Blacks lag in business

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford area's black community lags behind the national average in its share of the region's income and how much of that money its residents spend at businesses owned by blacks, a study said today.

The Central Connecticut Business League study said "a thousand" new jobs could be opened if blacks spent more money and expanded the black business community.

"The Hartford area black business establishment is less than half the size it would be if it were proportionately the size of the U.S. black business establishment," said the 11-page study.

"There are hundreds of business opportunities which would create a thousand or more jobs. In uptown Hartford, scores more of businesses are needed, and equally as many young entrepreneurs."

The study said blacks earned 3.4 percent of the region's total income compared to a national average of about 5 percent. It said the per capita income of blacks was $3,995 compared to a nationwide average of $10,593.

"There is no fat in that income level, and that accounts for the absence of black-related cultural institutions such as the performing arts, orchestra and academies, to name a few," the study said.

Theodore Pryor, president of the business league, said the Hartford area black community spent $5.3 million less than the annual national average at businesses owned by blacks.

If that difference alone were to be made up, Pryor said "it would effectively create 24 to 30 new jobs." As many as 100 jobs could be created when the "multiplier effect," which says each $1 of new spending creates a total of $10, came into play, he said.

Pryor said the study wasn't aimed at recommending any particular course of action, but rather at providing specific figures on what the situation is in the black community and what it could be.

"The key thing here is for the black community to look at itself and that we don't get caught up in the glamour of personal accomplishment. That individual thing is part of the depressed whole," he said.

"It doesn't know how bad off it is or how well off it is," he said of the area's black community. "You can't just go out there and be wishy washy about these things. You manage by objective and we can't call ourselves leaders unless we lead."

The study area included the region bound by Granby, Stafford Springs, Colchester and Farmington. More than half of the region's black population lives in Hartford with most living in the city's North End where the bulk of the region's black-owned businesses are located, the study said.

Decision violates zoning

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town's zoning laws may circumvent a Board of Directors' decision allowing MACC and MARCH Inc. to share the old Senior Citizen's Center.

The Linden Street area where the center was located, is zoned Residential C, or single family-dwellings.

The usage planned for the building by the two groups is not residential. Locating five community service programs in the building is a business use, according to Thomas O'Marra, zoning enforcement officer.

A Zoning Board of Appeals variance will be required before the groups can use the building.

The Board of Directors decided April 8 to lease the ground floor of the two-story building to MACC and MARCH after months of debate about selling or keeping the building.

The town's Human Service and Health Departments will occupy the first floor.

The town's use of the building also does not conform to the area's zoning. But the municipal use is allowed because it is continuing a nonconforming use, according to O'Marra.

The town began using the building, a former synagogue, as a senior citizen center before the zoning ordinances changed. A pre-existing non-conforming use is allowed after regulations are altered. The town's relocating the Human Services and Health Departments in the building is continuing the municipal non-conforming use.

But MACC and MARCH cannot fall under this continuing non-conforming use because they are private organizations.

Included in the two group's variance request for allowing business use in a residential area, will be a waiver of parking requirements. Business zoning regulations require on-site, off-street parking. The only parking near the building is on-street.

The limited parking was one reason the Board of Directors decided to lease the building, for $1 and heating costs, to MACC and MARCH. The only two uses determined for the building in a board subcommittee appraisal was as a day care center or family dwelling.

Using the building as a senior citizen center did not create parking problems as the center's bus was used for transportation.

Use by MACC and MARCH will create more traffic, and area residents expressed concern to O'Marra about the zoning conformity of the use.

"I don't know how strong the opposition is," O'Marra said. "I'm not even sure if there is opposition. But residents may be concerned about the programs planned for the building."

Planned for the center are programs for assisting psychiatric patients and former offenders for re-entry into the community, and the clothing, food and fuel banks.

"We're trying to figure out what will cause trouble to the neighbors, and learn what it means to the neighborhood," Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC, said.

"Perhaps what people don't realize is that we're operating these programs only a block and a half from the center now in Emanuel (Lutheran Church). But I assumed since we were working with the town that there were no problems."

The parking will probably be the major concern of the ZBA, O'Marra said, in evaluating the variance request.

"The key test in allowing zoning variances, as I understand it, is will the regulation, in an unusual or unique circumstance, result in unnecessary and unfair hardship," O'Marra said.

"But beyond that there is nothing specific in the regulation about the granting of variances. The rest is left to the ZBA member's judgment."

"If they decide the use is not permitted, then MACC and MARCH cannot use the building."

A board subcommittee, composed of William Diana, Stephen Cassano, deputy mayor, and Arnold Kleinschmidt, recommended letting the groups use the building. The senior citizens center relocated to the former Green School, on East Middle Turnpike.

"We got reports about certain uses of the building," William Diana said. "But I personally didn't think of any problem in letting MACC and MARCH to use the building."

Speed limit cuts fatalities

HARTFORD (UPI) — With traffic fatalities running more than 17 percent behind last year's gruesome record pace, state highway safety officials hope Connecticut is seeing the end of a bloody trend.

