of the present white-only national senate with a "president's council" proportionately representing whites, Asians and Coloreds. Still no blacks admitted, however, and minimal powers. But still something very new under the South African sun.

The plan is running into flak from both the Coloreds, descendants of the first European settlers and the Cape of Good Hope's indigenous tribes and still smarting from having the vote taken away from them three decades ago, and also from Afrikaner rightwingers, who view Botha's policies as a betrayal.

Under the circumstances, meaningful change is likely to be a long time yet in the coming. Even so, awareness that things are not as they were and that they inevitably are going to be even less so is penetrating even the hard heart of Afrikanerdom.

Earlier this year, Johannesburg's major department stores desegregated restaurants and now serve people of all races. The city is the stronghold of the Anglo-dominated business establishment, which takes a softer line on race. First-class hotels there and in a few other cities, categorized as "international," for some time have been exempt from racial restrictions. And blacks have long been able to shop in the department stores.

Still, the change has been effected with a minimum of fuss that would have been unlikely even a few years back. Economics are a major factor. Blacks now account for about 40 percent of retail sales in urban areas. They are also increasingly important to industrial development. As they provide the manpower for expanding manufacturing operations, they are rapidly expanding black purchasing power.

Washington merry-go-round

Pro-Arab, Anti-Israel trend rising in D.C.?

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON - President Carter's recent United Nations gaffe - first ordering a vote against Israel, then disavowing the vote - has been attributed to the ineptitude that has characterized his leadership.

But there may have been a deeper cause. Sources with access to the Oval Office have heard Carter privately express annoyance with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. They also say that advocates of the Arab cause surround the president.

Few people are closer to him than his sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, who guided him through the religious experience that transformed him into a born-again Christian. She has just returned from a tour of the Arab world, financed in part by an Arab-American businessman.

Stapleton came back persuaded that the Palestinians "have got to have recognition in some way." One of her traveling companions, Cliff Custer, also quoted her as being "confused" about Begin's statements. "She has a gut-level question mark about where he's coming from," said Custer.

Mrs. Stapleton was careful to disassociate her views from those of her brother. "My brother knows I travel and am interested in politics," she said. "Early in his presidency, he reminded me that I was not appointed as his private ambassador to the Arab world."

Nonetheless, she had private audiences with several Arab leaders who spoke to her about the Palestinian problem. She communicated their views to the president by overseas telephone. He responded to the call, she said, by reassuring her: "You really did the right thing, and I'll follow through right away."

After her trip, the president's sister dropped by the White House to brief both Carter and his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski. "I gave Jimmy my impressions and my opinions," she said.

Does she have an influence on the president? More in the psychological than in the political area, she said. But she added cautiously: "There would be an influence there, in the fact that he would be listening and weighing everything I say."

The president's brother Billy Carter, has developed a close relationship with the Libyans who are military anti-Israel. He has exchanged visits and accepted gifts from the Libyans. But it is unknown whether he has tried to impress Libyan views upon his brother. However, the president's former banker and budget director, Bert Lance, reportedly has discussed Arab issues in the Oval Office. It is also known that some Arab friends tried to help bail Lance out of a financial jam two years ago.

An Arab oil millionaire, Ghathir R. Pharaon, came to the rescue and purchased Lance's bank stock at a generous price. Pharaon happens to be the son of Saudi Arabia's top adviser on American affairs.

Within the White House, Carter is also surrounded by advisers who have been accused of having a pro-Arab bias.

The most important of these is Brzezinski, who as long ago as 1975 called for a U.S. guarantee of a Palestinian state. Brzezinski met and shook hands with Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat at a reception in Algiers last Oct. 31 - four days before Iranian militants, some of them trained by the PLO, seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. He reportedly told Saudi Arabian officials "we talk every day to members of the PLO."

Brzezinski's strategic view of the Middle East puts great emphasis on currying favor with the oil-rich Arab states, giving them every possible concession in return for a guaranteed oil supply and hoped-for military bases. He puts a correspondingly low value on the longstanding U.S. ties with Israel.

At the State Department, anti-Israel, pro-Arab elements appear to have gained the ascendancy. Although he was carefully exonerated by the White House explanation of the U.N. vote, Ambassador Donald McHenry's role in the fiasco did not surprise the Israelis, who have long regarded him as a staunch advocate of the Palestinians.

At Tuesday's CROCG Transportation Committee hearing, B.D. Pearl of Manchester said "should gasoline prices continue to rise, the only kind of vehicular transportation would be driven by horse, and that would be our horsepower."

"To remove this equipment and store it in anticipation of a building that would use this equipment, is a pipe dream" — Glastonbury Board of Finance member Samuel Deich commenting on the appropriation of $3,350 to save refrigeration equipment from a former local arena.

The Town Council meeting in Vernon was particularly hectic Monday night but Mayor Marie Herbst was happily surprised at the end of the meeting when she received an envelope, addressed to her, which contained a check for $1,000. It was the check for the $1,000 that she had given to the school for the purchase of a new copy machine.

One read, "I am a leprechaun. I can do good deeds and of course I can do bad deeds too."

It was recently reported to the East Hartford Board of Education that the state has asked school districts to make plans for special education students. In response, Board Secretary Dorothy Carey was prompted to say "we have not very free with its mandates but not with its money."

Referendum timetable set

By PATRICK REILLY
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Town officials were given the good news Tuesday there is still time for a June referendum on a proposed $2.4 million bond issue for school repairs.

Joseph Adinolfi of Hartford, the town's bonding attorney, informed the Internal Audit and Investigations Committee and school board officials that if the referendum were to be held the first Tuesday of June, the council would have until about April 25 to decide on what the referendum includes.

Adinolfi said the council has to take action at least 45 to 50 days before such a referendum.

