Logging debris not bad

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — After considering a complaint against a town lumbering project that left the watershed flowing into the Globe Hollow Reservoir strewn with debris, the town Conservation Commission decided to take its concerns to Jay Giles, director of public works.

The commission will ask that the town require lumbering companies to conduct cleanup operations after clearing an area. But Giles indicated Friday that what might be visually unattractive is not necessarily harmful to natural forest areas.

The Rossi Corp. of Higganum recently completed a winter lumbering project for which it paid the town about $32,000. Giles said the project was designed to both increase the run-off capability of the watershed and to preserve the health of the wooded area. The previously dense covering of trees, the public works director said, threatened to suffocate the forest.

But the commission's chairwoman, Theresa Parla, said the company had left the watershed in deplorable condition. Other members called the scene a small disaster area.

Giles agreed with the commissioners that the woods near the Nike Site "looks devastated" and added "that concerned me, too." He surmised, however, that in the natural process of the forest, the small chips and branches littered along the tract, would become part of the forest's floor.

He also said that seedlings had been planted and in the opinion of the town's forester, George Murphy, the watershed was actually healthier than before the project was begun.

He also said that his initial reaction to cleanup activities being included in town lumbering contracts was that they would add expensive costs that might be unnecessary.

He said he understood the complaints but added the watershed was, "from our point of view a forest and not Center Springs Park." Legally, watershed areas are not open to public access.

In other business, Commissioner Dr. Douglas Smith expressed concern that reseedling had not started at the Union Pond sewer project. The town contracted to have about 2,000 feet of piping installed near the pond. Although the construction has been completed, Smith said the contractor had not yet begun to reseed the line.

He warned that further delays might prevent the town from taking advantage of the spring growing season. He also said the contractor's hesitancy could result in the pond's silting.

Giles said he was aware of the problem and that he expected to catch the growing season he said extended until late June. A town inspector has reported that the contractor in the process of sending equipment to the scene, Giles said.

Income tax nixed; Ella signs budget

By KATE McMAHON

HARTFORD (UPI) — The House Friday overwhelmingly rejected an attempt to institute a state income tax and approved a revenue package to raise $160.5 million in new and increased taxes.

The fiscal 1980-81 tax package passed on a 75-66 vote and the $2.7 billion budget approved by the Senate were signed into law by Gov. Ella Grasso at 6:30 p.m.

The revenue package includes a 2 percent tax on the gross profits of oil companies in Connecticut, a hike in the state sales tax to 7.5 percent and levies on large trucks and cigarettes.

Rep. Irving Stolberg, D-New Haven, co-chairman of the Legislature's tax-writing committee, conceded the package wasn't "perfect" but said it created the revenue needed to continue providing services.

House Minority Leader R.E. Van Norstrand, R-Darien, tried and failed to wipe out the tax increases with a series of GOP amendments. He concluded by displaying a rubber chicken and reiterated his warning to the Democrats that their big spending had caught up and the chickens had "come home to roost."

"The chickens have been plucked clean," he said.

Twenty Democrats bucked their leaders and joined Republicans in opposing the package. The amendment to impose a 4 percent state income tax on people who have an adjusted gross income over $10,000 was disposed of on a sound 17-126 vote.

But a Republican amendment to keep the sales tax at 7 percent gave the Democratic majority a scare and was barely defeated on a 72-73 vote after little debate.

Most of the noise came over the income tax amendment proposed by Rep. Andrew Glickson, D-Norwalk.

Rep. Gardner Wright, D-Bristol, co-chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee, said the real question was when Connecticut would break down and impose a state income tax.

"We cannot continue to provide services on the revenues we now have. It doesn't work," Wright said.

Rep. Dorothy Goodwin, D-Mansfield, who noted she'd been fighting for an income tax for 25 years, said Connecticut could not continue to operate with its "scotch tape and chewing gum" tax system.

"This redistributes the burden in an infinitely more rational way than we do now," she said.

The anti-income tax forces argued it would only hurt the little guy and the wealthy would find the loopholes to get out of it.

"The person that is really going to pay this income tax is the poor working man who comes home with a W2 form. He's not going to beat this tax," said House Majority Leader John Grappo, D-Winsted.

Rep. John Anderson, D-Newtown, called an income tax an "injustice" which would lift the lid on state spending and send it flying.

The House approved a Senate amendment chipping the controversial 1 percent tax on unincorporated businesses designed to raise about $20 million.

It was replaced with a package that will raise the same amount by increasing fees and rates on trucks and collecting vehicle registration fees every two years instead of one year. The bill would raise the truck weight limit from 73,000 pounds to 80,000 pounds.

Both the hike in the sales tax from 7 percent to 7.5 percent and the 2 percent tax on gross earnings of oil companies are expected to raise about $60 million dollars each.

Rep. Yorke Allen, R-New Canaan, called the oil company tax unconstitutional and illegal and said "it will ooze back to us. It will come back to us and haunt us."

The package will raise another $19 million by dropping the sales tax exemption on cigarettes, a measure that was expected to cost smokers an additional six cents a pack.

Cassano says new CD vote is needed

By MARY KITZMAN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The administrative complaints filed against Manchester are added impetus for a November referendum on whether to continue the Community Development moratorium, Stephen Cassano, deputy mayor, said Friday.

The voters' right to decide the town's direction is jeopardized by the complaints, Cassano said, as federal pressure is applied.

"It's the voters' right to decide whether or not we continue the moratorium," he said. "After the moratorium ends we should have the voters say in whether we participate in the program or not."

Cassano said he was ready to request a Board of Directors' vote on calling a referendum in May or June. The matter must be considered by July for a November vote.

Mayor Stephen Penny suggested a referendum last month, saying the board needed direction after the moratorium ended. Strong opposition to reconsidering the HUD suit quickly appeared.

Although most of the directors contacted in March support seeking voter input on the town's next step, four directors oppose a referendum question.

Republicans Peter Sylvester, Gloria DellaFera, and Democrats James McCavanagh and Arnold Klemschmidt oppose the referendum. Supporters are Democrats Cassano, Penny, and Republicans Peter DiRosa and William Diana. It has been reported that the deciding vote falls to Democrat Barbara Weinberg.

Penny proposed the referendum when the board was considering imposing a 90-day moratorium on condominium conversions. He said perhaps the town's housing shortage would make voters reconsider the program.

Cassano's call for the referendum stems from the complaints filed with five federal agencies asking that all of Manchester's federal funds be withdrawn. Nicholas Carbone, former Hartford deputy mayor, and Mildred Torres, former Hartford councilwoman, filed the complaints with the U.S. Departments of Treasury, Commerce, Labor, Interior, and Transportation.

