GOP seeks resignation of Quigley

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — A call today for James Quigley's resignation from the Economic Development Commission was greeted with a chorus of "no comments" from Quigley and other party leaders.

Robert Von Deck, a GOP town committee chairman, requested today Quigley resign from politics because of his remarks at a recent house fire.

The incident, in which Quigley berated the 8th Utilities District's firefighter's performance in losing the Hilliard Street house, has rendered him ineffective as EDC chairman, Von Deck said today.

Quigley was also recently appointed to the Transportation Commission.

In a prepared statement Von Deck says "it is evident" Quigley "has lost the respect of the community by using inappropriate and disgusting language."

"It is my opinion that in dealing with other persons he will always be remembered for the inappropriate remarks he made, therefore mutual respect cannot exist," the statement reads.

"Anyone who derives pleasure from someone else's misfortune should be unfit for any public position."

Von Deck said the silence of the Democrats "bewilders" him, and is evidence that "fire district politics" is being played.

"The best interests of Manchester must prevail and fire district politics should be left out," Von Deck said in the statement.

"It was a noble gesture for Mr. Quigley to apologize and I think it would even more noble if Mr. Quigley resigns on his own and leaves town politics peacefully," the statement concludes.

After Quigley was quoted in a news article, he apologized the following day. Today, Quigley had no comment about the call for his resignation. He did say that "what I said was a mistake" and "he didn't know just how this would turn out."

Quigley's refusal to comment was typical of others. Democrats and Republicans contacted, and General Manager Robert Weiss.

Democratic Director Barbara Weinberg, Republican Director William Diana, and 8th District Fire Chief Ted Lingard, had no comment on the merits of the call for Quigley's resignation.

They did say that they believed Quigley's apology should be sufficient.

"I'm not a vindictive person," Lingard said. "I can't see anything to be gained in carrying this further."

Diana, however, said without the apology the resignation might be justified. But that, as it is, he will "not lead a move" to pressure for the resignation.

However, he noted the parallels between this incident and another in which Frank Lupien was removed as a representative to the Capitol Region Council of Governments forum because of remarks he made about the genocide of Jews during World War II.

Diana noted the Democrats set a precedent when they lead the call for Lupien's ouster, and that Von Deck may be following it. But Lingard, and Mrs. Weinberg noted the two cases "were like comparing apples to oranges."

Von Deck, said, in a later interview, that the call for Quigley's resignation "is based solely on the merits of the case" and not on similarities between the two incidents.

Quigley's appointment is controlled by Robert Weiss, town manager, which is unlike Lupien's which was made by the board.

Weiss said today, that there is no provision for removing an appointee, other than resignation.

Glimpses of history

The historic Pitkin Glass Works played host to other symbols of history Sunday as members of the Southern New England Region of the Vintage Chevrolet Club of America visited the site. More than 30 antique Chevrolets participated in a show at Carter Chevrolet, Main St., and in a tour of Manchester including a stop at the glass works. The tour was coordinated by club officials and officials of the Manchester Historical Society and Pitkin Glass Works Inc. Vance resigns to protest rescue try WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance went to the White House and resigned "with a heavy heart" today in protest of President Carter's aborted attempt to rescue American hostages in Tehran last week.

The hand-written resignation was presented personally to Carter. It came three days after the president revealed mechanical problems forced cancellation of a mission Thursday night in which eight U.S. servicemen died on an Iranian desert.

Vance said he "could not offer public backing" for the president's decision to send a military force to rescue the hostages. He said he was resigning "with a heavy heart." Carter, in another handwritten note, accepted Vance's resignation with "deep regret" and "deep appreciation."

"Cy felt he had no choice," said one State Department official, adding that Vance opposed the mission from the outset and told Carter he would quit after the raid "no matter what the outcome."

Vance, 63, who walked into the White House with the aid of a cane due to painful gout, has been a strong supporter and personal friend of the president during three years and 99 days as senior man in the Carter Cabinet.

It was understood that Hodding

Carter III, an assistant secretary of state and the department's chief spokesman, and others also planned to resign. They included Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights Pat Derian, who is Hodding Carter's wife; Undersecretary Matthew Nimetz, Assistant Secretary Richard Holbrooke, and Assistant Secretary Richard Moose.

