Zinsser candidate for Senate

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — Carl Zinsser, former Manchester director, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the 4th District senatorial seat. Zinsser, who resigned in February from the Board of Directors after nine years, is the only declared candidate for the seat being vacated by Sen. David Barry, D-Manchester. His announcement was anticipated for several weeks. Zinsser is expected to be a strong candidate, although he mentioned this morning at a gathering of Manchester and area Republicans, that nothing would be taken for granted. During the weeks before the July 22 nomination convention, Zinsser will be contacting area town committees and delegates. There was speculation Zinsser would seek the nomination when he resigned from the Board of Directors saying he was tired and frustrated. Asked at this morning's announcement gathering why he was seeking public office so soon, Zinsser joked that he wished he hadn't anticipated the question. "The Democratic-controlled legislature has seen fit to increase the tax bite on the citizens of Connecticut by an alarming $181 million," Zinsser said. "In effect, the legislature rather than cut expenditures chose to follow the path of least resistance and continued to spend, spend, spend. And they're spending your money."

Zoners allow use of center

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER — The town Zoning Board of Appeals today unanimously voted to permit a variance allowing town and private non-profit human service organizations to occupy the former Senior Citizens Center at 63 Linden St. The municipal zoning hearing drew a crowd which furnished two hours of testimony. In the end, the board granted the variance with stipulation that staff use parking facilities at the municipal building or the nearby Emanuel Lutheran Church. The town Board of Directors voted in early April to lease the ground floor of the two-story building to MACC and MARCH Inc., after months of debate on how the vacated space would be used. As a result of last night's vote, human service administrators will operate from the Linden Street location. Nancy Carr, MACC executive director, estimated to more than 20 cars from that program would converge on the site at any one time. Residents objecting to the former center's new use cited traffic and parking problems, which they said would threaten the quality of the neighborhood. The building has a history of intensive use, most recently as a senior center and before that as a temple. With its new use, programs serving former drug and criminal offenders will be operated from the location. MACC and MARCH officials see the site as excellent to serve clients living in the downtown area. Other residents, however, said the new programs would threaten property values and potentially damage the neighborhood, in addition to traffic concerns. A zoning variance had been granted as far back as 1946, allowing for town use of the structure for offices. Ronald Kraatz, assistant town health director, offered an opinion that the requested variance already existed. Again in 1964, another variance allowed for non-commercial office use of the building. That same ruling limited the number of cars allowed within 1,000 feet to eight. The town, however, brought the issue before the Zoning Appeals Board after town Zoning Officer Tom O'Meara ruled occupancy by non-town officials represented an exception to previously-granted variances.

Stolen trains are recovered

MANCHESTER — Over $1,600 in trains reportedly stolen in recent weeks from the Train Exchange, 70 Hilliard St., have been recovered, according to police, who say seven model locomotives turned up at Valley Hobbies in Simsbury after they were apparently sold to the store's owner. Robert Bell, 40, of 62 Cambridge St. told police about $2,500 in model trains had been removed from his store by shoppers, and said the most recent theft made last Thursday had netted four train cars valued at $400. Bell said he knows the Simsbury shop owner, Gregory Gorden, who he said phoned him after suspecting the trains he purchased from an unidentified man belonged to Bell. Bell looked at the trains and others which were purchased by Gorden and said they were his. Police are now looking for a man they said is known to both Bell and Gorden. Bell said today eight trains are still missing.

Mascot maligned at meeting

MANCHESTER — There was no puppy love lost Monday night during the Eighth District Board of Directors monthly meeting at the district's firehouse. Director Robert Blechman made his point clear: "Squirt" had better change the color of his spots. Squirt is the Dalmatian which serves as the district's mascot, but Blechman, in perhaps his last hurrah as a director (he is not seeking re-election), condemned the dog's behavior at a recent dance at the fire house. "He attacked a fireman's hand at a dance," Blechman said. "And I've heard from a reliable person that the dog attacked some children at Robertson School. The dog wasn't bullied, cajoled or threatened, there was no provocation." Squirt has been a fixture at the firehouse since 1976 and his