The three projects that Genga has called "essential" include $1.35 million for roof work; $216,000 for window repair at two schools; and $850,000 for the replacement of the heating boilers at East Hartford High School.

Roofs would be repaired at Langford, Sunset Ridge, O'Connell, McCarlton, Barnes, Mayberry, Rous V. Irmason East Hartford, and Dr. Frederick Spaulding of Manchester said the new highway would be a non-Catholic and a non-Kacey member, how much it meant to him to be selected 27 years ago along with the late Will Clarke as the first honor and guest.

Kacey Sports Night was presented. Wigren, who turned out many outstanding athletes, like Fran Leary who was sitting down front with his father, 82-year-old Joseph Leary, is the son of a Methodist minister who was brought up in an Irish neighborhood in Lowell, Mass.

The honored guests over the past quarter century, whose background consisted of various participation in sports from sponsorship to playing and coaching, have come from all religious backgrounds.

Right at home
Barber Bill Pagani, who has been clipping hair for 55 years, proudly says he is as much at home behind the microphone as working on a customer.

The long-time sponsor of West Side athletic teams and the man who will have the West Side Oval dedicated in his name this spring, Pagani urged everyone "to keep your chin up and work hard to make Manchester a better city."

He added that "getting my hair cut at the West Side Oval is a great experience."

Still going strong
Hal Goodnooh, who admits to a young 77, has delivered his inspiring talks in ever state in the union but Alaska and Hawaii. His date book is the coming months lists few openings.

The Wellesley, Mass. resident spent 10 years with the Milwaukee Braves and with the New York Mets is out 150 nights a year on the chicken salad circuit (actually corned beef and cabbage Monday night). Goodnooh has been a good radio speaker at five Irish Nights. Goodnooh is a walking encyclopedia on sports.

Maravich pistol loaded for Celts
By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Hotter than a pistol was the man they tabbed the Pistol, skinny, gangling Pete Maravich last night at the Hartford Civic Center Coliseum when he tossed in 31 points — 21 in the first half — to lead Boston to a 114-102 defeat over Indiana in the NBA.

With Chris Ford and Cedric Maxwell sidelined because of a death in the family and an injury, Maravich was accorded his first starting assignment as a Celtic and he thrilled a sellout crowd of 15,882 with a variety of shots, mainly from the outside.

Citizens rap road vote

By MARTIN KEARNS

MANCHESTER — Citizens objected Tuesday night to the decision of the Transportation Committee of the Capitol Region Council of Governments to endorse the full development of this region's highways.

Development of the highway systems around Hartford was one of five proposals put before the Transportation Committee Monday and presented at a public hearing Tuesday in the Manchester Town Hall.

Manchester Mayor Stephen Penny, chairman of CROCG's Trans Plan, said the committee would have to incorporate bits and pieces of the five options.

The CROCG staff, while not endorsing any specific proposal, presented those options which the CROCG Policy Board has been considering as it prepares for a March 26 vote on determining the region's transit policy for the next 45 years.

The vote was delayed until the 26th after a February vote went against full development of the interstate 91 south of Hartford.

The five proposals are a mix of highway, bus and rail development. Included in what has been labeled the East Hartford connector between interstates 89 and 94 would be constructed in 1982 as part of the development will be built on a 12-acre parcel. Leslie said there was no review of the plan that and Murray was just in the commission of the proposal.

In 1979, the low-cost housing controversy continued. The proposal to build 70 units of low-income housing at Nye Road was strongly opposed by town residents and it was finally killed by the Town Plan and Zoning Commission Tuesday night by Commission Chairman T. James Murray.

The town has since left the federal Community Development Block Grant program, but the U.S. Department of Justice has sent attorneys to the town to review its record for providing low-cost housing.

Man sought in holdup
State and East Hartford police were called in and one of the men was found some time later by a police dog. The man, Russell Walton, 19, of West Hartford, was taken to police headquarters and charged with first-degree robbery and second-degree larceny. He is being held in lieu of a $100,000 cash bond.

The alleged offense occurred on Interstate 84, near Keeney Street, police said. Pathammavong allegedly stopped on the side of the highway and fired a shot from a pellet gun at a bird from about 10 feet. He was released on his promise to appear.

Called forth and center at the 26th Manchester Knights of Columbus Irish-Sports Night program Monday night at the Kacey Home were honored guests Bill Pagani and Hank McCann.

Both responded with eloquent acceptance and shared the speaking plaques with Pete Wigren, who was the first man honored in 1954, and the rapid talking Hal Goodnooh, who was better than ever.

"I said what I felt," Wigren said as he sat down as my left hand neighbor at the dinner table, and their was emotion in his voice. The standing ovation he received was apropos.

The retired Manchester High track coach and teacher, now a spry 86, moved the usual capacity crowd - a tribute to co-chairman Fran Mahoney and Joe McCarthy - as a non-Catholic and a non-Kacey member, how much it meant to him to be selected 27 years ago along with the late Will Clarke as the first honor and guest.

And to be remembered each year when the Kacey Sports Night was presented. Wigren, who turned out many outstanding athletes, like Fran Leary who was sitting down front with his father, 82-year-old Joseph Leary, is the son of a Methodist minister who was brought up in an Irish neighborhood in Lowell, Mass.

The honored guests over the past quarter century, whose background consisted of various participation in sports from sponsorship to playing and coaching, have come from all religious backgrounds.

Right at home
Barber Bill Pagani, who has been clipping hair for 55 years, proudly says he is as much at home behind the microphone as working on a customer.

The long-time sponsor of West Side athletic teams and the man who will have the West Side Oval dedicated in his name this spring, Pagani urged everyone "to keep your chin up and work hard to make Manchester a better city."

He added that "getting my hair cut at the West Side Oval is a great experience."