Vance is expected to be replaced on at least a temporary basis by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Christopher, 54, is considered high among the candidates to succeed Vance, along with Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser.

Others who might be in the running to replace Vance include White House Legal Counsel Lloyd Cutler; Sol Linowitz, ambassador at large to the Middle East peace efforts, and U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Kingman Brewster.

Vance presented his resignation shortly before Carter flew to Texas to visit with five servicemen injured in the abortive raid.

"He felt strongly about it. He talked to the president several times over the past two weeks and he and the president agreed that they simply differed," said one official. "Cy felt he had no choice, despite his warm personal relationship with the president."

"The secretary felt he could not support it but did not want to resign until it was over," the official said.

Vance, a 63-year-old quiet "diplomat's diplomat" made it clear when he took the job he would serve only one term.

From the outset of his career in the Carter administration, Vance sometimes clashed with his more hawkish counterpart at the White House, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Their differences occasionally simmered openly, and once Carter tried to smooth over the problem by making Vance his chief foreign policy spokesman. That did not last long.

Vance, said some officials, was the only one of the president's top advisers to oppose last week's abortive effort to rescue the 53 Americans held hostage in Iran since Nov. 4. But Carter, despite Vance's misgivings, was determined to mount an effort to free the hostages. The plan was first initiated Nov. 9 and first actively considered April 11.

On Sunday, Brzezinski said he backed the mission and would do it again. Defense Secretary Harold Brown, through a spokesman, expressed similar sentiments.

Bodies will be released to Vatican

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Bodies of the Americans killed in the abortive rescue mission were removed from the U.S. Embassy today and turned over to the coroner and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said they would ultimately be released to the Vatican, the Red Cross and Switzerland.

An undisclosed number of the American captives, held for a 177th day, were transferred to the northwestern city of Tabriz where militants said they would be held in the former American consulate.

In Washington, officials said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was resigning because he disagreed with the White House over going ahead with the rescue operation. The officials said Vance had decided to resign whether or not the raid had succeeded.

The newspaper Kayan said the bodies of the eight American servicemen, wrapped in white cotton cloth and polyethylene, — the Iranians said there were nine — were taken out of the U.S. Embassy and turned over to the Coroners Department.

Bani-Sadr said in a statement broadcast by Tehran Radio the bodies of the U.S. servicemen would be handed over to envoys of Pope John Paul II, the Red Cross and the Swiss government.

"In view of the propaganda launched by America... to (justify) its ugly aggression and to harm our Islamic revolution, and since there is no guarantee that the U.S. government will hand over the bodies to their families, it was decided to hand over the bodies to envoys of the Pope, the Red Cross and the Swiss government to be returned to their families," Bani-Sadr said.

In Luxembourg, leaders of the nine Western European Common Market nations formally pledged today to stand by President Carter and the American people over the Iran hostages crisis. They reaffirmed plans to start an economic blockade of Iran after May 17 if by that date there was no decisive progress toward releasing the 53 hostages.

Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, meanwhile, charged the failed American mission was actually aimed at staging a "creeping coup d'etat" in Iran.

Khalkhali said the United States even planned to bomb key points in Tehran, including the North Tehran home of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The White House reacted with outrage to the grotesque display at the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran of the charred remains of American servicemen killed in the mission.

The militants said in a broadcast over government radio details of the arrangements for keeping the hostages in Tabriz would be announced later.

It was not clear how many of the 50 Americans previously held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran would be held in the Tabriz consulate. Among the hostages held by the militants for 177 days is Michael J. Metrisko, 33, who was for years the American consul in Tabriz. Metrisko was in Tabriz when demonstrators set fire to the consulate a few weeks before the shah's downfall.

The militants said other hostages would be kept in Qom, 80 miles south of Tehran. Qom was the headquarters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini until heart trouble forced him to remain close to his doctors in Tehran.

The militants decided to spread the hostages across the country after the abortive U.S. rescue mission last Friday.

Siebold says club semi-private monday

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Town Recreation Director Melvin Siebold today said the swim team he coaches is a semi-private club and that policies regarding its use of town pools had been authorized by the Board of Directors in 1975.

