

'Senioritis' incurable MHS principal says

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — There is no hope for sufferers of senioritis, according to Manchester High School Principal Jacob Ludes III. "Senioritis is joining teacher burn-out as newly coined terms that aptly describe age-old maladies. Senioritis afflicts teens itching to plant their feet in the real world or on a college campus. Its symptoms include a dispirited frame of mind, absenteeism, and restlessness, with severe sufferers experiencing student burn out.

While the National Association of Secondary School Principals thinks it has a solution to the problem, Manchester High School Principal Jacob Ludes has his own opinion of senioritis.

"His initial answer to any queries on the disease concerned on making sure it is correctly diagnosed. 'Spring fever is frequently confused with senioritis,' says Ludes. 'Now, spring fever affects everyone.' However, once the various symptoms have been studied, and it is clear the young adult is suffering from senioritis, Ludes still breaks with the association.

It is terminal
"I am convinced that senioritis is a terminal disease. I know the cause, but there is no known cure," he says straightfaced.

"The cause for this problem is that because so much of what is done in high school is geared toward the future—once a student reaches the end of his senior year, the meaningfulness of school dissipates," Ludes said.

"What could possibly be of significance?" he continued. "They've already worked alongside college, or the military and the last months of the senior year become a blur," Ludes said. But the National Association of Secondary School Principals thinks it has overcome this tendency. A recent issue of its newsletter lists a number of options designed to hold seniors' interest. The options are designed to meet needs expressed by a wide diversity of students, including:

—Gifted college-bound students bored by repetitive, watered-down high school courses.
—Students who like to work with their hands and are anxious for hands-on instruction outside a classroom format.
—Those helping to care for younger children or aged relatives at home while both parents work.
—Discouraged underachievers. Sick of failure, they want to drop out at the first legally permissible time.

MHS program unique
Despite Ludes' dire expectations of failure, Manchester High School offers a number of programs for these types of students, with one that is original to MHS.

Director of Guidance Anne Beecher said the school offers a program known as the University of Connecticut Cooperative. It allows students to attend only high school for three years, spend another year going to both high school and college, and then spend three years in college before graduating.

Even Ludes admits there may be a glimmer of hope for senioritis sufferers with the program such as these in the community.

In a recent "Curriculum Report" the NASSP gives this sampling of programs from across the country as options for seniors:

- Keystone Oaks High, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Community-based learning has been recognized by the State Department of Education as a project that "helps seniors settle down more quickly." Students go out on their own to work on farms, in veterinary establishments, a scientific institute, an airline office, a funeral home. There is no pay for working alongside an adult mentor.
- Sunset High, Las Vegas, Nev.: This evening school is known as "Five O'Clock High." It enrolls youths in grades 10-12 who need to work a day shift, who take care of siblings while parents work, or who are simply "night people," disenchanted with "day" school. Half of the 600 enrolled enter as seniors.
- Project Furlough: Operated in Los Angeles since 1973, a model for other California school districts. Bored by repetitive, watered-down high school courses. Project Furlough allows a senior with legitimate reason to leave school for a year to work, do independent study, or travel.

—Amity Regional Senior High, Woodbridge, Conn.: Five credits a year for working 15 hours a week for pay or as a volunteer in a business unit with an on-the-job sponsor.

—Ballard Memorial High, Barlow, Ky.: Paducah Community College, branch of the University of Kentucky, sends a professor to Ballard, 25 miles away, to teach two college courses: Political Science and World Politics. For three college credits apiece.

—Burnsville High, Burnsville, Minn.: Students may graduate at end of any marking period in which they have fulfilled graduation requirements. Commencement held four times a year.

—Evanston Township High, Evanston, Ill.: Fields Senior Seminar — a 112-credit, year-long course. Students spend 30 days and nights on projects away from Evanston. Remaining time is spent in the community, at the high school or in nearby Chicago. Experiences include three weeks of farm chores, taking turns at 20 jobs for pay in the community, an educational or cultural institution with a private civic agency or foundation.

Reaction varies to budget cut

By LAUREN DAVIS SHEA
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Reactions to the Board of Directors' decision to chop $165,991 from the Board of Education's $17,687,854 1980-1981 budget ranged from disappointment on the part of officials to anger on the part of citizens.

Mrs. Shelly Aronson, who chaired the PTA Budget Study Committee said today "What do townspeople have to do to get attention from the Board of Directors? Last year, we had fewer townspeople participate in the education budget process and they didn't cut it. This year, we had tremendous citizen input and they cut it."

Superintendent of Schools James Kennedy said today he would seek input from Mrs. Aronson's committee to look for places to make the cuts. Education officials had maintained throughout the budget process that the proposed budget contained no improvements, and was already a bare bones beast.

Kennedy said it is too early to know specific areas that will be cut, although he said the staff will try to make cuts in "things more than people." When Town Manager Robert Weiss announced in March that he would recommend a cut of $11,258, school officials said they would be forced to eliminate two teaching positions and two maintenance positions.

School officials had hoped the Board of Directors would make reinstatements of the manager's recommended cuts. They met with disappointment the board's decision not only to accept the manager's cuts but to make additional cut of $54,733. "Of course we were saddened by the cut, but we do realize that we give us an increase over last year," Eleanor Colman, chairman of the Board of Education's Personnel and Finance Committee, said.

Added Board of Education Chairman John Yavis, "We are mindful that the town has committed $1,250,000 over last year's budget and that is a substantial increase. Now, we'll have to make adjustments in our budget."

Those adjustments were attacked by Mrs. Aronson who said "The small-burts this budget is taking are growing into a large wound. There is going to come a time when we're going to see cuts in places that everyone is against, and at that point it will be too late."

Added Mrs. Colman, "Probably what this comes down to is that we'll do without for another year." She said she had no idea what would be cut but that the board would look to the administration to make suggestions.

Yavis had an idea that "I'm sure there will be a review of administrative costs in an effort to keep the budget changes as far from the classroom as possible."

Dr. Kennedy said he expected to discuss the budget at the Board of Education meeting Monday, but that specific areas to be cut wouldn't be settled upon until the board meeting May 27. Kennedy said he wanted the determination made by June 9 so the school's accounting systems will be ready for the start of the fiscal year July 1.

More specifically, Kennedy called the commission's new request an "administrative convenience." The reason for the commission not accepting the application points out a staffing problem with the commission, Kenney intimated.

A spokesman for the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care today had no knowledge of Manchester Memorial's request. "What application is that," Public Information Officer William Edwards said when asked the status of the hospital's request.

Edwards referred the inquiry to the state Attorney General's Office which is handling a hospital-initiated suit against the commission. The hospital has charged the commission violated the Freedom of Information Act during its budget hearings last summer.

With each month that passes before the expansion is completed the hospital loses about $200,000 in inflation, Kenney has said. In addition, the amount of available bed space in Manchester Memorial worsens as time passes, according to Kenney who called the bed situation in the Greater Hartford Region critical.

Tuesday night the local hospital's intermediate care beds were 96 percent occupied, Kenney said.

New material needed

By MARTIN KEARNS

MANCHESTER — Manchester Memorial Hospital's application for a $36 million expansion and renovation project—filed in early April with the state Commission on Hospitals and Health Care—has not yet been accepted.

The commission recently asked for eight pages of information to supplement the hospital's 600 page application.

Hospital Executive Director Edward M. Kenney said Wednesday he considers the application complete and called the commission's request unnecessary.

Kenney said hospital staff spent about six months working with the commission and representatives from the Health Systems Agency of North Central Connecticut. It's not the first time they've met with the commission's new request an "administrative convenience." The reason for the commission not accepting the application points out a staffing problem with the commission, Kenney intimated.

A spokesman for the Commission on Hospitals and Health Care today had no knowledge of Manchester Memorial's request. "What application is that," Public Information Officer William Edwards said when asked the status of the hospital's request.

Edwards referred the inquiry to the state Attorney General's Office which is handling a hospital-initiated suit against the commission. The hospital has charged the commission violated the Freedom of Information Act during its budget hearings last summer.

With each month that passes before the expansion is completed the hospital loses about $200,000 in inflation, Kenney has said. In addition, the amount of available bed space in Manchester Memorial worsens as time passes, according to Kenney who called the bed situation in the Greater Hartford Region critical.

Tuesday night the local hospital's intermediate care beds were 96 percent occupied, Kenney said.

Intermediate care excludes maternity, pediatrics and intensive care services. The hospital's renovation plan would reorganize bed space to create more intermediate care openings. Kenney said some of the information requested by the commission cannot be answered by the hospital. He said some kind of resolution would have to be ironed out because some data concerns other institutions not related to Manchester Memorial.

Kenney also said the commission has been relieved of regulatory duties over the state's nursing home industry. In the process the commission lost "a whole block of work," the executive director said.

The commission can allegedly control the amount of work required of hospitals by increasing budget rate increases allowed each year. It can eliminate lengthy reviews of those agencies spending above the approved levels, Kenney said. State law allows the commission 90 days to review hospitals' applications for expansion projects. The period begins from the date the application is accepted. Another 30 days can be awarded the commission if an institution agrees with its request for more time to study an application.

Manchester Memorial's application has, therefore, a minimum of 90 days before a decision is rendered—should the commission accept the application today.

The state Freedom of Information Commission recently informed the commission from minor violations of state open-meeting laws due to staffing demands. FOI commissioners refused to honor Manchester Memorial's request that reductions in its current operating budget be reinstated since the commission had changed its budget hearing times without notification.

Since the commission must review all budgets from the states 36 general hospitals the FOI commission said scheduling problems could be expected. Besides, the FOI commission said, the meeting changes did not prejudice the hospital's case.

Carter terms invasion as serious world threat

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Carter said today the Red Army is consolidating its hold on Afghanistan and warned unchecked Soviet aggression is the most serious threat to the world since the Cold War.

In his toughest foreign policy speech, Carter revealed his belief the Soviet Union may use Afghanistan as "a launching pad" for incursions into Pakistan and Iran.

In a speech prepared for the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, he laid down what his aides said signals the hard line Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie will take with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko next week.

It was the president's first public speaking engagement outside Washington since the 53 American hostages were seized in Iran Nov. 4. He used it to declare he will "make every effort, using peaceful means if possible," to secure the release of the hostages.