Manchester receives about $6 million in federal aid.

The complaints charge that by withdrawing from the CD program the town is practicing "regional segregation." The Hartford City Council decided in February not to pursue its similar complaints filed with the departments.

Cassano is also advocating that federal funds be withheld. Manchester residents should until their federal taxes in escrow until the aid is restored.

"Why should we keep paying and receive nothing in return," he asked?

He said that "he wouldn't be surprised" that the filing of the complaints would create unanimous board support for the November referendum.

"It's just a common sense approach," he said. "There will be a high turnout in a presidential election year, the highest number of citizens would vote on the referendum. Why should we spend money three months later when we can do it without additional cost?"

However, Cassano said he expected the vote to be overwhelmingly in favor of continuing the moratorium. "It probably will be 3 to 1 again if not more," he said.

Main Street price tag cut in half

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Original estimates of $12,500 for the town's share in the reconstruction of Main Street have been cut in half, according to Jay J. Giles, director of public works.

Federal and State funding had called for as much as a 30 percent share by the town in the $2.2 million project which would see Main Street, from Ford Street to its intersection with Charter Oak Street and Hartford Road, totally revitalized. But changes in funding allocations dropped Manchester's share to 7.5 percent, $188,000 of a project which was originally estimated at $1.4 million in March of 1977.

The increased estimates, according to Giles, come as a result of an extensive hydraulic study of the Dry Brook drainage system and a parking survey of the area along and immediately adjacent to Main Street. In addition to those developments, construction costs, which have risen dramatically, had to be updated.

Giles announced Friday the town had signed an agreement with Fuss & O'Neill Inc. for engineering consulting services, the first phase of the project.

Survey work on Main Street is slated to begin as early as May 1 and should be completed within three months. Preliminary engineering studies will follow, and may take four months to complete. They include an environmental study, the parking study, a traffic study, an inventory of existing street lighting and the Dry Brook study.

Fuss & O'Neill has been given 15 months to complete the work and Giles said they will meet periodically during the project with town, state and Manchester Parking Authority officials to gather ideas and information. When a recommended scheme is developed, the Board of Directors will seek input from taxpayers at a public meeting.

After the Department of Transportation reviews Fuss & O'Neill's findings, and they meet its approval, Giles said the firm can proceed with the preliminary design phase, which should take about three months. The final design phase will be completed by the fall of 1981 and construction is targeted to begin April 1, 1982.

"It's not a couple of months and then bingo," Giles said Friday. "A lot of time for meetings and hearings is scheduled along the way." When asked if the reconstruction was part of the downtown redevelopment, Giles said, "I'd hate to say it that way, but it helps to revitalize the downtown area, fine."

As the crowd screamed its approval and set fire to American flags, Bani-Sadr — the man on whom the United States had pinned its strongest hopes for a peaceful resolution of the 160-day-old hostage crisis — delivered his most militant and virulently anti-American speech since becoming president.

The occasion was a national "Day of Unity," in which Iranians were exhorted to take to the streets in every town and city to denounce the United States and Iraq.

Supermarket Shopper

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I am a supermarket cashier and have worked in the same store for 23 years.
I try to handle my customers' coupons quickly and accurately. But a few coupon clippers cause me problems.
They hand me large pieces — or even full pages — of the newspaper. They expect me to tear out the coupons for them.
They don't give me the coupons before they get to the checkout counter.
I am a cashier from Bakersfield, Calif.
DEAR CASHIER — It isn't fair for shoppers to expect you to do their coupon clipping for them.
You can't win either way. You risk offending the customer if you hand back the paper. And you hold up the lines if you start tearing out the coupons.
But if your store adopts the policy that cashiers cannot tear out customers' coupons and if you explain that policy when you politely give back the paper to the customer, the burden will fall where it justly should — back on the offending party.
DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — How do we shoppers convince stores to offer double coupon savings? Would it help to write letters to the stores or to speak to the store managers? — Linda K.

'Clip your own coupons,' says cashier

MANCHESTER — Many readers have asked what they can do to get their supermarket coupons. Unfortunately, there isn't much that shoppers can do. A store's decision to offer double coupons is primarily based on the strength of its competition and its need for new customers.
Double-value coupons tend to be offered in the more affluent parts of the South. But they were recently advertised in a Houston newspaper, and I have a feeling you are not there in your area.
DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — To really benefit from grocery bargains, you need to shop at several stores. That usually means going from store to store by automobile.
You should remind your readers to consider the price of gasoline when shopping for their supermarket savings. — Patricia from Weston, Mass.
DEAR PATRICIA — You are right. We should take the cost of gasoline into account in judging whether it is worthwhile to shop at several stores.
I calculate that a gallon of gas takes me about 15 miles and costs me about $1.30. That gallon is enough for a round trip to four supermarkets in my area, or to speak to the store managers & — Linda K.

In the afternoon it was bridge time and the lucky prize winners were: Rene Mair, 3,150; Helen Hardacre, 3,500; George Last, 3,580; Tom Reagan, 4,410.
During the afternoon we heard that Carl Reuther who has been in the hospital for about a week should be getting out today and will recuperate at his home, 72 East Center St. Also, we heard that Charlie Tucker and Adelaide are patients at the local hospital.
You know for some reason this just hasn't been my week. Now I realize that when we move into new buildings we find things somewhat different, and it is just a matter of time for us all to get ourselves acquainted and acclimated to our new ways.
We realize that changes will have to be made eventually and would hope you would all realize that changes had to be made and for a number of reasons. Just give us a break and have patience and understanding. Thank God the majority are doing just that.
What bothers many of our people and staff is that many times I have asked for volunteers to give us a helping hand with the necessary renovations when all the work was going on. Then we find that most of the complainants never volunteered to help in any way. I guess that's par for the course in most organizations and one can't thank God for the majority who appreciate all our efforts because, believe it or not, we have a senior center second to none and rah rah for the men and women who spend many hours of hard work has made it all possible.
We still have a few seats left for the dog track and those who have signed up for Bus 7, please bring in your money for the trip as the second bus will go on O.K. remember that May 3 is our Open House Dedication Services here at 12:30 p.m. We have

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I am a supermarket cashier and have worked in the same store for 23 years. I try to handle my customers' coupons quickly and accurately. But a few coupon clippers cause me problems. They hand me large pieces — or even full pages — of the newspaper. They expect me to tear out the coupons for them. They don't give me the coupons before they get to the checkout counter. I am a cashier from Bakersfield, Calif.

Making our own: synthetic fuels

Editor's Note: This is the 13th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Energy and the Way We Live." In this article, John H. Gibbons and William Upton Chandler of the Office of Technology Assessment weigh the costs and benefits of synthetic fuels. This series, written for Courses by Newspaper, a program of University Extension, University of California, San Diego, was funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, with supplemental funding from the National Science Foundation.