Still going strong
Hal Goodnooh, who admits to a young 77, has delivered his inspiring talks in ever state in the union but Alaska and Hawaii. His date book is the coming months lists few openings.

The Wellesley, Mass. resident spent 10 years with the Milwaukee Braves and with the New York Mets is out 150 nights a year on the chicken salad circuit (actually corned beef and cabbage Monday night). Goodnooh has been a good radio speaker at five Irish Nights. Goodnooh is a walking encyclopedia on sports.

Celts get lift from Pistol Pete

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Boston Celtics, who were doing pretty good anyway, got an unexpected lift Tuesday night from none other than Pistol Pete Maravich.

Maravich, loaned from the Utah Jazz this season, found his old shooting eye again at the expense of the Indiana Pacers, and the Celtics captured a 114-102 victory. The Pacers fired away for 21 points in the first half and finished with 31 in his first game since joining Boston. Maravich and Cedric Maxwell gave Maravich his chance.

"I didn't know I'd start until right before game time," Maravich said. "I was surprised. It doesn't matter to me whether I start or not, just as long as I contribute.

"This is a great organization. Players play with great pride. I could feel the tradition the moment I joined the team. We need every win so we can finish with the best record. You play 82 games for that one-game (home) advantage."

Boston's league-leading record is now 57-18, 2 1/2 games better than second-place Philadelphia.

"I'll be critical," Celtics Coach Bill Fitch said of Maravich. "He did a good job offensively and a good job defensively until late in the game. I guess I'll have to give him an A minus instead of an A."

Boston took a 69-49 halftime lead, but Mike Bantom's basket capped a 16-1 third-quarter surge that put Indiana ahead 71-70. The Pacers led 83-79 at the end of the quarter. Then, trailing 88-83, the Celtics rallied with a 13-4 burst to take the lead. Indiana never came closer than five points in the closing minutes.

Sports Parade Neatness big factor with Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Remember when they were first teaching you penmanship way back in elementary school, how they always kept telling you neatness counts? Well, Sparky Anderson is using the same idea with his Detroit Tigers.

Natural ability, he agrees with them, is the most essential asset, but their own individual image counts, too, he says.

During the nine years he managed Cincinnati, the Reds finished first in their division five times, won two of the four World Series they played in and invariably looked as if they had just stepped out of a bandbox.

With the Tigers, Anderson has relaxed his rules enough so they can wear moustaches if they like, but they have to be trimmed and neat. Detroit players also may go without ties, but here again, Anderson insists they not dress sloppily.

"You may say all that doesn't mean a whole lot once the game starts, but you'd be surprised how the other club watches how you come out on the field and how you act. They look at you, and if you're wearing your uniform the way you should be and everything else about you is right, they say to themselves or to each other, 'You know something, these bums aren't mean business.'"

Lance Parrish, the strapping 23-year-old catcher both the Tigers and Anderson are excited about, questioned him over how high the Detroit players could wear their stockings. Anderson wants all the Tigers to wear their uniform length.

"Parrish discussed it with me, giving me his side of it, and I told him, 'I appreciate what you say, but this is the way it's gonna be,'" says the Tigers' second year pitcher. "I'm not gonna have the stockings worn 25 different ways. To me, it just doesn't look right."

The Tigers are young and for the most part, limited in experience. The habits they form now will stay with them throughout their careers and no

Islanders shell Jim Craig

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was upset enough to throw himself in front of an admitted Olympic hero, but it probably would have gone right through his legs.

"I wasn't much of a goalie tonight," admitted Olympic hero Jim Craig, who suffered his first loss in three games as a pro Tuesday night when the New York Islanders shelled him from the game in the second period of a 6-3 victory over the Atlanta Flames.

"It was just one of those things," Craig said. "I didn't come up with anything to say to a writer, be a man about it and say it to his face. Don't be a baby about it."

Anderson admits he was shocked when the Reds let him go at the end of 1978 after he returned from Japan with the club. His ego was hurt, his morale was hurt, everything about him was hurt.

"The one thing my firing by the Reds did for me was make me a better manager," he says now. "The people with Detroit are gonna benefit from my being fired. I'll be a better manager than I ever was in my life."

"Certainly, I enjoy the prestige that comes with managing a major league club, the good feeling of so many people knowing who I am. But that doesn't help me in any real constructive way. The only thing that really helps me is being around baseball. Nothing beats that."

One of the big things Anderson learned during his years with the Reds is that a manager's players always watch him like hawks. If they ever catch him doing something wrong they remember it anytime he tries talking to them about something they may have not done right.

"I used to be 'Don't do it, do as I say,' but that doesn't go anymore," says Anderson. "Things are different now. They'll do as I tell 'em, and what that means is I have to make sure I keep my own house clean."

Sparky Anderson doesn't have any problem there.

"He has always been Mr. Clean, and still is, even if he has to work a little harder than before getting someone the snuff out from between his teeth. He's trying to cut down on cigarettes."

Imlach runs Maple Leafs

TORONTO (UPI) — George (Punch) Imlach squared high and low for the best man to coach the Toronto Maple Leafs, and found himself.

Imlach, general manager of the NHL team since the beginning of the season, appointed himself head coach Tuesday, and immediately warned his surprised players to "look out."

Asked how the Leafs reacted to his appointment, Imlach noted, "Well, they didn't have much chance to have any reaction."

"I had a film session with them today for the first time, and at the end of the session I just made the statement that the general manager, George Imlach, had appointed Punch Imlach as coach of the team, and I expected an all-out effort, and if he didn't get it, well, just look out."

Earl Anthony hot, assumes pin lead

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Earl Anthony, averaging 236 for eight games, moved from fourth place into a 46-pin lead Tuesday after two rounds of the $10,000 U.S. Open.