"The necessity of common action in that region is dictated not by any belligerence on the part of peace-loving nations, but by the clear strategic threat that stems from the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan," Carter said.

"Beyond the violence done to Afghanistan's independence and people, the Red Army troops consolidating their hold there are also taking positions from which Soviet imperialism could be extended more deeply and more dangerously in the politics of this vital area," Carter said.

"Soviet success there, even at the high cost in blood and respectability which Moscow is now paying, could turn Afghanistan from an outpost against aggression into a launching pad for further incursions. "This would threaten Pakistan and Iran, but not those nations alone. Soviet aggressions in Afghanistan—unless checked—confronts all the world with the most serious long-term strategic challenge since the Cold War began. To underestimate the magnitude of that challenge would constitute a historic error—an error with probably historic consequences."

"Detente with the Soviet Union remains our goal," Carter said. "But detente must be built on a firm foundation of deterrence."

Libyan head threatens to cut off U.S. supplies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafi threatened today to halt Libya's oil exports to the United States in a move apparently sparked by a White House order giving four Libyan diplomats 24 hours to leave Washington.

Khadafi said he was considering similar action — which included withdrawing Libyan assets — in response to the United States' dispute with the oil-rich North African nation over violent intimidation against Khadafi's foes living abroad.

Libya is the United States' third largest foreign oil supplier, accounting for about 10 percent of American crude imports, and a cutoff could be devastating to the U.S. economy.

The Libyan News Agency Jana quoted Khadafi as saying, "Libya is seriously considering imposing an oil embargo on its exports to the United States and Britain and also withdrawing its assets from the two countries."

In addition, Jana reported that Khadafi demanded West Germany, Britain and Italy pay Libya "thousands of millions of dollars" in compensation for the North African campaign of World War II or Libya will confiscate everything which might compensate us our losses and damages."

Khadafi Thursday urged the Parliament should be "100 percent Moslem" — obviously a plug for voters to strengthen Islamic Republicans in the second stage of the voting.

Teheran Radio said Thursday polling places in at least 22 cities were closed because of unrest, but voting began as scheduled in 15,000 booths across the country.

The polls close at 10 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT) today, it said.

UConn brain research subject of conference

STORRS — An international conference in Strasbourg, France, this summer will focus on the University of Connecticut's "exceptional representation" in brain development research.

The First International Conference on the Development of the Brain is scheduled June 30 to July 4. It has been planned to draw attention to the fact that while man has studied the brain for more than 100 years, only the last 10 "aim toward breakthrough results in brain development," says Dr. Ezio Giacobini, UConn professor and chairman of the laboratory of neuropharmacology, in biobehavioral sciences.

Giacobini, vice-president of the International Society says 10 UConn scientists are scheduled to attend the First International Conference. The society was formed in 1978 to advance research and communication on the development of the nervous system from primitive and in vitro studies to nerve cell differences discovered in mentally retarded children.

While the conference will take place in Strasbourg, location of the internationally known Institute of Neurochemistry, the largest European center for brain research, the Second Conference is projected for Storrs, says Giacobini. "UConn is exceptionally well represented in the neurosciences," Giacobini says, noting that over 50 UConn researchers are probing brain studies, while a minimum of 10 are working on brain development alone.

UConn brain research subject of conference

UConn is "strongly oriented toward work not only in brain development, but on developmental biology on the whole," says Giacobini. He adds that this research has been spurred on here and elsewhere by the Thalidomide tragedy 10 years ago and by modern attention to malnutrition and the effects of drugs on the brain.

At the same time Giacobini has announced that Dr. Dominic Purpura, professor of neuroscience from the Kennedy Center for Research in Mental Retardation, Albert Einstein College of Medicine, in the Bronx will speak May 13.

Purpura, one of few contemporary researchers having isolated microscopic differences between normal and healthy neuroconnections in mentally retarded children, will speak in the chemistry building, Room 100, at 4 p.m. The talk is open to the public without charge.

Following the lecture, Purpura will speak at a dinner at the Faculty Alumni Club, and will outline the development of the neurosciences in the 1980s.

Khomeini backs Bani-Sadr

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today personally approved the appointment of President-elect Bani-Sadr as Iran's new prime minister in an apparent victory for the president's moves to contain his fundamentalist critics.

The 80-year-old Islamic leader gave his assent in a brief statement broadcast by the state radio which said simply: "In the name of God, it is agreed."

Bani-Sadr said that Khomeini's intervention was necessary "to resolutely counter plots," and that the parliament, scheduled to convene in six weeks, would discuss the hostages amid growing fears that the fundamentalist group would endorse Moslem militants demands for an Islamic parliament which Khomeini has said would decide the fate of the American hostages.

The new parliament is expected to be "100 percent Moslem" — at the urging of the Islamic strongman — and dominated by Islamic fundamentalists who have indicated they will try to restrict Bani-Sadr's attempts to broaden his power base.

Khomeini cast his vote for the parliament at his home in North Tehran. Escorted to the ballot box under heavy guard, the Islamic leader walked straight, carrying his identity card in his right hand, and was accompanied by his son, Haj Sayed Ahmad.

The parliament, scheduled to convene in six weeks, would discuss the hostages amid growing fears that the fundamentalist group would endorse Moslem militants demands for an Islamic parliament which Bani-Sadr said in his letter he wanted Khomeini to have the final word on the appointment of a premier.

The Islamic Republican Party, which is far ahead in the number of seats decided in the first stage of voting this winter, reportedly favors a policy of no compromise on the hostages.

Khomeni Thursday urged the Parliament should be "100 percent Moslem" — obviously a plug for voters to strengthen Islamic Republicans in the second stage of the voting.

Teheran Radio said Thursday polling places in at least 22 cities were closed because of unrest, but voting began as scheduled in 15,000 booths across the country.

The polls close at 10 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT) today, it said.

Update

Health probe

TOLLAND (UPI) — State health officials say they're not sure what has caused stomach cramps and loss of hair suffered by some residents whose well water was found to be contaminated last year.

Some residents say they're frightened and have been frustrated in their attempts to get authorities to do more testing.

"It's frustrating to comb your hair and find a comb full, and then find the same thing with your children," said Barbara Hicking, "It's frustrating and frightening."

A dozen families in the town's Charter Road area stopped drinking well water last October after health officials told them it was polluted with leachate from the nearby lawn dump.

In March, several residents were told to stop bathing and washing dishes in their water because the state Health Department found high levels of thallium in it.

Thallium is a toxic metallic substance once used in rat poison and insecticide. It is known to cause both stomach cramps and hair loss.

State health officials say they haven't determined if the thallium came from the leachate or another, possibly natural, source. The officials say they've been unable to find a direct link between the symptoms and the contaminated water.

"We've been asking for a complete profile of our water since October," said Marie-Louise LaFond, another Charter Road resident. "And we're still screaming about it. I can't believe we're being left like this. We should know what's in the water."

Steve Malish, chief of the Department of Health Services Toxic Hazards Division, says he suspects thallium poisoning but hasn't been able to prove it yet.

"You tend to believe the symptoms are due to thallium but that may not be true," he said. "Without recovering thallium in the hair and urine it's impossible to say."

Malish said his department hasn't been able to find a laboratory with equipment sensitive enough to detect small amounts of the substance.

He said the state sent water samples to the U.S. Department of Environmental Protection Agency over a month ago but has received no results.

"I don't know if we'll ever get it," he said.

Probable cause

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Ethics Commission has found probable cause that James Peters, an associate commissioner of education, improperly used his office in promoting a grant for a summer camp he owns.

The commission said Thursday that Peters, who works in the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, helped obtain a $25,000 grant for Camp Bennett in Glastonbury two years ago. Of that amount, $20,000 was in federal funds.

Peters and his wife, Marie, the commission said, own a portion of the camp and have a mortgage on the remainder of the 105-acre facility. The grant was sought in 1978 by United Cerebral Palsy of Fairfield County.

The grant was to train the handicapped in landscape developing and maintenance. It was later revoked after the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare encountered problems with it.

Peters was not immediately available for comment.

"The commission concluded that there is probable cause to believe that in 1978, Peters used his office improperly and in violation of the Code of Ethics for Public Officials, the commission said.

J. D. Eaton, executive director of the commission, said the panel has two possible courses of action — a formal public hearing or an agreement worked out between Peters and the commission.

Seabrook backed

BEDFORD, N.H. (UPI) — Public Service Co. of New Hampshire stockholders have overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to halt construction of the $3.1 billion Seabrook nuclear power plant.

The backers of the idea and two anti-nuclear demonstrators were later escorted by police out of a news conference called by PSC president William Tallman.

Company officials said they requested the ejection because the men continued to ask questions at a news conference following the annual stockholders meeting Thursday.

Manchester chamber selects directors

Thomas F. Tierney, Raymond Damato, Salem Nassiff

MANCHESTER — Anne Flint, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce today announced three additional directors appointed by chamber Chairman Carroll Johnson Brundrett. Mrs. Flint said, "Chairwoman of the Board, Mrs. Brundrett is exercising the privilege of that office to nominate Raymond F. Damato, Salem Nassiff and Thomas F. Tierney to a one-year term."

Raymond Damato, owner of Damato Enterprises, was the first redeveloper in the North End Renewal Project. He is a former Eighth District Director and a member of the Manchester Citizens Advisory Committee. A member and director of the largest chapter of UNICO (Manchester), Damato is a incorporator of the Savings Bank of Manchester and a commissioner of the Cheney Historic District. As a business and property owner Raymond Damato has been the recipient of three Chamber of Commerce Beautification Awards.

Salem Nassiff, a Main Street merchant for over 25 years is the owner of Salem Nassiff Camera and Studio, Inc. He is a member of the Manchester Building Committee and has been active on several Chamber committees. He is a director of the Kiwanis Club and belongs to other civic and fraternal organizations.

Thomas F. Tierney, president of John F. Tierney Funeral Home was treasurer for the Manchester Area Conference of Churches for two years and is currently assistant treasurer. He has been involved in the March of Dimes and local Cancer Fund Drives. Tierney is an avid sports enthusiast — treasurer for the East Hartford Hockey Club, chairman of the 1980 Cops and Robbers Game and manager and player for Tierney's Softball team. He is married to the former Kathleen Reardon, and they have two children, Jennifer and Tommy John.