By John H. Gibbons
and William Upton Chandler

Gasohol—10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline—is one of the synthetic fuels that have attracted the attention of some who worry about energy. Substituting alcohol and other synthetic fuels for gasoline could help relieve the problems of dwindling domestic and uncertain imported oil supplies.

To promote "synthetics," the U.S. government may spend tens of billions of dollars. But to do so without considering the enormous economic and environmental costs would be a mistake. Indeed, the cost of synthetics may be so high that conservation, including government subsidies for retrofitting industry, will be a far better investment for at least the next decade.

The excitement surrounding synthetics is understandable. Seventy-five percent of the energy we use today is derived from crude oil and natural gas, and the fuels we use are mostly liquids and gases.

Solid fuels like coal will be restricted in usefulness unless they can be liquefied or gasified, especially for transportation uses. Even increasing the use of solid fuels in making electricity will not solve our problems—unless, of course, the electric car can be perfected—because only 10 percent of the energy used by consumers is in the form of electricity.

Thus, with the oil and gas shortage, many persons have become convinced that we must have synthetic fuels now at any price.

The methane scenario

Like all of our commonly used fuels, natural gas consists of hydrogen and carbon atoms. Naturally occurring methane gas was produced by the pressure and heat of the earth breaking down the complex molecules of buried plants and animals. This process, destructive distillation, can be replicated in gasification plants in which wood or any suitable hydrogen-carbon compound is subjected to heat and pressure.

Gas can also be produced by using certain bacteria to "digest" biomass in the absence of air. In either case, large-scale production of synthetic gas from biomass currently costs several times as much as natural gas.

Alcohol liquids may be produced from biomass using common distillation techniques. Biological materials are fermented by the addition of yeast, and then ethyl alcohol is distilled from the "soup."

Pure alcohol cannot be used in cars without major engine alterations, but alcohol (up to 15 percent) blended with gasoline can be burned without any engine modification. Some gasohol is being produced and marketed today. The alcohol fraction is subsidized by the government to about 40 cents per gallon, and is competitive for this reason.

Synthetic gas is also being marketed today in very small quantities. In the Midwest, gas made from stockyard manure is delivered through natural gas pipelines to Chicago consumers. The cost is low because the manure is free, though limited.

In terms of the environment, biomass-derived fuels could be either benign or catastrophic because removing wood and crop residues from soil reduces its fertility. The amount of residue which may be removed safely varies by soil type and must be studied carefully.

Oil shale

Oil shale is another possible source of fuel. Enormous quantities of liquid kerogen, a substance similar to oil, are trapped in the pores of shale rock in Utah and Colorado. Retorting, or heating, shale frees the kerogen, which can be converted into substitutes for gasoline, diesel, fuel oil, and the like.

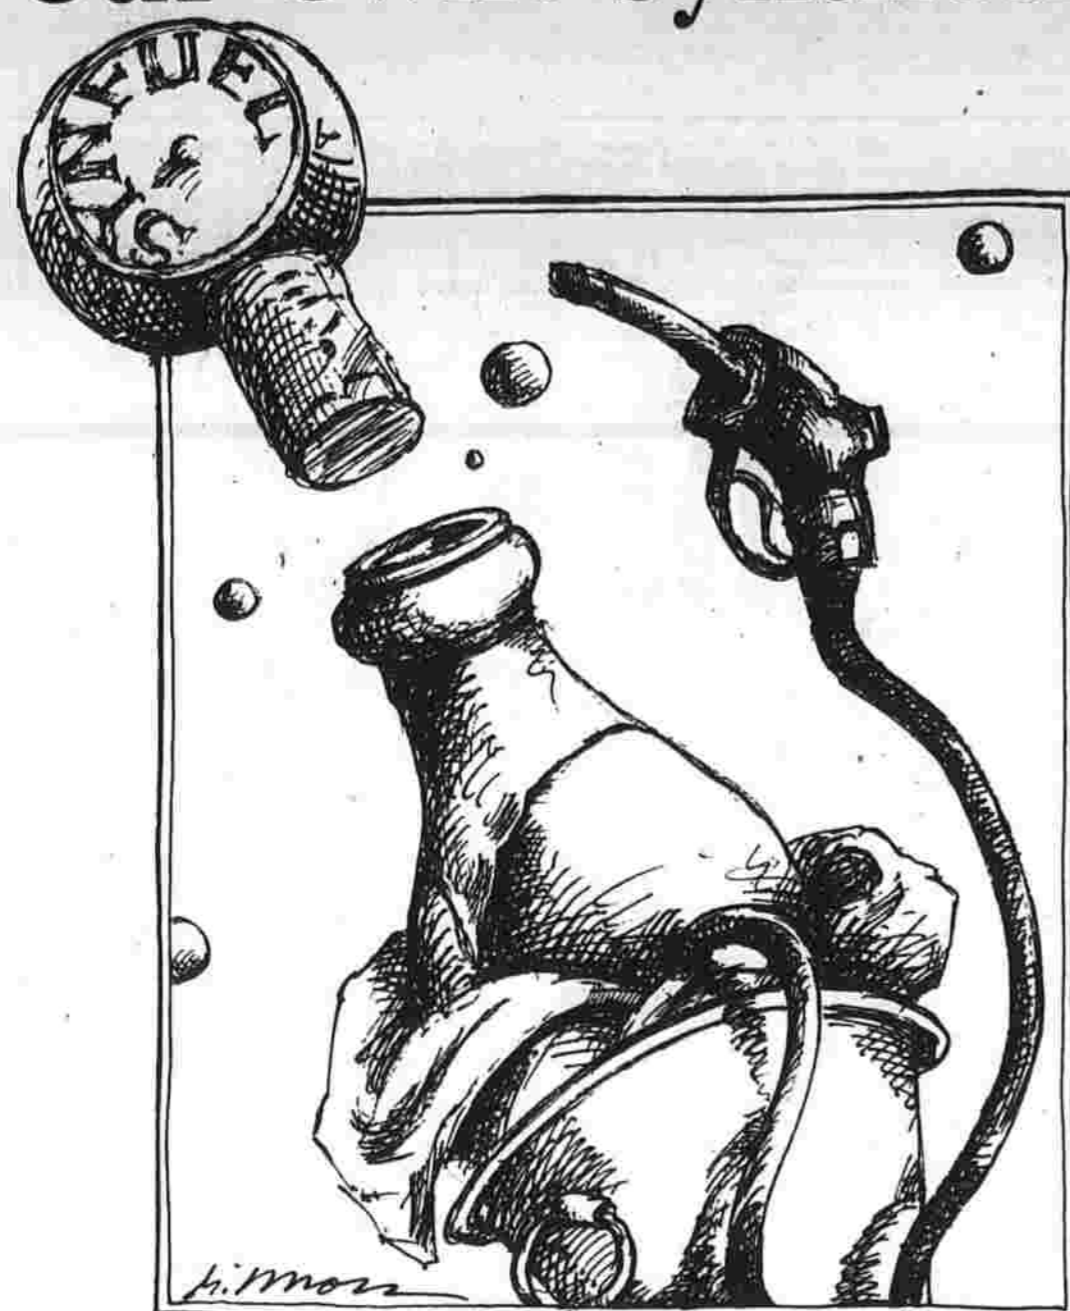

The problems of producing oil from shale, however, make us question its feasibility. One problem is that oil shale is more shale than oil. Mining and retorting each ton of shale rock produces only 25 to 35 gallons of oil.