Women tops at MCC

MANCHESTER — Two women have earned the highest positions in the 1980 graduating class at Manchester Community College. For this achievement, they have been named class valedictorian and salutatorian. Geraldine Williams, 34, of 165 Wickham Drive, East Hartford, is the valedictorian. Gail Grigsby, 21, of 78 Terrace Ave., East Hartford, is the salutatorian. Both women earned 4.0 or "A" averages in their work at the college. Mrs. Williams was named valedictorian because she earned more of her credits at MCC than did Mrs. Grigsby. Mrs. Williams entered MCC in 1976 as a part-time business administration student in accounting, but later decided to change to the data processing program after completing the required introductory course. A resident of East Hartford for 12 years, she is married to Bill Williams, who is presently employed at Aetna Life and Casualty. They have two daughters: Deborah, aged 13, and Gloria, aged 11. She said, "I thoroughly enjoyed my experience at MCC but found homemaking plus part-time classes to be a full time job." In addition to her course work at MCC, Mrs. Williams works at the college-sponsored income tax clinic. She is a religious instructor at Our Lady of Peace Church in East Hartford. Her plans are to pursue a full-time career as a computer programmer this coming fall. Because of her busy schedule, Mrs. Williams will not be able to attend the MCC commencement exercises. Instead, she will be in the audience at both of her daughters' recitals. Mrs. Grigsby enrolled at MCC in 1975 as a part-time student and continued in that status until the completion of her course work this spring. She is married to David, a heating and air-conditioning technician. They have two children: Michael, aged 12, and Michelle, aged 9. She will graduate with a degree in accounting. Before living in Connecticut, she lived in New York where she attended college for two years with a perfect average before withdrawing from school. After the MCC graduation, she says, "My main priority is raising my children; also, I haven't ruled out the possibility of going on to school and one day hope to pursue my career in accounting." She works part time for Thrifty Drugs in Manchester and is on its volleyball team in the Manchester Recreation Department. The two women represent the new breed of college student who is older, attends college part-time while raising a family, and shares with her husband the duties of raising the children. Both women cited the strong support their husbands gave to them in their college careers, even though classes frequently inconvenienced the family life. Commencement ceremonies for almost 800 students will take place at the Bicentennial Bandshell on the main campus of the college Thursday at 5:30 p.m. If the weather is favorable, the ceremonies will be held in Clarke Arena of Manchester High School. In case of questionable weather conditions, an announcement regarding the location for the graduation will be made over several area radio stations. The graduating class and others in attendance will hear a commencement address given by the Acting President of MCC, Dr. Robert E. Miller.

Ashley to face hearing

GLASTONBURY — It may turn into a legal and verbal brawl. The Board of Education, at the conclusion of Monday night's evaluation of Superintendent Larry Ashley, unanimously voted to have a hearing to consider his termination of employment in the school system. Ashley immediately informed the more than 300 persons at the meeting that he had filed complaints with the State Freedom of Information Commission for what he said were a series of illegal, secret meetings. Ashley filed the complaints more than a month ago. Ashley's termination as superintendent was brought up by Chairman Diane Twachtman. She said the board would not be using rating scales. "But there is sufficient basis to seriously consider terminating your employment Dr. Ashley. If that is not the sense of the board, please speak up," Mrs. Twachtman said in the silent high school auditorium. Board member Anne Alvord moved that consideration of his termination be placed on the agenda and it was approved unanimously. Douglas Webster then moved the board hold a future hearing during which evidence from both sides of the issue could be presented. "Matters have been discussed that are so serious that if true, could result in the termination of the contract. I would move that this be done in a hearing so that both sides could present evidence," he said. It was reported in Friday's paper that Mrs. Twachtman had indicated Ashley's resignation had not been previously requested. However, Mrs. Twachtman called the newspaper Friday night and indicated there had been a misunderstanding. She had said the board would not vote to fire or ask for his resignation Thursday night. She did say that his salary and mileage would be discussed. "We did not enter the evaluation with the idea that this would eventually go to a hearing. Areas were explored to see if there could be a resolution of difficulties, but his resignation was never directly requested," Mrs. Twachtman said this morning. She said Ashley's answers to many of the board's questions during the four-day evaluation led the board to believe that a hearing was the best way to proceed. Ashley then read from a packet of prepared materials and charged that the "board had violated the law." "I have entered charges against the board over a month ago. It is about time the public knows what has gone on behind the scenes," he said. "The board held a series of illegal secret meetings," Ashley said. "On March 18, I met with the board's attorney for an hour-and-a-half and during that time he requested my resignation," Ashley said. Ashley said there were two secret meetings held in March and one in April to which he was not invited. "This should clarify the public about this charade," Ashley said.

Firefighters who attended the meeting weren't about to roll over and play dead after Blechman made his accusations, as they asked the director to name the fireman who was attacked. Blechman was unable to do so, but doggedly pursued his allegations calling the assault "a baring teeth, lunging, cur, out-for-something angry attack." When one district director suggested "maybe Squirt" was happy, Blechman countered by saying "the department's paramount duty should not be the dog's emotional well being." District president Gordon Lassow suggested Squirt's actions be investigated but in no way indicated the dog will be gone.

