VERNON — The Board of Education has accepted the resignations of teachers and granted a leave of absence.

In the case of one teacher, Vivian Orsini, who had taught for six years in Vernon, she had been on a year's leave of absence.

Dr. Bernard Sidman, superintendent of schools, said it is assumed that she has resigned. The teacher's handbook states that if a teacher on leave hasn't notified the administration by March 1, of the intent to return, then it can be assumed the teacher is resigning. Dr. Sidman said attempts were made to contact Ms. Orsini but they were not successful.

Katherine Grady will actually be retiring after teaching in the system for 34 years. Linda Solo, a teacher in the system for 10 years, informed the administration she doesn't intend to return after a leave of absence.

Marjorie Bucieri, a business education teacher at Rockville High School, was granted a year's leave of absence, with some provisions.

Dr. Sidman said Ms. Bucieri was told should there be any change in staffing level in her department or any other department for which she might not qualify she may risk not having a job when she returns from leave.

Lavitt advises on advice

VERNON — The Town Council, this week, was given some legal advice by the town attorney and that advice was about what advice he is supposed to give, according to state statutes.

During the council meeting, attorney Edwin Lavitt was asked by council member Robert Romjko concerning the conversion of two apartments to condominiums.

Romjko said he had previously asked for the town attorney's opinion concerning the conversion of two particular complexes for which application had been made earlier.

Lavitt said he never rendered a decision concerning condominium conversions but reportedly he had made the decision that the conversions wouldn't be legal because at that time there weren't any provisions in the zoning regulations. He said he didn't have to because the Zoning Commission passed regulations that allowed conversions and new condominium construction and the conversion of the report that he had.

GLASTONBURY — He arrived about 40 minutes late, but the crowd remained enthusiastic.

About 1,200 persons jammed Glastonbury High School's auditorium Friday and welcomed Republican presidential hopeful John Anderson with a loud, standing ovation.

Anderson, who strode onto the stage with his wife Kiki, was greeted by students carrying signs, bright television lights and applause from town and school officials.

Anderson's visit to Glastonbury culminated a morning of stamping throughout the Hartford area to prepare for the state primary Tuesday.

Castonguay guilty

HARTFORD (UPI) — A jury Friday found Gerard "Gary" Castonguay guilty of murdering a Plainville policeman two years ago, setting up a possible legal test of Connecticut's death penalty.

The jury of nine men and three women returned to the courtroom to announce their decision shortly after 9 p.m., at the end of the third day of deliberations.

Castonguay was found guilty of murdering Plainville policeman Robert Holcomb, who was shot four times at close range as he pursued a suspect from a house burglary.

The defendant, who testified he did not shoot Holcomb, could face the death penalty as a result of the conviction.

Trial judge David Shea earlier ruled capital punishment unconstitutional and said it would not apply to Castonguay.

But chief assistant state's attorney Robert Meyers had promised to appeal that decision. He had said he would seek the death penalty if Castonguay was convicted.

The jury found the defendant guilty of single counts of capital felony murder and felony murder.

Castonguay, 36, of Bristol, stood facing the panel as the decision was announced. He showed no physical reaction as the guilty verdict was read.

The panel handed in its decision just 10 minutes after sending Shea a note saying they preferred to return to the court on Monday if they did not reach a verdict Friday.

Castonguay's face flushed as he stood before Shea, who set sentencing April 14.

The judge granted Meyers' request to increase the defendant's bail from $400,000 to $500,000 and also approved the prosecutor's motion to appeal the earlier death penalty ruling to the Connecticut Supreme Court before sentencing.

Defense attorney Michael R. Sheldon opposed the bid to seek the appeal before sentencing. But Shea rejected his plea.

"So far as I can see it is not over," Sheldon said. "The defense will appeal. There remains a very realistic possibility that the case will be retried."

The judge ordered previously sealed transcripts of closed testimony in the case opened and also rejected Sheldon's attempt to keep the information secret until an appeal is completed.

"I was very happy and gratified the system works. That the system found Castonguay was a very brutal murderer," Meyers said. "I feel very good about it."

But Meyers said "a case like this points out problems in the judicial system that when an officer is murdered in November 1977 and the roof at the Hartford Civic Center collapses in January 1978 and the system can get the building rebuilt and ordered before they can convict the murderer."

Hospital to file request for $26 million expansion

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Manchester Memorial Hospital is planning a $26 million expansion that Executive Director Edward M. Kenney has called "the largest single project the hospital has ever undertaken."

A Certificate of Need, outlining the hospital's request for 110,000 square feet of new space, will be filed with the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care before April 1.

The plans, which must be approved by the commission, call for the construction of new space, renovation of 38,000 square feet of existing space and the demolition of 28,000 square feet of the hospital's original structure, built in 1923. Details of the plan, scheduled for completion in 1984, include:

- construction of a new two-story building to house the hospital's expanded mental health services.
- construction of two floors above the present intensive care-special care unit, to provide maternity services and bed space.
- creation of a new pediatrics unit.
- demolition of the original building, now used for administrative offices and bed space, and construction of a new entrance.
- renovation of the original Building to provide new administrative space.
- demolition of those buildings along Hayes Street, immediately across from the hospital, to provide additional parking space.

Kenney said the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care has in the last few years been reluctant to allow hospitals to increase their bed capacity. Manchester Memorial's plans call for only a small increase in beds, from 300 to 309.

The Certificate of Need, a massive 600-page document, Kenney said will show the hospital is trying to respond to the changing needs of its service area. He said that as the local population ages, the length of hospital stays will increase.

As a result, the hospital will need more beds and sophisticated equipment for the more serious illnesses accompanying older populations.

The commission says there is a surplus of hospital beds nationally. A hospital's bed rate is determined by the number of beds available to every 1,000 persons.

The hospital's rate of 3.6 beds per thousand is both below state (4.4 per thousand) and national (4.4 per thousand) levels. Kenney said the hospital's rate could increase as a result of the older population.

The plans must also be submitted to the local Health Systems Agency, which is responsible for planning the region's health service needs. Kenney said the hospital's plans had been redesigned to comply with some suggestions made by the HSA.

Revenue is also anticipated from a fund-drive that is currently being staged, and from gifts from in-patient care, an increase of 10. The present facility, Kenney said, maintains an occupancy rate of 95 percent, which he called extremely high. Kenney cited a study that the state's mental health policy away from state facilities and towards community mental health care.

Funding for the project, the actual construction cost is estimated at $20 million, will come from a variety of sources. Most of the necessary funds will come from the Connecticut Health and Educational Facilities Authority which makes low-interest loans to both hospitals and educational institutions. Kenney said he hopes to secure a 9 percent interest rate, but added that market conditions would dictate the final rate.