A second problem is that up to five barrels of water are required to produce and refine a barrel of shale oil. The already grim shortage of water in the oil shale regions of arid Utah and Colorado may strictly limit shale oil production.

Still another difficulty is that the technology of producing oil from shale is not well advanced, and only a few small plants have been constructed. There is also the potential for polluting water and air with the poisonous and cancer-causing materials that are present in shale.

Coal gasification

Coal, like biomass, can be converted readily to a liquid or to methane gas. But even under the best circumstances, coal conversion "wastes" about one-third of the potential energy in the coal. This fuel loss, coupled

Community Forum

A second in a series of community forums on the Courses by Newspaper topics, Energy and the Way We Live, will be given on Sunday at 2 p.m. in the music room at the Manchester Community College Bidwell Street campus.

The forums, offered in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Humanities, the U.S. Department of Energy and the Connecticut Humanities Council, cover issues of common concern with speakers from the humanities and from the professional field.

The Sunday forum, entitled "Decisions and Tradeoffs," will include as speakers Richard Lawrence, president of Lawrence Associates, architects and planners, AIA; Paul Gillies, energy consultant for the Department of Commerce of the State of Connecticut; and Dr. Alan Arnold, professor of biology and environmental sciences at Manchester Community College.

The moderator is Dr. Richard Lent, chairman of the Social Science Division at Manchester Community College.

Each speaker will focus on one aspect of the topic, after which there will be open discussion with members of the audience. For additional information, call the Community Services Division of Manchester Community College, 648-2157.

with the high price of conversion equipment, makes the price of synthetics high.

Coal liquids can be produced by a number of processes, including the Fischer-Tropsch process used in Nazi Germany to produce synthetic fuel from coal. The process produces gasoline and many other compounds by first gasifying coal and then synthesizing the gases into liquids.

Alternatively, methyl alcohol may be produced from coal. Whatever fuel is made, however, the cost is high. Oil from coal may cost $50 or more per barrel, compared with an average $22 per barrel for oil in 1979.

Coal production already demands a high price in human terms, as well. Families who live near strip mines suffer thousands of dollars of damages to their homes from blasting, landslides, and flooding. The agony suffered by underground miners who get lung disease is reflected in the cost of health care and benefits required to ameliorate this problem: $1 billion each year. And 200 miners die in the mines each year. These human costs conceivably could be doubled by a major coal-based synthetic fuels program.

Next week: Denis Hayes, Executive Director of the Solar Energy Research Institute, discusses the need for, and the impact of, energy conservation.

Costs of synthetics

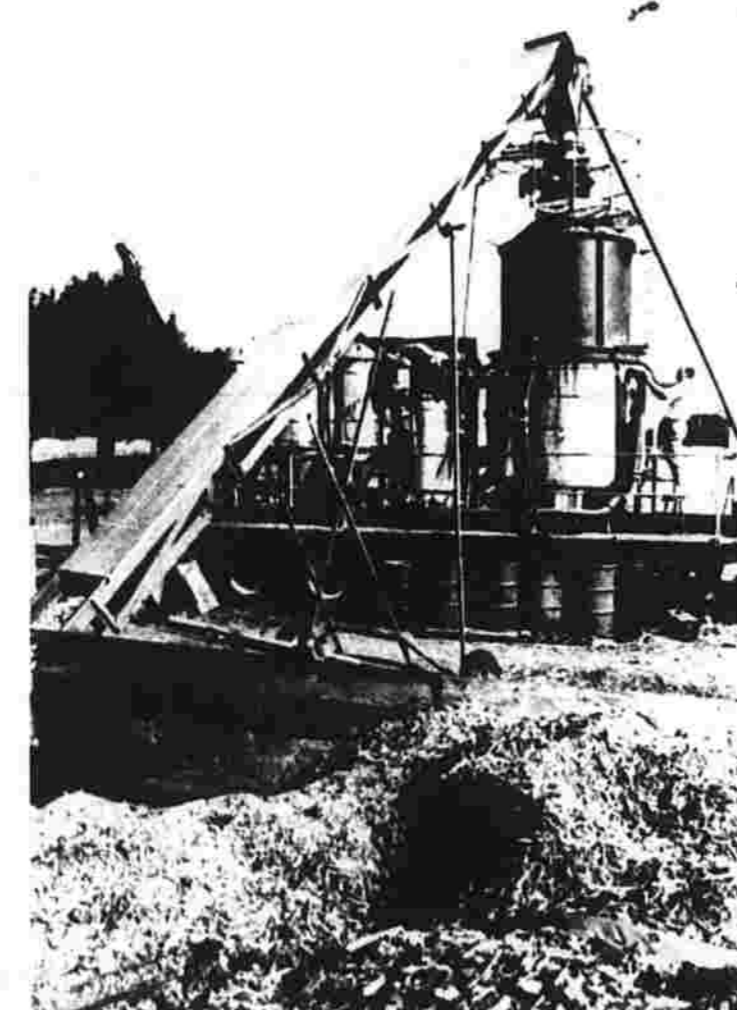

The U.S. government may spend approximately $80 billion—the amount requested by President Carter—over the next few years to develop synthetic fuels. The hoped-for benefits would be about 1.5 million barrels of synthetic oil per day by 1985, or about 10 tanks of gasoline per car per day if all the product went into automobile fuel production. The synthetic gasoline would cost at least $2 per gallon in addition to the $400 per person needed for the $80 billion start-up cost.

The amount of energy that could be "produced" by doubling the mileage obtained by all American cars by 1990 would amount to 2.5 million barrels per day, about 15 tanks of gasoline per car per year.

Even greater savings are possible with reductions in safety or comfort. But achieving this conservation goal for automobiles would require government subsidies to accelerate retrofitting our auto industry. Such an investment, however, would be more effective, since a far more expensive investment in synthetics.