Anthony, of Dublin, Calif., began the round 38 pins behind Teata Semiz, after averaging 228 in his first series Monday at Bradley Bowl. In the second round Anthony fired games of 256, 244, 212, 228, 244, 238, 231 and 235 to bring his 16-game total to 3,717, overall a 65-year-old righthander from River Edge, N.J., added 1,004 to his first round series of 1,869 to total 2,873. Mike Aubly, of Indianapolis, has third with 3,669.

The 19-year-old Aubly leads the PBA in earnings with $32,370, while Anthony, the Long Island Open winner last week, is going for the first U.S. Open crown in his career which includes 32 PBA titles.

Gaop Troup, of Jacksonville, Fla., fired a 289 game to move to fourth with 3,516. Ron Lisher of Santa Rose, Calif., who stood second after the opening round is now fifth with 3,549.

"I can't be too concerned right now if somebody gets hot and goes past me," said Anthony. "At this stage my goal is to accumulate pins and stay in good position for the final five. Every pin counts."

The entire field will roll one more round of qualifying Wednesday before being cut to the top 80 for a fourth qualifying session Thursday afternoon. A cut to the top 24 for match play will take place after the fourth round and after 56 overall games the leading five bowlers advance to the nationally televised finals.

The tournament sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America has a first prize of $2,000.

Views On Dental Health

By JACK BYNES, D.M.D.
BADMOUTH OR SWEETMOUTH?

I know it's not a pleasant subject, but halitosis is a fact of human life. It is not a disease, but a sign that something is happening in your mouth. It might be as simple as the natural action of saliva on bits of food or as serious as tooth decay, gum disease or even the symptoms of a more serious disease.

Bits of food left in the mouth, by far, the most common cause. Food debris gets caught in any number of places in the mouth, mixes with bacteria and the product is bad breath.

Chronic tartaric, alcohol and tobacco, by their nature, can also cause foul breath. Cavities (which are food traps for dental health).

Reds-Dodgers in thriller

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers fought like it was the regular season and the National League West title was on the line.

The Reds' "A" team took a 4-2 lead in an exhibition game Tuesday before the Dodgers rallied in the ninth inning. But Cincinnati reliever Manny Sarmiento retired pinch-hitter Jack Perconte on a bases-loaded bouncer back to the mound with two out to preserve the Reds' victory.

Los Angeles had pulled to within one run when pinchhitter Pedro Guerrero drew a bases-loaded walk the second of the inning issued by Sarmiento.

Cincinnati scored a run in the second inning on a double by Ray Knight and a single by Sam Mejias. The Reds then took a 3-0 lead in the third when they bunched a walk with singles by Dave Collins, Dave Concepcion and Johnny Bench off Dodgers starter Jerry Reuss.

Rookie Charlie Leibrandt, bidding for a spot in the Reds' starting rotation, blanked the Dodgers over the first three innings, but in the fourth the Dodgers scored on a pair of singles and Rick Monday's sacrifice fly Monday homered off Mario Soto in the seventh for the Dodgers' second run.

The Reds' rookie outfielder, Duane Walker — a 303 hitter at Nashville last year — led off the fifth inning with a home run, his second of the spring, off veteran right-hander Don Sutton.

That proved to be the winning run

Council approves posts for two deputy chiefs

VERNON — The Town Council Monday night unanimously approved the positions of two deputy chiefs for the fire department — during which he has scored second-period goals to give Washington a victory over Colorado, extending the Capitals' unbeaten streak to a club-record seven games.

By scoring in his eighth straight game — during which he has scored 1 goals — Gartner helped Washington jump past Detroit and Vancouver into 14th place in the overall NHL standings with 61 points. North Stars 4, Penguins 3.

Craig Hartsburg scored with 1:52 remaining to lift Minnesota into a tie for eighth place with Atlanta in the overall standings. Steve Payne's 39th goal of the year helped the Stars tie the score 1-1 and Kent-Erik Anderson's goal snapped the deadlock.

"The kid had some bad luck," he said. "I don't think he kept his concentration and he has to learn that. You can't write games off in this league. He's a good kid. I wish I had some of the moves he has," especially "Let's face it, I have a lot of work to do. I can't let something like this get me down. I think I can make it here. I really feel I can do it."

Duane Sutter, breaking in on Craig with Clark Gillies, beat the Olympian at 8:11 of the second period as the Islanders opened a 5-0 margin. Craig then set Denis Potvin up for a goal at 4:03 ("someone was holding my stick") to give the Islanders a 2-0 lead.

Region Carter's lunch cuts frustrate director

COVENTRY — Jan Guerra, school lunch director for the Town of Coventry, is upset by proposed budget cuts detailed by President Carter. "Cuts which will affect school lunch programs, she said. Ms. Guerra has sent appeals to other food service employees throughout the state asking them to organize a letter-writing campaign to express their concern about the proposed cuts, to ask their state PTA presidents to alert their legislative bodies to support full funding for child nutrition programs, to contact their state and local associations of school business officials and school board associations, and most importantly, to do it right away."

In her letter Ms. Guerra said, "As you can see we are facing serious budget cuts. We are faced with increasing our charges just to keep up with increased food costs, labor increases, and inflation. President Carter's proposed cuts will further undermine our attempts to keep our programs solvent."

She quoted a New York State representative who said it is a known and established fact that performance in school, from learning behavior to decorum in the classroom, is directly related to the eating habits of the students. He said that the national school lunch program is the cornerstone to a commitment to forge that connection in the conscience of every American, adding, that unfortunately, that conscience will be chipped away by cuts in federal support of school lunches. The legislative newsletter Ms. Guerra included in her letter to school lunch program employees, states that the president proposes to cut $467.5 million in child nutrition appropriations.

The breakdown includes a five-cent reduction in reimbursement for lunches served for the paying child, $10.4 million; free and reduced price eligibility guidelines would be reduced downward to 100 percent and 175 percent of poverty level for lunch and breakfast, saving $149.9 million; a proposed $.64 and inflation. President Carter's proposed cuts will further undermine our attempts to keep our programs solvent."