Siebold said the club operates in accordance with a 1973 agreement that it provide membership to any Manchester resident who can swim the length of one pool. Out-of-towners are accepted on the basis of available space, he said. Membership is restricted to about 150 swimmers.

"We've never looked at it as a private club," the recreation director said. Referring to reports of the club's private status, he said, "This is the thing that irks me. I don't consider it private because of an agreement in 1973." He equated it to the semi-private Manchester Country Club.

Town Manager Robert Weiss has appointed a three-person panel to investigate anonymous charges that Siebold improperly used his office to help the Manchester Swim Team Parents Club financially.

"I have no objection to a committee looking into what we're doing. I don't have any response until the committee of three finishes their investigation," Siebold said. He did say, however, that he was surprised by the investigation.

He said the investigation was decided upon when it became obvious that the letter was going to be made public. The town Advisory Park and Recreation Commission received the letter.

"The investigation will be good," Siebold said because it will prove the club has been run according to the board's plan. "It seems like every three or four years someone has to squawk... they seem to pick on this issue all the time," he said.

He said that in 1975 the club's status changed. Before that time the club had been operated by the town. The board, he said, approved a change that allowed the parents to pay for major expenses, such as trips. Under the old system, secretarial duties and transportation had been provided by the town.

The directors, he said, allowed the club to operate in traditional manner, with the parents picking up any major costs. Secretarial duties had been provided by the town and since they were not major, Siebold said they were continued by the town.

But he said, "There was never anything specific outlined. It's not very well defined. Four times a year secretaries do typing," Siebold said.

Siebold also responded to charges by the same members of the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission that he has missed meetings, that because of his position with the town, he is supposed to attend. He said that since he began his position in 1969, he has missed only three meetings.

One of the meetings was an emergency session scheduled in conflict with a town swim class he was instructing. Another was in conflict with a final exam, he said.

Update

Kennedy wins squeaker

DETROIT (UPI)—The vote was tight and the outcome exceedingly close—but a win is a win and Sen. Edward Kennedy has a scenario for acquiring the needed 1,666 delegates he needs for the Democratic nomination.

At a news conference before leaving Sunday for a five-day campaign trip, Kennedy was asked the usual question of how he expects to win the nomination when he is so far behind in the delegate count.

"What I think we have to do," he replied, "is effectively run even with the president up to June 3 (the day on which a third of the convention delegates will be chosen), and then we have to do as well as the Carter (I did in the first third of the caucuses and we'd gain the nomination).

Carter makes first trip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter, making his first trip since the American hostages were captured in Iran six months ago, has arranged today to visit the five servicemen injured in the aborted rescue mission.

Carter was expected to depart at mid-morning for the trip to San Antonio, Texas, to see the injured men and their families at Brooke Army Medical Center. The men, suffering from severe burns, were members of the crack volunteer rescue team who landed on an Iranian desert last Thursday.

After the hostages were taken Nov. 4, Carter said he would not leave the White House to campaign until they are freed. Although he has made occasional weekend trips to Camp David, Carter has kept to his pledge and assiduously avoided the primary campaign trail.

Colombia siege ends

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—Leftist guerrillas fled to the mountains.

For period ending 7 a.m. EST 4/29/80. During Monday night, scattered showers are likely over parts of the Ohio-Louisiana states as well as throughout parts of the Tennessee Valley and mid-Atlantic states. Fair to partly cloudy skies are forecast elsewhere.

Weather forecast

Cloudy with periods of rain drizzle and fog through Tuesday. The rain may be heavy at times with a few thunderstorms possible. Breezy and cool with the high both days in the low to mid 50s and over 12 C. Lows tonight in the 40s. Probability of precipitation near 100 percent through Tuesday. Easterly winds 15 to 20 mph and gusty at times through Tuesday.

Long Island Sound

Long Island Sound to Watch Hill, R.I., and Montauk Point, N.Y.: Small craft advisory in effect. East to northeast winds 20 to 30 knots with higher gusts decreasing to 10 to 20 knots Tuesday. Visibility 1 to 3 miles occasionally near zero in heavy rain or dense fog. Periods of rain through Tuesday. Rain may be heavy at times with a few thunderstorms. Average wave heights 4 to 6 feet through tonight. Tides rising to 2 feet above normal will cause some flooding along low lying shores near times of high tide later today until late Tuesday.