Each month the project is delayed, he said, would increase construction costs by $200,000 as a result of inflation.

Revenue is also anticipated from a fund-drive that is currently being staged, and from gifts from in-patient care, an increase of 10. The present facility, Kenney said, maintains an occupancy rate of 95 percent, which he called extremely high. ## Weiss cuts school budget

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — General Manager Robert Weiss lived up to the expectations set for him by the Board of Directors, as for the first time in three years he recommended cuts in the Board of Education's proposed budget.

Weiss recommended a cut of $11.258 from the 1980-81 education budget. This represents an increase of 7.5 percent, although the Board of Education had requested an 8.5 percent increase over the previous year.

Weiss had asked all departments to hold their budget increases to 6 percent.

In a letter to Education Chairman John Yavis, Weiss said, "While I realize the reduction will pose problems in your efforts to achieve a maintenance budget, I am sure that you appreciate the intense pressures the taxpayers and particularly those on fixed incomes are coping with."

The Board of Education and the PTA Budget Study Committee had adopted without cuts the proposals Superintendent of Schools James Kennedy has contended is a "no improvement" budget.

Despite declining enrollments and the layoffs of 10 teaching positions, the budget had increased due to inflation, soaring energy costs, and mandated salary increases, according to education officials.

Despite these pressures of modern times, politicians of both parties had called on Weiss to hold the spending line. Mayor Stephen Penny had called on Weiss in February to "make the cuts he has failed to make for the last two years."

Senior Republican Director William Diana had agreed with Penny, saying he believed this was the year the manager was going to "have to take a hard look at the budget. While Weiss recommended a cut, he didn't mention the specific areas to be reduced.

Neither Yavis nor Eleanor Gilman, chairperson of the board's Finance Committee, could be reached Friday for comment.

Neither could Penny, but Diana said "I assume he based the cuts on something being as how the cuts aren't rounded out ($28 was mentioned he probably went through and picked out items line by line."

The Board of Education will meet with the Board of Directors and the general manager Monday at 7 p.m. at South School on South Main Street for the second budget hearing, as mandated in the town charter.

Solemn rites

ST. ALBANS, Vt. (UPI) — Muffled drums beat Friday as this small northeastern Vermont city mourned Mayor James Smith, shot to death this week, just six days after the school office.

"This was a senseless act of violence that tries even the most sincere faith," the Rev. Raymond Giroux told more than 500 mourners at the First Congregational Church. Tauno Jurva, a 61-year-old handyman, has pleaded innocent to first degree murder and was being held for lack of $100,000 bail. He is accused of shooting Mrs. Smith, 66, twice last Sunday at her home.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., Gov. Charles Snelling, Lt. Gov. Madeleine Kunin and other state officials joined St. Albans residents at the services.

"We are here to honor the memory of a gracious and talented lady... a vital vibrant person interested in people and all aspects of life," said the Rev. R. Ward Wilson, pastor of the Congregational Church.

"She wanted to bring people together... She wanted to unify this community. The greatest tragedy is she didn't have the chance to try," Wilson said. "Maybe in (her) memory, we can all pull together harder for St. Albans."

'G.I. Joe'

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (UPI) — The waning popularity of war toys has prompted Hasbro Industries Inc. to sell most of the rights to "G.I. Joe," once the multi-million dollar centerpiece of its product line.

"It just lost its vim and vigor," Hasbro Vice President Alred Verrecchia said.

Hasbro Industries Inc., this week sold most of its rights to "G.I. Joe" — the action figure — to General Mills Inc.'s Creative Products Group for $2 million.

General Mills now has the patents, copyrights and trademarks to make and distribute the doll in various parts of the world. Hasbro kept G.I. Joe rights for use in the U.S., Brazil and India.

G.I. Joe was the centerpiece of Hasbro toys for many years after his introduction in 1964. Along with members of his team and various accessories, he represented "several hundred million dollars in volume," Verrecchia said.

Second siege

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — "The second siege of the Alamo," staged by an invading radical Maoist group, armed with a red flag, chants and leaflets, had Texas burning with indignation Friday.

Three members of the Revolutionary May Day Brigade were in the Bexar County Jail, charged with desecrating the Texas flag during the 30 minutes they stood atop the Texas shrine Thursday, shouting slogans at an angry crowd of 200.

The government already has indicated it will reply by suspending the existing "trigger price" system, which is supposed to protect the American steel industry against price-cutting foreign competition.

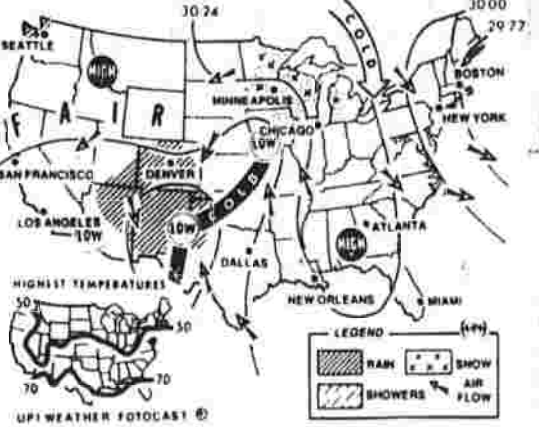

On Wednesday, the Commerce Department said it would order such a suspension if a "major" price complaint was filed by the U.S. steel industry.

Four congressmen still back Kennedy

By LISA SHEPARD

WASHINGTON — Despite Sen. Edward Kennedy's repeated rubbings in a string of primaries in eastern states, four of the six members of Connecticut's congressional delegation are still backing Kennedy as he heads for the Tuesday primary.

The state's presidential primary has put loyalties of the six state Democrats serving in the House and Senate.

The six are either ideologically aligned with Kennedy or have been long-time family friends.

The state's senior Democratic senator, Abraham Ribicoff, has promised to endorse the Democratic nominee selected at the national convention in August, but has declined to throw his support behind either Kennedy or President Carter.

Ribicoff, 69, who will retire at the end of the year, said he finds himself in a difficult position of having to decide between an incumbent Democrat and a fellow senator, whose family Ribicoff has known and supported for many years.

Ribicoff's successor, John F. Kennedy, administration appointee in 1960, when he was made secretary of Health Education and Welfare. He also was a floor manager for Kennedy that year.

A press aide to Ribicoff said the senator would not oppose Kennedy, but tends to support Carter on issues including draft registration, economic sanctions against Iran. He also has been a long-time advocate of wage-price controls.

Kennedy campaign centerpiece.

