

School sale foes consider next move

By MARY KITZMANN

MANCHESTER — Buckland residents are trying to decide if they can fight city hall. Leaders of the petition drive asking that the town retain the school express surprise at the Board of Directors vote endorsing the school. They are undecided about their course of action.

"We're trying to decide what's available," Ron Books, Tolland Turnpike, said. "But as of yet we have no firm plans." "As I've said many times before, everybody, with the exception of one person I talked to, is upset. But it's the old question of fighting city hall."

Since the school's sale was proposed by a local developer in December, Books and other Tolland Turnpike residents have been collecting signatures and appearing before the board and other commissions to oppose the sale.

Although they now have 275 signatures, an increase from the end of March of about 100, they do not have the commissions' support or the Board of Directors'.

While an advisory commission, the Conservation Commission opposed the sale, the Planning and Zoning Commission recommended it.

Tuesday evening the Board of Directors endorsed the sale, with the provision the ball field be replaced within 1.5 miles of the present location. Buckland residents have said that is the only open space in the area.

Books was surprised by Tuesday's action as he did not expect the board to vote. "The fact that it was so quick is a little disappointing," he said. "Everyone is dismayed about the circumstances under which it is to be sold."

However, the group has not retained a lawyer as of yet.

The board plans to sell the school, after two appraisals, to Richard Hayes, president of Hayes Corporation. Hayes says offices are planned for the building, which others say is badly in need of repair. It has been reported Hayes plans a major shopping mall for the area behind the school, and needs the land for access. In voting to sell the school, William Diana, board minority leader, noted the opposition was not based on the sale, but on the development plans.

While admitting this, Books said the open space loss was also a major concern, and along with the displacement of Messiah Lutheran Church day school which leases the building for $4,500.

Ruth Glode, Tolland Turnpike, says she believes the decision to sell was "made long before it was printed."

She apparently has little hope of changing the Board of Director's mind, saying she is more concerned now that a fair price for the school is received.

But she is upset at the loss of the area. "Even if they move the ball park to another area it won't be the same as having it in Buckland," she said.

Both Mrs. Glode, and Books noted the board must conduct a public hearing on the ordinance to sell the school.

Fitness track

Martin School site eyed

By KEVIN FOLEY
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Martin School is being given heavy consideration as the site of the long awaited fitness track, according to a report by the Recreation Department to the Park and Recreation Advisory Commission.

The details of the report, which were inadvertently revealed by Commission Chairman Joel Janenda, were sketchy, but recreation Director Mel Siebold said that apparently the Martin School, located on Dartmouth Road, was the best site because it provided open space and easy accessibility.

The track has been in the offing for over 13 months, and several commission members have criticized Siebold's efforts in finding a suitable area. The track would be about four feet wide and allow runners to stay off streets. Exercise stations would also be along it to allow the runners to work out in conjunction with their running.

Apparently Janenda did not see a note at the bottom of the paragraph discussing the Martin School site which asked that it not be made public. When Janenda read excerpts from the report, Siebold interrupted.

"Did you read the whole thing, Joel?" Siebold asked loudly. Siebold then turned to reporters and said, "don't print that, it's still being considered. There's property belonging to the water, school and park departments and we have to wait until we find out who knows what."

Siebold said he was working closely with Superintendent of Schools James P. Kennedy on the proposed Martin School track site but admonished reporters they "would be in the whole thing up," if they printed stories.

"In two weeks time everything will be straightened out," Siebold said. "I'll lose Dr. Kennedy's confidence if it's made public."

Kevin O'Brien, former president of the Manchester Jaycees said he had heard the Martin School site was being considered and added he felt it was very suitable. The Jaycees had been working with the town closely on the track up until it tabled discussions until new officers take charge in June.

"The Jaycees want to see the thing built," O'Brien said.

Friday morning Siebold clarified some of those details saying he had looked at Martin School and that there appeared to be no danger to the reservoir adjacent to it in spite of calls he said he's had protesting the track's location there.

"We didn't want to get people in the neighborhood excited," Siebold said. "We wanted to get plans drawn up first. The final decision, of course, will have to be made by the school board." But my own commission violated the confidence."

Food stamps kept

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Financially strapped Americans were assured today of receiving food stamps that will keep them in meat, milk and eggs for most of the summer, thanks to a successful congressional race with time.

Congress met the deadline Thursday, with about six hours to spare, for approving money to keep the food-stamp program operating beyond the end of this month, when previously appropriated funds were to run out.

The $2.56 billion appropriations bill was sent immediately to President Carter for his signature, expected as early as today.

Congress admitted it did not approve enough money to complete the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Moscow threatens peace

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie today bluntly accused the Soviet Union of threatening world peace by invading Afghanistan.

"The principles of independence, neutrality and territorial integrity so respected in the case of Austria are today being violated," Muskie said at a solemn ceremony celebrating 25 years of Austrian independence.

"Today we are faced again with a vital lesson from the past," he told the gathering of Austrian leaders and 12 European foreign ministers including Andrei Gromyko of Russia.

"Aggression anywhere threatens international security everywhere."

Gromyko's stony face broke into a scowl as Muskie made the obvious reference to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Muskie also referred to the taking of the American hostages in Iran when he said, "We stand in the shadow of international terrorism."

His tough statement appeared to surprise the assembly which had expected the same sort of general speech as made beforehand by Gromyko, Lord Carrington of Britain and Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet of France.

U.S. officials disclosed that Muskie put the final touches to his statement only minutes before the ceremony, held in the baroque Belvedere Palace where the Austrian state treaty was signed by the former occupation powers 25 years ago.

Gromyko, as the senior foreign minister, spoke first at the ceremony. He recalled the treaty that ended the fourpower occupation of Austria and said the Soviet Union remains "firmly committed to the policy of detente."

Francois-Poncet, next to speak for the allotted 10 minutes, made what was taken to be a reference to Afghanistan when he said, "The events of today show that understanding cannot be achieved by force."

Lord Carrington, the British foreign secretary, also referred to current crises, saying: "We are now living in dangerous times."

But Muskie was by far the most outspoken and many people present, including Carrington, looked up in apparent surprise as the secretary of state delivered the bluntest parts of his speech.

In his job just one week, Muskie spoke last as the most junior of the ministers.

Muskie and Gromyko were meeting later in the day with Afghanistan the main topic.

Gromyko brushed aside questions when he arrived in Vienna today. He refused to say anything to reporters about his meeting with Muskie.

The meeting, against a backdrop of the 25th anniversary of Austrian sovereignty, was the first direct U.S.-Soviet confrontation since the Soviet crises, saying: "We are now living in dangerous times."

More study on 84-86 asked

HARTFORD — Regional planners voted over-whelmingly Thursday for more information on transportation alternatives in the area bisected by interstates 84 and 86.

The Regional Planning Commission of the Capitol Region Council of Governments delayed for at least another week, selection of a transportation plan for the East Hartford-Manchester-Vernon area. Instead, planners asked staff to prepare more detailed analysis of the corridor.

The policy board of the Capitol Region Council is awaiting the commission's recommendations, as it prepares for a May 28 vote on federally funded transit projects for the next year.

The corridor is now serviced by a combination of highway and bus systems. Support for rail projects surfaced Thursday, from commissioners citing the region's tradition of rail use. (Commuter rail service existed at the turn of the century).

However, in reviewing a 70 page report prepared by the regional council's staff, the commission decided the need for more specific information. Data concerned the entire Capitol Region and not the eastern corridor exclusively, commissioners said.