Extended outlook

Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut: Cloudy with chance of showers through the period. Daytime highs in the 50s and low 60s with the overnight lows in the 40s.

Vermont: Rain Wednesday, showers Thursday, partly cloudy Friday with a chance of showers. Highs in the 50s and low 60s. Lows in the 40s.

Maine and New Hampshire: Chance of light rain or drizzle through much of the period, Highs in the 50s Wednesday and Thursday and near 60 Friday. Lows near 40.

Cuba with 12 diplomatic hostages to peacefully end a 61-day siege at the Dominican Embassy, taking a $2 million ransom but not the jailed comrades they vowed to die for.

U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, a captive throughout the two-month occupation, was released with the other hostages in Cuba and flew to Homestead Air Force Base, Fla., for a reunion with his family. He was joined in the flight by the papal nuncio, who also was held hostage.

Nine of the other 11 diplomats later returned to Bogota for an emotional reunion with their wives and children while the Mexican ambassador returned to Mexico City.

"The worst diplomatic kidnapping in the world was settled," as the Colombian government promised, in a manner that was bloodless, decorous and legal," President Julio Cesar Turbay said in a nationwide radio-TV speech.

Winds hit refugee boats

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Hurricane-force winds in the Florida Straits buffeted the Cuban refugee flotilla, capsizing ships and leaving others powerless. The Coast Guard said there were no deaths reported.

More rough weather was forecast today but most of the boats planned to continue their mission. At least two downed boats had to be towed or escorted back to Key West Sunday.

Convicts release hostages

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI)—Rebellious convicts released their last four hostages today and escaped a 16-hour uprising at the Indiana State Prison.

The end of the insurrection came after negotiations with state officials who agreed to discuss demands that included amnesty for those involved in the rebellion.

Twisters hit the South

Tornadoes whirled through Florida, Virginia and Georgia following a wave of heavy thunderstorms, leaving a trail of uprooted trees, downed power lines and property damage. No deaths were reported.

A tornado near Gainesville, Ga., Sunday, caused an estimated $250,000 in damage and at least one injury. Authorities said 10 homes, seven vehicles, a mobile home and a business were destroyed.

Dollar down in Europe

LONDON (UPI)—Reports of U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's resignation pushed the dollar down on European financial markets. The price of gold also fell.

The price of gold fell $19 in Zurich to $535.50 and was down $13.50 in London at $536.00 on one-and-a-half-day futures.

Reyes Syndrome reported

ATLANTA (UPI)—Cases of Reyes's syndrome—a deadly children's disease that attacks the brain and liver—are being reported at a record rate following the worst epidemic of influenza-B in 18 years, federal health officials say.

The National Center for Disease Control said this weekend 419 cases of Reyes's syndrome already had been reported and they expected the final count in November to exceed the 654 cases reported in 1976-77, the last epidemic year for influenza-B.

Back to academe
It might appear to be a step down—going from Broadway back to the campus—but Mel Shapiro doesn't see it that way.

He'll trade a career as a director on the Great White Way for one in the classroom July 1 when he takes over as head of Carnegie-Mellon University's drama department.

Says Shapiro—a 1961 CMU grad—when asked why he's doing it, "Because I'm crazy." But he's quick to add, "I feel they need me."

That's the job is not without prestige. The Pittsburgh school's drama department—founded in 1914—is the oldest in the nation.

Equipment failure

HARTFORD (UPI)—Officials say apparent equipment failure prevented a tanker truck carrying 2,500 gallons of gasoline to overturn and burst into flames on Interstate 91.

The accident Saturday in the northbound lanes near the Colt Firearms plant spewed flaming gas oil over a large area and blocked traffic in both directions for hours.

Nuke monitor defective

WATERBURY (UPI)—Northeast Utilities has reported a defective nuclear monitor at its Millstone II power plant discovered during the routine venting of gases containing allowable amounts of radioactivity.