Transportation and motor vehicle officials credit increased compliance with the 55 mph speed limit and decreased driving for the state's first decline in traffic deaths since 1974.

The latest statistics showed that as of Friday, 130 persons had died on state roadways since New Year's Day compared to 157 for the same period of 1979 — a drop of just more than 17 percent.

For the first quarter of the year, from Jan. 1 to March 31, the decline was even more marked with figures showing a 19.3 percent drop in fatalities.

The decline has brought some relief to highway safety officials who last year saw Connecticut set a gruesome all-time annual high for traffic deaths — 576 fatalities.

"Even one death is one too many, but we are somewhat encouraged to see the first decrease in highway fatalities since 1974," said Transportation Commissioner Arthur Powers.

"The fatal accident totals for the first quarters of this and last year remind us that traffic safety depends in large part on motorists," he said. "It looks like our state's drivers have slowed down and are helping us make highways safer."

And though Powers said speeding remained the "No. 1" cause of traffic deaths in Connecticut, state police statistics for the first quarter of the year show that a dent is being made in that area also.

Last year's record traffic death toll had fueled stepped-up radar enforcement of the speeding laws, and also had prompted some lawmakers to push for a hike the state's legal drinking age.

The hike in the drinking age was defeated last week in the Legislature, but strict speeding enforcement remains the rule of the road in Connecticut.

The latest statistics on compliance with the 55 mph speed limit show a drop of about 5 points in the percentage of motorists clocked over the maximum limit during the first quarter of 1980.

Capt. George Moore, chief of state police traffic enforcement efforts, said figures processed Friday showed that 43.5 percent of motorists traveling on Connecticut highways were exceeding the speed limit.

But, perhaps more significantly, only 10.9 percent of that number were exceeding 60 mph, he said.

The slowing down also spelled good news for Connecticut's fiscal picture, since the state had faced a potential loss of about $4 million in federal funds had it not cut the rate of non-compliance.

The latest decline — which state police had projected they'd achieve last January — put Connecticut in apparent compliance required by federal standards to keep the funds coming.

Speeding, however, isn't the only factor involved in reducing the state's highway fatalities.

Donald Byers, chief spokesman for the state Motor Vehicle Department, said decreased driving by motorists was a key factor, as was something much simpler — the weather.

"When you have bad weather, you tend to have more accidents. I guess people also are driving more carefully," said Byers, whose agency had urged motorists to keep their "lights on for safety" as last year's rate soared upwards.

"One of the things I think also is the use of gasoline. People aren't driving as much," Byers added, citing statistics which showed a continuing drop in per vehicle fuel consumption.

Powers agreed, saying there was a notable drop nationwide in highway deaths when the first energy crisis gripped the U.S. in 1973 and 1974. But as the gasoline shortage abated, the figures again began to rise.

The transportation commissioner also said that while compliance with the speed limit wasn't always evident on the highways, it was proving popular among some state workers.

Miller predicts new recession

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary G. William Miller forecasts a modest recession for the United States and an improving rate of inflation for 1980 that will decline from 18 percent to 12½ percent toward year's end.

"By the end of the year, inflation should be at a considerably lower rate," Miller said in an interview with U.S. News and World Report.

"The official forecast is that the consumer price index will rise 12½ percent from the fourth quarter of 1979 to the fourth quarter of 1980."

"While 12½ percent inflation is terrible, it's better than 18 percent," the projected annual rate for the first two months of 1980, Miller said. And, he said, the reduced rate would mean considerable improvement toward the end of the year when he also expected interest rates to go down.

"I was wrong," Miller admitted, when asked about his statement last year that the United States was halfway through a recession. "So were many other people."

Miller said he was fooled by a downturn in the second quarter of 1979 and he was being cautious about his predictions now.

"The reason we probably will have a recession this time is that we now have had a sustained period of softness in various sectors of the economy," he said, namely in automobiles, retail sales and housing.

"I expect a modest recession," Miller said, in the neighborhood of a one-half percent decline, adjusting for inflation, in the Gross National Product from the fourth quarter of 1979 to the fourth quarter of 1980.

Miller ruled out any sudden steps to meet the recession.

"A recession on the order of magnitude that we are projecting can be self-healing and would not require special action. People and business would go through an adjustment and then return to normal."

Miller said helping to cushion the slowdown was that businesses have been very cautious with inventories, and the absence of real estate speculation and overbuilding.

"Finally, the high prices for oil and energy, painful as they are, have created a market situation that will encourage investment in the energy sector," Miller said. "So we'll see a stimulative effect there."

"Right now, for instance, all the oil-drilling rigs in the country are at work. They're not likely to stop working, would be a tax cut even though this is an area that oil prices should rise more moderately in the future."

He said the curbs on credit were temporary measures. "As soon as the problem of rapid expansion in consumer borrowing is taken care of, I hope they can be phased out."

Hostage parents admitted

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Muslim militants today admitted the parents of one of the 50 American hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy and promised to let other families see the captives, reporters in the area said.