Of five liberal Democratic members of the House, only Robert Gianno of North Haven has expressed Carter's re-election bid. Gianno endorsed his affection and respect for the Kennedy family but said he didn't believe Kennedy had cause to deny re-nomination to Jimmy Carter.

Winds gusted to 72 mph felled tree and power lines in the Roanoke, Va., area, leaving some 4,000 customers without electricity for up to two hours.

Floods consumed low-lying areas in the South on the heels of storms that spawned tornadoes and injured at least 17 people. The worst flooding hit Tennessee. A noted Chattanooga, Tenn., psychic was missing and presumed drowned.

R.C. "Doc" Anderson, who billed himself as a "mental" and served as consultant to several Hollywood stars, tried to drive his car across the floodwaters of Chattanooga Creek. The car stalled and he was swept away in the rolling water.

By DONNA HOLLAND

Herald Correspondent
BOLTON — The Board of Education has submitted its proposed $1,783,512.34 budget for 1980-1981 to the Board of Finance for review. The amount represents an increase of 12.5 percent more than the current budget of $1,585,597.99.

The estimated revenue for 1980-1981 is $929,129.54 — a 17.2 percent increase over the current school revenue of $800,756.

School Superintendent Raymond Allen said, "The increase in school revenues is due chiefly to a large estimated increase in Education Equalization Funds and tuition students attending the high school."

The school budget is divided into four parts:

The Regular Learning Programs portion is for $603,622. The budget includes art, business education, foreign language, home economics, industrial arts, language arts, mathematics, music, physical education, reading, science, social studies and vocational education. This portion of the budget increased by $34,856.

The administrative programs portion total for $301,017. The budget includes central administration, building administration, accounting and budgeting, personnel services. This portion of the budget increased by $35,591.

The Special Learning Programs portion is for $270,812. The budget includes exceptional children, continuing education, summer school, music, guidance, health and dental, psychological and family counseling, speech, hearing and language, program improvement and evaluation, media services, student activities and tutorial and homework. This portion of the budget increased by $44,877.

The proposed capital outlay items for 1980-1981 are installation of suspended insulated ceilings at the high school, $9,000; replacement of seven exterior doors at the 5-8 building, $1,500; improvement to wiring at the 5-8 building, $6,400; additional insulation at the 5-8 building, $4,100; chairs for Grade 5, $1,500 and staff room furniture, $750.

The budget also includes $2,340 for work at the elementary building to make it accessible to the handicapped as required by law.

Copies of the budget are available at the Community Hall and Bentley Memorial Library.

Budget reduced by school board

HEBRON — The Rham Regional Board of Education has received a request from the proposed budget for the coming fiscal year. The board will meet again this coming Monday to do more work on the budget.

The total, to date, is $3,107,423. Before working on the budget to vote to delete $44,495 from its budget, the board received a request from residents attending the meeting concerning the increase of stipends for extra-curricular activities.

Conventional fuels in transition

Editor's Note: This is the 10th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Energy and the Way We Live..."

By Don E. Kash

America is in a period of transition into its fourth energy era - a transition from oil and gas to other energy sources.

New energy technologies, however, are decades away from becoming full-scale substitutes for oil and gas.

Previous energy eras in the United States were wood (1850s), coal (1880s), and oil and natural gas (1950s to the present).

Without question, the nation has inadequate domestic supplies of oil and gas to support its present level of economic activity.

Many Americans indict both government and industry for the failure to develop alternative sources of energy.

Unfortunately, the answer is not so simple when there are no agreed upon substitute energy sources.

Conservation Energy conservation can be achieved in two ways. First, and most attractive, is more efficient use of oil and gas.

Conservation

Energy conservation can be achieved in two ways. First, and most attractive, is more efficient use of oil and gas.

To date, our willingness to live in 65-degree houses, drive 55 miles an hour, use fewer processed foods, and stop applying synthetic products to our lawns has not been encouraging.

Simply stated, the need to conserve oil and gas has triggered a struggle over who has to conserve, the middle class or the poor, homeowners or industry.

Domestic oil and gas

Industry advertisements note that the easily obtained oil and gas have already been found.

That more oil is there to be found is agreed upon. What it will cost to find and produce it, both economically and environmentally, is a source of disagreement.

Offshore oil rigs (top) can increase our oil supply, but at the risk of leaks that can lead to ecological damage, such as (bottom) the oil-slicked beach at Santa Barbara, Calif., in 1969.

ENERGY COURSES BY NEWSPAPER

Foreign supplies

To the contrary, continued imports are critical to a stable transition period. We, however, can have little confidence in the long-term reliability of oil imports.

Management of pollution is only one of the barriers to substituting coal for oil and gas. Better than half the homes in America have gas furnaces.

Limits of coal Coal offers the nation its clearest opportunity for an assured energy source through the transition.

Next week: Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory for over 25 years, discusses the dangers and potential of nuclear power.

Questions

(1) Identify and date America's three previous energy eras.

(2) What is forcing our present energy transition?

(3) Why can't we count on Mexican and Chinese oil to solve our energy shortage?

(4) What combination of policies will bridge the gap while we are developing renewable energy sources?

Answers

(1) Wood (1850s), coal (1880s), oil and natural gas (1950s to present).

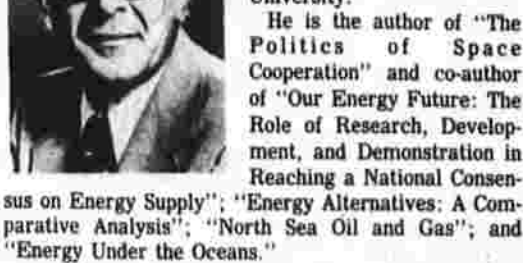

(2) Shortages of fuel, high costs, unstable supplies.

(3) Mexican production is still small. Chinese development hasn't really begun; their export policies are uncertain.

(4) Conservation, finding new oil and gas, increased use of coal.

Listening intelligently should be byword at all times

Much is being publicized today in the media about the importance and the art of listening.

And many are using the same words accusing their own children.

Perhaps I should assert a gentle reminder that the sermon is not the only act of worship in the liturgy.

Tomorrow is the fifth Sunday in Lent, sometimes called Passion Sunday.

During this period from Ash Wednesday to Easter many Christians feel it is a time of penance and repentance.

"As a preacher, then, out of sheer compassion for all listeners in pew...

At 3:30 p.m., Mrs. Bush will be at Barr Corners Shopping Center to greet the shoppers and at 3:30 she will depart for Torrington.

Olympics ruled out

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter Friday told a group of U.S. Olympic athletes that the United States "will not go" to the 1980 Moscow games and urged the young athletes to join him in "preserving the principles" of the games.