A North-Hartford spokesman said Saturday the defect was discovered during the routine release operation about midnight Friday. He said technicians used an alternative method that allowed them to watch the gas pressure drop in a waste tank.

Special education growing

HARTFORD (UPI)—Special education is the fast growing area of public school spending in the state, a public watchdog group said today.

The Connecticut Public Expenditure Council said special education spending increased by an average of 20 percent in 1978-79, about twice as much as any other area in public school budgets.

Rail service gets a chance

Rail service between Manchester and Hartford may be possible yet, because of new life the proposal gained last week. The proposal, which many thought was dead until after the first of the year, was included in a measure to use state funds appropriated in 1974, but not spent. The measure passed this House Friday and is pending in the Senate this week. Manchester residents have shown overwhelming support for the rail service in a demonstration ride and in public hearings. The original proposal was knocked out of the state budget at a time of austerity. Both have been strong supporters of the rail service concept. Their feelings on the measure would be bolstered by an additional expression of public support. Politicians too often hear from opponents of various measures and not from supporters. Giving them another show of support will also aid their efforts to help the bill through the Senate. Both senators can receive mail addressed to them at the State Capitol, Hartford, 06115. The support shown now will help convince the state Manchester is serious about

Is biggest U.S. threat homemade?

WASHINGTON - Forget the Backfire bomber. Forget those blockbuster Soviet missiles aimed at North America. Forget Russia's huge leads in ground armor, ships at sea and manpower. The biggest military threat to the United States today may well be homemade rather than anything manufactured in Moscow. The biggest threat may be our very own all-volunteer armed forces which appear woefully ill prepared to protect America or its allies. How bad the situation really is can only be guessed at. But enough statistics and declassified studies are available to give even the most ardent optimist heartburn. Some three million recruits have joined the Army, Navy, Marines or Air Force since the all-volunteer system was established by Congress and the Nixon administration in 1972. The results of the nation's disillusionment over Vietnam, although Pentagon officials have tried gamely to hew to the official line that the all-volunteer system is a success, they have been overwhelmed by contrary evidence. The Pentagon now admits that fully one-fourth of recruits for all services fall into the lowest acceptable mental category. In the Army alone, according to Pentagon manpower chief Robert B. Pirie, that percentage may be as high as 45 percent, rather than the 10 percent it estimated prior to congressional hearings in March. In 1974, said Pirie, 35 percent of the Army ranked above the 65th percentile range of intelligence. In 1979 that percentage was only 16 percent. The new estimates, said Pirie, show a "very significant change in quality" of the all-volunteer Army. "We are trying to determine what difference the inaccurate labeling of recruits makes in terms of performance in service," Pirie told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Meanwhile, at the insistence of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the committee's manpower subcommittee, a secret 1978 war mobilization game called "Nitty Nuggie" has been declassified. It simulated a conventional attack on NATO forces in Europe and indicated the following: The Army was able to field only 28 percent of the tank crews, 32 percent of the infantrymen, and 73 percent of artillery troops required by the Pentagon office that oversees the recruiting standards of the various services. "There is no easy way to go back to the draft, yet recruiters have a terribly tough job to sell the military in a free marketplace. A reasonable percentage of the recruiters themselves are on food stamps, so it's not going to be that easy to sell the military to others." In addition to relatively low pay, traditional benefits such as the G.I. bill have been watered down recently. "It's chintzy compared to what it used to be," said Martin, who is a civil servant rather than a uniformed officer, and thus more free to speak his mind. "Fundamentally, you have a society not too supportive of the military," explains Al Martin, the chief of U.S. accession policy - the Pentagon office that oversees the recruiting standards of the various services. "The United States has reached a desperate position if it must indeed rely on a critical job shortage to force reasonably qualified young men and women into the armed services. If we expect an adequate military force we must be prepared to pay whatever it costs. "I'm probably the only guy in the country hoping for a recession," Martin added. "As it stands now, our relative market position stinks." The United States has reached a desperate position if it must indeed rely on a critical job shortage to force reasonably qualified young men and women into the armed services. If we expect an adequate military force we must be prepared to pay whatever it costs.