This committee is also expected to issue an opinion on rail service in the region's nine transit corridors, before May 28.

The Transportation Committee stalled, however, when interpreting an April decision by the Regional Council on the I-91 corridor, north of Hartford. The council voted to major improvements to the highway system, omitting rail improvements.

Dana Hanson, executive director of the Capitol Region Council of Governments, said after that vote, rail projects has not been denied future action, but neither had they been marked for inclusion in the corridor's Trans Plan decision.

Future rail plans, he implied, would need to be the subject of a separate proposal to the federal Transportation Department.

Tom O'Mearra of Manchester said the Council's decision on the I-91 corridor left little doubt on its disposition toward rail plans. Since the council had reviewed staff rail reports and took no action on them, O'Mearra felt the vote to be self-explanatory.

Manchester Mayor Stephen Penny, chairman of the Transportation Committee, whose alternate participated in the April vote, was selected to clarify the council position.

The Capitol Region Council is preparing two important votes to determine transportation policies in the Greater Hartford Region. The council's Policy Board will vote May 28 on transportation projects for the coming year.

Another vote June 18 will decide the focus of the long-awaited Trans Plan, outlining regional transit policies for the next 15 years.

While the Transportation Commission is regarded as the council's most influential advisory group, the Regional Planning Commission looms important in final transit decisions.

The Planning Commission is recognized by the federal government to review all transportation decisions by the regional council. The pro-mass transit commission could exercise veto power few realize it has over final policy decisions.

East Hartford has new chamber head

By PATRICK REILLY
Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — Judith Carr, a sales manager at the East Hartford Holiday Inn, was unanimously elected Thursday by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce to succeed Jan Brennan as president of the chamber.

Ms. Carr was elected at a meeting of the directors where the chamber officially accepted the resignations of Mrs. Brennan and Karen Wells, the executive vice president of the chamber. Mrs. Brennan resigned her post in support of Ms. Wells who resigned last week because she said she had been the target of a "prejudicial attack" against her character.

Ms. Carr said Thursday's meeting with chamber directors was positive and enthusiastic. She said the chamber has already begun to turn around the negative publicity it has received in the past few months.

The chamber is yet to name a replacement for Ms. Wells, who held the chamber's highest paid post.

"Whenever someone new comes into an organization there are bound to be some changes, and there will be," Ms. Carr said Thursday.

Though she said it was too early to specify any changes she or the chamber's executive committee had planned, Ms. Carr said she would like to see the chamber become more productive, positive and a greater resource to residents and local businesses.

The 38-year-old Ms. Carr said there is quite a bit of work ahead for the chamber.

"I personally would like to see the chamber provide more services to business people," she said.

Ms. Carr's term as president will be for an interim period that will end in December when she must decide whether to run for a full two-year term.

Chamber Treasurer Dennis M. Hickey said with the election of a new president, "the chamber is going to start operating like a chamber should operate and change the whole situation." Hickey said Ms. Carr is a talented and capable person.

There had been speculation that Chamber Senior Vice President Barry M. Rosen would succeed to the president's post because of a chamber bylaw that makes the senior vice president second in command in case of an absence.

The negative publicity that Ms. Carr referred to began in January when Ms. Wells was indicted in connection with a $1 million mail fraud scheme that occurred while she was working for the Greater Hartford Better Business Bureau. She joined the East Hartford Chamber in 1978 and was the first woman and first black to hold the position.

At the time the indictment was issued Mrs. Brennan publicly backed Ms. Wells "one hundred percent," and said she was convinced of her innocence.

In April Ms. Wells was criticized by directors for her recent firing of two chamber employees. On May 8 Ms. Wells and Mrs. Brennan made public their resignations, with Ms. Wells accusing the chamber's board of directors with sexual discrimination.

Update

Shooting suspect surrenders

DERBY (UPI) — Joseph Cardella, 24, of Ansonia today turned himself into police for the shooting death of a New Haven man.

Police said Cardella was charged with murder in the slaying Thursday of Steven Cox, 21, who was found shot once in the chest.

Cardella is being held on $100,000 bond and was to be arraigned later today in Ansonia Superior Court.

Cox, who had run through several backyards in a Derby neighborhood before collapsing, died in Griffin Hospital less than an hour after he was found.

Police had been seeking a man and a woman seen fleeing a short time before Cox was found.

Police were investigating.

Warsaw Pact statement

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Warsaw Pact military alliance issued a major policy statement today calling on world leaders to convene an international peace conference in an effort to stamp out war.

The declaration, issued at the end of a two-day 25th anniversary summit of the Soviet-satellite pact, also urged a "political solution" to the crisis in Afghanistan, firmly supported Iran and condemned the failed U.S. hostage rescue attempt.

The final declaration urged the convening "in the nearest future (of) a top-level meeting of the leaders of states of all the regions of the world, who should focus their attention on ... the task of removing the hotbeds of international tension and preventing war."

Hijack try fails

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Seventeen unarmed Cuban refugees seized an empty Pan American airplane in a bid to go to the United States but quickly backed down under a Costa Rican threat of force to dislodge them.

Airport authorities said the would-be hijackers, all males in their 20s, recently came to Costa Rica aboard a series of flights from Havana.

They said the refugees burst into the terminal of San Jose's Juan Santa Maria International Airport about 7:30 p.m. (9:30 p.m. EDT) Thursday, sped past startled guards and raced 150 yards through heavy rains to the empty jet.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a self imposed deadline for Congress to produce a federal budget now passed, House-Senate negotiations were stalled today awaiting the return of the hospitalized chairman of the House Budget Committee.

House and Senate conferees argued for several hours Thursday, but made no decisions that moved them closer to a new spending limit for 1980 or a balanced budget for 1981. The midnight deadline passed quietly.

Still to be considered are major differences in the House and Senate spending plans for defense and social programs in 1981. House conferees said they wanted their chairman, Robert Giannino, D-Conn., to be there for that fight.

Budget deadline passes

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A crewman sent to the bow of the freighter Summit Venture during a blinding storm last Friday says he was not aware the Sunshine Skyway bridge crossed the narrow channel until seconds before the vessel struck the bridge.

The collision sent a 1,300-foot section of the bridge plunging 150 feet into the water along with a Greyhound bus and seven other vehicles, killing 35 people.

Sit Hau To, a 52-year-old boatman, told a marine board of investigation Thursday he was sent to the bow when the weather turned bad without knowing a bridge crossed the shipping channel ahead.

He said he suddenly saw a slight shadow and reported to the wheelhouse, "There's a bridge ahead." Seconds later the vessel rammed a support column.

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar rebounded on the world's money markets today in advance of Secretary of State Edmund Muskie's meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Austria.

The price of gold dropped slightly. An ounce of gold sold for $314.50 in Zurich and $315.50 in London. That was down $5 from Thursday's close in London and $7 from Wednesday in Zurich, where money markets were closed Thursday for the Ascension Day holiday.

The dollar was up everywhere except in Tokyo, where it dropped only fractionally to close the week at $27.40 yen from Thursday's close of $27.50.

"Possible talks by the Americans and Russians over the Afghanistan situation might have helped the dollar," a London dealer said.

In London, the pound sterling started the day worth $2.2885 from Thursday's close of $2.3005.

The dollar also gained ground in Milan, where it opened at 945.25 lire from Thursday's close of 842.55.