Hockanum River group honor's contractor's work

MANCHESTER — The Hockanum River Linear Park Committee has honored Ernest J. Reed, a Manchester excavating contractor, for work his firm has done this spring to improve the north bank of the river.

The committee noted Reed did extensive grading just west of New State Road to restore the river bank to a more natural slope after years of excessive filling and dumping in the area.

The beautification effort took part under the committee's direction as part of a long-range plan to beautify the area for a park.

In addition, the committee said, Reed assisted in removing a major log jam in the Hockanum east of Adams Street.

The committee said clearing the area essential to create uninterrupted passage during the annual canoe race April 13.

Each section of the trail generally follows only one side of the river easements and trails haven't been finalized on both sides of the river all areas.

Eventually the Hockanum Linear Park Committee plans to have a complete trail system on both sides of the river from Vernon, through Manchester and East Hartford.

Next spring the committee hopes to place a variety of flowering trees, ground cover and wild flower plants on the newly seeded river bank to enhance its appearance.

A public guided walk has been scheduled Sunday June 15 at 1 p.m. Marge McMenemy, walks coordinator. Further details on the walk will be announced soon.

For period ending 7 a.m. EST 5/10/80. Friday night will find rain or showers in the Pacific Northwest, upper Plains and parts of the lower Florida. Elsewhere, generally fair weather should prevail.

Weather forecast

Becoming partly sunny with chance of a few showers by this afternoon. Highs around 80, 16 C. Fair tonight. Lows 40 to 45. Saturday mostly sunny with highs in the 60s. Weather watch

Thunderstorms brought a deluge of water to the Mississippi Delta and the Gulf Coast, but it was dry weather that worried farmers and cattle ranchers in the Plains and Upper Great Lakes.

Dry weather in the Midlands ignited an early grasshopper hatch in South Dakota and officials warned up to 3 million acres of rangeland could be infested.

Drought conditions beset farms in parts of Iowa, Minnesota and Oklahoma. Disaster aid has been requested for parts of Oklahoma, where crops may already have been damaged. Crop planting was delayed in much of the Midwest.

Scheider wins medal

Actor Roy Scheider, star of "Betrayal," was presented Thursday with the Della Austrian Medal of the Drama League of the City of New York for the most distinguished performance of the year on Broadway.

The 45th annual award was presented to Scheider in a ceremony at the Plaza Hotel by Christopher Plummer, last year's winner, and Mrs. Edward A. Hansen, president of the league.

"Betrayal," by Harold Pinter, has been playing at the Plaza Theater since Jan. 5. It costars Blythe Danner and Raul Julia.

Marriage muddle

Port au Prince's archbishop, trying to still the wagging tongues in the Roman Catholic nation, says it's perfectly all right for Haiti's portly dictator to marry a divorced woman.

Archbishop Francois Wolf Lingonde issued a statement Thursday explaining 27-year-old Michelle Benet, a mother of two, betrothed to "President-for-life" Jean-Claude Duvalier, was never really married.

Lingonde, who also happens to be the bride-to-be's cousin, said the lady's previous marriage does not, exist in the eyes of the Roman Catholic church because she is Anglican and her former husband, a Catholic, did not seek a dispensation from the church to marry her in an Anglican ceremony.

Storybook marriage ends

The old saw has it that "the third time is the charm," but it didn't work for Greek shipping heiress Christina Onassis. Her third marriage — to Russian Sergei Kausov — was dissolved Thursday by a court in Samedan, Switzerland.

No one knows what happened to the storybook marriage — the only reason given was that the couple were unable to have children.

Kausov was left richer by a settlement reported to include substantial property rights and a $0,000-ton oil tanker. For Christina, who doesn't have to worry about such mundane things, her restless search for personal happiness begins again.

Glimpses

Ben Bova, executive editor of Omni Magazine says scientists are getting a bad reputation in the movies: "In most movies, scientists are portrayed as having the intelligence and moral scruples of movie producers. Experts see easing of inflation battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration and a number of private economists say the United States has seen the worst of its most devastating round of inflation since World War II.

They point to a number of signs: —Producer prices — an indication of what lies ahead for consumers — are predicted to show a substantial drop for April.

—Interest rates have begun to tumble in the past two weeks.

—Mortgage rates, which have been playing a major role in boosting the Consumer Price Index, have begun to turn down, falling in some parts of the country from the 16 and 17 percent range to 13 and 14 percent.

President Carter, moving toward active campaigning after months of isolation in the White House, noted some of those developments Thursday in separate talks to farm equipment and fertilizer executives and the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement.

"Interest rates are now falling at the most rapid rate in the history of our country," he said. "I have no doubt that in the next few weeks, perhaps in the summer, we will have substantial evidence the inflation rate is also dropping quite rapidly."

Alfred Kahn, Carter's chief inflation fighter, has been saying, barring some new international crisis, consumer level inflation could be reduced to close to 10 percent by the end of the year from its recent annual rate of 18 percent.

"The administration is counting on such a drop in inflation — and the resulting encouragement that should give business in general — to keep the mild recession it has forecast from becoming a much more serious downturn."

Carter said such an improvement in inflation would help rejuvenate the depressed housing industry and help farmers and small business.

Kennedy pinning hopes on Maryland's black voters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's hope for winning next Tuesday's Maryland primary may lie with black voters.

Kennedy is bound to do well in the liberal suburbs of Maryland while President Carter can count on the rural, eastern and western parts of the state, leaving the huge Baltimore area as the battleground.

With Carter holding the allegiance of most of the state and city political leadership and of many blacks, Kennedy got an important boost during his campaign in Baltimore Thursday.

Black City Councilman Kwesi Mune, who accompanied Kennedy through a shopping mall, announced toward the end of the senator's campaign day that he had won the endorsement of the Baptist Minister's Conference, a powerful association of 125 black churches who may deliver pro-Kennedy sermons Sunday.

"If I were president, I would have gone," he said. "I think the long range interest of the United States people and the Yugoslavian people would have been served by that."

After attending morning memorial services at Arlington Cemetery for the eight servicemen killed in the Iranian rescue attempt, Kennedy was to campaign later today in Nebraska, which also is holding a primary Tuesday.

Iran suicide attempts reported

NEW YORK (UPI) — Italian journalist Oriana Fallaci says one of the American hostages in Iran has made three suicide attempts.

Her report, appearing in the current issue of New Republic magazine, could not be independently confirmed. There had been previous reports, also unconfirmed, that one of the hostages had attempted suicide.

The State Department said it has heard the reports of the suicide attempt, but has no way of confirming them. It repeated it holds Iran responsible for the welfare of the American captives.

Miss Fallaci, who went to Tehran in an unsuccessful attempt to interview Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, said a reliable source had told her the hostage was one of those kept in strict confinement in the basement of the occupied U.S. Embassy.

She said after the third suicide attempt, "he was so close to death he was taken to a hospital."

"Did he die?" she asked.

Miss Fallaci said three clergymen who visited the hostages during Easter did not see all the captives. But a two-man International Red Cross delegation was later allowed to see the hostages and reported seeing all 50 hostages.

The Red Cross team said the Americans were in good condition considering their situation.

Town to start study to reclassify workers

MANCHESTER — The reclassification study of municipal clerical and technical workers, which was approved in the 1980-81 budget, will begin late June.

In adopting the budget Wednesday evening, the Board of Directors accepted Town Manager Robert Weiss' proposal that the reclassification study be conducted in-house at a cost of $2,500.

Steven Werber, personnel director, will conduct the study with the help of a hired consultant, and a summer intern.

The consultant will be paid $1,500 and the part-time employee $1,000.

The last time the jobs were reclassified was in 1958, and in recommending the study Weiss noted a revision was long overdue. Reclassification usually upgrades an employee's pay and sometimes shifts responsibilities.

The study will affect about 25 positions, and 80 employees.

Werber has said that he will meet with union officials within the next two weeks to explain the study. The majority of jobs affected were formerly under the jurisdiction of the Municipal Employees Group, Union which has merged with the American Federation of County and Municipal Employees Union.

In his recommendation, Weiss noted he believed the study could be conducted in-house impartially, with panels formed to hear complaints about the revisions.

In adopting the budget Wednesday evening the Board of Directors denied reclassifications, pending the study's results.

The board also denied reclassifying several mid-management positions including those of Werber and Janet Chaves, budget analyst. The board said the raises were not presently economically feasible.

Control Data Forms Inc. acquired by Texas firm

MANCHESTER — Control Data Forms Inc., with operations on Progress Drive in Manchester, has been acquired by Continental Forms of Dallas, Texas.

A spokesman for Control Data estimated the supplier of business forms employs about 110 people at its Manchester office.

Mike Bean, materials manager, said the acquisition should help Control Data in the future. The former parent company has a worldwide interest in computers while the new firm specializes in business forms.

Bean said Control Data demonstrated an interest in its employees during the acquisition. Although the recession will slow business temporarily, he said Continental Forms will substantially increase investments in the local forms division. He held out the possibility new jobs might be established.

A spokesman for Continental Forms said the acquisition would complement the company's business forms and computer sales and leasing businesses. It will also expand the company's business products distribution network by establishing nationwide service.

Primaries out of hand

Our system of presidential primaries is a perfect example of a good thing that grew without appropriate planning. The system now is cumbersome, expensive and in some states almost meaningless. It is out of hand and it needs reform.

regional primaries would be selected at random. Senators Abraham Ribicoff, of Connecticut, Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, William Cohen of Maine, David Durenberger of Minnesota and Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico are co-sponsors of the bill.

the adoption of the regional primary system. When that happens, the civilized portion of New England will no longer face the embarrassment of the backwards image we are given when attention is paid to the New Hampshire primary.

McCluskey selection no surprise

By Earl Yost Sports Editor

Selection of Joe McCluskey as the first man to be inducted into the Manchester Hall of Fame in September is no surprise.

McCluskey was the only unanimous choice of the five-man committee that participated in making the selections after scanning the merits of more than 100 male and female athletes with Manchester ties.

The Manchester native brought more attention to Manchester than any other athlete in history.

Joe Pat Manchester on the map, long-time friend, Bob Douglas reported. "He made people all over the country aware that there was a Manchester, Connecticut."

Barber sparks Flyers

NEW YORK (UPI) - There was at least one member of the Philadelphia Flyers who wouldn't say that Bill Barber was the spark in the team's semifinal victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

"I'm only one guy on the team," said Barber, after he scored two goals in Game 5 Thursday night to pace the Flyers' 7-3 clinching triumph.