Commentary

More 'humane' meddling

WASHINGTON - It was exactly 15 years ago this month that 405 U.S. Marines landed in Santo Domingo, ostensibly to rescue American citizens caught in the crossfire of a civil war that suddenly had erupted in the Dominican Republic. And it was exactly one year ago this month that more than 1,000 residents of Kerala, a small town in Afghanistan not far from the Khyber Pass, were massacred by Afghan troops acting under orders from Soviet military "advisers." The two anniversaries are worth noting because they provide evidence of both the similarities and the disparities in the military adventures of the United States and the Soviet Union. Within a few days after the Dominican rebels launched their offensive against the military-backed civilian junta then ruling the Caribbean nation, the rebellion erupted into open warfare in the streets of Santo Domingo. The lives of Americans and other foreign nationals living in that capital were indeed endangered, thus justifying President Lyndon B. Johnson's decision to dispatch the Marines on April 28, 1965, to protect and evacuate U.S. citizens. But long after that task had been completed, American troops continued to pour into the country. Within a month, there were almost 24,000 uninvited Marines and members of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division. Those forces were not fully withdrawn until 18 months later - after the rebels' presidential candidate and their bid for restoration of constitutional government had been rejected in ostensibly free elections. Vietnam offers another Afghanistan analogy. Beginning with 900 military "advisers" in 1960, the United States engaged in a massive buildup that peaked in 1969 with 541,500 troops committed to a vast land, sea and air operation that carried hostilities into neighboring Laos and Cambodia. Overshadowing the 50,000 American fatalities were the 1.5 million Asian lives lost, many the victims of B-52 "carpet bombing" napalm attacks and other brutal forms of modern warfare. But the United States never resorted to the inhumane use of chemical or biological warfare. That contrasts with reliable claims from intelligence sources that the Soviets have unleashed in Afghanistan a nerve gas that produces nausea, convulsions and then death within 15 minutes. Moreover, in a little-known move recently sent to Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., Director of Central Intelligence Stansfield Turner outlined a series of alleged atrocities committed last year by Afghan military forces, at a point when that country's government was under Soviet control. In Kerala, a column of 30 Afghan tanks and armored personnel carriers ringed the community on April 29, 1979, then pointed their guns toward the center of town. When local residents defiantly shouted Moslem religious sayings instead of the demanded pro-communist slogans, approximately 1,170 men and boys were forced to crouch together, then were slaughtered by Afghan troops under Soviet direction. In another village where residents refused to cooperate with the pro-Soviet regime, Afghan troops mutilated children in front of their parents, then killed the adults and destroyed the town. In a third incident, 300 residents of a village were slain by Afghan troops. In other cases, aggravated rape by Afghan soldiers has led to the victims' deaths. A modest observation: The United States is somewhat more humanitarian than the Soviet Union in its military adventures (although "humane warfare" probably is a contradiction in terms) but has not been markedly less disposed to military meddling on foreign soil. If President Carter's Olympic boycott and export embargoes are part of a propaganda campaign to embarrass the Soviets, that's a legitimate undertaking. But if the president actually believes his sanctimonious rhetoric, he lacks even the most elementary understanding of recent history and contemporary geopolitics.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Pentagon report pushes for U.S. withdrawal from Europe

WASHINGTON - The popular wisdom in Washington is that the United States must depend on its allies in Western Europe to help achieve American goals - whether it involves a boycott of the Moscow Olympics or sanctions against Iran. For this reason, the Pentagon has kept tight security wraps on a potentially explosive strategy report that advocates an almost total U.S. withdrawal from Europe as a move that offers "the best projects for the future." What lends the report weight is its authorship by two of the Defense

Department's best and brightest - Adm. Henry Train, head of the U.S. Atlantic Command, and former Deputy Defense Secretary Robert Ellsworth. Train's duties include command of NATO's Southern European flank and support forces. The secret, 35-page report spells out the authors' recommendation that the United States drastically decrease its NATO commitments in the interests of national security. In a nutshell, Train and Ellsworth suggest our European allies simply cannot be depended upon. The report is not regarded as a crackpot commentary by any means. Pentagon sources told my associate Dale Van Atta that the report offers "very viable" alternatives to present U.S. policy. How many top Defense Department strategists share the authors' views is not known. Train and Ellsworth acknowledge that Western Europe has top priority in U.S. defense thinking, over Asia and the Middle East. But they note the difficulties involved in this long-accepted priority. "There has been, they report, a steady 'decomposition, erosion and destabilization of political will in Europe and of the European defense posture.' " - There will be 'continuing congressional and public desire to cut U.S. military presence abroad.' - There exists "an unhealthy (if unavoidable) dependency by Europe on the U.S. for Europe's military security... (which tends to further erode European will."