All other European money markets were closed Thursday for the Ascension Day holiday, but the dollar showed improvements against Wednesday's closes.

In Frankfurt, the opening was 1.7929 Deutschmarks from 1.7900. In Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.6751 Swiss francs from 1.6600. In Paris, the opening was 4,200 francs from 4,195. And in Amsterdam, the dollar opened at 1.9770 guilders from 1.9715.

The Brussels market was closed again today.

LONDON (UPI) — Although all members of Congress are paid the same $40,643.50 a year, House members generally command less earning power than their Senate colleagues.

However, today's release of financial disclosures for 1979 shows House members were expected to show quite a few millionaires and others with substantial outside earnings.

Thursday was the deadline for top federal officials, including members of Congress, to file statements disclosing the sources of their income and their net worth. Senate forms were expected to be released next Monday.

Last year's first detailed disclosures showed that most members of Congress supplement their salaries either by speaking to special interest groups for a fee or from proceeds of business investments.

Although holding office can lead to financial success, in general, most members would be well-to-do just from their outside interests.

Because members do not have to be specific in their listings, categorizing their holdings into broad ranges of figures such as $15,000 to $50,000 — it is impossible to tell exactly how wealthy the lawmakers are.

Based on last year's disclosures, between 24 and 41 members of the Senate and more than 30 members of the House were millionaires.

All but five senators and 75 members of the House had outside unearned income — dividends or real estate profits, for example — that boosted their 1978 congressional pay.

U.S. Customs agents plastered red stickers on all boats returning Thursday to Key West's artificial harbor at the old Navy base. The stickers indicate the boats have been seized and their captains face fines or criminal penalties.

By late Thursday, 3,346 refugees had arrived aboard 55 boats, all of which were impounded under Carter's order. That brought the total of arrivals to 63,461.

Carter has asked Cuban President Fidel Castro to allow a government-run sea lift or airlift to bring the refugees to the United States, but there has been no word of any progress so far.

Coast Guard surveys showed only four boats headed for Cuba Thursday morning and none during the afternoon, compared with scores earlier in the week.

Louis Perez of Hartford, Conn., 41, one of five Cuban-Americans who chartered the 40-foot pleasure boat Balladeer, said they tried to leave after hearing Carter's policy statement on the Voice of Latin America.

"We were trying to leave empty but they called us over to fill up. There was big confusion," Perez said.

San Salvador, El Salvador bullet-riddled bodies, the initials "EM" carved in their chests, were found in San Salvador. The other six corpses were found in the provincial towns of Metalo, Ilobasco and San Vicente, they said.

EM stands for the Spanish words "Death Squad," a rightwing terrorist group, the officials said. The Death Squad, in communications sent to the media, claim to have killed 150 "communists" since it was founded last November.

LONDON (UPI) — Although all members of Congress are paid the same $40,643.50 a year, House members generally command less earning power than their Senate colleagues.

However, today's release of financial disclosures for 1979 shows House members were expected to show quite a few millionaires and others with substantial outside earnings.

Thursday was the deadline for top federal officials, including members of Congress, to file statements disclosing the sources of their income and their net worth. Senate forms were expected to be released next Monday.

Last year's first detailed disclosures showed that most members of Congress supplement their salaries either by speaking to special interest groups for a fee or from proceeds of business investments.

Although holding office can lead to financial success, in general, most members would be well-to-do just from their outside interests.

Because members do not have to be specific in their listings, categorizing their holdings into broad ranges of figures such as $15,000 to $50,000 — it is impossible to tell exactly how wealthy the lawmakers are.

Based on last year's disclosures, between 24 and 41 members of the Senate and more than 30 members of the House were millionaires.

All but five senators and 75 members of the House had outside unearned income — dividends or real estate profits, for example — that boosted their 1978 congressional pay.

Budget deadline passes

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A crewman sent to the bow of the freighter Summit Venture during a blinding storm last Friday says he was not aware the Sunshine Skyway bridge crossed the narrow channel until seconds before the vessel struck the bridge.

The collision sent a 1,300-foot section of the bridge plunging 150 feet into the water along with a Greyhound bus and seven other vehicles, killing 35 people.

Sit Hau To, a 52-year-old boatman, told a marine board of investigation Thursday he was sent to the bow when the weather turned bad without knowing a bridge crossed the shipping channel ahead.

He said he suddenly saw a slight shadow and reported to the wheelhouse, "There's a bridge ahead." Seconds later the vessel rammed a support column.

U.S. Customs agents plastered red stickers on all boats returning Thursday to Key West's artificial harbor at the old Navy base. The stickers indicate the boats have been seized and their captains face fines or criminal penalties.

By late Thursday, 3,346 refugees had arrived aboard 55 boats, all of which were impounded under Carter's order. That brought the total of arrivals to 63,461.

Carter has asked Cuban President Fidel Castro to allow a government-run sea lift or airlift to bring the refugees to the United States, but there has been no word of any progress so far.

Coast Guard surveys showed only four boats headed for Cuba Thursday morning and none during the afternoon, compared with scores earlier in the week.

Louis Perez of Hartford, Conn., 41, one of five Cuban-Americans who chartered the 40-foot pleasure boat Balladeer, said they tried to leave after hearing Carter's policy statement on the Voice of Latin America.

"We were trying to leave empty but they called us over to fill up. There was big confusion," Perez said.

EM stands for the Spanish words "Death Squad," a rightwing terrorist group, the officials said. The Death Squad, in communications sent to the media, claim to have killed 150 "communists" since it was founded last November.

State travel control asked

HARTFORD (UPI) - A Republican lawmaker is calling on the governor to "act decisively" to control out-of-state travel by state health employees, especially in light of a Caribbean detour taken by two workers. Rep. Virginia Connolly of Simsbury Thursday hit on the two workers' trip and also criticized approval of a special allocation to cover a $10,000 deficit in the Department of Health Services' travel budget. "Governor, I believe the advertisement is in the Department of Health Services have gone far enough," said Mrs. Connolly, a persistent critic of a work-related meeting in Houston Douglas Lloyd and his agency. Tennis losing popularity

MANCHESTER - "Tennis is falling off in popularity." Recreation Director Mel Siebold told the Park and Recreation Commission at Thursday night's meeting. "I rode around on my bicycle last Saturday and I saw lots of free courts." So saying, Siebold introduced the idea of allowing roller skaters to use the Charter Oak Park's tennis courts at designated times in an effort to satisfy the request for a skating area some residents have asked for. The suggestion, however, drew a negative reaction from Commission chairman Joel Janenda who reminded Siebold over 100 persons were taking lessons from Bonnie Castleman, the department sponsored tennis instructor. The 100 participants represents the largest enrollment ever in the program, and no more room is available this season. "The courts are in operation all the time," Janenda told Siebold. "Last Saturday was windy, and that might have prevented some people from playing." Other commission members suggested some of the courts weren't used because of their poor condition, citing the West Side Oval's two courts as an example.

Connecticut news update

Man shot - DERBY (UPI) - Police today sought a man and a woman who were seen fleeing from the area where a New Haven man was found shot to death. Police Chief Andrew Mansini said the couple was seen by residents who alerted police to the area where Steven Cox, 21, was found with a single gunshot wound to the chest. Cox, who had apparently run through the area wounded, died in Griffin Hospital less than an hour after he was found. "After he was shot he ran behind some homes and went from one yard to another before collapsing," Mansini said, adding that the victim apparently wasn't being chased at the time. Precise bank job - WATERBURY (UPI) - Police today sought three men who held up the Banking Center branch on Highland Avenue and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash. Police said the masked men entered the bank at about 10:15 a.m. Thursday and one stood guard with a shotgun as the other two entered the bank and left in a car, police said. No injuries were reported and police said the robbery apparently had been planned in advance "with precision."