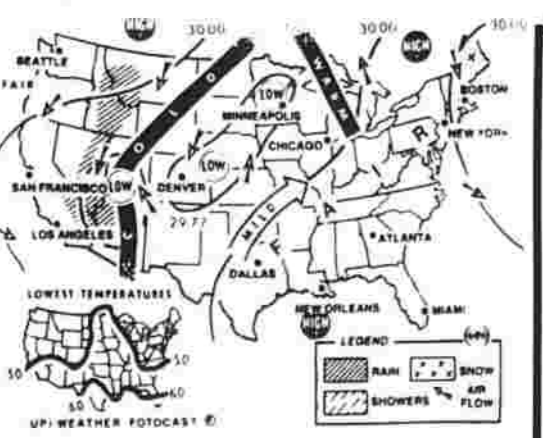

Barbara and Kenneth Timms, of Oak Creek, Wis., entered the embassy compound after winning a special order from President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr and the militants agreement to their visit.

The Timms' attorney, Carl McAfee, who stayed in the hotel while the couple went inside the embassy, told UPI he had no confirmation as to whether the Timms would see their son, Marine Sgt. Kevin Hermening.

The militants said earlier they would allow "families" of the hostages to visit the captives, sparking speculation other families were already in Tehran on similar missions.

Werner Klemperer is the first to admit that he just didn't follow in the footsteps of his famous father — the distinguished conductor Otto Klemperer.

In fact, says Werner, when asked to play violin as the heeling-in of the "Hogans Heroes" — "I made sounds you shouldn't let a dog hear."

But he doesn't have to be on key to make it at New York's Metropolitan Opera, which only has to be in character.

They loved him so much last year in his non-singing role as Pasha Selim in Mozart's "Abduction from the Seraglio" they've asked him back for the 1980-1981 season — probably as Froch in "Die Fledermaus."

Promising such ballads as "How High the Moon" and "Hello to the Stars," they predicted they'd be "an intergalactic smash."

The only thing fummier was NASA's sobered reply. Public affairs director Robert A. Newman turned them down, but said, "Your request for a Shuttle flight remains on file and will receive all due consideration when a careful assessment is made and a decision is reached, perhaps in 1981."

In his native Ireland, where his presence draws thousands, they've been flocking to him ever since he was a toddler, but so far, he says his reception in the United States has been "cool" — that "Americans don't understand this sort of thing; to them it's just a myth."

But Nolan can document some spectacular cures, and he'll be seeking more at Baltimore's Holiday Inn for the next three weeks. He isn't sure what his power is, but insists it's not faith healing.

Says he, "It's a gift from God — like writing a movie script, sculpting or painting a picture. And I consider those fantastic gifts."

The play, costarring Jane Alexander and Christopher Cazenove, is all about two people trying to stay in love in the middle of Castro's revolution, and the title is timely.

"Goodbye Fidel" is what thousands of Cubans have been saying at Havana's Peruvian embassy here of late.

Women face work bias

HARTFORD (UPI) — Speakers at a weekend conference on sexual harassment said women in the workplace are subjected to illegal discrimination which often stems from a man's need to defend his job and manhood.

More than 100 women at the Saturday meeting sponsored by more than 50 Connecticut civic, social and union organizations discussed how to deal with unwanted advances on the job, and speak out against such harassment.

Ms. Swartz, research analyst of the Connecticut State Employees Association, said sexual harassment is a form of sexual discrimination and is "clearly illegal under state law."

The Connecticut Senate last week approved a bill to make sexual harassment an unfair labor practice.

Ms. Swartz, who spoke with a "Hands Off Conference" banner behind her, said while sexual attraction was a normal reaction, most women were perceived as a threat to a man's job.

"Many men begin to harass women because they are insecure and they feel their manhood is threatened, and they have to strike out," she said.

"Women have been subjected to physical assaults from all levels," she said, and she described sexual harassment as "the executive's alternative to rape."

Jane Fleishman, labor coordinator for the New Directions Program in Occupational Health, said sexual harassment was among the more serious "health hazards on the job."

She said women have to deal with it themselves. There's a lot of silence, a lot of anger, that should be brought out of the closet," she said.

Water may be tainted

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal report says some of the state's ground water supplies carry the potential of chemical contamination from active landfills, road salt and petroleum storage facilities.

The U.S. Geological Survey report was based on chemical analyses of water samples from 34 observation wells at seven sites in Connecticut near facilities suspected of polluting ground water.

The sites used in the study were near septic tank sludge disposal lagoons in Old Saybrook, and Clinton; a fly-ash deposit in Wallingford; a road salt storage area in Haddam; landfills in Bristol and Southington; and a subsurface petroleum leak in Fairfield.

Ms. Handman said the study would now turn to tests to determine areas where there were high-yield aquifers and supply municipalities with the information.

"Therefore, local ground water sources will be an important part of the future water supply," she said.

Drill fire out of hand

AVON (UPI) — Firefighters were ready to light a vacant farmhouse on fire for a drill. But they got more than they bargained for when hoses clogged and the blaze spread to three nearby barns and threatened a residential area.