At some point we will need a large synthetic fuels industry: "when" is largely a matter of the cost of synthetics relative to conventional fuels. A logical entry plan might begin by immediately developing and adding to our gas supply the unconventional natural gas that is too expensive to produce under price controls. Later, gas from biomass and coal could be added. The existing gas pipeline system can serve three-fourths of all Americans, and gas can be put to almost any use, including operating vehicles.

Liquid synthetic production then could be started in a few years by building a few full-scale plants to gain practical experience with processes using various hydrocarbon

Wings of Morning

Sunday after Easter

By CLIFF SIMPSON

"Tomorrow is the Sunday after Easter, sometimes called the second Sunday in Easter. It is also called 'Low Sunday.' I suppose, because after the crowds of Easter the attendance is 'low.'"

"Has anyone got a more theological reason for the name? For years during my preaching days I felt that there was something wrong about the homiletic time spent on Christmas and Easter. During Advent and up to the Christmas Eve candlelight Communion Service much is said about the birth of Jesus. During Lent there is much preparation on meditation, penance, Bible study, and the like.

"I can recall having three preaching services each Sunday, a Thursday midweek service, and then through Holy Week two services every day ending, with Holy Communion on Maundy Thursday, followed on Good Friday with the Three Hour Service commemorating the time Jesus spent on the Cross, but none of all this except the theme of 'Life Eternal' except the Easter morning service.

"I feel that the doctrine is of so much importance that more time should be spent in the pulpit sharing with the congregation the actual 'doctrine' and its influence on daily living.

"How to survive a sermon. Several weeks ago I began quoting from the College of Preachers Newsletter, an article written by Clement W. Welsh, but omitted the article last Saturday because of the importance of Easter. It now continues with Strategy No. 3 Let your mind wander. The art of mind-wandering is sadly neglected in these busy times. If the preacher announces a subject and clearly has nothing to say about it but platitudes, let your imagination create the sermon that is ending the preacher.

"You have 15 minutes to ask yourself questions that are so important that they tend, paradoxically, to be neglected. 'Why am I here? What do I believe? What do I really want? Of what am I deeply afraid?' If a real question grasps you by its excitement, go see the preacher later in the week and talk about it. Such conversations can be powerful sermons in dialogue and good for the preacher as well as you. (Did I ever occur to you that the preacher is as bored with the sermon as you are?)

"Preachers need stimulation to be enabled to produce stimulating ideas. Let me add that often the best sermons a preacher puts together come from just such a dialogue because they are meeting the questions and the need of the members in the congregation. Try it. (I would welcome similar help in putting this column together.)

"Friendship — how little we work at it! Some weeks ago I suggested that we reach out to others in friendship and seek to cultivate casual acquaintances into meaningful friends. Apparently this accent is needed in some parts of our 'City of Village

Charm.' I have in my hand a letter that speaks of moving into a 'nice' neighborhood — and yet for seven years, yes, seven long and arduous years, neither door citizens spoke a word of welcome or greeting.

"From the sublime to the every-day. If you would like a post-Easter opportunity to study what Paul thought about Life After Death, as the heading in the New English Bible has introduced Chapter 15, read his epistle to the church at Corinth beyond demands of Holy Week and Easter. Look carefully at the annual report of your church, look in the paper at what MACC is serving, consider how the ministry is available all night, and think of the chaplains in prisons and hospitals, the armed forces and mental institutions. What a help so many situations! I feel a little like the writer of Hebrews who is trying to tell of the power of faith and what it did through individuals across the centuries, finally exclaimed, limit, since you know that in the Lord labor cannot be lost." And then in the very next verse he descends from the heights of writing about Life Eternal and reminds them of their social responsibility with five words:

"And what more shall I say? For the time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson — (11:32) Consider! Think! Pray! and then get the best bargain in town — your church — and support it.

"And now concerning the collection. . . . Perhaps at this time it might not be amiss to remind those who gave an offering last Sunday that the expenses of the church persist beyond demands of Holy Week and Easter. Look carefully at the annual report of your church, look in the paper at what MACC is serving, consider how the ministry is available all night, and think of the chaplains in prisons and hospitals, the armed forces and mental institutions. What a help so many situations! I feel a little like the writer of Hebrews who is trying to tell of the power of faith and what it did through individuals across the centuries, finally exclaimed,

"And what more shall I say? For the time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson — (11:32) Consider! Think! Pray! and then get the best bargain in town — your church — and support it.

Guilty

I never cut my neighbor's throat; My neighbor's gold I never stole; I never spoiled his house and land; But God gave mercy on my soul! For I am haunted night and day By all the deeds I have not done: O unattempted loveliness! O costly virtue never won!

The chuckle

Have you come across this fable about Theodore Roosevelt? After his death, he ascended to Heaven where he was hustled about and made himself a nuisance by insisting that he be given some major responsibility. At last, almost out of patience, Saint Peter told him to organize and train a new celestial choir.

However, T.R. continued to be a nuisance by the force persistence with which he pressed his requisitions. "I must have 10,000 sopranos, 10,000 contraltos, and 10,000 tenors," he demanded, of the bewildered and weary St. Peter and hurriedly! Everything is waiting on you." "Yes," said St. Peter, "but what about the basses?" "Teddy fixed him with a scornful stare and belittled, 'I'll sing bass.'

Henry Ward Beecher used as an illustration of the fact that one could not with the eye detect iron particles in a dish of sand, but if he should run a magnet through the sand, the metal would be drawn to it.

Could we apply this truth to life? The most perceptive person often overlooks the potential in another. He has difficulty in perceiving the true "metal" of any person. But there is a sure way for one's possibilities to be manifested — let Christ pass by! His way of life is perfectly calculated to bring out the best in you. Obviously, many are not attracted to him, but only because they are in a magnetic fence of materialism.

Let Christ and his teachings dwell in your mind for a time and they will become part of your life, bringing out your greatest potential. No matter how successful a school, crib room, child care, would be infinitely more so with him.

CofC group sees Lydall

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — About 30 members of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce attended yesterday's Friday Forum at the corporate headquarters of Lydall Inc., 1 Colonial Road.

Lydall Inc. is a diversified manufacturer of industrial products. Although the corporation has 17 plants spread throughout the country, its predecessor companies were located in Manchester more than 100 years ago.

Last year the nearly $1 million corporate headquarters was completed after directors decided to remain based in town. In that year the company recorded $109 million in sales and earnings of $2.7 million.

Millard H. Pryor Jr., president of Lydall, told the local businessmen, "It is very important for large employers in town to understand that the town has to prosper if business is to prosper."