Hartford-Springfield rail service started

HARTFORD (UPI) - Transportation Commissioner Arthur Powers, with a dozen new passenger rail cars ready for "I think, for the first time in many years, we're going to see the trains completely on time," Powers said at the Hartford whistletop. "We are committed to operating this service efficiently and on time," echoed Clark Tyler, Amtrak group vice president for passenger services and communications. Connecticut paid about $1 million each for the self-propelled Budd cars which will be used and operated by Amtrak on the New Haven-Hartford-Springfield line. Another car is already in use on the Norwalk-Danbury line operated by Conrail. Tyler and Powers said the state's pioneer partnership with Amtrak represented a firm commitment to mass transit. "This is something new for the whole nation," Powers said. "In being the first state in the nation to actually go out and purchase new rail cars for use by Amtrak, it once again demonstrates the commitment of Gov. Ella Grasso's administration to providing Connecticut residents with a truly balanced transportation system," he said. Tyler said Amtrak hoped Connecticut's move would be duplicated by states across the country. Powers said the number of daily round-trips from Hartford to Springfield will be increased from nine to 14, including more frequent service during morning and afternoon rush hours, effective Oct. 1. Powers said the $4-passenger Budd cars, which resemble other Amtrak passenger cars, were very efficient, economical and comfortable. The commissioner urged support for the state's mass transit program but admitted "it's not going to be an easy transition because people just do not want to give up their automobiles."

Vote keeps Bolton mill rate down

By DONNA HOLLAND Herald Correspondent BOLTON - The Town Meeting vote to continue paying taxes on an annual basis kept Bolton's mill rate from increasing more than the projected 25.72 mills. The figure represents a $75,000 investment loss, $482 in additional clerical help for the treasurer and tax collector and a $2,000 loss on delinquent tax interest. A four-payment plan would have resulted in a loss of $94,488 in revenue or about 1.37 mills. The figure represents a $90,000 investment loss, $1,189 in additional clerical help for the treasurer and tax collector, a $3,000 loss on delinquent tax interest and an additional charge of from $200 to $300 to change the billing system. The estimates on the projected effect of a multi-payment plan for taxes were compiled by Catherine Peterson, treasurer, Elaine Potterton, tax collector, and Alan Bergen, administrative assistant.

The grant announced Thursday will be used by the 85-member Western Massachusetts Pequot tribe for improvement of its maple syrup operation, office equipment and training. "Many churches still have the misconception that all Indians are living out West and the way to help them is to ship out boxes of old clothes," said Steve Charleston, executive director of the church committee. "There are many tribes right here in their own backyards they could be benefiting," he said. A postal official said the order resulted from several recent attacks on postal workers by dogs. He said people whose homes were skipped because of canine problems would have to go to their post-office for their mail.

Hyde Park visit enjoyed

Last Thursday morning while most of you were still sleeping in your nice warm beds, approximately ninety juniors assembled in front of MHS despite pouring rain and low temperature to board two buses. Their destination - Hyde Park, N.Y. to visit the home of Frederick Vanderbilt and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Also included in the trip was a visit to the United States Military Academy at West Point. When we arrived in Hyde Park the rain had stopped and the sun was beginning to creep out from behind the clouds. Our first stop was the Vanderbilt estate where we toured a three story mansion built by Frederick Vanderbilt in 1890 at a cost of six hundred and sixty thousand dollars. The decor of the mansion was mostly Italian and French and included a thirty by fifty foot drawing room, a fireplace imported from a European palace, and a terrace overlooking the Hudson River. In all, the estate consists of an area of approximately 212 acres. We then moved over to the home of Franklin Roosevelt built in 1881. Although the estate was not as impressive as that of the Vanderbilts, it was more interesting. The home included many of Roosevelt's possessions such as the wheelchair he used, family photographs, and in his bedroom a pair of worn slippers. We also toured a museum on the estate which included writing samples and photographs of Roosevelt from his childhood on, the car he drove (with his hand controls instead of foot pedals) and gifts he received from the leaders of various countries during the years he served as our 32nd president. That afternoon we travelled to the United States Military Academy in West Point. We were met by Michael McMerney, an MHS alumnus, who graduated from West Point and is

Sock 'n Buskin gives polished performance

In this, the 60th anniversary of the inception of Sock 'n Buskin, the venerable troupe has chosen to perform two immensely difficult plays. The first, "Madwoman of Chaillet," was seriously flawed in its failure to adequately deal with the moral dilemma (Progress vs. Tradition) presented. Only a handful of those involved with "Madwoman" appeared to truly understand what the play was about - the majority treated the production as a fantasy, and "Madwoman" thereby lost its potential as a thought-provoking medium, something it should have been. In my review, I wrote that Sock 'n Buskin had perhaps aimed too high for any high school theater group. "Flowers For Algernon," S 'n B's spring production forces me to re-evaluate my words. This time, Sock 'n Buskin has no such problems of comprehension on the part of its actors and actresses. It has produced a worthy vehicle for the ample talents of Robert Lenhardt and Charly Gordon. In both parts, Wright performs commendably.

"Flowers For Algernon" is a theatrical adaptation of the movie "Charly," which in turn had been adapted from the novel that bears the play's name. Co-figure that one out, you can. The protagonist is a mentally retarded adult named Charly Gordon, chosen to be the human model for an experimental operation designed to increase intelligence three-fold. The procedure turns out to be successful, and within months, the formerly retarded Charly develops into a genius, capable of scientific research not understood by the doctors responsible for his new-found intelligence. The problems that ensue from his as-yet retarded emotional development retarded the conflict of the play. Charly, brilliantly played by the aforementioned R. Lenhardt, is plagued by his past, in which he was cruelly treated by his mother. He is rendered unable to love another, and cannot come to grips with his former self, who mysteriously appears at the most awkward moments (a neat theatrical device, one of many that works here). He develops resentment toward the scientists that enable him to reach such intellectual heights, and when taken to a symposium for behavioral psychologists, he decides to take a flyer back to New York in search of his parents. The rest of the drama is too complicated to risk oversimplification in this column, but it is safe to say that the quick pace inherent in this production will render "Flowers For Algernon" easily understandable to all. The pace, achieved by unusually simple staging and props (the same pieces of furniture suffice for the entire production - because of the deft skill of those responsible for the placing of the props, this setup does not require immense flights of imagination on the part of the audience), in the past I have seen in any recent S 'n B production - this is a virtue, not a vice.

Another basic virtue is the general competence of the cast chosen by Verne Burnett as director. Although by definition, the role of Charly overshadows any other, the rest of the performers get a chance to show their talent. Some, of course, have "mattier" roles than others. Laura Gatzkiewicz, for example, in her role as Mrs. Donner, the bakery owner who has employed Charly since he was fifteen, shines through. Ms. Gatzkiewicz, who performed admirably in the last S 'n B drama, "The Baker's Boy," delivers her line with a thick Queens accent, both near and dear to this reviewer's heart. She will unquestionably continue to grace Bailey Auditorium with her presence in future endeavors.