Update

Force occupies Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — An armed force of 7,000 police, National Guardsmen and state law enforcement officers today occupied sections of Miami where racial violence has resulted in the deaths of at least 16 people.

Hundreds were injured in the rioting and damages estimated at more than $100 million. Officers enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew sporadically punctured by sniper's bullets and fire bombings from one end of Dade County to the other.

Reagan only needs half

Ronald Reagan could put a mathematical lock on the 1980 Republican presidential nomination today by winning about half of the 111 convention delegates on the line in the Michigan and Oregon primaries.

President Carter cannot reach the 1,666 delegates needed for the Democratic nomination in today's primaries because Michigan Democrats allocated their 141 delegates in caucuses earlier and Oregon has only 39 at stake.

Gasoline prices to rise

Gasoline soon will cost between 1.5 and 2 cents more per gallon, and the Carter administration predicts ultimately it will win its fight to raise gasoline an additional 10 cents a gallon.

In other economic developments, the personal incomes of Americans in April registered their weakest gain in five years. With inflation running at more than 18 percent, that was bad news for many Americans. Three members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries—Libya, Algeria and Indonesia—Monday raised crude oil prices by $1 to $2 a barrel.

Quebeckers vote today

MONTREAL (UPI) — Quebeckers decide today in a referendum whether their French-speaking province would remain part of Canada or pursue independence as a new North American state.

Iran won't allow visit

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iran sent a message today to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim saying a U.N. envoy scheduled to visit Tehran soon, would not be allowed to discuss the 192-day American hostage crisis, the official Pars news agency said.

hostages, today called the reports "lies" spread by "some news agencies which are subservient to American imperialism."

Korean cabinet resigns

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The entire South Korean cabinet resigned today in a move that gives the military almost total power in the turbulent Asian nation. The mass resignation came one day after the first two reported deaths in street fighting in Kwangju and two days after the military gained control to enforce order and quell the worst anti-government demonstrations in 16 years.

For period ending 7 a.m. EST 5/21/80. Showers or rain will fall over parts of the mid Atlantic states and Tennessee Valley during Tuesday night, as well as over sections of Florida. Elsewhere, generally fair weather is forecast with skies ranging from partly cloudy.

Politicians trade favors, so why not favorite recipes?
Josephine DiCenso coaxed 50 office holders to share their secrets and included in the resulting book, "America's Cookbook," are Edna Ede's M. Kennedy's beef stroganoff; Maine Gov. Joseph E. Brennan's rolled omelette; New Hampshire Gov. Hugh Gallen's whoopie pies; Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s Derby pie; Massachusetts Gov. Edward J. King's lobster newburg; Connecticut Gov. When Pravda pans a book, they don't soften the blow.
In his review of Richard Nixon's "The Real War," Tomas Kolesnichenko writes, "One can hardly believe one's eyes when reading this mad ranting to put it mildly."
And then he puts it stronger. As it turns out, it isn't the prose he objects to so much as the subject matter.
Says Kolesnichenko, "The anti-Soviet coloration of this political charlatan has a purpose to it. This is one more trick of Tricky Dick... (he) is laying himself out to come back to the political scene from which he was banished in disgrace."

No second fiddle

Roman Totenburg's partner is missing and his insurance company has offered a $20,000 reward to get it back.
The 66-year-old violinist's Stradivarius vanished after a Mozart tribute to Wolfe Wolfenson at the Longy School of Music in Cambridge, Mass. The $200,000 violin was taken from its case, along with two bows valued at $6,300.
Totenburg has owned the Ames Strad 38 years and says although friends have offered to lend their violins for his next concert date, it wouldn't be the same.
"I consider it like an old partner, you develop responses with your instrument."

Quote of the day

Artist Robert Rauschenberg, in this week's Soho News says of Pablo Picasso: "It would have been considerably easier for me to write a comment on Picasso some years ago — when his only comment about American art was that he had never seen any but knew there was more to art than dribbles out of a paint can or dirty socks. (Jackson Pollock was the dribbler, I figured I was the dirty socks, so he had seen my work). My awe for the man was unlimited. I'm not sure of this, but I think uninterrupted eye contact with him was the only way to see the man. He was a fascinating-like process enacted when figure removes himself or herself from the possibility of failure. You end up with a priceless piece of inert."