The fire set Sunday burned out of control after mud plugged the hose pumping water from a nearby pond, Avon Fire Chief Edward S. Pease said.

The blaze scorched four acres of brush and came within 30 feet of a home in a nearby residential neighborhood.

"It was a frightening experience," said Richard Guarnaccia, who lived in the populated area. "If one of these homes had gone up, he said, firefighters would have been so occupied the whole neighborhood could have gone."

Firefighters from Canton, Simsbury and the Unionville section of Farmington were called in to help control the spreading flames.

With spring temperatures climbing and winds gusting from 20 to 30 miles per hour, the National Weather Service Sunday reported a "high fire danger index."

"It ended up being a bigger drill than we expected," Pease said.

Avon Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Bernard Tibson had been on the scene when the fire spread. He wasn't so kind.

"The drill was the dumbest thing in the world to try on a day like today," he said.

Group seeds river bank

MANCHESTER — Hockanum River Linear Park Committee members and scouts from Boy Scout Troop 25 worked together Saturday to complete the grass seeding and evergreen planting stage of a multiple phase, long range project to restore the bank of the Hockanum River just west of New State Road, on the north side of the river.

The project was damaged by excessive dumping of fill close to the river creating a steep and eroding sand and gravel slope along about 200 feet of frontage on the river.

The fill was removed from the Hockanum River bank and a more stable 2 to 1 slope was created, under the direction of the Hockanum River Committee, by Ernest J. Reed Inc. in January.

In compliance of local Inland-Wetland Regulations, hay bales were installed along the river's edge in March to control siltation.

Top soil was supplied this week by the Town Highway Department, and the area was power raked by Eugene Montany of Grantland Nursery.

Saturday, fertilizer and a grass seed mixture was spread over the area, according to directions of Vern Anderson, U.S. Department of Agricultural Soil Conservation Service in Windsor Locks. Fertilizer was furnished by the local Sears and Roebuck store, and the grass seed was supplied by two town nurseries.

Witmer's Garden Center and Woodland Gardens, Redfield Rental Center provided a fertilizer spreader for the day.

Hay mulch was applied over the seeded area to prevent erosion and retain moisture while seed is germinating. Hay bales were delivered to the site by Harry Welles, South Windsor.

The final step in Saturday's project was the planting of 100 white pine seedlings along a line about 50 feet from the river and at a right angle to the street.

These seedlings were donated by the Town Park Department, under the direction of Bob Harrison, and were purchased from the State Department of Environmental Protection. The evergreen seedlings are intended to develop into a buffer between the Hockanum River Linear Park and any future commercial development that may occur in the area.

The State DEP, through its State Forest Nursery, sells a variety of seedling trees to towns and property owners each spring in a long range effort to encourage wildlife enhancement and soil conservation on lands of 1/4 acre or more.

Dr. Douglas Smith, chairman of the HRLPG, announced that the area along the river landscaped Saturday may eventually be donated to the town to preserve it in a natural undeveloped state. The committee now has an easement from Jarvis Enterprises for a 50 foot wide parcel of land along the river.

Later stages in this project include creation of a parking area, and clearing a simple hiking trail to follow the river all the way to Middle Turnpike West. Most of the trail is already completed and marked. Eventually picnic tables may be furnished along the river.

Trail marking signs may be furnished by the Outing Club at Manchester High School.

Hockanum River Linear Park Committee members working on the grass seeding project today included: Glen Cornish, Jim Stockpole, Doug Smith, Ellie Wait, Al Sundquist, Lynne Sundquist, Lynda Holm, Carol Hulme, Art Joyce, Ed Dawley.

Doug Woodbury from Boy Scout Troop 25 assisted in the project.

Bowling alley liquor considered by PZC

MANCHESTER — Exempting bowling alleys from liquor ordinances will be considered tonight by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Brunswick Corp seeks to amend the zoning regulations to allow the Brunswick Park Lane bowling alley in the Manchester Parkside to serve liquor.

The proposed amendment allows bowling alleys to serve liquor when they are within 1,000 feet of another outlet. Present regulations require a 1,000 foot distance between outlets, except for restaurants. Restaurants were given a waiver from the requirement last year by the commission.

Bernard Giovino had requested a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals in January to allow the bowling alley to open a cocktail lounge. The ZBA denied the request, and advised a Planning and Zoning Commission ruling.

Correction

Paul Biancini, pianist and Jeffrey Krieger, cellist, will perform a concert of international music to benefit the Friendship Force tonight at 7:30 at East Hartford High School Auditorium.

The Herald erroneously reported the concert was to be April 24.

A donation of $5 per person will be accepted. The public and all friends of the Friendship Force are invited.

Couple appeals variance

MANCHESTER — Guy and Geneva La Gasse, 94 Bush Hill Road, have appealed a Zoning Board of Appeals variance allowing a house lot with 50 feet of frontage.

Area requirements for the lot, at 98-V Bush Hill Road, 150 feet of frontage. Arline Noch, owner, applied for a variance as she intends to sell the house.