"I'm awfully proud of these guys," Sommer said. "We lost to the best team in the league. We can always dream but we can't always be disappointed when we don't win."

The Flyers, who had a record 35-game unbeaten streak - which was ending Tuesday - were looking to become the NHL's regular-season points champion.

"I'm going to interview a number of professional coaches but not until after the playoffs are over with," Bastien added.

"We haven't talked to anybody. It's a possibility that we'd talk to him. I'm just guessing the coaching goes as the club does. The first one to go always is the coach. It is probably no surprise."

But it may have been impossible for Wilson to make the club a winning one, Kirndrach said.

DETROIT (UPI) - Mark Fidrych's hopes of being a major-league pitcher may be over.

Fidrych, who won American League Rookie of the Year honors following his 19-9 record in 1976, will meet today with Detroit President and General Manager Jim Campbell at the team's Evansville, Ind., farmclub.

Fidrych, who is 25 and dropped to 6-4 in 1977, 2-0 in 1978 and 0-3 last season because of arm trouble, was demoted to the Tigers' farmclub this season and has pitched 15-23 innings, given up 25 hits and is 0-2 with an ERA of 9.30.

Earlier this week, Fidrych complained his right shoulder was too painful for him to throw.

John Wilson fired by NHL Penguins

PITTSBURGH (UPI) - Pittsburgh team captain Ernie Kinschick said he wants the club to hire all of General Manager Baz Bastien's new staff.

Bastien said the team will "make a decision in June sometime" on a new coach to replace Wilson.

"I'm going to interview a number of professional coaches but not until after the playoffs are over with," Bastien added.

"We haven't talked to anybody. It's a possibility that we'd talk to him. I'm just guessing the coaching goes as the club does. The first one to go always is the coach. It is probably no surprise."

But it may have been impossible for Wilson to make the club a winning one, Kirndrach said.

DETROIT (UPI) - Mark Fidrych's hopes of being a major-league pitcher may be over.

Fidrych, who won American League Rookie of the Year honors following his 19-9 record in 1976, will meet today with Detroit President and General Manager Jim Campbell at the team's Evansville, Ind., farmclub.

Fidrych, who is 25 and dropped to 6-4 in 1977, 2-0 in 1978 and 0-3 last season because of arm trouble, was demoted to the Tigers' farmclub this season and has pitched 15-23 innings, given up 25 hits and is 0-2 with an ERA of 9.30.

Earlier this week, Fidrych complained his right shoulder was too painful for him to throw.

Connors upset by Amritraj

NEW YORK (UPI) - Vijay? But perennial New York favorite Jimmy Connors, the second-seeded...

Not exactly the familiar names the WC might have hoped to have in the quarterfinals of its inaugural $500,000 Tournament of Champions - an event WCT head Lamar Hunt has poured an extra $200,000 and a lot of effort into in the past year in hopes of recreating a major tournament at historic Forest Hills.

Also remaining in the quest for the $100,000 first prize are Wednesday winners Balazs Taroczy of Hungary, Wojtek Fibak of Poland and Brian Teacher of Los Angeles.

Connors did little Thursday to move towards his stated goal of reclaiming the No. 1 ranking in the world in losing to Amritraj, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, 2-1 when the rain-suspended match resumed.

Billy Martin fits perfectly at this time

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charlie Finley has hired 18 managers in 20 years, a few even twice, and he finally has one now who suits him perfectly.

At the moment, with his Oakland A's astonishing everybody by leading the American League West and playing better than 300 ball, Finley says Billy Martin is doing "a beautiful job."

"He manages the way I like to see a manager manage — aggressively. Very aggressively," Finley says. "This team has stolen home three times already. In the 12 previous years the A's have been in Oakland, they stole home only four times. Billy has every one of our young ballplayers believing in himself 100 percent. Several of them have told me what a joy it is to be playing under the leadership of Billy Martin. Ballplayers, especially young ones, want to be led and Billy is a natural leader."

When Martin signed to manage the A's last February, much was made of the fact that Finley was constantly on the phone with his previous managers and there was general speculation over how much "interference" Martin would tolerate before Finley would have a change of heart.

"I'm not sure," says Finley. "We've had no disagreements. He's most cooperative and understanding with me."

Regarding the "interference" he has been accused of with some of his past managers, Finley has this to say:

"If I interfere, it must pay dividends because no other club has won five consecutive divisional championships and no other club has won three consecutive world championships since I've been in baseball. But why do I have to show my own horn? It's all right there in the record books. I don't think I interfere at all. But if I do, it's my prerogative, and anything that's my prerogative is not interference."

Basically, Finley is a lot like Martin. Fiercely competitive, frequently volatile and always imaginative. Some of those who wanted to make book on how long he and Martin could enjoy any kind of working relationship together are now the same ones marveling over how well they are getting along.

"A lot of people stop me on the street and tell me I made the right

Molitor draws attention

By Milton Richman
NEW YORK (UPI) — For my money, Paul Molitor is the best young ballplayer in the whole country.

had a suspicion he might be when I first saw him with the Milwaukee Brewers two years ago, and the more I watch him, the more convinced I am. "It sounds too clean. Maybe I was a little more that way when I first broke in two years ago, but I don't see myself as any kind of 'Jack Armstrong' now. What I try to do is treat people with respect, and conversely, I find they treat me with respect."

Especially the pitchers. Last year, Molitor set a club record with his 322 batting average and 18 triples. He also led the Brewers with 188 hits and 83 stolen bases. This year, "Molly" is the American League's fourth leading hitter with a .353 figure.

Dee Fondy, the former Cubs' first baseman who is now assistant to Brewers' General Manager Harry Dalton, was the man who signed Molitor after Milwaukee made him its first choice in the 1977 June free-agent draft. He came up to the Brewers as a shortstop the following February.

Molitor played short until Robin Yount returned when he was moved over to second and now the Brewers have themselves as fine a young double play combination as there is in all baseball.

"Since day one, I've always wanted to be a big league ballplayer," says Molitor. "My father, Richard, is vice president in accounting for the Burlington Northern Railroad now and I remember when I was small, I'd push him out in the backyard so we could play ball together. He was the first to encourage me to become a ballplayer."

Nettles didn't argue the point. "But you have to throw more than one pitch," he told Lyle.

First five-game winner Honeycutt feels he's paid dues

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Mariners in their first few years have been largely undiscovered by their own hometown fans. Rick Honeycutt and the rest of the young Mariner pitching staff could change all of that in a hurry.

Honeycutt became the first pitcher in the major leagues to win five games when he shut out the powerful California Angels on five hits Saturday.

Honeycutt is in only his fifth year of professional baseball, but the former Pittsburgh Pirate farmhand thinks he's earned his success.

"I feel like I've paid my dues and I feel like Seattle's paid their dues. They put up with 5-11 season (1978) and with me being on the disabled list for two months and not pitching very well. But they had enough confidence and patience in me," said Honeycutt.

The acquisition, care and feeding of young pitchers has been the primary concern of the Mariners since they joined the American League in 1977. Seattle general manager Lou Gorman on several occasions has traded away his best veteran talent — including Craig Reynolds, Ruppert Jones, Enrique Romo and Dave Collins — to get promising young pitchers.

"The name of the game is getting good pitching," said Gorman. "To get good pitching and good left-handed pitching is the hardest thing to do. You have to steal them away or give the other team something they need right now."

Six of the top pitchers on Seattle's staff — starters Honeycutt, Floyd Bannister, Jim Beattie and Mike Parrott and relievers Shane Rawley and Byron McLaughlin — are 25 years old or under. Honeycutt, Bannister and Rawley are lefties.

The Mariners traded former New York Yankee right-hander Dave Pagan to the pitching hungry Pittsburgh Pirates in August, 1977, to get Honeycutt. Pagan is now out of baseball.

"Honeycutt was pitching at Class AA (Shreveport) at the time," said Gorman. "That trade was just really good scouting on our part. Pagan always had a good arm and a lid at AA wasn't going to be able to help Pittsburgh for a few years. We were thinking: take a Honeycutt and maybe pitch with him for a few years."

The Mariners elevated Honeycutt immediately to the big leagues and began to teach him to throw a sinking fastball.

Connors of Racquetball

BEVERLY, Mass. (UPI) — Marty Hogan has been dubbed the Jimmy Connors of racquetball, with his unseemly court-side manners and a 140 mph rocket-like serve.

Hogan has some of the familiar Connors routines down pat, including: 1. loss racquet in disgust at crucial moment; 2. swear in general direction of line judge, and 3. stare down opponent before serving.

But like Connors, he has the talent to go with it, and it's not news anymore to racquetball fanatics when Hogan wins.

The 22-year-old has won 27 of the 32 pro events he's entered in his four-year career. When he loses to a mild-mannered control player, that's news. Hogan was upset earlier this month in the $15,000 Seamus Classic at a Beverly racquetball-handball club by Mike Yellen of Southfield, Mich. Yellen used pinpoint shooting, took advantage of Hogan mistakes and ended up with an easy 21-16, 21-11 win.

The 20-year-old Yellen, known as a control rather than a power player, won rookie of the year honors when he joined the pro tour in 1977-78.

Soviet politics may kill games

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — A former Olympic decathlon winner said Tuesday Soviet politics may kill the Olympic Games.

"We are probably going to see the death of the Olympics in the near future, if it isn't dead already," said Bill Toomey, who won a gold medal for the United States in the 1968 Mexico City Games.

"If the Soviets hadn't been planning to use the Games as a public relations vehicle to show the world just how great and democratic they are, I'll eat my hat."

Homeys told a group of students the Russians thought the invasion of Afghanistan would have no effect on the Summer Games.

"The Russians thought they could get away with it," he said. "They really did. Nobody is more surprised that the United States isn't coming to the Games than they are."

Toomey said he felt sorry for the athletes who worked so hard training for the games, only to have the boycott prevent their participation.

Who Am I?

I'm the only runner ever to hold simultaneous world records for 600 meters, 1 mile and 1,500 meters. And I broke those track marks in a span of just 41 days. Before my summer blitz, I was virtually unknown!