As a response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, Carter has said the United States will not participate in the events which begin in July.

The president told the group he hopes to sponsor alternative competitions in late August, but said he was not "naive" and realized alternate games would not have the same prestige.

Carter, who received no applause when he walked into the White House East Room to meet with a contingent of about 150 athletes and U.S. Olympic officials, defended his boycott as "preserving the principles of the Olympics - not destroying" them.

"I can't say this moment what other countries will not go to the Summer Olympics in Moscow," Carter told the group.

"Ours will not go," he said firmly. "I say that not with any equivocation. The decision has been made. They will not go."

The only applause came at the close of his sometimes emotional 20-minute address, and that was brief and polite.

However several athletes did say they supported the president.

Citizen group backs MHS renovation plan

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—The report of the Citizens' Review and Advisory Committee on the Renovation Plans for Manchester High School contains no surprises in its endorsement of the educational specifications for the building's repair.

While the report is done, it won't be distributed until Monday's Board of Education meeting. Its primary conclusion is that "the educational specifications as prepared by the administration were complete and conservative."

The only reservations the committee expressed concerned the proposal to light the football field. M. Philip Sussag, chairman of the subcommittee that included exterior renovations said in his report "It is our recommendation that this proposal be deleted unless there is a specific plan in the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic League to revise league schedules to call for night games."

The subcommittee also expressed concern that the resurfacing of parking lots, roadways and walkways be accomplished in a cost effective manner. The Board of Education and Town Building Committee were directed to investigate whether the complete reconstruction of these areas was necessary, or whether local repair and general resurfacing would suffice.

A general concern of the whole committee was the lack of specific architectural information. The committee strongly recommended that the architect meet with it before a final blueprint is developed in order to fulfill their role as community ambassadors for the project.

The committee stressed that the public and the Board of Education should realize that its report is general, because specific information and cost alternatives critical to the project aren't available yet.

The subcommittee that studied the roof listed the particulars of all the information they did not have. "It is difficult to get a feeling for what the cost will be because the alternatives range from extensive repairs to the existing roof all the way to retrofitting a completely different roofing system. The costs of the various alternatives may differ by a factor of ten."

The committee called for the roof design to especially take fuel efficiency into account. They also called for a knowledgeable person to prepare a "history of the roof." They ask that the report include reasons for past repair failures as well as an explanation of why the current suggestions (whatever they turn out to be) will work. Superintendent of Schools James Kennedy is currently preparing a report.

The committee supported replacing the ventilation system. Making the facility meet the needs of the handicapped, they also supported investigating heating inconsistencies, the ventilation system, plumbing and energy auditing. "Money invested on energy conserving items is probably well spent. It appears that improved zoning for the building's heat is long overdue," according to the report.

The committee supported the contention by the high school administration that "there appears to be a trend by Manchester High School students toward vocational education or at least a trend away from enrollment in college immediately following high school graduation."

Noting this fact because of the extensive renovations called for in the Industrial Arts and Home Economics departments, the committee went on to support expansion of space and curriculum in both these areas.

When considering an expanded wing in I.A., the committee determined that maintenance is often neglected in the school budget. "This was not expressed as a criticism but as a commentary on the very real constraints imposed on the budget annually." Because of this, the committee called for the expansion materials to be a permanent structure, as maintenance-free as possible.

Calling for additional storage space, building security, and the consideration of trends the commission also suggested determining the feasibility of a second story addition to the I.A. wing.

The committee called for a new two-way public address system to provide safety, security and preparedness for civil defense emergencies. Ceiling replacement, floor tiles and carpeting was supported, along with new lockers and cafeteria furniture.

The committee supported relocating the fine arts department so all of its sub-units are together and so that it is near I.A., enabling the departments to share materials. Science department safety and equipment were cited as needing improvement along with the general interior which was described as "shabby."

The report said the business education area needed new equipment, as did the mathematics area, particularly computers. Other department whose space needs the committee supported were Cooperative Occupational Education Program, Independent Study, and the Communications Center.

The committee noted that its report was general and did not include a line-by-line analysis.

GOP directors ask talk on firehouse

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—In spite of Mayor Steven Papp's stand that "there is nothing to talk about," the Herald has learned that the four Republican members of the Board of Directors will support a proposed reactivation of the District-Town Liaison Committee.

A source close to the story said the plan to support the Committee was announced during the Republican caucus Tuesday night. The sources claim was confirmed by Board member Peter DiRosa who said he saw no reason why there should be no discussion of the issues between the Eighth Utilities District and the Town. When asked if the four other members of the Board of Directors agreed with him, DiRosa said "that's an accurate assessment."

One of those issues, the status of the Buckland firehouse, was thrust back into the spotlight Monday night when Gordon Lassow, President of the District, read a letter from Penny asking the District Board of Directors to define its reasons for reestablishing the liaison committee exclusive of the firehouse question.

Penny has repeatedly said he will not support any move which would see the town turn the station over to the District although he has suggested the two share the firehouse which was built two years before a supreme Court decision gave the District sole firefighting jurisdiction over Buckland where the station is located. This was rejected by the District Board.

Penny's reluctance to discuss the matter came under fire from Democrats and Republicans both in and outside of the Eighth District. The Republican decision to consider opening talks with the committee is the first sign of defiance by Board members.

Lassow, who has said he wants to "get back to running the town" suggested Friday the station might be rented to the District, sold to the District or used for a maintenance garage, day care center or cultural center.

How to get refund forms by trading by mail

By MARTIN SLOANE
One of the secrets of successful refunding is trading refund forms by mail.

If you are having a hard time finding refund forms in your supermarket, join the more than 50,000 refunders who regularly trade forms by mail.

They put a batch of refund forms in an envelope and send it off to a refunding pal in another city. A few days later, back comes an envelope filled with new refund forms.

Where do you find people to trade with? Remember your former neighbor who moved to St. Louis? Or your Aunt Sally in San Diego? They probably have already heard about refunding and would welcome an opportunity to trade refund forms with you.

—Each form in the batch should be different.
—Each form should remain valid for at least 30 days after it reaches your trading pal.
—Do not include sweepstakes entries, money-plus forms or cash-off coupons.
—Be sure to put enough postage on your envelope; 20 forms and a return envelope may require more than 15 cents postage.
—A tip from the Supermarket Shopper: Smart refunders trade forms by choice, not by chance. That is easy when you send a request list with each of your trading letters.
—Good trading pals try to fill as many requests as possible and send back request lists of their own. To make up your request list, just refer to the refund offers in each of these columns.