Classes at McDonogh are small with no more than eighteen students per class. There are six periods from 8:50 to 2:15 p.m. However, buses do not pick up the students until 4 o'clock because there are two activity periods after classes are over. The bus ride home can take a long time, for students from all over Maryland attend school here. Friday morning we were put on the map by tennis star Pam Shriver, who is a recent graduate of McDonogh. Also, if you take chemistry, you will notice the name Robert Smoot is a science teacher at in other outstanding performances, John Gibault as the science-for-its-own-sake Professor Nemur does a fine job of mixing scientific cool with distasteful arrogance. Gail Downey, as Nemur's colleague Dr. Strauss, delivers an appropriately understated role. She, unlike her male counterpart (Gibault), maintains her detached, scientific demeanor throughout the entire play, providing a foil for both Dr. Nemur and Charly (the latter pours out the tortured secrets of his childhood to Dr. Strauss in therapy). There are a number of "bit" parts in this play - a wise choice by the director has resulted in some actors playing two and three roles. Among these players, there are some standouts. Lisa Seise, in particular, delivers an excellent Irish brogue as Mrs. Mooney, Charly's landlady. Michael Wright handles the dual roles of Frank, a heartless co-worker at the bakery, and the teen-age Charly who comes back to haunt the "new" Charly. In both parts, Wright performs commendably. The lion's share of the praise, though, must go to Mr. Lenhardt. In his final performance for S 'n B, he gives his best shot yet. The role of Charly demands an actor capable of both subtle and startling shifts in mood. Lenhardt is clearly up to the task, effecting the transformation

He, Washington, DC, or his dear!

Trip is successful

Each year a small group of AFS students visit an out-of-state community. There they experience a family life and school different from their own. This year eleven AFS members went to Baltimore, Maryland from May 1st to May 5th. We departed from Hartford Thursday afternoon, enabling us to miss 8th, 7th, and 6th periods at school, and travelled via Amtrak on a seven and one-half hour long train ride. As the train pulled into the Baltimore station, we were all eager to meet our host families. We had previously met most of the Maryland AFS'ers when they visited Manchester and tried to guess with whom we would be staying. That evening many of us went home with our host families and rested up for our weary journey. Of us got to see some of the more famous Baltimore sites such as John Hopkins Hospital and Memorial Stadium, home of the Orioles baseball team.

Friday morning we awoke to find the sun shining and birds singing on a beautiful and warm spring day. We entered McDonogh School with our host families - because of the deft skill of those responsible for the placing of the props, this setup does not require immense flights of imagination on the part of the audience), in the past I have seen in any recent S 'n B production - this is a virtue, not a vice. from idiot to genius so effortlessly that you think you could do it yourself. His facial motions provide much of the story line, and his voice runs the gamut from basket-case to patriotic. Lenhardt carries the play on - one's reaction to his performance determines one's reaction to the play as a whole. "Flowers For Algernon" must be viewed as Sock 'n Buskin's reaffirmation of its raison d'etre: to provide the best drama that can be done by a high school group to the general public. S 'n B almost never plays it safe - in the past three years, it has contributed to the Sherlock Holmes legend ("Hound of the Baskervilles"), done a few odd theatrical favorites ("The Curious Savage" and "George Washington Slept Here"), debuted a Lee Hay original ("The Future of West Revelation"), tackled a complex fantasy ("Madwoman of Chaillet"), and now, after all the hoopla surrounding its 60th anniversary, it has done its best to live up to its imposing reputation. Suffice to say that "Flowers For Algernon" is Sock 'n Buskin's best show in a long time. Go and see it tonight or tomorrow at Bailey. You will come away with new respect for the theater, and for the aged, though still strong, institution that is Sock 'n Buskin. - Gary Selinger

This is the Judgment Room of the Nathan Hale Homestead in Coventry, so called because it was here that Nathan Hale's father and some of his sons held court and acted as justices of the peace. The writing armchair is a replica of the one owned by Deacon Hale. The Daniel Bur-nap clock was made in nearby Andover. The homestead, on South Street, is open daily from 1 to 5 p.m.

Historic houses now open

HARTFORD - Save gas and at home this summer and see what Coventry has to offer. Visit six restored historic house museums open to the public for tours today through Oct. 15. Owned and operated by the Antiquarian and Landmarks Society, these houses encompass Connecticut's history from the 17th through 19th centuries and are accurately restored and furnished to give insight into what it was like to live in the days gone by. The following historic house museums are open to the public daily. The Nathan Hale Homestead on South Street, Coventry. It was built in 1776 by Deacon Richard Hale, father of the patriot and was one of the finest mansions of the period. The homestead has 10 rooms, all furnished as they might have been, including the Hale family. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The Butler-McCook Homestead on Main Street, Hartford. Built in 1782, the homestead is a rare historic survivor in an ever-changing urban area. As it stands today, it is the result of an architectural revolution reflecting the four generations who continuously occupied the building until 1971. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The Hathaway House on Main Street, Route 75, Suffield. The main part of the house was built about 1760 by Abraham Burdick and a north wing was added in 1826 by Oliver Phelps. The house's name comes from

Asahel Hatheway, a wealthy Suffield merchant, who bought it in 1806. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The Hiccupped House at the corner of Hempstead Street and Jay Street (Route 1A), New London. Built in 1678 and added to in 1728, it is the oldest surviving house in New London, having escaped the 1781 burning of the city by Benedict Arnold. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily, except Mondays. The public is invited to tour the society's houses. For a free brochure, write to Brochure, Antiquarian and Landmarks Society, 394 Main St., Hartford, CT 06103, or call 247-8666. The Amasa Day House at the junction of Routes 140 and 131 on the green in Moodus. Little is known about the history of the house, but it was built in 1816 by Julius Chapman and purchased at auction by Amasa Day in 1883. The house is furnished almost entirely with three generations of Day family heirlooms. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The Batholomew-Williams House at Broad and Marsh streets, Wethersfield. Psych Nurses speak to club

The MHS Medical Club held another informative meeting last week on May 7, at Manchester Memorial Hospital. The two speakers were Mrs. Holik and Mrs. Kennedy, two psychiatric nurses on staff at the hospital. The two discussed the history of the psychiatric ward at MMH, as well as mental health programs in Manchester. The history of treating patients with emotional problems, through shock treatment and counseling, were also described. Mrs. Holik also told how their roles as psychiatric nurses have changed over the past few years. They allowed us to witness their jobs first hand, giving us a tour of the psychiatric ward. The group was taken through several of the rooms. All agreed that this was an unusual experience. The next medical club meeting will be next Wednesday, May 28. Doctor Niskanen will discuss the problem of depression in our society. All interested are welcome to attend. -Carole Schreiber

Outing Club scales peak

The Outing Club ventured up north this past weekend for their assault of Mt. Washington. After a six hour drive, the club found themselves staring skyward at the White Mountains, the most impressive in New England. Our packs ready, we began the two mile climb to Tuckerman's Ravine, a spectacular snow-laden rock bowl. As we started our climb, a light mist was falling, but with each step to a higher elevation, the rain gradually turned to snow. Weather in the mountains can change drastically from minute to minute. Around five p.m. we reached our shelter and enjoyed a warm and satisfying supper. After a long day of backpacking, supper is always a welcome time to sit among friends and to reminisce about the day's events. We were up by dawn the following day, and the weather was cloudy and cool. This was not the most encouraging weather in which to climb, but we decided to forge ahead. We loaded our day packs and headed to the ravine trail. As we climbed into the bowl it was decided we would try to climb the right gully. Upon announcing to do so, Mr. Glaeser announced that such a climb was impossible without crampons and ice axes. Therefore, an alternate route would be tried on the Lion's Head Trail. Although not as scenic as the right gully, it still gave some tremendous views of the valley floor below. Ever climbing higher, we advanced into tundra-like conditions. Shrubs and barren rocks were around us. Mt. Washington was now towering above us, low clouds obscured the dome-shaped top, and the base was

The Sturbridge Militia will participate in Spring Militia Training Day, scheduled Sunday at Old Sturbridge Village, on Route 20 in Sturbridge, Mass. The day's festivities will include military inspection, musket firing, drills, martial music, a picnic and dancing.