Market chain says lawsuit aimed at influencing policies

HARTFORD (UPI) — Stop & Shop says a second wave of consumer charges filed by a labor-guided coalition against the supermarket chain is a "blackmail" attempt aimed at influencing the company's choice of suppliers. The eight-group coalition filed more than 200 pricing and advertising complaints against the chain's state stores Thursday with the Federal Trade Commission, the state attorney general's office and the state consumer protection commissioner. The coalition — representing consumer, church and labor groups — carried out a three-month survey of 18 of 44 Stop & Shop stores in the state as part of a nationwide investigation into the chain by the United Farm Workers union. On Wednesday, a Rhode Island and Massachusetts coalition filed a complaint in Boston accusing the chain of over 1,000 trade violations in New England. That coalition charged the company made $1,500 per day or $450,000 per year in profits through the violations. But Stop & Shop spokeswoman Deborah Iannotti said the ongoing survey "part of an on-going strategy of harassment by the United Farm Workers in order to force

Dignitaries at funeral conduct summit diplomacy

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — President Josip Broz Tito, the last of the giant World War II soldier-statesmen, was buried in the presence of one of history's largest gatherings of world leaders, who used the funeral as he might have wished — for summit diplomacy. Statesmen from 121 countries — including 30 heads of states, four kings, 40 prime ministers and eight vice presidents, watched as Tito was laid to rest Thursday in a plain white marble tomb in the quiet tree-shaded flower garden of his home. The assemblage included Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and Chinese Communist Premier Huo Guo Feng. But notably absent were President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and President Carter, whose failure to attend drew sharp criticism in the United States. In the end as Tito instructed, a simple slab saying only "Josip Broz Tito, 1892-1980," marked the resting place of the leader, who fought Hitler's army and defied Josef Stalin to keep Yugoslavia independent before going on to help found and head a vast bloc of nonaligned states. An estimated 1 million Yugoslavs, many weeping openly for the leader who died for the 35 years since World War II, lined the 3-mile funeral route. They tried to catch a glimpse of the coffin resting on a gun carriage and draped with the blue, white and red Yugoslav flag. Many in the crowd wore their partisan army uniforms in which they fought alongside Tito against the Nazis. The funeral came on the 35th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe — VE day. Tito's widow Jovanka, who remained in the tomb on Dedinje hill overlooking the city. State President Lazar Kolisevski, a graveside oration, declared Yugoslavia "is prepared to defend every foot of their soil." He said "no one and nothing can or shall divert us from the paths along which you (Tito) persistently and tirelessly led us." The galaxy of international leaders assembled in Belgrade led to numerous informal bilateral talks, with Afghanistan, Iran and the Middle East high on the list of topics discussed. U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim met for nearly an hour with Iranian Foreign Minister Salegh Gohbadeh. In what could have been another attempt on Waldheim's part to free the American hostages in Iran. West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and maverick Communist Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu held a series of East-West meetings, both of them meeting with U.S. Vice President Walter Mondale. Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi met with China's Chairman Hua in the first real summit talk between India and China in more than two decades — since the two fought a brief border war in 1969. In the dozens of other summits before and after the funeral, Brezhnev met North Korean President Kim Il-Sung and Mrs. Gandhi, and Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher met Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany. Mondale also conferred with President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, and Prime Ministers Adolfo Suarez of Spain and Raymond Barre of France.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Michael Williamson is a physical education teacher with wife, two kids and a $450 monthly mortgage. He's also on strike, along with 1,450 other public school teachers winding up their second week on picket lines today. "Because things are so tight, we may not be able to send our 3-year-old to nursery school," said Williamson, 30, who works at Springfield Technical High School. But like many other teachers who could face jail sentences because teacher strikes are illegal in Massachusetts, Williamson is willing to go "because there is just too much at stake. Now it's becoming a question of self-respect. When a person loses their self respect, they lose their value as an educator." Kenneth Sarno, 29, a history teacher at Van Syke Junior High School, admits he is "scared, but I'm returning to classes next week. All 50 city schools have been closed since the walkout began April 22.

St. Francis will host infection symposium

On Tuesday, the Section of Infectious Disease and Epidemiology at Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center will host a unique and innovative symposium on infection control. The all-day seminar entitled "Workshop for Infection Control: Coordinators in Extended Care Facilities" will present lectures and discussions on the prevention and control of infections and nursing homes and convalescent facilities. Planned jointly by infection control coordinators in acute care and extended care facilities, the workshop is a unique cooperative effort by these infection control practitioners to exchange mutually valuable information. Faculty members include: Susan Brock, medical technologist at Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center; Janet Parks, nurse epidemiologist at Backus Hospital (North); Ronald Guglietti, epidemiologist at Saint Mary's Hospital (Waterbury); Margaret Flower, nurse epidemiologist at V.A. Medical Center (New Haven); Helen Witthoft, nurse epidemiologist, Rockville General Hospital; Robert Lyons, M.D., director of Infectious Disease Epidemiology, Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center; Bernice Linderme, R.N., assistant executive director of the Connecticut Association of Health Care Facilities; John Gracewaki, epidemiology clinician, Hartford Hospital. The program was coordinated by Kathryn Ross, R.N., and Gayle Madden, R.N., nurse epidemiologists at Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center. More than 150 infection control coordinators are expected to attend the event, which will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Genras Ambulatory Care Center, 1000 Asylum Ave., Hartford. The workshop has been approved for 8-1/2 Continuing Education Credits for Registered Nurses.

Diet Center, Soy Dairy plan nutrition workshop

Diet Centers of Southington and Meriden and the New England Soy Dairy, producers of SOYDAIRY ToFu, will talk workable approach to nutrition and dieting and about SOYDAIRY ToFu, the new ingredient in low-cost, low-calorie meal planning in a workshop called, "It's What You Eat." The workshop, at the Holiday Inn in Meriden on Wednesday, May 14th from 7:30 to 9 p.m., is open to the public as well as to Diet Center members. Admission is $1.50. Not only for dieters, the workshop is directed to anyone interested in proper nutrition for good health. The evening will begin with opportunities to sample low-calorie salads and more d'oeuvres made with SOYDAIRY ToFu. Presentations by Cele Cohen, R.N., counselor at the Diet Center of Southington, and by Madeline Fox, the Soy Dairy's director of marketing, will follow. According to Cohen, the Diet Center started to use SOYDAIRY ToFu because it was a complete protein which also could accommodate those on a vegetarian diet. When it was learned that these women were losing weight at a faster rate, more recipes using the new food were added, so that now SOYDAIRY ToFu is a regular part of the Diet Center meal plan. "A problem with many diets is that they rely on costly protein such as lean cuts of beef or fish," says Fox. She describes SOYDAIRY ToFu as an inexpensive alternative that's high in protein, versatile, and quick to prepare with no waste, no additives or preservatives, and no cholesterol. For more information on the workshop, contact Cele Cohen at 621-7628 or Jane Kenefick at 237-3225.

Geidel's recital to close season

STORRS—Stanley Geidel, a University of Connecticut lecturer in clarinet, will bring the UConn music department's 1978-79 concert season to a close with a free recital Monday. The concert begins at 8:15 p.m. in Von der Mehden Recital Hall. Assisting him will be his wife Linda Bolancourt Geidel on the viola, and Khurshed Rastorjij on the piano. The program of modern-era music will consist of Darius Milhaud's "Sonatine for Clarinet and Piano," Charles Whittenberg's "Three Pieces for Clarinet Alone," Alfred Uhl's "Kleines Konzert, for Clarinet, Viola, and Piano," and Camille Saint-Saens' "Sonate, for Clarinet and Piano." Whittenberg formerly was a professor of composition in the UConn music department. Geidel, who received his bachelor of music degree from UConn in 1976, holds a master's degree from the Juilliard School, where was a scholarship student. While at Juilliard, he was principal clarinet of the Juilliard Orchestra, performing under such conductors as Sixten Ehrling, Alfred Wallenstein, Sir Georg Solti, and Leonard Bernstein. As a member of the Brioso Woodwind Quintet, the Manchester native performed frequently at New York City's Lincoln Center. In 1979, the group won a Carnegie Recital Hall performance as winner of the Artists' International Management's Seventh Annual Young Musicians Awards. As a solo recitalist, he has performed recently in New York at Alice Tully Hall, Paul Reital Hall at Lincoln Center, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. His wife, Linda, is a faculty member of Peabody Preparatory Division of the Merrymood Music School, and the Park School in Baltimore. She received her master of music degree from Juilliard last year, and her bachelor of music degree from Peabody Conservatory in 1977.

Season expanded for Summerstage

HARTFORD—Summerstage's Second Company will perform an expanded season with two new directors in the Kriebel Auditorium at Trinity College. The children's theater series has been expanded to four shows with six performances of each show. Opening the season will be "The Invisible Dragon" by Patricia Clapp, a tall tale of questing knights, hungry dragons and unhappy princesses. The performances will be June 25, 26 and July 2 and 3. "Henry Mouse" by Roberta Noblesman tells the story of a mischievous mouse who indulges in pranks which boggle the minds of mousedom. Music and magic prove to be the cure in the end. Performances will be July 9, 10 and 16, 17. "Skittlybacks" by Connecticut resident Kay Janney will be the third performance of the season. A folk tale ramp through New England, the show combines music and dance for a lesson in "living" geography. Performances will be July 23, 24, 30 and 31. The final children's production of the season will be the contemporary children's literature classic "The Noun Patrol" by Norman Lear. Juster adapted by Susan Natus. This is a remarkable story of a boy's pursuit of rhyme and reason in a land of nonsense, humor and irony. Performances will be August 6, 7, 13 and 14. The free play will have three performances: at 8 p.m. Sunday at Auerbach Auditorium in Hillier Hall, at noon and 1 p.m. on Monday, May 12, at Bushnell Park, and at noon and 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 22, on the west patio of Genesus Student Union. In case of rain, the final performances will be inside in Suisman Lounge. The cast for "Signs of Life" includes Channing Stave of 200 Broadway, Coventry.