By WALLY FORTIN

This coming Thursday afternoon program will be furnished by the Seniors.

Now that many of you have visited our new center you all agree how really nice it is and so I guess it's time to make a call for some more donations - either in the way of money or possibly in some decent furniture. We have some that is nice, but actually doesn't match too well with our colors. With the money we can think about buying some woodworking equipment needed for our hobby shop. Anyone wishing to donate may make their check out to the Manchester Senior Center Fund Raising and if you have some furniture just call our office - 647-3211 and we'll be glad to look at it and see if we can use it. A couple of bucks from each member will certainly go a long way in putting our center in excellent shape with many nice things to offer everyone.

By Earl Yost Sports Editor

Fancy bit of duckpin bowling was turned in this week of the Eastern Businessmen's League by Alan Grzyb with a 193 single, followed by 176 and 142 for a 511 total. Remember the day when a 400 triple was a rarity? ... Henry Grzyb and his wife were among the disappointed bowling fans when they traveled to Bradley Bowl Thursday night but found all seats sold for the Pro will be telecast. Shots here 'n there
Manchester Chapter of Approved Baseball Umpires added five men to its membership this week. Larry Anderson, Jeff Bertram, Paul Demarcho, Charlie McSperris and Bernie Mulligan. Former USA Olympic hockey player Steve Christou on the difference he found playing in the National Hockey League. "I haven't found that much difference here (Minnesota) other than the Olympic style of hockey is more controlled. The pro rinks are smaller, which means more loose pucks and having to make decisions quicker." Christou has fit right in to the North Star style of play with good results.

Notes off the cuff

Eagle cagers exceeded pre-season expectations

By LEN ALSTER Herald Sports Editor
Better than expected, but not as good in the end as hoped. That sums up the 1979-80 East Catholic High basketball season ... The Eagles finished 20-7, the first 20-win season at the school in nine years and were a state Class I semifinalists. They bowed to eventual state champs East Haven High, lessening the pain ... The season exceeded my expectations, considering the schedule we had," admits East Coach Jim Penders. "In the pre-season, with the type of teams we were facing, I thought we'd have a real tough battle especially with only two returning starters ... But we started off well. The key game was Northern Bristol (Gallagher). We lost (55-57) but we played well and felt we could play with the best." ... East loses its two seniors—Tim Skoly, Mike Ciszewski, Tom Fortin, Pete Kiro and Bob Venora—to graduation. The latter pair are key individuals. The 6-foot-6 Radant, averaging 18 points through the early part of the schedule, talled off markedly at the end, talked off hitting at an 8.7-point clip. "Russ played as well as he could," Penders remarked. "Bobby went so hard. He had shot 65 percent the last two years and he figured we had to score that much more for us to be a good club. ... (But) this team I'll remember for its unselfishness. That overrides anything else. It played very well together and underline the word together," Penders emphasizes. ... Bill MacMullen, who had been on the perimeter, complimented Venora. Combined, the pair accounted for 1,013 points this year and 2,215 tallies in their three-year careers. "Two guys like that in one class has never been done before," Penders assesses. ... Fortin, while not a scorer, was the Eagles' top defender-developer. "He was the best defensive player in the program. We'll miss his defensive aggressiveness, quickness," Penders states. ... Junior Russ Radant and Kyle Ayer and sophomore Brian Gallagher will be returning starters for '80-81. "We have three returning starters and all of the kids work half as hard as Venora did. I have to believe East Catholic basketball will still be on the map," analyzes the Eagle leader. ... # Scalpers happy with NCAA field

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — In a state where basketball ranks with corn and soybeans as the primary resources, college basketball began its final countdown Friday to crown a national champion. ... With the NCAA's movable feast reduced to a Final Four, hotel rooms are at a premium and scalpers are reportedly peddling tickets as high as $300 a pair. And in a city long associated with auto racing as well as basketball, the 500 has temporarily been displaced by the NCAA's yearly extravaganza. ... For Purdue and Louisville, the Final Four is something of a homecoming. Both schools are less than a two-hour drive from Indianapolis. For Iowa, also on friendly turf, it's a return to Big Ten territory. Only UCLA, the curious intruder from the West, is a stranger in town. ... In Saturday's semifinals at Market Square Arena, Louisville takes on the Big Ten, gets its chance to show there is more to the Hawkeyes than their wrestling team. While the wrestlers have won four national titles in the last five years, the basketball team is looking for its first championship. ... It has been a difficult season for lowa — one that can be measured in victories and defeats as well as in streams of surgical tape. ... Purdue made its only previous appearance in the Final Four in 1969. That year the Boilermakers were led by Rick Mount and lost to UCLA in the finals. This time around Purdue looks to its 7-foot-11 All-American, Joe Barry Carroll. ... "Carroll is on his game," says Purdue Coach Lee Rose. "But the best is yet to come from him. I've always said he hasn't played his best game yet. But Joe Barry will be the first to say it's his teammates who have helped his effectiveness." ... UCLA, looking to restore itself to the throne of college basketball, has turned to youth. The Bruins, after much confusion and indecision, have settled into a lineup of two freshmen guards Red Foster and Michael Holton, a sophomore (6-6 center Mike Sanders) and two seniors (forwards Kiki Vandeweghe and James ... Against Louisville, Iowa will likely go with Arnold and Lester at guard, Steve Krafcinic at center and Vince Brooks and Kevin Boyle at forward. Boyle will probably guard Louisville's Darrell Griffith and that may be the key. ... No. 4 Louisville, the winningest team in the country at 31-3, is the only ranked team of the four. Dubbed the "Doctors of Doom" for their aerial acrobatics, the Cardinals in many ways have their feet on the ground. They play a strong zone defense, excel in team quickness and are more disciplined than might first appear. ... Coach Danny Crum, who served as assistant to John Wooden at UCLA, has guided the Cardinals to 20-win seasons in each of his nine years at Louisville. This year the Cardinals go after the elusive prize again with a starting five one senior (Griffith), three sophomores and a freshman. "We're a young team," says Crum.

Whalers in tie

HARTFORD (UPI) — Center Rick MacLeish led the pack past Flyers goalie Phil Myre, who had lost his stick blocking an initial shot by Hartford. ... MacLeish beat goalie Al Smith in a one-on-one confrontation after Philadelphia stole the puck from the Whalers defense. ... The Whalers had taken a 5-4 lead in the regular season. Candidates for the clubhouse attendant ... Tennis pros Jack Redmond and Tom Casolino at the Manchester Racquet Club each celebrated a birthday this week. John Jacobson of the Manchester will attend Ted Williams' baseball camp in Lakeville, Mass., this summer.