Maps show path of volcanic ash cloud from Mount St. Helens as it is predicted to sweep dirty rain, weather scientists said. (UPI photo)

Volcano's toll rising

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Seven bodies were spotted on the mud-and-ash-covered flanks of Mount St. Helens and at least 29 other people are missing today. Scientists warned the volcano would keep erupting and mudflows might set off major flooding.
A bank of gray, acidic ash from Sunday morning's enormous eruption, which left hundreds homeless and thousands more stranded, moved eastward over the Pacific Northwest today.
Climatologists feared the thick cloud effect would be felt in the Northern Hemisphere for several months. Residents in many cities of the Northwest Pacific dome mountains and the governors of Idaho and Montana declared emergencies.
The volcano's explosion left glowing mudflows and "glowing avalanches" of hot ash and superheated gases that raced down the Toutle River Valley, blew down 25,000 acres of timber, trapped dozens of residents and campers, wiped out homes and washed out numerous bridges and roads.
Bob Christiansen of the U.S. Geological Survey said part of the mudflow from Mount St. Helens had built up a 1-mile dam 200 feet high at Spirit Lake. Behind the dam, the lake level already has increased more than 50 feet.
"The best scenario is that the water will infiltrate the volcanic materials, seep through and join the river. The worst scenario is that it will rise to the top, overflow and cause a big flood," Christiansen said.
He said an earthquake could increase chances the dam will break.
The Cowlitz County coroner's office said at least seven badly burned bodies were spotted in mud, ash and downed timber in the Toutle River Valley northwest of the mountain. There were unconfirmed reports of three more deaths.
Officials said it would be days or weeks before the extent of the disaster was known.
Earlier Monday, fears of flooding sparked the emergency evacuation of residents and the remaining residents in Toutle, and both sides of the Cowlitz River upstream from Kelso to the Toutle River.
However, after that evacuation had begun, Jim Untewegner of the Forest Service said the threatening mudflow had stopped in the Camp Baker area, above the town of Toutle.
Geologists then turned their concern to the waters in the Spirit Lake area.
Gov. Dixie Lee Ray said the loss of life was unfortunate because, despite seven weeks of rumbling from the volcano, some people were not convinced it was dangerous. "There were people who deliberately ignored the warnings," she said.
Helicopters from the Army and Air Force rescued more than 100 stranded people.

Ash is coming our way

BOSTON (UPI) — A giant volcanic ash cloud from Mount St. Helens in the Pacific Northwest is expected to drift into New England by Wednesday morning bringing the region dirty rain.
"There won't be any really adverse effects in New England," Dave Dille of the National Weather Service at Logan International Airport told the Boston Herald American.
Occasional showers will be over the region Wednesday, Dille said, adding the rain "will cause ash fallout from the volcanic plume."
Other areas of the nation, New England probably will only drift into New England by Wednesday morning bringing the region dirty rain.
The cloud crossed the Midwest today, leaving a deposit of grime on the ground and air so murky that some people donned masks to help their breathing.
The governors of Idaho and Montana declared emergencies in their states, airlines canceled flights in the vast ash zone and farmers feared the residue would ruin their crops.
One way to understand the cloud's behavior is to think of a hot air balloon, Dille said. The heat from the explosion made the ash buoyant and the particles were carried as high as 60,000 feet.
Dr. James B. Thompson, a geology professor at Harvard University, said there was no danger of a volcanic eruption in New England.
"There has not been such a disturbance in the region in 150 million years" and that's geologically ancient, which means it's really ancient," he said.

Danbury nurses strike

DANBURY (UPI) — Union nurses struck Danbury Hospital today, forcing officials to reduce services to the essential.
About 250 nurses who rejected management's final contract offer during a last-ditch bargaining session Monday night started picketing outside the 406-bed general hospital at 6:30 a.m.
Hospital spokeswoman Virginia Colney said the effect of Danbury's first-ever nurses strike was "de devastating on the community. But we'll be able to take good care of our patients."
She said the hospital's teaching nurses, non-striking union nurses and others hired from the community would provide essential services to the eight town of western Fairfield County for which the hospital is the chief health care facility.
"We have replacements for about half the staff," she said.
"We know we will have adequate staff for the patients we have. We have trimmed down to 200 beds, keeping open maternity, and all emergency services," said Ms. Colney, the hospital's director of community relations.
Ms. Colney said the hospital's maternity ward remained "very busy" while a detoxification unit, one surgical unit and other areas were completely shut down.
She said officials didn't know how many of the 250 members of Connecticut Health Care Associates Local 47 joined the strike, but they had taken steps to assure adequate coverage.
"We have 310 nurses in all," she said. "Of those, I think about 250 are involved. Of those, however, how many went to bed actually we don't really know."
Plans for staffing nursing stations included the operations cutback — including postponement of all elective surgery — and using supervisory staff and "a number of nurses from the community" who had offered their services.
Ms. Colney said the hospital's final offer would have given the nurses a 3-year contract with a pay scale ranking among the top six of those paid by Connecticut's 36 general hospitals.
The proposal also included improvements in sick time, holidays, higher shift differentials and improved in-service educational programs, she said.
Union leaders had complained current pay scales were among the lowest in the state and that the hospital was inadequately staffed which jeopardized patient care.
Ms. Colney said she didn't know if further negotiations were scheduled since hospital officials had expected a settlement at Monday night's meeting.