Play based on oral histories

HARTFORD—Recollections of Hartford at an earlier time will be part of an original play to premiere this weekend at the University of Connecticut. Glances from oral histories of 40 people of all ages, the play is a compilation of experiences dealing with city and suburban experiences. "Signs of Life" is a series of vignettes about ordinary people leading ordinary lives, the kinds of lives that usually are not recorded. The connecting link joining the 12 characters is a flower seller, a hobo type who plays musical instruments and passes out flowers to those in the audience. A song about Hartford, believed to be the first ever written, was composed specifically for the play by Paul Reuter of West Hartford, coordinator of youth programs for the Hartford Symphony Orchestra. The play's author, selected from a host of applications from throughout the northeast, is Kathleen Cahill, press director and publications editor of the Hartford Stage Company. Ms. Cahill, who moved to Connecticut from California last year, found the oral interviews particularly interesting because she once worked in downtown Hartford as a reporter for The Hartford Times. Janet Brown, director of theater at the University of Hartford, will direct the play. "It's one that the audience here will be able to identify with," she said. "It's based on real life people and situations in Hartford and its suburbs," she said, "and the best drama comes out of specific people and places." The transcribed interviews, on which the play is based, will become part of the University of Hartford's archival resources. They were made by students taking a special oral history course from John Sutherland, adjunct faculty at the UofH and director of the Institute of Local History at Manchester Community College. Sutherland feels the oral histories are "valuable tools for future researchers. Too often we've had to rely solely on the elite's view of events. They were the people who had time to keep diaries." Those who took his course, he said, were "Multi-ethnic and came from a wide geographical area throughout the region. That diversity is reflected in the topics they have chosen and in the types of people they have decided to interview." "Signs of Life" is one of the final events in the program, "Hartford, The City and The Region, Past, Present and Future," funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The free play will have three performances: at 8 p.m. Sunday at Auerbach Auditorium in Hillier Hall, at noon and 1 p.m. on Monday, May 12, at Bushnell Park, and at noon and 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 22, on the west patio of Genesus Student Union. In case of rain, the final performances will be inside in Suisman Lounge. The cast for "Signs of Life" includes Channing Stave of 200 Broadway, Coventry.

Film series set at UConn

STORRS—A series of 11 recent films from all over the world will be presented Wednesdays, 8 p.m., from May 21 through July 30, at the University of Connecticut's Von der Mehden Recital Hall. The series will begin May 21 with the 1976 French film "Cousin, Cousine," a comedy-love story of cousins by marriage whose friendship develops into love as their families look on in dismay. The will come "State of Siege" on May 28, starring Yves Montand and directed in Algeria in 1973 by Costa-Gavras. It is a political drama based on the actual kidnapping of a U.S. official in Latin America. The June 4 show will be the 1976 British science-fiction film "The Man Who Fell to Earth," starring David Bowie, Buck Henry, Rip Torn and Candy Clark. Bowie plays a frail alien suddenly exposed to modern technology, American capitalism, and earthly love. On June 11, the 1977 Italian film "A Special Day," the story of an accidental encounter between two unlikely people during the celebration of Hitler's 1939 visit to Rome. For June 18 show the 1961 Japanese comedy-satire "Yojimbo," directed by Akira Kurosawa and starring Toshirō Mifune. It is slated. This award-winning movie casts Mifune as an unscrupulous samurai hired to clean up a town torn by war between a silk seller and a sake merchant. On June 25 Philippe DeBroca's 1978 French film "Dear Inspector" is scheduled. It is not only a suspenseful murder mystery but a charmingly funny consideration of whether a lady cop and a professor of Greek can find happiness together in their middle years. A 1978 Australian film "Newsfront," is scheduled for July 2. It is the story of a group of newsreel-makers in the years 1948-56, and includes rare newsreel footage of the period that saw both the Cold War and the birth of rock'n'roll. On July 9 the 1977 Spanish film "Crisis" is scheduled. Starring Gerardoine Chaplin, this film explores the darker side of childhood superstition, knowledge, and the loss of innocence. Its nine-year-old heroine has an uncanny talent for observing and understanding scenes not meant for her eyes. "Mother Kusters Goes to Heaven," a 1975 German film by Rainer Werner Fassbinder, will be shown July 16. In it a factory worker goes berserk, killing the boss' son and himself. For July 23 the 1977 Canadian film "Outrageous" (Rated R) is planned. It is described as "a bittersweet, endearing, and sometimes funny slice of life concerning the loyal and human friendship between a transvestite and a schizophrenic." The series concludes on July 30 with the 1977 Brazilian film "Donna Flor and Her Two Husbands" (Rated R). In it a young widow marries a respectable man after mourning the death of her irresponsible but virile husband. Although content with her second marriage, her neglected libido yearns for her first husband and calls him back from the grave. Tickets for each film will be on sale at the door. The 24-hour Von der Mehden hotline, 486-2106, gives up-to-date information on all events.

NEW RELEASE

NIGHT GAMES (R) — Claudy Pickett. (Fantasy) A leader, who-porn this is no more than a vehicle for Roger Vadim's recent (same) The and fact is, however, the Hollywood M. Pickett, though lovely to look at, cannot act. The film is trite, poorly executed and, oh, so long. Forget it. GRADE: D-

GENERAL RELEASE

COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER (PG) — Stacy Speck, Tommy Lee Jones. (Melodrama) This is Loretta Lynn's story, from her autobiography, and it makes a dandy movie — part drama, part romance, part country music festival. Best in the beginning, with a realistic look at the coal mines and lives of backwoods Kentucky coal miners. Stacy Speck — who does her own singing — is lovely, but the entire cast is better on the "outside." GRADE: A-

HOLDS (PG) — Roger Moore, James Mason, Anthony Perkins. (Drama) William Blake's North Sea oil platform and hold it for ransom. The prime minister calls in Rufus Scrambler (Moore), an outsider who leads his own men (MASON) to foil the plan. Don't expect James Bond here. Our hero despises women, loves cats and drinks Scotch out of the bottle. No snail-kicker, but moderately entertaining. GRADE: C-plus

HIDE IN PLAIN SIGHT (PG) — James Caan, Jill Eikenberry. (Drama) Average Joe loses his children when his ex-wife marries a mobster who turns back evidence and gets a new identity. A top story set in Buffalo, N.Y., in the late 1960s. Caan, who debuts as a director, fails to involve the audience enough in his hero's fight for justice. A fragmented, vague and rather dull outing. GRADE: C-minus

LITTLE DARLINGS (R) — Kristy McNichol, Tatum O'Neal. (Adolescent romance-comedy) Two girls at camp hate each other's guts at first sight but end the summer as best friends. Tatum is the goody-goody rich girl, Kristy the street-wise loner. The plot moves wondrously, but only interaction among the teen-age actresses is tasty and, at times, charming. The adult cast is better than the film's premise — the entire cast being on a race between the two stars to lose their virginity. GRADE: C-plus

LITTLE MISS MARLBOROUGH (PG) — Walter Matthau, Julie Andrews, Tony Curtis, Sara Stinson. (Romantic comedy) Another remake of the Damon Runyon story, this tale of the gambler who takes a little girl as an 10U is still outdated. But here the director is molasses-like and the material and there are other problems. Still, you can take the kids in it and it has some laughs and some pathos at the old heartstrings. GRADE: B-minus

MAN WITH BOGART'S FACE, THE (PG) — Robert Sheckel, Michelle Phillips, Olivia Hussey. (Comedy-mystery) A one-year affair — the plot being, that a man had himself made over to look like Bogie, cuts himself a private eye, and promptly gets involved in a Bogie-like case with Bogie-like characters. Funny for a while, but as the plot thickens, the joke thins. GRADE: B-

SERIAL (R) — Martin Mull, Tuesday Weld, Sally Kellerman. (Comedy-satire) Cyra McFadden's sex face is set in Marin County, Calif., where the film would have you believe, but talks, spouts catchphrases, and pushes perky breasts and a daisy every ride in San Francisco despite suburban life. You've seen it all before, yet the film manages to maintain a high level of energy as it frenetically slices through at every imaginable social group. GRADE: B-minus

TIN DRUM, THE (R) — Oskar Roemer, Marie Adorf, Angela Winkler. (Drama) Remaking saga based on Günter Grass' novel about a 5-year-old boy who prefers beating his tin drum and breaking his tin to a 5-year-old girl's screen in growing up in Danzig during the Nazi occupation. Large, phobias, perambulations and a daily merry ride in San Francisco define a waltz festival. Sophisticated comedy, not recommended for children. GRADE: B-

YIP KIBUM, THE (R) — Oscar Rosent, Marie Adorf, Angela Winkler. (Drama) Remaking saga based on Günter Grass' novel about a 5-year-old boy who prefers beating his tin drum and breaking his tin to a 5-year-old girl's screen in growing up in Danzig during the Nazi occupation. Large, phobias, perambulations and a daily merry ride in San Francisco define a waltz festival. Sophisticated comedy, not recommended for children. GRADE: B-

Old Saybrook opens house

OLD SAYBROOK—Along with the return of spring, Old Saybrook welcomed a new visitor attraction. The Gen. William Hart House, newly restored to its original 1767 elegance, opened April 17.

Theatre World

Jim Dale is a great 'Barnum'

By Glenn Currie
NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Dale, a star in an age when stars seem out of fashion, is a natural for the title role of the greatest humbug of all time, Phineas Thomas Barnum.

When the musical "Barnum," which opened on Broadway April 30 at the St. James Theater, it proved to be one of the best new musicals of the season.

But that isn't saying much, because there were only "Evita" and "Sugar Babies" in competition. "Barnum" is half of a good show. The first half.

It follows the showman's career closely to closely, in fact. The second act, when Barnum temporarily forsakes show business and the show becomes sentimental over the illness and death of his beloved wife Charity, says disastrously.

Nothing else is quite right, from the Pierre Balmain costumes through the choreography of Donald Saddler to the sets by Michael Eagan and the vocal arrangements by Buster Davis.

When addressing a woman on a telephone, experts on etiquette say, it's best to address her as mister if he's 18 or over and with just his first and last name if he's in between.

Tolkien's classic leaps to life

By Joan Hanauer
NEW YORK (UPI)—"Listen as we speak of the Fall of a Lord and the Return of a King of Light."

So said the wizard Gandalf, as anyone who has ever visited J.R.R. Tolkien's Middle Earth is well aware.

It is back to Middle Earth on ABC, May 11, 7:30 p.m., Eastern time, for "Return of the King," an animated tale that follows the successful animated production of "The Hobbit" several years ago.

String orchestra sets free concert

HARTFORD—Two faculty members of the Hart College of Music, University of Hartford, Renato Bonacini, violinist, and Humbert Lucarelli, oboist, will appear as soloists in a free concert by the Connecticut String Orchestra Sunday.