Village militia to muster

STURBRIDGE, Mass. — A recreated 1830s militia unit will muster on the common at Old Sturbridge Village May 17 during Spring Militia Training Day. An inspection of arms at 10:45 a.m. will mark the start of daylong festivities including military inspection, musket firing, drills, martial music, an 1830s picnic and dancing. The militia at Old Sturbridge Village each year recreates the activities of the Sturbridge Militia, a unit that served the Town of Sturbridge some 150 years ago. During the years after the Revolution, federal law required the formation of such local units for the purpose of national defense. Old Sturbridge Village authentically recreates the way America lived and played in the days when Old Glory was young. Amid 200 tranquil acres are situated more than 40 historical buildings brought from throughout New England. Here, costumed Village staff recreate the typically daily work and celebrations of a rural New England town of 180 years ago. Militia Day, the first major community event after a long winter, was a festive time. Today, as in the early 19th century, there will be many special activities. Authentically costumed townspeople and their children will turn out in numbers to watch the militia drill, to partake in a recreation of an 1830s picnic and to join the dancing. The muster at 10:45 a.m. will be followed by a picnic at noon in the garden at the Towne house on the village common. The gardens in the village are in full bloom. Quince hedge, apple blossoms and spring bulbs are at their best and visitors are encouraged to bring their cameras. A recall to muster, with military drills and musket firing at 1:15 p.m., will be followed by a sham attack on the Powder House at 2:15 p.m. A fire and drum demonstration will begin at 3 p.m. and militiamen will participate in a target shoot near the village animal pound at 3:30 p.m. A dance demonstration, with visitors invited to participate, will be held at 4:15 p.m. at the Tavern. The rain date for the event is May 18. During the early 19th century, all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 65 were required to serve in militia units. Most joined enrolled units that consisted of a few military officers and ragtag collections of citizens. Members of militia companies received no compensation for their service. Because they had to pay for the required equipment themselves and trained only 2-4 times each year, rural units like the Sturbridge Militia often lacked the spit and polish of more well-to-do volunteer units. The volunteer militia, after 1900, evolved into the present National Guard. Old Sturbridge Village is open all four seasons. Summer hours, in effect through October, are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., seven days a week.

'Romeo and Juliet' set to close ballet season

HARTFORD — The Hartford Ballet will end their current dance season with a new full length production of "Romeo and Juliet." There will be six performances from May 22-25 and May 30-31 at the Bushnell in Hartford. This new work concludes a season that also highlighted a spectacular new version of "The Nutcracker," and a critically acclaimed fourth Repertory Festival. "Romeo and Juliet," choreographed by Hartford Ballet Artistic Director Michael Uthoff, is based on the famous tragedy by William Shakespeare. The ballet was first performed by the Russian State Ballet in Moscow in 1946. Since its premiere, there have been several versions by such companies as Stuttgart Ballet, American Ballet Theatre, and the Royal Danish Ballet. Although the interpretations differ depending on the choreographer, the major scenes remain — The Capulets' Ball, the Love Duets, the Marriage by Friar Laurence, the Duel, and the Death of the Dancers. The score for "Romeo and Juliet" by Serge Prokofiev will be performed by the Hartford Ballet Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Winograd. The music, specifically composed for ballet, skillfully illustrates the drama of the story. The sets and costumes have been designed by John Conklin, who has designed many productions for the Hartford Stage Company. Mr. Conklin's designs for leading theater, opera, and ballet companies, including the Royal Ballet of London, have earned him an international reputation for outstanding work. Jennifer Tipton will create the lighting designs for "Romeo and Juliet." Miss Tipton's theater lighting has won her a Drama Desk Award, and Obie, and a Tony Award.

Washington (UPI) — President Carter's oil import fee, which would raise gasoline prices by 10 cents a gallon, is stalled on two fronts and may never reach the pockets of motorists.
A federal judge enjoined the fee, and while the government is now appealing that court ruling, Congress has begun to demonstrate its opposition to the fee in this election year.
The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Thursday granted the government's request to hear a speedy appeal of the oil fee case. The appeals court set up a schedule for both sides to file legal papers in the case, and said arguments will be heard the first week in June.
On Capitol Hill, the House Ways and Means Committee postponed voting until next Thursday on a resolution barring Carter from raising gasoline prices.
The resolution was approved, 174-1 by the panel's trade subcommittee, but committee action was blocked Thursday by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., who cited a rule requiring 48

Lawyer says Gold shouldn't face third murder trial

HARTFORD (UPI) — Famed defense attorney Louis Nizer says the state should drop its murder case against Murray Gold in light of a state Supreme Court order granting the former New York stockbroker a new trial.
The high court ruled Thursday Gold was entitled to a third trial because testimony about another man's alleged confession to the 1974 slayings of Gold's former in-laws was withheld from the jury which convicted him.
But Nizer, the second nationally prominent attorney to represent Gold, said his client already had spent four years in prison for a crime he didn't commit and should be set free.
"The greatest disaster which can occur in law is the conviction of an innocent man for murder," said the New York lawyer, who planned to ask the Waterbury state attorney to drop the charges against Gold.
"I hope the able prosecutor will find it consistent with his duty to dis-

Police crack down on lot use

MANCHESTER — In response to a request from the Southern New England Telephone Company's facility at 52 Main St., police Thursday night arrested five men and women and charged them with third-degree criminal trespass.
SNETCO officials asked police to enforce "no trespassing" and "no parking" signs in the area behind the building which, officials said, was being used by patrons of cafes. SNETCO complained of broken bottles, damage to property and said its employees were afraid to leave the building at night.
Police arrested Wayne R. Lessard, 21 of 32 Carolyn Drive, Hebron.

Siebold under fire again

By KEVIN FOLEY

MANCHESTER — Mel Siebold, the beleaguered Recreation Director, once again came under fire Thursday night at the Park and Recreation Advisory Commission meeting as members blasted him for his failure to attend a recent "family night" at the West Side Recreation Center on May 2.
Siebold's involvement with what the commission designated Siebold for the better part of the two-hour meeting, asking why he wasn't at a function Ramey termed an important "public relations" event.
"I didn't know about it," Siebold explained.
"How come?" DiDonato asked. "You should be on top of these things, you know Mel."
"I know," Siebold said. "My staff planned it, but they failed to let me know about it."
Siebold went on to outline the chain of command in the recreation department, saying he is seldom aware of lower level decisions. While conceding he had planned the family night — an event about 100 people attended, according to Siebold — he said his staff had never notified him of the May 2 date.
"We've begun holding weekly staff meetings," Siebold said.
Apparently dissatisfied with the explanations, DiDonato and Ramey continued their intensive cross-examinations, asking Siebold what his involvement with the recreation

Ted setting conditions

Ronald Reagan is likely next week to capture the delegates needed for the GOP nomination, and President Carter does not want to debate with Sen. Edward Kennedy no matter what the Massachusetts Democrat offers in return.
Kennedy said Thursday if Carter debates, then defeats him in the June 5 primaries he will drop out of the 1980 race — development the White House, wary of a divisive Democratic convention, would welcome.
But Carter, who is virtually assured of having the delegates necessary for the nomination, isn't interested.