King makes semifinals
NEW YORK (UPI) — Billie Jean King, after threatening to break every racket she owned if she lost, and Evonne Goolagong Cawley scored straight-set victories Friday night to gain the semifinals of a $300,000 women's tennis championship. ... King, "ticked off" after winning only three games against Martina Navratilova Thursday, threatened to smash her racket if she lost to Wendy Turnbull 6-2, 6-2 and Goolagong overcame an old spell to beat Kathy Jordan 6-1, 6-4. ... King will meet Tracy Austin and Navratilova in a play championship.

Anthony holds lead

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Earl Anthony finished in the favorable position of just trying to "stay sharp" as he heads into the final round of match play Friday night. ... Anthony, 41, from Dublin, Calif., opened up a 433 pin margin Friday afternoon over second place Mike Aubly of Indianapolis, thus practically assuring himself the top-seeded position for Saturday's TPC final. ... Anthony started the sixth round of play at Bradley Bowl with a 115-pin advantage over Aubly and steadily widened the gap by winning seven of eight matches. The leader since the tournament's second round Tuesday, Anthony rattled off scores of 227, 225, 228, 228, 148, 190, 220 and 245, bringing his tournament total to 1,426. For 48 games, Anthony is averaging 231, seven pins per game better than Aubly, who enjoys the next highest average of 224. ... Aubly, a 19-year-old left-hander who leads the Professional Bowlers Association in 1980 earnings, rolled four frames in the 180s in the sixth round to almost eliminate himself from contention. ... Anthony's 95 pins better than third place Pappy Trupp, of Jacksonville, Fla., who stands third.

Strange and Irwin share TPC margin

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Watson, runnerup to Lanny Curtis in last year's TPC and winner of two tournaments already this year, vaulted to the top of the leaderboard Friday when he birdied four of his first eight holes. But the year's leading money winner lost ground by suffering bogeys on four of his last seven. ... Irwin, who led the Tournament Players Championship in Philadelphia tied it with a 131 left in the final hole. ... Irwin started the round tied for the lead with Steve Melnyk, who fell a stroke off the pace Friday by shooting a 72-140 that had him tied for runner-up honors with Ed McCullister and Don Pate. ... # Ted Williams enjoys helping rookies

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Some of the competitive fires are banked now since there is no need for them in the autumn of his years. But the old look of the eagles is still in his eyes, maybe because it's spring again, and that has always meant one thing to Ted Williams. ... "I love being down here this time of year, hearing the crack of the bat, seeing all these young kids trying to make it and helping them out the little I'm able," said Boston's celebrated 61-year-old Hall of Famer, standing behind the batting cage all by himself and yelling encouragement to each of the Red Sox youngsters who stepped inside. ... "The biggest kick I get," he said, peering through the netting of the cage at a tall, youngster who had moved in, "is seeing some kid like this one, who came into camp two years ago and then made it. It's kind of progress he has, just watch him hit. He's only 21 and he's gonna play third base for this club one day." ... Williams was talking about Glenn Hoffman, a product of the Little Leagues in Orange, Calif., who hit 285 with Pawtucket of the International League last season and has looked so good this spring, he'll probably stay with Boston. ... Hoffman finished his turn in the cage and was followed by another right-handed hitting rookie infielder, Dave Stapleton. He was with Pawtucket last year also and hit .306. ... "The biggest kick I get," he said, peering through the netting of the cage at a tall, likely to keep him, too. ... "Here's a kid who reminds me of Harvey Kuenn," said Williams, watching Stapleton intently. "He's the same kind of stand-up hitter. Look at the way he handles the bat." ... Stapleton took his five swings and started down his first base line. ... "You really look good, Stap," Williams called out to him. ... "Thanks," Ted ... acknowledged the 26-year-old Fairhope, Ala., native. ... Williams watched some of the other farm hands hit and talked about them, rather than about himself or about his own career until he was asked whether he would do anything differently. He was given another chance. ... "I would've been a little more serious at the beginning of my career," he said. "It was near the end, but for most of the time I played, hitting was the only thing with me. I could've been a more complete player. Joe Cronin (former Red Sox manager) tried to impress me there were other things besides hitting, but you know how it is when you're a kid." ... A middle-aged woman standing outside the wire fence around the field motioned to Williams that she would like his autograph. He could've easily ignored her, pretending he didn't see her, but he signed it himself and wrote his signature for her. ... When he returned behind the cage, he spoke some more about his playing days. ... "It was never the game itself that made life tough. It was the emotional things that bothered me most," he confided. "Like having to deal with the press or home. Those are the things that weigh on a ballplayer's mind. The average person who sees a ballgame doesn't ever realize what's going on inside a ballplayer." ... "Say," Williams suddenly interrupted his trend of thought, "do you ever run into my old friend, Frank Lane? He and I were never with the same ballpark but we always got along well. He should be in the Hall of Fame for what he did as a baseball executive. He kept the game pretty lively from the front office for 15 years or more." ... Williams, who managed the Washington Senators and Texas Rangers after retiring as a

Ability to relate McNamara plus

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — One of the biggest things John McNamara has going for him as manager of the Cincinnati Reds is his ability to relate to the way he relates to other people. ... Since bad news travels fast, it didn't take long for him to hear how Larry Brown in Sun City, Ariz., had decided George Bamberger suffered a mild heart attack and how that meant the hospitalized Milwaukee manager wouldn't be able to resume his job until late May or early June. ... McNamara played against Bamberger in the Pacific Coast League back in the '50s. The two men are friends. More than that, both being big league managers, they are linked by a common bond — the everyday pressure that goes with the job, so each can feel something for the other. ... McNamara was under intense pressure last year when he replaced the enormously popular Sparky Anderson, who was suddenly fired after guiding the Reds to five division titles, four National League pennants and two world championships. ... Opening day last year was especially harrowing. McNamara remembered. There was probably more pressure on him than he ever had before. ... # Whalers proving surprise