HIGH SCHOOL WORLD

Zatursky to give graduation talk

Each year the graduating class of Manchester High School chooses one highly respected individual to address students, parents, and friends on the night of graduation. Past distinguished speakers have included Mayor Stephen Penney, M.H.S. English Department head Gilbert Hunt, and Attorney Vincent Diana the latter, incidently, was also the father of three graduating seniors the year he spoke. The wisdom of the students on the Senior Commencement Committee is once again evident this year, for the class of 1980 has chosen Elgin Zatursky, Social Studies Department head at M.H.S., to grace the podium.

Mr. Zatursky was born in Boston, Massachusetts, and moved to the suburb of Medford in his sixth grade year. He attended Tufts University at a very young age, concentrating his studies on History, Economics, and Political Science. He received his B.A. degree when he was nineteen years of age, then continued on at Tufts to earn his Master's degree in Education/History. After graduation, Mr. Zatursky taught school in Medford for a while before going into the service and eventually training as an electronics officer. Serving in the air corps, he was stationed both in Japan and the Philippines during W.W. II.

A few years later, Mr. Zatursky and his wife settled in Manchester, he began teaching at Manchester High School and has been here ever since, (thirty-three years in all). He has added a Law and Order class into his busy schedule and enjoys this immensely. It provides a change from his American History courses, and is taught in cooperation with the Manchester Police Dept. The class meets at the police station with Officer James McCooe and invited speakers.

Mr. Zatursky is known for the rapport he maintains with his students. He keeps up on things by "reading alot and keeping the windows open." He has never been known to shy away from a controversial subject, either in his classroom or out of it. They are discussed without any sugar coating or bending of the truth. Students know that nothing that is said in class will be heard outside the door (or over at the Police Station). His reputation for privacy is taken seriously and as a result his classes are open and honest. No one is ever afraid to speak out.

Married for 46 years, Mr. Zatursky and his wife have one son. In his first years at M.H.S., Mr. Zatursky coached basketball and refereed soccer. He was an athletic student, also playing baseball, basketball, and soccer. He speaks Ukrainian, Polish, German, and Russian fluently, and used to be fluent in French and Spanish. He attributes his ease at learning languages to the fact that his parents were foreign born and spoke their native language in their homes. Mr. Zatursky's present day interests include electronics, gardening and photography.

Though it seems like an eternity to some, our April vacation was only two short weeks ago. For some, the time was spent cleaning out their rooms, partying and visiting relatives. Some lucky students traveled to opposite ends of the globe to such exotic places as California and Jamaica.

Those students who went to California were all part of a troupe of singers under the direction of Miss Martha White, long time music director, now retiring at the end of this year. This is not the first time the Round Table Singers have undertaken a singing tour so far from home. Last year the group traveled to Hawaii bringing music from the New England states under the banner "This is Our Country, Yours and Mine." During the Bicentennial the ensemble represented Connecticut at Disneyland Amusement Park, a spot they also sang at this year.

As I struggled through the three hour exam, my thoughts turned to the extreme importance this would have on my college plans. Either I'd pack my car and head up to the Ivy League with my 1400, or redecorate my bedroom at home and apply early decision to MCC. Of course thousands of excellent schools lie in this spacious gap, however, finding the right college is another chore.

While in California, besides singing at Disneyland, they also sang at area high schools and convalescent homes, as well as the Disneyland Hotel where they stayed.

Though Martha White is retiring at the end of this school year, she still plans to continue carrying the torch by bringing a group of vocalists by the name "The Martha White Singers," consisting of former and present Round Tablers to Hawaii next year. Good Luck Martha.

The Jamaica group was led by Mr. Robert Sines of the Science department. The purpose of the trip was merely for fun and relaxation and a little bit of sightseeing. The trip, in contrast to the California one, was open to any student in the school, thereby providing the opportunity for those who did not usually hang around together to do so on the trip.

Perhaps you noticed a large number of seniors and juniors Monday afternoon cautiously cradling one bandaged arm. If you hadn't been paying attention to the "Berserk Squad" announcements you may have wondered what this profusion of the wounded was due to. If you did listen, however, you knew that the Red Cross Bloodmobile was at Manchester High School, Monday, May 5.

This experience was a first for many student donors. In a time when many of MHS students are thought of as degenerates, a large number came out to give of themselves to aid others.

The procedure is relatively simple and painless. A questionnaire regarding the donor's health must be completed before the blood can be donated. Even the actual donation process was fairly painless for most, which will hopefully mean that their first donation won't be their last.

The trip provided an excellent opportunity to view a very different culture than our own. Jamaica is a very poor island, with its only industries being tourism and the mining of bauxite. It was very interesting to see the way that the Jamaicans lived.

During the week the students explored Montego Bay, took a day trip to Ocho Rios and Dunn's River Falls, rode a train into the thickly vegetated Jamaican mountains to tour the Appleton Rum Distillery, took a cruise around the Bay, worked on tans and visited the various discos around the hotel.

While in California, besides singing at Disneyland, they also sang at area high schools and convalescent homes, as well as the Disneyland Hotel where they stayed.

Algernon at Bailey for engagement

Hours of rehearsal, gallons of paint, yards of cloth, piles of props, and a lot of sweat have combined to bring about Sock 'n' Buskin's production of "Flowers for Algernon," by David Rogers.

The play centers around Charlie Gordon, a retarded adult, who undergoes an operation which increases his intelligence to the genius level. His developmental problems after the operation provide the action of the play.

Robert Lenhardt plays the role of Charlie. He has appeared in many S'n'B productions in his high school years and this last performance promises to be one of his best yet. Beth Giguere is Alice Kinnian, Charlie's teacher. This is Beth's second Sock 'n' Buskin role. Like Lenhardt, appearing in his first play before graduation, is John Gibbons, as Nemur, one of the team of surgeons who performs the operation. His partner, Strauss, is played by Gail Downey, her first S'n'B role.

The cast for "Flowers" is large, filled by many capable actors and actresses. Among them are Margie Port, Laura Gatzkiewicz, Lisa Seise, Rick Spiller, Jeff Woggoner and April Castagna.

The many and diverse duties of the director and production assistant have been filled by Mr. Verne Burnett and Dr. Lee Hay, respectively. The assistant director is Alison Smith, stage manager, Jim Frenetta, and assistant stage manager, David Giddens. These people have contributed many hours of hard work to the success of the play.

Backstage work rarely receives the attention it should, without it no play could ever be produced. About 20 members of Sock 'n' Buskin have been busily working on such crews as lights, sound, costumes, props, house, programs, make up and other things. The crew members have been eight student crews chairs and tech director, Glen Aliczi and business manager, Laurie Patarin.

All of these elements put together, insure that this show will be one of the best ever. Set aside the nights of May 9, 10, 16, and 17 at 8 o'clock to see "Flowers for Algernon." Tickets are on sale at the door and will be on sale next Thursday and Friday in the cafeteria. Don't miss it! - Laurie Patarin

Summer sun brings fun

The time has come at MHS for students to start taking their lunch and popicles outside, and to lie out in the sun on blankets. Now that the summer season has hit, with temperatures rising to as high as 82 degrees, you'll find the cafeteria is soon becoming empty and students are slowly migrating outdoors with fridges in hand.

Though it's marvelous weather to prop yourself against a tree and study for the next class, it provides tempting opportunities for students not to go to class, or even to school, so they may enjoy the day. The poor attendance and the short attention span of the student presents a problem for the teacher. It becomes more difficult for them to keep their pupils interested in what is happening in the class instead of what is going on outside.

The weather also provides a golden opportunity for seniors to schedule the date for Senior Skip Day at any time they choose.

So along with your normal load of books, lunch, and sweater, don't forget the essentials: suntan oil, binoculars, and shades. See you in front of the greenhouse!!!! - Amy Costa

The students at the Center Road School in Vernon gathered on the gym floor to view a Charlie Brown film on air pollution. The showing of the film was sponsored by the Connecticut Lung Association earlier this week as a kick-off to Clean Air Week. The students also enjoyed a visit from the electric firm owned by the Department of Environmental Protection, Donna Crimmin of the association is shown handing out storyboards to the children.

School enrollment drop far exceeding predictions

By DONNA HOLLAND
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON - The enrollment at Bolton High School is dropping faster than earlier projections indicated, even though additional students are coming to the school from Willington, next September. A preliminary report prepared by Raymond Allen, superintendent of schools, on the utilization of school facilities provided updated information on the declining school enrollment and available space at the schools. The report was presented to the Board of Education Thursday night.

Allen suggested that the school board direct him to move forward as quickly as possible to establish an objective set by the school board and to allocate up to $1,000 for an architect's service and up to $500 for a curriculum consultant to meet that objective.

The objective set by the school board to be accomplished by the end of the current school year reads "To develop a plan based on declining enrollment for re-organization of the school system in terms of efficient use of physical facilities and a high quality Grade 7-12 curriculum in conjunction with the board's Buildings and Grounds and Curriculum Committees."

The school board and Board of Selectmen met recently to discuss what the school board has available and what the town needs are.

Sondra Stave candidate for post Walsh leaving

COVENTRY - Sondra Astor Stave, a member of the Coventry Board of Education, this morning declared her candidacy for the 3rd Assembly District on the Democratic ticket. Robert (Skip) Walsh who presently serves that district, has announced he won't seek re-election.

The 3rd District includes the towns of Coventry, Tolland and Willington. In making her announcement this morning Ms. Stave said, "My interest is to continue to provide the kind of leadership that he (Walsh) has, emphasizing the special financial needs of the eastern part of the state."

She said the towns in this district can't afford to continue to provide basic services without more assistance from the state.

Ms. Stave's experience at the town level of government includes five years, from 1972-77 on the Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission, including three years as chairman, and as an adult education teacher in the towns in the area.

She said she feels she has the appropriate familiarity with local opportunities and problems and would look forward to serving the interests of the three towns to contact me with their concerns," she said.

Liquor control board grants permit swap

VERNON - The state Liquor Control Board has approved an application of Roland Boyer of Vernon to assume control of the liquor permit for the Free Spirit Cafe on Kelly Road.

Boyer heads J. R. Enterprises Inc., operators of the Smart Set East massage parlor in the El Camino Plaza on Route 30.