Also a cut in the summer program equal to $44.6 million; cut in the child care programs, similar to the school food service

Revision group discusses plans

By DONNA HOLLAND

BOLTON—The recently convened Charter Study Committee held its organizational meeting Monday and discussed the town charter with David Reynolds and Donald Goodrich of the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council.

Reynolds and Goodrich reviewed the local charter and submitted their comments and suggestions about it to the committee. They suggested that the committee members review the charter and the way it has functioned since 1977 as they review comments from other groups.

They said, "In this way you will be able to obtain input as to how the town's government is functioning under the charter and any problems that may have been identified."

Their suggestions included reviewing time limits for various items such as public hearings, transition language, budget preparation and adoption process, appointments, terms of office for appointed officers, changing elected officers and commissions to appointed and vice versa.

Also reviewing powers of first selectman and Board of Selectmen, powers and actions of the Town Meeting, powers and duties of officers and commissions, special appropriations and transfers, referendum procedures and language throughout the charter.

On April 7 and 28 the committee plans to meet with town officers and boards to review their comments about the charter. On May 5 there will be a public hearing to receive comments of citizens. On May 19 the

Under the system phones are still answered by one of the firm's telephone secretaries, but from that point on, the electronic system goes into operation. The video screen in front of the secretary displays a readout telling what client wants the phone answered, what is to be said or not said, the time of the call, the number of times the phone rang before being answered, the number of calls received, and the length of the conversation. It also provides a printout of that information.

Scan-Optics revenues jump during past year

EAST HARTFORD — Scan-Optics, Inc. (OTC), today announced preliminary results for 1979 showed revenues were $12,800,000 as compared to $8,718,000 for 1978.

Net profit for 1979 were $840,000, or 21 cents a share, which includes $310,000 or 10 cents a share attributable to utilization of prior years' loss carry forwards, as compared with a $1,623,000 loss, or 69 cents a share loss for the fourth quarter 1978.

In reporting the results for the year and fourth quarter, Jean M. Belhumeur Jr., chairman and president of the company stated, "The 48 percent increase in revenues and the record profit for the year do not totally express the success of the company during 1979. Much more important was the successful introduction of the image processing capability which is unique in the data entry industry today, and has resulted in the receipt of several orders and installations.

Total revenue for the fourth quarter of 1979 was $3,378,000 as compared with $1,509,000 for the fourth quarter of 1978. Net profit for the last quarter of 1979 was $195,000 or 6 cents a share, which includes $101,000 or 3 cents a share attributable to utilization of prior years' loss carry forwards, as compared with a $1,623,000 loss, or 69 cents a share loss for the fourth quarter 1978.

Image capture transmission, and reproduction, has broad implications in information processing for applications such as signature verification, proof of delivery, and a revolutionary way to handle credit card billing. The addition of this capability to our line of OCR and ScanEdit systems broadens the opportunities for the company to sell a greater number of its larger systems."

Scan-Optics, Inc. manufactures and markets a wide range of data entry products that are sold in both the domestic and foreign markets. Scan-Optics also provides systems maintenance services through a national field service force and programming and systems analysis services during contract for customers.

Legislators nix oil control bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — The sponsors of an unsuccessful bill to curb price gouging in the home heating oil business, surmising a mild winter probably weakened their case, say they will return in a year and try again. The measure aimed at profligate home heating oil dealers through new oil taxes and other state controls went down to defeat in the Legislature Tuesday.

The Energy and Public Utilities Committee allowed to die a bill that would have set up a state Energy Department, required home heating oil dealers to be licensed and imposed a tax on excess oil profits. The committee agreed instead to study the problem for another year.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, one of the sponsors, said the committee's nearly unanimous opposition to the proposals wasn't entirely a defeat.

"I am pleased that at the very least the Energy Committee recognized there is a problem with the mark-up of heating oil once it reaches this state," Lieberman said. "Hundreds of home heating oil dealers crowded into the Capitol last week to demonstrate their opposition during a hearing on the proposals."

"Everyone agrees there is a problem. There no doubt really is price gouging. But this isn't going to get at the problem," Sen. William Curry, D-Farmington, said.

Lieberman predicted further study would lead to legislative action next year.

Sen. John Prete, D-Woodbridge, the co-chairman of the committee, charged that many oil dealers who opposed the measure were misled about the intent of the legislation by oil industry leaders.

"To be perfectly frank, there was an effort to obscure the purpose of this bill," Prete said.

"Smaller retailers who were the people in the industry who would have been helped by it were whipped up to speak out against the measure," he said.

Prete and Lieberman also said their case might have been weakened by a mild winter.

Foes say repeal favored

HARTFORD (UPI) — Lawmakers seeking a referendum on Connecticut's new ban on nonreturnable beer and soda containers say there is growing sentiment against the so-called bottle law and that a statewide vote would prove it.

They charged Tuesday that bottle law supporters fear a vote might support their case for repeal of the law, which went into effect this year.

The sentiment was expressed as Judy Parker, a representative of the Connecticut Council of Junior Leagues, attempted to persuade the Legislature's General Law Committee to drop the referendum idea.

Her organization was among dozens that pressed for the enactment of the returnable bottle law during the decade it was debated in the Legislature.

Ms. Parker described the proposed referendum, which is supported by a majority on the committee, as "just another attempt to subvert it (the bottle law)."

"The people already have had their say. They've had it for eight years," she said.

"I sense a little trepidation about the outcome," Rep. John Zajac, R-Meriden, told her.

"You presented the Legislature a raft of petitions. And now you're saying this form of petition, or referendum, is unacceptable," Zajac said.