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — When the season began, most experts predicted the NHL cellar would be the expanded National Hockey League's Hartford Whalers with grandfather Gordie Howe would be one of the last predators. ... The Whalers shocked many observers when they moved "home" to the Hartford Civic Center in February for the first time since the arena's renovation two years ago. They had been playing their home games 30 miles away in Springfield, Mass. ... The Whalers played at a 700 clip in the first dozen games in the rebuilt coliseum ... and were playing better than 800 with Mark Howe on the blue line, where he scores nine goals and 31 assists in his first 29 games. As of March 16, Mark's 72 points were tops among NHL defencemen. ... They worked their way up to 12th in the NHL's overall standings and faced the bright prospect of having seven of their last 12 games at home. ... "The higher up we finish, the closer we finish to teams of our own caliber," says Coach Don MacLeod. ... "Say we finish 10th or 11th, then we're playing the 7th or 8th best team in the first round of the playoffs. ... Even though the last dozen games included two contests with Montreal and one with Philadelphia, Blackburn is certain his charges have found themselves. ... "It's too late in the year now for us shooting to finish "as high as we can get. We don't want to end up last of the 16 playoff teams and meet the best in the circuit in the first round." ... Hull has been finding himself after missing much of the season with a shoulder injury. But he's already picked up several assists and the crowd buzzes when he hits the ice. The Golden Jet is also thinking playoffs. ... "It's been very few years I haven't been in the playoffs," he says. "In a short series, it can be done. Most of us always miss. These are all a really great group of guys. I think they appreciate I've come here to try and help out as much as I can," Hull says. ... When one looks at average ages, the Whalers are the oldest team — primarily due to Howe. 51, Hull, 41, and Keon, 40. But Hull says all of that experience could come in handy in the playoffs. ... DETROIT (UPI) — NHL Executive Vice President Brian O'Neill Tuesday reversed a mandatory one-game suspension levied against Mike Foligno of the Detroit Red Wings. ... The suspension stemmed from Foligno's being assessed a double-minor and game misconduct penalty as the first man to leave the players' bench during a fight Sunday night in Detroit's game with Winnipeg. ... # Denies report

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Flames' owner Tom Cousins has denied published reports he is negotiating a deal with a Calgary business group to sell his financially plagued NHL team. His statement came in response to a report in the Toronto Globe and Mail Thursday the sale of the Flames for $14 million had been discussed with Darryl Donald and Byron Seaman of Calgary. ... "The team has not been sold," Cousins said Thursday. "It hasn't even been offered for sale." Bob Reul, president of the Atlanta team, says "expressions of interest" had been received from Calgary as well as Houston and Dallas, but he said Cousins was "not interested in keeping the team in Atlanta."

Collectors' Corner 'Bob' wire specimens show good selection

By RUSS MacKENDRICK Bringing us the spirit of Marlboro Country in this exhibit of "bob" wire loaned by a local collector. It is a good selection out of the seven hundred varieties patented in the past century when the West was being won. Each piece of "stick," as they are called, is about 18 inches long - the standard size for displaying this type of treasure. The topmost one shown here has the barbs twisted around a length of square wire. The squareness defeats the tendency of the barbs to work loose and spin around. The barbs can be put on with a simple twist, while the barbs on the next two sticks, on round wire, have to be secured with a fancy double loop. The third specimen from the top is a Buffalo Wire. It is made extra thick and heavy, not so much to hold the critter back as to enable him to see it. The following two pieces carry the visibility feature a little further. Actually they belong to a class called in the trade, Obvious Fencing. The one with the square pieces is a Stub's Plate. Each plate carries sharp points to repel wanderers. The other "obvious" is a rowel type with wheels such as you might see on a spur. Both of these developments were found to be too costly to manufacture. The lower sticks, the Ribbon and the Rickrack, belong to the "Ornamentals." These are used to protect a barnyard or cemetery or other areas not out on the range. The Time/Life Encyclopedia of Collectibles, in the book entitled "Advertising Giveaways to Baskets," gives an excellent brief survey of the barbed-wire hobby. One illustration shows some inexpensive sticks to start a collection with: the Brinkerhoff Ribbon Wire; the Daniel C. Stover Two-Line Wire; Scott's Single Clip, and Hodges's Spur Rowel - which looks very much like number 5 in our picture. Time/Life continues with

Keefe surprises, stays

Language week marked by school

SOUTH WINDSOR - Students and teachers at Timothy Edwards School recognized National Language Week at the school with a series of special events. Special events Monday included participation in projects recognizing Quebec and Martique and the showing of a slide and film presentation highlighting the two French speaking areas. Tuesday students submitted a poster or bumper sticker with a slogan to promote the learning of a second language in school. Other events during the week include American Field Service Day and a demonstration of soccer techniques by members of the Hartford Hellions. Highlighting the week was an international dinner Wednesday night in the school cafeteria. Students enrolled in foreign language courses prepared dishes typical of French or Spanish-speaking countries. In cooperation with the project, the school cafeteria provided an international feast for lunches during the week with delicacies from the countries of Germany, Canada, Spain and Italy and foods associated with Scandinavia.

Opponents hit cuts in budget

HARTFORD (UPI) - The "hit list" to cut state spending proposed by leaders of the Legislature's powerful Appropriations Committee became the target of attack from state officials and the public Friday. Lawmakers, agency heads and the public lined up at a crowded public hearing in the Hall of the House to defend their particular subjects against elimination. The co-chairmen of the committee, Sen. Richard Schneller, D- Essex, and Rep. Gardner Wright, D- Bristol, issued a list in February they said could save the state $74 million by eliminating 30 state programs. Schneller said the list was meant to allow the Legislature to "explore alternatives to tax increases" as the state prepared to find money to pay for Gov. Ella Grasso's proposed $2.67 billion budget. But the list brought almost immediate outcry from lawmakers seeking to protect facilities in their area. State agency heads were especially upset at proposals to eliminate or consolidate educational, medical and mental programs. Lawmakers at Friday's hearing opposed a proposal to close the Laurel Heights Hospital in Shelton. They included Sen. Eugene Skowronski, D- Derby, Rep. John Spohnheimer, D- Derby, and Rep. Richard Beiden, R- Shelton.

Market plunges

NEW YORK (UPI) - An erratic stock market plunged to a 23-month low in the slowest trading of the year Friday amid investor uncertainty about the outlook for the economy and interest rates. The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly 2 points at the outset after Thursday's 11.86-point drubbing, fell 3.80 points to 78.15, the lowest level since it finished at 77.51 on April 13, 1978. The closely watched average dropped 26.54 points for the week, the sixth consecutive weekly setback since the Dow reached a 1980 high of 103.84 on Feb. 15. The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.42 to 58.24 and the price of a share shed 21 cents. Declines topped advances, 94 to 45, among the 1,835 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

TV DIALOGUE

ALL THE ALDAS — I recently saw an episode of "M.A.S.H." where the guest star's name was Robert Alda. Could you please tell me if this is Alan Alda's father? — Elaine Moore, Clayton, N.J.

Not only was it Alan Alda's father playing the abrasive senior surgeon, but his younger brother, Antony, appeared in the same episode as a young medic.