District bills back taxes

MANCHESTER — Delinquent Eight Utilities District taxpayers will be receiving their bills over the next week for 1979-1980 back taxes. According to district tax collector Betty Sadoski, $14,741 still remains to be collected.
In her report Monday night to the district's Board of Directors, Mrs. Sadoski said about 80 percent of the district's total collectable revenues had been received by her office. However, Tuesday morning she corrected that figure to 95 percent, saying a total of $38,000 had been collected thus far with another $14,741 due.
Mrs. Sadoski also warned those district residents who have not paid their supplemental motor vehicle taxes do so because the state's Department of Motor Vehicles will not register newly purchased cars. She said $10,889.97 is still due the district and added, "I gather people are having a hard time paying their taxes this year."
The district has collected about 79 percent of the motor vehicle revenues due it.
The Board of Directors also discussed the continuing controversy over the cost of sewage treatment. The town charges the district on a per 100 cubic foot basis and the district has been paying 44 cents but the town is seeking a 10 cent hike in that charge. The board has made its objections clear on the issue over the last several months and a court appointed referee is to hear both sides sometime this summer. Town residents currently are charged 64 cents per 100 cubic feet.
"We multiply 44 cents per 100 cubic feet and then pay two-thirds of that... we're just holding back a little pressure here and there," district president Gordon Lassow explained to the board. "It's been two years now and we've been reasonable all along. It's just a shame."
The district has paid $52,651 on its 1979-1980 $72,000 bill so far.
In other business, Lassow said "$4,500-odd, for the remaining money due on the Buckland settlement had been received by the district."
"Now that the money's not dribbling in anymore, we can get it audited and see what's been mis-

M zone changes voted

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter
MANCHESTER — The M zone alterations, allowing four more units per acre, were approved last night by the Planning and Zoning Commission.
However, the commission agreed the alterations were a short term solution, and it should consider revamping the zone's restrictions. Alan Lamson, town planner, outlined the zone's problems, and suggested relaxing the requirements, making the zone "moderately restricted."
Lamson also told the commission that revision recommendations would be forthcoming from the Mayor's Committee on Condominiums.
During meetings of this mayor's committee, which was formed when the Board of Directors imposed a 90-day moratorium on condominium conversions, developers said the M zone curtails apartment construction. The third area Lamson cited was uncertainty for the public on what will be approved and its effects.

"We should take another approach to the zone," Lamson said. He suggested possibly changing the housing mix and altering the density requirements.
The commission decided to begin their review of the M zone with the mayor's committee recommendations.
The alterations approved by the PZC last night bring the M zone requirements into conformity with other residential zones. The alterations include using island and wetlands in determining density, and changed the minimum driveway requirements from 30 feet to 24 feet for two-way traffic and 15 feet for one-way traffic. Reducing area requirements was also among the alterations.
Another problem is the developers don't know what the commission will

MPOA re-elects Sadloski

MANCHESTER — New officers were elected and the town government was criticized at the monthly meeting of the Manchester Property Owners Association. Elizabeth Sadloski, Hollister Street, was re-elected president. John Tucci, Castle Road, was elected first vice president, and Ronald Bookis, Tolland Turnpike, as second vice president. Peg Martin was elected secretary and Mabel Sheridan as treasurer.
The MPOA questioned the town government administration about several issues. Criticism was leveled at Town Manager Robert Weiss for including a 7.6 percent personnel raise in next year's budget.
The MPOA also noted that the "complaints concerning Mr. (Mel) Siebold's job and the advisability of replacing Mr. (James) Quigley are just the latest problems Manchester has."
Quigley's resignation from two town positions has been sought by the Republican Town Committee after he berated the Eighth District Firemen. Siebold's positions as town recreation director and coach of the Manchester Swim Club is under investigation by a three-member committee.

The MPOA has reported that its petition for a tax freeze has been "very well accepted."
The association is gathering petitions to force a Board of Directors vote in limiting tax increases to the amount of the Grand List increases.
A meeting to notarize the petitions will be May 22.