The bill calls for a nonbinding referendum during this year's November election to sound out state sentiment for the law, which requires a deposit of at least 5 cents on soda and beer bottles and cans.

"I'm getting criticized from both directions," Zajac said. "I voted against the bill and was criticized for it. Now I'm getting criticized by my constituents because it was passed."

Ms. Parker said the referendum would be costly.

"I'm surprised you're so cost conscious. Did you take into account the costs to the consumer and the store owners?" Sen. Louis Cuttito, D-Waterbury, co-chairman of the committee, said.

Ms. Parker said the referendum would interfere with state efforts to get store owners to comply with the law.

"The attitude they would have is that it might be changed," she said.

Cott says law 'plus'

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Cott beverage Corp.'s chief executive said Tuesday night Connecticut's new bottle bill appears to be saving energy but much less than supporters had estimated.

Gerald Pickman, Cott's board chairman and chief executive officer, told reporters the energy savings were "nowhere near as much as advocates would have you believe,

Agencies for alcoholics support liquor controls

HARTFORD (UPI) — Agencies devoted to the treatment of alcoholics have joined in a mounting effort in Connecticut to lift the state's liquor price controls.

Their motives differ from those of earlier combatants in the fight to deregulate liquor prices, but there is agreement on one significant point: They say it's only a matter of time before Connecticut will be forced by U.S. Supreme Court decisions to end the post-prohibition controls.

State-supported alcohol rehabilitation agencies urged lawmakers Tuesday to remove price controls, increase liquor taxes and use the extra money to treat alcoholics.

"That way, the people who need the help the most would wind up paying for their own treatment," Thomas LaFleur, legislative chairman for the Connecticut Association of Alcohol Agencies, told the Legislature's General Law Committee.

United States.

"Liquor probably is more physically available in Connecticut than in any other state," said LaFleur, who estimated there was one package store for every 300 persons of drinking age.

He said his organization supported decontrol as a method of trimming the number of liquor outlets and making an increase in the tax on liquor more palatable.

The group has taken the position that by adding to the tax on liquor, the state could better support financially strapped alcohol rehabilitation programs.

"We make annual pilgrimages to the Legislature. And invariably we are asked, 'Tell us where we can find the money.' This is where the money can be found," LaFleur said.

But liquor store owners and their lobbyists denied any responsibility for the state's alcoholism problems and said the removal of price controls would serve only to drive hundreds of small businessmen, many of them elderly, out of business.

Carroll Hughes, lobbyist for the Connecticut Package Store Association, told the committee deregulation would drive at least 1,000 of the state's 1,900 liquor outlets out of business.

Judge pay increase key to improvements

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some lawmakers are applauding a legislative committee's approval of a bill that would increase state judges' salaries, considered key for a package to improve Connecticut's court system.

The Judiciary Committee passed the bill Tuesday and sent it on to the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

Sen. Salvatore DePiano, D-Bridgeport, said the state needed to attract qualified judges and was losing top people because of the salary disparity.

"I think priority here dictates that we not abide" by President Carter's proposed wage increase guidelines, he said.

It's a positive step in the right direction, said Sen. Clifford Leonhardt, D-Avon.

The state's judges and the Connecticut Bar Association lobbied hard for the improved salaries, saying the current pay was woefully inadequate and was driving some jurists into deep personal hock or back into private practice.

The bill approved by the committee would increase the state's 113 Superior Court judges' salaries from the current $28,500-$38,500 to $45,000 and up to $52,500 in three years.

Mansfield problems discounted

MANSFIELD (UPI) — Connecticut's chief mental retardation official says he doesn't believe patient abuse is a recurring problem at the Mansfield Training School despite the arrests of three aides on assault charges.

A week-long state police investigation into alleged abuse of severely retarded patients at the state-run school resulted in Tuesday's arrests and the issuing of warrants for two more aides.

The arrests came one day after the federal government ordered the state to reinvestigate the school after reports three patients were hospitalized — one with a broken arm and two with broken jaws — as the result of abuse by employees.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare asked the state Department of Health Services to investigate the charges.

However, state Mental Retardation Commissioner Gareth Thorne told a news conference in Hartford after the arrests that "to the best of our knowledge it (abuse) is not a recurring problem" at the school which houses 1,500 patients.

"I wish to point out very clearly, however, that the request for the state police investigation was initiated by Mr. Roger MacNamara, the state's school superintendent," Thorne said.

He said any and all allegations of wrongdoing were subject to immediate internal investigation and the state police or another objective, qualified third party was called in "if there is any feeling that a more intensive investigation is needed."

GINGER WALNUT CHICKEN

1 whole broiler-fryer chicken
1 can (16 ounce) cling peach halves
12 teaspoon soy sauce
3 tablespoons lemon juice, divided
1 tablespoon grated onion

1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger, divided
1 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/3 cup walnut halves

In shallow baking dish, place chicken breast side up. Drain peaches, saving syrup. Set peaches aside. In small bowl, mix together 3 tablespoons peach syrup, soy sauce, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and grated onion. Pour over chicken. Mix together salt, 1 teaspoon ginger and paprika. Sprinkle over chicken. Cover with foil and bake in 400-degree F. oven 40 minutes. Remove from oven. Combine remaining peach syrup with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, remaining ground ginger, cornstarch and grated lemon rind. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick and clear. Arrange peaches around chicken in baking pan. Place walnut halves in center of each peach. Pour thickened glaze over chicken and peaches. Sprinkle with remaining walnuts. Return to oven uncovered, baking 20 minutes or until leg joints move freely when lifted or twisted. Makes 4 generous servings.