WHEN & WHY? — Did those two great actors, Michael Rennie and Stephen Boyd, die? When, if so, and why? I have tried to find out about their passing with no success. — E. Phillips, Clinton, Iowa Rennie, best-known for "The Day the Earth Stood Still" and TV's "The Thin Man," passed away in 1971. Boyd, remembered as Messala in "Ben Hur," died last year. Both deaths were due to natural causes.

SISTER ACT — Could you please settle a bet and tell me what relationship there is between Juliet and Hayley Mills? — Julie Ragyina, Lonawanda, N.Y.

Both actresses are the daughters of British actor John Mills. Juliet is Hayley's older sister by five years.

TOP CAT — Can you tell me who was the voice of Top Cat, one of my all-time favorite cartoon characters? — Helen Fogel, Asheville, N.C.

Arnold Stang, a popular character actor in a string of comedy and variety series in the early days of television, was the voice of Broadway's hippest alley cat.

NAMESAKE — I was named for Janet Gaynor, who was at the peak of her career when I was born. Could you tell me where I could write to her? — Jane Stoffel, Lewisville, Ohio

Did you know your namesake's real name is Laura Gainer? Anyway, you can contact her at P.O. Box 847, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. After retiring from films in the '30s, Ms. Gaynor recently made her Broadway debut in "Harold and Maude," which unfortunately closed after only a few performances.

ANY AND ALL — Please give me any information on Sam Elliott, private and professional — is he married, etc.? Weren't there plans to turn "The Innocent and the Damned" into a TV series? — D.B., Bloomington, Ind.

Privately, Elliott is a bachelor, although as of a couple of months ago he was still living with former co-star ("The Legacy") Katherine Ross in a Malibu trailer. Elliott, who has yet to land a decent movie role despite his good reviews and popularity in a string of TV roles, recently starred in "Wild Times," a western series that was syndicated nationally. His early feature films include "The Games" (1970), "Frogs," a grade B horror flick (which he considers his good-luck movie) made in '72, and "Molly and Lawless John," a low-budget western that co-starred Vera Miles. His first "big" role was in "Lifeguard," a small but critically acclaimed film that led to his numerous TV roles. There are no plans to turn "The Innocent and the Damned," originally titled "Aspen," into a series.

Suzanne Somers Works to Polish Image

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD — One thing is definite about Suzanne Somers' future. In two years, she must leave "Three's Company," regardless of the popularity of the show.

This pretty blonde is not dumb — certainly not like her television image.

Miss Somers has a contract with CBS that moves her television activity away from ABC at the expiration of her current pact with "Three's Company." CBS is committed to a 13-week series starring Suzanne and produced by her husband, Alan Hamel, well known Canadian television personality (he hosts a talk show that is produced in Los Angeles but airs only in Canada).

It is a unique contract, giving her all the options. She must do TV movies on CBS. But if she elects to do any theatrical features, that's her prerogative, with or without CBS, which happens to have its own new feature films division. If she should decide against a series, she must still quit "Three's Company" after two years, and she can't work for any other network for another two years.

But she can do any theatrical movies, nightclubs or whatever — except television — during that period.

Suzanne says she's interested in expanding in all directions. She is putting together a nightclub act, which she plans on breaking in — quietly — in Denver before opening at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas with Rich Little on March 27.

"I sing, dance and bring people up from the audience," she explains. "I don't tell jokes, but I tell anecdotes. There's a lot of humor in the act."

She also is concentrating on a film career. Her first major picture, "Nothing Personal," in which she co-stars with Donald Sutherland, is due for spring release. She plays a young, eager Washington lawyer who is hired by a tweedy professor (Sutherland) to fight the establishment for constructing an airbase that threatens an endangered species of whales.

"It is the first woman's role of the '80s," says Suzanne enthusiastically, adding, "I will be the envy of every woman in Hollywood. My character is sexy, creative, great sense of humor and independent. Every actress is going to wish she had the role."

Suzanne contends this is a great departure from Cissy, the flaky blonde of "Three's Company."

"I like to think the film role is close to my real life. I'm not dumb," she asserts. "Cissy is simply a little girl who doesn't grow up."

Given her choice of careers, Suzanne prefers theatrical films. She figures she has two years to build her theatrical career. "If it goes into the toilet, I will still have television," she notes. She has no intentions of trying to break away from "Three's Company."

"Farrah Fawcett left her series to go into movies, and that was the problem. She didn't have television to fall back on. At least, when you're on television, people turn you on every week. But if they reject you in films, then they're not going to see you on television either."

Besides Suzanne happens to enjoy doing the series. The popularity of "Three's Company," she feels, is due to the young audience who sees it "as just around the corner from what is happening to them."

Suzanne has a 14-year-old son, Bruce, from her previous marriage, and she says it wouldn't bother her if someday he lived in similar circumstances. Suzanne also notes that her son isn't impressed with her stature as a sex symbol. In fact, Bruce has a poster on the wall of his bedroom — of Farrah.

Success came quickly, once it beckoned, for Suzanne. But until "Three's Company," it was a difficult struggle. She worked in the San Francisco area, including bit parts in films on location there. She appeared in "Bullitt" and "Magnum Force."

At the time, her young son was seriously injured, and she faced $20,000 in hospital bills. A photographer friend got her to pose, reluctantly, for a Playboy session. "I did it out of necessity," she recalls. "I found it humiliating and embarrassing."

Playboy held on to the prints for 10 years, never used them until recently, when Suzanne became a superstar and sex queen of the posters. Her photos inspired an extra million sales for the magazine and a blast from Suzanne. She was unaware that the magazine intended to use the prints.

Recently, the magazine offered her $10,000 in cash and a diamond reportedly worth $40,000 (the $10,000 to her manager). Suzanne plans to turn both over to the Easter Seal Drive.

She calls the controversy her "Playboy crises" and says she'd like to have Hugh Hefner pose for photos that she would hold for 10 years, then use however she desires.

Offers deluge her. She's had to turn down some films because of date conflicts, others because she really didn't like the scripts. She will host the Easter Seal Telethon March 23 and 24 and tour with Bob Hope this summer. Then she plans to do another film with Sutherland, titled "Sitting Ducks."

She was offered the lead in "Fan Club" but rejected it. "I couldn't imagine being tied to a bed for three months — even if it is a Catholic girl's dream," she joked. She also had to turn down a film with Roger Moore because the hiatus wasn't coming soon enough.

How does she feel about being a sex symbol?

"I didn't go after it," she says. "A sex symbol is how the press perceives it. I don't dwell upon what I look like."

Incidentally, her film, "Nothing Personal," has some rather sexy scenes. Maybe that's why her husband spent a lot of time on the set. But Suzanne knew how to take care of him: "I gently told him to get lost," she says with a broad smile.