The authors of the secret report are convinced that the last-named difficulty is the most serious. They note "growing European frustration with having to pay, economically and politically for a security guarantee from the United States." Train and Ellsworth then argue that "a reevaluation of resources and restructured defense of NATO Europe offers the best prospects for the future." The authors recommend that the United States withdraw all but a "small U.S. force" from Europe, making up for this pullout by a promise of quick military backup in the event of a Soviet attack. This would free the limited American military strength for the use elsewhere in the world, encourage a credible European nuclear deterrent - and, of course, be popular with

European allies. The Pentagon report observes that the recommended U.S. pullout "recognizes that the Europeans today are basically irresponsible and impotent in foreign policy and security terms, (and) that their impotence is due in no small measure to their dependency on the United States for their military security." The authors recommend that the United States withdraw all but a "small U.S. force" from Europe, making up for this pullout by a promise of quick military backup in the event of a Soviet attack. This would free the limited American military strength for the use elsewhere in the world, encourage a credible European nuclear deterrent - and, of course, be popular with budget-cutters at home. The possibility that the Russians would "react aggressively" if the United States pulled out, or that the Western European nations might "run to Moscow," were discounted by Train and Ellsworth as unlikely. Watch on waste One of the things that infuriates someone who challenges a member of Congress is the cut-rate TV and radio studio available to an incumbent - with a taxpayer subsidy. A 20-minute videotape sets the congressman back $5, while a five-minute radio spot is $1.50. Congress appropriated about $50,000 for the studio's services this year.

Programs explained for MACC Awareness Month

By NANCY CARR, Executive Director. May is MACC Awareness Month. Steve Penny, our mayor, rather astonished me the other day by telling me 'people didn't realize what MACC was doing in the community.' Several other directors indicated that they were also unaware of the extent of the MACC social service program.

TownTalk

The Vernon Town Council was discussing the leaky roof on the Memorial Building. The building, an historical site, has a slate roof and mentions was made of possibly putting a new asbestos roof on it. To which council member Robert Hurd, who is an architect, said, "To put an asbestos roof on the Memorial Building would be in the same category as the concrete blocks that were put in the stain glass windows."

The Vernon Town Council was discussing a request made from a developer to pay a parcel of town-owned land in Rye Beach to a new owner. Members have indicated they wouldn't be in favor of the sale. Robert Doton told the council, "If you take no action the matter just dies," and Councilman Stephen Marcham commented, "Good."

"I would say that with the candidates we have running for president, we might as well leave them off the ballot this November and just hold the referendum for the firehouse," - Glasbury Town Councilman Henry Kime commented on the council's move to begin research on providing an updated firehouse for Company Number 2 and putting the item up for referendum.

Programs planned by women's center

MANCHESTER—The Women's Center of Manchester Community College will present three theatrical programs in its end-of-the-year celebration.

Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the MCC auditorium, the Rhode Island Feminist Theater presents "Paper Weight." The show is a wry comedy on clerical work at an insurance company.

Thursday at 2 p.m. in the auditorium, the program is "Mainly Mime" with Kate Bentley and Jacqueline Wildau.

Thursday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium, the program "Tullis Sessions: A Connecticut Actress" will be presented.

"Mainly Mime" is free. Tickets for the other productions are on sale at the Women's Center and Student Center. To learn more, call 646-4900, extension 252 or 258.

South Windsor chorus plans May 10 concert

SOUTH WINDSOR—The South Windsor Community Chorus will present its seventh annual Spring Concert, May 10, at South Windsor High School, 8 p.m.

The concert will be under the direction of Robert Reeves. Accompanist for the concert is Mrs. Barbara Hagelin.