Bridge ramp closing at night

HARTFORD — State Transportation Commissioner Arthur B. Powers has announced the off-ramp from the Founders Bridge to I-91 southbound in Hartford will be temporarily closed to traffic at night.
The closure is being made in conjunction with the I-91 bridge deck repair project which has been ongoing in the Hartford area since this past March.
The off-ramp will be closed Monday through Friday between the hours of 10:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. A detour through city streets, Columbia Boulevard, to the Whitehead Highway, to I-91 southbound will be maintained during these hours. This detour will remain in effect for approximately one month.
A message sign will be placed on Route 2 (at I-84) in East Hartford to give motorists advance warning of the closure.

Manchester's hiring freeze

Manchester's board of directors, apparently for little reason except window dressing, imposed a hiring freeze on all town positions during the consideration of the budget.

Members thought they could fool town taxpayers into thinking town government was tightening its belt the way every business, industry and family must during these tight economic times.

Mayor Stephen Penny, a Democrat and Director Peter DiRosa, holding office as a Republican, contended filling seven positions and leaving five vacant during the term of the hiring freeze was justifiable.

We could only support that contention if we agreed glibly talking politicians can justify anything. We do not take that view. We think the board made a very clear statement Feb. 28 when it said, "This freeze will involve the filling of any vacant or new position. Any vacancy considered to be critical to the operation of the town would be submitted to the board for approval until the budgeting process has been completed and the freeze lifted."

Thoughts

Thoughts

Hillel used to say "If I am not for myself, who will be for me? But if I care for myself alone, what am I and if not now, when?" (Ethics of the Fathers I, 14)

The first two lines of this saying from Ethics carries the same message, "Love thy neighbor as thyself" (Leviticus) is always taken as a charge of selfishness.

If we recognize that we must care for others because they are created in God's image, then it follows that we must also care for ourselves, for we too were so created.

To the editor:
There is a turn of phrase in the Manchester charter provisions for the Town Attorney that tends to imply he is required to be a hired gun for town officials in their legal skirmishes with anyone, townspeople included.

Registration cards printed

By LISA SHEPARD
WASHINGTON - The Selective Service has printed 25 million draft registration cards for use this June even though Congress has not given final approval and an unexpected Senate amendment could mean reprinting.

Meanwhile, the Selective Service, expecting little resistance from Congress, printed 25 million cards within the last few weeks to facilitate registration in late June. The cost of printing the cards was $135,000, but the agency has spent a total of $375,000 for posters, brochures, change-of-address forms, mailing labels, packaging costs and distribution.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

U.S. reports of Soviet use of poison gas have low credibility

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON - I've already reported that the Russians are using poison gas to flush the ragged Afghan rebels from their mountain hideouts. Now there is alarming evidence that the Russians have developed a new "nerve" gas capable of incapacitating its victims long enough for troops to move in for the kill.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

U.S. reports of Soviet use of poison gas have low credibility

Intelligence Agency briefings have stressed that there is no hard evidence that will either confirm or belie the allegations of chemical warfare by Russian troops in Afghanistan, much less the appearance of a new "nerve" gas.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

U.S. reports of Soviet use of poison gas have low credibility

Another area that has produced numerous reports of gas attacks is Southeast Asia. Lation tribesmen have repeatedly given U.S. representatives detailed accounts of deadly poison gas attacks. But here again, convincing physical evidence has been scant.

TownTalk

Eighth District director Willard Marvin commenting on his recent participation in the Town-District Planning Commission meeting called the talks a "success," adding, "We're looking forward to peace on earth... in Manchester too."

After an attorney representing St. James Church told the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals Monday that he would be sold at this September's church carnival to complain the ethnic nature of meals being served, a board member responded, "...it's a novel approach, its different."

"I want you to know I got a parking ticket in front of the hospital," Vernon Town Council member Jane Lamb announced at the close of the meeting Monday. "I'm not fixing any parking tickets," gapped Mayor Marie Herbst. "I already paid the $1, it's not enough," said Mrs. Lamb. "The board won't have to worry; in the end the lease will be drawn up in the board's favor."

Corporation Counsel J. Patrick Dwyer assuring the East Hartford Board of Education about a lease it is looking to sign with the Capitol Region Education Council to make McArthur School into a regional alternate vocational center.