FRUIT-JEWELLED ASPIC SALADS

1 can (17 ounce) fruit cocktail
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 package (3 ounce) straw berries
1 tablespoon gelatin
1 can (16 ounce) strained tomatoes

1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 drops Tabasco sauce

Dressing:
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

Drain fruit cocktail, saving syrup. Soften unflavored gelatin in 1/4 cup saved syrup. Heat remaining syrup to boiling, combine with strawberry gelatin in large bowl. Add softened unflavored gelatin stirring until all gelatin is completely dissolved. Add tomatoes and juice, celery, green pepper and Tabasco sauce. Fold all but 1/2 cup fruit cocktail into gelatin mixture. Pour into individual 1 cup molds or into 5-cup mold. Refrigerate until firm (at least 2 hours). Combine ingredients for dressing. Unfold salad onto bed of lettuce. Garnish molds with remaining fruit cocktail. Pass honey-sour cream dressing. Makes 4-6 servings.

RICH AND SPICY CHICKEN AND PEACHES

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup chopped onion
2/3 cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (29 ounce) sliced cling peaches

1 can (16 ounce) tomatoes, including liquid
1/4 cup vinegar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons steak sauce
2 teaspoons salt, divided
1/4 teaspoon pepper

In shallow baking dish, place chicken parts. Broil, uncovered, 4-6 inches from heat, for about 20 minutes or until light brown. While chicken is broiling, melt margarine in large fry pan over medium heat. Add onion, green pepper and garlic and saute about 5 minutes or until onion is clear. Remove 10 slices of peaches and reserve until later. Measure remaining peach slices and add syrup to make 2 cups. Pour peaches, syrup and tomatoes into blender and blend for 30 seconds. Stir into vegetables in fry pan, add vinegar, mustard, steak sauce and 1 teaspoon salt. Simmer, uncovered, for 20-30 minutes, reducing sauce to half the original amount (it will be very thick). Remove chicken from oven, sprinkle with remaining salt and pepper and cover with sauce. Bake in 325° F. oven for 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Remove from oven and arrange slices of peaches around chicken. Broil 5 minutes, watching carefully to prevent over-browning. Makes 4 generous servings.

PEACH SOUFFLE

1 can (16 ounce) cling peach slices
2 tablespoons kirsch
2 tablespoons conitraw
1/8 teaspoon salt

3 tablespoons sugar
3 egg yolks
4 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon cinnamon

Drain peaches. Puree peaches in blender at force through sieve. Sprinkle pureed peaches with kirsch, conitraw, salt and sugar. Place in sauceron and heat to scalding. Remove from heat and cool to lukewarm. Beat in egg yolks. Beat egg whites with cinnamon until stiff. Fold peach-egg mixture into egg white. Turn batter into buttered 1-1/2 quart souffle dish. Bake in 425-degree F. (hot) oven for 20 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

Iced Tea... Three Ways to Make It Great

With cold water and tea bags: Fill a quart jar or pitcher with cold water. Add 8 to 10 tea bags (remove tags). Cover and let stand at room temperature or in refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Remove bags, squeezing against side of container. Makes 1 quart. Recipe may be doubled.

With cold water and instant powder or mix: Allow 2 rounded tablespoons of instant tea powder for each quart of cold water. Stir to dissolve. If using lemon-flavored iced tea mix, use 1/2 cup (or 2 envelopes) to a quart of cold water.

With boiling water and tea bags or leaves: Bring 1 quart of cold water to a boil in a sauceron. Remove from heat and immediately add 15 tea bags or 1/3 cup loose tea leaves. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Makes 2 quarts.

Social Security

Two years ago, I was severely injured by an auto accident and haven't worked since. Even though my condition hasn't improved, I've been thinking of trying to get some kind of job because I need the money. If I do go to work, will my disability benefits stop right away?

Q. When I became eligible for Medicare, I decided not to take the medical insurance part. Now, I've changed my mind. Isn't there a special time of the year when people can enroll in medical insurance? A. Yes. People who turn down Medicare medical insurance and later decide they want it can sign up during a general enrollment period, the first three months of each year. That means you only have until the end of March if you want to sign up this year. If you enroll during a general enrollment period, your protection won't start until the following July and your premium will be 10 percent higher for each 12-month period you could have been enrolled but weren't.

Salad for lunch

With spring around the corner and summer not much farther away, it is time to think of dropping those extra pounds we have been hiding under winter togs. Those fortunate enough to have wintered in warmer climates will still want to add a new low-calorie salad to their menus.

Salad ingredients usually are low in calories, of course. But problems can arise when a rich high-calorie dressing is added. This special tomato dressing tops a wedge of iceberg lettuce for a diet treat of only about 45 calories a serving.

Enjoy this salad with a glass of skim milk and a fresh fruit cup for a satisfying — and thinning — lunch.

Low-calorie iceberg wedges with tomato dressing, 1 head iceberg lettuce, 1/4 cup tomato sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon steak sauce, 1/4 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (optional), 1/4 teaspoon caraway seed, 1/2 cucumber, thinly sliced.

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce. Chill in disposable plastic bag or crisper. For dressing, combine all remaining ingredients except cucumber in jar. Cover and shake to blend. Chill. Cut lettuce head into quarters. Arrange with cucumber on salad plate. Pour dressing over just before serving.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings (2 1/2 cup dressing) of approximately 45 calories per serving.

Budget stretcher. Beginner cooks will find a corn muffin-bake to be a budget stretcher that is simple to prepare. Not only is this dish high in protein, but the corn-muffin topping combines tastefully with the bean-filling.

Serve with a salad of beets and orange and cucumber slices topped with your favorite dressing. Canned peaches with ice cream is a simple dessert to top off the menu.

Consumer Reports

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: A recent local news story said that skid chains mounted on the front tires of a front-wheel drive car had caused extensive damage to the vehicle. Dear Reader — When you put chains on any car's tires, there's a chance that you'll do some damage to the area where they flap about. Of course, the degree of risk depends on the amount of clearance between the tires and the body — the less clearance, the greater the chances of damage.