The lot was part of an approved subdivision in 1967, that had smaller frontage requirements than the present zoning ordinances.

Mr. and Mrs. LaGasse have appealed the variance on grounds that it would cause drainage and septic system problems.

The ZBA, granted the petition with the conditions that professional engineers design a drainage system and no discharge of water is permitted onto Bush Hill Road.

The appeal will be heard in Hartford Superior Court on May 5. The appeal states the board acted illegally and arbitrarily and discounted the testimony about drainage problems.

Rail plans postponed

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — Plans for passenger rail service between Manchester and Hartford were postponed at least another year.

The state Legislature's Finance Committee took no action on a $10 million proposal to revitalize service along the line. In fact, the full committee never even considered the bill.

The Transportation Committee was able to have the Manchester to Hartford project included under an already existing bill that calls for rail improvements within the state. Cella said that although no additional funding exists for any new projects, the mechanism is in place for future action.

Meet with district

The decision by the town's Board of Directors to reestablish a liaison committee to discuss mutual problems and obligations with the Eighth Utilities District is a step in the right direction, but the committee will be severely hampered by the restriction that it not discuss the disposition of the Buckland fire house.

By sitting down with the district, the town may be able to find areas of compromise which will result in mutual benefit to district and town alike.

Refusing to talk about matters of mutual concern, including the firehouse, would be counter-productive and would only serve to further entrench the animosity between town and district.

We don't propose the town give away the Buckland station.

We think discussions could establish a fair sale price for the station or could arrange a lease-service agreement, whereby the district could cover parts of the town from the station in Buckland and apply service charges for such calls against a rental fee.

We still aren't convinced the Buckland station's continued use by the town department is in the best interests of the taxpayers.

Both fire departments are part of Manchester and, although we are certain there will be occasional botherly squabble, we hope everyone members should be new faces, not members who served on the previous committee which was disbanded when town and district were unable to come to any resolution. He appointed new Democrats and we feel the Republicans should follow suit.

Opinion

Thoughts

John Hedlund has written the book "Against The Wall." He is an evangelist and a journalist working within the Covenant in Sweden. He has, as a journalist, a special skill in interviewing persons so as to draw forth ideas and feelings. An interesting expression surfaces repeatedly in this book - "Guds barn barn."

On the surface it seems to mean "God's grandchildren." But what it actually means is that the personal faith in Christ of one generation is not necessarily embraced by the next, father or mother's faith is not confessed by son or daughter.

But think of the joy of knowing the living Christ! A life movement it must always be if we are true to the beginnings of our FAITH. The language of this movement nourishes us - Bible readers - repentance - forgiveness of sin - the joy of the redeemed. Its language is pilgrim songs along the way - the freedom to accept each other as brothers and sisters in the family - the strong confidence in the promises of God - and the ongoing encouragement of the hope of Christ within us.

It's a song - O brother, sister, join us in our song. This friend to you would Iain belong.

The far from what you'd like to be, His grace sufficient is for thee. The vigor of this life movement will live on even in a day when all kinds of new methods and means are introduced to further ministry in the church. I invite you to join me in a test to discover if your faith and mine know the meaning today in our lives of the language of the live movement that gathers us all together in a wonderful adventure. That experiences the positive attitude and truth of "I can do all things through Christ who empowers me." "Christ in you the hope of Glory." Rejoice in this living truth.

Public property

WASHINGTON - As noted frequently in this space, the District of Columbia is the property of the whole United States and is not the private preserve of government bureaucrats, muggers, and foreign demonstrators.

Therefore, it is news of a national nature that the owners of the Republic's capital are in for a new financial heating unless they put pressure on their Congressmen to withhold some of the millions of dollars the federal government contributes to the city's care and feeding.

The latest device for this bit of legalized thievery is the D.C. "home rule" bosses' plan to build a $100 million Convention Center. This, despite the disclosure that the city faces a deficit this year as high as $172 million and a likely continuation of the fiscal crisis into 1981.

To go back a bit, Mayor Marion Barry and his cohorts on the City Council held off announcing that the city's treasury was empty until after $22 million was spent for land acquisition. This is a trick politicians learn while wotting their toddlers' granddaddy the dough, then admit you're broke.

The Herald in Washington Best and Worst of job market

WASHINGTON - To relieve our reporters of mundane office chores such as clipping and stacking newspapers, licking envelopes, and filing materials, we placed an advertisement in a local newspaper the other day for a part-time worker. Neither the hours - 3 to 7 p.m. - nor the entry-level salary of $4 an hour seemed very attractive. Yet the response has left us shaking our heads in disbelief. Meet some of the more than 30 applicants:

Patricia has a BA degree (cum laude) from Barnard College and a master's in English from the University of Cambridge, England. She is a prize-winning poet who now supports her writing by cooking up a storm at home and catering parties for the city's VIPs.