The theme for the spring concert is "Broadway - 50 years." The chorus will sing selections from such great shows as "Annie," "Mame," "Hello Dolly," and "Sound of Music."

Mrs. Reeves enjoys a long standing relationship with most members of the chorus. Before assuming direction of the community chorus, she was director of music for the Wapping Community Church.

Band shell schedule has 29 events

MANCHESTER—Plans have been completed for 29 events at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell this summer. The band shell is located on the main campus of Manchester Community College and all events will be open to the public free of charge.

The season opens June 8 with a pops concert by the Manchester Symphony Orchestra and concludes Sept. 21 with the Sphinx Temple Shrine Concert Band.

Some of the events not previously announced by Ralph MacCarone, Band Shell program coordinator, are the following:

June 12, Illing Junior High School Concert Band and Benet Junior High School Stage Band.

June 17, Manchester Youth Ballet and the Clarion Brass Quintet.

June 29, Lou Jobert's Dixieland Band and an Irish Music Festival (in conjunction with the New England relays).

July 12, Manchester Pipe Band's Association Festival, sponsored by Peace

Horse show planned by 4-H Club

BOLTON—The Bolton 4-H Horse and Pony Club will sponsor its Second Annual Junior Open Horse Show July 6 at the Tolland County 4-H Agricultural Center grounds on Route 30 in Vernon.

Anthony Thalls of Punfret will judge all English classes and Ralph Collins of Asbury, Rhode Island will judge the Western divisions.

There will be 11 championship divisions. They are the western walk-trot, pet pony, junior western, senior western, gymkana, English walk-trot, pony hunter, saddleseat, hunter, junior English and senior English.

Adults will have the opportunity to compete in a pleasure and beginner class.

Members of the club are currently organizing and planning the show. They are getting sponsors, planning the program, and selecting ribbons and trophies.

"I read the PEOPLE/FOOD section every Wednesday in the Herald"

Because the Herald's People/Food section has lots of new ideas, recipes and tips to help me shop. The Supermarket Shopper column tells me how to best use the valuable coupons to save on my grocery bill. The food advertising also helps me make decisions on menus for the week and the full color cover is beautifully done.

TENNIS FACTS & FIGURES

Modern tennis grew out of the ancient game of court tennis. Its present form was developed in the early 1870s by a Major Walter Clopton Wingfield, and it was first called "sphairistiké."

At the World Championship Tennis Tournament the prize money is given in Barclays Visa Travelers Cheques the official travelers cheques of the 1980 world championship tennis tournaments held from December to May 1980 in Europe and North America. The total prize money amounts to a total of $3 million.

THE GREATEST COURT EVER attending a tennis match was the one that took to the Houston Astrodome in 1973 to see Billie Jean King beat Bobbie Riggs. There were 30,472 people in the audience.

Abby By Abigail van Buren

DEAR READERS: APPELLED IN K.C. wrote that she was upset because her married daughter planned to let her 3-year-old son and 15-year-old unmarried sister witness the birth of her second child...

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had our second child last year. Our daughter, then 2 years 9 months old, witnessed the entire birth, coaching me with "Push, Mama, push!"

DEAR ABBY: I was in a natural childbirth program at Illinois Masonic Hospital in Chicago. My husband and Sarah, our 2 1/2-year-old daughter, watched the delivery...

DEAR ABBY: Last December I gave birth to a healthy, beautiful boy. Both my husband and mother-in-law were present during my labor and delivery...

DEAR ABBY: Our 4-year-old son attended childbirth classes with us and he also witnessed the birth of his little brother. Because of this experience there has never been any jealousy between the siblings...

DEAR ABBY: You will probably get a lot of mail telling you you're crazy, but here's one for your side. Parents think nothing of telling their children that kittens come from cat puppies from dogs and chickens from eggs...

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "One of the many differences between match point duplicate and regular bridge is the so-called match point double."

Alan: "This is a double of a vulnerable opponent's part-score but in order to inflict a one-trick penalty and score a 200-point plus, such doubles are downright silly in rubber games."

Heat: Jiff - George Galaty

Bugs Bunny - Heimdahl & Stoffel