Obituaries

Russell J. Upton Sr.— Russell J. Upton Sr., 72, of 53 Grandview Circle, formerly of Manchester, died Monday in Windham Community Hospital, Windham. He was the husband of Alice (Stroff) Upton. Mr. Upton was born in East Hartford, March 9, 1907 and had lived in Manchester for 36 years before moving to Windham eight years ago. Before retiring in 1969, he was a construction engineer with the former John Hoyer and Son Co., West Hartford, where he had been employed for more than 40 years. Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Russell J. Upton Jr., West Willington, and two daughters, Benjamin, New Britain and Barbara Zakwiec, Manchester; two brothers, Ray Upton, Manchester and Alvin Upton, Everett, Wash.; two sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Davy, Manchester and Mrs. Myra Stroffog, East Hartford, five grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. ## Extra theaters unwelcome

EAST HARTFORD—Mayor George A. Dagon was "kicking up his heels" Friday following news the owners of the Showcase Cinemas of Charter Oak Wall have proposed adding two theaters to its six-theater complex on Silver Lane. Dagon said this is not the kind of building activity the town wants to see there. The proposed theaters would add to the traffic problem in the area that he said is at its saturation point for automobile traffic.

Officials in the town building department Monday said the National Amusements Inc. of Boston have plans to add two 300-capacity theaters to the complex. The Boston firm, which operates one of the largest theater complexes in the area, wants to build a 70-by-133-square-foot addition on the complex's west side to house the new theaters.

The additional theaters will probably mean adding to the cinema's large, lighted billboard advertising current showings along an adjacent section of Interstate 86. Planning and Zoning Commission members have said they consider the existing billboard a traffic hazard because it makes drivers take their eyes off the road.

Director of Building and Permits Frank N. Barone said there is little the town can do to stop the proposed 275,000 addition. He said the application appears to meet all town regulations. Only the building department must approve the proposed addition, Barone said.

Dagon said the town did try to prevent expansion of the theaters before they were stopped in court.

In 1973 National Amusements received a permit to build four theaters. In 1976 the Planning and Zoning Commission refused an application from the Boston firm to expand to six theaters.

The firm successfully brought suit against the town to overturn the zone change that would prevent its expansion and so that only a building permit would be required.

Dagon said the additional theaters might add to the town's tax rolls but that will be offset by the problems they will bring.

Road engineering starts

MANCHESTER—Engineering consultants have begun preliminary work on Main Street reconstruction voted in referendum three years ago. The engineering consulting firm of Fuss & O'Neill began a parking survey last Thursday to determine traffic patterns along the central business district. The firm has implemented to plan street improvements to the downtown area and Charter Oak streets. The consultants met today with the Downtown Coordinating Committee. Improvements include the reconstruction of the Main and Center streets intersection. While consultants asked direction from the committee, they indicated that parking will be similar parking issues. Angled parking existing on much of Main Street was a controversial issue among committee members. Phil Harrison, chairman of the downtown committee, however, said parking was not the problem with the central district, and reiterated that aesthetic improvements were needed to assure Main Street's continued life. The consultants are considering street design, and its effects on the street's appearance, in making final recommendations. Their study, however, is in the preliminary stages.

Bike track gets last OK

MANCHESTER—After about seven discussions at town meetings, and six months since he proposed the idea, Robert Kiernan apparently will be able to construct a bicycle racing track. The Planning and Zoning Commission last night approved, consented to the track last night, but only for one season. The commission's approval must appear before it next year for another hearing. The PZC questioned whether parking at the track, which is the area proposed for the track, would be sufficient. The commissioners also had reservations about whether motorcyclists would use the track, when the races were not being held. The approval for one season affords the commission the opportunity to review the questions after a trial period. The plan, prepared by the town attorney's office at the Board of Directors request, is for five years, but the option to renew must be exercised each year. The lease must now be approved by the Board of Directors. The directors approved the concept of the track, which is the area proposed for the track, which is the area proposed for the track. Scoring the tying run in the bottom of the ninth and the winning run in the home 11th, Penney High kept its State Baseball Tournament hopes alive with a 3-2 win over Concord yesterday at the Knights' field. Penney is 9-10 and needs a win Wednesday over cross-town East Hartford to secure a first-place season ticket. Concord dropped to 11-6 with the loss. With one out in the 11th, Dino Peruccio beat out an infield roller from the pitcher's mound and then stole second. He scored the game-winning run on Frank Benetti's single to center.

"These guys didn't quit. This team has something, they don't quit," expressed happy Knight Coach Mike Lippes.

Dennis McHugh, 3-2, went the distance to pick up the win for Penney. He scattered eight hits, walked only two runs, walked two and striking out two.

Penney tied it in the ninth. Pete Cane signed and came all the way around to score as Peruccio's fielder's choice was pegged wildly to first.

Conard opened the scoring in the fifth. Ben Mardero singled and scored on Cliff O'Brien's triple and he scored on Pete McGahie's sacrifice fly.

Benetti drew close on an error. Jim Sexton singled, Al Dunfee grounded into a fielder's choice and Mark Anderson closed on RBI single. Dave Crossley started for the

Islanders lead by 3-1

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—With the Stanley Cup now just one game away from the desperate clutch of the New York Islanders, the attitude of the team, to a man, is to grab it and run.