He said that after considering an offer from the City of Hartford, the corporation decided to stay in Manchester. "The conclusion we finally reached is that we liked it here and we're happy we stayed," Pryor said.

The Lydall & Foulds Division, at 615 Parker St., produces packaging materials for consumer goods. Pryor said over $1 million was spent last year to upgrade the plant's equipment. He added that although the firm had 29 percent of the New England market, its position was dependent on what he called volatile market conditions.

"As the market goes, so goes the plant," the firm's president said. Regarding the corporate headquarters, he said, "We expect to be in Manchester a long, long time."

Pryor predicted that it would take the nation at least two years to recover from the recession he said it was now entering. He said that although Lydall, like most other businesses, would experience hard times over "the short run," the corporation was prepared to withstand the economic pressures.

Lydall has recently completed a three-year research and development project aimed at producing an alternative to hazardous asbestos. Pryor said he expects the new product, called Lythem, to contribute significantly to company profits in the next two years.

Another product, an industrial leather substitute, has also been introduced. It is viewed as a less expensive alternative to leather, which Pryor said would become very expensive in the coming years.

The company began an aggressive acquisition program in 1977, hoping to guarantee its long-term success. It is now consolidating its varied operations. Pryor called the corporation well-financed and, therefore, "in the fortunate position of looking at long-term potential."

Ford dealer low in town car bids

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Dillon Ford came in with the lowest bids in three categories and the highest miles per gallon in two Friday morning when bids for 18 new town cars were opened at town hall.

Five local auto dealers — Manchester Plymouth, Chorches, Charter Oak Buick, Carter Chevrolet and Dillon — participated in bidding for four eight-cylinder police vehicles, nine six-cylinder patrol cruisers, five mid-sized administrative cars and five four-cylinder automobiles.

The categories were broken down into specifications the Board of Directors approved recently, including the six-cylinder cruisers some policemen, including Chief Robert Leman, have criticized as an unnecessary handicap.

All the dealers bid in the part "C" category calling for five six-cylinder mid-sized cars for administrative personnel.

Fresh or just pretend

Flowers know no season

By BETTY RYDER
Family Editor

Those April showers are supposed to bring May flowers, but just in case they don't, an East Hartford woman makes them "bloom" all year round.

Rose Viola of 68 Deepwood Drive, a full-time employee at ERA — Blanchard & Rossetto Realtors in Manchester, still finds time to pursue her favorite hobby — making and arranging silk and dried flowers.

"I started arranging fresh flowers some time ago for a country club in Avon. Then, I branched out into floral arrangements for weddings and holidays and even tried my hand at cake decorating," she said.

In a small studio room in her home, Rose eventually began to make bouquets, door decorations and centerpieces of silk and dried flowers.

Rose says there are certain advantages to using silk rather than fresh flowers.

"For instance, with the cost of fuel so high, with silk flowers there is no need for a heated greenhouse. The arrangements can be made in the warmth of summer and stored until needed," she explained.

With some of the various fabric colors being used in bridal attendants' gowns, she says it's almost impossible to match the colors with fresh flowers. "I find the shades of every color," she said.

One of her most exciting endeavors was making bouquets and boutonnieres for a Christmas wedding. "There were seven women in the bridal party and I made bouquets using white poinsettias, white velvet ribbons and pine cones. I also used a white silk rose imported from Germany for the male attendants."

Rose says many brides, in an effort to economize, are not purchasing a separate floral arrangement for the reception table. Instead, she said, they and their attendants place their bouquets along the edge of the table.

"I also began to realize that with silk flower bouquets, the bride was reluctant to toss it to a waiting bridesmaid and wanted to retain it herself as a keepsake. Many of them ask for the bouquet to be made into a centerpiece and others place them in plastic see-through boxes or under glass domes to protect them."

"What I have done is replace the traditional bride and bridegroom figures on top of the wedding cake with a smaller bouquet matching the bride's and this is the one she tosses to her attendants. That way, everybody is happy," she said.

Recently, Rose worked with the East Hartford Women's Club on a fashion show. "We had four girls dressed in wedding attire and they all carried silk flower bouquets. The results were fantastic," she said.

On Sunday, April 20, from 1 to 5 p.m., she will be conducting an open house at her home for people interested in watching her make flowers and view her completed work.

Rose Viola snips off excess wire stem as she completes floral spray.

Circles of white lace are attached to a holder and flowers will be inserted and arranged in the styrofoam center.

All Rose needs now is the bride and her attendants to pick up their wedding flowers.

Covers to show 'Goat'

By RUSS MACKENDRICK

This is a fancy cancellation to be used on covers at the MANPEX on the 19th and 20th of this month. It is a sketch of Locomotive Number Four, one of the "Cheney's Goats," that supplied the pizzazz for the erstwhile South Manchester Railroad. Number Four was built by Baldwin and delivered to the SMRR in 1914. It was used for the ceremony of the last passenger train in 1933 and dismantled in 1947.

The SMRR, with its 2 1/4 miles from Cheneyville to the North Manchester depot, was the shortest privately-owned railway in the United States. It will be the theme of MANPEX '80 and will be celebrated by much memorabilia at the show. One feature will be a "live" exhibit prepared by the Silk City Railroad Club.

Last year's event had a cancellation with a playful panda bear to point up the theme of endangered wildlife. In 1978 the club noted the 75th anniversary of powered flight and the previous year it honored a well-known trio - Lafayette, Edison and Lindbergh. Before that it was the Spirit of '76, Nathan Hale in '75, and 100 years of the Universal Postal Union in 1974.

Manchester history had a philatelic "day" in 1973 with the centennial of the first U.S. postal card. The paper for the card was made in this town by the Hudson & Cheney Mfg. Co. The 1972 MANPEX marked the 300th anniversary of the purchase of the Five Mile Tract (the real estate parcel upon which we stand), from the Indian chief Joshua.

Going back a few years we find that some of the most cherished collectibles coming from any MANPEX are copies of a blue 3-cent stamp with the signature "Rose Silverstein." The stamp, signed in 1968, was the 1952 "Women in Our Armed Services," (Scott 1013), and Rose, (now Mrs. Richard Meneses of this town), was one of the four women on the stamp - Airman 2-C. The Manchester Philatelic Society, now about to put on its 20th show, was founded in 1959. Their first meeting place was the Lithuanian-American Hall on Golway Street. Later they met at the North Methodist Church, the Whittier Library, and, most recently, Mott's Community Hall. They were incorporated as a non-profit organization in 1966.