Marcia recently started her own energy-related company and has sold energy-saving equipment to the White House. She has a degree with honors in communications and unknowingly helped set up the dummy corporation (Metropolitan Electric Contracting Corp.) that was a front for the FBI's ABSCAM operation here in Washington.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Building of missile site is suspected

WASHINGTON - The latest intelligence information gathered by U.S. surveillance satellite and other sources has confronted the Carter administration. She has a degree with honors in communications and unknowingly helped set up the dummy corporation (Metropolitan Electric Contracting Corp.) that was a front for the FBI's ABSCAM operation here in Washington.

Letha has a master's degree in history and a first-rate communications background that includes stints at the FBI and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Other agency analysts are not so sure, theorizing that the holes could be part of housing construction or similarly peaceful projects. The experts who lean toward the view that the holes are missile sites - the same ones who argued - correctly - that the Soviet brigade identified last year was a combat unit, in support of their interpretation,

Statistics, Vance Grant. "On the other hand, the outlook is better in business, engineering, and the scientific fields where there is more flexibility for using the degrees." In 1978 - the latest year with available figures - 56,000 bachelor's degrees in engineering were awarded, compared to 50,000 in 1971. In business and management, the figures were 161,000 in 1978 and 116,000 in 1971. Bachelor's degrees in journalism have also climbed steadily, from just over 5,000 in 1971 to just over 8,000 in 1978. Communications degrees of all types went from 11,000 in 1971 to 25,000 in 1978.

Among traditional fields, those were exceptional during the past decade. The biological sciences - thanks in good part to a renewed emphasis on cancer and other health-related research - about held their own, with 51,500 bachelor's degrees awarded in 1978 compared to the peak of 54,000 degrees in 1976.

With the nation facing stiff challenges at home and abroad as we head into a new decade, no one can say with certainty where the jobs are going to be by 1990. But some federal planners are now compiling statistics and trying to project where the opportunities lie. "One of their barometers is the types of degrees being awarded."

Building of missile site is suspected

This changed attitude of the normally cautious old men in the Kremlin lends urgency to U.S. intelligence analysts' attempt to figure out the intended use of several large holes the Russians are digging near the Cuban city of Matanzas. Are they an innocent feature of a suburban housing development, or underground silos for nuclear missiles aimed at the United States?

CIA sources have told my associate Dale Van Atta that the holes are "strikingly similar" in size, shape and construction to those that house nuclear missiles in the Soviet Union.

Other agency analysts are not so sure, theorizing that the holes could be part of housing construction or similarly peaceful projects. Back Buckley

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - The Connecticut Federation of College Republicans has overwhelmingly chosen James Buckley as their choice in the U.S. Senate race.

In a straw vote of 38 delegates meeting at Yale University, 31 chose Buckley. State Senate Minority Leader Richard Bozzzo received one vote and three abstained. The vote was taken after the organization's annual luncheon meeting Saturday.

Federation President William Meyers said Buckley, a former U.S. senator from New York, was "clearly the only Republican candidate who can beat Congressman Dodd, in November's election."

Drugs, weapons seized; more arrests expected

WATERBURY (UPI) - Officials say simultaneous weekend raids netting eight suspects along with a cache of drugs and weapons will lead to more arrests. Authorities said more than $15,000 in cash was also seized during the raids on six homes Saturday. The raids capped a one-month investigation of drug activities by Waterbury police, the Statewide Regional Narcotics Task Force and officers from the office of State's Attorney Francis McDonald.

A state police spokesman said the 35 raiders, armed with arrest and search warrants confiscated "large quantities of narcotics, including marijuana, cocaine and amphetamines and scores of weapons which included hand guns, automatic rifles, a sawed-off carbine and over $15,000 in cash."

THE COST OF LIVING VS. THE COST OF LIGHTING.

Electricity is one of the most important things you buy. And today, it's still one of the best values you can get. In the last five years, for example, while the cost of living has gone up over 47%, the cost of your electricity to you has risen only about 25%. And that's in a world where milk is 31% higher, hamburger is up 69%, and the price of oil has skyrocketed 104%. Even bananas have gone bananas with an increase of 105% over the 1975 price.

Special week remembers Holocaust

By NANCY GARR

Executive Director of the MACC, remembers the special week as Days of Remembrance for the Victims of the Holocaust. They made for Christians a new example of the meaning of courage, and compassion, and self-sacrificing love.

During this period of commemoration, we remember the Holocaust. May the memory of the miracle of the people of Denmark strengthen and inspire us to stand firm, as did the Danes, against any contemporary or future violations of the fundamental rights of our brothers and sisters in every place and at every time.

"When you hear about the kinds of games the science teachers have to play in order to develop an effective curriculum, then you know that not having those walls is a deficiency" —Glastonbury Board of Education member Michael Meotti commenting on the need for partitions in the science wing at Glastonbury High School.

At the East Hartford Town Council's recent meeting on whether to referendum on a school bonding issue, Democrat Richard Torrey told his fellow councilmembers their long discussion over the merits of the projects was skirting the issue. "The question is whether you believe in bonding for the projects, and if you do then bonding is the sound business approach to finance these projects," Torrey said.