"I just want to win it as soon as possible," said Clark Gillies, the Islanders' powerful left wing who set up two first-period goals and scored one himself in the third period of New York's 5-2 victory Monday night. The victory gave the Islanders a 3-1 stranglehold in the NHL's championship series with Game 5 will be played in Philadelphia Thursday night.

The Islanders, in their eighth year of existence, bowed out in the semifinals four times before this season, and Gillies said the team realizes it may be now or never.

"We just said to ourselves, 'We've never been this close before and we may never again, so it'd be foolish to let it slip away at this point,'" he said.

Gillies seemed to be making sure of that in the first period. Just after the Islanders killed off an early Flyers' power play, Philadelphia's Tom Gorence was whistled for holding. Gillies muscled his way behind the net, captured the puck and came out in front of Philadelphia goalie Pete Peeters. When the defense rushed to Gillies, he passed across the crease to Mike Bossy, who popped in his ninth playoff goal at 7:23.

Abby

By Abigan van Buren

DEAR ABBY: All through grade school, Peter, the boy who lived next door, was my childhood sweetheart. He moved away when I was 12, and we lost touch of each other. Six months ago we met at a Reagan rally and recognized each other immediately. (It's 22 and Peter is 23.) We had a wonderful time talking about old times, and you might say it was love at second sight. We've been inseparable ever since. We are planning to marry, but here comes the bizarre part. When I told my mother about our plans to marry, she told me something that really shook me up. She said that the man I always thought was my father is not my father. My father was Peter's father. That makes Peter my half-brother. My mother is now divorced from the man she was married to whom I was born, and Peter's father (and mine, according to my mother) died three years ago. Can a woman marry her half-brother in the state of California?

DEAR STILL: DAZED (half as well as whole blood) is considered incestuous, and therefore illegal in California - and every other state, unless they've changed the law since yesterday.

DEAR ABBY: Through you I hope to express my gratitude to those in the counseling profession who have dedicated their lives to helping others. I am 23 and will soon graduate in a helping profession. I am a survivor of several suicide attempts. After working for three years getting to know myself, I finally discovered that I like myself and really want to live. Most of my life I was unable to say that. I attribute my survival to my therapist, without whose steadfast support and faith I would have died. They never gave up on me despite my self-hatred. Now I feel like a beautiful butterfly that has finally come out of its cocoon of despair, uncertain but ready to fly! I will forever be grateful to my therapist who showed me that I could open the door and choose life. I hope you will find room in your column to let those in the field thank the counseling profession who know that there are those who are thankful.

DEAR GLAD: And I am glad to print your letter. Congratulations. Without your cooperation, your therapist could not have saved your life. I recommend counseling so often I'm sure some readers regard it as a cop-out, but often it is the only "logical" solution. It's heartening to observe that many who have been "saved" from suicide, alcoholism, drug addiction or a life of crime themselves, have chosen to dedicate their lives to saving others.

DEAR ABBY: This is my fourth try at having you run something that I feel would be a bit more with many people. All kinds of relationships, but particularly regarding physical intimacy. Solutions have been written on the how-to's of sex, but the biggest turn-on in cleanliness - good old-fashioned soap and water. Clean! That means hair, fingernails, teeth, clothing - the works. Nothing is so discouraging to intimacy as slightly soiled clothing, or a hint of odor to suggest that the hair, mouth or body is less than clean. I am a woman, and the greatest turn-on to me is a scrubbed man, freshly shaven, with clean fingernails, polished shoes and clean clothing from the skin out! Please print this, Abby. Some people need to be told.

Problem? This Abby. Some people need to get their feet. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 99700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

South dealt the queen and jack of hearts. West continued with the 10. East played the king and South had to take his ace. Then he led a club to dummy's queen and East's ace.

East was in. Ninety-nine of a hundred players would proceed to cash the last trick at this time. Not this player. He had counted and saw that South held a minimum of 10 point trump; there was no room left in his partner's hand for even a Jack. Hence East saw that he would get squeezed out of protection for one of his two queens when South cashed the fourth club (assuming he held it).

So East moseyed back a club and held on to his little heart in the hope that he would get to cash it later.

South won the club in his own hand and reassured that he had no worries. He could cash the ace of diamonds, lead a second diamond to dummy and take the finesse. If lost, he would still make his contract. East wouldn't be able to take the last heart since West obviously held it.

So South did just that and East, surprisingly, produced that last heart. Walk up a profit.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag. The cheviest expression "Treat 'em rough and tell 'em how you feel" applies at the bridge table. At least the "tell 'em nothing" part.