The club is a member of the Connecticut Philatelic Society, the American Philatelic Society, the American Topical Ass'n., and also belongs to a group that sends circuit books around the eastern seaboard, the United Stamp Society. Various members of the MPS have joined the Conn. Postal History Society, the Language week honored

BOLTON - Bolton High School foreign language students recently celebrated Foreign Language Week at the school. A variety of activities included window displays and bulletins in support of foreign language study by Spanish, French and Latin students.

There was a departure from the regular classroom routine to allow for a variety of activities including cultural studies, music and art appreciation, games and food tasting.

The Spanish and French classes combined for a session on foreign language careers. Spanish students were introduced to the vocabulary of real estate and banking through the Spanish edition of Monopoly.

French students kept up with world affairs by reading the French language magazine "Paris Match." Latin students played Greek and Latin Myths, games designed to enrich students' knowledge of mythology.

Name tags for all staff members were made by the students. Spanish students attended a slide presentation and talk on various areas in Mexico given by Muriel DeCampe, a Bolton resident who has traveled throughout that country.

All three language clubs met to finalize plans for their respective class trips.

The French Club will visit Quebec on April 20-23. The Spanish Club will visit New York City on May 28 and the Latin Club will visit New York City on June 4.

The three language classes will have a combined field trip to the Busnell on May 23. The musical program will feature Robert Paquette, a well-known Canadian recording star, and "Las Caminantes," a Mexican group.

Ernest Stokes is the high school French teacher, Susan Murray the Latin teacher and Helen Winkler the Spanish teacher. Each teacher also serves as advisor to the respective language club.

Tying run toes the dish

Cheney Tech's Wally Colpitts starts to pop signals to peg suicide squeeze bunt to first, after scoring tying run for the Beavers in giving up a key of nailing Colpitts at home. First inning in tilt yesterday against East (Herald photo by Adamson)

Dozen hits aid Cheney victory

Continuing its assault on the baseball, Cheney Tech laced a dozen hits in trimming East Hampton High, 11-3, in COC play yesterday at the Beavers' diamond.

The victory squares the Techs' record at 2-2, 1-2 in the COC, while Mikolek's grounder was misjudged. Cheney added a run in the fifth and put it away with four runs in the sixth frame.

"We're still scoring a lot of runs," noted Tech Coach Aaron Silvia. "This was the best (winning pitcher) Dumex looked this year. If we can continue to get him four-six-10 runs, he's going to win a lot of games."

The Techs welcomed McKay, who had two triples, and Mike Nicholson off the injury list and Silvia was pleased in regaining their services.

Dumex went the distance to earn the win, squaring his record at 1-1. He yielded four hits, walked six and struck out three.

Cheney grabbed the lead in the third with two runs. Mo Harrison singled and Rick Mikolek reached on an error. Tom Martin slapped an RBI single and Ivan lotted a sacrifice fly to centerfield for a 3-1 edge.

The advantage went to 6-1 with a three-run fourth inning. Rich Tamiso singled and Jim McKay, back in the lineup after missing a game with an injury, ripped an RBI triple. He scored on Brian Eaton's RBI single. Eaton stole second and continued to third on an error. He tied the plate as Mikolek's grounder was misjudged. Cheney added a run in the fifth and put it away with four runs in the sixth frame.

Tribe shades Hall by single marker

By LEN AUSTER

Herald Sports Writer

Building an early cushion, Manchester High had to hold on for dear life and registered a nail-biting 7-6 win over Hall High in CCIL baseball action yesterday at Kelley Field.

The Indians, now 2-0 for the season, had a 5-0 lead after five innings but nearly squandered all of it. The visitors, now 1-1, scored three times in the sixth inning to narrow the gap.

Manchester retaliated with a pair of markers in the home sixth with Neil Trenchard singling and Bernie Monarhitt by a pitch to load the bases. That was all for Hill, who had a no-hit shutout in the fifth frame. Paul McCluskey relieved and faced one batter, issuing a walk which forced in a run. Tribe Coach Hall Parks then brought in Shawn Spears, who hurled a four-hitler in Manchester's season opener.

Spears surrendered an RBI single to Brian Meany but Moran, also trying to score, was gunned down on the relay from Bill Herith to Jon Brandt to catcher Parks. Hall added another run before the inning was over.

The Warriors threatened in the ninth, putting two on with two out. But Spears induced Moran to pop out to second baseman Jo Panaro to register the save.

Hill went seven innings plus three batters in the eighth to earn the win. He walked two, fanned five and was touched for five runs on five hits.

Jon Brandt and Edgar Exerins drilled RBI blows in the third as Alex Britnell and Parks knocking home runs in the fourth for a 4-0 bulge. An unearned run in the fifth moved the advantage to 5-0.

Q: Is a fat baby a healthy baby?
A: A fat baby does not automatically mean a healthy baby, as many people once believed. Today, adequate nutrition — not overfeeding — is the goal for an infant's mealtimes. However, a baby needs calories to sustain energy, especially in the first year. But every infant is different. Because they expend more energy every day, active babies need more calories than passive, quiet infants. It is a part of our responsibility to teach parents not to over-feed their babies.

Abby
By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I feel so ashamed of myself I can hardly write this letter, but I need your advice.

"At age 65 I have never in all my life been in such a state of confusion."

"I lost my husband in death three years ago, after a good marriage of 40 years and raising five fine children. My only excuse for what I did that I was a lonely widow."

Abby got a crush on a local minister after listening to his sermons on the radio. I joined his church, and finally met him in person. He was a widower, two years older than I. He said he had been married and divorced. (I later learned he had been married and divorced four times!)

"From the day we met, he was so kind and so much fun. I fell head over heels in love with him. After two months he started talking marriage. I was walking on air. Then he suggested a "secret" marriage in which we would recite the marriage vows together, and consummate our marriage by sexual intercourse. He said he wanted a "secret" marriage because the gossip from his last divorce hadn't died down yet, but as soon as I did, we would go across the state line and get married in the eyes of society - but we would already be married in the eyes of God. Being foolish and in love, I agreed."

I was blissfully happy for the next four months. Then he grew tired of me and suggested we stop seeing each other. I asked, "What about our marriage?" He said in all our secret relations he had never considered a climax, so in the eyes of God, it wouldn't be considered sexual intercourse, and so he still considered actual intercourse.

"Furthermore, it is the opinion of all consultants that your 'marriage' was not valid in the eyes of God or society. So, if that 116-hour Casanova is an ordained minister of a legitimate church, he should be reported to his superior and reprimanded for his disgraceful conduct."

I am willing to use any part of this as a warning to other widows, only please don't use my name.

Academy Awards present live fun

By RAINA GROSSMAN

No emotion is spared; sentiment and glory are mixed with defeat. And host Johnny Carson adds humor. The Academy Awards, to be presented live, Monday, April 14, on ABC, is the best free show in town. Especially if you enjoy arguing about who should have won.