DEAR READER — If the cartridge is unopened, has not been dropped, and hasn't been frozen (if a latex compound), we would expect a shelf life of many years. However, once the container is opened, we have found, the contents deteriorate rapidly. Your best bet is to buy no more compound than you need for specific job — don't count on keeping the leftovers too long.

Drug forgeries proliferating

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The man in line at the prescription counter of the pharmacy had a problem. The medication on the prescription he held wasn't a drug his doctor had advised him to take. In fact, the prescription wasn't made out by a doctor at all. The man had made it out himself.

He knew he could get into trouble if the pharmacist got suspicious, so he'd run for it if he needed, and if the drugist tried to stop him, well, he'd just beat him up.

That scenario isn't something out of a television crime drama. It happens every day. And it's a crime one Manchester pharmacist says happens all too often here.

Recently, an East Hartford man was arrested in a Manchester pharmacy for attempting to obtain drugs with a forged prescription. Fortunately he wasn't aware of the stringent controls Connecticut pharmacists work under and sat quietly while the drugist phoned police.

More importantly, the man didn't get violent.

Oddly enough, it was the very drug he tried to obtain that tipped off the alert pharmacist. The man had presented a forged "scrip," as pharmacists call them, for a significant dosage of dilaudid, an opium derivative of unusual potency. It's a drug widely abused and a drug which often appears on forgeries.

"I knew the minute I looked at it that prescription was a forgery," said the pharmacist. "The doctor who was supposed to have filled it out" stereotype where passing phony "scrips" is concerned. Nor is there any type of pharmacy more susceptible to the forgeries.

"We've investigated cases involving young people, old people, affluent people and poor people," Camilleri said.

"They try to pass the forged prescription at small neighborhood pharmacies or big discount places. It's a situation that's proliferating."

And forged prescriptions are nothing new. Camilleri noted that, since the founding of his department in 1935, phony prescriptions have been investigated.

"Next to stolen prescriptions," Camilleri continued, "we also investigate 'doctor shopping' and 'kiting'."

"Doctor shopping" is a system that finds drug abusers going from one physician's office to another describing the same set of symptoms. They usually tell a doctor that only the type of drug they want will help them.

"Kiting" involves the alteration of either dosage or number of pills on the prescription and is called "kiting" because the alteration is generally for a higher quantity.

An area pharmacist who is not only concerned with prescription forgery but also drug and alcohol abuse in general is Ralph Stanzone. He teaches a drug abuse course at Manchester Community College, and is a leading proponent of consumer education.

"Drug abuse is a problem not many people like to talk about," Stanzone said. "But it's there and it's serious nationwide."

Stanzione agrees with Camilleri, saying drug abuse cuts across all social strata and encourages legislation that would make any armed robbery for drugs a federal offense.

"They get something like methaqualone and then sell half and keep half of the pills. They take them to maintain another habit so they won't go through withdrawal. For instance, dilaudid can be substituted for heroin."

News for senior citizens

By WALLY FORTIN
 Everybody's Well, our center doors open for programs Monday and we had an excellent turnout. Many people who have participated in the programs while a number of others dropped by just to see what it's all about.

From all reports everyone was surprised to see how nice everything looked and it is really turning out to be a real prize. By the way, we were planning to have our official dedication on Sunday, May 4 but we find that the town will be celebrating Loyalty Day with a big parade and therefore have decided to hold our dedication on Saturday, May 3. We'll be telling you more about this later.

Tomorrow we will celebrate a belated Saint Patrick's Day with a traditional corned beef and cabbage dinner at noon. In the afternoon around 1 our good friend Niles Carlson will be showing slides of the old and new center and how it looked when changes were being made at the new center.

Then in the evening, starting at 7:30 p.m., we will have our St. Patrick's Dance and card games. Lou O'Joubert and his (for the night) Irish band will be on hand to keep our dancing members hopping to good old and new music. Snacks will be served and the evening will end with our presentations of door prizes. We hope that the

TV big customer of movie industry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television has become the movie industry's biggest customer. Back in the early days of television, the doomsayers merrily predicted that the home screen would mean the death of Hollywood and the end of movies as we know them. Hollywood is alive and well and still living in Los Angeles, and movies as we know them have taken a few unexpected turns but the report of their demise definitely was premature. What has happened is that theatrical movies have gotten bigger, more expensive and more concerned with subjects that can't be handled on television — sex and violence in particular. The middle of the road area largely has been taken over by movies made in Hollywood for showing on television, and sometimes made for broadcast in this country and theatrical release abroad. There were more than 200 movies produced for the three networks for showing in the current television season that began last fall — not including mini-series and movies for non-network station groups. Predictions are that the number will increase. Theatrical movies also have played a major role in television programming — from "Gone With the Wind" to "Jaws," they provide blockbuster programming for networks at their most competitive. That role probably will decrease in coming years because there's a new factor in the equation — pay-

Old music; new title

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The whirring, whining, ticking, thumping and creaking noises alternately sound like a revving motorcycle or a ghost moving through a haunted house. Willie Ruff says it's the music of the planets. Ruff, 47, a renowned jazz musician and Yale University professor of music, has recorded the sounds — which were originally calculated 350 years ago by 17th century astronomer Johannes Kepler — and released them under the title "The Harmony of the World."

Old music; new title

The two professors took their calculations to a hybrid computer-synthesizer at Princeton University last winter and by inserting formulae of each planet's size, shape and orbit speed into the computer, they were able to produce a tape representing the sounds of the planets moving through space. The resulting music of the heavens is a sometimes sweet, sometimes harsh tone. Earth's soft drone and Saturn's deep growl contrast markedly with Pluto's steady drum beat and Uranus's rapid ticky-ticky-ticky. Neptune clicks and Jupiter thumps.