Eagles step nearer crown

By LEN AUSTER

Good hitting and pitching is a tough combination to beat.
Xavier High will bear witness.

Hard-hitting East Catholic, making its hit count, clinched at least a tie for the HCC baseball crown with an 8-3 win over the Falcons last night at Middletown's Palmer Field.
The Eagles and Xavier were co-HCC champions a year ago.
East, 7-1 in the conference and 13-2 overall and riding a 10-game winning streak, will make its first bid for outright possession of the title Saturday morning at East Thomas Aquinas at Eagle Field at 11 o'clock.
This is the fourth HCC championship for 18-year East Coach Jim Penders.
Almost — but not — overshadowed by East's batting attack, the pitching performance of Gregg Kane. The senior righthander scattered six hits, fanned 10, walked two and got struck at the game were all.
His (Kane) fastball seemed to get more zip as the game went along. Penders commented, "He's a gutsy kid who believes in himself."

Take a look at the National League baseball standings and you will find St. Louis tied for fourth place with Montreal in the East with only the New York Mets behind.

Infest lagging

That there was sufficient interest to sponsor a fast pitch girls softball league, Mel Siebold of the Manchester Recreation Department notes only 38 girls signed up to date, not enough for even four teams. Petitioners claimed more than 100 girls would take part and a six-team league was contemplated. Supervised playgrounds in Manchester will open June 23 for the summer season. For every available job there were 30 applicants, Siebold said. Manchester swimming pools are due to open June 18. Noting the declining interest in tennis, Siebold said on a tour of the city last Saturday morning, when weather conditions were near perfect, every court was open. Annual Connecticut Masters Track and Field Championships will be staged June 15 at Bowen Field in New Haven. Bob Carlson and Charlie Graff will team up to coach the Credit Union entry in the Manchester Open Junior Baseball League this season. Graff has been coaching for more than two decades, including stints with the American Legion.

Grid drills set

Manchester High may be without any varsity football coaching staff but plans have been made to conduct spring drills starting May 27 at Memorial Field. Al Preibisch, as assistant last season, will handle the sessions unless a new head coach is named in the meantime. Date for the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame induction dinner is Friday, September 19 at the Army & Navy Club. One man's opinion: Manchester High's head football coach should come from within the system and be a fulltime member of the physical education department. Going outside the system would be a mistake, except to save money. The undersized horse to win the race is the one who has the most money. Manchester Chapter of the American and pro hoop star, will speak at the annual Explorers Tap-off Club banquet Wednesday night at the Marco Polo. Members of the champion New England Basketball Assn. Explorers will receive special awards.

Legion $$ drive

With the season opener less than three weeks away, the annual Manchester pre-season Booster Drive to help support the program is nearing the home stretch. To date $2,000 has been collected from community contributions. Henry Wierzbicki reports the goal is $3,000. The Legion will open a 40-game schedule on June 15 at Bowen Field in New Haven. Bob Carlson and Charlie Graff will team up to coach the Credit Union entry in the Manchester Open Junior Baseball League this season. Graff has been coaching for more than two decades, including stints with the American Legion.

Perez better with age, but leads Sox to win

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Like wine, Tony Perez keeps getting better with age.
The 38-year-old first baseman drove in three runs with a double and a two-run homer Thursday night to power the Boston Red Sox to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.
"I'm swinging the bat good now. I'm having a lot of fun playing this game," said Perez, who hit his 317 with four homers and 20 RBI. "It's really great to play in a lineup with guys like Jim Rice, Fred Lynn, Carl Yastrzemski, and so on. You can compare them with the Cincinnati Reds team I played on."
Perez, who was traded by the Reds to the Montreal Expos in 1978, joined the Red Sox as a free agent this season.
"There isn't much difference between the National and American leagues except for the strike zone. The pitchers are about the same, but they throw more breaking pitches in this league."

Kane is now 6-1 for the season. In contrast, Xavier flame-thrower Ed McCulloch had trouble with the location of his pitches, walking nine. It has not been a good year for the UConn-bound senior righthander, who has posted a 2-4 win-loss mark.
Xavier winds up 6-4 in the HCC and is 12-4 overall.
"Eddie has looked good in only two games this year," offered Xavier Coach Terry Garstka. "He said his arm was alive but as you saw, his ball was coming up."

McMillan wasn't sharp as he has been in the past, but Penders wasn't ready to concede. "I don't know if that was the case or we caught him with our bats. We stung the ball pretty good," he stated.
"We have a senior leaden team which is very confident," Penders continued. "We have a lot of kids who played football (East shared HCC honors with Xavier) and have belief in themselves. We swung the bat very well."
"No question East Catholic is a good hitting club," Garstka voiced. "They impressed me the last time and this time again. They got some

Hot-stove advice pays off

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Clancy said some hot-stove league advice has paid him back on the right track for the regular season, and the Seattle Mariners will wince for that.
Clancy, the Toronto righthander who is now 2-1 while attempting a comeback from an injury-plagued season, pitched a three-hitter Thursday night to lead the Blue Jays to a 1-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners. He struck out four while walking five and completed his second game.
"I kept my pitches down," he said, "and I've been working on that since Winter. This is the first time the big difference this year is I'm holding my right leg back when following through on a pitch. Al Widmer (the Blue Jays' pitching coach) suggested that as a way of keeping the ball down."
Barry Bondell singled up the middle off Floyd Stanger, 2-3, for the Field not mediocre in Preakness run

BALTIMORE (UPI) — This year's crop of 3-year-olds has the misfortune of following such champions as Seattle Slew, Affirmed and Spectacular Bid. But the trainer of one of the favorites in Saturday's Preakness says they shouldn't be labeled mediocre — at least, not right away.
Wayne Lukas, whose Codex is the early 2-1 second choice in the second leg of racing's Triple Crown, said it will take several years before anyone knows for sure how good this year's three-year-olds are.
"Two things show class in a racehorse — can he win under pressure and is he consistent — and both of those take a few years to determine," Lukas said Thursday at Pimlico while watching Codex cool down from an early-morning gallop. "This might not be a good bunch of colts, but I think they will have to be judged by history."
He noted that Seattle Slew, who is the undefeated horse to win the Triple Crown, was at first considered only the best of a mediocre lot.
"When Seattle Slew started winning," he said, "he wasn't beating everyone. Then he won the Triple Crown and beat Affirmed as a four-year-old, and all of a sudden that group was considered one of the best in years," Lukas said.

Will not return

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers head coach Jim McKey was seriously injured in a November bicycle crash, will not return as coach next season, team owner Jerry Busch said Tuesday.
McKey, 50, was injured in a crash on a bicycle on Nov. 11, 1979. He was hospitalized for several weeks and underwent surgery. Busch said McKey would not return as coach next season, but would continue to work as a consultant.

An open letter from Heritage Savings and Loan Association.

William H. Hale, President

Why your 6 month certificate earns more at Heritage.

Right now, Government regulations allow us to pay you higher interest than commercial banks pay on money market certificates. While we are currently offering 9% on these funds, commercial banks are limited to 8.782%.