For some people, the best part is the speeches, the live action. What will your favorite actors say? For others, the fun is in seeing who is less composed than others — who really wants to win that award. Clothes horses enjoy seeing actors in clothes they took from their closets, not from production wardrobe. Movie fans love it and hate it, but wouldn't miss it.

Of course critics say it's too much glitter, too political and too heavy handed, but nonetheless, it's still alluring. Try to see it in color.

The coup de grace is the best picture of the year. Favorites are: "All That Jazz," Bob Fosse's music-filled drama of a choreographer's life, and "Kramer vs. Kramer," a poignant story of a couple battling over the custody of their young son, each with nine nominations. Also contending are, "Apocalypse Now," the Vietnam epic, "Breaking Away," a charmer about growing up and "Norma Rae," about unionizing a factory.

Other films with multiple nominations included "La Cage Aux Folles," "1941," "The China Syndrome," "Star Trek — The Motion Picture," "Alien," "...And Justice for All," "Being There," "The Black Hole," "The Black Stallion," "A Little Romance," "Manhattan," "The Muppet Movie," "Starting Over" and "10."

Read over the rest of nominations and get in on the fun from the ground floor. Choose your favorites, make some popcorn, invite a few friends and see who shares your passion.

For the best performance by an actor in a leading role: Dustin Hoffman in "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Jack Lemmon in "The China Syndrome"; Al

Pacino in "...And Justice for All"; Roy Scheider in "All That Jazz"; Peter Sellers in "Being There."

For the best performance by an actor in a supporting role: Melvyn Douglas in "Being There"; Robert Duvall in "Apocalypse Now"; Frederic Forrest in "The Rose"; Justin Henry in "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Mickey Rooney in "The Black Stallion."

For the best performance by an actress in a leading role: Jill Clayburgh in "Starting Over"; Sally Field in "Norma Rae"; Jane Fonda in "The China Syndrome"; Marsha Mason in "Chapter Two"; Bette Midler in "The Rose."

For the best performance by an actress in a supporting role: Jane Alexander in "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Barbara Barrie in "Breaking Away"; Candice Bergen in "Starting Over"; Mariel Hemingway in "Manhattan"; Meryl Streep in "Kramer vs. Kramer."

For the best achievement in directing: Bob Fosse, "All That Jazz"; Francis Ford Coppola, "Apocalypse Now"; Peter Yates, "Breaking Away"; Robert Benton, "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Edouard Molinaro, "La Cage Aux Folles."

For the best original song: "It Goes Like It Goes" from "Norma Rae," music by David Shire, lyric by Norman Gimbel; "The Rainbow Connection" from "The Muppet Movie," music and lyric by Paul Williams and Kenny Ascher; "It's Easy to Say" from "10," music by Henry Mancini, lyric by Robert Wells; "Through The Eyes of Love" from "Ice Castles," music by Marvin Hamlisch, lyric by Carole Bayer Sager; "I'll Never Say Goodbye," from "The Promise," music by David Shire, lyric by Alan and Marilyn Bergman.

Other categories are: for the best achievements in art direction, cinematography, costume design, documentary film, film editing, foreign language film, best original score, short film, best screenplay written directly for the screen, best screenplay written from another medium, sound and visual effects.

Johnny Carson hosts the 52nd Annual Academy Awards presented live from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center, Monday, April 14, on ABC.

TV DIALOGUE

STARSKY CRAZY - Can you tell me where to write to Paul Michael Glaser now that "Starky & Hutch" isn't on? Also, when is his movie, "Phobia," going to play in the movies? I've written before with no answer. - L. Pasta, Lawrence, Mass.
Unfortunately hundreds of people write without ever getting an answer: it's one of the drawbacks of only being able to answer a few letters each week in the column. At least you lucked out this week. Now that "Phobia" has wrapped, you can write Glaser in care of the Chasen-Park-Citron Agency, 9255 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90069. Look for the John Huston-directed film to open in late summer or early fall.
SIS MISS - A lady my mother works with claims that Peggy Lee is a sister of Rosemary Clooney. My mother and I do not believe this. Is it true? - Miss V. Shestakow, Lakehurst, N.J.
Peggy Lee, nee Norma Egstrom, may have shared a song or two with Rosemary Clooney over the years, but they are in no way related.
NADER NADER - I am having an argument with some friends concerning an actor who was popular in the fifties by the name of George Nader. They insist I am getting him mixed up with Ralph Lee about a girl's boarding school. NBC is giving it a test run this spring, after a fairly successful stunt earlier in the year. Long before Ralph Nader had ever heard of a Pinto. George Nader was wowing TV viewers with his sleuthing powers as Ellery Queen in quite a few forgettable action adventures in the '50s and early '60s, my favorite of which is "Four Guns to the Border," 1954, also starring such other B-movie luminaries as Richard Carlson and Rory Calhoun.
PARTNERS - While Cissy and Bobby were dancing together on "The Lawrence Berk Show," my husband and I saw she was his wife. Please let me know the right answer. - Mary Robinson, Mesa, Ariz.
They may have waited but they never walked down the aisle together.
SWITCHED-ON BACH - My favorite actress is definitely 100 percent Catherine Bach. If I don't get her address, I will not be able to sleep nights. Can you do this for me? - Brian Bernstein, Westport, Conn.
Dream on, Brian, but before you do, drop a note to your fav in care of the studio. Send it to "The Dukes of Hazzard," Warner Bros. TV, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, CA 91522.
SPIN-OFF - I would like to know what happened to Mrs. Garrett from "Diffrent Strokes." - Jennie Cittadini, Ashbury Park, N.J.
She has spun-off into her own series. The Facts of Life about a girl's boarding school. NBC is giving it a test run this spring, after a fairly successful stunt earlier in the year.
Send your letters to Pepper O'Brien, NEA, 200 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

FRIDAY

Ewing Cheers

Lucy Ewing (played by Charlene Tilton) in an enthusiastic cheerleader in an episode of "Dallas" to be rebroadcast Friday, April 18, on CBS.
The feuding, fighting, financially opulent Ewing family involved in oil, cattle, high-living and family and political intrigue has become a favorite with TV audiences in fact. Larry Hagman who plays brother J.R., is presently a cult star who wears his cowboy hat out of the studio and is sometimes confused with the evil Ewing brother.

(Schedules reserve the right to make last-minute use changes.)

Stander's Heart

Lionel Stander portrays Max on ABC's drama series, "Hart to Hart," on Tuesdays. Stander claims he was one of the first hippies in America. He has been married six times, has always crusaded for the rights of minorities, and in the '40s and '50s was locked out of Hollywood during the notorious Red hunts.

New Facts