Just when you think you've seen all of the bumper stickers there are to see a new one pops up. Everyone has seen the one that says, "Caution: 1 brake for animals." A new one was seen on a car on Main Street in Rockville and it read:

"Caution: 1 brake for antique shops."

Besides an anti-billboard ordinance, the East Hartford Town Council's Ordinance committee is considering other proposed ordinances aimed at improving the town's appearance. Committee Chairman Henry Ganga said the committee is considering an ordinance that would require grass or bushes in the area of a billboard or other sign to grow no taller than 9 feet high.

Bird triggers Celtics — BOSTON (UPI) — Bill Fitch wouldn't have had it any other way. "If Larry Bird is open and has the shot, you want him to take it, don't you?" the Boston coach said Sunday after his star rookie poured in 31 points to trigger a 96-90 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

"I certainly did. I just followed the advice you guys (reporters) had been giving me all along," Fitch said.

The victory evened the Eastern Conference final playoff series at one game apiece. The best-of-seven series switches to Philadelphia for Games 3 and 4 on Wednesday and Friday.

Bird broke loose for 21 points in the first half, but the Celtics didn't take control of the game until late in the third quarter, when they outscored the 76ers 12-2 to grab a 74-64 edge entering the final period.

Philadelphia would get no closer than six points the rest of the game. "We just did the same things and they worked this time," said Bird, who hit 15-of-30 from the floor and also snared 12 rebounds. "I think the whole team was a little down on us after we lost the opener so we had to win. I was looking to pass to him, but we filled up the lanes so I kept shooting. We didn't play great, just good enough to win."

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham tried seven different players to defend Bird and the strategy worked somewhat in the second half. But Boston felt no hesitation in going to the 6-foot-9 forward.

"Larry is a complete player," said Boston guard Chris Ford. "He does what his team needs. If someone is hot, you keep him. And Larry was red hot. You just milk it for all it's worth."

However, Julius Erving, who led the 76ers with 24 points, felt Bird's shooting spree ran contrary to Boston's style.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NBA champion Seattle SuperSonics have adopted a theme song — but their finals was no Waltz.

"Second Time Around" by Shalimar, that's our theme song," said Gus Williams, who scored 33 points Sunday to lead the SuperSonics to a 98-84 victory in the final game of their quarterfinal series with the Milwaukee Bucks.

"Like it says, the second time around is so much better. That's the way we feel about the championship."

Williams' 33 points included four free throws in the final 16 seconds and lifted Seattle into the Western Conference finals against Los Angeles.

Seattle, which had to defeat the Bucks in Milwaukee Friday to reach a seventh game, opens a best-of-seven series with the Lakers Tuesday in Los Angeles and is looking to

Strong pitching aids Penney win

By KEVIN CASEY — Correspondent

Scoring two runs in the fifth inning and getting a strong pitching performance from senior right-hander Paul Pires, Penney High edged South Catholic, 2-1, in non-conference baseball action Saturday afternoon at the Knights' field.

Penney is now 4-2 overall, 2-2 in the CCL, while the Rebels fall to 3-2-1 for the season. The Knights resume action today at 1 o'clock at home against Windham while the Rebels will be facing HCC for East Catholic at Hartford's Highland Park.

Fires, 2-1, scattered six hits, walked two and fanned six in a routine performance. Why did Knight Coach Mike Lappes go with his ace in a non-league game? "I wanted to win this game and I didn't want to break the rotation," he answered. "I believe in making the state tournament first and then going from there to win the league title," Lappes continued.

Tribe in rally to top Eagles

By LEN AUSTER — Herald SportsWriter

There were several featured moments in Manchester High's 3-2 win over cross-town East Catholic Saturday morning at Kelley Field.

Among them were: Jack Lyon's two-out blop single down the leftfield line in the bottom of the ninth inning scoring Bill Herth with the winning run.

Herth's 3-for-3 performance at the plate, including a 2-RBI two-out single in the seventh, Herth's two-out double up the alley in left set the stage for Lyon's heroics.

Mike Freiheit's two-out slicing tripe down the rightfield line in the top of the ninth scoring Pete Kiro ahead of him. Freiheit continued home with the equalizer as Kiro was dropped at home by catcher Dave Parks. Home plate umpire Ray Campose riled Freiheit out, but quickly reversed his call when Kiro, after the dirt settled, the ball rolling loose.

Centerfielder Alex Britnell's game-saving diving, rolling catch of a sinking shot by Mike Faltus in the ninth, two batters after Freiheit's blow. The stab saved two runs as the Eagles had runners on second and third.

Joe Panaro's leaping stab of Brad Cabral's sizzling liner in the seventh. Panaro's leaping stab of Brad Cabral's sizzling liner in the seventh. Panaro's leaping stab of Brad Cabral's sizzling liner in the seventh.

Cabral's ladder-climbing grab of Edgar Ezerins' vicious shot in the fourth.

Ken Hill's stellar mound performance. There were more.

"It was a great high school game," marveled East Coach Jim Penders, who saw his club dip to 3-2 with the loss. Manchester, defeating the Eagles for the first time on the diamond after two seasons, goes to 4-1 with the triumph.