The reason for this is that the government wants to encourage people to save at savings institutions like Heritage because we invest most of our deposits in home mortgage loans. Furthermore, we concentrate those loans right here in the communities we serve.

Yes, home loans are our specialty. In fact, we have developed several new kinds of loans to meet the challenge of housing our communities in the 80s. But it's your savings deposits that make it all possible. After all, it's your dollars that we lend when we make those loans.

So before you think about putting your money in institutions that invest it just anywhere, think about us. Heritage Savings. We'll put your money to work right here at home, financing the homes of your friends and neighbors. And we'll pay you extra high interest, too.

Diplomat warns U.S. of Cuban interests

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Some leftists challenging the weak junta governing El Salvador from October 1977 until last Feb. 15, said a take-over by rightists would be "an improbable attempt to turn back the clock" which would face future battles with leftist forces.

Frank J. Devine said a leftist take-over in the country torn by political violence would be a gain for Cuba but U.S. interests would also be damaged if a challenge by rightists was successful.

"If we lose them as friends and allies we've lost something very real," Devine told the World Affairs Center of Hartford Thursday. "Today, this very small country has emerged as a very large problem."

He said leftists had apparently gone to Cuba to be trained and in turn trained others when they returned to El Salvador, creating a "large and relatively good force of subversive members."

"They (Cuba) look at it as an opportunity for a shift from our sphere of influence to their sphere of influence," he said.

Devine, who served as ambassador in El Salvador from October 1977 until last Feb. 15, said a take-over by rightists would be "an improbable attempt to turn back the clock" which would face future battles with leftist forces.

"Our policy was and is to support the (junta). The purpose of this is to create a political center," he said, conceding there was some merit to the opinion that "the political center was to a great extent abandoned" after the coup.

Bloody fighting began after a coup overthrew the government of President Carlos Romero Oct. 15, 1979. The present junta, which took power at the end of the year, has been under constant attack from the rightist and leftist opponents in a battle for control of the nation of 4.8 million people. The fight has left 1,600 dead in the first four months of 1980.

The junta is also faced with the possible withdrawal of the powerful Christian Democratic Party.

The party's Executive Committee is scheduled to meet Saturday to vote on calling a nation-wide party convention that would decide whether it should quit the junta because of its inability to bring the coup leader, former national guard Maj. Roberto D'Abusison, to trial.

The party last week threatened to walk out of the junta unless D'Abusison is tried for attempting a right-wing coup May 2.

The Christian Democrats have two men on the five-man junta — which also includes two army colonels and an independent physician — and about 15 members on the 30-man cabinet.

Devine said he was unsure if U.S. influence could maintain the junta if Christian Democrats pulled out of the government but added the party must also weigh the effect their withdrawal would have.

"It's not just the United States' problem," he said. "The Christian Democrats are well aware that if they pull out it would be a terrible blow to the stability of the country. I wouldn't pretend to be able to predict what would happen."

4-foot-3-inch politician wants to prove his worth

BOSTON (UPI)—In the last year and a half, 4-foot-3 Burton Gutterman says he has been turned down for more jobs than he can remember. So he's going into politics and let the voters decide whether he's too short to work.

Gutterman, 27, a University of Massachusetts graduate was standing in front of the Statehouse when he was elected to the legislature.

"I really just want to show my indignation to this whole system," he said, waving his brand new pencils in a tin cup.

Thursday to dramatize his campaign against alleged height discrimination.

"I've been reduced to selling pencils on a street-corner for lack of something better," he said.

But Gutterman said he won't be peddling pencils for long. He plans to run for the Massachusetts House from Boston's Brighton section.

Why politics? "I'm trying to show people what happened to me. I want to get off welfare. All I really want to do is work," he said.

Among the jobs Gutterman has applied for was a Boston police officer.

There is no height requirement to be a Boston cop, but the department turned him down last summer on grounds that he flunked the medical exam and lied on his application.

A spokesman said Gutterman was disqualified because of "recurring back problems and knee pain" and state house to protest his treatment. He says he will run for public office to prove his worth. (UPI photo)

Massachusetts vendors license. "I'm completely qualified to work."

"I've been reduced to selling pencils on a street-corner for lack of something better," he said.

But Gutterman said he won't be peddling pencils for long. He plans to run for the Massachusetts House from Boston's Brighton section.

Why politics? "I'm trying to show people what happened to me. I want to get off welfare. All I really want to do is work," he said.

Among the jobs Gutterman has applied for was a Boston police officer.

There is no height requirement to be a Boston cop, but the department turned him down last summer on grounds that he flunked the medical exam and lied on his application.

because he was afflicted with achondroplasia, which is defined as "a hereditary, congenital, familial disturbance — resulting in a peculiar type of dwarfism."

He said Gutterman also said he lived in the city-actually lived in a suburb. But Gutterman said he has a residence in Boston and said the only thing wrong with his legs is that one is shorter than the other from "running around in circles" trying to get work.

"They never had any intention of hiring me anyway," he said.

Gutterman, a psychology major in college, said he's also applied for work at "every branch of state government" in the past 18 months, but had no luck.

Gov. Edward J. King appointed him to a board investigating equal employment opportunity, but he quit because "it just doesn't pay any money, so I went to the King to talk."

Gutterman said the governor sent him the Human Services Department, the largest agency in state government.

"I ran up against a brick wall," he said. "I was just as qualified as the rest, but I know I was turned down because of my height."

"I don't have a problem. It's a problem with other people," he said.

As he stood in front of the golden-domed Statehouse, Gutterman held up a placard for passersby: "Governor King and his high-paid professionals offer me welfare, not work."

He motioned to his pencils and cup. "It's pretty sad that this is Governor King's answer to rehabilitation and welfare," he said.

COMPUTERIZED WHEEL ALIGNMENT

Due to the high cost of fuel, tires, etc., car owners have become increasingly aware of getting proper service on their vehicles. Most automotive service and/or safety centers have not been able to, or not willing to make the heavy capital investment required to keep up with and properly service today's vehicles.

Fortunately, we have been able to secure all of the necessary ingredients to build and equip our new safety center, which is now completed and operating. We have the Hunter Electron-A-Line computerized, all four wheel alignment machine. This machine not only aligns the front end, but also measures front wheel set back, rear wheel track and center line steering, on all foreign and domestic cars. This type of machine is the only one capable of aligning cars with four wheel individual suspension.

To go along with our unique alignment facility, we offer Hunter's fine off the car dynamic-static horizontal wheel balancer. This is the most accurate wheel balancing equipment in the world today.

Of course, seeing is believing. You may call Al or Gene La Vigne for an escorted tour of our new facility at your convenience.

Abby
By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published a priceless article describing the advantages of being 80 years old. I foolishly neglected to cut it out, and now that I am approaching 80 I would very much like to have it. Can you please locate it and run it again?
MARY P. IN LA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR MARY: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: We elders sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folk. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you're 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80! Sign me ...

He concentrated on breaking the game contract and found an elegant solution. Declarer ducked the heart lead in dummy and won East's jack with the queen. At trick two South led a spade to North's king. The 10 of diamonds was then covered by the queen and king and Mark won the ace.

Now Mark found the only play to defeat the contract. He knew that declarer had the 10 of hearts because East had the jack at trick one. If East had both the jack and 10, he would have played the 10er of his touching honors. Mark decided that if South had begun with exactly Q 10 doubtless of hearts he could smother South's remaining heart honor. Consequently, Mark played the king of hearts to his established heart suit.