Although a group of residents, calling themselves the Committee for the Integrity of the Free Spirit Cafe, petitioned the state several weeks ago for a hearing on Boyer's application, state officials said no one appeared at the hearing this week.

In approving the transfer of the permit, the state board put some restrictions on Boyer. The board said he will be required to give the state some additional information including who would be in charge of the bar in his absence. Boyer will also be required to devote full time to the cafe business and not some of his other business interests.

The residents who objected to the transfer of permits gave as one of the reasons the fact that Boyer has a suit pending against the town because of a dispute with the Zoning Board concerning plans to expand the massage parlor.

State officials said the permit states that Boyer will be the president and treasurer-director of the cafe and bar permittee and Pauline Baldwin will be the secretary-director of the cafe.

Nurses get legal help

MANCHESTER - About 200 area nurses Wednesday listened to an attorney's comments on hospital documentation and communication problem and an in-service training program in Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Maureen M. Cushing, an attorney, whose background includes bachelor's degree in nursing, said good care techniques include precise record keeping and communication between staff.

Cushing is a member of the American and Massachusetts Nurses Associations, the Massachusetts Bar Association and the American Society of Law and Medicine.

The training workshop was attended by nurses from 30 area hospitals, convalescent homes, health care agencies and public health services.

Cushing stressed the importance of documenting changes in patient conditions. The law recognizes separate responsibilities of nurses and doctors, and Cushing said nurses are legally responsible for keeping physicians notified of condition changes in patients.

In Manchester last year the Meadows Convalescent Home was sued by the physician's order. As professionals, Cushing said nurses are not puppets of physicians. They have the right to refuse to carry out an order. They should also seek advice when they doubt a physician's order, she said, "don't flirt with danger."

The focus of charting is the patient and in the interrelated network of hospital care records are needed by groups of care providers, Cushing said. Accuracy in nursing records is required by law, she said.

nurses should review to keep up to date with procedures. Changes in patient conditions should be charted immediately, she said.

Cushing cited five problems for which the law holds nurses responsible: failure to clarify a physician's order; to properly carry out an order; to understand required procedures; to respond to changes in patient condition, and failure to report changes while administering a

Celebrating 75th year

St. Joseph's Church in Rockville is celebrating its silver jubilee this year and a number of special activities are being planned. The original church was dedicated in 1905. Several years ago this new modern building was constructed on the same site at the corner of West Street and Union Street. (Herald photo by Richmond).

Ballots available for referendum

VERNON — Town clerk Henry Butler reminds voters that there will be a referendum on May 28 and that absentee ballots are now available for those who will be unable to appear in person to vote.

The referendum will be on the question of a $375,000 appropriation for proposed construction of a new fire station for Company 2.

The voting will be from noon to 8 p.m. at the regular polling places used for elections. Persons can vote by absentee ballot if they are unable to appear in person because of illness, physical disability, or will be absent from the state. Persons in active service and students attending college or a school of higher learning, within the state, need only be absent from the town

Nature walk set

VERNON — Martin Francis, assistant professor of earth science at Central Connecticut State College, will point out the significant geologic features of Vernon's Valley Falls Park during a one and one-half hour walk scheduled for May 17 at 11 a.m.

Francis, a graduate of Trinity and Yale, is a member of the Geological Society of America, president of the Connecticut Fossil Club, and vice president of the Mineralogical Club of Hartford.

The programs in the park are sponsored by the Friends of Valley Falls. The park's rocks are mostly the phyllite, schist and quartzites of the Bolton formation. Numerous faults can be seen along the west side of the lake and outcrops of crystalline rock are most extensive along the old railroad right-of-way. Garnets are particularly plentiful, members of the group said.

The Geology Walk is one of the continuing series of park explorations sponsored by the group. In case of heavy rain on the 17th the walk will be rescheduled for May 31 at 11 a.m. Earlier on the 31st, at 8:30 a.m., Jim Pepe, director of The Ragged Hill Woods Student Environment Center, will conduct a wildflower walk.

This coming Saturday, at 8:15 a.m., Dan Wright, a local architect and president of the Friends of Valley Falls, will lead a two-hour boundary walk around the edges of the park.

Screening clinic slated

HEBRON — The Community Health Service Inc. of Columbia, Hebron, Andover, Marlborough, will sponsor a blood pressure screening program at Burrill Mutual Savings Bank, Wall Street on May 15. The program will run from 8:30 to 5:30 p.m. The public is invited to participate. This is one of a series of area screening programs being conducted this month which has been designated as National High Blood Pressure month.

Technical writers

HARTFORD — The Central Connecticut Chapter of the Society for Technical Communications, will meet May 21 at 5:30 p.m. at the Hartford Public Library, 500 Main St. No reservations are needed and the meeting is open to writers, editors, graphic artists, illustrators, documentation managers, and educators.

Town cleanup successful another campaign slated

VERNON — William Yeta of the Vernon Police Department reports that the town-wide cleanup week conducted during the recent school vacation was a big success and because of this another such week is being planned for the fall. Yeta said that 30 young people and six adults volunteered their services for a total of 640 hours cleaning the area of St. Bernard's Terrace, the Elks Club, Brookline Street, the Rockville Shopping Plaza, the W. Main Street playground, Elm Street and to the rear of the Memorial Building. Shovels and rakes were furnished by the public works department and rubbish bags were donated by the Chamber of Commerce. Joseph Bachioli donated the use of his Pickup truck and made his chain saw available for cutting brush. Zahner's Men's Shop donated $50 and paid for lunch for the workers for one of the days, the Rev. John White of St. Bernard's Church gave the workers soda and chips. Athena's Restaurant let the workers eat a lunch of pizza and soda each day. Father White and Sister Gerald have offered the use of the church hall,

"Sometimes I disagree and sometime I agree with the Evening Herald's editorial, but whether or not I agree with it, it helps me make up my own mind on issues that are important to me. In addition, the letters to the editor, cartoons and columns like Jack Anderson are fascinating. I also think it's great that the Herald has a bureau in Washington to keep me informed with commentary on national issues and how they relate to me."

Videodisc craze not Sony's bag

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite the rising enthusiasm for the videodisc system in the United States, the Japanese Sony Corp. will devote itself for the time being to marketing another type of home system, the video cassette recorder, says a spokesman for Sony's American subsidiary.

Video cassette recorders enable viewers to record television programs for later playback, while videodisc players cannot record programs, but instead use pre-recorded videodiscs.

Mitsuru Ohki, a spokesman for Sony Corp. of America, told UPI in an interview the company will not enter into the consumer videodisc market until a unified videodisc standard is established and software for the system becomes available.

However, he said, the firm has plans to manufacture a videodisc for institutional purposes, not for the general consumer, by using the videodisc technology of N.V. Philips of the Netherlands.

Video cassette recorder sales in the United States totaled 402,000 units in 1978 and 475,000 units in 1979, according to industry figures. Ohki guesses they will reach 600,000 to 650,000 units this year.

Last year, Sony accounted for about 30 percent of the American market. RCA Corp., which sells a competing system manufactured by Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. of Japan accounts for roughly 35 percent. Matsushita also markets the system under its Panasonic label.

Sony and Matsushita are the two major manufacturers of video cassette recorders — Betamax and VHS (video home system), respectively.

There are three types of home videodisc systems — an optical system of Philips, a stylus method of RCA Corp. and the VHD (video high density disc) system of Victor Co. of Japan, which will be used by Matsushita. The three systems are incompatible.

Ohki said the problem with the videodisc system is that you have to develop both hardware and software at the same time for introduction into the market. Sony believes the system is suitable for educational and institutional use but not for consumer entertainment.

On the other hand, he said, it has such merits as random access and the capacity for storing an enormous amount of information.

"With video cassette recorders," he said, "you can use tapes time and again just by erasing the previous recording and can record your favorite TV programs even if you are not at home by pressing a device."

The high price of the video cassette recorder is considered the biggest bottleneck at present to a major market penetration. It runs $1,200 to $1,300 in the United States.

Ohki said the two kinds of home video systems can coexist and predicted video cassette recorders will continue to sell well even if videodisc players achieve a major consumer market status.

As for videodisc sales, Magnavox, a subsidiary of Philips, is market-testing the Dutch firm's optical videodisc players in three American cities.

Abby By Abigail van Buren. DEAR ABBY: You missed the obvious in the case of the man whose ladyfriend scolded him for eating with his elbows on the table...

DEAR ABBY: With our world falling apart and so much suffering, how do you think about such little things? A man could have worse fates than eating with his elbows on the table. I could call my husband back. I wouldn't care if he put his knee on the table. Sign me AND LONESOME.

DEAR ABBY: DUMMY IN MUSCATINE, IOWA, wrote. "My husband asked me if I wanted to go back to his hometown for his 25th high school reunion. I didn't know anybody there, and I told him to go without me. Well, he went alone and met his old high school sweetheart - a blonde bombshell - recently divorced. They picked up where they had left off and rekindled the old flame, and I guess who's without a husband now? That's right - Abby. I wonder what would have happened if when the letter about the high school reunion came, the wife had said, "Honey, if you want me to go I will, but you know how shy and uncomfortable I am around strangers. Maybe you'd have more fun if I stayed home, then you could wander around, renew old acquaintances and reminisce with your buddies without having to worry about whether I was having a good time."

DEAR PHYLIS: Please give that lucky guy you're married to my regards. He'd love to be pain-free in TORIA, TEXAS. All love affairs would be pain-free if both parties quit caring at the same time. But they never do, so be a big boy and don't whine, beg or crawl. It's over.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought To Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cent), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Leaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag. Hasty play downs defense. lead with the ace, dropping South's queen. Mistled by West's double. East returned a heart thinking his partner had a singleton and that Declarer's queen had been a false-card from queen-five of hearts. South was faced with three clear losers in his doubled hand. He had already lost one heart, and the spade king and club ace still had to be conceded. However, declarer came up with an excellent plan. He hoped that West might be induced into a careless second-hand play. Accordingly, South ruffed the heart return with the diamond nine and at trick three led a small club toward dummy's queen. Poor West "automatically" played his 10 and dummy's queen won. Declarer drew two rounds of trump, ending in the dummy and pitched his club king on the king of hearts. Declarer still had to lose a spade trick, but he had stolen his game. Of course, West should have risen to the occasion and gone right up with the ace of clubs, but that doesn't detract from declarer's skillful play. If you can give the position an opportunity to err, they may do so. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