Manchester hosts Simsbury High today at 2:45. East travels to Hartford's Highland Park to confront South Catholic at 1 o'clock.

Hill, 20, retired the first 13 in a row before hanging a curve to East's Dennis McCoy, who promptly drilled a double to left. He tried in the eighth and ninth frames, falling behind the batters in contrast to the early going.

McCoy was picked up by Brian East. Hill walked only one and fanned five. "Hill pitched a great game," Manchester Coach Hal Parks remarked. "His curve ball was fooling them and made his fastball effective."

"Hill kept us off stride," Penders intoned. "He kept the ball low, over

Cougars divide two twinbills

Two more losses were absorbed, running the losing streak to four before Manchester Community College shook out of its doldrums yesterday with a doubleheader sweep.

The Cougars bowed Saturday to Rhode Island Junior College, 4-3 and 6-3, but bounced back strongly against Mattatuck Community College in a three-way rivalry game. Both twinbills were at Cougar Field.

MCC, 11-4 for the season, now gets a rest until Tuesday when it is at Post College in Waterbury. The Cougars played seven games in a five-day span.

Steve Testoni marshalled Sunday's blitz with a perfect 7-for-7 in the doubleheader for MCC. He had two bingles and a solo homer in the opener and two RBIs in the nightcap.

Weekend accidents fatal to two in area

COVENTRY - Terrance Jedzieski, 24, of Tolland died Saturday of injuries suffered in a three-car accident on Route 44A in Coventry and Evan Diana, 19, also of Tolland died Saturday after the truck he was driving went out of control and rolled over several times at the intersection of Bolton and Hatch Hill roads in Vernon.

Jedzieski was in a car driven by Earle Beebe, 22, of Tolland. In the car were two brothers of Jedzieski, Richard Jedzieski, 22, and Stefan Jedzieski, 31, and the driver were all taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital. Terrance was pronounced dead on arrival.

The driver of the second car, Edward Keesler Jr., 19, of 382 Oak St., Manchester, was taken to Mount Zion Hospital in Hartford where he was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit.

Frank Pensavalle, 21, of 98 Parkham Road, South Windsor, driver of the third car and his passenger Phillip Goodwill, 22, of 184 Farham Road, were not injured, police said.

Hospital officials said Richard Jedzieski was discharged and Stefan is in satisfactory condition. They said Beebe is in serious condition with multiple injuries.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation. Diana who lived at 448 Old Post Road, Tolland, was pronounced dead on arrival at 10:49 a.m. at Rockville General Hospital.

Update planned on I-84

COVENTRY - The Town Council will receive an update report from Finance Committee Chairman Roy McLean on Interstate 84 at its meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Town Hall.

The previous council had voted to postpone completion of the highway through Coventry to the Rhode Island border, and sections of the road have remained unconnected in the area for almost a decade.

The council also will hear from Steering Committee Chairman Laurie DeMars, who may make endorsements to several boards and commissions. Action on appointments has been delayed on approval of the Republican and Democratic town committees to meet and to make recommendations for candidates.

Council Chairman Roberto Koonz will report on a letter from federal officials regarding a hydroelectric study of Eagleville Dam on the Coventry-Mansfield border. The dam has just been selected to receive federal funds for the development of a hydroelectric plant that could serve both towns.

Town Manager Frank Connolly will explain a new grant program administered by the U.S. Department of Energy. It would allow Coventry to apply for a grant of up to $100,000 for the purpose of "development of ideas for concepts ranging from new energy sources to the utilization of old procedures or systems for new applications."

Launch protest peaceful

GROTON (UPI) - Striking marine draftsmen and anti-war demonstrators protested without incident this weekend as more than 10,000 invited guests gathered for the launching of the Navy's fast-attack nuclear submarine Boston.

Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo addressed the crowd at General Dynamics' Electric Boat shipyard Saturday to view the launching of the seventh vessel since the Revolutionary War to carry the name Boston.

Hidalgo delivered the main address in place of U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. O'Neill said earlier he would not cross the picket line set up by the 2,000 member association which has been on strike against Electric Boat since October.

Officials called the new submarine the "new ironrides," referring to the historical frigate USS Constitution now berthed at the Boston naval shipyard.

Dozens of Electric Boat workers ran into the ship cheering and throwing their hard hats into the air as the submarine, with its crew of 115 men and 12 officers assembled on the deck, slid into the Thames River.

A Navy band struck up "Anchors Aweigh" as Hidalgo's wife, Karen, christened the Boston. A vocal group sang "God Bless America" as the 6,900 ton boat slid from its berth under bright, sunny skies.

Security was tight in and around the launch site. All the Boston Graton picketed a yellow school bus parked one block from the main gate where striking workers of the Marine Draftsmen Association picketed and anti-nuclear and disarmament demonstrators marched slowly to a drum beat.

A security officer for Electric Boat called the scene "the usual stuff." The demonstrators numbered about 35 and no incidents were reported, he said.
